A Cambridgeshire Scrapbook 1897-1990

Facts, Features and (occasional) Fallacies reported in Cambridge Newspapers

Summaries of Stories and Copies of Articles compiled by Mike Petty.

Revised July 2020.

Actual articles as published

Many of the stories summarised are followed by a date reference (YY-MM-DD).
I have placed copies of these in Albums on Google Photos

Cambridgeshire Newspapers Articles on Google Photos

CamNews

1905-07 https://photos.app.goo.gl/gQeTRHFZ5bLcPBRq9
1910-13 https://photos.app.goo.gl/VG35idug3JLiuoNS7
1915 https://photos.app.goo.gl/kU75VKExfcgXvmSM9
1916 https://photos.app.goo.gl/zbvEA51wNdUuReJe6
1917 https://photos.app.goo.gl/N8hG7b8mtdLEnQqq9
1918 https://photos.app.goo.gl/ZJPqce6g6XsXcU7C8
1919 https://photos.app.goo.gl/5d5etstfNGhgSCUD9

1920 https://photos.app.goo.gl/wYx1hs7pEdKgJDES6

1930-39 https://photos.app.goo.gl/HdHm2pPD3WQ4uop57

1940 https://photos.app.goo.gl/NWAGudgZQxvVQ8oZA
1941 https://photos.app.goo.gl/j3v641j2fDYzA9Mu6
1942 https://photos.app.goo.gl/XeytJ1bxZzQhDBGL7
1943 https://photos.app.goo.gl/6ABpSgP4V8C5fhQYA
1944 https://photos.app.goo.gl/QKiE9AMnS66eckncA
1945 https://photos.app.goo.gl/Bkqzr3Eqt6jr4FZm6
1946 https://photos.app.goo.gl/ktmNPr5nhnKdkDGw9

1955-59 https://photos.app.goo.gl/KT4m35GrCKwRgaCG9

1960-64 https://photos.app.goo.gl/QBFPQG84j1F27Jko8
1965 https://photos.app.goo.gl/ARd6N1D4nkvs4msz8
1966 https://photos.app.goo.gl/eGRuMZJJdwW5foQr7
1967 https://photos.app.goo.gl/kNDhXKMpaxpmaf5s9
1968 https://photos.app.goo.gl/hFQWuG3eFvjLfq7W9
1969 https://photos.app.goo.gl/xWYfKYZ4DJgoRpWTA

1970 https://photos.app.goo.gl/jaDdF4b4HJnQ3Qn77
1971 https://photos.app.goo.gl/2ssMjDkJCkp5KZP4A
1972 https://photos.app.goo.gl/iPAh76skczQ8j1xE9

1980-89 https://photos.app.goo.gl/GJt5f8x4S2c3Rk9a8

1990 https://photos.app.goo.gl/YfJdJ6u15irw9aeb9

ElyNews

1915 https://photos.app.goo.gl/ZhedznuHwJqmBYVS6
1918 https://photos.app.goo.gl/hcScWumsfpQB2ijj7
1919 https://photos.app.goo.gl/KLs7wgjrbWYmaDNh6

1920 https://photos.app.goo.gl/8ZwToPUdpcY1aKpY9
1921 https://photos.app.goo.gl/YH7jPYmebuCvtUbF9
1922 https://photos.app.goo.gl/4SdE1ip5y7pqG1668
1923 https://photos.app.goo.gl/VZU33re5xofnBaEFA
1924 https://photos.app.goo.gl/efwSvgjkQov2xuiK8
1925 https://photos.app.goo.gl/8or3WimoacKbrhxH7

1926 https://photos.app.goo.gl/5ftKhAhThW7zMmcJ8
1927 https://photos.app.goo.gl/5yh9iYNMWx7WKA1s9
1928 https://photos.app.goo.gl/VWnCD4Ht1zA7tGsn9
1929 https://photos.app.goo.gl/YrWBN8XsYB8aVPKa7

1930 https://photos.app.goo.gl/vBAPfCHAjgqGaoHh7
1931 https://photos.app.goo.gl/7sue4BjHVBg4dTzN9
1932 https://photos.app.goo.gl/en5ND3vgEh1ykGPUA
1933 https://photos.app.goo.gl/yZ866EPpEZd7B3MR6
1934 https://photos.app.goo.gl/ocR4LUHLxtadcV9P8
1935 https://photos.app.goo.gl/6jjX6gW3xWvtc6Eo8
1937 https://photos.app.goo.gl/JPcwAtiFr21WLmfJ7
1938 https://photos.app.goo.gl/gjxnyi8QmQEoyk8P9

1950 https://photos.app.goo.gl/Ee8G1n4aUvVsGR8E8
1951 https://photos.app.goo.gl/BH8UzHBpzXsbqRdz5
1952 https://photos.app.goo.gl/3cHnBPB9dY12i3DMA
1953 https://photos.app.goo.gl/718taKUCKHCX9tNb9
1954 https://photos.app.goo.gl/umsPRJbnynMLqNki7
1955 https://photos.app.goo.gl/FPJnhgiYjVKfV51A8
1956 https://photos.app.goo.gl/3LEHan6kR3egrxJt6
1957 https://photos.app.goo.gl/ZXSkh5eeXMCERbs89

1965 https://photos.app.goo.gl/emV83L1n2TJLRQWb7

The actual newspapers are housed in the Cambridgeshire Collection at Cambridge Central Library, Lion Yard, Cambridge www.cambridgeshire.collection@cambridgeshire.gov.uk

A Cambridgeshire Scrapbook 1897 to 1990. July 2020 Revision

1897 Cambridge Daily News

1897
Cambridge Daily News stories
There are reader-printer copies and scans
Incorporating stories from diary that were not used

January 1897 CDN

1897 01 02
E.T. Hooley proposed duty on imported corn to provide old age pensions, p3

1897 01 05
Our marriage customs, p3

1897 01 06
Anthrax at Haverhill, p3

1897 01 07
Chesterton UDC debates amalgamation with Cambridge & Cottenham light railway, not one advantage, p3

1897 01 09
Wisbech Board of Guardians not to send pauper bodies to Cambridge, p3 # c.21.2

1897 01 11
Abbey Road Bridge, letter p2
Willingham public hall opened, p3

1897 01 12
Sewerage farm waterlogged, p2
Hitchin lavender industry

1897 01 14
Organ grinders nuisance, p3
Woman killed by train at Sutton junction p3 (inquest 16th p3)

1897 01 16
Bricklayers threaten to strike if pay not increased from 7d to 7½d
Judge falls asleep
Peterborough cathedral north gable partly down p3
Exning water mill case p3

1897 01 23
Chesterton reject amalgamation by 985 votes to 349 p2 # c.35.7
Willingham butchers fined for sending diseased meat to London
Blizzard sweeps England, p3

1897 01 25
Woman died in snow near Saffron Walden p3
Littleport skating match

1897 01 27
Debating Society proposed, p2

1897 01 28
Skating at Littleport – A.E. Tebbitt etc p3

1897 01 29
Skating Littleport p3

1897 01 30
Clayhithe toll bridge should be free, p3

February 1897 CDN

1897 02 01
Chesterton amalgamation dropped
Propose new GER station – present station dangerous, extension to Mill Road, Coldham's Common site proposed, Hyde Park Corner possible p3 # c.26.2

1897 02 04
Women suffrage bill

1897 02 06
Charity Commission scheme; Corporation get entire use of Spinning House to expand police station, rebuild one day # c.34.7

1897 02 08
Widespread floods, breach of Nene at March # c.29

1897 02 17
Briggs Savidge bankruptcy p2 # Stretham
Cretan crisis p3

1897 02 18
Sewage scheme grave complaints

1897 02 22
Abbey Road Bridge or old grind for ever – letter

1897 02 24
Bike adverts p1
Christianity amongst Jews – Moule p2
Christ's college sports p2
Godmanchester – Rhodes, p3
Newmarket pigeon shooting, p3
Sewage, p3

1897 02 24
Mr Wisbey referred to the roads question. They had been defeated but the authorities had seen that Romsey Town people were a force to be reckoned with. Hitherto they had been looked upon as a naughty dog, always barking and making a noise, but without any bite. (Laughter) Mr Quinney referring to the sewage scheme said he applied for work and was told by the engineer that they did not want men who understood the work as they would know too much if things went wrong. (Laughter)

1897 02 25

The contract for the new organ for Haverhill parish church has been placed in the hands of Messrs Miller & son, Cambridge. The construction of the organ will be specially arranged to keep the view of the stained glass window perfectly clear which necessitates part of the organ being a considerable distance from the main portion, and which has been specially arranged for by the builders

1897 02 25
Cherry Hinton lady & bread p2 *
Ely MoH report 1896, p3

1897 02 26
Three menageries Royston Heath – racehorses
Bricklayers lock out, p3

1897 02 26
The clerk to the Ely Guardians applied for the removal of Tabitha Camm, an eccentric old woman aged 72 years who is living in a tumbled-down old hovel in Littleport fen. The place was filthy in the extreme. She has lived there all her life and she tenaciously sticks to it. PC King said the walls were tumbling down and the bricks had no mortar between them. The rain penetrated and soot and dirt covered the place. The lady is independent in every sense of the word and would-be sympathisers are quickly ordered to decamp

1897 02 27
The Guildhall floor has become so unsafe that when a ball is held in the large room the most elaborate precautions have to be taken to support the beams in the ceiling of the Free Library beneath. This shoring-up process costs something like 30/- each time and is a sheer waste of money # c.69.2 # c.77.4

1897 02 27
To let: a large advertising trolley, to parade the principal streets of Cambridge. For terms & particulars apply Cambridge & District Advertising and Bill Posting co. (ltd), Downing House, Regent St, Cambridge
Margarine as better, Mildenhall, p3

March 1897 CDN

1897 03 01
Boys shot, p3

1897 03 01
Mr B.W. Beales has the pleasure to announce that he has disposed of the business carried on for many years by him as a brewer and wine and spirit merchant at the Panton Brewery in this town, to Messrs Harold Barber Bailey (son of the late Mr Frederick Bailey, of Burleigh House, Newmarket Road) and Herbert Hazeldine Tebbutt, the continuing partner in the late firm of Robinson & Tebbutt, and the business will in future be carried on by these gentlemen under the style of Bailey & Tebbutt # c.27.4

1897 03 02
Begging, p2
Cycling on Parker's Piece, p2 *
University degree women recommended. P3

1897 03 03
Romsey Road taxes, p2
Recent floods letter, p3

1897 03 04

Trams & buses, p2
Chesterton sewage, p2
Proposed Abbey Road Bridge, p2

1897 03 05
Betting raid, p2
Free Library for Chesterton, p2

The clerk (of Chesterton Urban District Council) read a letter from the chairman of the Milton Parish Council stating that he had been asked to draw the attention of the Council to the large heap of rubbish on Mr Few's land near the railway crossing which was causing a nuisance throughout the neighbourhood. It seemed the contractor who gathered their house refuse had deposited a large heap within 10 yards of the public highway. There were 200 or 300 yards of house refuse in a large heap, and it generated an amount of gas and bad sent. The smell was infinitely worse than the smell from the sewage farm

1897 03 05
Wm Henry Chapel Smith, draper of 13 Market Street was summoned for hanging a pair of corsets and a roll of calico outside his shop front so as to incommode passengers. P.C. Savidge said the things projected four inches. Defendant said "I have lived in the street 25 years and you have been in the force 25 minutes. I think you were drawing the line too close. I don't know what we are coming to". He said the bye-law was an injustice to traders. The Chairman said it seemed to him admitted that something projected beyond the line of the shop. Fined 1/-

1897 03 06
Messrs Grain, Moyes and Wisbey offered for sale by auction two valuable licensed properties situate at Fulbourn and Fen Ditton respectively. There was a large and representative attendance and the bidding was very brisk. The property at Fulbourn consists of the beer-house known as "The Royal Oak" with 4-quarter brewery, malting, club-room etc, a farm homestead with barn and stables, and about two acres of paddock and orchard in the occupation of Messrs Hudson's Cambridge & Pampisford Breweries Company at a year rent of £55. The bidding started at £500 and ultimately reached £1,050 at which price it was disposed of. "The Blue Lion", Fen Ditton was then offered. It contains tap-room, sitting-room and three bedrooms, with a yard at side etc and is let at a rental of £25 per annum. The first bid given was £300, and the price quickly rose until it reached £825, when it was sold. The results of the sales were highly satisfactory to the vendors.

1897 03 06
Romsey Road summons nearing end, p2
CDN manager in court interfering paper p2 *
Two dissected bodies, Wisbech

1897 03 08
At St Paul's church on Sunday morning the Rev Dr Stokes said "The town owes a debt of gratitude to the authorities for their elaborate and extensive efforts to check the gambling evil which for some time past has been rampant in our midst. It has for many months been a matter of public scandal that certain men have been at the corners of some of our streets enticing young men and lads, as well as unwary men and even women into betting and gambling. It was of great importance to capture not one or two only but the whole band, and especially those who finance the business. As the guilty parties promised never again to infringe the new bye-law it is not to be wondered at that the magistrates only imposed a small fine but it is a matter of regret that no severe punishment could be inflected on these corruptors of the morals of our town"

1897 03 08
Newmarket fire brigade, p3
Shop breaking, p3

1897 03 09
Street ruffians, p2
Cover Market with glass for Jubilee, p3

1897 03 10
Swaffham Bulbeck utilise pond as parish room, p2
Advertisement for cycle shop – 'What is all Cambridge talking about', p3
Rat up tree, Ely, p4

1897 03 10
Gamlingay: Very wet weather has been experienced in this district for some time past and fine weather is now very urgently required. The clay land has lacked the pulverising influence of frosts and the heavy rains have beaten the land down to such a tenacious mass that drilling will be very difficult and unsatisfactory. The mild winter has enabled the farmer and grazier to keep his stock on the grass. A short time ago a visitor at Gamlingay was changing trains at Ely when his attention was called by the stationmaster to the novel view of about 60 rats "up a tree" near the station. The heavy rains had flooded the district including a farmhouse and yard, and the rats to escape drowning had mounted the tree

1897 03 11
On Monday evening as a cow was being put in a railway truck it broke loose and scattering all hands by its fierce aspect tore up the Station-road. When it arrived at Back Hill a woman with more courage than her sex are usually credited with under such circumstances rushed out with open arms to stop its progress. The infuriated animal turned on her, but she fortunately escaped. It next ran down Silver Street and put to flight some of the newly-enlisted Militia recruits. It knocked down Reuben Lemon, the Cathedral watchman and attacked Mr J. Rogers and tossed him as high as the eaves of Mrs Ellis' barn.

1897 03 11
Pauper for dissection, p3
Cambridge sewerage scheme, p3

1897 03 12
Having visited the cemetery on the Huntingdon-road this morning I was thinking what a beautiful spot it was; with a good carriage drive from the road. As there was a very large field adjoining it I thought what a suitable place it was for a cemetery for Cambridge, and the approach to it far better than through Barnwell. It does not seem much farther than the spot that was thought of, past the Paper Mills. – Letter

1897 03 13
Now the minds of all her subjects are bent upon the question of how most fittingly to celebrate the Queen's long reign, I venture to revive a suggestion of converting part of Midsummer Common into a running track and athletic training ground and of building a public gymnasium thereon. At present the town is entirely dependent upon the kindness of the University for a Place to hold sports, while athletes have absolutely nowhere to train properly

1897 03 13
Huntingdon militia train away, p3

1897 03 15
Guildhall front, p2
Jubilee Saffron Walden suggestions, p3

1897 03 16
The "Cambridge Daily News" makes proposals. A municipal washhouse. We believe there are hundreds of women in Cambridge - the wives of working men - who would hail with the liveliest satisfaction the establishment of a place where they could do their week's washing with some degree of comfort. How many homes belonging to the humbler classes are there without anything like proper washing and drying accommodation to the occupants of which such a place would be a boon and a blessing

1897 03 17
Not 10 per cent of houses in and around Cambridge have a bathroom. There is one public bath in Cambridge and for its use 1s is charged. How many of us workingmen can afford to pay that? The corporation has plenty of land for the purpose such as Petersfield, the cost of the baths would be not more than £20,000 and it would move one of the standing disgraces of Cambridge. (Letter)

1897 03 18
"What do I think of baths and wash-houses" said the wife of a working man. "Why that it would be a Jubilee all the year round. Here, just come and have a look round the house. Now how would you like to do a week's wash without a copper to boil the 'things' in and a yard not big enough to swing a cat in to dry 'em when they are washed ... we boil the things in the pot, the same as we boils the puddings and the potatoes and big things like sheets don't get boiled at all"

1897 03 18
Dullingham railway gates smashed, p4

1897 03 19
Undergraduate views bathing, p2

1897 03 19
It is well known that Downing College desire to part with a portion of their beautiful grounds (Lensfield Road end) for building purposes which I think would be one of the greatest calamities that could happen to central Cambridge. It would instead make a public park that would be worthy of the unique occasion (Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee} and of the University and town of Cambridge (Letter from H.E. Ladds)

1897 03 19
St Paul's Church Institute opened, p3
Bradley teeth

1897 03 20
Mr Edwin Bays, architect, forwards particulars of a scheme for erecting a viaduct, with Bathing Sheds under, leading from the Trumpington Road, Cambridge, to Newnham. The proposed viaduct road would start from the Leys School grounds, Coe Fen, Newnham and terminating at Grantchester and Barton Roads. It will be necessary to construct two river and three road arches and it is intended to utilise one as a Swimming Bath for women, and the other two as dressing rooms

1897 03 20
New daily / weekly paper – costings, p3
Longstanton new highway
Parish council electricity, p4

1897 03 20
A Rampton man was summoned for being in possession of a dwelling house which was dangerous and unfit for habitation. There were three rooms on the ground floor, the rooms at either end were boarded up and the centre portion occupied. The only thing that prevented that from falling in was the floor above. The roof was giving way and part of it rested on an old four-post bedstead. The occupant had to hold up an umbrella to keep the wet out of the house

1897 03 22
Education in rural districts – Girton example, p3
Diamond Jubilee bridge – letter, p3

1897 03 23
Old Age pensions & Oddfellows, p2
Toilets, p2 *
Women Temperance – vote issues, p3
Trees along river, p3
Volunteer tragedy, p3
Ely Methodist organ, p4

1897 03 24
Notwithstanding the sewerage operations and the numerous complaints of nauseous smells from manholes in almost every part of Cambridge, it is exceedingly gratifying to find that the death rate is steadily decreasing. It is also a matter for congratulation that 71 per cent of the notified scarlet fever cases were admitted into the Sanatorium. If the council would courageously determine to abolish the fees at that institution the percentage of admissions would be still higher

1897 03 24
Bridge sketch, p2
25 years Oddfellowship, p2
Permanent Benefit Building Society a/m, p2
Bill Posting Company case, p3
Funeral Sergeant Shallow, p3

1897 03 25
The Royston fire brigade was in a most neglected condition. They had members who were ever ready to do their best in any emergency but it was impossible for them to do their work with hardly any hose. If a fire broke out in the High Street it would not be possible to work at it from the front and rear too. The building in which the engine was stowed away was low, damp and small, so small that the engine could hardly be got in and out of the place. S. Camps speaking at Royston Public Meeting)

1897 03 25
Swimming baths review plan, p2
Home & Rest for girls, p2
Ely money for poor, p2
Sawston health, p2 *
Alpha Road dustbins p2

1897 03 26
P.C. Booty of the Cambs Police has been compelled to retire from the force owing to weak health, a misfortune which is made heavier by the fact that he was within two months of being entitled to a pension. He has been stationed in the Newmarket district some years, formerly at Chippenham and then at Newmarket. In both places he has taken a great interest in gardening matters. He leaves to enter upon occupation of the Fountain Hotel, Cambridge

1897 03 26
Saffron Walden annual horse fair is now taking place. A large business was transacted on the Market-place this morning. There was a great demand for bus and tram horses, and prices were good. The pleasure fair promises to be of the usual attractive character, Thurston's steam horses being close at hand to take up their position on the Common at noon on Friday

1897 03 26
St John's Ambulance organise Old Age Pensioners meeting, p2
Saffron Walden sale and fair, p3
Proposed Abbey Road bridge, p3

1897 03 27
Funeral Col Taylor, Withersfield, p2
Women's University proposal, p2

1897 03 29
Some toys of English make were shown at the last meeting of the Technical Committee of the Cambridge Town Council. The toys in question were made by peasants of Wilts and Dorset in the long winter evenings and as much as 30s. a week is now being earned by the rustic manufacturers for the toys fetch good prices. We pay Germany £1,000,000 annually for our children's toys, while many English parents have no work to do. It is high time that efforts were made to divert this million of money into the pockets of English people (Edutorial)

1897 03 29
Rowing at low ebb, p2
Addenbrooke's Hospital operating theatres, p3

1897 03 30
Police at play, p2
Cork Club publications, p2
Barkway fire, p3
Huntingdon Working Men's Club, p3
Cycle shop adv., p3

1897 03 31
Workhouse bedsteads, p3

April 1897 CDN

1897 04 02
First of April tricks, p2
Row on Newmarket Road, p2
Trumpington jubilee reading room, p3

1897 04 03
Chesterton jubilee & pic

1897 04 03 c
After the lapse of close upon a month the committee appointed to carry out the celebration of the Great Jubilee (of Queen Victoria) in Cambridge have definitely decided upon a single scheme. The course adopted has the effect of putting out of court our scheme for the establishment of a system of private and swimming baths as a Jubilee undertaking. But considering the remarkable unanimity of opinion on the subject we feel sure that the project will be only temporarily waived. Indeed having regard to the absolute necessity in the town we pledge ourselves to revive the matter at the first convenient opportunity. Very little difficulty would be experienced in floating a company to carry out a scheme so universally deemed desirable. (Editorial)

1897 04 05
Boat race & ambulance, p2
Cambridge betting cases trial, p3

1897 04 07
Much amusement was caused at the meeting of the Peterborough Board of Guardians by the reading of the following from a labouring man. "Gentelmen. i was told some time back that you wud git a wife for a respectful man out of the Union (workhouse) if i wud ax you and so gentelmen I take the liberty. i am nearly 64 years old and work on the land. it is hard lines for a body to go home and find no body home to cook his food and so forth. if you have a nice lookin woman in the house as you can spare me for a wife it would lessen the rates and be a comfort to me. i should like her to be about thirty or forty and could work well. She must be good looking well up to her work and I well try and make a gud usband to her" - signed Thomas Smith

1897 04 07
Newmarket broken back, p3

1897 04 07 c
In Cherryhinton Road, Cambridge, and in close proximity to the Cattle Market, Mr Henry Day has erected a new flour mill. The building is compact, the three floors are occupied by a most interesting system of machinery. Needless to say the plant is of the most up-to-date character. It has been fitted to produce one sack per hour. Mr Day expressed his confidence that he had some of the very best wheat obtainable. He enters the open market with every determination to succeed

1897 04 08
At the monthly meeting of the Baldock Urban District Council the Clerk brought up the matter of the fire engine station, stating that if they were to give it up, notice must be given by 1st May. Mr Bloom took it that it was settled that the old station should be given up. The Chairman thought the place would let very well, Baldock being very destitute of houses. He also pointed out that accommodation would have to be found for the engines and it would not do to put the new steamer in any kind of place until the new station was ready as a damp place would do much injury. It was agreed to try and arrange with the owners of the old station for the use of the place for three months longer

1897 04 09
The Newmarket Gas Company have been holding an interesting exhibition of gas appliances, both for cooking and lighting, including ranges of various patterns and sizes, an Otto gas engine, and the latest patents in chandeliers, brackets, burners, globes and shades, and other methods of improving the light given by gas. The variety and adaptability of the ranges and kindred appliances shown convey the impression that gas will be the chief cooking agent in the near future. The ranges shown may be bought or hired from the Newmarket Gas Co.

1897 04 10
New business in Cambridge, p2
Swavesey accident, p4

1897 04 12
Proposed covered market, p2

1897 04 13
British corporations owe £73.5m

1897 04 14
Ely Jubilee proposals, p2
Higher Grade cricket club, p3
Tadlow children, p3
Room shook, p4

1897 04 14
None enjoy the ecstasy of health so much as those who have just emerged from the pain and discomfort of a serious illness. It is a notorious fact in the neighbourhood of Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, that Mr George Stokes, confectioner, had for the past five years been unable to follow his business in consequence of the breakdown of his health. He then related how he came to read in "Lloyds Newspaper" how Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People had worked marvellous cures. "I got the first box of Dr Williams Pink Pills on the 5th of February. After taking the first three pills I began to sleep better, I can now move my neck, limbs and joints without pain except my knees. Certainly the change has been marvellous since I took Dr Williams' Pink Pills"

1897 04 15
Small pox hut, p3
Covered market rejected, p3 *

1897 04 17
Good Friday, p2

1897 04 17
A meeting of dog fanciers has been held to form a society for the purpose of holding an annual dog show at Cambridge. They had had dog shows here on previous occasions on rather a large scale and it was a question for consideration as to the advisability of giving so much prize-money as previously. If they gave smaller money and charged proportionate entrance fees they would get more entries, and a man usually would not enter unless he was pretty sure of getting money.

1897 04 17
The village of Stoke by Clare was quite gay with bunting when Lord and Lady Loch arrived to take up their residence at the college, which estate has been lately purchased by his Lordship. The bells rang out a merry peal, and the school children, who had been drawn up in a line at the park entrance lustily cheered as the carriage drove through. A triumphal arch was erected at the entrance to the College grounds.

1897 04 19
At Cambridge Easter Sunday was celebrated in all the churches. Congregations were very large and most of the places of worship were tastefully decorated, white flowers largely predominating. On Monday a goodly number of people followed the Volunteers in their march to Madingley, others watched the Boys Brigade movements on the University Range. Amusements were provided by the sports on Fenners and the circus in the afternoon

1897 04 20
Fourpowers circus & menagerie, p3

1897 04 21
Naval engagement, p2
Carting on Parker's Piece, p3

1897 04 22
Volunteer concert, p4

1897 04 23
University finance, p2
Royston land sale, p3

1897 04 24
Florists' Society demise, p2 # c.18
Chief Constable report, 1896, p3

1897 04 24
A memorial from certain inhabitants of the Cambridge in Favour of covering the Market Hill with a permanent covering of iron and glass was read by the Town Clerk. Coun Nichols thought the state of their present market was a disgrace to civilisation. They were paying at least £400 a year for putting up and taking down those wretched wooden structures and the cloths that covered them were of no use whatever. Mr F. Morley did not believe in the Corporation entering into competition with the shopkeepers of the town and driving the trade into the hand of people who paid no rates. Mr Campkin felt the question of a covered market elsewhere was too serious a matter for them to consider for many years to come. (The council voted against the proposal)

1897 04 26
Rifle Corps HQ, Corn Exchange St, p2

1897 04 27
Revive boats? p2
Perjury, p2
Accident St Barnabas Institute, p2 *

1897 04 28
Pensions & poor law, p2
Haverhill Jubilee recreation ground, p3
Wisbech cycle wedding, p3

May 1897 CDN

1897 05 01
May Day is the name of a holiday that calls up all sorts of pretty rustic associations. In Cambridge the first day of the merry month is a most unromantic reality. A few small children straggle about the streets with more or less pretentious garlands and a Jack-in-the-Green may occasionally be caught sight of, but beyond this May Day in Cambridge is a memory of the past. In connection with Hobson-street chapel there was a "May morning breakfast" at which there was a large attendance. The room was decorated with flowers and the gathering was a most enjoyable one.

1897 05 01
Newnham Croft sewage, p2

1897 05 03
Jubilee appeal – nurses, p2

1897 05 04
On Saturday night a stack was ignited near Caxton School. Ten minutes later a great blaze arose amongst the farm buildings at the rear of the farmhouse occupied by Mr James Paine. In about 30 minutes all the outbuildings had been destroyed. Then cries of "Fire" were heard from the centre of the village and a tongue of flame shot up at the back of the Cross Keys public-house. The villagers were now panic-stricken. Then three cottages near fell in. Only last October over a dozen houses and cottages were burnt down in the village

1897 05 05
While the members of the University Senate are engaged in a fierce contest to decide whether women shall be admitted to the titles of degrees, the undergraduates have given most emphatic expressions to their opinion. A committee was formed and within six days over 2,100 signatures (the total number of undergraduates and Bachelors is only 2.840) have been sent to a memorial expressing the conviction that the giving of degrees to women would prove injurious to the position and efficiency of the University as a University for men

1897 05 05
Chesterton & jubilee, p2
Undergraduates & women degrees, p3
Haverhill jubilee, p3

1897 05 06
Babington Memorial Institute, St Barnabas – pic, p3

1897 05 06
An inquiry concerning the recent fatal accident was held at the Brickmaker's Arms, Needingworth. Robert Marriott, labourer in the employ of Messrs Saint at their brick-kilns at Needingworth said he was working at the pug mill, taking the clay and throwing it on to the table. Deceased had to put those lumps of clay into the brick moulding machine. The moulding machine was in motion and deceased got his left foot caught in the machine. His right leg and thigh were torn off.

1897 05 06
Newmarket collision, p3
Impington recreation ground, p4
Robert Carpenter benefit, p4

1897 05 07
Will you allow me a small space to refer to the arrangements for sweeping and cleaning Fitzroy Street? After one gets one's place thoroughly cleaned and dusted, ready for business, we have three men commence sweeping the street and it is impossible sometimes to see across the road for dust. After this is done and the cart takes the rubbish away the water cart makes its appearance about two hours later. Considering that Fitzroy-street is one of the busiest streets of Cambridge I think these things could be altered to the benefit of the tradespeople of the street - letter from "Shopkeeper"

1897 05 08
The new Waterworks at Haverhill have now been opened. The well is dug 103 feet. The pumping of water is done by two gas engines. All the main points of the working can be seen in the engine-room by means of gauges, thus preventing any oil or dirt getting into the well; and as nothing comes in contact with the water but pure air, no contamination whatever is possible

1897 05 08
Technical instruction, p2-3
Haverhill waterworks opened, p3
Fen ghosts, p3 *

1897 05 10
Presentation Digby, skating, p3

1897 05 11
Under the personal direction of Mr James D. Bohee, banjoist to the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Royal Bohee Operatic Minstrels commenced a week's visit to Cambridge at the Beaconsfield Hall, Gwydir-street, when the room was filled. Mr Bohee played a popular march on the banjo, and instrument so often condemned as unmusical and showed his skill the more in his rendering of "Home, sweet home" with variations, which afforded more scope for his fingers to bring out the effect of light and shade, the soft passages seeming to whisper in the air amid the silence of the room, and the crashing noises of the fortissimo resounding loudly above the accompaniment of the orchestra.

1897 05 12

Last night a brilliant debate took place in the Debating Hall of the Cambridge University Union on the question of Women's Degrees. Mr T.F.R. McDonnell of St John's College said that one would suppose that as soon as the report had been passed a plague of women would descend upon Cambridge and infest everything. It was asked why women did not found a University of their own. A University was not built in a day and this would not prevent them from building one

1897 05 12
Ely tallow works move, p3
Baptist singing in chapel, p4

1897 05 13
The 3rd (Cambs) Volunteer Battalion, Suffolk Regiment are suffering seriously through lack of accommodation at their headquarters in Corn Exchange Street, Cambridge. "Most inconveniently", said the Colonel emphatically "we are unable to get the gun in"

1897 05 13
University Rifle Corps inspection, p3
Stretham Amateur Dramatic Society entertainment, p3
Bourn jubilee suggestions, p3

1897 05 14
An alarming and extensive fire occurred at Cottenham soon after midnight. Some young people were returning from a birthday party and upon passing the premises of the Alexandra Coffee Tavern noticed a fire in one of the outbuildings. Alarm was at once given but as it unfortunately happened the place was surrounded by a number of large thatched barns and buildings and in a very short time seven premises were ablaze and lit up the country for miles around

1897 05 17
Mill Road library opening, p2 # c.77.4

1897 05 18
As already stated in our columns Cottenham has been the scene of an alarming and extensive fire. The outbreak occurred in an outbuilding behind the Alexandra Coffee Tavern, where Mr Whitehead, who lets out bicycles on hire, had a quantity of machines. It is thought that the outbreak may have been caused by one of the lamps of the machines having been left alight

1897 05 18
On Monday last Mr Marshall Fisher of Ely celebrated his 92nd birthday, and received numerous congratulations and good wishes. He is (with the exception of a little deafness) in full possession of his facilities. When asked by our representative the secret of his long continued good health, he replied that he had always been strictly temperate, and smoked but once in his life. By the courtesy of Mr Fisher our representative was shown round his museum

1897 05 19
Fires & panics, 02 & see 20th, p2-3
Death Earl Hardwicke, p3
New Free Library, p3 * # c.77.4
Suicide son of Stearn, photographer, p3

1897 05 20
East Road library, p2 # c.77.4
Watering tram lines, p3
Proposed removal Midsummer Fair, p3
Bathers to wear drawers, p3

1897 05 21
Sir - It has been a cause of much regret and dissatisfaction to many to hear of the closing of the Barnwell Branch Free Library. It was understood that the opening of the new library on the Mill-road would not interfere with the progress of the Barnwell branch, but it seems that the East-road library is to be closed to supply the Romsey Town Library with books. When it is closed I am afraid many people who would otherwise read, will patronise public-houses, for many men who have worked 12 hours would hardy care to walk a mile before they could get a book to read

1897 05 21
Ashley fire, p3
Dunmow flitch, p3

1897 05 21 c
At Ely Urban District Council meeting a number of cases of waste water, defective cisterns and sanitary defects were reported. The pump at Queen Adelaide, which had been put out of order through mischievous boys putting stones in, had been repaired at a cost of £2. Warning notices had been put up.

1897 05 21
After the Senate House scenes yesterday (when the University voted against degrees for women) there was a brief respite. It was the calm before the storm. About 7 o'clock there was a grand gathering of the clans. Undergraduates began trooping through the streets to what was obviously a pre-arranged rendezvous - the Market Hill. From the four corners of the square fire was opened upon everybody and everything within range. Bombs, hand-rockets, and every description of firework manufactured were flung haphazard into the crowd until the scene resembled nothing so much as the bombardment of a hostile camp, It is no exaggeration to say that hundreds of pounds worth of stuff were got rid of during the five hours the proceedings lasted

1897 05 21
'The University of Cambridge' (the "Daily News" thinks) 'has not improved its reputation for sense and judgement by its votes (not to award women degrees). Not a single argument worthy of the name has been produced in favour of the decision'. 'Of the wisdom shown by the Cambridge Senate there can be but one opinion' (says the "Morning Post"). 'In rejecting by an overwhelming majority the Graces for giving Titles of Degrees to ladies they have done much to revive the reputation of their University for forethought and discretion'

1897 05 22
The custom of bestowing the Dunmow flitch of bacon has been suspended once more. It is probably abolished for ever, seeing that previous to its revival seven or eight years ago, it had fallen into desuetude. This might have been owing to the modern conditions attached to its bestowal. When in the reign of Henry VII it was made known that "he which repented him not of his marriage, sleeping or waking, in a yeere and a day, might lawfully fetch a gammon of bacon" from the priory church of Little Dunmow" this was comparatively easy of obtainment

1897 05 22
Women degrees, undergraduate carnival, p3

1897 05 24
Baby farming, p3

1897 05 24
An incident that is probably unparalleled in Poor Law annals has just occurred at Newmarket. The master of the workhouse has for several years been collecting funds to build a church for the inmates and has simultaneously been studying for Holy Orders in order to be himself qualified to act as incumbent. He has succeeded in both these objects. The spirit of emulation is strong among workhouse managers and once they begin to enter the ranks of the church nobody knows where they will stop

1897 05 25
Yesterday afternoon a ceremony of the deepest import to the Presbyterian Church of England took place at Cambridge, when Mrs Lewis and Mrs Gibson jointly laid the foundation stone of the Westminster Theological College. A large number of people assembled on the site many of the visitors coming from a distance. The building will stand on the piece of ground between Madingley-road, Northampton-street and Pound-hill. The building is in the English Renaissance style # c.44.5

1897 05 25
Tudor's new circus, p3

1897 05 26
A considerable amount of misapprehension appears to exist in regard to the provision of music for the use of the inmates of the Cambridge Workhouse. As a matter of fact that institution is unusually well provided with musical instruments. In addition to the organ recently erected in the chapel there are five or six other instruments - harmoniums and pianos – distributed throughout the house so that the inmates have frequent opportunities of enjoying music in their own rooms. Indeed it is safe to say that more music is heard in the wards in a single week than the majority would have heard in their own homes in 12 months

1897 05 26
Modern antiquity, p2
East Road reading room, p3

1897 05 27
The foundation stone of the new building of St John's church, Hills Road, Cambridge, was successfully laid on the 4th May last year. The first section was completed and consecrated December 15th, 1896. The result of opening the new building has amply justified the decision to hasten the commencement of the work. The congregations have been most encouraging and the average of the weekly collections doubled

1897 05 27
Mill Road sale property, p2
Circus case at Shelford, p3
Westwick farmer bankruptcy, p3

1897 05 31
After the heat on Sunday thunderstorms were experienced In some of the houses in Romsey Town, Cambridge, the rain beat in under the doors and ran as far as the staircases and sitting rooms, necessitating the use of pails and house-flannels, whilst at others it was found necessary to bail the water from the gutter to prevent the flooding of front rooms. This latter operation was a matter of precaution as the steps of the houses are level with the paths - another argument for making paths before the houses are erected

1897 05 31
Seats on Pieces, p2
Waterbeach annual parade, p3

June 1897 CDN

1897 05 01
East Road library, p2
Tudor's new circus, p2
Harston Friendly Society embarrassment, p3

1897 06 02
St Ives was visited on Saturday evening by a thunderstorm of short duration. At Mr B. King's house in Church-street the chimney was struck and bricks scattered in all direction. The current made a great hole in the roof and smashed all the ornaments and a water jug in the bedroom. A large picture in a gilt frame looks as though it has been rescued from fire, all the gilt being scorched and burnt off. This picture hung directly over the head of the bed in which Mrs King and her child were.

1897 06 02
Pindar at Lode, p3

1897 06 03
The Mill-road branch of the Free Library was opened by the Mayor last night amid every manifestation of pleasure and satisfaction. The Mayor said that people who lived in that neighbourhood were too far from the Guildhall to be able to get the full advantage of the Free Library. Within a half-mile radius of the handsome new building there is a population of not less than 12,000 people. It was in May 1891 that the Guardians conveyed the site to the Corporation for the express purpose of erecting thereon a building for a branch free library. No public body ever made better use of public ground # c.77.4

1897 06 04
The Queen Victoria's Jubilee Free Dinner Committee, having placed their fund for feeding the aged on a satisfactory footing, have determined to give a free tea to the children of Cambridge between the ages of 7 and 14. It is fitting that the children of the town, the inheritors of the wonderful empire that has been built up and its future guardians, should have indelibly impressed on their minds the greatest landmark in modern English history – Editorial

1897 06 05
A number of long service medals were presented to members of the Volunteer Fire Brigade last night. Captain Greef asked the Mayor to see if they could not get a permanent station with quarters for the men, and also a steam fire-engine. There were some parts of the town almost unprotected and he was sure the University authorities would welcome the steam fire-engine, and perhaps they would subscribe. The Mayor said he was afraid the suggestion about the University being willing to subscribe was not received with enthusiasm

1897 06 07
A good number of people are attending the fete on Midsummer Common. In that part of the enclosure nearest Maid's Causeway, shooting galleries, stalls, cocoanut shies and one of Thurston's steam roundabouts were gathered and kept matters lively. During the afternoon a fancy dress bicycle carnival took place, handsome prizes were awarded for the best costumes. The first prize for the ladies, a diamond and ruby crescent brooch, was awarded to Miss L. Unwin of Newnham who, with helmet, breastplate, shield and trident made a dignified Britannia. Miss Unwin will also receive the silver "King of the Road" lamp and baby bell given by the Humber Cycle Supply Co.

1897 06 07
Commons committee & Jubilee, p2 & 8th p2

1897 06 08
Tudor's circus, p2
Whitsun fete, p2
St John's church new window, p3

1897 06 09
One of the most sad and gruesome crimes it has ever been our lot to publish was brought to light at Saffron Walden, the circumstances attending which have not we fear yet been entirely disclosed and there is reason to believe that before the matter is cleared up there will probably be unpleasant disclosures in connection herewith. The parties concerned are a shepherd and his daughter and involve the death of an infant child aged about four days.

1897 06 09
Rising storm – dinner committee, p2
Undergraduate articles in Gt St Mary's sermon, p3

1897 06 10
Rede lecture, p3
Commons committee defences, p3
Waste in workhouse, p3

1897 06 11
St Ives jubilee address, p3

1897 06 12
Free Library movement, p2

1897 06 14
Death in the lamp – inquest, p2
Saffron Walden – more water wanted, p4

1897 06 15
Jubilee dinner committee, p2
University intelligence – mathematical trios, p3
Tudor's circus, p4

1897 06 16
Interesting wedding, p2
New Cherryhinton jubilee, p2

1897 06 16
At Huntingdon Borough Sessions a man and his wife were charged with neglecting to keep their children in a proper manner. Mr Beresford, Inspector of Nuisances for Huntingdon, said he found the room in a most filthy state. There were only a few things in the room, besides a heap of old rags in a corner which seemed to make a bed for the children, and the stench was most terrible. He saw three or four children without shoe or stocking on; the youngest was outside the front door with only a torn shirt on. He only found a small portion of bread, a little piece of butter, and a little sugar in the house. This was all they had 1897 06 17

University intelligence – congregation, p3
More reading rooms for Cambridge, p2
Tramway for sewage farm, p3

1897 06 17 c
The stone throwing has once again commenced down by the river, but the boys who congregate on the Victoria Bridge stand an extremely good chance of finding themselves either in the "clutches of the Law", or in the river; and I am afraid if they repeat the offence of throwing barrel hoops and logs of wood on the heads of the boating fraternity who pass up the staircase at Winter's Boat Yard, they will find themselves summarily dealt with – letter

1897 06 17
Willingham is preparing to celebrate the longest reign Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee) by a feast to the whole village in the form of a meat tea, to be partaken in the open air (weather permitting) under the shade of some noble elm trees in the north end of the village. Provision is being made for 800 adults and 400 children

1897 06 18
Comfortable stand on Jubilee Day, p1
Warning mischievous lads, p3
New Cherryhinton & Jubilee, p3

1897 06 19
Cambridge will have its bonfire on Jubilee night and from the nature of the site we shall have it all to ourselves. Midsummer Common is to be the venue, and as that is about the flattest part of Cambridge there is not much prospect of its being seen beyond the limits of the town, although should the fire be a big one and the night fairly dark, the glow in the sky ought to be seen all over the fen country. One of the most interesting experiments will be that of the search- light on Ely cathedral. The great shaft of light sent out by the search-light, first in one direction and then another, should send a message not only to Cambridge, but over a great portion of East Anglia – editorial

1897 06 21
Such has been the general progress during the Victorian era that it is difficult from the point of view of today to recall the Cambridge of 1837. In the year of her Majesty's accession but few houses stood on the marshy spot which we now know as the populous district of New Town. There were a few residents in Newnham and some scattered dwellings in the neighbourhood of New-square while beyond on the Newmarket-road lay Barnwell of historic note. Chesterton, as a part of Cambridge, was confined to the outgrowth of the town in the neighbourhood of Castle Hill and a plan of the town stops short at the Mill-road corner of Parker's Piece. In 1837 the population would be about 21,000. Recently it has been estimated at over 50,000.

1897 06 21
Jubilee Sunday services, p2

1897 06 21
Jubilee Sunday services, p2

1897 06 21 c
Sir, - The drought menace is causing alarm among the various water undertakings in the country and the Ministry of Health points out the dangers of droughts, especially when they occur in two successive years. Should an Inspector come to Cambridge I hope he will find time to visit Milton-road tennis courts, where he will find gallons of water wasted. From early morning till late at night men are spraying water on the courts. The time may come, and come soon, when water may have to be rationed. Why does the proprietor of the courts not buy a few water carts and give the unemployed a job to cart the water from the river, instead of using water that may be needed for domestic use? - letter from A.E Stubbs

1897 06 21 c
At the fortnightly meeting of the Chesterton Board of Guardians Mr Rutter said that the matron once complained of the waste of bread in the Workhouse. The inmates had too much bread, and it was thrown away. Mr Cock said he knew there was waste in some workhouses and vagrant paupers were fed with the waste food of the ordinary inmates. Mr Foster said that he had been round the house a great many times and had never discovered there was any great waste. Every pauper was allowed so much bread and they did not always eat it. Each one had a sort of little cupboard of their own, and so they had a little piece of lunch is they required it.

1897 06 21 c
At St Ives Town Council the Mayor said they would like to offer an address of congratulation to her Majesty on this memorable occasion (her Diamond Jubilee), and read an address which he proposed such be illuminated and presented at a cost not exceeding five guineas. Mr Kiddle asked what her Majesty did with these address and if she saw them. He was as loyal as anybody in the room but he could not see his way to spend five guineas for an illuminated address. It was agreed it be engrossed on parchment in the Town Clerk's office.

1897 06 21 c
Mr Tudor's circus have contrived week after week to place before their patrons a programme not entirely different from those preceding it. The last item on the programme is contributed by the Canadian troupe of comic and scientific skaters, one of the men representing a policeman of goodly proportions, his clothes being apparently inflated to bursting point! His many tumbles and his bounciness when on the ground do not fail to convulse the spectators

1897 06 23
Providence set the seal of approval on the absolutely flawless celebration of Queen Victoria's Jubilee. Cambridge Market-place presented a particularly attractive spectacle with the Guildhall illuminated and the long lines of coloured lamps; above all with the moving masses of eager folk, who had come out in the best of tempers to be amused. One or two cranky people pretended to be shocked at the extreme naughtiness of letting off a few squibs, which was not to be compared with the imprudence of running heavy 'busses through the narrow and crowded Cury and Market-hill. A remarkably beautiful sunset was succeeded by the exquisite Jubilee twilight mingling into the dawn of the longest day; and in Cambridge, as elsewhere, everybody who went to bed - and most folks sought that sensible repose – did so with high hopes of the morrow

1897 06 23
The festivities in Cambridge (for Victoria's Jubilee) were inaugurated on Monday evening with a cyclists' lantern parade and a more successful commencement it would have been difficult to suggest. Over a hundred cyclists attended by far the greater portion being in costume or having their machines decorated. The cyclists assembled in the Priory Grounds, Newmarket-road. A large crowd gathered in the neighbourhood and hailed with applause the decorated machines as they approached. The first prize for the best decorated machine was awarded to Mr Dunn who had made his machine represent the Indian jungle. A deer's head was shown from the front of the machine in the middle of grasses and evergreen, while behind, monkeys sported among the ferns and vegetation. Mr Dunn himself was attired in the garb of a hunter.

1897 06 24
One of the most interesting events of the Jubilee week was the dinner to 1,000 aged people of Cambridge which took place on Parker's Piece. From 10 a.m. an army of helpers 400 strong, all as busy as bees, were engaged in preparing the tents, two in number, for the expected guests. The old people began to arrive very early, with beaming faces and expectant eyes. "It's not the dinner so much", said an old lady of some 75 summers, "it's taking part in the Jubilee dinner and meeting with all the others". Gowns of antique stuff, redolent of sweet lavender, that had lain by for years protected against the ravages of moth, were brought out in honour of the occasion. One old gentleman had hunted up a pair of white jean trousers that he went courting in 50 years ago.

1897 06 24
Sewage, Cherry Hinton, p2
Mortuary wanted, p3

1897 06 25

It is a matter of satisfaction that the subscriptions which have been received by the Jubilee Dinner Committee were sufficient to give a tea to some 4,000 school children of Cambridge between the ages of seven and 12. A mug and plate was provided for each child, and the plates when they sat down were furnished with bread and butter and two lumps of cake. Once in the enclosure they were each presented with a medal commemorating the Jubilee. Until tea commenced the enclosure was a perfect babel with the children's' chatter. Far more children than expected came, and some of the school teachers had written their own tickets. Not a few of the children attending were obviously either over or under the age which had been decided. All were soon provided for and the committee were able to keep replenishing the tables. As they finished tea the children left the tables, and, shouting, romped and danced to the band's music. The sight was enough to set the milk of human kindness surging through the heart of the most misguided misanthrope

1897 06 25
Here and there among the little folk: impressions of an onlooker. The five immense tents pitched on Parker's Piece were crammed with youngsters full of the restless energy of youth. What a sight it was to see them come dancing down the various roads leading to Parker's Piece, swarming over the iron fences, racing across the greensward, and roguishly crying the policemen on duty in the vicinity of the feast. Not one could walk sedately or cease from whistling for very joy. The desertion of teachers, the near approach of the end of the Jubilee holiday, everything was forgotten in the delight of the children's day.

1897 06 25
In commemoration of the Great Jubilee of her Majesty, a meat tea was provided for poor married couples residing in the East Ward of Chesterton. A field belonging to Mr R.H. Lord on Scotland-road was secured for the occasion. Some 500 adults sat down to the meat tea which consisted of rounds of beef, legs of mutton and hams. The meat had been admirably cooked in the kitchens of Clare College. After tea the men were supplied with tobacco, tobacco boxes and pipes and snuff and snuff boxes while strawberries were provided for the women

1897 06 25
Police & Jubilee, p2
Jubilee in villages, p3

1897 06 26
New Cherryhinton jubilee, p2
Earith bridge jubilee feasting, p3

1897 06 28
Cambridge and crime, p2
St Andrews Chesterton new East window & reredos, p2 # c.83
Every person convicted photographed, p3
Royston jubilee, p3

1897 06 29
Barnwell reading room, p2
Memories of sale of All Saint's church, p2
Tudors circus, p2
Barrington jubilee, p3

1897 06 30
The Great Jubilee was successfully celebrated by the inhabitants of the village of Newnham amid every demonstration of loyalty and public rejoicing. The form of celebration chosen was a fete champetre held on Corpus Cricket Ground. Pinafores were given to a number of girls, and caps to boys; silver bangles were given to 12 older girls and to the old folks calico and flannel was presented. The evening's rejoicing were inaugurated by an excellent tea which included ham, beef, cakes, strawberries and cream, and buns and biscuits galore, about 200 persons partaking of the bountiful repast.

July 1897 CDN

1897 07 01
Tenison Road chapel foundation stone, p2 # c.83
GNR & Barrington syndicate, p2
State of streets, p3
Coachbuilder's claim, p4 *

1897 07 02
Jubilee Old Chesterton, Newnham, p3

1897 07 03
The Hunts Agricultural Society, which can boast of being senior to the Royal, held its 61st annual exhibition in the county town. The Jubilee celebrations have exercised a depressing effect upon holiday-makers and that fact will sufficiently account for the somewhat small attendance of visitors. It is a good sign that the speakers dwelt far less than is customary upon the topic of agricultural depressions. We may fairly assume that the worst is over and that while the agricultural interest is not perhaps sharing in the wonderful prosperity of the country in so great a degree as other branches of industry, yet even they have escaped from the low levels so generally prevalent a few years ago.

1897 07 05
The Cambridge employees of Messrs Rattee and Kett, Station-road, had their annual outing to Scarborough. The party, numbering upwards of 100, left Cambridge by special train (to which, by the courtesy of Mr Holditch, the G.E.R. station-master, three saloons had been attached for their convenience) at 5 a.m., Scarborough being reached at 11 a.m. Through the generosity of the firm refreshments were liberally supplied both going and returning.

1897 07 05
A trades and cycle exhibition was opened at the Cambridge Corn Exchange yesterday. A large part of the exhibition is devoted to the cycling trade and local firms are showing cycles of the finest and best patterns. At the stand of the Cycle Supply Co, (whose place of business is 23 Sussex-street) can be seen some fine specimens of the King, Granville, Ensign and Vanguard Cycles. The King cycles are made by the firm and three of the machines exhibited have been made to order for Cambridge people. The machines are a remarkably neat and well-finished lot. Ladies' machines can be obtained from £9 and gents' from £8

1897 07 05
Willingham recreation ground, p3

1897 07 06
Dullingham vicar & new window, p2

1897 07 07
Station Road fire, p2 & 8th, p3 # c.34.75

1897 07 07
Please note. We shall sell for the remainder of the Jubilee Year, 1897, our marvellous "Commemoration Tea" at 1/4 per lb, the value of which was about 8/- per lb at the time of the Queen's Accession. Also other Goods at a like reduction, making the present purchasing power of a Crown nearly equal to that of a Sovereign in 1837 - advert by Warren & Son, 51 Bridge Street, Cambridge

1897 07 08

Chesterton Board of Guardians referred to the terrible disaster in Essex of a few days ago. They could not tell exactly the amount of distress that had occurred through the storm but it was something enormous – over £200,000. An area of some 70 square miles had been affected and it would not only affect the tenant farmers but also the labourers very materially. Farmers, market gardeners, nurserymen and also the labourers all found their harvest gone as it would be a complete failure. Farm after farm had been so injured that there was not an acre of corn upon many farms.

1897 07 08
The Cambridge Sewage Farm at Milton threatens to become a fruitful source of friction between the Chesterton Rural Authority and the Cambridge Corporation. From time to time complaints of a very serious nature are made concerning the odours which arise from that establishment, coupled with further complaints of polluted water in the public drains. It is clear that if something is not done to remedy the nuisance we shall have a recurrence of litigation

1897 07 08
Workmen's' outing, p4

1897 07 09
The annual inspection of the Third (Cambs) Volunteer Battalion, Suffolk Regiment took place at the University Rifle Range. Various battalion movements were executed and the inspection concluded with a sham fight in which the cycling section and the machine gun were opposed to the main body of the troops. The sham fight would have been done better if the non- commissioned officers in charge of the sections had not repeated the words too quickly

1897 07 10
Outrage on railway, p3

1897 07 12
Saffron Walden market, p2

1897 07 12
Potato disease, we regret to say, has broken out in various parts of South Lincolnshire where the acreage devoted to the crop is as large as in any district in the kingdom. It is seldom that the presence of the disease-fungus is detected so early in the season but the atmosphere is laden with the diseased haulm. The intense heat at times experienced, the torrential rains and the highly electrical conditions of the atmosphere have no doubt all encouraged this early development of potato blight. But the efficacy of sulphate of copper spraying has been so clearly demonstrated that growers may guard their crops with almost absolute certainty against destruction

New Theatre, 2nd annual concert, p3

1897 07 13
Jubilee workers, p2

1897 07 13
The second annual meeting of the shareholders of the New Theatre, Cambridge, Ltd was held at the Theatre. The Chairman said it was difficult to select pieces that suited all classes. What suited the undergraduates did not suit the townspeople, and the undergraduates were some of their best patrons, and they had to cater for them very often, when they would like to give, perhaps, a really better class entertainment. They did the best they could. That was the reason that they had never played at a loss for a whole week. One of the best sources of income in a small way was the hiring of opera glasses

1897 07 13
The villages of Swaffham Prior and Swaffham Bulbeck were the scene of an interesting ceremony when the marriage of Miss Isabella Maude Allix of Swaffham Prior House and Captain Edward Young of the Royal Engineers took place. The church was filled to overflowing and the aisle was lined with eight non-commissioned officers all of whom, to judge by the array of medals on their breasts, were accustomed to perform a services somewhat more arduous and less ornamental than on this occasion. The bride wore a dress of rich ivory satin with chiffon sleeves trimmed with old Limerick lace and sprays of myrtle and orange blossom. After signing the register the bride and bridegroom were met at the vestry by three little boys carrying baskets of flowers and the little fellows walking backwards in true court style strewed the bride's path to her carriage. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to Swaffham Prior House, passing under a triumphal arch which had been erected over the lodge gate.

1897 07 14
The cathedral city of Ely presented an unwontedly animated appearance when it was the rendezvous for the annual festival of the Ely branch of the Church of England Temperance Society. The promotion of temperance, the reformation of the intemperate and the removal of the causes that lead to intemperance are the main objects of the society and it works by means of pole court and prison gate missions, labour homes, racecourse and van missions, inebriate homes etc. The preacher remarked that the society worked not against publicans or the drink but against drunkenness, which was a burden upon their country and the blackest spot in this year of thanksgiving.

1897 07 14
Croydon Wilds, aptly so called, is one of the most remote parts of England. Its few inhabitants are housed in a couple of roomy cottages and it was to one of these cottages that a representative of the "Cambridge Independent Press" penetrated, and had a talk with the most inspected [sic] and intelligent of the inhabitants, Mr Smith, who has lived there for thirty-four years. His daughter, as the reporter passed through the cottage garden, stood bright and blooming beneath the lintel.

1897 07 14
Temperance Festival, p3

1897 07 15
At the Cambridge Borough Police-court an Italian organ grinder was charged with threatening to stick a knife into the abdomen of P.C. Barringer. It was found necessary to engage an interpreter. In answer to the charge, prisoner said if the constable was in his country and interfered they would put a knife through him, but he did not mean that he would do it. He meant to say if the constable was in his country he would have a knife put into him by someone else. The policeman said he saw a woman playing an organ and as the street was full of traffic he requested her to "move on". Prisoner, who was very angry exclaimed "Me will fight you; Me will stick a knife in you"

1897 07 15
Cottenham Show & 3rd p3

1897 07 15 c
At Melbourn Petty Sessions the landlord of the Green Man, Shepreth was charged with opening his licenced premises for the sale of intoxicating liquor during prohibited hours. P.C. W. Housden, stationed at Fowlmere, stated that on Sunday morning at 2.15 am he saw a light at the Green Man public house. He saw a man come from a house a short distance away, where there was singing and dancing. He went to the Green Man and was let in. Witness went close to the public-house door and waited for him to come out. He found he had a half- gallon bottle full of beer. The landlord's wife said 19th June was Feast Day at Shepreth, At 9.30 the man ordered half-gallon and paid for it and said he would call for it later. She drew the beer soon after it was paid for. It was not taken away then but was called for at two o'clock when she just handed it to him.

1897 07 16
Free Library, p2
Warning to cabbies, p3

Cambridge road, p3

1897 07 19
University and degrees for women, p3

1897 07 20
Telegraphic services, p2
Tudors Circus, p2
Why Ranji going home, p3

1897 07 21
Oakington show, p2
Shepreth feast, p3

1897 07 21
Everyone in the Camp at Yarmouth is having a "real good time" and but a few malcontents are to be found in the whole of the Brigade. Everything tends to make life enjoyable and every mother's son of the 370 offers and men of the 3rd Cambridgeshire Regiment is sunburnt and beaming with the ruddy hue of health. All this speaks well for the ozone of "Bloaterville". The South Denes make a capital camping ground and from the base of Nelson's Column, where the lines commence, the Brigade makes quite an imposing show, their red coats giving the scene a really military appearance.

1897 07 22
The Red Cow public house and premises adjoining in Guildhall-street, Cambridge, belonging to Mrs Charles Armstrong and forming three frontages are to be rebuilt in red brick and stone from designs by Messrs Rowe & Scott, architects. Mr Armstrong is about to sell to the Corporation a piece of the site to widen Guildhall-street, which will be a public advantage and the erection of these buildings will greatly improve the neighbourhood.

1897 07 22
Agricultural show, p3

1897 07 23
Modern Dick Turpin, p3

1897 07 23 c
The annual show in connection with the Mill Road, Barnwell and New Town Amateur Gardeners' Association has long been one of the most popular attractions of the summer months. The competition in vegetables was keen among the cottagers' classes. As for amusement at first- class bill of fare was provided for the holiday-makers who began to stream into the building later on in the day

1897 07 24
Theft from servant girl, p p2
Revolution in cricket, p3

1897 07 26
On Saturday afternoon the members of the Royston and Hitchin Associations of the National Union of Teachers held their annual picnic in the beautiful grounds of Odsey House. The company dispersed about the grounds, some going in for cricket (ladies v gentlemen), others for tennis and croquet, whilst others strolled about the grounds, which just now are looking very pretty. During the afternoon tea was served in one of the walks under the trees by Mr Rogers of the Railway Inn, Ashwell Station, who catered admirably, and the company again went back to their respective amusements. All were loud in their expressions of delight at the arrangements that had been made for their comfort and pleasure.

1897 07 27
The Cambridge town eight-oared bumping races – an annual event in which great interest is manifested by a select few, but which a large proportion of the townspeople seem wholly unconcerned - were begun over the old Varsity course from Baitsbite to the railway bridge. All the boats were afloat by 7.50 with the exception of Rob Roy II which was at that particular time showing every symptom of sinking. This was owing to an error on the part of the crew who, in dropping their light ship, plunged head foremost over it and into the stream, thus affording a diverting carnival to a small band of onlookers. Both clothes and spirits were seriously damped by the mishap and eight men were shortly afterwards to be seen hastening to their respective homes, sadder and wiser than when they set forth.

1897 07 27
Byron's pool fatality, p3 *
Haslingfield Crimea veteran's death *

1897 07 28
A casual detained at Cambridge Workhouse was charged with refusing to do such work as was "suited to his age, strength and capacity". Fred Fordham, porter at the Workhouse stated that the man was taken to a cell to do his day's work - picking 4lb of oakum. Defendant said he did not intend to do the work. Witness locked the door and left him there. Oakum picking did not need very good eyesight, and the cells were well lighted. Defendant was expected to do a day's work lasting from 7am to 5pm. Stone breaking was done by men under 60 and oakum picking by those over. When he went to see what the defendant had done he found he had used a stone- breaking hammer to smash the door of his cell. Defendant said the cells were a disgrace, only a birdcage made of lathe and plaster. He was sent to prison for 7 days

1897 07 28
Kidman outing London, p2

1897 07 29
A public meeting was held in Balsham schoolroom to pass the Jubilee accounts and to decide what should be done with the balance of £12.9s.1d. It was proposed to give every cottager in the village 2 cwt of coal during the next winter. Mr Cornell then read a short speech saying the Jubilee was a failure, and the committee were not gentlemen (which was partly true, there being several ladies on the committee). The Rector said he hoped the meeting gave the committee the credit of being honest men and that they would show their thanks for all that had been done for them. This was received with cheers and the meeting ended with loud cheers for the committee

1897 07 29
Romsey Town roads, p2
Collision, p3

1897 07 30
Cambridgeshire County Council considered the question of the management of the roads. Ald Clear said they now had the double system of district roads under the District Councils and main roads under the County Council. The District Councils were now in full swing in the management of their roads and had competent men as surveyors. If they were given the 250 miles of main roads under the County Council it would effect a great saving. Councillor Clark said he was strongly opposed to the roads being handed over by a competent body to incompetent ones.

1897 07 30
Cambridge Omnibus Co, p2
Croydon allotment, p3

1897 07 31
Man who wouldn't work, p2

August 1897 CDN

1897 08 02
Messrs Gain, Moyes and Wisbey offered for sale the Shakespeare Brewery, Newmarket-road, Cambridge and 15 freehold licensed inns, public houses and beerhouses. Lots commenced at £500 and rose rapidly - in the case of the Red Bull, Barton Road to £2,050. Other prices included The Shakespeare Brewery and Inn (£2,000), The Greyhound, Lt Wilbraham (£800), The Bakers' Arms, Fulbourn (£950), The Railway Inn, Harlton (£725) and The Cherry Tree beerhouse, Swaffham Fen (£600) # c.27.4

1897 08 03
The weather again favoured this old favourite gala (at Haverhill). Crowds of people came in by road and rail and there could not have been less than 8,000 on the ground during the day. The road was spanned with flags at the Woolpack, which was also very gay with bunting and boughs of oak, and the scaffolding at the new Co-operative buildings was utilised to display a crowd of flags. Almost every shop and house gave signs of a general holiday

1897 08 03
Adulterated milk, p3
Dunmow Flitch, p4

1897 08 04
An extraordinary general meeting of the Cambridge Electric Supply co. ltd was held at the Company's offices, Thompson's Lane, Cambridge. The chairman reported that their first capital had been £40,000 which had been spent on plant and the necessary things to equip the station. They had gone over that and had borrowed £2,250 from the bank. The business of the company was increasing and the capital must be increased too. Now was the time for shareholders to reap the reward of their enterprise if the use of electric light became universal in Cambridge # c.24.6

1897 08 04
Ely sports

1897 08 05
Watering roads, p2

1897 08 06
Bourn show in storm, p3 *
Haslingfield fire, p3 *

1897 08 06
Yesterday afternoon a terrible thunderstorm passed over Royston district. The storm commenced with a fearful downpour of rain accompanied by heavy lightning and thunder. The streets were deluged and stream like rivers coursed down the High-street, Market-hill and Back-street. Following upon this came a hailstorm, stones larger than marbles falling heavily and thickly. A good deal of glass was broken. A horse attached to a cart loaded with coal for Barley became frightened and bolted and the coal was scattered all along the road

1897 08 07
There is apparently no end to the capabilities of the "X" rays. A farmer with a large quantity of poultry found that the number of eggs produced was not as great as it ought to be. Accordingly the Rontgen rays were called into requisition and a preliminary examination of 12 hens showed that eight were egg producers and four were not. An "X" ray plan was then permanently established and all the hens were subjected to a searching examination. The result was a decided increase of eggs. The non-producers were ruthlessly plucked and sent to market

1897 08 07
Barnwell library

1897 08 09
Sir - Now that the Jubilee accounts have been reckoned up it seems fitting we should start afresh the matter of the new bridge. The question of a new bridge to connect Chesterton with Cambridge at the Abbey Estate is of supreme importance. The ferryman knows no rest. All the people at Old Chesterton have to be crossed over long before the omnibuses are astir. The wheels of progress anywhere in the vicinity have moved round in the past with about the same velocity as a farmer's cart! Is this to drag on for ever? The advantage of another bridge over the now-sweetened Cam would be a great gain to both Chesterton and Cambridge in equal proportion - letter signed "Chestertonian"

1897 08 09
Cottenham school raid

1897 08 10
Haverhill new sewerage scheme will cost the parish a comparatively small sum. It is proposed to do away with the old brick arrangements between the White Hart and Crown-passage and substitute modern pipes. It so happened that several members of the Sanitary Committee were out of their houses on Thursday last, and if they had not seen or smelt the abominable filth and stench before they had full benefit of it then and sensibly and immediately instructed the Surveyor to suggest ways for abolishing this evil, which is, however only one of several

1897 08 11
The ancient city of Ely is greatly favoured in the variety of country rambles which one may enjoy across fields etc. This morning a chum and myself, whilst indulging in one of these old walks - not much frequented now - from the junction of Kettlesworth and Clayway Droves to New Barnes, were astonished to find about midway across the first field, that a fence had been erected, along the top of which was stretched a barbed (or barbarous) wire. We saw two labourers who said "There's a new chap got this 'ere land, and he thinks he's going to stop the path, but he can't. I should go on if I were you" – letter

1897 08 11
Cottenham water supply, p2 *
Gt Chishill church tower dedication, p3

1897 08 12
Witcham Gravel rates, p2

1897 08 13
Town rowing regatta, p2
Royston flower show, p3

1897 08 14
Most people who have made the voyage to the Cape have become familiar with the huge bird known as the Albatross and the only one known to have reached Great Britain alive has recently been captured by a farm labourer in the parish of Linton. Mr Travis, the well-known naturalist of Bury St Edmund's purchased the bird, and it will no doubt find a home in a large private museum. It is probably the most interesting capture ever known in East Anglian bird lore.

1897 08 14
More than one correspondent has recently voiced the general feeling of disquiet at the vile language used by loafers at our street corners. It is obvious the police cannot cope with the evil themselves. The ordinary individual will not run the risk and annoyance of acting single- handed in cases of this sort but if a considerable section of the public combined offending blackguards would be more careful in their conduct.

1897 08 16
Cam pollution – letters, p2 *
Barnwell free library, p2 *

1897 08 17
East Road reading room, p2
Newton Digby – sketch, p3

1897 08 18
Today we have pleasure in chronicling a capture which redoubts to the credit of the Cambridgeshire County Constabulary. There appears to be an idea prevalent amongst London thieves that once in this county they have an easy job in "cracking a crib" and getting away with their booty. Evidently full of this delusion two such men ran down to Trumpington, their innocent hearts full of the joys in store. They bargained however without the personality of P.C. Salmon, the resident guardian of Trumpington's peace, a burly and genial officer to those who keep the law and a terror to those who "love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil". P.C. Salmon - alas for the hopes of these two disciples of Bill Sykes - sleeps only when the burglar is not "serenading" and moreover he rides a "bike". To this cycle the culprits owe the fact that their "cycle of freedom" is run and that they have fallen "a cropper" with a bad puncture.

1897 08 18
Barrington cement works sale, p2

1897 08 19
Sometime in the course of Tuesday night a desperately determined attempt was made to obtain entrance to the Fitzwilliam Museum which in its invaluable pictures, its gems, and its magnificent collection of articles of ancient and modern art would, if successfully broken into, yield a rich harvest to intelligent burglars. A place so full of objects of art and interest is of course well-guarded, and well prepared for the visits of disciples of Bill Sykes. So the unwelcome ones found who made the attempt on Tuesday night, for after trying two doors and five windows, and using no small amount of violence they had to relinquish their efforts and go empty away. So far as we have been able to gather this is the first attempt which has been made to forcibly break into the Museum in the course of its history

1897 08 19
East Road reading room, p2 *
Guildhall rebuilding – Belcher scheme, buy houses, p3
Gamlingay Baptist church organ chamber, p4
Death Col. W.H. Baldwin of Ely, p4

1897 08 20
Considering the extent to which the sale of "hokey", or ice-cream, is carried on in Cambridge, and the revelations that have been made in connection with the industry in other towns it is justified in calling the attention of the Town Council to the matter. The stuff may or may not be manufactured in "the dirtiest slums of Cambridge" as was asserted but considering the number of children of all classes who indulge in the "luxury" we hope the Sanitary Committee will deal with it in something more than a perfunctory manner. A good many parents would like to know a little more about the article which their children devour in such large quantities during the summer.

London children bring disease, p3 *
Fordham public institute, p4
Royston workhouse vagrants, p4

1897 08 20
At a meeting of the Royston Board of Guardians the question of London children coming into the country for a holiday and bringing infectious diseases with them was brought under consideration, cases of the kind having occurred in the locality. One case of scarlet fever had broken out at a house on the Moor, Melbourn to which three children had been sent by a holiday fund from Stoke Newington. Another was a case of diphtheria which had occurred at Meldreth at a house where 12 children from Stoke Newington were staying. A couple of cases had broken out also at Reed, in a house where London children were staying

1897 08 21
For several years Cambridge has been in a state of chronic poverty. With hardly a sou in the bank – not sufficient to meet tradesmen's bill as they become due - the financial outlook has been far from cheering to the ratepayer. A farthing rate to retain East Road Reading Room is denied, yet in the next breath the modest sum of £21,000 is voted for street improvements. And again there is the front of the Guildhall. No sane person can defend the retention of a monstrosity like that and if it is not to be retained it must be replaced and care must be taken that the new building is worthy of the town

1897 08 23
The subject of the interview in this week's "Cable" is Mr C.P. Tebbutt, who is a prominent member of the County Council, manager of Foster's Bank at St Ives, and farms about 550 acres of land, within a mile of Bluntisham railway station. On the question of education he is "very opposed to the pressure exercised by the Education Department in respect of keeping boys at school. I favour a half-time and a half-day system. I have been a manager of the British School in Bluntisham for many years and I am strongly impressed with the deleterious effect the compulsory classes have had upon the agricultural community. Boys who are kept in school until they are 14 years old never make the farm labourers they would have made if they had left school at an earlier period"

1897 08 23
Scavenging complaints, p2

1897 08 24
Police & burglars, p2
Tudors Circus p3
Peterborough cathedral restoration, p3

1897 08 25
It is high time that the foul-mouthed youths of the town received a caution, for no one can sit for five minutes without being reminded that there is a "riff-raff" element among the youthful residents whose speeches could only be reported in an expurgated edition. Last Sunday evening was heard on Christ's Pieces, Cambridge, language from youngsters not in their teens that would have materially enriched the vocabulary of a London cabby. There is an undoubted feeling among hobbledehoys of the rougher grade that the utterance of profane speeches stamps them with the seal of manhood.

1897 08 25
East Road library, p2 *
Wendy pun, p3
Ely sewers, p3

1897 08 26
Jubilee cmte dinner, p2
Bassingbourn pub & Teetotal Society, p3 *

1897 08 26
At the Brewster sessions at Royston application was made for a spirit licence for the Railway Tavern in the parish of South Bassingbourn. It had been licenced as a beer house for a good many years. A large number of new houses had been erected in that part of the town and a large number of persons coming to play golf, cricket and football had to pass the house and constantly asked for spirits. It was on the direct road to the railway station. The pastor of the Kneesworth-Street Congregational Chapel ventured to oppose the application.

1897 08 27
Many of our readers are, perhaps, unaware of the existence of the Church Army Gazette Brigade. A representative of the Daily News, hearing that a certain interesting presentation would take place, paid a visit to St Matthew's parish-room in Cambridge where the Brigade meetings are held. The "Gazette" is sold for a modest halfpenny and 475 are disposed of in Cambridge and the district every week, circulating principally among the poorer classes. The paper is, of course, of a religious tone but written in a manner calculated to arrest attention.

1897 08 27
Bath Hotel bankrupt # c.27.4

1897 08 28
How many of the inhabitants of "aristocratic" Cambridge have penetrated the depths of Barnwell through the lovely labyrinths of Brewhouse Lane? A mere outsider might suppose that the city of colleges had no dark parts; that its workmen's tenements were models of sanitation and comfort; that its streets were well paved and lit; and that no foul smells arose from its sewers - in short, that a learned city would be raised and modelled on enlightened lines. For the dwellers in the "town" proper there is a reading-room and library. In Mill-road there is another reading-room and library amongst those who are, at least, moderately well to do; but in Barnwell, the abode of the toiler there is now nothing but hard work, smaller houses, surroundings much more unwholesome than in the other parts of the town - and his reading-room has been taken away. Can it be that those in authority are carrying out the scriptural prophecy: "To him that hath shall be given, and from him that hath not shall be taken away even which he hath"?

1897 08 28
Henry Kimpton, grocer, residing on the De Freville Estate, Chesterton, made application for licence to sell beer. There were 111 houses upon the Estate, occupied by the class of persons who would have a great objection to sending their servants to the Old Spring or the bowling green public houses for the purpose of obtaining beer. They were well aware that although there were bottle and jug entrances, these were often used by persons frequenting the houses.

1897 08 30
Fen farmers interviewed, Chatteris, p3

1897 08 31
Underground lavatories sought, p2
Manholes smell vilely, p3

September 1897 CDN

1897 09 01
Some remarks were made some time ago with regard to the condition of the Cambridge Workhouse and it was said that the prison would be more comfortable than the Workhouse. Mr Campkin said he knew the condition of the House more than 20 years ago, when the place was in a bad condition and when there was nothing but whitewash on the walls, and that very dirty and grimy. The place then generally bore the aspect of being neglected. Now he thought it really marvellous. The walls were all painted, there was a dado of light and cheerful appearance and everything about the place was scrupulously clean. They found just now that there was a lack of able-bodied inmates. That was not bad, because they did not want able-bodied persons to come into the House and it spoke well for those outside the House that they were able to keep out

1897 09 01
Boots advert, p4 *

1897 09 02
The meeting of the Cambridge Street Tramways Company were told that they had been very unfortunate with their horses. Two had been lost through death. Worse still - these troubles never came singly - they had had influenza right through the stables; but thanks to the veterinary surgeon they had no loss from that and the experts considered now that the horses were better for the influenza. If that were so they must be very different to human beings.

1897 09 03
By the kindness of a firm of furniture van proprietors, four well-known Cambridge men started upon a fishing expedition for a spot upon the river known as "Dimmock's Cote". Considerable excitement was caused in the fens by the van, many wondering who was to be moved. The few natives were much amused at the novelty, and the cooking of a pan full of savoury Cambridge sausages in the open air brought them round. One afternoon no less than ten visitors were entertained to tea; they were not all gentlemen. Not a dull hour was experienced by anyone of the party

1897 09 04
An inquiry was held in the schoolroom at Hemingford Grey into the proposal of the Parish Council to borrow £300 for the purposes of providing a burial ground. The new burial ground is necessary in consequence of the churchyard being practically full, it not having been enlarged since 1838. The Council has tried in six different parts of the parish to find a suitable place. It is proposed to purchase half of the orchard belonging to Mr John Giddons in Pound road. This site is about as dry a spot as could be obtained

1897 09 06
Parachute descent Haverhill, p3

1897 09 07
The Bishop of Ely has offered the appointment of Vicar of Littleport to the Rev F.E. Rogers, curate of St Matthew's. Cambridge and of St James' Mission Church. Mr Rogers has been in Cambridge for about 14 years. He has been termed the "father" of all the young men in the parish and has been the means of reclaiming some of the most obstinate cases. He was also to a great degree instrumental in bringing the Church Army into Cambridge. He is also founder of the hostel for undergraduates in Abbey Walk which enables young gentlemen to have, in addition to a university education, a parochial education of the highest order

1897 09 07
Dr Harris, of the Grove, Stapleford, was peculiar. Opening with the 5th of February this year, when the trap delivered his baggage for the first time in Stapleford, Dr Harris seems to have carried on in high style by virtue of sheer audacity and bounce, driving about in a trap that did not belong to him, with a horse for which he had not paid and driven by a servant, who by some rule contrary to that generally governing such persons was content apparently to work without wages. Their orders were for the "best of everything" and local tradesmen - for a time - regularly deposited their goods at the Doctor's door and came away sweetly hoping for a day of reckoning. Some of them tried the reckoning without getting anything, others got more than was wanted of the wrong kind of settlement

1897 09 07

When you mention the name of Dr Harris to the head of the firm of Hunnybun and son, coachbuilders of Cambridge, his genial face beams. On 24th February Harris bought a governess car, neglecting, however to pay over the shekels. Within a week he came back with the cart and exchanged it for a phaeton. But Messrs Hunnybun are "canny" men. They sent a man with a polite note to the Doctor stating that the wheels of the phaeton they found were not altogether right in some small detail, would the Doctor allow them to rectify the fault. The faulty wheeled - and unpaid for – phaeton revolved on those wheels to Sidney Street, and never rolled back again

1897 09 08
Newmarket court – spittoon, p3 *

1897 09 08 c
An Isleham man was summoned for assaulting Thomas William Fenn. Complainant said he was in the Queen's Head inn at Isleham, when defendant came in and interfered with him, striking him twice and threatening to kill him. At last witness knocked him down and got away. Defendant had asked him for 1s. and then for 6d. but he replied he had not got it. After defendant had struck him twice he knocked him down with an iron spittoon. Defendant denied he had struck complainant, but said the latter half killed him with the spittoon. Case dismissed

1897 09 09
Some extraordinary scenes have been witnessed in the parish church of Ashley, near Newmarket, whose rector is very deaf and far from young. The curate arranged for a harvest thanksgiving service this week and the rector objected to the arrangements. At the morning service the organ was mute owing to the fact that a lady occupied the organist's seat by direction of the rector and when asked to supply tunes said she should please herself and did not play. The rector and curate entered the church together and the former, after some contention, began the service of the day. When the curate and congregation audibly objected the rector raised his voice to drown the dissent, and all the congregation but three left the church. Thereupon the rector summarily closed the service. Dissatisfaction has been rife amongst the villagers since the time when it is alleged the rector read the burial service at a wedding. The Rector accounts for the mistake by stating that his bookmark was purposely put in the wrong page.

1897 09 09
St Ives sailing club, p3

1897 09 10
St Ives Town Council Surveyor had examined the gas pipes running by the sewer. In one place the gas pipe went right across the sewer, obstructing about one fourth of it. In another case the gas pipe ran diagonally with the sewer, obstructing it. He did not think the Gas Company were the chief sinners in the matter. He thought it was the town. In some cases the sewers were laid over the gas pipes

1897 09 10
PC Fred Fuller presented with clock, Stretham, p3

1897 09 11
Newmarket man saved by trousers, p3

1897 09 13
Navigation of Ouse, p3 *

1897 09 14
The Market place at Mildenhall was early on Monday morning the scene of a disastrous fire. The outbreak occurred between the warehouse of Messrs Firth Bros, grocers and drapers, and that of Mr C. Morley, furniture dealer. The fire spread rapidly, the warehouses being of an inflammable nature; the goods stored were also highly inflammable and seven barrels of petroleum exploded. The Mildenhall Fire Brigade was promptly on the spot with their two manual engines. A granary filled with straw ignited but was successfully dealt with by the firemen, or it is probable the White Hart Hotel would have been in immediate danger. Owing to the proximity of the fire to the bank, the agent thought it desirable to remove the cash and securities from the office. After two hours hard work the brigade managed to cut off the burning building, but it was a narrow escape for the whole of the side of the Market Square

1897 09 14
Cambridge & reading room question, p2
Haverhill woman & Union, p3 *
Tudors Circus last week, p3

1897 09 14 c
A 15 year old lad from Wixoe, Suffolk, appeared at Haverhill petty sessions, charged with stealing a purse containing 1s., the property of his mother. PC Oldring stated that he had known four of her sons for about five years. They were running about all day long in rags, and committed all sorts of minor depredations, but people would not prosecute them. He had visited their house and found only one old table there and two or three chairs. The boys were eating bread and something that looked meat gravy out of a basin. The house was in a filthy condition.

1897 09 15
Harry Wilson went to Thurrock's Farm, Clavering, with Ernest Harvey, as they heard they wanted two harvest-men there. They were to be paid £7 for five weeks' harvest and went to work on August 9th. They cut an acre of barley in less than four hours. The bailiff had said they had cut too much and got before the other people. One and a half acres was too much for one man to cut in a day. There were four other men in the harvest. The farmer said they were not paid by the acre, but by the day and the amount they cut was totally insufficient for the amount paid them. They were paid 4s.8d a day, and they should have mowed an acre apiece. The farm bailiff said an ordinary labourer should cut two acres a day at about 3s an acre.

1897 09 16
Haverhill harvest festival, p3
Branch reading rooms, p3
Ashley trouble, p3 *

1897 09 17
Let no reader think that this is a pleasant story. It is not, for it is tainted by tyranny distasteful to free citizens. For the past two years education at Longstowe has not pursued its onward course quite smoothly, for during that time the Rector and his daughter appear to regard the master of the Church Schools as their sport and play-thing, to be bandied about "from pillar to post" just as suits their autocratic fancy. Having made a schoolmaster in a Lincolnshire parish fairly uncomfortable the sire and his daughter came down to Longstowe Rectory in 1895 and at once tried their hand on Mr & Mrs Rowland, who for several years had been training the young ideas of the parish to the satisfaction of the manager, the parents and the inspectors. But they have now resigned their position rather than lackey to the new-comer who, with his "I insist" made life anything but one of pleasurable liberty.

1897 09 17
Dry Drayton harvest supper, p3
Barnwell growl, p3
Cottenham water supply, p3
Cottenham accidents, p4 *

1897 09 17 c
The wheat farmers of the Eastern Counties are invited to discard the cultivation of grain for the growth of flax. It is claimed that flax will yield a much greater return per acre than wheat. Flax and hemp straw should be received from the farmers as grown and the fibres manufactured by The English Fibres Industries Company who have just revived the flax mills at Great Shelford and at Long Melford in Suffolk, which had been closed

1897 09 17 c
Messrs Griffiths and Chennell, Newmarket are favoured with instructions to offer for sale by auction all that valuable freehold estate known as Newmarket Mills, at which a lucrative business has been carried on for many years. The powerful tower windmill, advantageously situated on a commanding site with the goodwill of the business as a going concern

1897 09 17
Sir - Your correspondent "A walk from Romsey Town" does not go into the source of the general Babel that is going on every Sunday on the Mill-road, Cambridge, with its accompanying excitement. Why are not the authors of noise and confusion - the Salvation Army - asked to desist their Cymbals and big drums and other kinds of music (?) in a narrow thoroughfare. A newspaper boy calling out the names of his paper is simply joining in the general chorus of excitement. No doubt many are glad to get something to read to go into their houses. The fining of a poor boy for disseminating literature in such a district on Sunday must be bad law, and the sooner repealed the better" - "Cede Deo"

1897 09 18
A special meeting was held in the Hills-road Wesleyan Chapel, Cambridge, in celebration of its re-opening. The chapel has been closed for three weeks and during that time the seats and galleries have been re-varnished, the walls and pillars painted, the heating apparatus renovated, the electric light substituted for gas, coloured windows for plain and a rostrum has been made to take the place of the old pulpit. Mr Isard, hon.sec. said those who worshipped in the side galleries had spoken to him for years past on the badness of the light. Those who sat just behind the gas standards too, found a great difficulty in seeing the speaker and were continually dazzled. They resolved to put in the electric light at a cost of about £60. The Minister said he was sorry they had not got the electric light on but in consequence of the engineers' strike the company had not been able to get the connections on

1897 09 18
Cambridge wants a gymnasium, p3
Ashley church, p3 *
Presentation H. McCalmont, MP, p3

1897 09 20
St Luke’s dedication new schoolroom, p2 *

1897 09 21
GER produce lantern slides of area, p2

1897 09 22
This month may be said to witness the coming of age of the town of Royston, as, after many years of sore trials and tribulations in the matter of local government, the unification of the town may be said to have been completed by the coming into operation of the order forming the town into an urban district. This is an end that has been long and patiently worked and waited for by the inhabitants

1897 09 22
Ranji, p2-3
Ashley scandal – letter, p3

1897 09 23
The quiet little village of Steeple Bumpstead, near Haverhill, was the scene of an occurrence on Sunday morning that occasioned considerable excitement amongst the inhabitants. A well-known cyclist who has been residing with his wife and three children for nearly two years being observed in headlong flight through part of the village with a crowd of men in full cry after him. It appears that a "Royal Enfield" bicycle was missed from a gentleman's house at Rotherwick, Hampshire. A man being seen in the neighbourhood with a lady's machine in addition to the one he was riding, a couple of "tecs" picked up the trail and arrived at Bumpstead. Next morning they got into conversation with the suspect who suddenly seized his hat, ran through the house, over a hedge and to the open country. The missing bicycle was discovered cunningly concealed under a dog-kennel, partly in pieces. The suspect was arrested on Tuesday morning and conveyed to Castle Hedingham Police Station

1897 09 25
At Cambridge's ancient Stourbridge Fair there is no lack of "local colour". Mongrel dogs lurch around after cross- eyed men and towsy-headed women; a maudlin old tippler recites, stuttering, the composition of one of the great unknowns of long ago, to a blear-eyed little nosed party, whose only comment is "Ugh", and females of substance offer curious visitors sticks of doubtful looking toffy, wherewith to wage war upon their digestions. There is no lack of that kind of amusement usual to such gatherings. You can shy at cocoa nuts, ring the bell with a rifle shot, mount an electric lighted roundabout or submit to a ha'porth of grey "ice", just according to the state of your finances

1897 09 25
Holy Trinity church, Cambridge, was filled with a large congregation, the occasion being the re-opening service after the church had been closed for purposes of restoration. When the cement was removed from the buttresses, real solid stonework was found to be concealed underneath, and on theses buttresses the date 1516 was discovered. An old consecration cross was also found by the architect. This cross, he says, is very unique and it is intended that it should be covered with glass in order to preserve it

1897 09 25
Holy Trinity renovation, p3 *

1897 09 27
Saturday seems to have been a very unfortunate day for the owners of vehicles in Cambridge, several accidents taking place on that day. In one, shortly after two-o'clock a bus was proceeding along Maid's Causeway, Cambridge, when it came into collision with a pony and trap belonging to Mr W. Smoothy, greengrocer, King-street. The splashboard, body, and off-wheel of the trap were broken and the pole belonging to the omnibus also received considerable damage. There were no persons injured and no obstruction was caused

1897 09 27
Sangers circus, p3
Quy fire, p3 *

1897 09 28
Ill-treating child, p3

1897 09 29
Library Committee Impeached. Barnwell Reading Room must be Re-opened. A meeting of ratepayers was held to press for the reopening of the Barnwell Reading Room. There were no people in Cambridge who required a free library so much as the people of Barnwell. They had had a library for something over 20 years but now it was given to another part of the town and they objected to it being taken away. The Mayor had given the casting vote against them. All the university men voted against it; they had libraries of their own in every college. Their interest in education went so far as it brought them an income. (Laughter). They had no interest in the working man being educated – “Educate the working man and they will be our masters; keep them ignorant and we will be their masters”.
Some of the working men were educating themselves and the free library gave them facilities to advance their intellectual knowledge. They should not be robbed by individuals on the Library Committee who were not elected by the ratepayers but co-opted on as outsiders. The worse of it was that those men so bitterly opposed to the Barnwell Free Library being re-opened where men who had a direct financial interest in the Library Committee and directly interested by supplying periodicals, books and other things to the free libraries. When the time came t choose their representatives on the Town Council they should insist the man should express their feelings, whether he liked it or not, or else stop at home. A petition bearing 600 or 700 names had not been taken any notice of. Mr Kirbyshire said 76,000 persons visited the old library in East Road in 1896, and 74,500 books were issued, which proved the necessity for the library being open. The new library in Mill Road was only ten minutes' walk away but he had visited the library on several occasions and had never seen a Barnwell or East Road man there. The late Councillor Hall took a great interest in the library on the East Road and left a lot of valuable books and engravings for the sole use of that room. What had become of them? Why were they removed without the permission of the public and the ratepayers? Mr Liles spoke of the assistance the Central Library had been to him. The library had been the greatest friend he had ever had in Cambridge as far as intellectual information was concerned, and by closing their doors they did not know to whom they were closing them against. They were all of the opinion that the reading room was necessary from a moral, mental and physical point of view. It was better for men to have a room where they could read decent literature than to go to the public houses. They would be better for it and their wives and families would reap the benefit. A resolution urging the Corporation to take steps to reopen the library would be proposed. 1897 09 29

1897 09 30
Between seven and eight o'clock last night a storm of exceptional severity broke over Cambridge. The lightning was very vivid and the claps of thunder remarkably loud, while the rain came down with quite tropical violence. Many householders were busily employed in keeping the flood water out of their dwellings and business premises. The storm lasted for about two hours. Gonville-place for more than an hour presented the appearance of a river and pools of water were to be seen upon Parker's Piece for a considerable time

October 1897 CDN

1897 10 01
A little girl, aged nine, a daughter of a labourer was killed by lightning while sitting at tea in her home at Great Paxton, near St Neots. Her little brother was also knocked down and rendered unconscious, but is recovering. His body is marked with the complete outline of a tree, the branches being shown distinctly. The lightning same through the roof, making a hole in the ceiling. At Ely it is computed that the rainfall was about 150 tons per acre; a sheep was killed at Stretham and Mr J. Yarrow of Thetford, had a mare and foal killed

1897 10 02
Saffron Walden. Up-to-date photography. W. Frost Wilson, Gold Street, having purchased the business for many years carried on by Mr W. Hobbs is now prepared to execute photography in all the latest styles. Cabinets, Carte de Visites, Midgets, Boudoir, Plantinotypes etc. Instantaneous photographs a speciality. All the latest scientific instruments. Wedding, football and other parties photographed by arrangement. Animals faithfully photographed # c.65.5

1897 10 04
The ancestors of the present generation have made ample provision for decent and orderly worship in Ashley; a valuable tract of land has been set aside to provide a decent stipend for a minister, and an excellent church provided within this century. What does one see now? Badly cultivated land, a deserted and desecrated building, its furniture wilfully damaged, its people driven to neighbouring churches, and their disgusted neighbours told that the law of England provides no efficient remedy. The scandalous state of affairs has been a grief and a sorrow to every true lover of the grand old national Church and many Nonconformists are equally sorry to see such a terrible state of things existing 1897 10 05

Fulbourn pub, p2

1897 10 06
There has been an epidemic of missing solicitors in Cambridge during the last decade. Now many people in the pretty village of Histon, wherein the Manor Hall, the missing squire's residence, is situate, regard it as a sort of evil dream and they would not be surprised to see him driving up the street as usual. The Squire was last seen driving towards Cambridge on the Monday morning about 10 o'clock. Nothing peculiar in his demeanour was noticed by his neighbours or his own acquaintances; he has of late continued the usual, steady, business-like habits. He was held in high esteem, was Under Sheriff & Deputy Lieutenant of the County and generally regarded as one of the soundest men in the county. Tales are hazarded of enormous sums entrusted to the missing man by companies, colleges and private persons. The only authentic fact is a petition on behalf of a creditor for £4,484.

1897 10 07
The Chairman of Chesterton Urban District Council stated that with reference to Crawley's gut-scraping and fat-rendering factory at the Junction, people complained severely of the offensive and sickening smell and he had asked Dr Anningson to inspect the place. The Inspector said that in addition to the business of gut-scraping, that of fat-rendering was carried on. An open vat was treated by fire from below which allowed all the vapour to escape into the open air. A quantity of disinfecting material had been used, quite inadequate for the purpose in view. Poor people who lived in the vicinity could not even partake of their food by reason of the smell

1897 10 07
Fenstanton Coote farewell, p4

1897 10 08
There was a large attendance of the public when the annual inspection of the Cambridge Fire Brigade took place. The proceedings commenced with an inspection of the fire appliances, after which a drill for the raising of insensible men and carrying them to a supposed place of safety was gone through. The escape drill, carrying men down the escapes, bringing men off with ropes, hand-pump and bucket drill and jumping sheet drill was also gone through. The Mayor said that they would shortly be having the benefits of some more jumping sheets, which would be distributed over various parts of the town. No doubt those sheets would be a great protection to outlying districts for low houses.

1897 10 11
Before the purchase of the Ouse navigation by Mr Simpson the locks above St Ives were in a bad state of repair, through leakage of gates etc. Barges going up the river to St Ives were obliged to make a "pen" (or level water at the locks) by means of planks they carried with them for the purpose. These planks fitted into grooves in the brickwork in the sides of the locks and answered the purpose of "gates" for the lower end of the lock. Then the upper gate would be opened and the water levelled to the planks. When this was done the barge was taken out of the lock, the gates closed and the planks taken out. This, of course, was a slow process, through the leakage between the planks but still it was possible to get through. Now Mr Simpson refuses to allow the lock at St Ives to be used in the manner for which it was constructed, and has closed the locals above St Ives altogether

1897 10 11
We understand that a design for the front portion of the Cambridge Guildhall will be laid before the Council. For years we have joined in the general chorus of condemnation of the present monstrosity which does duty as a front to the municipal building. It is an abomination and ought to be removed as speedily as possible. The question is whether or not the present is the proper time for undertaking the work. We are informed that the contemplated new front will cost £38,000! Let the ratepayers remember that we have not yet done with our gigantic, our costly, and in some respects our eminently unsatisfactory sewerage scheme – Editorial

1897 10 11
Histon Hall history, p2 *

1897 10 12
St Ives Michaelmas Fair was visited by a great number of people. They came in by crowds from the railway station, in many a slap-up conveyance and every other shade of vehicle. Monday is looked upon as the business day of the fair. The streets near the Market - Cromwell-place area were utilised to stand the horses for sale and the adjacent side streets were used as exercise yards in which to show the paces of the animals amid much cracking of whips, shouting, and whistling, and the display of pink chintz flags used at the end of a stick to frighten the animals. A few were very good horses, but most of them were not so good - to put it mildly

1897 10 12
Sir - The poisonous exhalations from the ventilating gratings in the Cambridge streets continue as bad as ever. The authorities apparently neglect to make any effort to mitigate the intolerable nuisance, and seem to court an epidemic of diphtheria and typhoid. Having occasion myself to pass along Castle-street and the Huntingdon-road I can testify to the particularly offensive conditions. Nausea, headache, sore throat, and a general low state of health are some of the minor results of the pestilential state of the town. The constant use of disinfectant in the streets might do something to diminish the dangers with which we are threatened - a Resident M.A.

1897 10 12
Barrington brick syndicate, p3

1897 10 13
In celebration of the successful completion of the Haverhill Industrial Co-operative Society's new buildings in High Street, a dinner was given at the Town Hall. The committee had decided that no one outside the town of Haverhill should tender for the work. Mr Mason, the contractor had done the work splendidly and no building has ever been finished off in such a condition. Mr Green, the stone carver, said the felt he must do his very best, as they would have the eye of everyone in the town upon them. Mr Gurteen recollected that where they now saw all these new buildings there were formerly merely low thatched cottages

1897 10 13
Warning – St Ives fair, p2-3 & 14th p4
Haverhill co-op, p4 *

1897 10 14
Sir - Before the County Council Act came into force the man that had to drive 14 miles into the country twice a week had a very difficult and dangerous task to face, as, without one exception, all the roads in the county were more or less bad and calculated to wear up horse and cart in a very short time. Now that state of things has entirely changed. There is no such thing as a bad road to be found in the county, and in the borough there is scarcely a bit of road that is fit to drive over with a load of any sort - "Redivivus"

1897 10 14
Barnwell to get back Reading Room, p2-3 # c.77.4

1897 10 15
State of roads, p3
Waresley fire, p4

1897 10 16
Chesterton factory nuisance, p2
Interview Matthew Wilkinson re Borough problems, p3

1897 10 18
Cyclists & accidents, p2 *

1897 10 19
Early closing, p2
Missing Histon solicitor – details, p3

1897 10 20
Bankruptcy landlord Bath hotel, p2 # c.27.4
Theft mackintosh, Newmarket, p3

1897 10 20 c
Artificial Teeth. Important Notice - great success. Mr F.W. Bradley begs to inform the inhabitants of Cambridge that owing to the unparalleled success which has attended the new and painless system of adapting artificial teeth without plates he now finds it necessary to visit Cambridge twice a week. A complete set of teeth from £1.1s.; single tooth from 2s.6d

1897 10 21
The Rev R.W. Close called attention to the increase of vagrancy and the number of vagrant children who had gone through the three Poor Law Unions in Huntingdonshire. The children in the Workhouses were well kept and well brought up, but the condition of the vagrant children when brought into the Workhouse was very bad. Their health suffered, their clothes were often wet, and they were dirty. The meeting at St Ives proposed that Unions should have the power to take such children away from the control of their parents, provided that magistrates could annul the resolution on the application of the parents after a hearing

1897 10 23
Sir - Cannot something be done to stop this frightful nuisance of organ-grinding? I have rooms in Trinity Street and as I write the organ has been "going on" for nearly an hour. The "Washington Post" is a fine march and "Come back to Erin" a delightful melody, but not when repeated eight or ten times over. The routine of coaching work is quite monotonous without further annoyance at the hands (and handles) of the lazy riff- raff of Italian Whitechapel - M.A.

1897 10 23
Sir, - On Wednesday morning my attention was called to the state of the River Cam near Baitsbite Sluice. The water was covered with an oily matter and the stench arising therefrom was beastly. The whole atmosphere was apparently impregnated with some vapour. The havoc amongst the fish was appalling. Thousands upon thousands - I might say tons - of pike, eels, roach and dace were dead and dying, struggling to liberate themselves from their putrid, poisonous liquid. I never witness such a lamentable sight before - Thomas Banyard

1897 10 25
Buried treasure unearthed sewage operations, illus, p2
Royston pub licences, p3
Dead fish, p3

1897 10 26
The sewerage operations in Cambridge have brought to light a large number of interesting objects which must be of very considerable historical and antiquarian value. There is a danger of their being dispersed all over the country in years to come, which would be a distinct loss to Cambridge

Perhaps it might be possible to gather these relics together under one roof as the nucleus of a Town Museum. Could not the Town Council appoint a small committee to make an enquiry on the articles available and see whether such a Museum could be formed. If that were found impractical or undesirable arrangements might be made in the University for a Town section in which the names of donors might be preserved. 1897 10 26

Interview Fred Chambers, CDN impartial, p3
Why no library free catalogue, p3

1897 10 27
Church Army, p2
Presentation vicar St Pauls, p3
Pead bankruptcy, p3
Over arson cottage, p3

1897 10 28
Trumpington burglary trial, p3

1897 10 29
Cambridge builders ltd, p2
Working Men's Cottage Garden society meeting, p3
Ditton meadows, p3 *

1897 10 30
Proposed Guildhall front – illus Clarke, p2 *
Talks – B. Liles, bootmaker, p3 *

1897 10 30
At the Old Bailey, Theophilius Turner, describe as a surgeon, who in the spring resided at Stapleford Grove as Dr Harris and did business with several Cambridge tradesmen, and Ella Macdonald, stated to be well connected, were indicted for conspiracy. The female prisoner at once pleaded guilty but the male prisoner waited until the case had been opened and evidence called before admitting his guilt

November 1897 CDN

1897 11 01
Longstowe Hall contents sale, p2
St Philips mutual help society, p2
Ill-treating lunatic, Fulbourn, p3

1897 11 02
Biog John Perkins, bursar Downing, p2
St Barnabas Institute opening (illus), p3 # c.37

1897 11 03
Brookfield, p2
St Ives fishing, p2
Ely fair, p4

1897 11 03 c
The Master of Emmanuel, in an interview concerning University finances says: "Our pecuniary difficulties are undoubtedly due to the large expenditure incurred upon the medical and scientific schools. Nevertheless it is no use starving these departments, and some of them - for example the Botany School, which is wretchedly housed - call for a more generous provision. Several new sites for building extension have recently been acquired but the money to erect the buildings is, however, not forthcoming"

1897 11 03
A babel of sound greets you as you enter; some four hundred members of the canine tribe lift their voices in chorus. From end to end the Corn Exchange is filled with benches tenanted by dogs of every breed, size and colour - a sight to gladden the hearts of the Cambridge Canine Society committee at its first show which, if excelled in future years, will require a larger hall

1897 11 04
Cottenham railway, p3 *
Municipal wash baths, p3 *

1897 11 05
Police & cyclists, p2

1897 11 05
At St Ives rural district council meeting Mr Barlow said that the Fenstanton pump was only about eight feet from the pond and every time cattle or horses went to the pond the water was stirred up and became black, and this water found its way into the well. If they cleaned out the well a dozen times they would never made him believe the water in that well would be good because the water would percolate through to the well

1897 11 05 c
The Holdback (Lincolnshire) Guardians have received a letter from the Local Government Board asking what number of currants were to be put into the children's pudding. It seems that the information is required for audit purposes. The master of a workhouse is a busy man, with no small weight of responsibility upon his shoulders. If he is to be compelled to county the currants, we fancy those tasty, but indigestible comestibles will be conspicuous by their absence. The Local Government Board is waking up - to trifles

1897 11 06
Subsidising Perse School, p2
Interview Sam Long, Fulbourn, p3

1897 11 06
Carter Jonas offered for sale by auction the important freehold property of the Fen Ditton Hall Estate, comprising the fine old manor house known as "Ditton Hall", Ditton Meadows on the Long Reach, the Home Farm at Fen Ditton and 402 acres of land. Three lots on the east side of Ditton Lane, each containing 1 acre of land were sold for £325 and three acres fronting Newmarket Road realised £220. The Fen Ditton Hall, with 72 acres of grass land known as Ditton Meadows found several bidders but the property was bought in at £4,000 and several small plots of grass land adjoining were withdrawn

1897 11 09
A company has been formed to acquire the rights of an invention for automatically securing and holding cycles upon the principles of the penny in the slot. The public cycle racks will be placed in convenient centre, and, by putting his penny in the slot and thereby unlocking a lid which closes over the wheel, the owner can place his machine in perfectly safe custody, and take away with him a key, by which key alone the locker can be undone. To get his machine out the cyclist opens the lid, replaces his key, turns it and lets the lid down; the wheel is released by the falling of the lid, the penny drops into a receiver, the key is secured and the apparatus closed. # c.26.486

1897 11 10
Sir - I should like to ask my fellow ratepayers, more especially those living in the vicinity of Mill Road, Cambridge, which is more important to them – the improvement of the Guildhall, which I understand to cost £40,000, or the stinking condition of the Mill road sewers, which has for its vent the manholes. From two of them, especially the Petersfield one, the stench on Sunday was enough to breed an epidemic. How long are we to stand this sort of business? - James Plant

1897 11 10
Pead bankruptcy, p2

1897 11 13
Last night saw the inauguration of a new gymnasium club at Cambridge, rejoicing in the name of "Orion". It is located at the Spread Eagle, Lensfield Road. The cosy room was tastefully decorated with drapery and weapons of gymnastic art. About a fortnight ago some half-a-dozen of the gentlemen present gathered together and started the club. Already they have about fifty members and they expect everyone who was elected to be a gentleman. They did not want those who were not.

1897 11 13
Trumpington chrysanthemum show, p3
Cottenham meat, p3 *

1897 11 13
On Saturday night a Western force was advancing on Cambridge from the direction of St Neots and an Eastern force had been assembled to protect the town. They established a line of outposts from Coton to Barton church. At about three o'clock the opposing forces came into collision. The first firing took place in Barton village. Barton hill formed a strong point in the defence and here Colonel Cronin, much assisted by the Maxim-guns made a prolonged stand, but the numerical superiority of the attacking force compelled him at length to retire, fighting hard

1897 11 13
Sir - Is there any anathema evil enough for these wonderfully and truly awful patent "smell diffusers" (sewage manholes). Now the smells which arise from some of these "death-traps" may positively be seen with the naked eye on almost any damp evening and are shortly, I hear, to be reckoned amongst the "sights of Cambridge". These "black holes of old Cambridge" are also a positive curse to cyclists who every ten yards or so have to make no small detour to avoid inhaling the noisome odours which proceed from these Superabundant "sources of destruction and disease" - "Cave Odorem", Selwyn College

1897 11 15
London-Scottish, p3 *

1897 11 15
The Cambridge public may rest assured that though there may be a great nuisance from smells yet there is very little chance of their being harmful to health. We have found out that in some of the worst cases it is due to the sewer taking away the wash from the college kitchens and everyone knows what green water smells like. It has been noticed that the smells are more particularly unpleasant when the kitchens are being washed up. That is probably one of the chief causes in the greater part of the borough of smells from the fresh sewage

1897 11 16
Somersham pump fires, p3 *
Tradesmen’s exhibition, p2

1897 11 16 c
Much excitement was caused at Saffron Walden by a horse attached to a G.E.R. trolley bolting from the goods yard. It went at a rapid pace up the Station road, down South road and Fairycroft road. The animal turned the corner and ran across East Street into the front of the house of Mr W. Samuell, harness maker, doing considerable damage. The trolley was broken and the iron axle snapped in two. The horse was not hurt. The animal had only been used at Walden a few days, doing duty during the illness of the horse usually worked 1897 11 17

Pead not answers bankruptcy, p2

1897 11 17
Scarcely a week ago the Vice Chancellor entertained a distinguished company of judges at a banquet in the hall of Downing College, after which an adjournment was made to the rooms of one of the Fellows. Certain ardent spirits deemed it a favourable opportunity to indulge in a little diversion, suggested by the obtrusive handle of the door behind which the distinguished guests were killing time. "Why not fix it with stout wire to some neighbouring object?" The wire was forthcoming, the connection was made, and just sufficient length was allowed to admit of the door being opened a few inches - but no more. The judges tugged and tugged and tugged and all the Queens' judges and all the Queen's men would not make the door open sufficiently wide to enable them to get out. One valiantly put his hand through the small opening and tried to sever the wire with a carving knife. When he withdrew his hand it was copiously covered with red paint - and the wire remained intact. It is stated that the distinguished guests took this practical joke in good part - extract from the "Daily Mail"

1897 11 17
An action was brought by Albert Golding, the tenant of certain property in High Street, Newmarket, to restrain alleged interference with their ancient light by William Reilly & co. Defendants had acquired the Old Greyhound Inn in 1896 and pulled it down, and in building a fine hotel in its place they had obstructed the light to the plaintiff's window. James Cross, a draper's porter, said he knew of the obstruction of light to one window by the fact that he could no longer look out of it and see his uncle. (Laughter). Before the new buildings were erected he could do so. A number of young milliners spoke of the interference with the light to their workrooms since the erection of the new hotel

1897 11 18
Sir - My attention has been called to a curious instance of the gullibility of the correspondent of a London daily paper copied in your columns yesterday. It is true that three undergraduates of this college have been send down for the remainder of the term, but the offence for which they have been punished was purely of a domestic nature. For the satisfaction of the University, I may add that not one of her Majesty's judges who honoured the college by their presence last Thursday knows anything whatever of the occurrence - J.C. Saunders, Downing College

1897 11 18
It is probable that no part of the district is regarded with such anxiety by our city fathers as Cherryhinton. For years it has been felt that the drainage system of that ever-growing parish was not what it ought to be. Every year sees rural scenes transformed into the busy haunts of the villa-raising builder, and what was once a green pasture is turned into sites for serried ranks of bricks. But with all this progress sanitary requirements frequently lag. The greatest difficulty is to keep the soapsuds from the laundries and the water from the sinks out of the surface water drains. It is possible for the drainage from the cesspools to percolate through the soil into the brooks and so come near the water supply.

1897 11 19
The Old Baptist Chapel at Cottenham has a somewhat austere exterior, though inside all is welcome and brightness. But while the welcome has always been there the brightness is a very recent addition. A month ago the chapel was anything but bright. Having been closed for about a month the Chapel was re-opened yesterday amid every manifestation of rejoicing. The general effect of brightness has been given to the interior by the colouring of the walls, stencilling of the window reveals, ornamentation of the ceiling and varnishing of the pews. Mr W. Chivers said he could hardly realise that the building was the same old chapel. They had so decorated it and beautified it that they had brought it up to the fashion of the 19th century

1897 11 20
Sussex Street improvements, p2

1897 11 20 c
At the meeting of Cambridgeshire County Council a letter from Longstanton Parish Council asking for permission to erect a fire-engine house on waste ground aside of the highway, near the Black Bull Inn, was considered. An application from Burwell Parish Council for permission to borrow money for a recreation ground was read. The Council had now received five requests to lend money to Parish Councils for providing burial grounds.

1897 11 20 c
The annual working men's dinner of the St Ives Quoits Club was held at the New Crown, St Ives. Thirty-nine members sat down to an excellent spread. They were told some people carping at the game of quoits but if they kept such honorary members as Mr Fellowes, Mr Ruston (the mayor) and Mr R.J. Linsell, they would resuscitate the good old game of quoits in the county. The Chairman proposed the health of the visiting clubs including the Durham Ox at Cambridge

1897 11 23 c
Sir - There is a piece of land "cleared" just lately, where stood some poor-houses. This "Tom Tiddler's Ground" is at the entrance to Coldham's Lane and here might be a placed some public baths which are so much wanted in this very congested district of Cambridge. The conditions or health would thereby be beneficial - "Nathan"

1897 11 23
Somersham pump fire, p3 *
Manholes, p2

1897 11 24
Free School Lane, p2
Jesus sports, p3

1897 11 25
Guildhall front, p2 & p3 *

1897 11 25
The water in the river at St Ives is now exceedingly low, and the stench from it is very bad indeed. At the bottom of Priory-road it is enough to breed a fever and people can hardly bear it. It is hoped the approaching meeting of the Hunts. County Council will take the matter in hand. Meanwhile we would suggest to Mr Stimpson, that for the sake of the public health, he should shut the gates at the Staunch, and keep enough water in the river to prevent any outbreak

1897 11 26
The opening ceremony in connection with the new public buildings at Baldock took place. The task of declaring the building open had been left to Mrs Pryor, the wife of the gentleman who so generously gave the town the site. Mr Neville Hinde trusted the building would contain every desideratum for the future growth and development of their urban business. He had always regarded the ratepayers of Baldock as a very level- headed lot of people. The building was an ornament to the town and very much to be preferred to the unpicturesque ruins which once occupied the site

1897 11 27
A well-attended meeting was held in Eden Street School, Cambridge to discuss the proposed expenditure on a new Guildhall front. Mr R. Sturton said they must have a new cemetery as he did not suppose sanitary science would advance sufficiently rapidly to go in for cremation en bloc. Then there was the new Police Station and something would have to be done to the Sanatorium. Mr Burwick though the more they beautified Cambridge the more good they would do to business. Why not have a police station at the town hall, offices for the payment of rates, swimming baths. He did not see why shops should not be built on Peas Hill so as to bring in a considerable amount

1897 11 27
New Chesterton Institute, p2 *
Consumers Tea Co, p2 *
Interview Marcus Isserlis, p3

1897 11 27
Sir. The Reading Room on East Road, Cambridge will be re-opened on Monday next, from six till half-past nine o'clock. Everything has been done to make the room as efficient and comfortable as possible, new gas fittings and furniture provided and the floor has been covered throughout with linoleum. By the liberality of the Mayor about one hundred volumes of useful works of reference, biography and travel will be placed upon the open shelves. There will be supplied 15 daily newspapers and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance and an appreciable use made of the literature supplied - John Pink, Librarian # c.77.4

1897 11 27
At Saffron Walden County Court John Maris, saddler, Linton, sought to recover from George Housden, dealer, damages to his garden by defendant's fowls. Plaintiff stated that 20 roods of growing crops had been damaged. Lettuce plants, barley, peas and other things were spoiled. The fowls were on the ground a dozen at a time. Defendant said the fowls had never been on the garden. There was a quick-set fence through which there were gaps. His Honour: Do you mean to say that your fowls were so virtuous that when they made the holes in the hedge they would not go through. Defendant said he brought his fowls up so that they would not go on. He swore that the fowls had not done damage that would cover the prick of a needle. His Honour considered the claim of £1.6s.0d was not exaggerated and gave judgement for the plaintiff

1897 11 29
Sir: Christ's Lane is a thoroughfare that is as much used as any in Cambridge, and is owned by a college. During the last two years it has been a veritable quagmire, I came through last evening and the mud was several inches thick through the lane. When is Cambridge to be governed so that there is the same law measured out for the University as there is for the worker and when is Christ's Lane to be paved in such a manner that that it shall be as pleasant to walk through as it is walking across Christ's Pieces? – B.L. [Christ’s Lane was replaced by Bradwell's Court]

1897 11 29
Cambridge paintings by local artists, p2

1897 11 30
Pead viewing prior sale, p2
Guildhall front – support, p3 *
Mother in law, p3

1897 11 30
Once again the good folk of Barnwell are in possession of their reading-room. This time improvements have been carried out and the workers around East Road will not only have a convenient room, but also an attractive and comfortable one. The room is the same as of yore, and the exterior is as ugly as ever, but inside everything has been re-painted and varnished, & incandescent lights have replaced the old-fashioned flickering gas jet. Although Mr John Pink, the borough librarian, opposed the re-opening, since the decision of the Council to again provide facilities for the thoughtful working men of Barnwell he has done his utmost to ensure they are as full and liberal as possible # c.77.4

December 1897 CDN

1897 12 02
Shortly after 12 o'clock this morning the shop of Mr Norman, watchmaker, close to the Sheep Market, St Ives, was found to be on fire. It is the centre one of three buildings, the White Hart and the Falcon being on either side. The howling of a dog in the shop awoke the inmates, or they would probably have been burnt in their beds. Mr John Anderson of the White Hart ran round to the firemen's houses and the brigade, with the apparatus, were quickly on the spot. The fire burnt its way into the White Hart and penetrated every room in the Falcon except the front room downstairs. The dog which gave the alarm was found dead in the shop by the firemen

1897 12 03
Cottenham ploughing match, p3

1897 12 04
Town Hall front letter, p2

1897 12 06
The Meldreth Portland Cement and Brick Co. Ltd. has been formed for the purpose of acquiring lands at Meldreth for the manufacture of Portland and other cement, bricks, tiles etc, and also for the purpose of getting and selling coprolites. There are two other companies in the neighbourhood doing similar business at a good profit - the Cam Company and the East Anglian - and we have no doubt the public will promptly subscribe the capital required

1897 12 06
A testimonial was presented to Mr W.B. Taylor, chief clerk at Newmarket Post Office, who is retiring. Mr Taylor became a telegraph learner under the old Electric Telegraph Company at Ely, and in 1855 was transferred to King's Lynn, where he remained in charge of the telegraph office until 1868. In that year he was appointed to Newmarket where for a considerable period he was the only telegraph operator in the town. When in 1870 the Government took over the telegraph service he was appointed chief clerk. The telegraphic work at Newmarket has increased enormously. On days upon which important races are run several thousand messages are despatched and received and other weeks sometimes as many as 2,500 messages are handled in a day.

1897 12 08
Sepha system of sewage treatment, p3

1897 12 09
Fred Morley called the attention of Cambridge Council to the state of the new sewers. He thought it was time people were protected from the smells which at present arose from them. The worst of them arose where three or four streets joined and the tradesmen at the corner of the streets were in a worst position than those in the middle. They were losing customers who went where there was not so much smell and one butcher said the smells had affected the colour of the meat in his shops. Further people thought it was the meat that smelt and not the manholes (Laughter)

1897 12 09
Police accommodation, p3 *
Newmarket ancient lights, p3

1897 12 13
Conundrums, p3

Lock-jaw death, p3 *

1897 12 13 c
Cambridge Market Committee recommended that a new form of market stall known as the "Diamond Stall" be erected on Market Hill. Mr Nichols remarked that the long vexed question of covering in the market was the objection to a permanent structure being erected on Market Hill. They were paying now £850 per year for putting up and taking down all those wretched stalls and their repairs. At some length he described the advantages to the town that the scheme would bring about, amid some manifestations of impatience on the part of the Council

1897 12 13 c
Cambridge Fire Brigade Committee require an engine room large enough for a steamer, hose cart, ladder cart and horizontal escape, temporary cover for present perpendicular escape, watch room to include sleeping accommodation for two men, and muster room to accommodate a meeting of 30 men.

1897 12 13
A tailor of Cherry Hinton had a sad tale to relate to the Borough Coroner at the inquest held on the body of his five-year-old son. On the evening of 26th November he heard the child screaming and found him sitting on his aunt's knee with one of his fingers crushed. The child had managed to put his finger in between the rollers of the mangle and one finger was badly crushed. She had to reverse the rollers to get it out. The boy was treated at hospital but then showed signs of tetanus, grew rapidly worse and died.

1897 12 14
In view of the approach of the Christmas season, and in order to assist our readers in their shopping we today give the first of our notices of the special attractions and goods which are to be found in the Cambridge shops. Every family, however unmusical at other seasons of the year, burst forth into song as Christmas Day approaches. Music for every taste can be bought at Mr Miller's warehouse, Sidney Street. Pianos and all instruments of the best makes are ready for purchase or hire

1897 12 14 c
Round the Cambridge shops. Bright within and bright without is Mr Otto Wehrle's jewellery shop in Regent- Street. Mr Wehrle offers ladies' silver watches with silver chains at 12s.6d. An especially commendable present is a solid silver afternoon tea set offer at £4.10.0. As a special Christmas offer Mr Wehrle will present every purchaser of 5s. and upwards with a useful gift to the value of 1s.6d. A goodly selection of Christmas presents are on view at Mr G.W. Morley's Exchange and Mart, Mill-road. Broaches, bangles and button-hooks of every shape and size, and at every prize, meet the eyes of the generous purchaser, and everyone may be sure of getting something suitable for the most difficult to please

1897 12 14
At the Cambridge Wanderers Cycle club annual dinner Mr G. Edwards, the Captain, said he did not say all cyclists were angels, because they were not. There were men who went tearing about, whistling down the street, ringing their bells and expecting to have the whole street cleared for them. There was another class who went for a ride in the country and had a sort of liking for riding on the path. Had the chief constable put a constable in the road in proper uniform no one would have complained. But he had to go and put a man in plain clothes to capture the people. The speaker was sure that the chief constable had a rise in his salary for the smart capture of cyclists # c.26.485

1897 12 15
Sir - The fearful state of the Chesterton roads at the present time calls for comment: they are worse than ever. Trees have lately been inserted on either side of this avenue of mud & slime. Omnibuses are running to and fro daily that are a credit to any town, especially are the horses in splendid form ready to take you from Chesterton church to the Cambridge station for twopence! The wear and tear on such roads must be very great. How very surprised people seem to be now-a-days that Victoria Bridge should have been opposed by some people. But the hour has struck when the necessity for another bridge is of equal importance. The folk at Old Chesterton, all employed in Cambridge, have to cross the classic stream either by grind or punt. The sooner both councils wake up to their duty in the matter of this great necessity, the better for people on both sides of the river - "Chestertonian"

1897 12 15
Pead's plate sold, p3 *
Christmas cheer, p3 *

1897 12 16
Castle Hill Institute, p3 *
Christmas cheer, p3

1897 12 17
Christmas cheer, p3
Eden Street school, p3 *
Caxton Guardians, Bourn Brook, p4 *

1897 12 18
Pead's property sold, Histon, p3

1897 12 20
There is no more handsome piece of furniture in a house than a pianoforte. Thanks to keen competition the prices generally are but little more than those of 10 years ago and today pianofortes are within reach of the majority of working men. But if you feel you cannot afford a new one, go to 14, Mill Road, Cambridge, where Mr H. Leavis conducts his business and get a second-hand one. He keeps organs and harmoniums in stock at as low a figure as £3, and you can obtain a capital pianoforte for the moderate outlay of £5

1897 12 21
Duxford death, p2

1897 12 22
Cambridge Omnibus Company were sued for damages sustained in an accident of September 25th in Emmanuel Lane, Cambridge. The omnibus in question was licenced to carry 12 passengers inside and 14 outside. On the day in point there were no less than 23 outside, an excessive weight of more than half a ton and in consequence the vehicle swayed. In Emmanuel Lane there was a cart standing on the left side of the road causing the 'bus to move to the right when the hind off-wheel of the omnibus went sharply against the kerb and immediately collapsed like a pack of cards and all those unfortunate passengers were thrown to the ground. Some of the passengers were shot into a solicitor's office # c.26.46

1897 12 23
A laundress of Gloucester Street, Cambridge, was charged at the Borough Court with keeping a woman at work for more than 14 hours. Annie Sindell said she commenced work at 9.30 am Friday and worked until ten past six the next morning. She had an hour and a quarter for meals. The day was supposed to be of 12 hours, less meal times, and for that they got 1s.3d. She never agreed to work all night but the laundress would have the work done. She earned 7s.6d. for the whole week. The overtime pay was a penny an hour. The laundress was fined 7s.6. and costs

1897 12 23
Melbourn dirty house, p3

1897 12 24

The Park-street Higher Grade School, Cambridge, entertainment and prize distribution took place in the Guildhall. The chief feature of the entertainment was the performance of the cantata "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" by teachers and children at the school. Miss Flora Mathers was excellent as the Princess, supported by Miss Birdie Heath as the Queen Mother, Miss Eva Dovey as the Prince and Miss Ethel Barnsdale as Carl the Huntsman. Besides these characters there were the seven dwarfs, three flowers and two choruses, and with all working well together the cantata was delightfully rendered

1897 12 28
The festive season was, as usual, made as bright as possible for the inmates of the Newmarket Workhouse. The regulation meals were replaced for the day by an abundance of seasonable fare. During the morning there was a distribution of gifts, including tobacco and snuff for the old folks, packets of tea with 3d. pieces, and sugar for the women, apples, oranges and sweets for the children. The inmates were granted freedom for social intercourse and in the afternoon the Master's organette was brought into requisition for their amusement

1897 12 28
It is a striking proof of the charitable feeling which exists at Christmas that the inmates of the workhouses throughout the land receive so much attention during the festive season. At Cambridge, the institution so excellently superintended by Mr Luke Hosegood, is quite as fortunate as any other and the last few days have, doubtless, been the brightest that the inmates of "the house" have known for the last 12 months

1897 12 29
Christmas traffic, p2
What paupers cost 20 years ago and today, p4

1897 12 30
The Tenison Road Chapel was opened for divine service this morning in the presence of a large congregation. The chapel has been built to take the place of the Hope Chapel in Paradise Street. It was in 1861 that the Hope Chapel was built, and for many years there was no pastor. Since 1892 the number of worshippers has increased to such an extent that the need of a larger building was felt for some time. The new building has been constructed to seat ultimately 335 persons, but at present a portion has been partitioned off to serve as a class-room.

1897 12 31
Granite on roads, p3 *

1898 Cambridge Daily News.

There are reader printer copies and scans of summarised articles and those marked *
Checked against diary 11 2017

January 1898 – CDN

1898 01 02
Shortly before the clock of Great St Mary's with deep-toned impressiveness proclaimed the exit of 1897 and the advent of 1898 King's Parade was thronged with people awaiting the fiery messengers sent up year after year by Ald Beck. We have a shrewd suspicion that the unusual sight of letting off rockets at midnight attracted the bulk of the people who visited King's Parade last night. "Beer, beer, glorious beer" chorused a lively portion of the crowd. Precisely upon the stroke of 12 there was a swish and roar in front of the portals of King's and the first rocket soared aloft proclaiming abroad the significant fact that the old year was out. A second rocket heralded in the new year, and after some slight ebullition of feeling and a feeble attempt at "Aud lang syne" the crowds dispersed, and the streets resumed their normal state 1898 01 02

Interview J. Hall, Gamlingay

1898 01 03
Sanatorium, p2 *
Personal, p2
Costermongers, p3 *

1898 01 04
Litlington church assault, p3

1898 01 05
Perhaps outside London there is hardly a place in England where prompt attendance at fires, constant vigilance and capable supervision are so urgently required as at Newmarket. In the Jockey Club and Trainers' Fire Brigade all these qualifications are obtained. The appliances are in a most efficient state, and the entire organisation a most admirable one. The Brigade is supported entirely by the subscriptions of trainers and other individuals at Newmarket interested in the protection from fire of valuable horses, training stables and other property

St Barnabas Christmas tree, p2
Good Samaritan Society, p3
Royston medical assistants, p4 *

1898 01 06
How improve Cambridge – toilets, trees, p2
Ashwell RD ruined house, p3
Death H.J. Whitaker, Borough Treasurer, p3 * # c.35.7
On Sunday last the inhabitants of Castle End, Cambridge, were surprised by a violent explosion, and were anxiously searching for its whereabouts. It was noticed that at the time of the explosion the grating over a manhole in the street was lifted up several inches. The explosion was, undoubtedly, in the sewer. It is said that there has been an objectionable smell of coal gas in the neighbourhood, so a leakage many have taken place into the sewer. Cambridge people will soon begin to regard the sewers as something more than a nuisance - a positive danger - and expect the streets to be upheaved as by a subterranean mine 1898 01 06, p3

1898 01 07
Rampton house, p3
Girton church restoration, p3 *
Huntingdon County Hospital, p3 *

1898 01 08
How improve Cambridge – baths, factories, p3 *

1898 01 10
Dry Drayton Friendly Society embezzled, p3

1898 01 12
Pantomime, New Theatre – in depth feature, p2 * # c.76
Cambridge lad in India, experiences, p4

1898 01 13
Huntingdonshire Licenced Victuallers Association formed, p4

1898 01 14
Swavesey by-roads, p3 *

Over unemployment, p3
Firemen annual dinner, p3 *
Saffron Walden – years gaol, p3 *

1898 01 14
The re-opening of the Institute Reading Room, at Castle End, under the new regime of municipal management took place quite informally on Monday evening. Cold, foggy weather, such prevailed on that night, would not seem to be the best conditions for such an event, yet the brightly lit warm and cosy room, where the inhabitants of this district may now and read the news of the world, seemed all the more welcome with such uncomfortable conditions existing out of doors. Since the room has been under the control of the Public Library Committee, several improvements have been effected. The incandescent light has been fitted up, and there are now two fairly large tables, each with nine or ten chairs around. Two small tables are also provided, and a curtain has been fixed to keep the draught of the door from readers. A number of coloured pictures adorned the walls, and there is the nucleus of a library the dozen bound volumes of the Illustrated London yews, which find a place in one corner. A custodian's sanctum is a development which the near future will bring forth. The two tables are well stocked will literature, which, if not extensive, is at least happily selected. Twelve weekly papers are taken, and seven magazines and seven London morning papers complete the list. This room has been used a reading room for ten years past, it being built two years after the Institute was opened in 1884, and its erection was the out-come of the generous interest shown Dr. Hart and Mrs. M. I. Whibley. The Committee of the Institute made very generous offer to the Library Committee, namely, to let the room, providing fire and gas, at the nominal rent of a year, and with such an inducement, it can be readily understood that the Committee, fortified the resolution recently passed by the Town Council, at once embraced the opportunity to add to the educational facilities of Cambridge. 1898 01 14 CIP

Free Library.Saturday last was a busy day at the Central Library, on that day the Lending Library was re-opened, after being closed a week. As soon the doors were opened there was crowd in front of the long counter, and the library was kept open all day for the convenience of borrowers, there was throughout a continuous stream. The issue of books was the largest yet recorded in one day, and it numbered 1,207 volumes. A new supplemental catalogue containing all the new books was published, and in few days there will also be supplement to the catalogue of music, containing a good selection just purchased. On Monday last the evening Reading Room in Castle End was opened for the first time, and so far the average attendance each evening has been between 60 and 70, many of the visitors being youths. 1898 01 14

1898 01 15
Gt Abington – Australia case, p3
Organ grinder & Ely girl, p3

1898 01 19
The Cambridge magistrates were confronted by four small prisoners and their judgement was sorely tried how best to deal with the boys, aged 11 and 9. They were charged with stealing from a hen-house at Moyes' Farm, Shelly Row, Cambridge, four eggs value 6d. Two were discharged and Dr Cooper advised their other to see her sons should receive a hiding, she replied "I don't think there is much fear but what they will catch it". Another boy had been before the Bench no less than four times. In 1896 he had had six strokes for stealing beans. His parents had no control over him. He was a perfect pest. Dr Cooper said that in a reformatory the boys were all put together and only taught one another their tricks. The boy was ordered to receive 12 strokes with the birch and told if he came up again he would be birched and sent to prison

1898 01 21

The first annual meeting of the St Ives and District Nursing Association was held in the Corn Exchange, St Ives. The number of cases attended have been 117 of which 71 were in St Ives, 19 in Fenstanton and 27 in Hemingford. Of these eight have died, five have been removed to hospital and 90 have recovered. Twenty of the cases were accidents, several of them serious, and of such a nature as to make removal to the hospital difficult, so that the patients derived much benefit from skilled nursing in their own homes.

1898 01 22
The report of Cambridgeshire Technical Education Committee shows the village library continued to be steadily appreciated. Where there are local libraries already established in villages in connection with reading-rooms, schools etc, the boxes of books offered would generally form a most useful addition, thus increasing the interest and variety on the most economical terms - carriage only, to and fro
GER staff dinner, p3

1898 01 24
Old Chesterton playground, p3

1898 01 25
A very large company assembled at the Golden Lion Hotel, St Ives, when three licenced houses were put up for sale by auction. The first house offered was the Pelican Inn, Warboys. It was fully licenced and well fitted up with a frontage to the High Street. It was sold for £1,000, it being fully expected to realize at least £1,500. Next was the Three Horseshoes in Woodhurst, brought for £500. The freehold beerhouse in Fenstanton known as the Prince's Feathers with the cottage adjoining was sold for £500 to Mr G.G. Wheeler as agent for Mr Burt, the well-known Fenstanton brewer

Revelry – Old Robins, p2
St Ives agriculture meeting

1898 01 25
A few minutes after four o'clock on Friday afternoon a trolley belonging to Mr E. Beales, carter to the Great Eastern Railway, was being driven along the Fordham Road, Newmarket, when the animal bolted, apparently without cause. The efforts of the driver to check the animal were futile and when near the Jubilee Clock Tower the horse got one of its legs over the shaft of the trolley. The trolley collided with the stone steps of the Tower, and ran between two of the buttresses and a lamp-post, where it became wedged, but no damage was done. The affair created considerable sensation in the High Street as it appeared a serious accident was imminent

1898 01 26
The Surveyor of Newmarket Urban District Council called attention to the fact that an old horse, belonging to the Council, was incapacitated for work, owing to a tumour having formed on its shoulder, he asked for instructions as to what should be done with the animal. Mr Cattrall said if the tumour were removed it would be several months before it would be fit to work again. He moved that the animal be shot as it would not be worth their while to keep it. Mr Westrope said the horse might be able to do light work on a farm. He thought they might sell the animal for a few pounds. It was agreed to examine the horse and decide what should be done with it
Peed & Waterworks Co

Haverhill water, p4 *

1898 01 26 c
Cambridgeshire County Council Road and Bridges Committee reported that had received an application from Toft that the Council should support a petition to the London and North Western Railway Company to place a station or siding at Toft or Kingston Bridge. They were of the opinion that such a station would greatly benefit several villages now four or six miles distance from a railway station and would be of advantage to Caxton R.D.C. in obtaining road material. They therefore recommend the petition be supported

1898 01 27
Messrs Wright and Scruby offered for sale by auction the freehold, fully-licenced public house in Cottenham known as the "Jolly Waterman" with stud build cottage. Price £575. In Lt Wilbraham - freehold beer house known as "The Hole in the Wall", also two cottages, large back garden and orchard. Price £450

Telephone wires, p3

1898 01 28
The Wicken carrier was charged with cruelty to a mare by working it while in an unfit state. Inspector Bartholomew, R.S.P.C.A., said he noticed the defendant at the top of Fore Hill, Ely. He was driving a bay mare in a carrier's cart. When three parts up the hill he stopped, and before he got to the top of the hill he stopped again. When he got to the top he hailed him and he stopped, and the animal stretched, put both legs out, hung his head and appeared exhausted. The animal was in a wretchedly poor condition. He called Mr Thomas Runciman, vet, of Ely who said he found the mare aged and rather poor and small. He, however, did not think the animal was in an unfit state to work. Magistrates dismissed the case

Newmarket court – fog, p3 *

1898 01 28 c
Somersham Pig Club and Hearts of Oak Medical Agency held their annual dinner. Dr Lees remarked he was somewhat puzzled to know where and why the two clubs should be connected that evening. After thinking it over it occurred to him that the oak produced acorns and that pigs were very fond of these. He supposed that those arranging this matter considered that by turning the Pig Club into the Hearts of Oak all would have a good feed

February 1898 CDN

1898 02 02
A report to Cambridge Guardians showed that in some cases foster parents had neglected their duty towards the children entrusted to their care, especially in regard to not keeping them clean, not mending or renewing their clothes or not providing them with proper sleeping rooms. Such neglect could only be discovered by frequent visits made to the home and members of the Ladies' Boarding-Out Committee had not been instructed in those methods and there was good reason for concluding that no serious neglect of duty on the part of foster parents would in future remain undetected
Haverhill solicitor failure – Vincent, p3

1898 02 03
The wind howled round the exterior of the Urban District Council offices at Chesterton last night in wild and fitful fury, shaking the windows, and making a big noise generally. In justice to the elements, it is only fair to say that a similar state of things prevailed within, and for a time the "wind" of the interior quite drowned the tumult of the exterior

1898 02 03
Messrs Grain. Moyes and Wisbey attended at the Lion Hotel and offered for sale by auction the well-known freehold inn, The Green Man, Trumpington, with yard, stabling and outbuildings, pleasure and kitchen gardens and a paddock, the whole having an area of about 3 acres. Bidding commenced at £2,000 and quickly reached £3,100, at which price the property was declared sold 1898
Peed's possessions melted down, p2 *

De Frevillle right of way p3 *
Professor of Physic on manholes, p4 *

1898 02 04
St Neots murder trial, p3

1898 02 05
Interesting to cyclists, p2
GER employers – buildings, p2 *
Essex measuring, p3 *

1888 02 05 c
Chesterton UDC discussed an ancient right of way known as Little Lane, leading from Chesterton Road to the back of Mr Foster's boathouse. It had been in existence as long as the oldest man in Chesterton could remember and there had been no obstruction of any kind. Now it had been blocked by the erection of a fence by a member of the Council

1898 02 07
Cycle traders of Cambridge have put on one side petty jealousy, and uniting under the title of the Cambridge City Traders' Association have prepared an exhibition in the Corn Exchange. Every description of cycle is here, from the child's small machine and the slim one of the fair sex to the stout roadster of the hardy, touring, record-making male. The latest novelties find a place, and motor cycles and tricycles tempt those to whom ease and novelty are more than exercise. In this connection we may mention that it is proposed to have a motor car running during the week about the town in connection with the show. Special railway facilities have been granted and the exhibition should be an immense success. To all we would say "Go", whether a wheeler or not.
Death W.F. Moulton, p3

1898 02 09
Cycle exhibits, p3 *

1898 02 10
Horse club formed, p2 *
Advertising novelty – p2 *

1898 02 11
Working Men's' dinner – p3 *
Cycle show last day photographed by Sidney Smee – p3*
Theft from Stearn, photo by servant, p3

1898 02 12
A bevy of undergraduates walked into the office of the Cambridge Daily News and offered the manuscript of a most alarming anarchist outrage upon the Dean of Pembroke College. The report submitted was of the discovery of a bomb upon the doorstep of the Dean, with much picturesque description. The contribution was promptly "declined with thanks". Late that evening a member of our reporting staff received telegraphic instructions from a popular London morning paper, showing the perpetrators of the joke, having failed at this office had "tried their luck" elsewhere

Clara Parish of Stretham wins butter-making prize, Ipswich # Stretham

1898 02 14
After a considerable period of immunity from serious fire outbreak, Cambridge was visited with a fire which, but for the prompt measures taken for its suppression, must have caused widespread destruction of property in the vicinity. The conflagration occurred at Mr Varty's cycle stores in Bridge Street. The cause is supposed to have been a large lamp which was hanging up in the shop falling to the floor and igniting. The building is a very old one and contains an enormous amount of timber and this, upon being seized by the flames, burnt rapidly and fiercely. A large number of bottles of lubricating and lamp oils in stock added to the conflagration. Some 60 bicycles which were stored at the back of the house, belonging chiefly to University men, were rescued, together with some horses stabled in a shed at the side of the house # c.26.485 # c.34.7

Bishop Selwyn dies, p2
Pembroke anarchist, p4

1898 02 15
Peed tracked to USA, p2

1898 02 16
Sunlight soap exhibition Corn Exchange, p2 *
Pembroke outrage, p3
Haslingfield vicar funeral, p3
Cambridge Year Book just issued, p3

1898 02 17
Cambridge market stalls – buy new, p3 *

1898 02 18
Palmer Clarke to photo children purchase album, p2 # c.65.5

1898 02 19
Chief constable report, p3 *
Cottenham steeple chase, p3 *

1898 02 21
Ructions at Emmanuel college, p3 *

1898 02 22
Addenbrooke's Hospital steam laundry, p2 *

Romsey Recreation Ground wanted, p3 *
Rail accident to rag and bone man, Sutton, p3 *
Bus and tram assault, p3 *

1898 02 23
Charity Organisation Society report, p3 *

1898 02 28
Late arrivals at the theatre, p2 *

March 1898 CDN

1898 03 01
Driving on footpath, p2 *

1898 03 02
Tram – consider electric tram, p2 *
P. Salmon, photographer on his international tour, p3 # c.65.5

1898 03 03
Cambridge University Medical School, p2

1898 03 04
Newnham Croft sewage, p2 *
Si Ivian in London, p3
Ramsey Methodist church, p3 *
Pierrot concert, p3

1898 03 08
Clinging to express, p3 *
Newmarket petition GER, p3 *

1898 03 09
Newmarket proposed railway, p3 *
Reeve's cycle riding school, p4

1898 03 12
Cross country championship, p3 *
Histon tradesman death, p4

1898 03 14
Teachers meeting, p2
Jesus college fire in rooms of undergraduate in third court. Room was filled with valuable furniture and large amount of unique china and pictures. The whole staircase will have to be practically rebuilt and what not damaged by fire was ruined by water # c.34.75 # c.44.5

1898 03 15
The annual Tea of the Friends Adult School was held in Sturton Town Hall, Cambridge. The objects of the school are to promote self-help, brotherly kindness, and a practical Christian life. They had 167 members on the books, 114 at Nelson Street, 31 at River Lane, and 22 at Swavesey, with an average attendance of 117 in the three schools on Sunday mornings for the year. It was difficult to get much interest manifested in the intellectual pursuits by labouring men at the end of a day's work, although the friends of the school believed if they made efforts in this direction they would find it a real relaxation. It was much hoped that this way of employing leisure, so much more sensible and profitable than the absolute waste of time in comic singing and other senseless amusement in vogue in some of the young people's guilds, would become more common among them. # c.36.7

1898 03 16
A fire broke out in the evening upon premises at the back of the Chequers inn and adjoining the large wood stores of Mr Thomas Cox, of Gamlingay. A large crowd soon assembled in the street and by the help of ladders, pails of water were thrown down the eaves of the house to keep the blaze from spreading. Meanwhile from the street the same work was carried on, and a large butt of water emptied of its contents. On the opposite side of the road the inhabitants poured water upon their thatched cottages to save them from flying sparks. A messenger was hurriedly dispatched for the Potton fire brigade, who arrived very promptly, but there was no occasion for them to get the engine to work. Luckily there was no wind, and the barns were old and soddened, or there must have been a disastrous blaze in the immediate neighbourhood. One of the greatest constituencies that visiting fire brigades have to contend with, is a lack of water, and is a plan could be found whereby the large pond known as The Pits could be kept full, the first steps towards avoiding tremendous blazes would be made.
Permanent Benefit Building Society, p3 *
Cambridge Traders Association, p2

1898 03 17
At Cambridge town council Mr Negus proposed that they should make inquiries as to suitable sites for a recreation ground in Romsey Town. He was anxious that this should be done before the land was all cut up into small plots, a little kindness and consideration to Romsey would tend to do away with any friction which might have existed in the past. Mr Swann seconded. If the ground was not so much wanted now, it would be in the future, as the land was rapidly bought up. Now was the time the matter should be dealt with for the benefit of future generations. Mr Ward supported. There were many sites they might have, some expensive and some less so, but in a few years the price would increase. When they saw the swarms of children turned out there, and with no playground except in the dangerous streets, he thought they would decide that they could with perfect safety refer it to the Committee.

1898 03 18
Fred Richardson, foreman of the second gangs of lighters belonging to Messrs Brown and Goodman, met with a serious accident which ultimately proved fatal. It appears one of the lighters ran aground at Littleport on the same side as the horse. To get the boat off again block and tackle were fixed on the opposite bank, and the rope from the boat put through the galley to the horse. The rope got entangled around the man's neck, quite crushing the windpipe, and the poor fellow was taken more dead than alive up to the Globe Inn, Littleport where an operation was resorted to. We regret to learn that Mr Richardson died at three o'clock. The unfortunate victim was conscious when his friends visited him yesterday # c.26.3
Firing pistol, New Square

1898 03 19
Sale pubs, p3
Typhoid, Cambridge p3 *

1898 03 21
A fire of an alarming character broke out in Fowlmere in the small hours. About 10 minutes to one P.C. Housden noticed flames issuing from an unoccupied thatched cottage, the centre one of three, in the High Street, the property of Mr C. Papworth, of the Chequers inn. He promptly alarmed the inhabitants and the fire brigade, and others with the parish fire engine were soon on the spot. Mr J T Jackson brought his fire engine to the scene, and eventually the fire was got under, after destroying the cottages and shed. The damage is very considerable.

Lecture on manure, p3
Suicide auctioneer, Over, p3

1898 03 22
Wesleyan Home Missions, p2
Inquest Littleport barge, p3 *
Milkman's misdoings, p3 *

1898 03 24
Chesterton telegraph poles, p3
Duxford parish meeting, p3
Co-operation – storms, p3

1898 03 25
Ely mischievous boys, p4

1898 03 26
Boat race, p3 *

1898 03 28
Ambulance competition, p3
Ornamental pillars, p3 *
Addenbrooke's Hospital laundry, p3 *

1898 03 30

Newnham Croft stories, p3 *

1898 03 31
Mr William Howlett, of Newmarket, has recently recorded the capture of several pole cats (an animal asserted to be almost extinct) in the fen district. No doubt the fens are the last stronghold of this animal. He says they exist largely upon eels and frogs in the "dykes", but when these are sealed by frost, they go up to the farmsteads, and cause great loss among the poultry.

April 1898 CDN

1898 04 01
Mr Cecil Johnstone, who has been postmaster of St Ives for so many years, has been promoted to the postmaster of Wellingborough. Mr Johnstone has been postmaster for 15 years, and succeeded his father, who held the office for 30 years. Mr Johnstone's departure is regretted by all St Ives, and especially by the employees at the Post Office.

1898 04 02
Sir - the new bridge at Abbey Road Cambridge has become a supreme necessity. Everyone admits it now. Boats and plants have had their day, and should be done away with. Omnibuses of first class order are unable to carry people to most convenient places, and at low prices, for the want of another bridge to bring them into Cambridge. What enormous advantages to both Chesterton and Cambridge another bridge at this spot holds out. The great increase in traffic calls loudly for another bridge. The people near the Abbey again insisted upon another bridge but the Cambridge Rip Van Winkles sleep on, oblivious of anything. Procrastination is the great curse of Cambridge, and Chesterton should take warning by keeping abreast with the requirements of this important suburb – Chestertonian Technical education in villages, p2 *

1898 04 02 c
Newmarket cycle club spent a very enjoyable evening at the Crown Hotel, at their annual dinner. Mr Aldridge said the club had been very successful in the past, and he hoped it would have a more successful future. He expressed the hope that some of the younger members would take up racing. It was of no use arranging club runs if the members did not turn out to take part of them. The opening run of the season would be to Clayhithe and he hoped to see a good muster. They now had five ladies in the club, and he should like to see the number increased to 50. At Clayhithe a club house would be open for the use of the members during the season

1898 04 04
About a thousand people assembled on the Quay, St Ives, to witness the public baptism of two young women in the river Ouse. One of the oldest and best-known chapels in the town is the Crown Yard Baptist chapel. The congregation attending there pin their faith to immersion in baptism. Unlike most chapels of the same persuasion, they have not their place of worship fitted up for this form of baptism; hence the adjournment to the river. The members of the congregation made their way to the river side, a good many of them being permitted to go inside the railings surrounding the Masonic Temple, from which a good view of the baptism was obtained. They found a large concourse of people assembled, the bridge itself was crowded with people; out of the windows protruding heads viewed the scene while on the other side of the stream a good many people had collected.

Ouse navigation, p3
Sausage factory, p3

1898 04 05
P.R. Salmon on Egypt, p2 # c.65.5

1898 04 06
Ditton Plough, p3

1898 04 07
A shepherd named William Facer, of Houghton, has had a remarkable experience in St Ives this week. On Monday, like a good many more in this neighbourhood, he attended St Ives market. On Tuesday morning he discovered he had lost two £5 notes. He enquired at different places if the precious bits of paper had been seen. Among the places visited was Mr Hewson's, the pork butcher in Merryland. On Tuesday a boy swept out the shop. He picked up the bits of paper about the floor, and was about to light the fire with them, when his attention was attracted to two pieces by their crispness. He smoothed out the crumpled bits of paper and loh they were two £5 notes. The note must have lain on the floor a while scores of people went in and out and did not see them. Facer may thank his stars the notes were found by good honest folk, and also that they were not burnt without being noticed Wisbech Union brewery, p3

1898 04 07
On Wednesday afternoon a servant at Mrs Emma Hagger's farm at Kingston, saw that the roof of the barn was well alight and at once gave the alarm. Ready help was given, but the farm buildings and almost everything but the livestock was lost. It is supposed that the outbreak was caused by a spark from a passing traction engine upon the dry roof of the barn. Such an engine passed about five minutes before the alarm was given

1898 04 09
Dr D Owen Mead said he had been Medical Officer of Health for the Newmarket Urban District Council for 12 years, and that during that time the drainage had been faulty. There had been frequent complaints made, and illness had been caused in the town by the defective drainage. The present main drain from Wellington Street to the sewage farm gave a great deal of trouble and the sewers along Lower Station Road were faulty. The population had increased considerably near the sewage farm, and complaints had been made with regard to the "aroma" arising therefrom. A voice: "Just a little bit sniffy (laughter)

1898 04 09
Bedwell Hey study – Henry Bultitaft, p4 # Stretham

1898 04 11
At the vestry meeting of St Paul's church, Cambridge the chairman said that every Sunday morning their quiet communion service was greatly disturbed by the Roman Catholic Church bells. When they first started they hoped they would get used to them, but, as they continued to disturb them he took the opportunity of speaking to the Roman Catholic priest, and he said he would consult his congregation. But for a long time he could get no response, but afterwards he replied that the St Paul's bells rang for five minutes before eight o'clock, and disturbed the Roman Catholic service. The speaker had given orders that St Paul's bell should be wrung for half a minute to warn the people, and half a minute when the service was to commence, and expressed a hope that the Roman Catholic priest would see his way to having his rung for a short time only. This he refused to do, and so every Sunday morning half the St Paul's quiet service was disturbed by the ringing of the Roman Catholic bells. Mr Catling also spoke of the noisy bells of the Catholic Church, and the disturbance caused to those living around

1898 04 13
Mr Dixon said that Mill Road cemetery was always locked up on Sundays, because, if not, swarms of little children rampaged about over the graves; and while he was conducting a funeral it was very annoying to have some little urchins come up and say, "Oh, my! Ain't that a little coffin!" The children jumped about over the graves, while labourers going to work made the cemetery a thoroughfare. The matter was giving the committee a great deal of trouble.

Holy Trinity renovation of interior and enlarged electric lighting

1898 04 14

A man was charged with stealing one pair of stockings, valued at 9d, the property of the Cambridge Guardians. Lazarus Marsh, detective, said that that morning he saw prisoner leave the workhouse with his wife. Witness had suspicion, and took him back to the waiting room, where he searched him, and in a tin he found a pair of socks, which the prisoner said were his own. Prisoner was at that time wearing a pair of stockings, and underneath them a pair of black stockings. The master identified them as being Workhouse property. The tops where they were marked had been cut off. The magistrate were not satisfied that the evidence was sufficient and the prisoner was discharged
Romsey people park – plan, p3

1898 04 15
Chesterton Guardians, p3
Good Friday, p3

1898 04 16
Chesterton school was crowded to hear the details of the vicar's offer respecting the Old Town Close. Seldom have we seen such a unanimous gathering or a more enthusiastic one. The meeting had been called concerning the bit of land on the other side of the school. The chairman declared that it had been a public piece of ground all his life, his youthful play having been enjoyed there over half a century ago. For the land to be taken away like it had been he could not understand. Now it was to be turned into a Nursery garden, and cries of "Shame" shook the cobwebs in the corner of the roofs. The Vicar said he should like to leave something in the parish as a remembrance of him, and had come to the conclusion that nothing could be better than handing over this ground to the managers of the school for the benefit of the children. He was quite sure the land would be a blessing to them for many years to come. (Cheers)

1898 04 18
Pub sales, p2
Varsity cricket ground, p2

1898 04 19
James Stendall and Co.Ltd. The preservation of local industries is of moment to all who have the welfare of Cambridge at heart. The University town can boast of but few factories, and it is with pleasure that we see the above firm has been formed into a company, with ample premises and up to date machinery. We see no reason why the company should not develop into a large and profitable business concern, according employment for many hands # c.27.1
Omnibus driver p2 *

1898 04 20
Sir - I have read with amusement the report which appeared in the Cambridge Daily News. Royston football players have not the slightest objection to their play being criticised, but they do expect that those to play the part of critic should, at least, show that they possess an elementary knowledge of the game, and should at any rate give an accurate account of the game. The obvious conclusion is that the writer of the report fully expected the smart team from Cambridge (the Swifts), with two or three county men, to make rings around the Roystonians and was very chagrined when he found the homesters more than held their own. Let us hope your correspondents will endeavour to educate himself in the rudiments of the game and you will try to be fair to both sides, and show in his report something of that sportsmanlike attitude that he wishes to see in others – R.S. Trudgett
GER Servants & parish councils
Newmarket electric lighting, p3 *
Grantchester Green Man, p3 *

1898 04 21
Dodging the dredger, p3 *

1898 04 22

Horseheath ditch, p3
Royston blight, p3
Royston bike accident, p3
Saffron Walden cycle club, p4 *

1898 04 24
Abbey Road bridge, p2

1898 04 25
The third meeting of the Eastern District Tactical Society was held at Newmarket and orders issued for an exercise in the open country. The general idea was that a Western army was advancing from Cambridge with the object of driving an Eastern army out of Bury St Edmunds. This gave commanders of regiments some useful experience in the organisation of columns of march, some of the troops being supposed to be located at Cambridge, and others around Newmarket. On Thursday the central position was Cheveley, and the outpost were formed along the line, Limekilns, Cheveley, Kirtling. The members of the Society were engaged in working out the dispositions, and the exercises concluded with some general remarks on the action supposed to follow # c.45.4
Suffolk farmer, p3 *

1898 04 26
Newmarket sewage, p3

1898 04 27
A Clavering labourer was charged with stealing a turkey's egg, value one shilling, the property of Lydia Harritt. She said she knew that a turkey had an egg in the nest in the hedgerows beside the lane. Fifteen minutes later she went to the nest and found the egg gone. She gave information to P.C. Drew, who subsequently bought her an egg which corresponded with others the same turkey had laid. Sofia Smith stated she saw defendant go to the gap in the hedge, he was gone several minutes. Defendant said he took the egg, but not from Mrs Harritt: it came from the gutter in Walter Bailey's field. He was fined two shillings, or seven days in jail
Tom Hayward, p2 *

1898 04 28
Property sale, p2 *

May 1898 CDN & CWN

1898 05 05
Cottenham parish council considered a request from the Milton parish council asking them to join in petitioning the County Council to take such steps as might seem fit for the purpose of constructing a light railway from the crossing on the Milton Road to Cottenham via Landbeach. After discussing the question it was agreed that the Milton route would be best for passenger traffic to Cambridge. Therefore it was agreed to support the petition

1898 05 06
Stapleford boasts of having been more frequently visited by outbreaks of fire than almost any other village in the county, and to enumerate those of a more or less disastrous nature that have taken place in the near vicinity during the last half century would be a tedious task. During that time over half a dozen farmsteads have been completely burnt down, innumerable stack fires have expanded their short-lived vigour, and several cottages have ascended to the clouds in smoke. And few of the present inhabitants do not remember the conflagration at Galls rope factory when the amount of damage was assessed at thousands. Yet they have no fire engine, nor have they fear for the morrow, what it may bring forth

1898 05 06
At Cambridge Corn Exchange there took place an assault-at-arms, in which the many well known exponents of the art of self-defence and kindred sports took part. One of the most interesting events was the wrestling between the champion of Bulgaria and the middleweight champion of England. Now and again one of the combatants would hurl his opponent to the ground with platform shaking force, and time after time the thrown one would come up to the scratch smiling, and more wonderful still, with unbroken bones. The audience dispersed well satisfied with the entertainment and the entertainers.

1898 05 06
About quarter past four am P.C. Thomas Leeds, being on duty in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, noticed a smell as of something burning and saw a volume of smoke issuing from the house of Thomas More, bricklayer and small shopkeeper. By dint of hammering on the door, shouting, and blowing his whistle, he succeeded in rousing the inmates to a sense of their danger. Mrs More was very nervous about being passed through the window, and her husband was almost obliged to force her out. Meanwhile, other policemen, having heard the whistling, had hurried to the scene, and the alarm was sent to the fire station from the alarm post in Fitzroy Street. In less than ten minutes the men were on the spot with the hose and a steady jet of water directed on to the flames.

E.T. Hooley particulars, p2
Lighting vehicles, p3
Old folks shoes,p5
F.W. Lawrence, cycle manufacturer, p5
Italians in trouble, p5
Cycling – Dunlop tyre, p6
Burwell Congregational church presentation, p8 *
Bottisham police weighing machine, p8
Caxton Guardians railway letter, p8 *
Cottenham parish council light railway, p8 *
Murderous assault, Huntingdon workhouse, p6 *

1898 05 07
Visit to Emmaus, p2

1898 05 09
New Theatre undergraduates, p2 *

1898 05 09 c
The pretty and interesting ceremony of electing and enthroning a May Queen was observed at the Higher Grade School, Eden Street. Teachers and girls had been busy transforming their room into a perfect garden of flowers, and the Royal dais, covered with a green carpet. The retiring Queen (Ethel Norman) having robed and put on a crown of pansies she ascended the throne and abdicated at the end of a very happy reign. May Rossendale was elected the new Queen by a large majority and to the strains of a stately march she appeared, preceded by her bodyguard bearing garlands of flowers with which they made a triumphal arch for her May Majesty's procession.

1898 05 09
St Bene't's Church, Cambridge, reopened for public service with an improved organ and newly elected organ chamber, beside several minor renovations in the decoration of the interior of the building. Archdeacon Emery said that the condition of the Church in 1849, when he was ordained Deacon, with its organ Gallery at the West End, and those high pews in the nave, and green baized pews in the Chancel was then far different to what it was now. Since that time the South aisle had been erected, the West End and Tower opened and restored, the Chancel and church generally restored and seated in such a manner that all the worshippers could feel they formed one family of God.

1898 05 09
Still the merry burglar enjoys his nocturnal pleasantries in Cambridge. Instead of going to the seaside for "Saturday to Monday", the latest investigators prefer a weekend in the clothing and spirit establishments of Dale brothers, Petty Cury, where they may satisfy alike their pockets, their interiors, and their sartorial fancy. Both the outfitting establishment and the wine and spirit store were left in their usual security on Saturday night, due attention having been paid to doors, windows, etc. Therefore the enterprising gents sometime between closing time on Saturday and daylight on Monday made their careful way down the back passage from Alexander Street and effected an entrance to the clothing establishment from the rear. 1

1898 05 10
Huntingdon was thrown into a great state of excitement, when it was became known that a murderous assault had been committed on an inmate of the workhouse known as "Tunkey" by another inmate alias "Curly". It appears that after dinner the men adjourned to the wood shop for the purpose of smoking their pipes when all of a sudden Curly seized an axe and dealt Tunkey a terrible blow on the head sending him to the ground. The poor old men scampered away to acquit the porter, and in the meantime the assailant delivered other deadly blows upon the unfortunate man's skull. Curly then escaped from the back of the premises, and, crossing the common, was last seen by some boys making his way up Oxmire Lane

Saffron Walden child drowned
St Ives drunk, *
Rendlesham Hall fire
Roman Catholic hostel
Ouse navigation

1898 05 11
Ratepayers association formed, p2
Ugley suicide, p3 *
Stansted Hall play, p3 *

1898 05 11 c
A tramp was charged with sleeping in an outhouse without visible means of subsistence in Bridge Terrace, Fenstanton. He had sold his boots for fourpence at the Dolphin, and bought beer and bread and cheese with the money. The bench sentenced him to seven days hard labour. The prisoner thanked the magistrates and said when he came out he hoped they would give him a new suit of clothes, and then he would go to Liverpool

1898 05 11
Fair St, Cambridge was the scene of an unpleasant and dangerous accident. A Hansom cab add belonging to Mr Andrews, of Salmon Lane, was on its way to the stable when the horse unaccountably bolted. The animal ran full tilt into the window of a small grocer shop, kept by Mr Cox. Then ensued a melee, in which the window with its frame were utterly demolished. A good deal of stock was damaged, and several articles lying about were smashed. The course kicked wildly, and bled to a dangerous extent from a multitude of cuts inflicted by broken glass and debris.

1898 05 12
St Ives explosion, p3 *

1898 05 12
A meeting was held at Trinity College at which several prominent ladies and gentlemen interested in the recreation of factory girls were present. Mrs Tennant gave an interesting description of the average factory girl's life. For the most part it was a joyless monotony of toil, their weary day often being followed by a worse night. She knew many girls whose whole life was like this, they are employed some 10 or 12 hours each day. By means of this society arrangements are made with cottagers in the country so that these tired and weary girls are enabled to breathe the fresh air and have a glimpse of the country

1898 05 13
A terrific explosion occurred at the shop of Mr Ruston, ironmonger, St Ives. The centre part of the warehouse was reduced to ruins, the front windows of the shop blown out, and great damage done to the surrounding buildings. Two assistants are missing, and it is supposed they are buried amidst the ruins of the warehouse. The windows of the shops across the street are also blown in. Messrs Foster's bank on the side nearest Mr Ruston's has every window broken. Even two side windows of the Corn Exchange, where a dog show is being held, are broken. No one knows yet how the explosion was caused, but it is bought one of the men must have taken a light to the gunpowder safe.

Life boat launched, p3 *
CURV inspection, p3
Ashwell congregational chapel organ reopens, p4

1898 05 14
Undergraduate conduct complaint, p2
St Ives explosion inquest, p3

1898 05 16
St Matthews's recreation ground
Hobble-de-hoys of University, p3
NUT meeting, p3
Italian organ grinder, p3 *

1898 05 17
It seems to be the serious avocation of some very fantastic young undergraduates to hound on their dogs to the destruction of such inoffensive animals as cats. It was only at the end of last term that a cat was done to death on that the spot where the dogs today, added one to the probably large number of their victims. If the Varsity authorities permit us to keep dogs, they should endeavour to prevent the abuse of that privilege - Lover of animals

1898 05 18
Proceedings were certainly lively at a large meeting of the electors of Exning convened by the Newmarket Urban District Council on the question of obtaining a Charter of incorporation for Newmarket urban district, which includes the village of Exning. The chairman explained that the subject for consideration was whether the Newmarket districts should or should not be made a borough. Mr Westhorpe sketched the advantages which would result. Mr Cattrall said the town was in a state of a bankruptcy
'Corduroy' letter, p3 *

1898 05 18 c
Two young men, the victims of the awful explosion at St Ives, were buried were buried on Sunday afternoon. One gentleman says he stood at the cemetery gates and counted 1,750 persons enter. People flocked in from all the villages around, and it is questionable if such a large number has attended a funeral in the down before. This shows how the lamentable affair has stirred the heart of the people of the town. Both were members of the Wesleyan Sunday's School, and the distressed parents are greatly comforted in the thought that they were such good-living lads

1898 05 19
Cambridge is not excepted from the gloom which Mr Gladstone's death has cast over the kingdom. All over the town are to be seen tributes to his memory in the form of flags at half-mast. The Cambridge and County Liberal Club is conspicuous for the black boards across its lower windows.

The Guildhall has mounted the Royal standard, and at the union the same flag is hoisted at half-mast. The Union Jack hangs in the wind outside the Conservative Club - a graceful tribute to a statesman, too whom everyone, of whatever political views, has accorded the palm as being the greatest man of modern times.

1898 05 19
Cambridge town council was requested to consider permitting a cabmen's shelter to be placed on the Market Hill. Mr Darwin said that he received a petition asking for the provision of some place for them to warm themselves during the cold months in some central position in the town. At present there was only one cabmen's shelter in the town and that was very widely used. If they provided another the public would gain some advantage because the cabmen, instead of going to the public houses, as they now did, would go to the shelter. The only possible harm it would do was that perhaps it would make the neighbouring public houses sell less beer

1898 05 19
Kilner v Taylor: action by Kilner brothers, proprietor of Cambridge Daily News since death of their father, to restrain William Farrow Taylor, former manager of the paper, from trespassing upon the office and interfering with the business. They had given Taylor notice in lieu of salary. Taylor said had agreement with Dr Kilner to be co-proprietor. He had been carrying on business as printer and publisher of 'The Free Lance' newspaper at Bury and proposed to start CDN. Kilner had advanced him the money. This should be treated as mortgage and repaid. c.04

1898 05 22
Sir - I was dining last night with a friend in a well-known restaurant in Cambridge. Soon after we had commenced dinner, a party of four so-called gentlemen entered, and it was apparent that they had already been drinking freely. The first incident was an impromptu wrestling match between the ringleader and another of his party. Soon they began to throw bread and other missiles about and my friend and myself were struck by their badly directed efforts. In fact, it became necessary for us to leave the place before we had finished our dinner, so intolerable were the annoyances which we received from these "bloods". I think such conduct deserves exposure in your columns. - Surprised

1898 05 22 c
John Hitchcock, ginger beer maker, in the employ of Mr Beck, chemist, journeyed to Sawtry and when delivering a case of ginger beer, one of the bottles exploded severely injuring one of his eyes and face. It is feared the sight of this eye is entirely lost, but hopes are entertained the other may be preserved

1898 05 24
Mr H. D. Taylor, of Haverhill has had the misfortune to lose a useful carthorse. It appears that he had dispatched the horse in charge of a man to do some ploughing in a field near to Withersfield road. In order to reach the field a temporary bridge spanning a watercourse had to be crossed. While so during the horse, which was a young one, shied and fell off the bridge, a distance of about 12 feet, breaking its back. The poor animal was at once killed. We understand this makes two horses and tree foals Mr Taylor has lost within the last five weeks.

1898 05 25
Huntingdon accident mail cart, p2 *

1898 05 26
Newmarket sale, p2

1898 05 27
Ely May fair attracted crowds from all the fens round. Ely was crowded, and foot traffic on High street and round the market was brought almost to a standstill. At the business fair there was a capital show of carthorses but very few purchasers. Inferior horses were very slow trade, and this may apply to cattle of which there was but a small supply, and few purchasers. The pleasure fair, although smaller than usual, was crowded all day, and the stall keepers will have no cause to grumble Swavesey men in USA, p3 *

Ald Bond, p4 *

1898 05 28
Seven labourers were summoned for “tin kettling in Great Shelford. PC Chater said they were banging tins and trays, and such things, as well as shouting and yelling at a lady. Two of them had pails half full of tar which they used for burning the woman in effigy. This entertainment continued for about two hours. The woman said: "My husband won't part with his money, and that's why I left him.” The magistrate: "What is your husband's name?" - "I don't know what his name is. I never took the trouble to remember his nasty name”. Defendants were fined 2s.6d each. # c.39

1898 05 28
There was but little crush as the stream of mourners poured from all quarters of the town into Great St Mary's Church for the Memorial Service to Mr Gladstone. A subdued calm seem to fall like a veil over the centre of Cambridge as the bell tolled forth its tail of loss to the nation, and a hush, as it were, of the chamber of death seemed even to spread itself over the busy market place. Quietly the people filed into the Church and stepped into the first empty pew; none stopping to haggle for a seat. Even as the doors were being closed, as the last bars of the echoing National Anthem waned to science, latecomers yet found room in one or other of the galleries, and no one was turned from the Church # c.02

1898 05 30
Gladstone memorial, p3 *
Women’s life, p2

1898 05 31
St Ives was all alive on the occasion of the Whitsuntide fair. The show of horses in East Street and the surrounding streets was fully up to the average, and many of them were very fine animals. The stables in the town were crowded with horses and the influx of dealers was great. Many London dealers went the rounds of the stables on Sunday and completed their purchases on Monday morning, so that a large number of the best of the animals were not shown in the fair at all. This is the first day of the reopening of the store pig market, but we believe the supply was not a large one. There are scarcely any shows, and only a few swings and sweet stalls. The attendance of people was large Huntingdon mail cart, p3

June 1898 CDN

1898 06 01
The red tape has all but unrolled, and the Chesterton playground is to be redeemed. In November the school children, who number some 500, and other children, will once more be allowed to sport on the "Old Town Close". A meeting to acquaint the people of Chesterton with the present condition of affairs in the matter was held last night. The chairman who was received with tumultuous stamping, said they had done their best to bring the matter to a crisis as quickly as possible and had made up their minds that they would make a forcible entry into the ground, would make a gap in the fence at each end, and open the field for cricket or football. But a benefactor had stepped in and offered to buy the land and give it back to the villagers. # c.32.3

1898 06 01
Among Huntingdon folk the prevailing topic is the St Neots poisoning case, all interest being centred in it, save and except when the judges attendants, in their rich attire, momentarily withdraw the attention of the admiring public to their shapely calves. Inside the court Superintendent Copping did his best to squeeze as many bona fide pressmen into the space as possible, and to reject those who laid claim to be knights of the quill without satisfactorily proving it. Yesterday was the opening day and many local celebrities were present. The judge said the only important case was that of Walter Horsford who was committed for the murder of Annie Holmes at St Neots

1898 06 02
Chesterton manholes, p2
Cocoa, p4 8

1898 06 02 c
At Ely Urban District Council meeting Mr Wycherley asked why one of their employees should be employed in cleaning windows at the Old Post Office in the council's hours. The chairman remarked the surveyor must be careful in future, and not employ the council's employees in the council's time upon such work. Work was reported to have been done at the Fore Hill concrete paths, also asphalting the Palace Green. The surveyor reported that 22 tons of broken granite had been received from the Ely workhouse and was most satisfactory. The window blinds of the various shops were satisfactory with a few exceptions, and the Clerk was directed to write to certain parties who have not yet conformed to the regulations required

1898 06 03
The Cambridge YWCA, having found its old quarters growing too small and inadequate to its requirements has obtained Geneva House, Regent Street, and there established its head-quarters. Yesterday a meeting was convened at which the Vice Chancellor of the university presided and spoke. He said that the new premises were in every way more suited to the needs of the Association. In their new house the windows of the back rooms, which he fancied would be those most used by the young women, overlooked his garden, and he was unable to disabuse himself of an idea they would keep an eye on him. The Master of Trinity then rose. He said he had known nothing of the removal, and had been ignorant of the nature of the gathering he was to address. He did not like to trust his eyes, which were not of the best. He had never in all his experience known an educational establishment change its quarters without bettering itself # c.37

1898 06 03 c
As a horse attached to a 2-wheeled trap, and driven by a butcher boy, containing four fat pigs, belonging to Mr Clarke, Butcher, of Kneesworth Street, was proceeding down High street, Royston, a heavy peal of thunder caused the horse to come to almost a sudden standstill, thereby breaking both the shafts off close to the front board. The animal commenced to kick, and freeing itself from the trap, dashed down the street at a terrific rate, but fortunately did not come in to collision with any other vehicle, the streets at the time of the accident been quite clear of foot pedestrians and vehicles. The body of the trap containing the pigs pitched backwards and precipitated the driver on the back of his head into the road. The pigs were freed from their peculiar predicament by the cutting of the net which covered them.

1898 06 06
Today we gathered in the little court of Huntingdon, which has become so familiar to us during the past week, conscious that within a few minutes we should be witness to the last dread incidents of the trial of Walter Horsford, the ruddy young farmer who for the last four days had occupied that corner seat over there in the dock. How the prisoner took the ghastly recital of the death struggle of Mrs Annie Holmes could not be seen but to the ordinary hearers the narration of the horrible incidents was sufficiently fearsome. After 25 minutes the twelve good men and true returned and the Foreman rose and with a somewhat broken voice replied to the usual question from the Clerk of the court, "Guilty." "Walter Horsford" said the Clerk, "you have been convicted of the crime of wilful murder. What have you to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon you?" A momentary spasm passed over his face, his lower lip quivered as with quavering voice he replied "I have only to say that I am an innocent man."
Dream – EA coal, p2

1898 06 08

E.T. Hooley bankruptcy, p3

1898 06 09
Cambridge town council accepted a design for new police and fire brigade buildings, which it is proposed to erect upon the Spinning House site. If the new station is erected the whole of the existing buildings, which are not conspicuous for their beauty, will be removed, with the exception of the chief constable's house, and the fire station and firemen's quarters will be completely isolated from the police building. A new main entrance will be erected and it is suggested that the present stone gateway to the police station should be removed to the back entrance in Downing place. The only elevation of any architectural pretensions will be the main facade towards St Andrews's street. A copula forming a central feature will serve as a "look-out" in connection with the fire station. The plans include provision for a mortuary. # c.34.7
Telegraph poles, p3 *

1898 06 10
It will be with sincere regret that the inhabitants of the Newmarket and Mildenhall districts will learn of the impending retirement from the West Suffolk police force of Superintendent Samuel Garnham Reeve. During the whole of his career he has been a highly respected and popular officer and has been connected with the force no fewer than 46 years, 15 of which have been spent as superintendent of the Mildenhall Division. His resignation is on account of acute deafness, brought about by rough usage, which he has received at various times in the execution of his duty. He started his career as a police constable in June 1852 and is the oldest police officer in service in the county of Suffolk

1898 06 10
Swavesey had a first class sensation on Monday night. It is not used to such novelties. It appears Swavesey has a widow. Nothing strange about that. But this was a fascinating widow. Nothing remarkable even about that. Her husband is scarcely cold in his newly-made grave before he is superseded. This is the story which bought out the inhabitants in hundreds into the main street to celebrate the widow on Monday evening. From eight o'clock until eleven the rattle of tin cans, the whistling and shouting, hooting and yelling, and a tuning of various other musical and unmusical instruments, filled the air in this usually quiet village. Whether these noisy attentions of the neighbours will do any real good is open to question

1898 06 11
A small fire occurred at the premises of Messrs Thomas Stearn and Son, photographers, at Bridge Street, Cambridge. The conflagration broke out in the darkroom and was probably caused by woodwork becoming overheated by gas. A considerable amount of photographic apparatus was destroyed by the flames, and some of the chemicals exploded with some violence in the heat. About 16 firemen turned out with a hose cart and three reels, causing no little excitement in the neighbourhood, but by the time they arrived on the scene the outbreak had already been extinguished by the inmates, by means of buckets # c.34.75 # c.65.5

1898 06 14
The Cambridge surveyor gave particulars of what the council propose to do to the roads. From Station Road to St Andrew's street it was proposed to lay Australian "Jarrah" hardwood blocks in the whole of the carriageway. These blocks would also be laid between the tramlines. In Corn Exchange Street the paving was now granite, very rough, large setts being used. They had been put down probably 30 or 40 years. It was now proposed to substitute the wood blocks.

1898 06 14
A few evenings ago a young cyclist well known in Broad Street, Ely, was "scorching" along the Stretham Road. It was nearly dark, and he saw in the distance what appeared to him two bicycles abreast, with lights shining brightly. Being adept on the cycle, he thought he would shoot between them, when much to his surprise, and before he could stop his "horse", he found he had collided with a traction engine, much to the damage of the bike.

1898 06 15
We have received a copy of the petition presented to the Home Secretary, praying for the reprieve of Walter Horsford who lies in prison at Cambridge under sentence of death for the murder of Annie Holmes. It says the purchase of strychnine by the condemned man (upon which the prosecution relied) was made in an open manner in Thrapston. The police limited their searches to the chemists of the neighbourhood, from which in all probability a murderer would not secure poison. In any case it seems incredible that the condemned man should have acted so openly, if with a felonious design. Even if he did send the poison it is difficult to believe he did so with the object of killing the deceased woman

1898 06 16
A smoking concert was held under the auspices of the Haverhill Rovers Football Club. Mr Griggs said that throughout the past season the club had afforded much amusement and many a pleasant afternoon to those who witnessed their various games. Unfortunately, the elements had not always been what they deserved, and through that the gate money had undoubtedly fallen off. But it was a pleasure to know that the club had been able to meet their liabilities and had a decent balance at their bankers. Haverhill ought really to be proud of having a team who were able to win a trophy which was so much coveted (the West Suffolk need cup)
Animals on New Square, p3 *

1898 06 17
Unlabelled cab, p3

1898 06 21
Inspector Jordan of the N.S.P.C.C. said he visited a house at Portland Place Cambridge. There he saw six children ranging in age from 12 years down to six months. The children appeared to the very neglected, were filthily dirty, and the three-year-old child had only one garment on although he was lying in front of the fire, suffering from a very bad cold. Each child seemed to have but one ragged garment. The mother was apparently sober, but as dirty and ragged as the children. She was feeding the baby on bread and cold water and said she had no milk. The living room was filthy, and the other room contained one "truckle" bedstead in a loathsome condition. Upstairs there was no furniture. On the table there was a loaf of bread - that was all.
Leaving without notice, p4

1898 06 22
Cottenham broke its own record last night in the matter of enjoyment. At the White Horse Inn there was an exhibition of open expressions and sets of fine teeth. Messrs Lacon and Co Ltd, recently purchased both Preston’s and Apthorpe's breweries and arranged this gathering as a sort of house warming, inviting the firm's tenants and customers of Cottenham, and selecting this particular house because of the very excellent room for the accommodation of the guests. First of all a capital knife-and-fork tea was provided. This was followed by a programme of unusual excellence and Cottenham men, if unsuitable for juries, are a capital audience for appreciation, choruses and laughter.
Resignation Supt Reeve, p4

1898 06 24
Woodhurst was all astir on the occasion of the Church feast. The principal Street was gaily decorated with flags, and in a field close to the Church was a round-about, swings, coconut shying, and sweet stalls which were well patronise. A large number were present from the surrounding villages, and a strong contingent from St Ives who journeyed over in waggonettes, traps, and all sorts of vehicles. Bicyclists were also in strong evidence and a few even tramped the distance.

1898 06 24
At last, but not at length, for only part of it is ready yet, the spot known hitherto as the St Matthews recreation ground, Cambridge, has had an official opening. Now it is rechristened "St Matthews Piece". The aspect is as yet of the distinctly "clean and not gaudy" type, comprising a rectangular enclosure, around which a spiked fence rears its effective points, and the inside is gravel all over, offering unbounded scope for young Barnwellians to develop "gravel rash". In 1892 the Corporation had represented the desirability of obtaining a piece of open ground in that thickly populated neighbourhood. Many delays occurred, and in 1895 the Commons committee took the ground over. They found a great many obstacles in the way of levelling and preparing the ground and there were many legal questions which took a long time. # c.32.3

Chesterton bells, p2
Hemingford Abbots pavilion, p3

1898 06 25
On Thursday last Captain Mutton of the Ramsey fire brigade gave out to his fireman the new brass helmets recently ordered by the Urban District Council. They were supplied by Messrs Merryweather. Ramsey Fishing Association has been holding a tournament for a week. Anglers could go on any one day. Only three anglers had weighed in by 9 pm on Thursday night. Mr F Haythorpe fished from 4 am to 9 pm for his 1lb 1oz. Ten or twelve were out on Thursday, but sport was poor.
Clare water supply, p2 *

1898 06 27
Huntingdon death inhabitant, p3 *
Ely runaway bus, p3

1898 06 28
Horsford hangs – pics, p3 *

1898 06 29
Addenbrooke's Hospital admin report, p3
Newmarket railway, p3 *

1898 06 30
Gamlingay child neglect, p2 *
St Neots murderer, p3 *
School management, p3

July 1898 CDN

1898 07 01
Royston twin bike, p3 *

1898 07 04
Rattee & Kett outing, p2
Fordham fire, p3
Interview Wilkerson, Barley

1898 07 05
George Stace, draper, of Petty Cury, Cambridge, was summoned for employing Kate Ladds after eight o'clock contrary to the Workshops and Factories Act. She said she was 17 years of age. On June 4th she began work at nine o'clock in the morning and finished at 9.20 at night. She was not paid anything extra for the overtime. Out of the time mentioned she had an hour and a half for meals. She said some of the employees in the showroom began at 8.30. On this particular night she was making a hat that a lady wanted home that night. Mr Stace was not a hard taskmaster and was not sweating the girls he employed. He was fined one shilling.
Cambridge cork club, p3

1898 07 06
Mr Foster told a meeting in the parish room adjacent to St Mark's temporary Church, Newnham Croft, that he remembered hearing about 20 years ago, that it was seriously proposed that St Botolph's Church should be removed bodily and re-erected on the present site of Caius fellows' garden. The idea was not responded to and the consequence was that that part of Newnham was left without a place of worship, and eventually that Little St Mark's Church was erected. When he first came to that neighbourhood, 15 years ago, he remembered thinking what a poor, dilapidated place it was, and wondering how long they in that corner of Cambridge would have to worship there. But he had got to know St Mark's so well that he looked upon it now has a dear little place. They would all be sorry to have it removed but it was only a temporary building, and temporary buildings must give way to permanent ones. # c.83
W. Butcher photographer – adv # c.65.5

1898 07 08
Runaway horse, p2

1898 07 09
Newmarket accident, p3
Girton jubilee, p3

1898 07 11
Sir - As a visitor to Cambridge I was induced last weekend to take a trip on the Cam. I shall not soon forget it. My adviser took particular care to impress me with the fact that Cambridge had been granted a new method of sewage disposal, and on that account I should not inhale such odours as at one time were the characteristic feature of the river trip. But to my disgust, I found another evil had arisen. The river was strewn with dead dogs and cats. Between Walnut Tree Lane and Baitsbite I counted no less than a dozen of such corpses, not always by the bank side, but floating in the middle of the river – Tourist # c.46.5

1898 07 11
At the Standing joint committee Mr H.G. Fordham proposed that the appointment of Parish Constables should be discontinued. In 1873 the Cambridgeshire quarter sessions had decided to continue them. That was 28 years ago and he contended that since then they had been rendered unnecessary. There was a considerable amount of friction and expense and they were of no real use except in rare instance. Six parishes in Cambridgeshire made no appointment. In Balsham the parish constable had not done duty for 15 years, and in Weston Colville no duty had been done for 40 years. In seventeen parishes there was no remuneration at all. In others the expenses varied from £10 downwards. The Chief Constable having said a good word for the parish constables expressed a hope that their appointment would be renewed

1898 07 11 c
A labourer from Stansted was charged with stealing 2 1/2 pounds of tomatoes, valued 1s. 6d. the property of Edmund Rochford of Birchanger. William Winter, foreman at the nurseries, said that as the defendant was going to dinner he stopped him told him that he wanted to look into his basket. Defendant then took out his dinner cloth, and he saw 9 tomatoes. Defendant urged that he took them home because he could not eat them on the premises as the other men did. He was fined £1.0.0

1898 07 12
Messrs Green, Moyes and Wisbey attended the Lion Hotel, Cambridge, and offered by auction several beerhouses. The Lion and Lamb at Denver sold for £765. The Queen's Head at Hilgay realised £510. Lot three was the freehold beer house known as the Volunteer, Mildenhall which, together with a cottage, realised £710. The Swan beerhouse Isleham realised £460. The last lot was the fully licensed freehold public house in East Road, Cambridge known by the sign of the Red Lion. The bidding started at £600, and ultimately reached £975 at which figure it was disposed of. The prices realised are considered very satisfactory by the vendors. # c.27.4

Swavesey accident, Holywell ferry, p2

1898 07 13
Yesterday was the 25th anniversary of the first farm factory in England and to celebrate the occasion a large party of London and Provincial pressmen visited Histon and spent a day in the Chivers factory and fields. We travelled along the Histon Road, with the factory chimney steaming away in the distance yonder, and fruit, interminable lines of it, growing in the fields on both sides. To the right a group of busy pickers could be seen among the strawberries, smiling and happy. We rode past the neat compact cottages of the firm's workpeople, past the factory itself, on through the shady roads, past Impington Church - seeing here and there an old thatched cottage, a striking object lesson when compared with the more modern dwellings for the people erected since the firm began, till we week reached the birthplace of the idea, the barn in which the initial efforts of the firm were made.

1898 07 13
A representative of the press paid a visit to Hemingford Abbots, for the purpose of gathering information from one of the village maidens who had been suffering from what had been described as an incurable complaint. The young person to be interviewed was Miss Lizzie Watson. Rapping at the cottage door the reporter was confronted by a tall young damsel with a fresh coloured complexion - the object of his search. She said she had been ill for many months, suffering fearful pains in her body. She had been treated by two medical men but obtained no relief. "I am all right now," she added smiling. “To what do you tribute your recovery?" asked the interviewer. "Dr Williams Pink Pills for Pale People, and nothing else," was the reply
Fordham confectioner’s bankruptcy, p2

1898 07 15
Notices were posted in Sawston calling a meeting of the cyclists for the object of forming a bicycle club, but we understand that on the leading spirit of the affair presenting himself at the appointed time and place, only a number of empty chairs and forms met the gaze of him and his friend, and they shortly left the room in disgust at the indifference shown by the Sawston cyclists.
Mildenhall horticultural show
Stretham Mission Hall tea, p2 # Stretham
St Ives drains, p3

1898 07 16
New Theatre agm

1898 07 18
Sir - I am not a native of Cambridge but have many times had impressed on me the beauty of the town. What more could be desired, I thought, as I walked down the streets and saw the beautiful clear cool streams running by the causeway. I spend a lot of my time in Trumpington St. Lately, however, this beautiful street has been a little "Sahara." Clouds of white dust are driving through the street all day, sufficient to choke or blind an ordinary person. On going through the side streets things are different, and the water-cart man is ever to be seen going on his weary round. These streets are over-watered and sloppy. Now whatever can be the reason for this? Yours etc “Dusty”
Bill Posting Co agm – secretary resigns, p3
Story of Cromwell, p4

1898 07 19
In the publication "Public Libraries," which is published in Chicago, is an article with reference to Cambridge libraries. "At the free public library, visited on Saturday evening, a changing crowd stood in line for nearly three hours, in spite of the fact that they were waited on at the rate of one a minute. We found several labour-saving devices and conveniences in this library, which seemed to be a little ahead of the average Library we visited. One of the finest collections of Shakespeariana in the country is in this building" # c.77.4
Floreat Cantabrigia, p4

1898 07 20
Under present climatic conditions there are worse things in this life than camping on the south Denes at Yarmouth, as every man in the Third Cambridgeshires will tell you. The sunshine is extremely hot at times, it is true, but it is tempered by the gentle breezes from the German Ocean, sweeping across from sea to river, and soothing the bronze warriors on its way. Again, the drills are arduous and the guard duty tedious, but all the time you are drinking in the pure air, and when the work is over what jollier, more exhilarating spot can be found than dear old, amply beached, rollicking, progressive Yarmouth, despite its numerous "rows"? In fact, Cambridge folk are here, there and everywhere, in the town and district, and surprised "Hello's" greet you at every turn. The men of Yarmouth keep toeing the mark of up to dateness, and every year sees the historic town presenting some fresh improvements to hold her in the forefront of watering places. There is the new patent tower to be ascended for a birds-eye view of the district, and there are the numerous other attractions common to every season
Royston new water works, p3

1898 07 21
Bill Posting Co reply, p2
Linton flower show, p4 *

1898 07 22
The annual show of flowers, fruit, needlework, etc open to Shelford and the neighbouring villages, was held yesterday in the grounds of Mr Carter Jonas' residence at Great Shelford. The Cambridge University volunteer band played during the afternoon and evening. During the latter part of the day the grounds became an unusually lively scene, a large number of visitors coming in from Cambridge and the villages in the vicinity. The attractions included a May-pole demonstration by the children of Whittlesford be School, and all the usual paraphernalia of swings, cocoa-nut shies, shooting galleries and steam horses.

1898 07 25
George Baynes, proprietor of the newly opened wax works exhibition in Petty Cury, Cambridge, was summoned for carrying on his show without the permission of the mayor. Dr Cooper (looking at the wax works programme): I see this is a regular chamber of horrors Sergeant Baker said he had told the defendant he was liable to a penalty of £20 and advised him to close the show. The defendant however said he did not think it was necessary as he had a similar show eleven years ago without permission. He kept the exhibition open till 10 o'clock and a large number of persons visited it, the crowd causing great inconvenience in the street. The bench inflicted a fine of 20s. # c.76
Hooley’s affairs, p2

1898 07 25
Ramsey fair which has been held on Thursday (a day earlier) Friday and Saturday, has been about the same as usual. The chief attraction have been the gondolas and cinematograph. Most of the stalls left for Warboys feast

1898 07 26
A meeting in connection with the proposed Cambridge Ice and Cold Storage Company was held at the University Arms Hotel. A central site had been secured at Petty Cury and they had customers both for ice and cold storage. The two biggest firms in Cambridge had agreed to have cold storage, beside many other gentlemen, and they would have orders for eleven hundred tons of ice for the first weeks working. Some hundreds of shares were taken up before the meeting ended. # c.27
Barkway accident, p2

1898 07 26
In response to a handbill headed "Our River," and appealing for a Cromwell to redress the grievances of St Ivians in respect to the river, a very large crowd assembled on Market Hill. Time went on, and no sign of any leader was forthcoming. Cromwell was apparently hard to find and people began to think the whole scene was going to end in a fiasco. Then a big shout heralded the approach of Mr Radford's furniture van and when Mr E R Odams was seen getting into the van another shout of rejoicing went up and his appearance was greeted with vociferous applause.

1898 07 27
Newmarket rural council was told that the water supply of Swaffham Prior was derived from springs, and was abundant and naturally pure. All that was necessary was to see that it was properly safeguarded. Some of the existing wells were so circumstanced that they ran the risk of contamination. Four bored wells would be sufficient for the village and one more for the hamlet of Reach. Only one outbreak of diphtheria had occurred in the village, in 1894, when four cases occurred in one house, but analysis of the water supply showed that it was pure and fit for drinking purposes

1898 07 28
'Photo pictures in East Anglia' review, p2
Telephone wires, Cambridge – Ely, p2

1898 07 29
Saffron Walden School, 3

1898 07 30
Considerable diversion was created at the Newmarket Conservative Club by the appearance of a monkey in the billiard room, the animal having wandered from a circus staying in the town. The members at once suitably greeted the newcomer, one gentleman facetiously enquiring who proposed the newcomer as a member. A keeper arrived a minute later and bore away the Tory ape in his arms.
Mr McCalmont's seat in the House does not yet need such supporters
St Ives river, p3

August 1898 CDN

1898 08 02
Some amusing scenes were witnessed at Dunmow, where about 10,000 visitors assembled to hear the claims for the famous flitches put forward by Mr and Mrs Frost of Sutton, Surrey and Mr & Mrs Herbert of Hounslow. Mr Herbert, who is by occupation a dealer in antique furniture and curios, startled the presiding judge by bidding him two sovereigns for the ancient chair in which he sate. This was promptly refused, with some show of offended dignity, and Mrs Herbert must have trembled for her chances of securing the flitch, thus prejudiced by her husband's keen eye to business. However, the jury did not take a severe view of this flagrant contempt of court and the judge himself heartily occurred in the view that the claim had been made good. Both couples went home rejoicing, bearing their flitches with them.
Bank Holiday – Tudor's circus, p2
Balsham rectory & tenants, p3 *

1898 08 03
A meeting at the Prince of Wales hotel requested the Cambridge council to consider providing a cycle and athletics track for Cambridge. Grounds in the town were becoming more and more limited. The University Ground itself was only saved by the merest chance from going into the hands of the builders; the university bicycling track was now disappearing for the very same reason. They were practically arriving at the time when there would be no grounds available for the purpose of sport, at least not enough to meet the growing needs of Cambridge.
Tudor's circus advert, p1
Ely sports, p2 *
March Conservative Club – fire engine, p2
Huntingdon accident, p3

1898 08 04
At Chesterton Council a letter was read claiming £3 3s for damage done to a gentleman's laundry by the hose being directed by the Fire Brigade through his window during a drill. The Captain explained it was a pure accident and the damage was trivial - 4 blouses were wetted at a cost of 6d each for rewashing. While the drill was proceeding a boy for his own amusement lifted the jet, and the water was immediately turned off by the man in charge. Mr Bester said that when they had a body of men giving their services gratuitously to the public the inhabitants should exert some leniency in regard to accidents
Town council cycle track, p3

1898 08 05
The new Reading Room at Hemingford Grey was opened and the outside of this handsome little place was gaily decorated with flags. It is a well-built building. Sir Arthur W Marshall spoke of the cheapness of books and newspapers, of the starting of public libraries while even their villages had their public rooms and bookshops. The Reverend D E Curtois spoke of the desirability of having a room where the young could have the sociability of the public house without its temptations.
Haverhill Sunday school treats, p3

1898 08 06
Newmarket trap accident, p3

1898 08 08
At the Cambridge Free library committee meeting an offer was made by Mr W.H. Hattersley to present an oil painting of Mr John Pink, who has been the librarian ever since the commencement of that other institution in 1855. It was agreed to make the necessary arrangements for placing the portrait in the Reading Room. It is painted by Mr P Hall, master of the School of Art # c.77.4

1898 08 08
At Cambridge court Detective sergeant Marsh told how he spent yesterday morning out in rain at Longstanton digging for gold. With a faithful allegiance to mystery and lucre the leisured classes of King Street and its bye-ways mustered to hear the recital of the experiences in the penny Klondike. The detective told how he searched for money in the garden of the prisoner's grandmother for an hour or so. At last he struck the money with the fork. Some was in matchbox, some in a cigarette case, and the gold in a purse

1898 08 09
Deprivation of incumbent, p3

1898 08 10
Cyclists, pedestrians, lovers of the free and open road, dwellers in and around Horningsea and Waterbeach, all interested in this district, harken. There is yet hope for you that the last relic of antiquated obstruction - the obnoxious toll at Clayhithe bridge - may be swept away. You have to pay every time you go over, and people on the other side of the river are obliged to use the station for produce of all sorts, and for every load that comes over they have to pay 4d. Many people would make use of this road from Cambridge were it free, as the road is good, and a convenient circle may be traversed round by the bridge and back this other way.

1898 08 10
Joseph Martin of Littleport told the Agricultural Committee on National Wheat Stores that he was not in favour of a reserve. He said "It is most remunerative, growing wheat. I am of the opinion that if you could by any means guarantee a better price for wheat there would be many more thousands of acres. I am in the fen district. It is really a wheat growing country. But a good deal of the heavy land has gone out of cultivation entirely and grass has taken the place of wheat"

1898 08 10

Newmarket Road district council were told that at Cheveley a well which had been cleaned out and deepened, now yielded as good a supply as water as could be found. They should consider the desirability of employing an experienced well sinker who could clean out and deepen many of the wells in the neighbouring parishes. A good water supply might be obtained in that way without the expense of digging and sinking artificial wells.

1898 08 11
At the general meeting of shareholders of the Cambridge Omnibus Company there was no exuberant spirit of jubilation. In fact, the company seems to have fallen on bad times. Trading for the year had resulted in a very considerable loss. In September an unfortunate accident occurred to one of the company's vehicles, injuring several persons more or less severely. They had the misfortune to lose by death nine horses. One thing that had swelled the amount of loss was the state of the roads. It must be patent to everyone that the rooms were very destructive to the wheels, more particularly the main streets where there were tram lines.
Ely basket maker, Scott, drowned, p3, inquest 11th p3

1898 08 11
The monthly meeting of Linton guardians was told that the number of inmates in the workhouse during the past week was 60. The Local Government Board inspector drew attention to the large amount expended for out-relief which was about 10 times as much as the cost of in-maintenance. The Chairman said they found it difficult in cases of old people, who never had a chance of saving, to drive them into the workhouse, especially when the character of these deserving poor had been all their lives exemplary. They were quite alive to the necessity of treating very differently those cases where their wages had been spent in drink.
Drowning Dimock's Cote, p3 # Stretham
Isle Ely steam roller, p4

1898 08 12
Knapwell excursion, p3
St Ives public pump *, police & council

1898 08 13
Interview Joseph Martin, Littleport farmer, p2

1898 08 15
William Tudor circus proprietor nearly drowned, p2
Clayhithe bridge, p2 *

1898 08 15 c
It maybe that the police have influence with the Clerk of the weather. Anyway the sun beamed down full face on the righteous and the unrighteous, and incidentally on those congregated at the Leys to witness the annual sports of the Borough Police. And as evidence not only of the love of Cambridge folk for sport, but also of their friendship for their blue-tuniced guardians, it may be mentioned that there was a large attendance. Adding much to the enjoyment of the company, Madame Frederica with her toy terriers, and Mr Fred Derrick the well-known entertainer from Tudor's Circus, gave some clever exhibitions.

1898 08 15 c
Sir - Waterbeach is the great health resort for Cantabs. What place can give such fishing? What prettier lanes, abounding with orchards, all leading to the river. If our parish council could be made to realise that they are living in 1898 AD and would level the village green, and plant a few trees round it, give us a few oil lamps at small cost, Waterbeach with its fine train service and river steamers would become an attractive residential suburb – Waterbeacher

1898 08 16

Girls in assault, Castle End, p2 *
Omnibus Co letter, p2 *
Pitch & toss, at Haverhill, p3

1898 08 16
An NSPCC inspector described visiting the house of a weaver in Haverhill. The floors were black with dirt, the bed consisted of two dirty mattresses swarming with vermin and black with dirt. The air was foul smelling. The children fairly nourished, but they were in a filthily dirty and ragged condition. Even their clothes were verminous and their bodies were badly bitten with fleas and vermin. The father was an idler at the corners of streets, and did what jobs he did. He spent the money in drink and neglected the children

1898 08 17
Castle End children case, p2
Hooley case, p3
Sawston schoolboy, p4
Cheveley water, p4

1898 08 18
Polluted brook, p3
St Ives regatta, p4

1898 08 19
An itinerant umbrella maker and scissor grinder was charged with stealing a half crown from Kate Taylor, domestic servant to Mr William Cutlack, of Littleport. She gave him a pair of scissors to grind for which he charged 2d. An umbrella was next entrusted to his versatile art, in which he put a new handle and charged 1s.6d. The lady had not less than half-a-crown and expected change but he walked off with the money. As she was afraid of the man she told the groom, John Lambert. He found him quietly enjoying himself at the Gilgal pub. Defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three weeks hard labour

1898 08 22
A correspondent writes: “Two miles from Five Miles from Anywhere, No Hurry, there is a place called "Dimmock’s Cote" on the waterway to Ely, about two miles from Upware, to which spot one of Messrs Bolton Bros. large furniture vans proceeded on Saturday last. Arriving without accidents a very busy time was experienced in rigging up accommodation for living and stores. It is very advisable for anyone intending to camp by the river side to take a large filter, and even then to drink as little water as possible. Fishing was very poor. The bullocks which are grazed on the washes were attracted by the unusual lights and gave some little trouble, but owing to a good watch dog, due notice of their visits was early given, so we were always ready for the enemy”

1898 08 22
The quaintly named village in which Mr Frank Doggett resides (Rectory farm, Cherry Hinton) is within three miles of Cambridge railway station - in fact the farm itself almost extends to the borough boundaries. But the House, partly covered with ivy, might be any distance from haunts of men; and Cherry Hinton is country pure and simple. In the course of a long drive over his holding I saw many evidence of careful and admirable farming; some promising crops of corn and roots, and a very level flock of sheep. There is scarcely a corner of the land which he does not cultivate, and the order which prevails in the well-arranged buildings is characteristic of his farming. He lets seven cottages with the farm. In a place like this the rents are high and it is very advisable to let the cottages at a rental the men can pay. Most of his are let at two shillings a week. Ordinary men are paid 13 shillings a week. At Cherry Hinton they pay more money for regular work than most villages. It is generally possible to obtain sufficient extra labour in summer, but regular men are more difficult to secure.

1898 08 23

The Barnum and Bailey great street parade will be a wonderful and stupendous spectacle of men, women, children, horses, elephants, wild beasts, chariot, cars and floats. Christopher Columbus, as well as scores of other characters famous in his time, are all truthfully represented in rich costumes. Leading the pageant is one of the most magnificent sights imaginable, a wondrous team of 40 fine bay horses driven by one man. There are rich displays of open dens of wild beasts and carved golden chariots, containing the splendid zoological collections, followed by 20 elephants, and allegorical chariots, illustrating nursery rhymes and children's fairy stories. The whole affair is grand and inspiring. # c.76.2
Brewster, Whaddon, p2
Stetchworth water, p3

1898 08 24
Messrs Dilley and son, auctioneers, offered for sale the whole of the stock-in- trade, machinery, coals, fittings etc of the "Cromwell" Engineering Works, St Ives, by direction of Messrs Fowell and son, who are dissolving partnership. There was a large company present, buyers coming from Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, Sheffield and all the engineering centres, as well as a crowd of local purchasers. There were 530 lots and the sale occupied a considerable time. The scrap iron fetched a record price, one large heap of old cast iron realising £51. The plant and machinery fetched a good price. The freehold premises comprising an extensive foundry, with engineer's workshop and three plots of building land adjoining the Great Eastern Railway were also sold Licencing racquet court, p2 *

1898 08 25
Somersham bread, p2

1898 08 26
Mr Horatio Wadsworth, mineral water manufacturer, of Bridge Street, St Ives, applied for a licence to sell bottled beer in quantities not less than a dozen half pint bottles at a time. He was the owner of an excise licence to sell bottled beer and this was simply an extension of that licence. He had every facility for bottling beer and was now bottling the beer of a firm in this county up to five or six thousand bottles. He intended to bottle local beer from Jenkins and Jones if he got the licence. He would be the only bottler of beer in St Ives. It did not interfere with the retailers of beer as he would not sell by single bottle or by the jug. He would send out the bottled beer at the same time that he sent out soda water and ginger beer

1898 08 27
Cambridge, the one and only, Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth, grounds on Huntingdon Road, September 8th. An overwhelming equestrian department, teeming with every valuable attraction, filled with wonders, overflowing with grand features, crowded with startling surprises, brim-full of novelties, running over with mirthful scenes, and abounding with thrilling sensations and glorious events. Presenting, in vast Amplitude of Detail, Wild Beast, Chariot and Pedestrian Races, Fearless Contests, Trials of Speed, Skill and Endurance. A World's Fair of modern marvels. 1,000 men, women, giants, midgets, dwarfs, tattooed people, sword swallowers, bearded and long-haired lady, dog-faced boy, armless and legless men, snake charmers. 1,000 marvellous sights and curious creations. One ticket admits to all the attractions. (Advert) # c.76.2

1898 08 29
Funeral Ald King, St Ives, p3

1898 08 30
Royston is almost approaching a water famine, owing to the wells of the Water Company being extremely low through the continued drought. It may be news to them to know that in a cottage not a hundred miles from Kneesworth Street, which has been unoccupied for some time, a tap has been pouring forth water for the past month. It would be well for the company to give this instance their attention and thus relieve the parishioners of the anxiety which would prevail at the rumour of the mere appearance of a water famine Castle Camps sale Cock, p2 *

All over work, p2 *
Castle End tin-kettling, p3
Funny Fred Hall, p3, funeral 21st p3

1898 08 31
The securing of the Midsummer Common for the show grounds of the Barnum and Bailey's Circus, having been completed, they have found it necessary to make a change in a number of their plans for the visit to Cambridge. The large number of excursionists from the country districts who will be attracted by the presence of the show will be thankful for the change. It will be possible to enjoy the evening show with comfort, in the consciousness that it is easy to catch the trains afterwards. The big show will arrive in Cambridge on four special trains, with a total of 74 railway cars. The unloading will be done in the G.E. railway yards, and the entire city of canvas, 14 tents in all, will be put up in the morning before the parade starts out. Every bit of the show is coming to Cambridge # c.76.2
Beer to children, p2

September 1898 CDN

1898 09 02
Last night the people of Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, were startled by a loud crash and it was found that one of Messrs Sturton's shop windows had smashed. It seemed that a quantity of hams and cheeses were stored in the window and some becoming dislodged, had rolled down to the glass and smashed it. The window was completely wrecked and the cheeses and hams rolled into the street. The police were promptly in attendance and remained on guard until Mr Sturton arrived and had the window boarded up

1898 09 03
Cherry Hinton is the meeting place of the old and new; a study in contrasts. St John's ward contains trim villas, modern residences, and a population increasing rapidly year by year. On the other hand, St Andrew's ward is intensely rural, the scene of scattered dwellings and old thatched gables. In short, St John's is suburban, while St Andrew's yet retains its agricultural character. Thus a drainage scheme is less needed in the latter than the former and the inhabitants of St Andrew's insist that they will have none of it, while in the former it has long been common knowledge that emphatically "something must be done", and that quickly, for the constantly growing population

1898 09 05
Awful was the fate of an aged women residing in East Road Cambridge, on Saturday night. Her body was found scorched, blackened and blistered in her burning house. Every article of clothing was burned, and not a hair remained on her head. Those who saw it were sickened at the uncanny sight. As quickly as possible she was carried to a costermonger's barrow and covered up with the first things that came to hand, after which she was taken to Addenbrooke's Hospital. The fire brigade was hampered as the telegraph wires are set so low in that part of the town that it is impossible to run the fire escape along without catching the wires and causing not only damage but delay. In this instance the escape was delayed by catching the wires in Burleigh St
Ref Cuff at Waterbeach, p2

1898 09 06
Evenings sport case, p2 *
Marriage failure – carrier, Melbourn p2 *
New Cherry Hinton drainage enquiry, p3
Children & drink, p4

1898 09 08
Today Cambridgeshire folk in their thousands have seen the procession of the "greatest show on earth" and now they can exist through the remainder of a dull vacation chewing, mentally, the cud of their reflections. Before dawn Barnum-struck people could be found waiting for the arrival of the monsters and wonders of the world. And then for hours there was a steady traffic of all manner of men and beasts and creeping things. Huge elephants and gilded cars, endless teams of horses - a continual movement of deliberate and well-ordered detail. First came four of our borough police, looking as smart as possible on their coal black steeds, though somewhat warm. The Sun came out full faced to see the show. It was broiling hot! Many a grizzled old agriculturist who came to scoff remained to praise, and exclaimed perpetually on the beautiful cattle. In their cages, amid lions, bears, wolves and hyenas came one after another keeper, calmly sitting on his stool, cynically surveying the wonder-struck lines of the town's and country's curious. Then the spectacular pageant, "The return of Columbus to Barcelona", another band, the elephants wearing strange and curious instruments representative of far off climes, and at length that vast array of the world's collected curios is past. Everyone is going to see the show. For hours the box office has been a Klondike # c.76.2

1898 09 08
Just now the grounds surrounding the Arrington police station present a pleasing aspect. The flower-beds are looking their best, crowned as they are with all the colours of the rainbow. The beds on the lawn, which are composed of two shades of asters, look lovely, whilst the borders and windowsills are one mass of flowers. Superintendent Wilderspin spares neither time nor labour in making the building and its surroundings presentable; and the remarks that are bestowed upon the worthy police officer by passers-by are certainly deserved
Excessive heat, p2
Linton not continue parish constables, p3
St Ives Guardians bread, p4

1898 09 09
At St Ives Town council Mr Ruston said that it was desirable something be done to avoid the nuisance which arose through the Michaelmas fair being held on the market place. There was a great nuisance caused by the smoke from the caravans, and the stench which arose from their refuse. It would be a very good thing if they could have the fair held outside the town. He did not see why they should encourage "riff raff"; they ought to preserve the tranquillity of the town. The Mayor thought that if the horse fair was held in the overflow market instead of in the back streets it would be an alteration which one could not very well object to Barnum's circus, p3 *

1898 09 12
At Saffron Walden Town Council Mr Midgley made an inquiry as to the water supply, and questioned whether it would not be well to check the too free use of water in gardens. The surveyor stated that the water was not so high in the well as it had been by about two feet, but it was not so low as in 1897. Alderman Gibson said there was no chance of such a thing as a water famine. It must be remembered that they were not getting their water from a reservoir, but from "the bowels of the earth." The surveyor said that the average per day for the population was 15 gallons

1898 09 12 c
Fanny Elizabeth Laxton, an unfortunate, was charged with wilfully breaking two panes of glass at the Three Compasses, East Road Cambridge, doing damage to the amount of one shilling and with refusing to quit that house. She was also charged with being drunk. For breaking the window she was sent to prison for a month with hard labour, and for refusing to quit two weeks with hard labour. Prisoner was removed to the cells vowing vengeance. As she left the dock to the regions below her voice could still be heard crying, "You ought to wear a Salvation Army bonnet, that you ought"

1898 09 13

At Haverhill a young man was charged by Frederick Hicks, cycle maker, with stealing a quantity of spelter, borax, rubber and solution. The defendant was employed as foreman cycle maker at 6½d pence per hour. Soon after he asked his master whether he could make a bicycle in his own time. It would take 20 hours to build a machine without the wheels and another four hours to build the wheels. The missing ingredients would have been used for making up the bicycle. The case was dismissed
Royston wandering mechanic, p4

1898 09 14
The "Cambridge Express" carries an article which read: "I heard an unpleasant tale from the workhouse hospital the other day. It appears that when a Cambridge patient is too poor to pay 1s. a week for his coffee, and sugar, it is customary to inform the Relieving Officer of the fact, who will ensure that their wants shall be attended to. It is said that groceries of a sort are sent, but they are of such a quality as to render them anything but acceptable to the recipient". The contractor begs to say that the above quoted statement is a deliberate lie. It seemed that the worst things they could say about the Guardians the better they liked it
Otter and Otter Hound advert, p3 # c.26.2

1898 09 15
Important notice. In connection with an attempt to force upon the public a scheme for promoting a second daily paper for Cambridge, most dishonourable and dastardly tactics have been adopted towards this Journal. The matter is to come before a legal tribunal and a shocking conspiracy will then be revealed to the public. Public or private enterprise we gladly welcome, whether it be in journalism or any other calling. If amateur pressmen have several thousands to throw away - for that is what it means - we do not at all object. But let the fight be fair and square # c.04
CDN football competition, p2

1898 09 16
This morning shows a big blank in the row of houses in Church End, Cottenham. A little after before eight o'clock some children called Mrs Smith and told her that a boy was setting a fire near her husband's stacks. Very quickly the stacks, outbuildings, barn and furniture were devoured. In the buildings were two horses and two pigs, which it was impossible to save, and they were roasted alive. The burning flesh could be smelled a long way down the Street. On went the fire to the adjoining premises, "The Jolly Millers" inn. In a back room lay Mr Thomas Legge, the veteran postman, fast asleep, and he was carried out of harm's way just in the nick of time. That ancient, lumbering instrument known as the Cottenham fire engine was hauled out from among the cobwebs and after a lengthy leakage it did its best to sprout the limited supply of water on the flames
Woman burnt to death, East Road, p3
Haverhill cycle maker, Hicks, bankruptcy, p3

1898 09 17
At an inquiry at St Ives the East Hunts Water Company said that for several days there was no supply to the taps. If they erected stand pipes it would be detrimental to their company as their 116 customers would go to the stand pipe for their drinking supply and use other water for cleaning purposes. The medical officer of health said that the pumps had been closed in 1893 as they were polluted with sewage and notices placed on the pumps would be insufficient to prevent people drinking the water. The Vicar said the river was so low that it had prevented a large number of persons from getting the water from the river for sanitary purposes
Shelford undertaker failure – Goat, p3 *

1898 09 19
On Saturday morning the horses attached to a heavily laden Omnibus, going to Cambridge railway station, stopped short and refused to budge after drawing the vehicle right across the tramway. A tramcar was close behind, and was also full of country folk leaving to catch their trains and, of course, had to stop also. Full five minutes elapsed before the unruly steeds could be induced to resume their journey, during which period many of the passengers decided to alight and resume their journey on foot

1898 09 19
The site in Sturton Street, Cambridge on which the new buildings of the Co-operative Society have been erected has a frontage of exactly a hundred feet. To the East are erected to substantial houses, to be occupied by servants of the society - who are to have the care of the dairy department, and on the North is a shop with plate glass front, fitted with marble top counters. Behind this has been erected a dairy and slaughter-house. There is a space for washing and cleaning the carts, vans and horses. Pens for sheep, pigs and cattle are also provided # c.27.2

189809 21
An inquest was held at Cardinal's Green, Shudy Camps, touching the death of a child of seven years. Her mother said the child had complained of sickness. For dinner she had beef, pudding and potatoes and drank water fetched from a pond in the garden. It was the only water supply for drinking purposes in that part of the parish. There was no pump, well, or other supply of water. Doctor Jones said that the water was most dangerous, full of injurious microbes, and ought never to be used, even for washing domestic utensils, without being first boiled. Linton district council were told they should take immediate steps to cause a good supply of water to be effected

1898 09 21
What is the most marvellous invention of the Queen's reign? The electric telegraph, the sewing machine, the telephone, the X rays - any one of a dozen things might be mentioned. It is however the phonograph - a bit of glass in a frame, a bit of sapphire, a waxen cylinder, a machine that revolves by clockwork, and a tin horn. Result, the human voice has been caught, imprisoned and made to repeat itself again and again for all time. Though the phonograph is an endless source of pleasure it has a serious side. No business office today is up to date without it. It is invaluable in answering correspondence, as it can be dictated to at any time as fast as you speak. And phonographs are now in universal use in teaching elusive pronunciation of foreign languages. (& 28th p1)

1898 09 22
The Cambridge Daily News has made arrangements with the Edison-Bell Phonographs Company Ltd to supply phonographs to the readers of the Cambridge Daily News on such easily fulfilled conditions that no reader need be without a phonograph - whether he needs it in his business or by his hearth. This phonograph is no toy - it is a perfected machine, endorsed with the power of receiving, retaining, and emitting the human voice. The machine and equipment we suggest cost you seven guineas for the Standard Phonograph and four records selected from the list, together with eight blank cylinders for correspondence purposes or for making home records and a carrying case. Machines sent, carriage paid, upon receipt of the subjoined order and a guinea
Newmarket draining into Burwell Fen commission, p3

1898 09 23
Rose, Rose Crescent licence not renewed * 24th p2 # c.27.4

1898 09 26
Cambridge is in possession of municipal buildings, which in their inartistic blending of the old and the new, are somewhat of an eyesore. The old buildings on which age has laid its hand heavenly are in front. The new tower behind. Some time ago this blemish came home so strongly that it was proposed to pull down the old part and rebuilt the front to be in harmony with the buildings in the rear. It should be of a design sufficiently imposing that the Guildhall should hold its own with the other buildings of Cambridge. Is this the time came to embark upon an expensive scheme for the adornment of the town, praiseworthy as that scheme may be? The rates are already as high as need be, and there is no prospect of their being lowered
"A terrible expense" by William Kirkup, p4

1898 09 27
Temperance crusade, p3

1898 09 28
Edison-Bell phonograph, p1 *
Wesleyan convention, p3
Gransden agricultural show, p3

1898 09 29
Henley Arthur Bedwell, a Cambridge piano and organ builder claimed £2 from the Great Eastern Railway for damages sustained by a piano and a case which had been considerably damaged by wet. The manager of the Cutter inn, Ely said he packed the piano before it was sent back. He took it to Ely station and deposited in a goods shed. James Merry, goods foreman at the station, gave evidence as to loading the piano safely on a truck. A tarpaulin was tied over it. There were some barrels of beer in the same wagon, but they were not leaking. Harold Pain, an optician, produced a register proving that there was no rain during the transit of the piano.
Saffron Walden cricket team, p3
Newmarket new hotel, p3 *

1898 09 30
The following were granted permission to keep their houses open until 11 o'clock on the occasion of Sutton feast on October 3rd: William Rushbrooke, The Oak; Alexandra Willingham, The Crown; John Smith, The Ship; Amos Clark, Black Horse; James Dewey, Windmill; William Wayman, George and Dragon and Josiah White, Red Lion
Cycle record broken, p2
Post times revised, p2
Conybeare Barrington presentation, p4 *
E.J. Edwards tripe, p4

1898 09 30
Melbourn Rural District Council were told that Mr Ingold had examined the deep well at Chishall and reported that he could see nothing to account for the water being impure, accepting from rust from chains and buckets. They noted that provision was being made by the owners of the Wilkes estate for increasing the supply of water in the existing reservoirs. They did not think it advisable to proceed with the Bull pond scheme as they believed that no satisfactory permanent supply of water for drinking can be obtained from any ponds or surface water, and that it is now necessary to make arrangements to provide a supply from a public well

October 1898 CDN

1898 10 01
Harvest festival at Cambridge workhouse, p2

1898 10 03
Cambridge is itself again. The university town has put on its university aspect; Gown has come back to town, and town has made it welcome. The devotion of Cambridge graduates to their Alma Mater has not been wanting during the past year. The Vice Chancellor mentioned the formation of the Cambridge University Association which has been opened to provide new buildings for the Law and Medical schools. £6,000 have already been subscribed. Cambridge is rich in scholarship; the real need of the hour is money that will enable the university to keep in the van of scientific research; to meet the demands that rapid progress in all departments of knowledge has made upon it. # c.36.9

1898 10 05
The annual report of the Cambridge public Free Library has been issued. Under competent management and the able direction of Mr Pink, it has continuously added to its resources. It is now as well equipped as anyone could desire. It has a reference library and in the Shakespeare and dramatic collections a special features of great interest and real value. Moreover there is the branch library at Mill road with 6,600 volumes and during the past year reading rooms have been opened at East road and Castle end. The people who enjoy these facilities of access to the best literature may well be envied by those who do not # c.77.4

Somersham publican licence endorsed, p3
Soham gasworks manager & apples

1898 10 05
A fire in the daytime is infinitely easier to cope with than one of equal dimensions at night, when the circumstances are all in favour of the destroying element and against those who grapple with it. Messrs A W Redding and son, builders, Tennis Court Road, Cambridge, have been unfortunate victims of circumstance by which their workshops are practically gutted. Mr Redding was sitting quietly at dinner when a man rushed in with the news that the workshops had taken fire. He had once hastened to the building and seeing that there was some cause for alarm, communicated with the Volunteer Fire Brigade. Within a very few minutes the hose cart was on the scene. Under the command of Captain Greef no less than 20 fireman assembled. In the meantime two police constables had taken the police station reel to the premises and afforded material assistance in getting the fire under # c.34.75

1898 10 06
Notice to football clubs, p4

1898 10 07
A service of thanksgiving for the harvest was held at Grantchester. The beautiful old church, made even more attractive by the decorations which embellished every part available of the edifice, was crowded with a congregation whose fervent praises were evidence of a full recognition of the nature of the service. The musical portion was rendered eminently beautiful by the employment of a string orchestra. The nine candelabra by which the church is lighted were hung with small branches of cereals. The mode of lighting the church, resulting in a perfect diffusion of light, enhanced the appearance of an altogether artistically perfect display

1898 10 07
Cambridge town council has issued an additional report on the proposed new Guildhall buildings. The accommodation will be considerably increased and will include in the basement, additional coal store, public lavatories for men and women and three new storerooms. On the ground floor a greatly improved entrance with grand staircase, cloak rooms, retiring rooms, two new public meeting rooms, kitchen and offices. Facing Union Street three new shops will be provided. On the first floor the Aldermen's parlour will be enlarged and improved and there will be rooms for the town clerk as well as a Mayor's reception room and a new enlarged council chamber. The cost is estimated at £38,000 # c.35.7

1898 10 08
Guildhall front – 2nd letter, p3

1898 10 11
Thrifty wives, hopeful maidens, and even thoughtless bachelors assembled in large numbers when an exhibition under the auspices of the Cambridge University and Town Gas Light Company was opened. Some disappointment was occasioned by the announcement that Miss Richmond would not be able to give her lecture owing to the fact that her cooking utensils had not arrived, but as a solace a male assistant gave an illustration of how a bachelor’s breakfast could be cooked in 12 minutes on one burner, and with a very small expenditure of gas. An attractive feature of the show is the penny in the slot cookers. These should prove a boon to the working classes, a single penny releasing enough gas to keep a single burner alight for 5½ hours.
Football Parker’s Piece, p3

1898 10 13
The Town Council of Cambridge has asked the burgesses whether they are of a mind to make a beginning at once with the extension of the Guildhall, and with the building of a new front, and the ratepayers have given their answer. There is no ambiguity about that answer; the "No" is emphatic enough. The attendance at the Guildhall was so large that those who know by experience how difficult it is to get the public to take an active interest in public questions must have been surprised. # c.35.7
CDN action against Kilner, Cambridge Gazette, p2 & p3 # c.04

1898 10 14
The eccentricity of a horse at Chesterton last night caused its driver and a fare some alarm. It bolted along Chesterton lane at a furious rate, resisting all the efforts of the driver to get it under control. The animal made a tour of Old Chesterton in record time and returned by the Milton Road. At this point the driver came to the conclusion it was quite useless trying to hold the horse in any longer and advised the gentleman inside the cab to "quit". He took a flying leap into the darkness and grazed his face somewhat severely. The driver fell off the box and the off wheel passed over his legs. Continuing his career the horse came into collision with a gatepost at Northampton Street which knocked it on its hindquarters
Cycling track – editorial, p2

1898 10 17
The "burgling" fraternity are already on the warpath. In pursuing his unworthy calling at Chesterton some impudent member of the fraternity paid a visit to a house in Victoria Road but got little, if anything, for his trouble. The family left home having previously secured the doors and windows. On their return they were alarmed at finding the front door bolted on the inside. This aroused suspicion and gave rise to the surmise that the house had been invaded by burglars. This belief was confirmed by the movements of the depredator in his haste to beat a retreat by the back part of the premises. By means of wax matches, the debris of which was strewn about the room, Mr Burglar had found his way upstairs and examined the contents of several drawers. It can hardly be imagined that the intentions of the housebreaker were strictly honest and honourable. Probably had he not been disturbed he might have got clear with a considerable amount of booty Christ Church organ, p2 *

1898 10 18
The photographer who is also an artist has a great advantage over the photographer who is merely a mechanic. One may realise this very clearly by paying a visit to the studio at St Mary's Passage, Cambridge, of Mr Clement A. Shaw. His first love was painting but in his portrait work he found the advantage of being able to take a photograph of the subject, in that tedious sittings could often be curtailed. His studios are covered with specimens of his work. There are photographs in all processes - opals, miniatures, pastels and oil paintings. There are several pictures painted on an enlarged scale from photographs which are very meritorious indeed # c.65.5

1898 10 18 c
The Church of a small parish between Cambridge and Bishop's Stortford was to have been the scene of a pretty little wedding on Saturday, but, alas for the bride, the spouse failed to put in an appearance at the Church. The "happy man" hailed from London, and should have arrived several hours before the ceremony. It was thought that he had missed the train, but the next not bringing him, faces began to wear anxious looks. Every inquiry was instituted in the village, but nothing could be heard of him, and the only alternative was to abandon the marriage. The bridegroom's behaviour up to the present has not been explained. We should add that the bride is the daughter of a most respected tradesmen, and greatly esteemed among her friends

1898 10 18
We have to record the death of Mr John Francis Clark, the celebrated racing judge at Newmarket. He had for 40 years filled the office of judge at Newmarket, Epsom, and most of the great racing fixtures in the southern circuit. It was notorious that he never made a bet, that he entertained the greatest aversion to "plungers" and that in his latter years he looked on with amazement as he saw houses built and gardens laid out by trainers and jockeys at Newmarket who seemed to him to be of a different breed from their humble predecessors remembered by him in his youth

Death C.F. Foster, p2
Objections to vaccination, p4

1898 10 19
Sir - for many years I have constantly visited the Mill road cemetery, Cambridge, and feel quite certain that if the present cemetery were made into a general and open place of burial it would last for many years. When the time arrives to provide a new cemetery, why not use that which is situated on the Huntingdon Road, which has a field adjoining sufficient to make a very large cemetery. I know that the Castle End hill is an obstacle, but an extra horse could be used to assist in drawing the hearse over this spot. This would be far preferable to going through Barnwell – R.R. # c.21.2

1898 10 19
Mr Langford, of Newmarket Road, Cambridge sustained serious injuries as the result of an attempt to stop a runaway horse. The infuriated animal, which was attached to a cart, took fright on King's Parade and continued its mad career in the direction of King's College. On reaching the college entrance, the runaway attracted the attention of Mr Langford who rushed up, and seizing the reigns, succeeded in bringing the horse to a standstill. The suddenness with which the animal was brought up caused it to swerve and one of the wheels of the vehicle passed over his face, which was very badly cut.
Union debate, p2
Hooley & Rector Papworth Everard, p3

1898 10 20
Today was the first occasion on which the magistrates heard application from parents who claimed exemption for all their children for vaccination, to which they contacted on conscientious grounds. One applicant said he had one or two children fall very ill after being vaccinated. One child was strong and healthy before vaccination, but she was never well after it, and died when about five years old of diphtheria. He knew of several other cases of a similar character. He was vaccinated himself when about 20 years of age, and have never felt so well since.
Hooley editorial, p2

1898 10 21
Conscientious objections vaccination, p2

1898 10 22
Four travelling hawkers were summoned for unlawfully driving a four wheel van on to the village green at Cottenham, contrary to the by-laws which had been posted in various parts of the village, including the village green. Lawyer for the defendants said it had been the custom to use the green on Sundays from time immemorial at the time of the village feast. He also pointed out that the defendants could neither read nor write. The magistrates said they were bound to support the parish council and fined defendants 10s.6d.

1898 10 24
The normal quiet of Cambridge was interrupted by serious conflagration in Fitzroy Street which proved the most destructive to property that has occurred for many years. Cambridge is happily furnished with ample means of notifying outbreaks of fire, and it was through one of the electric alarms erected in various parts of the borough for immediate communication with the central fire station that the resident night watchman received an intimidation that a fire was in progress. Telegraphic communications were without delay dispatched to the competent director of the Volunteer Fire Brigade and the majority of the corps. The wires running to those residing in and about

Mill Road were unfortunately out of order, and seven of the willing firemen were therefore debarred from taking an early part in the work # c.34.75

Light failed – awkward pause, p2 *
Thriplow fires, Hauxton, p3

1898 10 26
The Rector of Buckland has refused to read the full burial service over the body of a man who was killed at Royston fair after he made an attempt to get upon one of horses on a steam roundabout while it was in motion. Failing in the attempt, he fell violently off the roundabout to the ground and was killed. That which weighed with the Rector in refusing to read the whole of the burial service was a doubt as to whether the poor man was sober when he met with his accident.

1898 10 27
A Stretham agricultural labourer met his death at Landbeach by having the life literally crushed out of him by the wheel of a traction engine. He fell from the steersman's man's step over the side of the engine, and the enormous wheel passed over his body, death being almost instantaneous. The foreman and traction engine driver said he was engaged in putting a piece of coal on fire and when he lifted his head he saw the deceased man's legs go over the top of the wheel. The boy who was walking in front of the engine at the time of the accident, said his attention was first attracted by the engine stopping. He looked back and saw the deceased lying on the ground, the wheel having passed over him. The roads were smooth at that spot

1898 10 27
The population of the town of Cambridge has increased very much during the past 10 years, especially in the Petersfield and Romsey town area. Up till 10 years ago the chancel of the present St Barnabas Church was the only place of worship in the extensive district. Mainly by reason of the enterprise of Mr Sturton in providing land for building purposes, the district became so large that it became necessary to carry out the building of the complete Church; this was done in 1887. The substitution by the Great Eastern Railway Company of a handsome bridge for the old level crossing in Mill Road gave a great impetus to building in what is now Romsey town and the church of ease of St Phillip's was established. Now the time has come for Romsey town to be raised to the status of an ecclesiastical Parish, with St Phillip's as the parish church # c.83
Boarding out children, p4 *

1898 10 29
Sale building land, Cherryhinton road, p2
Kitcheners - East Anglia, 3

1898 10 31
A shocking murder took place at Saffron Walden workhouse. It appears that a tramp was seen about the town soliciting alms and was received into the casual ward last evening. He was conducted to the sleeping quarters and rose in the customary way this morning and proceeded to the stone breaking quarters to break the usual 8 cwt of granite. After breaking some of the stones he suddenly quitted the yard and proceeded to a section of the quadrangle where the tramp master was sweeping. Without the slightest intimidation he attacked with his hammer, and dealing him two or three blows with the weapon, felled him to the ground

November 1898 CDN

1898 11 02
Water company – today notes, p2 *
John Brown on Cambridge rates, p2 *
Steeple Morden recreation ground inquiry, p2 *

1898 11 03
Gymnastic club formed, p3
Saffron Walden murder & workhouse layout, p2 *

1898 11 04
There are good reasons why the School of Engineering at the University of Cambridge should be second to none in Great Britain. To impart accurate knowledge according to the scientific method is now, as it always has been, the supreme aim of the teaching at Cambridge. It was meet that at a university with these traditions the study of engineering should find a place and provide the thorough training for a profession which in this age of machinery comes into greater demand every day. All who have the honour of Cambridge University at heart may well be satisfied with the prestige which the Department of Engineering now enjoys

Cambridge smells, p2 *
Debating society wound up, p3
Chippenham train accident, p3

1898 11 04
The County Council is disposed to make a bye-law enforcing the carrying of lights by vehicles at night. No doubt there are those to whom such a byelaw would be vexatious but there is no getting over the fact that on a dark road a vehicle without lights is a source of danger. The dictates of common sense which justify that cyclists shall carry lights clearly prescribe a like precaution in the case of vehicles. Considerations of the drivers' convenience cannot be allowed to outweigh those of public safety

1898 11 05 c
That electricity is a great boon everyone is prepared to admit, but we shall enjoy better when scientists have solved more of its mysteries, and when it has dropped the tendency to drop and die away just at the time when it is most required. The New Theatre is one establishment where loss of light means loss of money. The incandescent lamps with which the interior is efficiently illuminated drooped and finally the current failed all together. Having been accustomed to brilliant electric light, the fact that the theatre was illuminated by means of ordinary lamps gave rise to much comment amongst the audience. As far as the stage was concerned the management had taken the precaution of retaining the gas. However before the performance commenced the truant current resumed its ordinary course and gave the steady light which continued the remainder of the evening

1898 11 05 c
Cambridge guardians considered the question of removing children from the workhouse and placing them in one or more cottage homes. There was one family in the workhouse who had lived there almost the whole of their lives. They were firmly convinced that the workhouse was not the best place to keep children. One difficulty was in getting good foster mothers. But Mr Campkin said he knew of many instances where boys and girls went out into the world and took responsible situations which they filled with great credit to themselves. If they arranged for placing these children out at the expense of the ratepayers he failed to see how in after life there could be any practical difference with regard to the children

1898 11 05
At Cambridgeshire County Council a report with reference to the conditions that obtain among gipsies and dwellers in vans and tents was submitted. These people lead an insanity life, they are the frequent carriers of disease, often disturb the peace of the localities in which they pitch their camps, and their children contrive to evade the provision of the Education Act and are brought up in the most gross ignorance. It is clear that something ought to be done. How is school attendance to be enforced on children who never acquired a local habitation? The evils that call for remedies are so real that it is eminently desirable that as far as possible to do so, the gypsy should be brought within the pale of the ordinary law

1898 11 05
Fitzroy Street fire, p2

1898 11 07
Saturday was a typical "fifth" in Cambridge. Faithfully following the precedent set in former years a number of Varsity men and townspeople assembled in the market place, which for three hours or so was crowded with excitable and pugilisitically-inclined youths, representing Town and gown. The Gown driven from pillar to post by the howling mob, appeared to be greatly terrified, and despite the vigilance of the police, of whom a large number were told off for special duty, the celebration was not entirely free from violence. Neither town nor gown missed many opportunities of displaying their physical prowess and many are the reports circulated as to the results of the pugilistic encounters that ensued
Shops & early closing, p3

1898 11 09
Sir - If it be true that the tramway company are anxious to adopt electric trams, I trust the council will be very careful not to allow our narrow and dangerous streets to be made still more dangerous by unsightly overhead wires and posts, or by the death-trap known as the underground current. In these days of motor cars, buses etc it is unnecessary to pull up our roads again as surely a good service of motor omnibuses would answer every need. If not, why not adopt the system of gas trams? – A Ratepayer # c.26.44
Rate collecting – the other side, p2
St Matthew's church clock, p3

1898 11 10
Mr Wootten told Cambridge town council there were four cottages at Castle end in a most horrible state. He said they were a disgrace to the corporation. They might talk about building houses for the poor, when all the time the corporation owned cottages which were not fit to put pigs in. Mr Campkin said some of their property was in a very bad state, some of the houses were very very old, and it would be a question of whether they should not pull the old structures down and rebuild them
Neglect of children, p3

1898 11 11
In vacation time Cambridge shopkeepers have early closing on Thursday afternoons. But so soon as term opens early closing ceases. With the shop assistants in their desire to have a half-holiday once a week our sympathy must go out. The work of serving in a shop from morning to night from Monday to Saturday is a heavy strain even on those who are robust. The only way to secure this half-holiday is to get the shopkeepers to consent to it. That is easy in the case of most of them. The difficulty is with those who refuse to fall in with the majority. One man who refuses to close may deprive all the assistants in a town of their holiday
Hooley estate sale, p2

1898 11 12
Saffron Walden murder verdict, p3 *
Sandy fire, p3 *

1898 11 14
An extraordinary accident occurred at the Weston Colville mill. A man had left his horse and cart against the mill gate when he went inside. He emerged from the mill door to find his horse walking up to the mill sails, which were revolving at a fast speed. The animal got knocked over and the mill was immediately stopped by Mr Livermore. The horse was found not to be dead but much injured on the side of the head
Cambridge gas company fraud, p3

1898 11 15
Fancie faire, Corn Exchange, p3

1898 11 16
At Cambridge bankruptcy court Wilfred Waldock, miller, of Ashwell said he had started business at Bassingbourn mill about 1885. In 1896 the mill was burnt down and he obtained £400 from the Insurance Society. He afterwards took Ashwell mill. The terms of agreement for the tenancy of the mill was that he was to share the water with the brewer. He knew he could not pay his creditors.
Insolidity Cambridge roads, p2

1898 11 17
It is surprising that in Cambridge there is not what might be termed a set gymnasium; a building set apart for the science of muscular developments, for a science it is now generally admitted to the. There are several small and excellent gymnasium but they are all of a limited and temporary nature. The university is almost as badly off as the town and what is needed is an enterprising man who would establish a good central gymnasium with first-rate appliances fixed in a spacious building
Death Colchester of Burwell, p3 *
Early closing conference, p3

1898 11 18
Sir - how is it possible to keep our pavements clean while the roads are in such a filthy condition. Every morning the policeman on their beat spot parts and very properly request the tenant responsible to clean their part forthwith. But of what use is it? In less than an hour they are as bad as ever. Then their next policeman that comes on duties repeats the request of the former one, and it is hard to convince in that it has already been done. Surely the rates are high enough to have the roads probably swept once a day and pavements as well so the policeman might be saved the trouble of superintendent the cleaning of them. – Pathfinder

Dr Armistead, Stapleford doctor, p2
Perse School girls head illness, p2
Cherry Hinton proposed division, p3

1898 11 19
At a recent performance at the Cambridge theatre a plaintive appeal was addressed by an occupant of one of the back seats in the stalls to certain ladies in front to remove their hats. With the present fashion in hats it is absolutely necessary to enforce a rule of "hats off" if those who are behind are to get a glimpse of the stage at all. It seems that the resources of millinery have been equal to the situation and a method has been devised whereby the fair wearer has merely to remove the aigrette which she can use as a fan during the performance, and at the close slip the feathers into the hat as before. Matter of fact males may suggest that it would be simpler still not to wear feathers at all. The suggestion betrays a woeful ignorance of what fashion and its behests are Windows cottages, Saffron Walden, p2 *

1898 11 21
Funeral Wm Colchester, p2
Dedication St Augustine's church, p3 & 22nd p2* # c.83

1898 11 22
A sad tale was unfolded at an inquest on the body of a lad aged 14 years. He had been employed for the last 14 months as an errand boy. On Tuesday he came home and complained of a pain in his body. On Sunday he appeared to be worse and his mother put some turpentine flannels on his chest, but he died the same day. The boy had suffered from the pains since Whitsuntide, when he went to the fair and had some ice cream and hot peas. The coroner said people ought to warn their children not to go to the fairs and eat this ice cream
Varsity cricket scorer, p3 *

1898 11 23
There was an exceptionally sat occurrence on Fore Hill, Ely. A traction engine, drawing two trucks and with a portable engine in the rear, made the descent of the Hill. This proved so difficult that the attention of a considerable number of onlookers was arrested. The driver appeared unable powerless to control either the speed of the machine or the erratic course taken by the trucks. The engine at the rear careered from one side to the other. Two youths took refuge in the passage leading to the Conservative club. They remained there until the engine had passed, but did not notice the engine in the rear, and as they came out of the passage one of its wheels came in contact with the pavement near them and broke off. One boy received such serious injuries that last night he died
Footballers' grievance, p2
Chesterton lady's conduct, p3 *

1898 11 24
Great crowds had been assembling outside Great St Mary's and the railings before the Senate House with the exception of a pathway of about five yards which the police were endeavouring to keep clear for those attending the honorary degree ceremony for Lord Kitchener. It was evidence that the constables were having hard work in keeping the crowds from encroaching. At length the looked-for rush took place and such was the force that the police were quite powerless to check it. A general scramble to get upon the railings ensued when without the slightest warning the railings suddenly gave way and fell outwards carrying many unfortunate persons to the ground with them. The solidity of this great piece of ironwork is well known and it is wonderful that more were not seriously injured. # c.02

Freezing library, p2

1898 11 25
The enthusiasm aroused by Lord Kitchener's visit to Cambridge increased as the day wore on. Varsity men, brim-full of high spirits, gathered in the streets in large numbers. For upwards of an hour thousands of people paraded the streets. It was not until eight o'clock that the cries of "bonfire" were heard. The call was eagerly taken up by hundreds of undergraduates and some boxes from a shop hard by were seized on as the fuel with which to start the blaze. Bands of men bearing massive wooden structures came up from all quarters and the flames mounted to an enormous height, so that the fire could be seen for miles around

1898 11 26
Readers of the "Cambridge Daily News" will have noticed that for many weeks past the amount of news gathered by our reporters has been so great that to insert the whole in any one edition is quite impossible. Under these circumstances a further enlargement of the paper has become necessary and accordingly we have put down a new type of machine by Messrs Dawson and sons which will print a sheet giving seven, eight or nine columns to the page. This is the fourth machine supplied by them. The three others, although in constant use, are well capable of doing their work (two are more than 10 years old) and are a credit to English workmanship. We hope in a very short time to give our readers the advantages which the laying down of this machine has rendered possible # c.04

1898 11 28
Cambridge victorious over Oxford, p2

1898 11 29
Nasty fall, p2
Police – grad cycling, wrong name, 3
Betting raid, p3

1898 11 30
Pawn boot, p3 *

December 1898 CDN

1898 12 01
Muscular development, p3 *
Brandon theatre, p3 *
Aldreth bridge, p3 *

1898 12 02
Regent Street sewer subsidence, p2
Assault at arms, p2

1898 12 05
Hatchet buried, p2 *
Salvation Army barracks, p2 *

1898 12 06
Two boys aged eight and nine were charged with unlawfully placing upon the L.& W N railway two trolley wheels and an axle with intent to obstruct a train at Little Eversden. Daniel Garner, driver of the engine from Cambridge to Bletchley, stated that after passing Lord's Bridge station he saw them on the line in front of him. He shut off the steam and applied the brake, but could not stop in time, and the trolley wheels were smashed to pieces. They were an odd pair of wheels, out of use, and were lying beside the line. The vicar of Comberton gave the boys a good character. They were bound over and cautioned not to go on to the line to play again

1898 12 07
University debate Sirdar's visit, p3
Cottenham ploughing match, p3

1898 12 08
Abbey Road bridge, p3

1898 12 09
As the Mail cart which runs between Huntingdon and Cambridge was proceeding through Hemingford Abbots the horse stumbled and fell on the granite which has recently been laid on the road, and cut its leg so badly that it could not proceed. The driver tried to borrow a horse to continue his journey. Colonel Dougal very kindly lent one of his nags and then his groom had to drive the Mail cart to St Ives where it arrived nearly an hour behind time. Other arrangements were made for continuing the journey to Cambridge

1898 12 09
The keeper of the coffee tavern in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, was summoned for permitting gaming. P.C. Wright stated he saw 15 boys and young men, several of whom were playing dominoes. He noticed they were playing a "run out game". He asked defendant whether he allowed the lads to play for anything and he replied "Yes, they play for coffee". The police said they were not allowed to play for money or money's worth. The chairman said it was most desirable to prevent gaming among boys but they did not think it was a very bad case and defendant would only have to pay the costs

1898 12 09
Few things are of greater utility and have more influence for good on village populations than the village institute. The public hall at Willingham is an institution that has thoroughly justified its existence, and to add still further to the many attractions of the place they have resolved upon a scheme for providing a piano. The question has been taken up right earnestly, and it is to be hoped that before long the worthy object will have been realised.

1898 12 10
Ploughing at Barley, p2

1898 12 12
A bus driver was summoned for being drunk whilst in charge of three horses and a bus at Quy. P.C. Edwards stated that an omnibus belonging to the Cambridge Omnibus Company, laden with passengers, and drawn by three horses overtook him near the Bottisham Swan, where passengers alighted. He overtook the bus halfway to the Prince Albert. Some of the passengers were then on the road, and the vehicle was on the wrong side, standing partially on the greensward between the hedge and the highway. One of the passengers said the driver was drunk and had nearly capsized the omnibus. The driver got down with difficulty and fell on the road and was so drunk that he could not get up again. He was fined 10s.

Traction engine in Norwich hotel, p3
Saffron Walden wells, p2

1898 12 13
The members of her family share with Queen Victoria a dislike to all unnecessary fuss and show. The Empress Frederick paid a visit to Cambridge yesterday, took a drive through the streets and left, but hardly anybody knew we had had a Royal visitor. So much of the lives of those who are in this high station is of necessity lived in public that one can well understand how glad they are to avoid, in as far as it is possible, the observation of the crowd. Cambridge would gladly have done her honour but it is a matter for satisfaction that the Empress's own will in regard to her visit was carried out so faithfully # c.02

1898 12 14
The proposal that as Christmas Day falls upon a Sunday the general holiday should extend not only over Boxing Day but also Tuesday has received substantial support in Cambridge. It would be difficult to exaggerate the extent to which this additional breathing space will be appreciated and no one will be seriously inconvenienced by the closing. Shopping in the town will be all the more brisk before Christmas, because there is to be a respite after, and assistants will put all the more heart into their work because of the good holiday that lies before them
American bowling saloon now open, p3

1898 12 15
A large number of buyers, graziers, farmers and visitors assembled at the Newmarket cattle market on the occasion of Mr George Blencowe's annual Christmas sale. During the morning all the roads presented a busy scene and as time drew near to the commencement of the sale the place became congested with latecomers, all anxious to unload in time. A preliminary look round the various stalls and pens showed 90 oxen and 300 good fat sheep. In accordance with the usual custom the prize winners were sold first with an Angus ox exhibited by Mr C. Morbey, Soham, eventually knocked down for £39
Christmas cheer shops, p3

1898 12 16
Parish constables' dinner, p3 & 17th p2
Littleport skating club, p3

1898 12 17
Mr Steven, vice principal of Newnham College Cambridge, in distributing the prizes at Kingston-on-Thames school for girls, said it was most undesirable, even in the highest classes, that more than an hour a day should be devoted by girls to home lessons. There were instances in which girls occupied far more time than was necessary over such work. In view of what has repeatedly been maintained respecting the prejudicial effect of over-study upon girls the statement of Miss Stevens, who speaks with a wide experience, is most important

1898 12 17
A stroll through Petty Cury, Cambridge and a glance at the shop windows of Boots Limited gives a good idea of the effort which this firm has made to cater for all tastes and all classes in the selection of Christmas presents. The windows have been dressed in a most skilful and artistic fashion and they look very effective. Articles of every conceivable description are on view and an inspection of the interior of the shop soon convinces one that for price and quality, the old adage, "go further and fare worse", very aptly applies. Those desirous of purchasing suitable presents for their cousins, their aunts, and sweethearts should pay a visit to Boots, in the Cury
Parish constables report, p3 *

1898 12 19
Parish constables, p2
Christmas cheer, p2
St Ives tossed by cow, p3

1898 12 21
When Judge Hawkins came to Cambridge on one occasion he essayed to bring his dog with him into Trinity College. But the head porter refused to allow it to be brought within the precincts and persisted even after it had been made known to him that it was the dog of one of her Majesty's judges. The judge was angry at the time, but sent for the head porter and told him that he was right, making him a present in recognition of his trustworthiness

Abbey House sale, p3 *
Christmas cheer, p3 *
Catling's muscle – workhouse wood, p3 & 23nd p2
Accident drayman, John Henry Savidge, p3

1898 12 22
A serious fire occurred at Chippenham. Details now to hand show that the Newmarket Jockey Club Owners and Trainers Fire Brigade have had an experience such as is seldom met with, having been on duty upwards of 18 hours, engaged in fighting a fire which at one time seemed likely to defy all efforts to get it in hand. Fordham Volunteer Fire Brigade was also sent for. It had been feared that the church would be endangered and Rev Mr Wickham climbed to the roof and poured water on the handsome stained glass memorial windows.
Christmas cheer

1898 12 22
Owing to the mildness of the season, Mr Lewis of Mill Road, Cambridge, is offering a thousand overcoats at half their original price, so that no one need be without warm clothing this Christmas time

1898 12 24
For some weeks preparations for Christmas time have been going forward, the markets have teemed with the good things of this life. Cambridge has had its own share in the general improvement that has taken place and the agricultural district has reported a better harvest than it has done for many years. We are therefore justified in holding a merry Christmas - merrier than usual. It is in the hope that the season that has now begun may be for each one a season of joy that the Cambridge Daily News wishes its readers – "A merry Christmas"
Sating prospects, p3

1898 12 27
Christmas *
Post office, p3 *
Xmas bathers, p4 *

1898 12 28
Life in the workhouse is not so eventful that Yuletide festivities are looked forward to with anything but eager anticipation. It is the one important event of the year, bringing with it liberal fare, relaxation of the necessarily somewhat stringent rules, visits and gifts from kindly disposed persons, enjoyable entertainments, and a general air of geniality and heartiness which even those whose lot has been beset with many misfortunes can enter into. It may safely be said that in no union are more strenuous efforts made in this direction than at Chesterton where the capable Master gives the inmates a genuinely happy time

1898 12 28
A strange discovery was made on Boxing Day at the Cambridge railway station by a cleaner. It appears that in the performance of his ordinary duties he was sweeping the carriages of a London and North Western train working between Cambridge and Bletchley, when he came across a brown paper parcel concealed under the seat of a third class compartment. Suspicious of its contents, the man removed it to the cloak room. The parcel was opened without delay and discovered to contain the dead body of a newly born male child.

1898 12 28
On Christmas Eve the parish authorities at Steeple Morden were called upon to perform a strange act of seasonal charity. A young woman who had been seen about the neighbouring villages on the previous day gave birth to a child under a hedge by the wayside, where she had lain down to sleep, in the bitterly cold weather. The spot was far from human habitations and when the officials came on the scene they found the woman in a helpless plight and the new-born child dead by her side. They had her conveyed to the Union workhouse at Royston.

1898 12 28
Mrs Fordham, who lived near the village schoolhouse at Stetchworth saw flames issuing from the top part of a thatched cottage occupied by a labourer named Gates. As she looked the flames spread to and ignited the roof of an adjoining habitation. She at once informed a neighbour who lost no time in running into the Live and Let Live inn and telling the news. Several men who were in the bar rushed out and were soon at work trying to stop the fire. The strong wind was wafting large pieces of burning thatch in all directions and it was feared these would set on fire other buildings. A heavy rain assisted in preventing the spread by thoroughly damping the thatch of cottages nearby.
Fire Exning, p4

1898 12 29
Horrible discovery, Chesterton, p3

1898 12 30
Gross neglect child, Witchford, p3
Caroline Rayner – her life, p3 *

1898 12 31
Recollection of year, p2
Rayner inquest, p3

1899 Cambridge Daily News
There are reader printer copies and scans

January 1899 CDN

1899 01 02
As 12 o'clock draws near on New Year's Eve in Cambridge the interest of the crowd is directed towards the House of Alderman Deck. For many years he has made himself responsible for a display of rockets on King's Parade as the Old Year gives place to the New; and he is not going disappoint his fellow townspeople tonight. Just a few minutes before twelve he leaves his house and set up the stand from which two rockets are to be fired on the causeway in front of the gates of King's College. While the expectant crowd eagerly looks on, he lights a fuse and just on the first stroke of twelve the first rocket, that in honour of the Old Year, is set off. It has hardly completed its flight when another rocket, that in honour of the New Year, shoots up into the sky # c.39

Our readers – circulation *

1899 01 03
A most extraordinary story has just come to light respecting the matrimonial affairs of a young woman residing in Cambridge. It appears she has been keeping company with a young man who lived away from Cambridge and it was arranged that the wedding should take place on Christmas Day. It transpired however that the laws with respect to residence in the district had not been complied with and the wedding was postponed until Sunday. The appointed hour drew near, but no bridegroom turned up, nor has he been seen since. Upon being shown the groom's photograph a police officer identified him as being "wanted" in connection with an assault which has since proved fatal. It is hoped the efforts of the police to bring such a heartless fellow to justice will prove successful

Melbourn Christmas revelry *
Will H.C. Moxon, p2

1899 01 04
However poor the local newspaper its files are the best source of information as to what has taken place in the district. It is only in the British Museum that files of the newspapers are preserved as a matter of course. In places where there are free libraries a good deal is done but very often the files are incomplete and in some cases the importance of preserving these records is not realised as it ought to be. County councils should undertake the work of filing these newspapers, of binding the volumes and keeping them in a place ready of access by the public # c.04 # c.77.4

Cardine Rayner death, p3
Wicken Hall suicide, p3

1899 01 05
Cambridge is by no means only place where little boys openly indulge in cigarette smoking. For youngsters this premature smoking is undoubtedly harmful. Up to the age of 21 every person should be a total abstainer from tobacco. Nevertheless while smoking by children is greatly to be deprecated there are not many that would go to the length of proposing that a by-law should be passed prohibiting smoking in the streets by children under 13. It is too late in the day: if his parents and teachers cannot cure him of the habit, it is to be feared that the task must be given as hopeless

Workhouse salary

1899 01 06
Saffron Walden bellringers

1899 01 09
Muddy streets, p2
Trumpington Rd, p2
Littleport baker, Lee, suicide, p2

1899 01 10
Joseph Redfarn, butcher of Mill Road, Cambridge stated he was walking by a shop in Gwydir Street. He saw a row of foot baths and pails standing in the gutter and on the roadway. About an hour afterwards he repassed the shop in a trap. The sun was shining on the pails and caused the horse he was driving to shy. The animal then went on to the path and fell, breaking the shaft off the cart. The defendant said one of his assistants put some pails and baths outside the front of the shop for the purpose of loading them on the van which was going out to the country. Another quantity of galvanised goods were bought to his shop by a G.N.R van

Red Cow concert & bowling saloon, p3

1899 01 10
At Royston Petty sessions a tramp described as a tailor out of employment was charged with feloniously stealing a pair of boots valued at 4s.11d. Prisoner was attired in a pair of policeman's trousers, with no boots on his feet, and only one sock. Joseph Reynolds, assistant to a baker in Gas road, Royston stated he saw prisoner against Mr Woods, the fishmongers shop. He saw him take a pair of boots which were hanging outside Messrs Soundy and Powell's shop. He gave information to P.C. Cookney of what he had seen

1899 01 11
The licensee of the Rising Sun inn at Isleham was charged with permitting gambling on his premises by raffling. P.C. Plumb said he found 20 men sitting in a back room and on a table was a basin. He saw a man throw dice from a dice box into the basin as he entered. Defendant acknowledged that raffling had been going on for a goose all day and a lot of bad characters were present. The goose had been won and taken away long before the constable visited the place.

1899 01 12
At Guildhall, London, a Cottenham Butcher was summoned for being the owner of four quarters of pork which were deposited in the Central Meat Market for the purpose of sale, the same being diseased and totally unfit for human food. The meat was in a filthy condition. Defendant said: "I ate the head and kidneys and drink the gravy, the meat was fit to eat". Superintendent Burrow of the Cambridgeshire Constabulary said he knew the man and believed he would eat anything. He lived in a wretched shed, the stench from which was abominable.

1899 01 13
Smoke at Free Library, p2
Stetchworth Shire horse sale, p2
Romsey Town Sunday beer, p3

1899 01 14
Within 10 miles of Cambridge in the centre of a respectable clean village (Cottenham), a man has been existing in a state which would have been discreditable to the savage. The shed is constructed of two rough brick walls, the dilapidations of which are filled in with mud and clay. For a roof there is a collection of boughs of trees and other pieces of odd wood, with an apology for thatch made of garden and field refuse. In one of the walls there are two casements stuffed up with old pieces of rag and sacking. At first sight one would think that it was an old disused piggery, too wretched even for swine, but the interior is a thousand times worse

1899 01 14

Sir - I should like to know how it is the children who come over a mile to Girton school cannot be provided with a little water to drink, as there is a well and a pump not 50 yards from the school doors. Some of the cottagers compare its water to Monkey Brand soap - it is not fit to wash clothes. If you put it in a copper and boil it there is a scum like yeast. It is no use letting the water be consumed and disease spread - Neptune

1899 01 16
St Ives innkeeper failure

1899 01 17
A very pleasant evening may be spent at the Red Cow Inn Concert Hall, Cambridge. The best of local talent is requisitioned and the concert hall promises to have a run of uninterrupted success, judging by the support which has already been given to the new venture. Its American bowling saloon is now also open

1899 01 18
A fire which might have resulted in a very large amount of destruction broke out in Petty Cury, Cambridge. Mr Baynes, manager to Messrs Pollard and company, confectioners informed police constable Leonard Savidge at 1.15am that his wife could smell something burning. It was discovered there was a fire at the back of the adjoining shop occupied by Mr George Jackson, butter merchant. The constable ascended to the roof but was unable to get into the yard. Mr Baynes obtained some buckets of water from a tap on the premises and handed them up to him to pour on the flames. Acting sergeant Wright on going into Caxton Court from Sydney Street, found a ladder by which means he got over the wall and there found that a butter barrel, containing a quantity of paper was on fire. There was a considerable quantity of empty boxes and other inflammable goods about the yard and if they had become ignited there would have been disastrous results # c.34.75

1899 01 19
Herbert Varlow, an agricultural and general engineer, residing and carrying on business at Benwick, Ely, claimed £500 from an engineer and wheelwright of West Fen engine, March. He stated the defendant wrote and published an advertisement in the "Peterborough Advertiser" intending to convey the meaning that his business was for sale and he had become insolvent. As a consequence two customers had broken off business. After the advertisement had appeared his creditors “well rounded on him”, several pressed him and one issued a writ. The defendant was a trade rival of his. The jury awarded him £150 damages
Girton water, p3

1899 01 20
Mr J. Wesley of Stretham gave a paper on deep cultivation to the Cambridgeshire Chamber of Agriculture. There were two classes of soils to deal with, namely those which required the subsoil to be brought to the top and others which required that it should be kept at the bottom. The black fenland lying on clay came under the first heading and he had found the ordinary plough or turn-round cultivator as used with most steam plough tackle was the best class of employment to work it.
Some years ago his firm was consulted by Charles Wright of Stretham as to the best means of breaking up the subsoil between where the land had been ploughed and the clay. It consisted of a dry block more resembling turf peat although much harder, which allowed water to penetrate.
A portion of the Land was worked as an experiment with a steam cultivator as deep as the cultivator would go. In some places the clay was brought up to the top, and afterwards sown with cole seed and thousand head kale and then folded off with sheep previous to its being farmed in the usual manner. Mr Wright was so satisfied that several fields were treated in the same way and the crop proved that it was a success. With regard to soils which required the subsoil to be kept at the bottom the only implement which could satisfactorily be employed was the subsoil plough. He used a balance plough with only one furrow and one tine to each end. The machine was tried and found to make a fairly good job of the work. The cost was less than half of what it would have been had the work been done by hand. With regard to the same operation for roots it had been proved that in a field planted with potatoes 59% more were raised on the piece sub soiled than on the rest of the field. He had grown a magnificent crop. In every case in which this implement was used the people wanted it again C.I.P. 20 January 1899

1899 01 23
The telegraph service in Cambridge is insufficient as the Telegraph office is closed at 10 o'clock. Only a few years ago it kept open until eleven. In villages whose residents seldom need to send a telegram at night the outlay would not be justified but as far as Cambridge is concerned an all-night service would be very much appreciated. The cost would be small in comparison to the convenience afforded. When it is borne in mind that the university has ties with all part of the world, can it be doubted that it is very often a matter of great inconvenience that it is impossible to send a message by telegram, between 10 at night and eight in the morning?

1899 01 23
Sir - there are many schools that have no water supply at all on their own premises, where the children have to depend on “kind and motherly” neighbours who are good enough to attend to the children's wants in this respect. I do not know how many children attend Girton school but can only feel amazed at the task of the kind neighbour who was equal to the work of filtering and supplying the thirsty little throats of the village school children during such a drought as we experienced in 1898. She is undoubtedly well worthy of an honourable position in the annals of Girton - Rusticus

1899 01 24
A sad affair has occurred at Linton which resulted in the death of an eleven year old girl. The mother was seen to be taking the child to the railway station. It was noticed that the girl was ill, and clung to the fence. When at the station she collapsed, and slipping off the seat, was put back again with some force. At this time she was foaming at the mouth and became unconscious. Mr D.B. Herbert, the station master, acted in a most remain way and had the girl removed to his house. The doctor found she was suffering from malignant scarlet fever and she died the same evening

1899 01 24
One of the largest fires which have occurred in Chippenham broke out on Monday night. It appears that captain Howlett was in the village on fire brigade business connected with the previous fire, when a boy dashed in shouting that the barn at the rear of the Tharp Arms public house was on fire. He lost no time in wiring for as the Newmarket and Fulbourn Fire Brigade. Twenty villagers mounted the roof of a long range of thatched cottages in Church Lane and passed buckets from man to man in order to prevent the flames which were now licking the cottages. By sheer hard work the fire was held in check until the brigade arrived. They pulled down all places or goods in the vicinity which seemed likely to ignite and were able to confine the outbreak to something like reasonable proportions. Without the army of helpers the whole of the village lying to windward of the outbreak would probably have been involved
Rayner inquest – murder, p3

1899 01 25
Sir - your correspondent appears to forget that where there is a village school there is generally a village. The children obtain at home most of the water they drink. In the dinner hour and in the intervals in the midst of morning and afternoon school, the thirsty little ones can, as a rule, run to their parents’ house for what they require. There is ample supply always ready for the little scholars from a distance, who eat their dinners on school premises, and at other times no really thirsty child is sent away empty. It should be remembered that the hottest weather generally occurs in the harvest holidays. During the time I have been a manager of the school at Girton, I have never had a complaint about the water supply from child, or parent or teacher. It is unfortunately true that many children come to our school in a very dirty condition - J D Lawrence

Clara Butt concert, p2
Caroline Rayner murder verdict, p3

1899 01 26
The school of Papworth Everard is closed, and the children who used to attend it are enjoying a prolonged holiday. The school is closed because there is no money wherewith to keep it open. It seems it was so much beholden to Mr E T Hooley, that when that millionaire became a bankrupt the school was closed. On the most optimistic view it is not likely that a man whose estate today yields only for shillings in the pound to his creditors will be in a position to give away money in charity tomorrow. Some at least of the children will have got beyond school age by the time Mr Hooley is again the free-handed millionaire

1899 01 26
Milk supply, p2
Aldreth & Clayhithe bridges

1899 01 27
The subjugation of England to golf proceeds at a rapid race. Cambridge has already done homage to the Scottish game, and announcements made this week on behalf of Caius College shows that the popularity is still on the increase. Caius propose to devote about 250 acres of land on the Gog Magog hills to the formation of a golf links. A suggested course of 18 holes has already been staked out by Duncan, the professional. # c.38 : golf
Girton water supply, p3

1899 01 28
Growing Cambridge, p2

1899 01 30
A gas explosion occurred at Royston workhouse. It seemed for some time the master had suspected a defect in the pipes owing to the large quantity of gas that has been registered by the meter. On Friday escaping gas was detected in the front part of the House. A short time afterwards a loud report was heard in a room used by the male cook. The partition of lathe and plaster which divides it had been blown right across the table, the debris, which included a deal of crockery, being scattered in all directions. Had the explosion occurred a little later the cook would have been seriously injured, as his table was laid for tea at the time of the explosion.

1899 01 31
Girton school, p2

February 1899 CDN

1899 02 01
Officials at Saffron Walden workhouse have had another exciting experience with a tramp. A strongly built callous-looking man he is only secure when in the hands of the law. The attention of the Labour master had been drawn to his cell and he entered. The first inclination they had of what was going on was the delivery of the leg of a night commode at their heads by the man who was standing on his bed in a defiant attitude. Seeing that he meant further mischief an attempt was made to secure him. It was not until the labour master dealt him a blow that he could be handcuffed. In court he sprang upon the union master, striking him a blow on the mouth, and another between the eyes, and it was with difficulty that he was floored and handcuffed. During this procedure prisoner's language was of the vilest character.

1899 02 01
At a meeting to consider the financial position of Cambridge University it was said there was a traditional belief that it was in possession of ample means to enable it to carry on its great work. No conclusion could possibly be more remote from the actual facts. Its fees for tuition had been raised to the limit of productiveness. It was deficient in buildings of all kinds and crippled in the provision of the necessary educational staff. Such ancient universities had to recognise the extent to which new universities competed with them in the way of diverting some portion of the stream of private liberality

1899 02 02
The amount of good which results from the presence in our midst of Addenbrooke's hospital is incalculable. In one important particular, however the work is limited and confined: the want of a suitable home for convalescent patients. The Hunstanton home is much appreciated but receives no surgical cases which require the smallest dressing, which limits its usefulness to patients, many of whom linger on in hospital for several weeks, when probably a very short time at the sea side would restore them to compete health. Now some friends have guaranteed to start a convalescent home exclusively in connection with Addenbrooke's, and another donor has promised to give a house at Hunstanton in furtherance of the scheme

1899 02 04
Mr J.W. Iliffe told the annual staff dinner of the C.D.N. that he remembered when the Daily News was a puny infant and they were looking forward to the enterprise justifying itself. What Cambridge would be without its Daily News he really could not venture to think. When he first knew this borough they were satisfied with news coming out once a week in several papers, and they thought they were fairly up to date, and progressing satisfactorily, but they had no idea that any daily paper could survive. It was Mr Taylor's proud lot to start the venture, and prove not only that a daily paper could live, but that it could achieve a magnificent success
Swaffham Prior cemetery, p3

1899 02 07
Rival cabbies, p2
Building Society secretary missing, p3 *
Linton murder, p4

1899 02 08
The funeral of John Sanderson took place at Guilden Morden. Deceased was well known as in addition to being a carrier to Royston he was a familiar figure at the feasts held in the district. On the arrival of the corpse at his home, the window of the cottage had to be removed before the coffin could be placed in the house. It was made of stout elm, and measured 6ft 9in in length, 2ft 6 in width. The weight of the coffin and corpse was estimated at 40 stone. The new bier was brought into requisition and found to be only just wide enough to admit the coffin being placed upon it.

1899 02 09
The attention of the University Council of Senate has been called to the disorder which attended the bonfire on November 24th, 1898 when the actual destruction of property was considerable. They recommend that members of the University are forbidden to take part in making or lighting of bonfires in public places within the precincts of the university. Members offending will render themselves liable to be punished by suspension, rustication, expulsion or otherwise.

1899 02 10
Cambridge University have favoured the establishment of an Agricultural Department and the creation of a Professorship of Agriculture. Students who are likely in the future to be owners or managers of land will have the opportunity of acquiring a knowledge of the scientific principles underlying the sound practice of agriculture and of the ways in which our ancestors met problems and difficulties which they, like us, had to face. # c.36.9
Newmarket runaway, p4

1899 02 11
Sir – In order to affix the new clock St Matthews's church bells have been floored. A very strong protest should be made against the bells being again re-hung, for of all the abominable, discordant clanging, nothing can be compared to them for wretched sound. Instead of drawing people to church, they are calculated to drive people away from them as fast as possible. The effect on the nerves of the poor inhabitants is dreadful. They should be condemned as a most intolerable nuisance to a large section of the people in this thickly populated district – "Cantab" # c.69.2

1899 02 11
Samuel Kisby Breese of the firm of coal merchants, St Ives, told the story of his career and ultimate bankruptcy. He had started when seven years old and commenced as partner to his brother 20 years ago. His father had died in 1840 and his mother carried on the business. When she died they took it over. He did not think the business was solvent then. When the navigation of the Ouse was stopped it cost them about £100 a year. They lost thirteen horses and another time three barges were sunk. They were laden with wheat and they had to pay £50 damage

Chrishall fire, p2 *

1899 02 13
Chippenham fire, p2-3

1899 02 14
Chippenham fire, p3 *
Hemingford vicar killed railway *

1899 02 15
At the Manor Farm, Waresley a freak of nature was to be seen. This was a healthy, ordinary-sized lamb, born with 10 legs, each having perfect hoofs and joints. It was quite a healthy specimen and took milk readily. Six of the legs were on one side and four on the other. It has since died.
Hemingford vicar death * p3

1899 02 16
Mr Slingsby drew the attention of Cambridge council to the want of public conveniences. He thought the present state of affairs was a disgrace and a scandal to this civilised and intellectual town. They should consider underground lavatories for males and females at Hyde Park Corner (under the shelter), Market Hill (under the Conduit) & at the junction of East Road and Newmarket Road.

1899 02 16
"On Saturday last during the height of a great gale some farm buildings in Chippenham were found to be on fire and in an incredible short space of time six cottages were ablaze. So rapid was the spread of the flames that the unfortunate inmates had only bare time to snatch unfortunate children from their beds. When they escaped they found themselves cut off from the rest of the village and several women were afterwards found almost naked huddled behind a haystack and had to be taken over ploughed fields to a place of shelter""- James Wickham, (vicar)

1899 02 17
Yesterday afternoon the attention was attracted by what seemed to be an imposing funeral procession. But this was no ordinary funeral for instead of the usual hearse an open landau led the way and this was occupied by three young men who wore "the trappings of woe" very lightly. Following were nearly a score of hansoms. It is alleged that at the end of last term at student of Queens' college "ragged" a couple of Freshmen's rooms. The matter was reported to the University authorities who came to the conclusion he should be sent down for a year. His friends resolved to show their disapproval. Before the train left the company whistled the "Dead March" and it left amid ringing cheers. # c.36.999 # c.39

Forgiving rector, p2

1899 02 18

Hemingford Grey vicar funeral

1899 02 19 c
Sir the very narrow escape of a highly respectable burgess from death through the fall of a high wall in Union Road should sound a note of alarm. There are several high walls in the centre of Cambridge towering up to great heights that are standing very much on the skew, ready for falling which would be much improved by a lowering process. Cambridge is a town noted for many bye-laws, good, bad and indifferent, which can be twisted to suit all occasions when brought into requisition – "Cantab"

1899 02 20
Sutton store bankruptcy, p3

1899 02 21
On April 25th 1599 Oliver Cromwell was born at Huntingdon. On April 25th 1899 meetings will be held in Huntingdon to celebrate the three-hundredth anniversary of the birth of its greatest son. What form these celebrations should take has not yet been decided. There is talk of erecting a statue of Cromwell and the authorities of the Grammar School, which was Cromwell's school, have resolved to signalise the occasion by making an appeal for funds for its re-building.

1899 02 22
Chippenham fire theft, p3

1899 02 23
Inspectors of the Local Government Board held an inquiry at Newmarket respecting the proposed new main drainage schemes for the district. The sewers had been a source of difficulty and trouble in consequence of its faulty construction. The present sewage farm had caused constant complaints. The method of exposing sewage in trenches or ditches to stagnate was so very unsatisfactory that it was likely to cause a serious nuisance. Last year a scheme had to be abandoned in consequence of the Burwell Fen Commissioners objecting to the discharge of effluent on their fen

1899 02 24
Cambridge Sturton Street Co-operative branch were told of the progress during the past year. Sales in the grocery department amounted to £5,500, an increase of 10 per cent. The butchery department had made a steady increase and there was a great increase in the coal trade. In the drapery department such a satisfactory state of affairs did not exist, for the trade was stationary, if not on the decline. The management or its members were to blame somewhere or other

1899 02 25
A meeting of Cambridgeshire Chamber of Agriculture resolved that compulsory attendance at school, by which the sons of farm labourers are prevented from obtaining employment on the farm up to the age of 11 years, prevents boys from becoming farm labourers and seriously interferes with the supply of that most valuable body of men – the skilled farm labourers of England. Almost all the good labourers began work in some form or another when eight or nine years old.

Navy league, p3

1899 02 27
The motor car has come to stay. So common have they become that even the boy in the streets will hardly turn his head to look at one. The demand for cycles, and, in its own degree, for motors has stimulated in an extraordinary degree the manufacture of both. Of motor cars there are already in the field as many styles as there are horse vehicles. There is thus sufficient material to invest an exhibition which will appeal to those who cycle or "mote" (to use the new-fangled and ugly verb)

Agricultural labourer & education, p3

1899 02 28
Wooden roads, p2 *
Motor car exhibition

March 1899 CDN

1899 03 01
The hitherto quiet little village of Longstanton has been engaged in a labour struggle, a battle between farmers and farm servants. The cause of dispute was originally the hours of labour, but at a later stage the question of wages was brought in. It was decided to ask to work from 7am to 5pm – a ten hour's day, with half an hour for breakfast and an hour for dinner out of it. Four out of five farmers refused to make the concession. The result was that nearly 40 agricultural labourers "came out" on strike.
Guildhall organ, p2
Chippenham fire trial, p3
Motor cycle exhibition, p3

1899 03 02
Next year the lease under which the Cambridge Tramways Company has the use of the streets expires. They have entered into negotiations with the British Electric Company for the sale of their undertakings. Subject to the Town Council giving its assent a sale has been arranged. They will introduce electric trams and considerably extend the present system of tram lines. # c.26.4555

1899 03 03
Huntingdon infectious diseases

1899 03 04
Some time ago a man living in the Isle of Ely was suffering apparently from some disease of a cancerous nature; and his face and neck terribly swollen. He was discharged from Addenbrooke's Hospital as nothing could be done for him. He appeared on the verge of sinking when a woman said: "I know what will cure you. And it is this only. You must rub your face and neck with a dead woman's hand". Soon afterwards he heard a woman had died, he went to the house; his request was granted, and he spent a long time in the operation. He quickly recovered and is now hearty and well

Bird catching, p3

1899 03 06
Some of the inner workings of parochial life in Madingley were laid bare and some astonishing revelations of the relations existing between the incumbent and some of his parishioners were made at a court held by the Chancellor of the diocese. The vicar applied for a faculty confirming certain alterations in the church. This was opposed by Col. H.W. Hurrell, owner of Madingley Hall who also presented a faculty to remove a stone altar which had been placed in the chancel.
Chippenham fire letters, p2
Madingley squire & priest, p3-4 *
Brampton ghostly sight, p3 *
Plasterers' dispute. P3

1899 03 07
At a meeting at Girton for electing parish councillors the schoolmaster raised the question of the parish pump and remarked that the state of affairs with regard to the water supply was disgraceful, more than one-third of the houses having either no water supply or water unfit to drink and as the council had taken no steps to remedy the matter they were guilty. Cries of "Puppy soup", "Cesspool drainings" etc were frequently heard
Sanger circus advert, p4

1899 03 08

Littleport bells, p2
Girton & water, p3

1899 03 09
Wicken Fen is the last fragment of virgin fen. Portions of the fen are often in the market for sale, and the National Trust are desirous of securing a few acres from time to time, so that they may be retained in their primeval state. It is desirable that this piece of the England of long ago should be retained in order that Englishmen of this and future generations may be able to realise what the fenland was.

East Road fire, rear Reading Room, p3

1899 03 11
An Italian was charged with riding on the Great Eastern Railway from Wimblington to Histon without having previously paid his fare. James Franklin, a guard, said he saw the prisoner get into the train. At Swavesey station some boys informed him there was a man under the seat in the railway carriage. The man said he had been in the country for six months and had been obtaining his living by playing a concertina, but the instrument had gone wrong, and he had no money to buy a new one. The police-court missionary is looking after the case.

1899 03 13
The grass which grows in luxuriance on the banks of the Devils ditch at Burwell caught fire about 1½ miles from the main road from Cambridge to Newmarket. Very quickly the undergrowth on the side farthest from Newmarket in both the ditch and on the bank was ablaze. Portions of the Heath became ignited. Assistance was quickly forthcoming from the farm and houses in the vicinity, but the fire had extended about a mile before it could be got under control. It is believed that a lighted match was dropped by someone passing

Fletcher coming back, p3

1899 03 14
Some time since the Newmarket council, in the face of much opposition, decided to apply for an electric light installation for "Turfville". On Friday the section which supplies Palace Street was tested and Mr Leopold de Rothschild's Palace was ablaze with an effulgence from the many incandescent bulbs which have been fitted all over the premises. On Saturday the High Street was also tested. It remains for tonight, barring accident, for the whole of the cables to be made alive with the full power

1899 03 15
A girl told the court she was employed as a housekeeper at Kimbolton castle in 1893 .The Duke of Manchester paid but very few visits to the castle, so that the establishment was not kept going as it would have been. All sorts of difficulties seem to have arisen. She had received a month's notice to leave and proceeded to pack her boxes, but the Duchess, a German governess and a servant came to her room and the boxes were opened and searched. There were some things in her boxes which belonged to the Castle and she had been locked up.

Littleport bells, p2
Another dead hand cure, p3

1899 03 16
Sanger's circus, p2
Guide's death – guided visitors, p3
Girton water supply, p3

1899 03 18
An extraordinary scandal took place at Long Sutton, near Spalding, after the vicar, finding a child had not been baptised, refused to conduct its burial service. The coffin was placed in the grave, and the sexton was about to cover it when the father objected and asked for a service of some sort, if only the reading of the Lord's Prayer. The vicar declined and the sexton removed the coffin from the grave and placed it in the belfry. The affair has created quite a sensation in the locality

1899 03 18
A Newmarket policeman died due to injuries received during the early hours of Friday morning. It is presumed he walked along the railway line in the direction of the old platform of the town station as he spoke to the night watchman who was cleaning the carriages in a siding. Later he was seen wandering about in a lane, suffering from bad concussion of the brain and a severe fracture of the skull. There are some deep pits over which laden trucks of coal are brought and the coal unloaded and in one of these was found his helmet and lantern, its sides battered in # c.34.7

Milton horsemen, p3

1899 03 20
A Cambridge meeting were told that people who knew absolutely nothing about meat were appointed as inspectors, the result being that sound meat was often condemned and bad meat passed. Half the butchers in Cambridge had no slaughterhouse on their premises and it would be advantageous to have properly equipped slaughterhouses rather than have animals killed in some of the private ones. Animals were sent to London which no one present would care to eat and few local butchers expose in their own shops.

Newmarket policeman, p3
Perambulation in streets, p3

1899 03 21
Weather of a wintry character was experienced in Cambridge when a heavy snowstorm of upwards of two hours duration entirely changed the aspect of things and everything is now wearing a mantle of snow, some to a depth of eight inches. The tramways were forced by the state of their lines to suspend their service and ordinary vehicular traffic was rendered extremely uncomfortable, if not dangerous. Corporation employees were soon dispatched in all directions with shovels, brooms and carts to clear the principal streets.

Newmarket police inquest, p3
Dutton – Giddings, grocer, failure, p3

1899 03 22
The shareholders of the Cambridge and District Starr-Bowkett Building Society are now in full possession of all the facts concerning the absconding secretary. The news of his departure from the town leaked out in February when he failed to appear at the annual audit of the Society's accounts. The disclosures were of a startling character, showing defalcations amounting to upwards of £700. The society has been in existence about 12 years and has a membership roll of upwards of 430 # c.32.4

Sutton – Giddings grocer failure, p3 *

1899 03 23
Easter Monday buses, p2
Ely weather. P3
Chesterton fire, p3 & 25th p2

1899 03 23 c
The result of the boat race was awaited with the greatest interest in Cambridge. The news that Cambridge had won was received at the office of the Cambridge Daily News within two minutes of the finish and in less than three minutes the Special Edition of the C.D.N. containing the welcome intelligence was selling on the streets. Needless to say, everybody was delighted that the Light Blues had been victorious

1899 03 24
A good deal of amusement was caused at the Cambridge police court when a child whose head could only just be seen above the dock was charged with wilfully damaging a window at Comet-yard. It was said she threw a snowball and it hit the window, cracking it right across. Witness cautioned her and she then threw 12 others, as fast as she could. He spoke to her mother who used bad language, tried to clutch at his whiskers and threatened to pull them out. Then she got a shovel of snow and threw it over him. & 25th p2

Soham urban district proposal, p3

1899 03 25
Madingley squire & priest – see 27th *

1899 03 27
The normal quiet of the pretty little village of Hemingford Grey has again been broken, a situation similar in many respects to that some three years ago. At that time a strong protest was entered against the action of the majority of the newly established School Board that led to the dismissal of the then schoolmaster. The parishioners felt that there was no justification for the step and went to the length of memorialising the government in the matter. But the opposition was ineffectual. Now a proposal to dismiss the present master has raised intense feelings in the parish

Madingley judgement, p2

1899 03 28
A Somersham labourer was summoned for refusing to quit the Royal Oak, Pidley, when requested by the landlord. Defendant was in the house between four and five o'clock and used bad language. When asked to leave he would not and "no two men in Pidley could put him out". He appeared very excited. After he had been put out he came back and knocked very hard on the door, there were blood marks on the door from his knuckles. Defendant said he was too drunk to know what did happen. He was fined £1

Chesterton horse club, p2

Pidley pub drunkp3 *

1899 03 29
Sunday papers

1899 03 30
The huge army of destitute men, women and children who are to-day aimlessly walking the country from one end to the other presents almost insurmountable difficulties to the State as well as to individual communities. Nor is the evil a diminishing one and the man on the road has come to be regarded as a pest of society. Here in Cambridge he may be seen any day in our midst, his distinguishing features being his dilatory gait and his wretchedly squalid and unwholesome appearance

1899 03 30 c
Sawston gave its answer with no uncertain force to those who had forced a contest on the village for the election of members of the School Board. About 8.30 o'clock a crowd began to congregate in front of the board school to wait for the declaration and then it leaked out that there was a difference of one vote between the two Progressives at the bottom of the poll. The result came as a great surprise to the progressive party, who had made no secret of the fact that they considered defeat impossible on their canvas.

April 1899 CDN

1899 04 01
An outcome of the exhibition of motors at the Corn Exchange is a new company under the title of the Cambridge and Eastern Counties Auto Mobile Company. The first instalment of the new vehicles have already arrived and they can be booked for parties. They are driven by the Daimler motors, and are in charge of qualified drivers from the manufactory # c.26.48

1899 04 01
At midnight the new clock which has been erected at St Matthews Church, Cambridge, will chime for the first time. Until recently the bells of the church hung outside the building, but now a turret has been erected at the West End and here the clock has been placed. It is "Ting Tang" quarter clock erected as a memorial to the vicar's late wife.

Abbey Road bridge, p3

1899 04 02 c
The Red Cow Inn concert hall, Guildhall Street, Cambridge. Special engagement for six nights of Miss Sadie St John, comedienne and dancer; Miss Gracie White, serio and dancer and Mr G. Kent, comedian and mimic. American bowling saloon now open. – Advert

1899 04 03
My father was formerly foreman of works over the restoration of Haddenham church, during which time a steeplejack accidentally fell off the church and was killed. It is now rumoured that my father, while in hospital, confessed to pushing the man from the building, causing his death. I wish to give an unqualified denial to any such rumours which cast reflections on a man of upright integrity - Water William Lynn

1899 04 04
Extraordinary divorce case, p2 *
Tudor's Circus, p4

1899 04 06
Another public house has been handed over to the management of the People's Refreshment House Association Limited. The latest acquisition is the new Rose and Crown Hotel which has just been erected by the Duke of Bedford at Thorney, Cambridgeshire. It will be managed more as a house of general refreshment than as a mere drinking bar and food and non in-toxicants will be given prominence

1899 04 07
Madingley vestry

1899 04 08
Cambridge is famed for two things: its university and its sausages. Why should a great university and good sausages go together? The only solution is that there was a demand on the part of the University for good sausages, and that the demand created the supply. A butcher at Wellington, New Zealand advertises that "having now secured the services of a university man we can supply real Cambridge sausages at five lbs for one shilling". He is clearly of the belief that at the University of Cambridge the making of sausages is a special branch of instruction. Such is fame!

1899 04 08

The annual vestry was held in at St Ives when there was a large attendance of church people, and also a number of nonconformists. It was expected there would be some "life" infused into the proceedings owing to the usual printed notices not having been issued, no notices placed on the chapel doors, and the time and place of the meeting had been altered. Those who went with the object of enjoying the "fun" were not disappointed. Mr Osbourne said they were on the eve of another change of vicar. These changes had come more frequently than some of them wished.

1899 04 10
The foolhardiness of trespassing on the railway has been strikingly exemplified by a shocking accident near Black Bank station a few miles from Ely. A platelayer after drinking with a friend at the Railway Tavern proceeded homewards along the railway. It was one of the darkness of nights, and the wind, howling across the fens, probably had the effect of making the noise of an approaching train inaudible. Both men had only covered a short distance when one observed the light of a train at close quarters and shouted to his companion, who unfortunately stepped the wrong way and thus met his fate.

1899 04 10
Frederick Morden told Cambridge court that the prisoner represented himself to be the representative of Messrs Stubbs Directory & asked if his advertisement should be inserted for another year. The price of the advertisement was four shillings which he paid. Later another representative called canvassing for the 1900 directory and he paid another five shillings. The managing director of Stubbs publishing said the prisoner had been employed as an agent for many years but had heard nothing from him since September. On searching the prisoner a number of slips of paper containing the names of different tradesmen were found. # c.47.4

1899 04 11
The lady Churchwarden is still something of a novelty, nevertheless she has come to stay. At the recent Easter vestry at Thetford, near Ely, Miss Jarrow was for the sixth times in succession elected people's Churchwarden, and the election had the hearty approval of the Rector who spoke in the highest terms of her ability and the way she managed the parish accounts. But Great Staughton in Huntingdonshire has gone one better and both the Churchwardens are ladies. So far this is the only parish in the country which can boast of two lady churchwardens

Haverhill dice, p11

1899 04 12
Sir - it is not true that West Wratting parish charities gave coal to well-to-do labourers, earning good wages. There are no good wages given in the parish; eleven shillings a week, out of which 1s.6d weekly is deducted for rent, cannot be said to be good. No labourer to whom it was distributed had three fat pigs in his sty. One man certainly had two, much to his credit and diligence. He was half blind, had lost one eye, was a widower, and had had a son out of work for several months. When it was found that it was impossible for the charity to give such a man a dole, a gentleman, much interested in the welfare of these poor labourers, gave this man a hundredweight of coal out of his own stock. - "One who knows"

1899 04 12
A few of the employees at the Cambridge post office had been tempting fortune by "backing their fancies", but luck was against them, and the bookmaker had considerably the better of the deal. They conceived a plan. Bets are made frequently by post and telegram, lately one bookmaker noticed that post office employees had an unusual run of luck. Inquiries were made and a well thought-out system was working by which their communications to the bookmaker, though stamped with the time some hours before the race, were not dropped into the letter bags until the result of the race was known. In this way they have been raking-in considerable sums

Emmanuel college bones, p3 *

Building Society meeting, p3

1899 04 14
The greasy state of the asphalt road near Christ's College, Cambridge, was responsible for a nasty accident. About one o'clock Major Francis of Mill House, Quy, was driving a horse attached to a light spring cart, when the animal slipped down and the Major was thrown violently to the ground. His coachman jumped from the vehicle and escaped injury. Major Francis was not so fortunate. His fall shook him severely, and when two constables came to his assistance he was in a semi-conscious state.

1899 04 14
An artist, residing at Hemingford Grey petitioned for divorce. In 1896 he took a house for the summer at St Ives and his wife became acquainted with the co-respondent who bore a bad character in the neighbourhood with regard to his conduct with ladies. Later on he heard rumours about the village regarding respecting his wife's conduct and she left next day. A few days after there was a great commotion, effigies of her and the co-respondent being burned opposite the house.

1899 04 15
Exning workhouse

1899 04 17
Crisp & co profits drop, p3
Newmarket Teachers Union, p4

1899 04 18
Tudor's circus provides thoroughly enjoyable evening's amusement, and large numbers continue to take advantage of the efficient catering. This week Mr Tudor has been successful in securing the services of George Lockhart and his troupe of performing elephants. They perform many clever tricks & a series of gymnastics exercises. The smallest of the three rides a tricycle around the arena; the older two waltz to slow music and the three combine in a short - happily short - concert and perform other diverting antics. The turn arouses a great deal of enthusiasm, and is really worth seeing

Poisoned grain, p3
Death Hale Wortham, clerk County Council

1899 04 19
The days of the Cambridge Spinning House are numbered. It is to be pulled down in order that a house of detention after the best approved modern ideas may arise on its site. There is no more stirring chapter in the history of modern Cambridge than that which this forbidding looking building in St Andrews Street recalls. It speaks of many things which the Cambridge of today is glad to forget. It is an ugly monument of an ugly feud between the authorities of the University and town. The feud is dead: would that the razing to the ground of the Spinning House were sufficient to efface all memory of it

Proposed new police and fire station, p3*

1899 04 19
An inquiry held heard that half of the Spinning House was occupied as a police station. It had been built about 1840 and was far from up to date. There was no difference between the accommodation for male and female prisoners, and any women that might be kept in the police station all night had to be attended to by police constables on duty, there being no female warders or matrons. The cells were clean and in good order but were quite inadequate for the requirements of the town

1899 04 20
O.G. Smith surrenders

1899 04 21
An exhibition of articles produced by students attending technical education classes was opened at Cambridge Guildhall. Many samples of straw plaiting work were entered by pupils from Guilden Morden, Steeple Morden and Tadlow. It is to be hoped that after another 12 months instruction the revival of straw plaiting in these localities as an industry will be an established fact

Singular occurrence, p2

1899 04 22
Cambridge Corporation & advertisements, p2
Fire near Newmarket, p3

1899 04 25
Tudor's Circus, Auckland road, Cambridge. At great expense. Engagement of the greatest Wonder on Earth. The Colibris midgets, nine in number, nine Lilliputian people as read of in Gulliver's travels. These miniature male and female artistes ranging from 21 to 29 inches in height, acknowledged to be the marvels of the age. See the midget acrobatics, the midget Christy minstrels, the midget gymnastics and equilibrists, the midget musical grotesques, the midget vocalists. See their handsome midget ponies and the magnificent miniature carriages – Advert

Loitering omnibuses, p2
Cromwell's associations, p3
Barkway death, p3 & 26th p3

1899 04 26
The inconsistency with which Great Britain treats her soldiers is illustrated at a coroner's inquest at Linton concerning the death of John Lindsell. He was a farm servant, 68 years of age. While at his work he fell off a ladder and in a week he was dead. No blame attached to anyone. He had served in the Crimean War where he received a shot through the shoulder. But in old age and feeble health he was compelled, that he might have bread for his wife and himself, to do the hard work of a farmer servant

Cottenham curate & cycle agent, p3
Cromwell celebration, p4

1899 04 27
No small amount of excitement has been aroused in the villages between Cambridge and Harlow during the past few days, by a nightly succession of robberies from churches. No less than seven or eight have been entered but the thieves have not repaid themselves for their trouble. However, they are evidently adept at their nefarious calling, for they eluded the vigilance of the police, who have thoroughly scoured the district. At Pampisford the church was broken into. The miscreants were evidently in search of booty, for the bureau in the vestry was forced open, but they found nothing. A candle was used, as tallow grease was found in the vestry

Indifferent Ely, p2
Newmarket fake alarm, p3

1899 04 28
Ely council heard that at Littleport all well water was condemned for drinking purposes, the only supply left being the river. Many houses were not provided with water tanks or cisterns, and many instances water was actually being sold for weeks in dry weather, when there was no rain. This rain water was subject to contamination from birds and smoke, and required filtering to be palatable and safe. No doubt the outlay for a pure water supply would cause a little outcry at first, but advantages would far surpass the disadvantages and additional rates

1899 04 28
Under the auspices of the Free Church Federation the Cromwell tercentenary was celebrated at Huntingdon. Flags and bunting were liberally displayed, and the town wore a holiday aspect. About 500 people sat down to a public luncheon. An afternoon demonstration on Market Hill numbering thousands of people opened with the singing of the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers"

Athletics need, p2
Bicycling with hands off, p3

1899 04 29
In supporting the Cambridge town council recommendations that their advertisements should be inserted in the three oldest newspapers only, Mr Alderman Joshua Taylor said they would then surely have those with the largest circulation. He is a director of the company which owns the "Cambridge Express. We claim circulation of the "Cambridgeshire Weekly News", in its various editions, exceeds the combined circulation of any two of the three papers selected by the Corporation." If he can show this claim is incorrect we undertake to pay £10 to Addenbrooke's Hospital

May Queen election, p3

May 1899 CDN

1899 05 01
Ditton Plough prices, p1
Horningsea Friendly Society, p2
Pigeon shooting at Newmarket, p3
Railway clerks combine, p3

1899 05 02
At the swearing-in of parish constables at Bottisham Mr Alex said their duties had of late become partially obsolete. Parish constables were the rank and file of the civil army of the country. The office was a most important one, and the county was taking steps to revise the fees of parish constables, and was trying to put them on a more active basis than it had been for many years. In that way they would serve their Queen better, and deserve the thanks of the country

Mutton Row, Swaffham Prior, p2 *
Education – interview, J.W. Iliffe, p3

1899 05 03
The tripe season. Established over 50 years. E. J. Edwards, Fitzroy Street, Cambridge. The only wholesale and retail neats' feet and tripe dresser, and glaze manufacturer. Eat Edwards' tripe (fresh boiled daily). Recommended by the most eminent medical men as a safe cure for weak stomach and impaired digestion. All the leading colleges and hotels supplied. - Advertisement

1899 05 04
Filthy almshouses, Chesterton, p2 *
Cambridge cabmen union, p3
St Ives Vestry – reply, p3

1899 05 06c
Some small boys playing in a field adjoining Victoria Wine, Cambridge, discovered the mangel wurzel cutting machine. A five year old boy named Sydney Baron put his hand in the machine, and another youngster at that moment turned the handle, with the result that one of the lad's fingers was crushed, and had to be amputated

1899 05 08

Coldham's Common, Cambridge where the Suffolk Regiment is to undergo its annual training is a scene of bustle and animation, the recruits of the regiment having arrived to go through their musketry course before the whole regiment assembles. The camp occupiers the whole of the town side of the common. The officer's quarters are situated at the bridge end and extend in three rows to the railway. There are the usual latrines and cooking paraphernalia. In this regiment the old earthen ovens are to be abolished, and army cooking ranges, and an ingenious device known as the Aldershot oven substituted. A hospital tents is, of course, an item

Castle Camps fire, p3 *

1899 05 09
Village feasts have sadly degenerated of recent years, and that of Milton is a striking example. Years ago merry-go-rounds, shooting galleries, and coconut shies were erected, but this year there are only a couple of stalls, on which cheap toys and indigestible looking sweets are exposed for sale. In the licensed houses musicians play interminable polkas, which are danced more or less gracefully by country maidens and their swains. The feast is of three days' duration

Hemingford school board, p2 & p3

1899 05 10
Protest against seven-day journalism, p2

1899 05 11
A traction engine has an irresistible attraction for children, who go as near as they dare to inspect the mechanism by which it is driven. Some children were playing on the Cherryhinton road when an engine, drum, and elevator passed by. One of them, Emily Jaggard, nine years of age, ventured too near and was knocked down by the elevator, the wheel of which passed over her foot. The girl was at once conveyed to hospital where it was found that the left ankle was fractured and the right ankle severely bruised

Madingley vicar, p2

1899 05 13
Hemingford Grey school, p3

1899 05 15
A most reprehensible trick was played on the Cambridge fire brigade. With a very perverted idea of a joke some individual broke the glass of the Great Eastern Street fire alarm and 12 members of the brigade, taking with them a hose cart, two reels and the escape, made for the street with all speed, only to find themselves the victims of a hoax. Hundreds of people swarmed to the locality which was lively with inquiries for the supposed outbreak

1899 05 15
On Saturday the opening game of the Haverhill first eleven was advertised to be played on the Meadows, Trinity Knockabout being the visitors, but unfortunately they cancelled the fixture during the week. Last year the Knockabouts only turned up with two men. A game, however, was arranged between 12 out of the factory and 14 Townsmen`

Wicked Jimmy of Peterborough, p4

1899 05 16
Messrs Bailey, Grundy and Barrett, electrical engineers were summoned by the Cambridge Electric Supply Company for connecting a wire in a house in Bridge Street house without their consent. The Supply Company had laid mains to Mr Nichol's house with a meter, and a wire leading from the meter to light the house. The wires were placed there in 1893 and were temporarily reconstructed last year. Subsequently Bailey's were called in to put in wires for additional lights for the house. The new wire was connected with the main whereby it was possible for current to be consumed without being register by the meter # c.24.6

1899 05 17
At Newmarket council the peripatetic pianist was severely criticised. It would appear that not content with making the streets melodious by day, these artistes carry their benevolence so far as to serenade the inhabitants by evolving sweet sounds after Newmarket has gone to bed. But their efforts are not appreciated. Children had several times been awakened by the strains, and although the average child is ready enough to take delight in the street organ by day, it is the exceptional child that relishes the intrusion of music upon their dreams.

Brewing trade statistics, p2 *

1899 05 17c
In the common run of life, no class of men is trusted more than railway engine drivers. It has often been found that the safety of hundreds of lives has been the result of the heroism of the driver of a train. One of those who spent such a life is Mr James Cook, now the landlord of the "Post Boy", Bridge Street, Hitchin, who is 46 years of age and who had been a driver on the Great Northern Railway for over 23 years. He told a reporter: "I never intended giving up the work until I became ill with indigestion. Then I was persuaded to try Dr Williams pink pills for pale people. If I had known about them before I should never have given up railway work"

1899 05 17
Sir. I learn that St Ives town council has resolved to commemorate Cromwell with a statue worthy of him and the town. My object is to refer to the disloyalty and meanness manifested to our good Queen in 1897 on the occasion of her Diamond Jubilee when it was urged that some fitting memorial should be erected in the town to perpetuate her reign. But it was not to be, there was money, but no loyalty. There are two opinions of Cromwell, but there can be no two opinions of our most gracious Majesty, Queen Victoria – Elliott Odams

1899 05 18
The new Clergy Training School in Jesus Lane Cambridge was opened by the Bishop of Durham. It has been erected adjacent to All Saints Church at a cost of nearly £8000. The most experienced teachers in Cambridge have long felt a want of a centre to which the younger members might naturally turn when they wished for conference, or counsel, or sympathy in reference to the choice of their vocation in life. Many men of ability were lost to the Ministry of the church through the want of such opportunities for brotherly conference with men nearly of their own age. # c.83.01 # c.36.9

Piano organ theft, p2

1899 05 19
Boys Brigade inspection, p3

1899 05 22
Whit Monday wet, p2

1899 05 23
An accident having a fatal termination occurred on Midsummer Common Cambridge. During the day there had been an open-air fete, the amusement consisting chiefly of a steam roundabout, swings and the like. The bulk of the paraphernalia was the property of Messrs Thurston. Business ceased about eleven o'clock and in preparation for an early departure the work of packing was commenced immediately. The steam circus was in course of demolition when a covered van capsized and the unfortunate man was thrown to the ground. # c.27.31

Tudor's circus. P2

1899 05 24
The Fore Hill, Ely, was the scene of a mishap. A brake crowded with Sutton people was proceeding up the hill, with only one horse attached to it. All went well till Mr Cross' shop when the animal's strength proved unequal to the strain and the vehicle ran backwards. People saw the serious position of the holiday makers, but the vehicle fortunately turned safely across the hill, though the wheels came sharply in contact with the curb. One or two of the occupants jumped out without injuring themselves

1899 05 24
Today, Queen Victoria attains her 80th birthday, and British subjects in all parts of her Majesty's dominions are celebrating the occasion. Cambridge has not attempted anything in the nature of a public demonstration. This was not to be expected, but Cambridge is none the less loyal on that account, and there are in almost all parts of the town, outward and visible signs of rejoicing. Numerous Union Jacks and other national emblems are displayed in the principal thoroughfares, and the church bells have all been rung in honour of the event. At the Roman Catholic Church the national anthem was chimed between 12 and 1 o'clock, and the ringing of the bells may be expected to continue at intervals throughout the day

Fireworks, Newmarket p2

1899 05 25c
A very popular engagement has been made at the Cambridge Theatre, where Mr D'Oyley Carte's well known Opera Company will produce the latest Savoy success, "The Lucky Star". The company travel with the whole of the scenery, properties, and effects as used the Savoy theatre. On Saturday there will be a revival of the ever popular Japanese opera, "The Mikado". The cast will include C.R. Walenn, F. Pattrick, H. Le Maistre, Miss Louie Rene and Miss Alice Pennington while Mr Silver will again be in charge of the orchestra

1899 05 31
Out of the recent split in the ranks of the Cambridge Y.M.C.A. a new rowing club has sprung and already it has a promised membership of 30. The authorities had adopted a policy over smoking and it was plain to them that the Boat Club would fail unless something was done to keep the members together. Mr Digby referred to the recent controversy on smoking. He was a father of five boys and if they did nothing worse than smoke when they had arrived at the age of men, he should be perfectly satisfied # c.38 : rowing

June 1899 CDN

1899 06 01
A great amount of excitement was caused by an accident in Downing Street, Cambridge. A man in the employ of Messrs Swann Bros was proceeding in charge of a horse and cart laden with bricks, when without the slightest warning the poor animal, apparently seized with the megrims, the result of the excessive heat, suddenly swerved and fell with a tremendous crash into the shop window of Mr H. Storey's cycle shop, completely demolishing the plate glass window, and breaking up a tandem bicycle that was leaning against it. Mr Banham, the veterinary surgeon, with several of his men from the forge were immediately on the scene and rendered valuable assistance

Logan bankrupt, p2 # c.29.6
Stokes' jubilee, p2

1899 06 02
The custodian of the Mill Road cemetery, Cambridge, Thomas Stanbridge, said he saw the defendants approaching with a handcart containing a headstone. There was a funeral taking place against the entrance gate so endeavoured to prevent them from entering the cemetery. In so doing he was pushed right under one of the coaches attending the funeral and got his leg fixed between the wheel and a headstone. He called out and the people at the funeral were disturbed by his remarks. Then the defendant stuck him under the chin, and threatened to pull his beard out.

1899 06 03
A Gentleman seeks to erect an obelisk over his wife's grave in Coveney churchyard, with the inscription, “Peace, perfect peace”. The Rector objects to the obelisk because it is pagan, and to the inscription because it is not taken from the Holy Bible. He is within his legal rights. Many a beautiful cemetery is defaced by the monstrosities of the tombstone maker, and many inscriptions are inane, silly, and even actively irreverent.

YMCA ’99 boat club, p2
Addenbrooke's Hospital collections, p2
Bluntisham drunkenness, p4

1899 06 05
Royston vigilant shepherd, p2
Bricklayers strike, p4
Starr-Bowker Building Society verdict, p3

1899 06 05
Poor Florrie R-- died at Linton last January. On a cold winter day this child of eleven, while suffering from scarlet fever, was by her own mother taken out of the house and dragged to the station in order that she might be sent by train to her grandmother. When the child got to the station she collapsed utterly. Her temperature was 105 degrees. That evening she died. The mother was convicted of wilfully exposing the child to the injury of its health and sentenced to two months imprisonment. Had an animal been treated as Florrie was, people would have cried “shame”

1899 06 06
Last Sunday morning about 2,000 persons assembled at the ferry, Isleham, when eleven females and four males were baptised in the river Lark by the pastors of the Baptist chapels in the village. Reverend Newling remarked that they assembled upon the spot where the Rev C.H. Surgeon was baptised on May 3rd 1850

1899 06 06
Louisa Mustill of Littleport said that when she went to work at the factory at 20 minutes past five in the morning she left a dustpan and brush at the back of the house. She purchased it some time back for 4½d. When she returned in the evening she found the dustpan gone. She did not know that Mr Collins, a grocer, gave dustpans similar to that she lost to people who purchased a pound of tea. P.C. Lilley sent he went to the prisoner’s house and found the dustpan in the washhouse. Prisoner said she had bought it in a bazaar for 6½d. The charge was withdrawn

1899 06 06
The fire-bug seems to have turned his attention from the Chippenham district to the Clare side of Newmarket. On Saturday a fire broke out at Lidgate and on Tuesday flames were seen to be issuing from an outbuildings on a farm at Kirtling. A mounted messenger was sent to call the Jockey Club Owners and Trainers Fire Brigade at Newmarket. The Baptist Chapel almost adjoins the farm buildings, and was at one time in danger, but was fortunately saved, there being a plentiful supply of water. Appearances appear to leave little doubt that the fire was the work of an incendiary

Royston inquiry, p4
Cambridge betting case, p4

1899 06 07

A carter, in the employ of Mr F. Marshall, was loading barrels of tar from the gas works into a truck at the railway station, Saffron Walden, when one of the barrels burst, with the result that Marshall was saturated, his face receiving the full force of the shower of tar, which got into his eyes, causing great agony. He was conveyed to Dr Wagstaff's surgery, and after treatment driven to his home at Linton. Hopes are entertained that his eyes will not be permanently affected.

Cambridge betting case, p2
Barnwell railway accident, p3

1899 06 08
Sir - I believe that if the Rector of Coveney were to attend more to those hearts that are broken by reason of bereavement, and a little less to the design of tombstones and the wording of inscriptions, more peace would be realised by the sorrowing ones who have to bury their loved ones in his churchyard. One parishioner has on two occasions had to change the inscriptions that the friends of the dead would liked to have had on the tombstones of their loved ones. If things are to go on like this I don't think we can look for "perfect peace" just yet at Coveney – H. Westcombe.

1899 06 08
The gaieties of the May Term have today been enhanced by the appearance of the Australian cricketers. Last night famous Grassy and Ditton Paddock were the scene of brilliant assemblages of beauty and fashion. Cambridge is full for the Eights week and looking at her best. The fair sex - a mighty host - seem to be arrayed in their most killing attire. Almost everybody - who is anybody - seems to have got his people "up", and everybody's people appear resolutely determined to enjoy themselves # c.36.97

1899 06 09
Chesterton board of guardians considered an offer from the Tramps' Mission to provide a library at the union for the tramps to happen to be sojourning there, also to furnish wall cards bearing matter profitable for Weary Willie's reading. The master of the workhouse viewed with very little favour these concessions to the literary tastes of those who make the Chesterton Union their hotel. In his opinion there is no matter more suitable for the tramps than the regulations which have been drawn to guide the conduct of those who resort to the workhouse for shelter. Give him text on the wall and he will have an excuse for taking his ease while he reads, or pretends to read them

1899 06 12
If anybody ventured to predict on Saturday morning that before the end of the day the Australians would have scored a victory by 10 wickets in the cricket match with Cambridge University, the prophet would have been voted an arrant fool. They resumed batting and in three quarters of an hour the team had been disposed of for 436, exactly the same figure as Cambridge in their first innings. They then made havoc of the University batting. Wickets fell with amazing rapidity. At lunch seven of the Cambridge wickets had been disposed of for 67 and the innings ended for 122 .The Australians did not take long to make up the required number. In an hour and a quarter phenomenal hitting had done its work. It was a sensational finish

Women's cells, p2

1899 06 13
Frederick Lawrence of the Belmont Cycle Works, King St, was summonsed for furiously driving a motor car in St Andrew's street, Cambridge. Defendant said he had had a deal of experience in motor-cars. They were going about 6 miles an hour. They were using the "Large" lever by which the car was unable to go more than 8 mph. The magistrate said that when there was considerable traffic in a street 6 mph constituted furious driving. A fine of £1 was imposed.

Hooliganism, p2
Child found, p2 *

Logan boat builder creditors, p3 * & 14th p3 # c.29.6

1899 06 14
The success of a native of India in winning the blue ribbon of Cambridge University Mathematical Scholarship has been appreciated at its true significance by the press. It is the first time that a native of our Indian Empire has qualified for such a distinction. The success of Raghunath P. Paranjype has undoubtedly caused a sensation among Anglo-Indians in India and in England. It ought to avail somewhat in breaking down the barrier between the races in India.

College balls, p3

1899 06 15
Alderman Dr Porter asked why, at this particular time of year, when Cambridge was so full of visitors, a great mass of filthy and offensive material should be placed on Queens' Green. He could not imagine anything more offensive than these unlevelled heaps of street sweepings and manure, and he knew of nothing more calculated to give visitors an unfavourable impression of the sanitation of the town.

1899 06 16
A swarm of bees was seen flying about Newmarket High-street and shortly afterwards they alighted on a lamp-post opposite the Congregational Church and followed the queen down the inside. A local apiarist, Mr C. Carter, tried to get them out by means of smoking but this had the effect of sending them further down. He then tried to get them to leave by pouring down water but the queen still remained in the lamp-post and her loyal followers refused to leave her.

Police station p2 *
Bishop Stortford assault, p4

1899 06 17
New Town Motor Company advert, p1
Leys school 25 years, p2
J.W. Iliffe presentation, p3

1899 06 20
Henslow common informer notice, p2

1899 06 20
A University term which has been eventful above most is hastening to a close. Cambridge has been emptying fast & already begun to put on the Long Vacation aspect. The dons are making ready to betake themselves to Switzerland or to Scotland. By the end of the week many a house will have its blinds drawn while its occupants roam far afield. Gowns and trencher will no longer make the streets picturesque

1899 06 21
Of particular interest was the gathering of Indian undergraduates at the University Arms Hotel to celebrate the achievement of the first native of India who has won the Senior Wranglership. The company comprised well-nigh 60 persons, most natives of India and fully 50 Cambridge undergraduates. For a good many years Cambridge has attracted the flower of the intellectual youth of India.

1899 06 21
H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is visiting his old University this evening. His arrival by the express from St Pancras was witness by a moderately large crowd, which was not particularly enthusiastic in its reception. The Master of Trinity received him as he stepped from the train. The Prince raised his hat in acknowledgement and then looked round expectantly at the line of spectators. No cheer, however, was raised until he was being driven away in an open carriage. # c.02

Bottisham Liberals, p2 *

Gt Wilbraham shooting, p2
Midnight flit, p3

1899 06 22
Saffron Walden cigarette swindle, p2
Old Cambridge reflections, p3 *

1899 06 23
P.C. Hills said his attention was called to a disturbance in Bull Lane, Ely. The defendant was raving about a ghost and saying there were about 200 people in the lane, but witness could see no one in the street beside themselves. There were several looking out at the windows. Defendant was using obscene language to his wife who was in the house and witness had to take him into custody. Defendant said: "The policeman asked me about the ghost and I told him it woke my children up. I had to sit up in the front of my own house till three o'clock in the morning"

Mistaken for sweetheart, p2
Old Cambridge, p3 *
Burwell builder bankrupt, p4

1899 06 24
An iron moulder from Burton-on-Trent was charged with playing a game of chance, called stick and button on Midsummer Common. Detective Marsh said he was calling out "Penny a time. If you knock the lead off, threepence or a cocoanut". Prisoner said it was "a fair game of skill". After experimenting with the apparatus the magistrates held that a great amount of skill was necessary for its successful manipulation, and the prisoner was discharged.

1899 06 26
There was a special temptation to the members of the Cambridge Wanderer's Cycling Club yesterday. It was "photo day"! We went away slowly for were we not mindful of the fact that a perspiring group would not make the best of photos? Moustaches shining in all the glory of a recent application of cosmetic had also to be studied. Our destination was Ditton Plough and when we arrived there was a general "spruce up", so anxious were we that such a "galaxy of beauty" should not be lost to posterity. Mr Lord placed us in position, endeavouring to look pleasant, keeping our heads on high and remaining perfectly still all at the same time. Three plates were used. That photo should be a good one. # c.26.485 # c.65.5

1899 06 27
Midsummer Fair with its unmelodious music, its stertorous roundabouts, shooting galleries, crockery ware, linoleum, pea soup, fried fish and its brave show of tinsel is out of keeping with the genius of classic Cambridge. It is a link with the England of long ago, when there were no steam roundabouts and no cinematographs. If there are any who would like to do away with it they are in a miserable minority. Young Cambridge would be up in arms at once if such a proposal were to be seriously made. # c.27.31

1899 06 27
At Melbourn three schoolboys were summoned for breaking three panes of glass in the church window. Quite recently no less than 14 panes had been broken. An 11-year old stated he saw the lads shoot at the church window with a catapult. Witness was asked: 'Did you have a shot'. 'Yes, sir'. 'And you missed?' 'No, sir. I broke one'.
Saffron Walden campanologists, p3

1899 06 28
Mrs Kidman, Dry Drayton – pink pills, p4

1899 06 29
It is not only in the villages and small towns that domestic servants are scarce. Girls have lost taste for domestic service. Notwithstanding good wages and comfortable houses, the life is counted deadly dull as compared with that of a shop girl or even of the factory employee. The idea has sprung up that the social status of the shop girl is much higher than that of the parlourmaid. Mistresses can do much to bring about a better state of matters by treating their servants better.

Somersham horse stealing, p3
Stetchworth water, p3

1899 06 30
The East Coast Mutoscope Company has been formed to popularise that entertaining piece of mechanism which is known as the mutoscope, a portable instrument for the production of animated pictures. The intention is to set up these machines throughout the region so that by dropping a penny in the slot one may experience all the pleasure of witnessing a cinematograph exhibition. The promoters have good grounds for their confidence that the mutoscope will return handsome profits # c.76.9

Histon Baptist church, p3

July 1899 CDN

1899 07 01
Half-timers bill, p2

1899 07 03
Mr Fred Crisp, who last year was High Sheriff of Cambridgeshire entertained the members of the London Society of East Anglians at a garden party at the White House – Mr Crisp's New Southgate residence. A large number made their way to that charming northern suburb where the genial host provided various entertainment to charm their visitors, who included the Mayor of Cambridge. The guests travelled back to town by special train

Bricklayers strike, p3
Sale Worndtich estate, p4

1899 07 04
Sir – now we are in the midst of the fruit season it would be well for property owners in the neighbourhood of Midsummer Common to keep a sharp look out. "The gentry" have started on me again, robbing my garden of fruit. It appears our properties are at the mercy of a lot of lazy, loafing scamps. Woe betide the unfortunate individual I catch as I have ready a nice stout cord and a pail of tar to decorate him with so his "dear mother" won't know him – J.C. Longstaff, New Square, Cambridge.

1899 07 04
One of the most popular of village feasts is that of Histon. This feast flourishes with surprising vigour and during its run the proprietors of roundabouts, shooting galleries and cocoanut shies draw no inconsiderable portions of their season's income from the villagers and visitors. The festival takes place on the village green and on Monday evening the usual holiday crowd amused itself after time-honoured fashion, notwithstanding the full inch of mud to wade through in some places.

Collapse of New Baily, p2 & p4 # c.04
Coveney rector, p2 & p3

Corkists outing, p3

1899 07 05
The Great Eastern Railway Company has for many years been engaged in carrying the workpeople of East London to and from their work and Liverpool Street and Fenchurch Street stations every morning are thronged with the wage earners of East London. Now within a few miles of Cambridge Messrs Chivers have established a jam factory and in the fruit picking season employ an average of 8,000 people, most drawn from Cambridge. For their benefit the Great Eastern Railway has now provided trains to Histon, morning and night. These are of immense convenience to the fruit pickers and in putting them on the railway company has in promoting its own welfare promoted also that of Cambridge. # c.26.2

Cottenham railway plans, p3

1899 07 07
Morley Memorial School, p3
Ely Waterside fire, p3

1899 07 08
It is a piece of good fortune for suburban Cambridge that Homerton New College have provided what is bound to be a first-rate elementary school for New Cherryhinton. The Morley Memorial School, at which teachers will be taught to teach, should be a model school and the most approved methods of education will be pursued in it. The memorial stone was laid by a son of Mr Samuel Morley whose life unobtrusively devoted to the highest interests of his fellow men is one that deserves to be held in deepest honour. # c.36.5

Publican & wife, p2
Coveney tragedy & 10th p3

1899 07 10
Dr Dennis Adams, one of the oldest and best-known medical practitioners of Cambridge has passed away. His career reaches back for many years. His practice was a large one; it was chiefly among members of the University. In celebration of the Jubilee of his practice in 1889 he was presented with a splendid collection of silver candlesticks. It is well known that he was not an admirer of the display of expensive flowers and wreaths at funerals and friends will probably wish to show their respect in some other manner # c.21.1

Coveney tragedy, p3 *

1899 07 11
Sir – The population of Chesterton is mainly composed of people who have been turned out of Cambridge to make way for college and other improvements, and nearly all are employed in that ancient town. Every day brings evidence of the great need of another crossing of the Cam & that Abbey Road is the place goes without saying. The De Freville Estate, are absolutely dependent upon the old punts and other obsolete marine structures for crossing over to Cambridge. . It must be conceded that a bridge over this part of the Cam is of the highest importance – "Chestertonian" # c.44.7

Harlton children, p3

1899 07 12
Griffiths and Chennell offered for sale Regal Lodge" at Kentford. It comprises a handsomely appointed residence which Mrs Langtry has used as a country residence. It is fitted throughout with all modern conveniences and luxury and has three reception, one billiard, nine bed and dressing and two bath-rooms. The gardens are delightfully set out and there is stabling for 18 horses. It was sold for £6,700. Mrs Langtry arrived just as the sale was concluding.

Wood Ditton husband, p3

1899 07 13
Can the meteorologists tell what has happened to the English climate? Last summer was hot, but the extraordinary protracted heat was set down as a meteorological eccentricity that was not likely to be repeated. Yet this summer the thermometer has been dancing between 80 and 90. If this happens another year it will be necessary to take counsel as to whether England should not adopt Indian usages. The mid-day siesta may come into vogue. But the weather is a fickle thing. One day it is oppressively hot, the next day it is delightfully cool. One summer it is the weather of the tropics; the next may be distinctly suggestive of the Arctic Circle

1899 07 14
J. Perkins, cricketer, p3
Volunteer inspection, p3

1899 07 15
Coveney tombstone, p2
Sawston boy's death, p2

1899 07 17
A fatality occurred today. The scene of the accident was the new stores being erected in Burleigh Street, Cambridge for the Co-operative Company. The outer walls have been built up and the workmen are engaged on the interior. One scaffolder, named Thomas Filby, aged 60, was engaged on the scaffolding erected above the top floor. He fell sheer into the basement on to a heap of broken brick. Before he lapsed into a state of utter insensibility he was heard to murmur, "It's all up" # c.27.2 # c.23

Sawston Friendly Society parade, p3

1899 07 18
A public inquiry at Newmarket was told that a charity founded in 1792 by John Perram directed the income should be applied in marriage portions for such parishioners being between the age of 20 and 25, and not worth £20, as should be married in the parish church on Thursday in Easter week. Failing such persons the income was to be given to the winner of the next Town Plate to augment the stake money. For several years past no application had been made for the income and the charity was in abeyance.

New Theatre report & editorial, p2

1899 07 19
A 15 year-old Newmarket newsboy was charged by Walter Marsh, newsagent, with embezzling the sum of 9d. He had been employed seven years to deliver newspapers and was authorised to collect money for delivery. One of his customers was sent a bill at the rate of 7d per week and extra for copies of the Cambridge Daily News which had been supplied. It was returned with the remark that he always paid for the week's papers on Monday morning but the CDN, which he had when he could get one, he paid for at the time of delivery. The lad said he had lost half-a-sovereign out of his pocket and got his money mixed up.

1899 07 20
Ald Hyde Hills called attention to the state of the roads in Cambridge. They were in a disgraceful state & a perfect scandal to the town. Mr Tillyard said they had had a breakdown of one of the steam rollers, and it was found impossible to get it repaired. They had trouble with the labour market, which was extremely brisk just now. The average number of men employed was 110, which was five less that last year. During the last month they had lost nine of their best men

Cottenham water, p2
Coveney monument – Nix, p2
Coveney tragedy case, p3

1899 07 21
That a village of the size and importance of Waterbeach should be lighted goes without saying. It is something of a disgrace that what may be called the metropolis of a parish with an assemblage value of £13,000 should be left in complete darkness after sunset on the nights when the moon deigns not to shine. The disgrace is all the greater because there was a time when it was lighted of nights. That was when it had gas of its own. But since it lost its gas it has been content to make shift in darkness

1899 07 24
An action was brought by Thomas Barlow, baker of Litlington to recover £9 from a Bassingbourn butcher in respect of a breach of warranty in a horse dealing transaction. Defendant had told him the mare was quiet to ride and drive, but that on putting her in the trap she was a little bit "swishy". He drove the mare to Royston, and on starting from Joe Coote's shop it began to kick. On the way home it had two other turns of kicking. On the following morning he took two hours in attempting to get the mare into the cart, then gave it up for a bad job 1899 07 24

Haverhill pigeon house, p3

1899 07 26
Sutton foal show & editorial, p2
Coveney obelisk, p2

1899 07 27
Caxton rural district council considered whether it would not be a financial gain to purchase a steam roller to combine the rolling of the roads and the haulage of the granite. A great outlay in carting by means of horses would be avoided. The Surveyor thought the council should hire a roller when they wanted it, as beyond the first cost there would be the continual expense of upkeep. He thought the roller belonging to the Chesterton council cost about £200 a year

Dead fish, p2
Stuntney fire, p3

1899 07 28
Three young men were summoned for illegally fishing in Sandy's Cut, near Ely. Under the provision of an Act of Parliament the South Level Commissioners bought the land, which was not then covered with water. Therefore no person having land adjoining the foreshore could have any right to fish in the water in question, because until this cut was made there was no water flowing in that direction at all

1899 07 28
The village of Trumpington has been selected for the making of a peculiarly interesting and hopeful experiment on the part of Cambridgeshire nonconformity. The question recently came up how best to continue religious services for those in the village who do not belong to the Church of England and was answered by the suggestion that they should have a Free Church to seat 150 persons. Yesterday the memorial stone was laid by Mr S. Mansfield.

Foster's bank, p2

1899 07 29
On Friday some passers-by saw flames issuing from one of two stacks adjoining the highway about midway between the Newmarket Fever Hospital and Fordham. Now an elderly tramp has said he had gone to the stack to sleep. He had overslept next morning and on getting up to continue his journey had lit his pipe and accidentally set the straw on fire by dropping the lighted match

1899 07 31
A Braughing shop was summoned for exposing for sale by retail a parcel of margarine, without having a label attached thereto. An Inspector said he went into the shop and saw a parcel of something that looked like butter. He asked how much that butter was a pound and defendant replied "one shilling". A report from an analyst set forth there was butter 40% and margarine 60%. For the defence it was stated that she was not aware that it was necessary for a label to be exposed if it was sold in the margarine paper. Fined 20s.

R.C. Lehman, p2

August 1899 CDN

1899 08 01
Gas price, p2

1899 08 02
Sir – I was cycling from Cambridge to Soham and between Burwell and Fordham I came suddenly upon a closed and barred gate, which I was kindly permitted to pass through on paying a toll of twopence. I learned that the gate is called the Ness Gate, that the roadway at this point is Crown property. In its present position this gate is a danger to cyclists but its very existence is a ridiculous and monstrous anomaly with its toll of 1d for every vehicle hailing from Burwell and 4d for every vehicle coming from less favoured districts. It is a very unfortunate circumstance that this piece of road is rented by the vice-chairman of the County Council – A.J. Wyatt

Guardians treat, p2
Cyclist & greyhound, p2

1899 08 03
Chesterton urban district council asked how to proceed in regard to eleven owners who had not complied with an order to hang gates or doors upon their premises so that they should open on to the inside. The chairman said that in some cases it was quite impossible to open the doors inside without practically pulling down the whole of the premises. Mr Cross remarked that it inflicted greatest hardship upon owners who had had their plans passed by the surveyor and now found they had built sheds that would be rendered practically useless. Presently they would be asked to take the roof off their houses and put in on another way if this sort of thing went on

1899 08 03
The policeman on foot is heavily handicapped when he has to make chase of a cyclist who is able to propel himself at the rate of 20 miles an hour. The case is a good deal altered when Robert is an expert cyclist mounted upon a satisfactory machine, Then it is a case of scorcher versus scorcher. P.C. Jeff is a member of the Hertford Police Cycling Corps. While on duty near Thurlow he espied a knight of the wheel riding at a rate which suggested the roads of Hertfordshire were the rider's private property. Upon his own cycle he started in pursuit, and before long he was able to make up to the fugitive. A summons will follow in due course

1899 08 04
William Askham, a labourer in the employ of Messrs Coulson & Lofts told Cambridge police court that he was at work at Bridge Street and saw the prisoner, who was a striker, standing on the pavement. He came upon the building and said he would fight any one on the job for half-a-crown to a shilling. Prisoner said he was not picketing that day. They only went on duty three days a week. He never asked the men to "come out" and it was no use asking Askham to come out on strike because the society would not have him. He was sent out by the society to induce men to come out on strike, for which he received a shilling a day. # c.32.5

1899 08 06c
A quantity of wheat in a field belonging to Mr S. Gentle, near the Barnwell allotments, which had been recently cut, was discovered to be on fire. In a very short time plenty of assistance was secured, but despite all efforts, the produce of nearly an acre was destroyed before the fire could be extinguished. The outbreak is supposed to have been caused by a spark from a passing railway engine alighting on one of the sheaves.

1899 08 07
Cricket, p4 *

1899 08 08
The holiday season is now in full swing and, taking advantage of it, the burglar is busy at his nefarious profession. There are rumours that sever of these well-known "gentlemen" have paid of their periodical visits to Cambridge and have commenced operations. There has been a report of the mysterious perambulations of burglars in the vicinity of Brooklands Avenue. At any rate the movement of strangers in that district have given rise to suspicion

Dunmow Flitch, p4

1899 08 09
College between members of the colleges and the servants is given expression to. In recent years, largely owing to the efforts of Mr A. Chapman, the butler, undergraduates and servants have united in a festive gathering in the Long Vacation, and it has now assumed the aspect of an annual affair. During the day a cricket match took place, the servants played in the ordinary way, while the collegians used broomsticks as bats. Dinner in hall followed and after this came a concert al fresco # c.39

1899 08 10
Friendly rowing, sculling and water polo matches were held between St Ives and Oundle Rowing Clubs. In the four-oar race St Ives had the narrow boat, which again sustained her character as the worst boat of the two, having never yet carried the winning crew. St Ives No.2 lost his oar repeatedly, owing to a faulty rowlock and it was not because of faulty rowing that they were beaten by three lengths.

1899 08 11
It is possible there are people just now in Cambridge who are cross with the fate which compels them to stay in the town while their friends at making merry in popular holiday resorts or rusticating deep in the heart of the country. Let them consider what a delightful place Cambridge is in the Long Vacation. They have the river all to themselves, they can row on it, fish in it, bathe in it. The Omnibus Company has materially enhanced the attractions of summer by instituting a series of drives to places of interest. The Company have provide a set of excellently appointed brakes and in a brake and large wagonette a party of 50 persons drove to Trumpington, on to Newton and Whittlesford where there was a stay of half an hour. The drive then resumed through Shelford back to Cambridge. The fare was just one shilling a head. It is right that this enterprise should be so successful

Bricklayers' meeting, p3

1899 08 12
A most disastrous fire broke out in the vicinity of Dullingham. Mr Bye, the foreman of Hill Farm, had alighted from the train at Dullingham station when his attention was called to a fire in the stackyard of his employer. He at once gave the alarm. With praiseworthy speed Mr Chittock, the Dullingham stationmaster, and by his direction, his staff also, arrived and assisted to remove 14 horses, 25 cows, pigs and other animals to a place of safety. Special mention is due of the hearty manner in which the farm hands and the station staff worked 1899 08 14

St Ives injury cart, p2

1899 08 15
Hailstorm, p3

1899 08 16
Starr-Bowkell Building Society defalcations, p2
Horse killed lightning, p3 *

1899 08 17
A petition was present to Newmarket magistrates praying they take steps to prevent children from being served with alcoholic drinks at public houses. Children in large numbers are regularly sent to licenced houses for the purpose of purchasing drinks for consumption off the premises and become accustomed to seeing sights that would otherwise be most revolting and to hearing language most foul. Children thus form the habit of drinking on the way, and many of them contract an almost ineradicable love for the drink, which eventually leads to their becoming a burden upon the ratepayers, inmates of our gaols, or the most degraded upon the street.

Running track, p2 *
Soapsuds in pits, p3

1899 08 18
The police of Cambridge borough have taken up in good earnest the work of their own athletic training. There is no class of men who have more need to be sound of wind and limb than policemen. They showed at their athletic meeting how well they could run which may stand them in excellent stead when they are in full chase of a fugitive burglar. Some knowledge of self-defence would oftentimes be of service but to suggest that policemen learn to box or fence is not to suggest these should feature in next years' sports. They have done very well in making themselves fit for the arduous and most valuable services which they rendered to the public

1899 08 21
Bottisham brewer sessions was told that an Inspector under the Food and Drugs Act applied to purchase a sample of whisky at the Swan, Quy, for analysis, but could not obtain it, as there was not a pint in the house. In February he applied again, but could obtain neither whisky nor gin as there was again less than a pint in the house. One sample of whisky, one of gin and five of beer had been obtained during the year, all of which had been certified by the analyst to be genuine

1899 08 21
Sir - For the past two years I have been cultivating a piece of land at Burwell and selling the produce, which consists chiefly of vegetables, at Cambridge. One piece of this land is in the fen, and one piece is high land. The solicitor for the University claimed tithe rent for the land in the fen. I have proved the piece of land which was under water for years previous to the time of my father and others who drained it, was not titheable. I was tried at the County Court by the Registrar, who refused to hear my witness, the oldest man in Burwell, who could give evidence as to the history of this matter. Now the bailiff has taken about £20 worth of oats and potatoes for a claim of £2 0s 10d from the piece of land I offered to pay tithe on. Where is justice in this case, after the paying of parson's heavy tithe rent? - Joseph Manning

1899 08 21 c

Sir - Cannot something be done before October to secure for the shop assistants of this town a weekly half-holiday all the year round? There are very few towns in which this boon is denied and surely Cambridge need not be so behind in this important aspect of social life. Most people agree that a weekly half-holiday is a necessity. What is to be done to obtain it for Cambridge? If you will kindly open your columns expressions of opinion from those interested will perhaps lead to a happy solution – Granta

Baby housebreakers, p3 *

1899 08 21
'The General is coming' is the announcement that has been placarded all over Waterbeach for some weeks past. There was no need to ask who the General was, for accompanying the announcement was a portrait of the famous General Booth. Sunday was the day of the visit & it was a great day that will be remembered not only by Salvationists, but by members of other religious bodies who willingly paid a modest fee for the privilege of sitting on a hard form for an hour and a half and listening to a discourse from a man who has influenced so many thousands.

1899 08 23
Albert Hart applied for a licence for 'The Sirdar', Market St, Cambridge. The place had been largely patronised but he laboured under a disadvantage of not being able to provide his customers with spirits or beers. The fashion of drinking wine in the middle of the day had been discountenanced for many years past by doctors and everybody that went to a place for lunch required spirits or soda water. He had to send out for such drinks to some public house in the vicinity. The money had to be extracted from the customer who had to wait until his refreshments were brought to him through the street. That was not an advantage to the liquor itself, especially with the dust flying about and the intense heat of the sun. # c.27.4

1899 08 24
A Toft carter was summoned at Caxton court. PC Marshall said he saw the defendant in charge of a waggon and two horses. He appeared to be asleep. He rang his bicycle bell with no effect and then hollowed at defendant, who jumped up and rubbed his eyes. He was told to get off the waggon and walk and did so. The reins were thrown round the whip, which was placed in the whip socket. Defendant was not taking hold of the reins. Fined 10s.

Chesterton aquatics, p2
Cambridge Master Builders insurance, p2 *

1899 08 25
A serious attempt has been made to ascertain why agricultural labourers are becoming so scarce and while they are still boys take their flight to the town. Young people find the country dull. Travel is easy in these days and Hodge is not so ill off that he cannot make one of an excursion party to town and gaze in wonder and admiration upon its sights and to become so infected with its eager, eventful life that he can never be quite happy in the country again. But in spite of crowded streets and gaily lighted music halls, the farm worker would not leave the farm were it not that the town offers him much better wages. English agricultural labourers are not the most intelligent class in the community, but they are not fools. They would be fools if an opportunity offer them of doubling their weekly pittance of ten or twelve shillings and they did not seize it

1899 08 25
The popular novelist and long-distance runner, Mr Max Pemberton, told some amusing stories of his undergraduate days at Cambridge. "I was studying quietly in my rooms, as a young man should, when the door burst open and my friend, a Varsity sprinter, rushed in. 'Just done two and a half miles', he gasped. 'Bulldog's down there on the doorstep!' There was the unfortunate man, hat gone, collar gone – the picture of misery. He talked to us for some time in most impolite language, and then we fixed him up with a sovereign and sent him away"

1899 08 26
Arthur Savage of the De Freville Supply Stores at the corner of Humberstone road and Cam road. Cambridge, applied for a full licence. The premises were situated in the middle of a new neighbourhood & owned by the Star Brewery. Richard Reynolds Rowe, architect, prepared the plans of the house which was substantially built and at the present time would cost about £800 to build. The Old Spring was the nearest public house in one direction and The Bowling Green 702 yards by way of the churchyard. Very few houses on the estate had cellars suitable for storing beer # c.27.4

1899 08 26
The annual meeting of the Cambridge Bus Company was told they had taken £500 more than last year, and £400 more in 1d. fares. Shareholders must bear in mind that the year before they had a loss of £1,563 of which about £1,100 was due to losses in consequence of accidents. All must admit that the Company had gained more of the confidence of the public, and the natural outcome would be increased prosperity in the future

1899 08 26
A case of considerable interest to anglers was whether the Lark Preservation and Angling Society had the power to prevent non-members from angling in preserved waters. As far back as 1698 the Lark was a navigable river and rights of fishing held by the persons owning the land on the sides of the river. He was under the impression that fishing was free from the town path. Although the public had fished the waters free for many years that fact did not constitute a right. The Bench was perfectly clear that defendant had no right to fish without a ticket from the society

September 1899 CDN

1899 09 04
All Cambridge was moved to the heart yesterday morning on learning of the ghastly details of a barbarous attack upon an old man and the subsequent suicide by drowning of the victim's assailant. Were it but gifted with the power of speech, the Cam could doubtless reveal many an awful tragedy, but we venture to think that never has a more cowardly and barbarous act have been perpetrated on the banks of the river than that which was committed late on Saturday night. A representative of the CDN made a minute examination of the scene which presented a horrible spectacle and left no doubt that a violent struggle took place.

1899 09 04
Sir – Swavesey has a fire engine which today after a few years of peaceful repose, with a great ceremony and clatter, but with no wild haste, was taken to the scene of a fire. By almost superhuman efforts it was placed in position by a pond and then hose and suction pipes were attached. One gallant fireman in a white hat screwed on the nozzle, the pumps were manned but sad to say all that this parish relic of antiquity pumped was air. In vain the white-hatted hero pointed his nozzle and scorched his clothes. The fire burned on merrily while the engine stood useless by the pond – "Q"

Swavesey fire, Manor Farm, p2 *

1899 09 05
Complainant told Arrington court that on the evening in question she was going down the road at Gt Eversden with a basket of clean linen when defendant remarked "Did you tell Frank Nixon you old - - that I stole his greengages". She then came out to her, spat in her face, took hold of her hair, scratched her face and made use of vulgar language. Complainant went to a shop and left the clothes and on her way back home defendant hooted her all up the road

1899 09 06
An outing of the Cambridge Licensed Victualler's Association drove to Clayhithe in a brake. The toll bridge was left in charge of a boy, who partly opened the gate leading to the Bridge restaurant and then suddenly closed it again. The horse had already begun walking down the incline and smashed into the closing gate. The animals were thrown down, some of the harness and a lamp were smashed & and the occupants with all possible haste jumped out of the vehicle. Happily no one was injured but the juvenile keeper of the bridge was reprimanded.

1899 09 07
At the Chesterton urban council it was agreed to levy a rate of 1s 8d in the £, about 2d higher than that of Cambridge. This has a very important bearing on the objection which they have made to becoming part of the borough. When rates are as high as they are in Cambridge there remains no single reason why Chesterton should remain outside the borough. This is a civil marriage that promises many benefits for both sides.

1899 09 08
Manners of young Cambridge, p2
Haverhill Independent church organ, p4

1899 09 09
Looking over the catalogue of the Cambridge public library we were struck with the care exercised in obtaining and preserving copies of every publication of local bearing, even down to the most occasional leaflets. This is as it should be. It may well be that there are documents lying in inaccessible places what contain information for which even now students of local history are searching in vain. Why should these not be deposited in the public library, accessible to those who desire to make use of them?

T.B. Hunt opens first-class studio, p1 * # c.65.5
Red Cow concert hall reopens, p2 *

1899 09 12
Mr C. Hills and his son, whilst crossing Barton Fields, Ely, on a shooting expedition, saw a woman lying sideways in the middle of a pond, apparently in a helpless condition, and dragged her out. The water in the pond was scarcely two feet deep, but being fully of slimy matter, the woman presented a sorry spectacle. As she was exhausted, Mr Hills administered some brandy and had her conveyed to her home

1899 09 13
Swaffham Prior stack fire, p3

1899 09 14
A young lady, governess at Wood Ditton rectory went to bed feeling unwell recently and remained in a trance for 10 hours, notwithstanding efforts to arouse her. The doctor was sent for but his efforts proved unavailing during that day. Ultimately she was awakened by douches of cold water.

1899 09 14
Considerable interest having been aroused by particulars of the trance at Wood Ditton a representative of the C.D.N. made further inquiries. After the young lady had lain for 40 hours the doctors decided to try the effect of sudden shocks. She was taken from bed and placed across some chairs over a bath. So rigid was her body that nothing was required to support the space between the chairs. A large can of ice-cold water was procured and one of the doctors, standing on a chair, directed a stream of water on to her face. The douches of water continued until she had apparently been fully aroused.

1899 09 14
Wednesday marked another epoch in the history of the Ebeneezer Chapel, Cottenham – the reopening after thorough restoration. The somewhat gloomy appearance of the interior had been the subject of comment, now the interior is in keeping with the bright services held in the chapel, cheerful, warm looking decorations having replaced those of former times. In the evening the chapel was crowded in every part.

1899 09 14c
The firemen on duty at Newmarket Jockey Club Owners' and Trainers' Fire Brigade noticed a big glare in the vicinity of Burwell, and at once the telephone was requisitioned to inquire at the brigade office whether a call had been received. The engines having been got ready the men donned their uniform and fastened on accoutrements, and then lit the lamps of the engine. But no call came. The Burwell Fire Brigade had their first experience of a fire, for although an engine has for some time been in the village, it is only within the past few weeks that a brigade has been formed.

1899 09 15
Labourers in dispute with the master builders had served a notice asking for an advance from 4½ d to 5d an hour. They had to end their wives out to work and leave the children to the mercy of anybody or everybody. The extra money added to the wage of the Cambridge labourers would enable them to keep their wives at home and give them happiness and joy. At Newmarket labourers were paid at the rate of 5½d per hour and were promised a halfpenny advance next summer

1899 09 16
W.C. Dewsberry organist dies, p3

1899 09 18
During August agricultural workers have been fully employed at harvest work. The corn crops have ripened rapidly, and as they have not been laid by storms, it has been possible to employ self-binding machines. Thus with a steady run of fine weather the harvest has been gathered rapidly with much less manual labour than usual. Reports from the Chesterton Union show that sufficient labour has been secured for fruit picking, except for a short time when the raspberries were ripe.

1899 09 19
A statement headed "Treatment of inmates at the Cambridge workhouse" alleged a 45-year-old man was put into the receiving ward by the acting porter. He was ordered to strip and bathe himself. He was then given a child's bed, about 2ft short and though he was suffering from dropsy was ordered to make up his bed. He was given four or five blankets but still complained of the cold. They could do nothing to relieve him except give a drop of water from the bath. The man lay there until the next morning and was removed to the infirmary where "he passed away from this world of trouble" # c.32.9

New Theatre, p2
Death Cambridge journalist, Henry Francis Passingham, p2

1899 09 20
Newmarket RDC heard that at Landwade there was a pump that had been erected by subscription, the piping had never been properly fixed and there was now a leakage. Complaints were made as to the indifferent water supply at Reach. There was a spring of good water near the Delph Bridge, which by reason of its being open was often full of tadpoles and other little animals. If a cover were put over it would be a good source of water. The inhabitants of Kirtling obtained a great deal of their water from a dirty pond. The water to certain homes in Soham was filled with dead cats.

1899 09 21
An alarming fire took place at Quaker's farm, in the fen near Lt Downham, causing the destruction of a farmhouse and rendering the occupants homeless. Mrs Watson and her washerwoman were just preparing to partake of luncheon when smoke was seen issuing from the thatch near a chimney stack. Pails of water were brought into requisition but had little or no effect. The Fire Brigade from Ely turned up, got a plentiful supply of water from a dyke and managed to extinguish the fire. By this time only the walls and chimney stacks of the old house – built in 1803 – were left standing

Ely repair roads, p4

1899 09 22
During the tempestuous weather a hot pea stall, belonging to James Gerald, of Wilton terrace, East Road, Cambridge, which had been erected at the corner of Garlic Row in readiness for Stourbridge horse fair, was blown away bodily and carried by the boisterous wind across the road on to a piece of land forty yards away, used by Mr Robert Lee as a market garden. Another booth belonging to David Odell was also overthrown by the storm. # c.27.31

Another accident Huntingdon mail, p3 *

1899 09 23
Cambridge town council mole catcher, p2

1899 09 25
Another of England's picturesque country residences has been destroyed. A prettier spot than the residence of Mr W. Hall at Six-Mile-Bottom, it would have been difficult to find. In every way typical of an English gentleman's home it was regarded by pride. The house was on Saturday the scene of one of those fires which turn a quiet rural retreat into a scene of utter desolation. The maid noticed smoke coming out of the thatch close to the kitchen chimney. From all directions came help but it was too late to be of any avail

Fire Hawkins bakery, Gold Street, p2 # c.34.75
Hobson Street chapel renovation, p3

1899 09 26
There are some who deplore it very much that the Free Library readers should resort so much to fiction. There can be no greater waste of time than the reading of novels that are not worth reading. At the Central Library there were issued during the year 67,661 volumes in the class of fiction and it must be admitted that Cambridge might with advantage become a little more serious in its reading. At the Mill Road branch 293 borrowers were added whereby it is made clear that the branch supplies a very real demand. # c.77.4

1899 09 26
Cambridge's Stourbridge Fair has scarcely so strong a hold on the people as it exercised a decade ago. The vendor of hot peas, sweet stuffs, trashy toys and nut brown ale, to say nothing of the fishmonger and other salesmen, all seem to receive a certain amount of public patronage. The only monstrosity on view this year is a cow with six legs. There are coconut shies, swings and shooting galleries in plenty. At the "Oyster House" there is dancing and conviviality reigns supreme # c.27.31

Cottenham farmer killed, p3

1899 09 27
Early closing, p2

1899 08 28
Bread at Linton workhouse
Sale guns – notes *
Victoria Road Congregational Church foundation stone laid, p3 # c.83

1899 09 29
Oddfellows jubilee, p3

1899 09 30c

A man named Revill, residing at Odsey, was on his way to Royston, driving a pony and trap, when he observed a rough-looking individual coming towards him. The tramp turned towards the hedge, put himself in a shooting attitude and pointed what was thought to be a revolver. The man in charge of the pony laid down in the trap, and whipping up his pony drove as fast as he could to Royston. P.C. Knight was despatched on a bicycle and came across the would-be highwayman lying on the side of the road. The tramp gave a rambling account of himself and said he was a solicitor practising in Chancery Lane.

1899 09 30
A labourer of Upware was summonsed for leaving the employment of Mr J. Cornwell, a Waterbeach farmer, without notice. Defendant had worked for him for a fortnight, he having engaged him as a labourer. He entered witness's employment as a weekly servant at a wage of 12s and left without giving notice after receiving his week's wages. As he did not return to his work Cornwell made a journey to Upware so see what his reason was for not coming back. He said he should not return for anything and that witness could do as he liked in the matter. Defendant fined 1s.

99 Athletic Club, p2
St Ives burglary, p3
Photographic Society, p3

October 1899 CDN

1899 10 03
Cambridge cabmen's union was told that certain ladies had volunteered to provide a cabmen's shelter on Peas Hill, close to St Edward's church. The chairman hoped the cabmen would always maintain their proper rank of respectability, and keep themselves above suspicion of rowdyism or anything approaching to it

Scott & Wilkinson photographed Six Mile Bottom fire, used CWN, p2 # c.65.5

1899 10 03
The Vicar of St Michael's church, Cambridge, spoke of the restoration of the mural decorations executed by Mr Gilbert Scott which had become much decayed, and the erection of the inside porch. The installation of the electric light answered very well. He did not think it was as good to read by as gas but there was the advantage of the easy regulation of the light and quickness in lighting the church. Instead of having the nasty, stuffy feeling they had with gas, there was a decent atmosphere in which one could breath

1899 10 04
The etiquette of University life is a thing by itself, but "The Freshman at Cambridge" is veritably a royal road to knowledge. One might be some time without learning that it is 'bad form' to wear one's gown and carry an umbrella at the same time. Yet here is the useful rule and many others of the same character set forth clearly. Every Freshman, cast adrift upon the unknown sea of University life, should get this book and make it the subject of careful study

1899 10 05
Richard Drake, machinist from Sutton, was summoned for permitting a locomotive to be used on the highway drawing more than three loaded wagons. P.S. Hodge said he saw a traction engine in Churchgate Street, Soham drawing three wagons, a house van and a chaff cutter. The driver said that his master had expected they would be stopped. Fined 30s.

1899 10 06
Fire at Newmarket, p3

1899 10 07

Abbey Road new bridge, p2
Putrid meat, p3

1899 10 09
On Saturday night the cooks left the kitchens at King's College, as they thought, safe, but P.C. Witham saw smoke coming through the roof. For fully two hours the fire brigade had their hands full. The staircase is quite burned down and access to the cook's room above is by means of ladders. On Sunday morning the cooks went to prepare the usual meals and members of the college were served as if nothing out of the ordinary had occurred. # c.34.75 # c.44.5

1899 10 10
Labourers' dispute, p3

1899 10 11
A meeting of Cambridge carpenters and joiners was held to obtain an increase of wages. At Newmarket the wages had advanced to 8d an hour and the carpenters and joiners of Cambridge were beginning to agitate and follow in their wake. In many other places men were only working a 49 hour week and left off at half past five. There were some Cambridge firms employing carpenters who were offering 9d an hour but most men were content to go on dribbling with 7½d because they thought they had good berths and good masters. There was only one remedy for this evil and that lay in organisation # c.32.5

1899 10 12
St Ives council recommended that the fire engine, purchased 27 years ago, be repaired at a cost of £48. A manual engine would be lent for use while the old one was being put in repair. Mr Smith asked if they were well paid when the engine went out of the town to a fire, as it was through being taken out that these repairs were necessary. The Mayor said £2 was paid each time it went out. Mr Ruston said this would not pay for the damage done to the hose alone

South Africa war declared, p2

1899 10 13
A considerable amount of dissatisfaction has arisen in regard to the tithe charge imposed on certain lands in Burwell fen by Cambridge University. The land in question is some 3,000 acres in extent and was formerly under water. Nearly 60 years ago the fen was drained. The greater part is utilised for agriculture, but a portion is cultivated as market gardens. The imposition of a tithe has weighed heavily on the owners and there has been speculation as to the legality of the charge. No tithe was exacted until after the drainage about 1840 and while some owners have paid others have been allowed to go scot free. Now the parish council has purchased ten acres for a public recreation ground and decline to pay the tithe

1899 10 13
Sir : A beautiful white marble monument, standing some ten feet high was taken to be erected in Coveney churchyard. The rector refused to admit it, as he said its shape, an obelisk, was heathen and that the words 'Peace, perfect peace' were not suitable. However he allowed the mason to place it in the enclosure and after it had laid there some 100 days some good friends of the deceased assisted in erecting it in the early hours of the morning. There it remained for twelve weeks, when the rector, with the assistance of another, hurled it down. He was caught in the act by two women. In his sermon he said he would like to put his arms round that wretched monument and carry it out of the churchyard, only it was too massive. Others say the churchyard looks neglected, like some wilderness in a deserted plague-stricken century. – X

1899 10 14
T.B. Hunt opened studio 130 Fitzroy Street, p1 # c.65.5

1899 10 16
Home there are today in the town and county of Cambridge which are without a head because husbands and fathers have responded to the call upon Reserves to join their regiments. Cambridgeshire has already made a significant contribution to the British strength in South Africa, while those left behind are in deepest anxiety as to the safety of their absent ones. We owe it to ourselves as Englishmen to see that the wives and children do not suffer in material comfort because the breadwinners have gone forth to fight. Many are reduced to living upon the Government allowance of a few shilling in the week. We would take the liberty of suggesting that the Mayor of Cambridge should open a fund for the families of Reserve men and the active interest of Alderman Kett makes it appropriate that he should put himself at the head of the movement. – Editorial # c.45.4

Army and University reserves, p3

1899 10 17
The formal opening took place of Westminster College, the theological college which the Presbyterian Church of England has established at Cambridge for the training of students for the ministry. It is a great thing that the work has been done so well in so short a time, but a much greater thing that the cost of building it – albeit over £40,000 has all been met. Professor Ryle, President of Queens', extended a welcome to the new college. # c.44.5

1899 10 17
Sir – I am glad there are to be contests for the seats on Cambridge town council. I have looked at the addresses of the candidates and most of them are contesting wards where over 90 per cent of the electors have not such a thing as a bath. A town of light and learning like Cambridge – of some 50,000 inhabitants - without a single public bath in it is a disgrace – "A Ratepayer"

1899 10 19 c
Frederick Oldham, tailor, Wisbech, sued George Comins, auctioneer, Ely, for the sum of £8 13s. the cost of two suits of clothes. Defendant said the question was as to misfits and that the suits were not delivered within reasonable time. He said the collar of the jacket was cut so low that the tie showed above it. The suits were returned without being opened. Without prejudice he was willing to pay plaintiff the sum of two guineas

1899 10 19
An Eynesbury labourer was summonsed for conveying eight calves in a cart in such a manner as to cause them unnecessary pain. An RSPCA Inspector said four of them were lying in the cart with their heads towards the front, and four similarly placed at the hind part of the vehicle. Their fore legs were tied and the four outside calves practically lying on their backs. One calf's head was hanging over the side of the cart

Lt Downham harvest dispute, p3 *

1899 10 22c
From a Cambridge man at the front, Pietermaritzburg, South Africa. "I am out here now and we have to go up to the Transvaal and pump some lead for Kruger, and I hope to present a lock of his whiskers to our Fitzwilliam Museum. There are plenty of Cambridge lads out here in the Fifth Lancers who have just gone up to Ladysmith. Every man has 109 round of lead & I have been selected to fill the post of stretcher bearer to pick up dead or wounded comrades; but perhaps I might be picked up myself. I hope to come out safe and I won't forget Kruger's whiskers" - Paddy Hopkins

1899 10 23
The funeral took place at Newmarket cemetery of William Williams, better known as "Old Buck". Deceased, who came from South America was a pure Negro and landed in this country about 21 years ago. He was employed by Mr Jacob Pincus and boasted of having crossed the Atlantic some 25 times. In late years "Buck" was employed by Mr Huggins, trainer to Lord William Beresford. Mr Pincus and all the lads employed at Mr Huggins' stable were among the many who followed his remains to their resting place

1899 10 23
The war in South Africa has already levied toll upon Cambridge. Among those who were killed at Glencoe was Private J. Best, whose parents reside here, and on the list of the wounded at Elands Laagte is Lance Corporal Henry Turner, a Cambridge man. Their relatives have the very sincere sympathy of the people of Cambridge. Whether the end of this war come soon or comes late, it will have cost the British Army dear. Already hundreds of brave fellows have found their graves among the hills of Natal. # c.45.4

Wilbraham property sale, p2
Linton churchyard death, p3

1899 10 24
Cambridge wounded and dead, p2 *

1899 10 24
Three London musicians and a comedian were charged with stealing a bag of potatoes, value 4s., from a field in Melbourn. John King, roadman, said he saw one of them jump over a hedge, get the bag and place in on a trolley. PC Knight said he saw the prisoners with a piano organ on a trolley and found the potatoes lying on the seat, covered with a rug. He detained two and took them to Royston police station. Afterwards found the others had decamped with the pony in the direction of Baldock but being a cyclist he followed them. One prisoner said they on 5 arriving at Royston fair he saw Harris' roundabouts and went and spoke to the proprietor. When there the constable questioned him. They had bought the potatoes from a man in a public house at Long Melford for 1s.6d.

1899 10 25
A murder of a most ghastly and revolting nature was committed at Burwell Lode. It is rare that a murder so determined in its criminal intent as that perpetrated in the thick fog of the early morning on the banks of the river Lode is heard of. An old woman was brutally murdered by her husband in the sight of their piteously-screaming thirteen-year-old daughter, & almost within a stone's throw of where two grown-up sons were working. & 26th p2

1899 10 26
Sir – Hitherto, to its credit, Cambridge has escaped any public manifestation of the war fever, but I read with deep regret that at a smoking concert at the Conservative club there are to be patriotic songs and war choruses. When we read of the shocking havoc wrought by dynamite trains and Maxim guns even our victories seem shorn of their glory. This is not the time for song and jubilation - K

1899 10 27
A good deal of amusement was created at Littleport. From rumours widely circulated it was expected at a "real gypsy wedding" would take place at the parish church. Some said the contracting parties were to be taken thither in a caravan, that the bride would be attired in red plush and the father had presented the happy pair with a giant cup half filled with sovereigns. The building was filled by an expectant congregation, with prominent inhabitants and many of the young women from the factory. No bride and bridegroom presented themselves and the congregation made their departure with feeling that can better be imagined than described.

Barrington green bylaws, p2
Coveney attempted murder, p3

1899 10 28
Burwell inquest, p3

1899 10 30
Some time ago the University gave notice that they would petition the High Court to divert a sum, derived from Wort's Charity, used for the purpose of repairing the main road from Emmanuel College to the Gog Magog Hills from that channel and appropriate it for the funds of the University Library. Two public bodies, the County Council and Chesterton R.D.C. are responsible for the repair of this road and resolved to oppose the petition which would deprive them of an annual contribution from the charity

1899 10 31
A tramp was charged with refusing to do his allotted task at St Ives Workhouse. The Master (Mr Eversdell) set prisoner to pick 2½ lbs of oakum. He refused as he was suffering from asthma and being in a cell from which the dust from the oakum could not get away it would get upon his lungs and would be ill for weeks. He offered to do any other kind of out-door work. Magistrates said he could have seen the doctor and he would have to go to gaol for 14 days

November 1899 CDN

1899 11 02
When residents in St Andrew's street, Cambridge, saw a procession of cabs passing onward "all mournful and slow" to the railway station the people knew that someone had been sent down from the University. From Emmanuel College a youth emerged and under a shower of rice made hurriedly for the cab waiting at the door. The driver, "Gentleman Joe" wore a tall hat draped with crape, and so did the drivers of some four cabs what followed. The hero of the hour entered the Great Northern Station, the train moving out to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne". Meanwhile the cabbies grove back to their respective stands. They were of more cheerful aspect on the return journey and each puffed a festive cigar. # c.36.96

Tram to Chesterton, p4

1899 11 03
Eight cases of diphtheria (three fatal) have been notified at Saffron Walden during the past three weeks. The first occurred in South Road, a girl aged ten. The next was at the Orphanage, another in Almshouse Lane and three cases (one fatal) in a cottage in Debden road. In addition there had been six cases of scarlet fever. All the children attended the same schools which points to its defective sanitary condition, notably damp walls, dry rot under the floor, defective drainage and overcrowding, causing the air to be organically contaminated. The school had been closed on October 21st, since then there has been no further spread of diphtheria.

1899 11 04
Two more constables of the Cambridge police force have received notice to join their regiments preparatory to leaving for South Africa. These are P.C.s John Waylett and Goodchild. The former left Cambridge by train, being accompanied to the station by Sergt Baker and eight of his comrades in the police force. As the train steamed out of the station three cheers for the gallant 44th were lustily given by the policemen

Morley school opened, p3 * # c.36.5

1899 11 06
The announcement that a number of Reserve men belonging to the Suffolk Regiment would leave Cambridge to join the regiment sufficed to bring thousands of people together in the Market Hill to give them a hearty send off. . It detracted somewhat from the picturesqueness of the effect that the Reserve men were not in uniform but in their ordinary clothes but they could not have evoked greater enthusiasm on the part of the public. Heads of colleges were there, undergraduates in caps and gowns rubbed shoulders with farm workers form the country. Old soldiers wearing their medals had come to live over again stirring scenes from their youth. Women were there and children also. It was a crowd thoroughly resolved upon manifesting its goodwill to the men who were going away # c.45.4

1899 11 07
Almost as soon as it was dark a large number of youths made their way to Cambridge Market Hill which was in a short time alive to the crackling and bangings of the smaller fireworks. The 'Varsity', after hall time, joined the townspeople and from eight to eleven there was a roaring, rushing crowd of several hundreds about the hill and neighbouring streets. Certain of the townsmen who had begun the day not to wisely by profusely drinking were responsible for the greater part of the disorder and were seized and marched off by the ever-vigilant gentlemen in blue. # c.36.94

1899 11 08
At the Granta Cycling Club smoking concert the chairman said all cyclists in Cambridge were determined to have a cycle track. Every kind of athletics was catered for except cyclists. It was not fair to those who placed stock on Midsummer Common to have it there, and unless it was enclosed they would not get a 'gate' as people who paid to see races generally liked to go on a stand. If cyclists were determined to have a track they should collect a sum equivalent to that paid by those who put stock in the Common and then they could have their ground enclosed.

Ely burglary, p3

1899 11 09
Baldock scarlet fever, p4

1899 11 10
Cambridge University Transvaal war fund, p3
Thomas Wood mineral factory, p3 *

1899 11 11
A Cambridge divorce case of a startling nature was tried when a compositor sought divorce from his wife on the grounds of her adultery with a tinman and brazier. Plaintiff arranged to get into the house and was secreted in the cellar from which he could see into the back room from which he saw adultery committed, but as he was a small man he took no action then. He got another man to accompany him and they found correspondent in a compromising position. She exclaimed: "Oh, my God" but later said they had had a good laugh over the sudden surprise.1899 11 11

New Theatre D'Oyley Carte, p2
First case under lighting bylaw p2 *

1899 11 13
Cambridge has got a long railway station, but there would not have been an inch of standing room to spare on the platform if all the people who desired to get in had been permitted to do so. Shortly before noon the procession of Reservists arrived and from that time till the train left all was wild excitement. The difficulty was to get the men who were leaving away from their friends, and in the long run there was nothing for it but to effect something like a forcible separation. Eventually, amid vociferous cheering the train got away and the defenders of the country were fairly on their way to do the country's bidding. # c.45.4

1899 11 13
A stirring scene was witness at Warley when the 1st Battalion Essex Regiment left en route for South Africa, at the entrance to the station there was a dense throng and the soldiers had the greatest difficulty forcing their way through. The London Society of East Anglians gave the Suffolk regiment an enthusiastic "send off" as they passed en route to embark at Southampton and by special arrangement with the railway the journey was broken for about ten minutes. The Suffolk Regiment consisted entirely of East Anglians and their motto was "let 'em all come"

1899 11 14
Mr Richard Langford of James Street, Cambridge, has passed away within a fortnight of obtaining the great age of 100 years. He was early in life placed in a gang of lighters which plied between King's Lynn and Cambridge and acquired a gang of his own. For many years he brought coals to Cambridge until the railway was opened, when he retired.

1899 11 15
Great disappointment – waterworks, p2
Events at New Theatre, p3

1899 11 15c
An undergraduate of Caius College was summoned for riding a bicycle on the footpath at Impington. Supt Webb said when asked for his name and address defendant demurred, and then replied "X.Y.Z." He told him he would detain him until he gave him his card and defendant then compiled with the request. The reason he had got on to the path was to avoid a young and prancing horse that came along. Fined 1s.

1899 11 16
Communications Chesterton, p2
East Road schools, p3

1899 11 17
The Inspector of Nuisances told Caxton Guardians that at Kingston he inspected a cottage occupied by a man, wife and four children where diphtheria had broken out. Two of the children were now lying dead. The disease would probably be traced to the insanitary condition of things at the school which were very defective. It had not been closed because he was waiting for the medical officer's report.

1899 11 18
Walter Pluck of Balsham said he had an agreement with Alfred Kent of Horseheath to take away the carcasses of any horses which might die. The value of the carcasses differed, the average being 15s. The horses were taken away about two or three hours after death. Some were in a very bad state, and were rotten so he was obliged to put them on the manure heap. He never sent any grease in part payment.

1899 11 20
Home from Transvaal, p3

1899 11 22
Huntingdon County Council sought a declaration that the River Ouse from above St Neots to below St Ives and thence to the sea, was a public navigable river and a common highway. Leonard Simpson claimed that it was his private property. He had the exclusive passage of vessels laden with merchandise and no one else should navigate any part of the river without a licence from him. The judge said the public were entitled to use it. # c.46.5

1899 11 22
A distressing event occurred at the Haverhill cemetery. Just as three o'clock was striking a funeral party, numbering about twenty, arrived at the gates and on proceeding inside found that no minister was present. A messenger was immediately dispatched and it was learned that the vicar had left for London that morning. The difficulty was resolved by summoning the vicar of Thurlow who happened to be in the street at Haverhill. The last rites were then performed by the graveside.

1899 11 24

An unusual incident took place in the Baptist chapel. St Andrew's street, Cambridge. The pulpit was occupied by the Rev Jackson of Reading who preached a very able sermon. Afterwards the Rev. Charles Keene, who was in the audience, occupying a seat in the gallery, rose and made a few remarks criticising what the preacher had said. Mr Keene was quietly heard and when he had finished Mr Jackson thanked him, and the service was closed in the usual way.

1899 11 25
The London Scottish Rifle Volunteers arrived in Cambridge for the purpose of engaging with the University Volunteer Corps in certain field operations. The idea was for the Scots to gain an entrance to Cambridge. The University Volunteers marched in the direction of Shelford, where they expected to meet the attacking force. The opposing forces formed up at Caius College Farm and then proceeded via Hills Road to Cambridge. # c.45.4

University & agriculture, p2

1899 11 27
Following their manoeuvres at Shelford the London Scottish Rifle Volunteers had a further engagement with the University corps in the vicinity of Caius Farm, near the Gog Magogs. The Scots marched out to occupy the farm and were reinforced at Fulbourn by a company of the Newmarket Suffolk Volunteers. The actual firing operations began at 2.45. The farm having been taken the defending and attacking forces were formed up in line and the march home was begun, the Scottish pipers leading the way. # c.45.4

1899 11 28
The business premises of Mr Gray Palmer, clothier of High Street, Saffron Walden, had a narrow escape of being destroyed by fire and nothing but the prompt action of his assistant averted a serious conflagration. Being Saturday night it was 10 o'clock before the business of the day was completed and the shop closed. After this Mr Palmer and his family, with Mr Ashby, had an hour's recreation and retired to rest. How the fire originated cannot be accounted for, there is no fireplace in the room.

Corporation and new streets, p3 *

1899 11 30
The annual ploughing competitions of the Cottenham Ploughing Society were brought off. Mr Greene said they lived in days of invention; they already had steam ploughs, which did not make much headway, and it was very likely they would see motor ploughs in the future. He believed the day was far distant when the need of a good horse to draw the plough, and of a good man to drive it would no longer exist in Cottenham. A feature of the competition was the good ploughing of F. Skinner who has entered four times and on each occasion taken first place.

Kingston diphtheria, p4 *

December 1899 CDN

1899 12 01
Archaeology, p2
Landbeach fire, p3

1899 12 02
Cambridgeshire villages have been prolific in fires of unusual magnitude and Landbeach has now earned the distinction of having a disastrous fire within its limits. Four cottages, a blacksmith's & wheelwright's shop and a stable were burnt completely out. Luckily building space in Landbeach is not at a premium and the properties formed a little group by themselves with at least ten yards between any other dwelling house, otherwise the damage would assuredly have been much more extensive. The buildings were of lathe and plaster and in an incredibly short time were one huge bonfire

Cambridge Pierrots, p2

1899 12 02 c
It is particularly gratifying to note that the villages are giving generously towards the assistance of our soldiers' families. The public meeting held at Waterbeach reflected the utmost credit on this village and its public spirited inhabitants. Another village that has done honour to itself is Swavesey where over £40 has been contributed. The heart of the nation has been touched to pity and to effort. The needs are great but they are bound to become very much greater

1899 12 04
An ostler and an undergraduate were summoned for causing an affray by fighting in Petty Cury. P.C. Belling said he took them both into custody. On the way to the station the undergraduate was wrestled from his custody by another 'Varsityman and his finger was injured. On returning to the Market Hill he saw the student with some friends and he admitted having escaped from custody. After the magistrates had deliberated they found the charges not substantiated and the case was dismissed.

1899 12 04
A bog oak raised from the fen at Bottisham Lode was found to be 100 feet long. When men were splitting it they found in the centre a honeycomb which had also been embedded in the peat. The comb was in a perfect state of preservation and dotted about it were bees. The entrance to the comb was a gigantic knot and it is supposed that when the tree fell this fell directly into the gault, thus making prisoners of the bees which were in it.

Cambridge men at Ladysmith, p3 *

1899 12 05
Inquisitive preacher – child on cart, p2 & 3

1899 12 06
Two impudent burglaries were committed in Mill Road, Cambridge. The premises occupied by Mrs Emma Coleman, confectioner, and the Danish Dairy Company's shop were broken into, but fortunately the nocturnal visitors carried away but little booty as the result of their efforts. Each of the door bear muddy scratches leaving no doubt that the burglar must have been agile and diminutive enough to squeeze in through the limited space afforded by the open fanlight. In his decent from the fanlight the burglar knocked down a row of jellies, but the thief was of an orderly turn of mind for they were all picked up and neatly stacked on the counter

Cambridge ladies & wounded, p2

1899 12 08
New Hotel, "Fleur-de-Lis", Humberstone road, Chesterton. This first-class hotel is now open and replete with every comfort. Billiards room in course of erection. Gentlemen visiting the hotel will find the Smoke Room fitted with every comfort – advert. # c.27.4 # c.27.45

Muddy streets, p2

1899 12 09
John Ginn, 12 years of age, living at Saxon-street, a hamlet near Newmarket, has just distinguished himself by a curious adventure. Having read of the boy who killed three Boers in the South African War, his spirit burned within him to go and do likewise. Emptying his money box he had enough to pay his railway fare to Ely and set forth. He left behind pinned on the wall of his room this curious epistle: - "Dear mother and father, I am going to be a soldier and shoot Boers with a revolver, like the boy Sherlock did. Goodbye, John Ginn". The boy was interviewed by the Colonel in command at Ely who gave him some good advice and a return railway fare home

St Luke's head charged, p3

1899 12 14
John Weeds of the City Arms, Sturton Street, Cambridge told the court he had a fowl run on his premises. When he left home at one o'clock there were 22 birds in the run. He returned the following day and found only there were only 16. The prisoner was in the tap room the previous evening and knew fowls were kept in the yard. PC Thompson had found him with a bag containing three hens which he said he'd bought from a man in Sturton Street the previous night.

1899 12 14
Messrs Benskins, brewers with a branch at St Neots, were summonsed for selling beer in bulk without an excise licence at Eltisley. The beer was sent round to persons who were usually customers and the drayman offered an 18 gallon cask to James Millard who had it delivered to his farm. He usually ordered two casks at a time and the beer was delivered to his brother's farm premises. It was a technical breach of the statute

1899 12 15
The frost continues with great severity in the fens. The University Skating Club at Cambridge was opened yesterday. The ice was fairly thick, but rough. The moors at Littleport were open to the public, but there was practically little skating elsewhere. The National Skating Association were busy making the necessary arrangements for bring off the Championships and other races and entered into arrangement with the proprietor of the Littleport Club to hold the British Championships at that resort.

1899 12 16
The tripe season is now in full swing and the noted house for this commodity is E.J. Edward's, 36 Fitzroy St, Cambridge. Tripe is a valuable edible for dyspeptics and other suffering from impaired digestion and as such there should be a good demand for it during the ensuing festive season. Mr Edward's name has been before the public for the past 50 years as a tripe dresser and glaze manufacturer and there is no doubt the stock he has laid in for Christmas will be more than equal to the increased demand.

1899 12 19
Sir – will you allow me to appeal on behalf of journey-men bakers for one day's holiday this Christmas. Christmas Day being Monday there will be dinners to bake, which will take up till two o'clock at least. Then at night there will be the work of preparing sponge for Tuesday's bread. With so many good things about there will be not much bread wanted. I, myself, am serving 143 customers daily and there was not one who did not seem anxious to do what they could for us. You will agree that bakers' work is very hard and trying with long hours and little pay and certainly less holidays than any other trade – "Baker"

1899 12 19
An extraordinary account has just leaked out regarding a dog, which about ten days ago was abandoned for dead, and subsequently interred in the back garden of a cottage in Gwydir Street, Cambridge. For some days afterwards noises resembling the pitiful moanings of a dog were heard by the neighbours. A week later a neighbour noticed that something resembling steam was issuing from the soil at the bottom of the garden. When the soil was removed the dog crawled out, wagging his tail with apparent gratitude.

Cambridge men in action, p3 *

1899 12 20

In noticing the entertainment given at the Conservative Club by the Cambridge Pier rots, we would at the outset congratulate the management upon shortening the programme. No more enjoyable evening can be spent in listening to the excellent numbers contributed by that talented troupe but we may say that three hours is somewhat of a strain on the troupe and audience alike. As it was a programme of twenty-six items was got through. The sextette, "Oh! see the lambkins play" is undoubtedly one of the best items # c.69

Christmas – Frank Ward, p3

1899 12 21
Loyal Suffolk Hussars, p3
Death Reynolds Rowe, p3

1899 12 22
St Ives patriotic entertainment, p2

1899 12 23
While making excavations at the junction of City Road and Fitzroy Street some workmen in the employ of the Cambridge Electric Lighting Company came upon some gruesome remains. They dug up some coffins. It is supposed the site is that of the old burial ground of Eden Street chapel. The remains were removed to Mill Road cemetery, where they were interred. For some reason efforts are being made to prevent the real facts becoming known. The employees of the Electric Light jealously guard what they deem an important secret, and refuse to give any details. # c.21.2

1899 12 23
Following a well-established custom, the employees of the New Theatre Company, whose duties are more particularly concerned with stage arrangements, gather at the University Arms to partake of a substantial meal. The menu was characteristic of the season and comprised roast beef, boiled and roast leg of mutton, with vegetables, discussed to the accompaniment of English ale, followed by Christmas pudding. Tobacco and cigars were supplied ad.lib. and for those whose tastes were in that direction there was “a wee drappie of whiskie”

1899 12 23 c
Mr H. Ayres of Tenison Road, Cambridge has just received another letter from their son, Corporal Fred Ayres, in South Africa. He wrote: "I have seen what real fighting is, and I do not wish to see much more. The bullets were flying all round our heads on every side of us for a long time. It was a miracle that myself, as well as so many more of us, came out alive. I believe that God was protecting me in answer to your prayers. Do not worry too much on my account. I am only one of a large number" - Fred

1899 12 27
Christmas in Cambridge, p3 *

1899 12 28
The nigger troupe which came into existence under such happy circumstances some two years ago at Waterbeach made another public appearance there when they gave a successful entertainment in the schoolroom in aid of the local War Fund. The room was crowded to the doors. Considerable pains had been taken in the arrangement of the entertainment and the programme which contained no less than 20 numbers was furnished and received with evident satisfaction

Christmas in churches, p2 *

1899 12 29
Review of year, p2
Cambridgeshire constables to war, p3 *

1899 12 30
Interview Deck, p3 *
Reservists leave, p3

1900 Cambridge Daily News

There are reader printer copies and scans
Checked against diary

January 1900 CDN

1900 01 01
Farewell to 1899 and welcome to 1900 were symbolised by the two rockets that were sent up from King's Parade just before the stroke of 12 on New Year's Eve. The custom of discharging rockets has been religiously observed since 1825 by the Deck family and it is now one of the established institutions of Cambridge life and a much-looked-for feature of the season's festivities.# c.39

Fenstanton burial

1900 01 02
Evison's Manure Works, Ramsey, were destroyed by fire, damage to the extent of many thousands of pounds being caused. Five hundred tons of sulphuric acid were released through leaden tanks melting and the liquid flooded the premises. Considerable quantities of the acid flowed into a branch of the River Nene, which is close to the gutted factory, and thousands of fish were destroyed.

Stansted vicar & war, p3 *

1900 01 03
Few villages display so much religious activity as that which has characterised Waterbeach. Not very long ago the Baptists entered upon a scheme for beautifying their chapel. Encouraged by their success they have now undertaken the erection of new Sunday Schools. The number of children who, Sunday after Sunday, are brought under the influence of the loyal band of workers at the chapel exceeds 150. The site has been acquired from the trustees of the Duke of Wellington

Newmarket fire brigade dinner, p3 *

1900 01 04
The last scene in a long life of much usefulness to the county of Cambridge was enacted at Trumpington when the funeral of Mr Henry Pemberton of Trumpington Hall took place. The villagers unobtrusively gave expression to their heart-felt sympathy. During the time mourners were assembling and during the funeral service the blinds at almost every residence in the village were drawn, the few places of business were closed, and at the corners passed by the cortege there were knots of inhabitants who, with reverently uncovered heads, watched the body on its last journey.

Alderney diary, p2 *

1900 01 09
Reservist letter, p3

1900 01 10
A whirligig proprietor was summoned for driving horses and vehicles on to the village green at Burrough Green and doing damage to the amount of sixpence. Afterwards they fixed swings and roundabouts there. The things were spread about so as to prevent the green being used as a playground as usual. Alfred Ward, (56) said that from his boyhood the green had been used for games by village boys and girls. It was only within the last ten years the fair people had taken their stand on it. They were fined 30s for refusing to leave

A black list, p2 *

1900 01 10 c
The Ouse Drainage Board was not popular with a small band of farmers gathered for the sale of goods distrained for non-payment of rates in the Bedford area. Two sets of harness were offered and somebody pointed to a rent in the halter. The crowd, desiring opportunities of closer inspection, surged forward and the auctioneer was pushed off his chair. Somebody bid a shilling but the auctioneer would not take it and the man holding the harness became involved in an argument with another. The lot was withdrawn

1900 01 11
There were no doubt religious services at Fordham on Christmas Day, but with a goodly number of the youth of the place the attraction of the church proved less powerful than those of a public house. A policeman found a large congregation in a room but in less than a minute he was left alone with a table, a box of dice and some coppers. It needed not a Sherlock Holmes to arrive at the conclusion that gambling had been forward and the gamblers had scarpered. It is an unmitigated evil that children should be encouraged to gamble. Let those who have a care for the moral welfare of Fordham look to it

1900 01 12
Bendysh Hall, Saffron Walden, was partly destroyed by fire. It broke out in a bedroom in close proximity to where Mr Bennett Pell's invalid father slept, and in which room a fire was continually kept burning. It was from the beam in the chimney of this room that the fire is supposed to have originated. One half of the building, consisting of the entrance hall, drawing room, ante-room, bedrooms, dairy and other rooms were gutted.

1900 01 13
Gt Chesterford fire, p3

1900 01 15
Burwell murder, p3 *

1900 01 16
A campanological, vocal and instrumental entertainment was given by the Walford Family at the Cambridge Guildhall. One instrument of their invention is the Hydroaktulopsychichamonica, or aqueous musical glasses, on which selections were very prettily played.

Cambridge Graphic advert, p1
Burwell murder verdict, p3

1900 01 17
In February of last year the hospitality of the columns of the C.D.N. was extended to Mr Clark of Swaffham Prior by the publication of a letter with reference to his difference with the vicar. It was strongly worded and calculated to provoke a vigorous rejoinder. When a reply was received it was inserted. The contents annoyed him so much that he instructed a London solicitor to write asking for the name of the anonymous 'Lover of truth' to be given up to him. When informed this could not for one moment be considered he elected to proceed with an action of libel against the newspaper. It is one of the traditions of British journalism that the confidence reposed in a newspaper by those who write and desire that their names should not be made known is sacred. It is a matter of satisfaction that a jury has exonerated us from blame and that our fairness and judgement has been vindicated

1900 01 18
An action for libel was brought by Mr W.E. Humphreys, proprietor of the "Cambridge Magazine" against Mr H.D. Catling, proprietor of "The Cantab" with the "Cambridge Gazette" company as co-defendants. Mr Humphreys said he was asked to contribute to "The Cantab" and it was arranged that if the paper was a success he should receive a quarter of the profits, but he received no profit at all. There was a verbal agreement by which he was to buy "The Cantab" for £10 but it fell through and he resolved to start the Cambridge Magazine , editorial, p2 * # c.04

1900 01 18
Messrs Headley & Edwards told an inquiry that Cheddar's Lane afforded access to the brickyard belonging to Thoday and Co. Ltd who were large employees of labour in Cambridge and a very great deal of the traffic passed between the brickyards and Newmarket Road. As a result the lane was in a very bad condition.

1900 01 20
For the second time since the Boer ultimatum the consequences of war have been brought very close to Cambridge. This morning there was a second demonstration in which Town and Gown joined hands in a common feeling of respect for those who, though not compelled by laws to leave the old country, were nevertheless anxious to lend a hand in the war. Shortly after ten o'clock the special train steamed out of the siding, kisses were blown and the Volunteers who will represent Cambridge at the front were out of sight, but not out of mind 1900 # c.45.4

1900 01 22
Mr G.W. Rawlinson of Mill Road, Cambridge has received a letter from Private Caswell, who is well known in the town. He writes: "at daybreak we attacked the Boers who were holding a low-lying hill from which they poured a very severe fire. We kept steadily on till we were within 100 yards of them, when we fixed bayonets and charged them. In retiring they had to cross a valley. We poured volley after volley into them with deadly effect. Later I was struck on the ankle by a shell which did not burst and which has made be an invalid for a fortnight"

1900 01 24
To the accompaniment of an outburst of patriotic sentiment three of the Volunteers attached to the Royston Company of the 1st Volunteer Battalion Beds Regiment left on Tuesday afternoon. Nearly the whole of the townspeople, including the tradesmen, turned out to wish "our citizen soldiers" God speed and good luck. The little band of Volunteers looked spick and span in their scarlet uniforms. The Royston Military Band were present and the very lively and good-tempered crowd entered heartily into the patriotic airs they played. The enthusiasm of the scene will remain long on the memory of Royston people.

1900 01 25
The Cambridge Co-operative Society has erected spacious new premises in Burleigh Street. The building is imposing and by contrast with the other not very ornate premises in Burleigh Street is rendered all the more conspicuous. On the ground floor are spaces for the butchery, drapery and boot and shoe department. The first floor is well laid out for other branches with a ready-made clothes emporium and on the top floor is a really fine meeting room. The old building in Fitzroy Street will be retained for the grocery portion of the business. # c.27.2

Aldreth Bridge, p3

1900 01 25
St Ives Rural Council considered the state of the roads. They were not very good and the surveyor could not make them so without the use of a steamroller. The question of expense was not a very serious one as shown by the Ramsey Council purchasing a roller. They generally considered themselves equal to Ramsey Council, but they were certainly behind them. The cost was £470. The chairman said the roads were not in a bad state and the only complaints they received were from cyclists who did not contribute one penny to the rates.

1900 01 26

A large warehouse at St Ives occupied by Councillor Bullard, rod merchant, for the storage of osier rods caught alight. The fire when first discovered was raging in the middle story of the building at the end nearest the river but within a quarter of an hour the whole place was a mass of fire, owing to the inflammable nature of its contents. The whole of the woodwork was destroyed and nothing but the bare walls of the huge warehouse now remain. Mr Bullard's dwelling house was only separated by the roadway and his children were quickly taken from their beds, wrapped up in blankets, and removed to a place of safety.

1900 01 26
Ashley rector, p3 *
Rose Inn licensing, p3 *
Hinxton murder, p3 *
St Ives fire, p3 *

1900 01 27
Rose licence, p2
Cottenham light railway, p4

1900 01 29
An Indian Prime Minister engaged a cab to attend a dinner at Downing College, Cambridge, and made an engagement for the driver to call at his lodgings to convey him back to the station next morning. The cab never turned up and driven to extremity the minister prevailed upon a passing milkman to take his portmanteau to the station. Being a pretty good runner he started off but became exhausted and got into the milk cart which contained his luggage. Not wishing to be recognised he took off his turban and turned his collar up, hiding his face. His Highness was naturally in no good humour. Such an incident cannot fail to give the town a bad name

1900 01 31
The Pot Ash at Radwinter was considered at the Saffron Walden licensing sessions. This was situated in a very remote part of the parish, with only a few cottages on a bye road. There were five licensed houses in the parish with a population of 790. No parishioners would regret the house being closed. The most important application was the surrender of the licences of two houses in Chrishall, the Greyhound and the Gate, a dilapidated cottage with a thatched roof. If both closed it would leave only one licensed house, the Red Cow, for a population of 547. Brewers now supplied beer in gallon jars so many people did not go to public houses for what they required.

1900 01 31
Graces are to be submitted to the Senate of Cambridge University to authorise the Vice Chancellor to grant the use of the Senate House for a meeting to consider an increased establishment of the University Rifle Volunteers, and to allow the use of the Senate House as a drill room for recruits at times when it is not required for University purposes

February 1900 CDN

1900 02 01
William Hammond of the White Swan, Staffordshire Street, Cambridge, was summoned for allowing a horse to stray in Norfolk Street and pleaded guilty. PC Leonard Savidge stated that he found the horse straying and placed it in the Walnut Tree Pound. Defendant, who said the pony was left on the common, was fined 2s.6d.

Stetchworth water, p2 *
University Engineering Lab wing, p3

1900 02 03
Engineering School, p2

1900 02 05
The snowstorm at Cambridge had very serious effects upon the telephone service in consequence of the wires being exposed. On Saturday no less than 100 subscribers of the local company were affected and although the company has brought in assistance from Norwich to hurry the repairs it must be two or three days before the complete system is restored. The company is endeavouring to arrange for permission to lay the whole of the wires underground so the general public will be saved a repetition of the present serious inconvenience.

Illegal fishing, p2

1900 02 05
Cambridge Adverting Company reported that the hoarding in Victoria Road, Chesterton was in course of enlargement and one at Shelford has recently been enlarged to meet the demand for country posters. An additional hoarding has been secured at the Traveller's Rest, Huntingdon road, and is open to still further enlargement. The secretary and foreman billposter had been most attentive to their duties

1900 02 06
His comrades at Cambridge police station have received a letter from Private A. Goodchild, giving a very interesting account of the mishap to the Suffolk Regiment. "Everything went off all right till we got nearly to the top of the hill, not hearing a shot or noise of any kind. The opinion was that the Boers had evacuated their position during the night. Then we had the command to advance and as the men's heads came above the top of the hill they were shot down. The word "retire" was shouted out and of about 400 who went up there half the number returned.

1900 02 07
South Essex Waterworks Company proposal to construct a large reservoir near Melbourn would drain the watershed from which Newmarket obtained its supply. In some nearby villages water was very scarce in summer & in one or two had to be carted about by water carts from a distance. But Mr Segrott said it would be an advantage to have the water a few feet lower in the town. Several could tell of having their cellars flooded. When the Hotel Victoria was built it took an engine weeks working day and night to keep the water down.

Prickwillow footpath, p3

1900 02 08
For the first time the British Amateur Skating Championship has been decided at Littleport. At no venue in Great Britain are the arrangements so to up-to-date. All Cambridge sportsmen will welcome Albert Tebbit's success. He has had to wait five years to have his third race for the championship which has always been held by a man from Welney – the little hamlet known as the metropolis of speed skating.

1900 02 10
Skating editorial, p2
Labourers' Union embezzlement, p3

1900 01 12
A successful amateur skating competition open to all within a radius of five miles was held on the championship skating course at Swavesey. The ice was not looking its best, being in some places rough and bumpy. The Prize Challenge Cup (to be won twice) was given by Mr Ben Thorp of Swavesey and Messrs Norman Bros generously gave the prizes.

1900 02 13

Coveney churchyard scandal, p3
Skating

1900 02 14
What is hoped to be the final stage of the Coveney churchyard scandal was reached at the Ely County Court. It was alleged that the rector had wrongfully removed a certain tombstone in the churchyard, damaging it and disposed it to his own use. He would now give up the piece of the monument in his possession and the plaintiff proceed to its erection at his own cost. No one would refer to this matter in time to come and parties will abstain from writing to the public press again.

Skating, Coveney, p3
Wranglership, p3

1900 02 15
The weather through the country continues to be very severe and in many districts traffic is almost at a standstill. In Huntingdonshire the drifts in many places were 6ft deep. The mail cart from Cambridge to St Neots got embedded in the snow and could not be moved. The contents had to be removed and carried some distance to another vehicle.

1900 02 15
Stonea Grange situate by the side of the Great Eastern Railway near Stonea station was destroyed by fire. The March fire brigade left in a snowstorm and experienced some difficulty in getting to the scene on account of the many drifts which had been made during the night. The house was an old-fashioned one and contained some splendid oak-panelled rooms, all of which were destroyed

Inquest S. Constable, child, Stretham, p2

1900 02 15
The Isle of Ely highways committee called attention to the dilapidated condition of the private road in the parish of Mepal known as “Ireton’s Way”. On one occasion their steam roller got stuck in the road and was with difficulty extricated. There was no other way to get to this part of the Isle. A very heavy toll was charged upon it but there would be no complaint if it were properly repaired. They did not know the peculiar circumstances of the owner of the road. The best plan would be to obtain control of it, otherwise it might only be half repaired.

1900 02 16
Electric Company free wiring, p3

1900 02 17
The scene at the door of the Senate House on the morning on which the lists in the Mathematical Tripos are published, and the ceremony of the wooden spoon, belong to the life of Cambridge as much as the May Races. But this is not all. Within a few minutes of the announcement on the steps of the Senate House, the name of the winner of the Cambridge Mathematical trophy is telegraphed to the ends of the earth. It is because Cambridge offers the Senior Wranglership that men have come from every part of the earth to pursue their studies in Cambridge. It would have made a great change if the recommendations of the Mathematical Board of Studies towards its abolition had been sanctioned by the Senate.

1900 02 19
Water flooded the Waits, Wellington Street and Priory Road, St Ives, to the depth of several feet and inhabitants have had to remove their household effects and live in the upper rooms. Residents in Woolpack Lane could only reach their dwellings by means of planks laid on packing boxes. The Union Workhouse at Hemingford Grey is flooded to a depth of several inches. Thirty-eight houses in Victoria Terrace are flooded and provisions have to be delivered by boat. The flood has passed by nearly an inch the height of the disastrous flood of 1877.

1900 02 19
A fire occurred in the shop used as a general stores for the grocery and drapery business of Mr R.A. Waddelow of Waterbeach. An assistant, Mr Albert Denson slept upon the premises and was awakened by a choking sensation. Fortunately there was a pump and a supply of pails handy and two young men, one with no shoes on and the other in his socks, commenced pouring water through the window on to the burning material underneath. For a quarter of an hour they laboured with a will before assistance was forthcoming. There is no organised fire brigade in the village, but there is a fire engine which was out of order at the time of the outbreak
.
Coveney dentists case, p3

1900 02 22
"It is very hard lines", writes an anonymous correspondent, "for poor washerwomen to go to their work at 9am and then for their employers not to let them leave off until between 9 and 10 pm. It ought to be known that they don't allow the poor women time to swallow their meals before they want them to start again". The writer hopes her letter by induce "the laundresses to give the poor washerwomen a chance". If it is at all common for women to be kept at work for more than twelve hours without sufficient intervals for meals, a state of matters exists which urgently calls for redress.

Biograph 1st exhibition, p2 *

1900 02 23
Not within our experience has there been so much sickness as during these last few months. It would take a very skilful actuary to make a full account of what influenza has cost the country. At the Hearts of Oak dinner in Cambridge the secretary reported that sickness has been altogether unprecedented, and they have paid out £7,700 in sickness allowances. Happily though influenza frequently develops into something very serious, in itself it is not deadly.

1900 02 24
Cost of influenza, p2 *

1900 02 26
A rare occurrence took place at Wilburton a few days ago. A cow belonging to Mr George Sharp, a small farmer, gave birth to five calves. The new arrivals, which are somewhat below the normal size, are all alive and well. The same cow had twins 18 months ago.

1900 02 28
The building which stands off St Andrew's street, Cambridge, and which has recently been erected through the munificence of Mrs Lewis & Mrs Gibson, members of the congregation of St Columba's Presbyterian Church was formally opened. The need for such a hall had long been felt and is undoubtedly one of the best buildings of the kind. It has cost no less than £2,000 & is lighted with electric light. # c.83

March 1900 CDN

1900 03 01
The greatest possible excitement followed the receipt of the news of the relief of Ladysmith. The telegrams conveying the announcement was received at the chief Post office shortly after 10 o'clock and the intelligence spread with marvellous rapidity to all parts of the town. When a private wire was posted in the Market Place the excitement was intense. From all approaches people could be seen rushing to get a view of the telegram and the wildest enthusiasm prevailed. The crowd raised hearty cheers and there was much waving of hats and handkerchiefs.

1900 03 03

There was great rejoicings in Cambridge on the relief of Ladysmith and despite the edict sent forth by the University authorities the conduct of the undergraduate element was again such as to necessitate the intervention of the police. The Varsitymen managed to draw police attention off the market place to scenes elsewhere and, during their temporary absence, succeeded in lighting a bonfire. There was great excitement as one by one the wooden frameworks of the stalls was committed to the flames. The band-stand on Christ's Pieces was attacked and the seats removed to the Market and quickly consumed. Similar damage was occasioned in all parts of the town. # c.36.93

Hooper Street sale, p2
Reservist's letter, p2

1900 03 05
The University has the power to stop these things. But what did the University do to prevent the destruction of property – practically nothing. A year ago an edict forbidding bonfires was issued, that edict was torn to shreds. The University cannot afford to have it said that the people of Cambridge had property stolen or destroyed in order to furnish forth an undergraduate carnival. The firmness of the Mayor and his brother magistrates in dealing with the men who came up at the police-court has been much commended. The Barnwell rough belongs to the past. The unfortunate thing is that his mantle had fallen upon the rowdy undergraduate of the present. # c.36.93

1900 03 06
Ladysmith, Redfern interviewed, p3
Victoria Road Congregational Church Sunday School, p3

1900 03 06 c
Sir – In your editorial you seem to imply that all the damage done during the Ladysmith rag was caused by undergraduates. As a matter of fact all the windows that were broken were broken by townsmen. You seem to have quite forgotten that the prosperity, nay the very existence of the town depends upon University men, and a very good picking the town gets out of the Varsity men. The fines imposed by the magistrates were simply outrageous, passing all bounds of common sense and justice. - Spectator

1900 03 06
Sir – At present gates cross the railway line on Milton Road, Cambridge, and a sub-way is provided for vehicular traffic. After heavy rains it is flooded some feet deep and a few days ago the driver of a carriage containing an invalid lady found over five feet of water there, and no room to turn round. The invalid and her attendant had to sit up to their knees in water, and in their saturated clothes had to proceed to the Hospital. – Viator

1900 03 07
The ire of the undergraduate once roused, not even the powerful hand of Alma Mater suffices to entirely quell the wrath that has been kindled. An attacking force of undergraduates gathered many recruits as it made its way along Hills Road and it was at once seen that the objective was the Mayor's residence in Brooklands Avenue. They were dismayed to find the thoroughfare barricaded by a posse of police constables. The mob made a bold rush. The police partially yielded but not more than half of the 'Varsity flank passed through the cordon when the police closed ranks. The trap that had been set proved effective for those who marched triumphantly down the Avenue had not negotiated more than fifty yards when they were encountered by the Proctors mustered in strong force. c.36.93

1900 03 08
The first khaki wedding in Cambridge was held at St Botolph's church. The bride was attired in regulation khaki tight-fitting bodice, braided Hussar, with braid to match, khaki straw hat, trimmed with white chiffon and silk. She wore a spray of orange blossom and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and snowdrops, covered with maidenhair fern. The bridesmaids wore khaki shirts with silk tunics to match. They also wore scarlet shoes and hats.

1900 03 08 c
We have received the following from Private H. Plumb, a Cambridge reservist now in South Africa. 'We attacked Red Hill and got to the very top of it where there was very hot fire from rifles of the Boers. After the colonel gave the order for the men to retire he was then shot through the head. The adjutant and two lieutenants were also killed as well as about 28 rank and file, while 27 were wounded and about 107 missing. When they got back to the camp the sergeant major got on to some of the wounded because they came back without their officers!'

1900 03 09
The large ornamental advertising lamp which hung outside the Star and Garter, Petty Cury, Cambridge, all but cost Mr Ernest Simpkin, a tailor of Russell Street, his life this afternoon. He was walking along the Cury when a bus ran very close to the kerb. The top caught the lamp with such force as to bring it with a crash to the ground and one of the brass ornaments struck him on the side of the head. He was conveyed in a hansom to Mr Lucas, surgeon of St Andrew's street for medical treatment.

1900 03 10
Accident Lister and Brack engineering works, p3

1900 03 10
Cambridge is beginning to tire of the "rag". We cannot go on celebrating the relief of Ladysmith forever. Nor can the more right-minded citizens countenance meaningless ebullitions against magistrates, however they may disagree with their decisions in the police court. It was confidently expected that if the undergraduates charged with assaulting the police were convicted there would be nothing short of a riot in which a gigantic fire, a fabulous number of barrels of tar and a torchlight procession were to be a conspicuous feature. It is true there was plenty of noise and plenty of aimless rushing about the streets but it all ended in nothing.

1900 03 12
The list of those who have signed the petition in favour of a free pardon for those undergraduates who were recently convicted by the Cambridge magistrates of felony during the Ladysmith celebrations, fully justifies is description as the petition of Cambridge. Over 1,200 residents in the town and members of the University have put their names to it. Cambridge Town and University are unanimous in the hope that the hot-headed enthusiasts of Ladysmith Day may be forgiven for what was done in the excitement of the hour. It remains with the Home Secretary to decide whether the prayer of the petition is to be granted.

Outbreak of glanders, p2

1900 03 13
American food campaign

1900 03 16
Mr W. Farren of Regent Street, Cambridge, has received a fine specimen of the dog otter, which was killed near Upware. It weighs 24lbs and is on view in the window of his shop.

1900 03 16
The Home Secretary has granted the petition of Cambridge and has recommended the Queen to grant a free pardon to all the defendants. He does not say the undergraduates did not commit felony, but there were extenuating circumstances. This is undoubtedly a slap in the face for the magistrates who share the responsibility for these convictions. Clearly the Home Secretary does not think much of their law, and he thinks less of their capacity for judging of evidence. Some timid people may be apprehensive lest it encourages the demonstratively-inclined magistrate to be more demonstrative in the future. # c.36.93

1900 03 16
A well-attended meeting of ratepayers in New Cherryhinton complained of the disgraceful state of the streets and roads, some of which are now in bad weather quite impassable. They now had 240 houses in the district and the congestion of so many cesspools and make shift drains was a source of danger, not only to the health of the resident community, but also to that of the people of Cambridge. There is some friction between the Chesterton District Council and the Corporation of Cambridge preventing the progress of negotiations for inclusion in the sewerage scheme.

1900 03 17
Cambridge people do not seem to mind if their water sources are tapped for the benefit of the people of Essex. A ratepayers' meeting was called but there was present the Town Clerk, his chief clerk and four reporters. Alderman Spalding arrived shortly after and after a quarter of an hour's waiting, business was commenced by the meeting of three. Mr B. Diver then strolled into the room. He was the only unattached ratepayer present. Alderman Spalding addressed the meeting, or rather the reporters. Small as the meeting was the Press was amply represented and he had no doubt there would represent the Cambridge public very faithfully.

1900 03 19
Home Secretary and magistrates, p2, p3 *
Back from dead, p2

1900 03 20
The medical officer of Godmanchester has just issued his report. Eight deaths occurred in children under one year of age. No case of smallpox occurred. The pollution of wells had materially decreased, the removal and disposal of sewage and town refuse was satisfactory, and the sewers were in a fairly good condition.

1900 03 20
An inquest was held at Wentworth on the body of a four-year old boarded out child from Dr Barnardo's Home who was found drowned. A farmer's wife said she took charge of the deceased last June. A lady brought the child to her from Dr Barnardo's Home and she was to receive payment for its lodging and keeping. It was awkward that nobody was present representing the Home. They had telegraphed there on Saturday and again on Monday, but had received no reply. The Coroner remarked that was very bad form.

1900 03 21
Bankruptcy Isaac Banyard, builder, p2

1900 03 22
Milk cart spill, p2

1900 03 23
At Addenbrooke's Hospital there is a training home for nurses, which is one of the most successful institutions of its kind. It makes a significant contribution to the funds of the Hospital. For this reason alone it is well worth the while of the Governors to give their best efforts in maintaining it in a high state of efficiency 1900

Timely discovery of fire, p2 *

1900 03 24
Grantchester carpenter & wife, p3 *

1900 03 27

What would doubtless have proved a serious outbreak of fire occurred at Newmarket Union Workhouse at Exning. A strong smell of burning wood became noticeable and the caretaker of the larder, which is adjacent to the Master's sitting room, on searching for the cause, noticed smoke coming through the lath and plaster ceiling of the larder. Buckets of water were poured and a large garden syringe requisitioned by the Jockey Club Owners and Trainers Fire Brigade.

1900 03 29
A debate at New Chesterton Institute was told that while at the beginning of the century. Cambridge could only boast one weekly paper, they now had something like half-a-dozen weeklies and two dailies. During the past few years the Press generally had lost its influence for good upon the public. He did not think in recent years that editors had improved (Laughter). One sometimes heard that editors were "got at" and that sometimes big prices fetched extravagant leaders. There was too much reporting of police-court cases and inquests and they could do with a little less of the tragedy. The minds of the young were being poisoned by these things. # c.04

1900 03 30
A bedmaker's help was charged with stealing various articles of clothing from a room at Emmanuel College. She had taken four waistcoats and three pairs of trousers to Norman Bradley's pawnbrokers in Fitzroy Street. She had also pledged a vest for 1s.6d, a pair of gold studs for 4s. & a nightshirt, pants etc which she said were her own property. As a customer for the past 30 years the manager was quite satisfied with her explanation

1900 03 30
Four youths living in Ely were summoned under the Highways Act for playing hockey in West End. All pleaded guilty except Smith, who claimed he did not touch the ball. PC Green said they were running about and knocking the ball into the middle of the road. Smith had said "There's Green, he'll have you". Play paused for a while but was resumed in St John's Place. Defendants were ordered to pay 8s.6d. the court expenses, between them

1900 03 31
This afternoon the last inter-Varsity Boat Race of the century was rowed over the usual course, from Putney to Mortlake. For the first time for many years the weather was beautifully fine, and the many thousands who lined the banks and crowded the bridges and barges were able to witness the race with much comfort – a state of affairs entirely opposite to that experienced last year. Cambridge won.

April 1900 CDN

1900 04 02
Sergt-Major F. Ingle of the Imperial Light Horse, who was formerly employed by Messrs Eaden Lilley & co., and is a son of the late Mr Ingle, whitesmith of Cambridge, who was in the beleaguered town of Ladysmith throughout the siege, has written to his brother. "Only by going into every house, hole or corner, could you be lucky enough to find someone who had found in some unexpected place, a small amount of food that had been mislaid or forgotten"

1900 04 04
The following appointments of parish constables were made: Burwell, H. Martin; Brinkley, F. Geo. Howard; Cheveley, J. Nicholls; Chippenham, A. Duffield; Dullingham, J. Smith; Fordham G.R. Godfrey; Isleham, J. Dilley; Soham H. Rouse; Wicken, W. Barton; Wood Ditton J.J. Howe & C. Cates.

1900 04 04
Newmarket council heard that a Manchester firm had submitted examples of very cheap enamelled hackney carriage badges, but as the sample was inferior to that submitted by Mr Simpson of Newmarket, and as he had quoted a greatly reduced price, it was decided to give him the order.

1900 04 04
Private Percy Darby, one of the Cambridge men serving in South Africa, describes the rations of an ordinary fighting man. They got two biscuits for a day's rations, and as for bread he had not seen any for a month. The number of prisoners coming into the English camp made matters worse for our troops had to give half their rations to the captured enemy. He saw two wagon loads of dead Highlanders brought into the camp. "They looked horrible; their heads and legs hanging over the sides of the wagon as blue and black as anything. They buried 59 of them in one long grave and it made me feel quite bad"

St Edward's church new organ, p2

1900 04 05
Property sale Hills Road etc, p2

190 04 06
Newmarket butchers meat, p3

1900 04 07
The shopkeepers of Cambridge who have agreed to close early on Thursday afternoons during the May term have shown a consideration for their employees which is deserving of the highest praise. There is much to be said for early closing all the year round but the next best thing is that throughout the summer months, while the attractions of the open air hold out, shop assistants should have a few hours of breathing space every week. The shopkeepers will gain a good deal. Their assistants will serve them all the better because they are considerately treated, and the approval of the general public will be theirs also. # c.27.2

1900 04 09
St Ives fire, p2

1900 04 10
Three boys were summoned for damaging monuments in the parish churchyard at Dunmow. A seven-year old boy was called for the prosecution. His mother informed the Bench that it would be useless to swear him. He was always telling lies and it would be all false what he told the Bench about the matter.

1900 04 10
Amongst the Baptists at Willingham a serious split has arisen. The members of the church are arrayed against the ordinary members of the congregation as to whether only members of the church could act in the appointment of a pastor, or whether the congregation had a voice in the matter. The dispute was submitted to the president of the Baptist Union.

Beer in Cambridgeshire, p2

1900 04 14
On Good Friday the members of Trumpington Free Church held a tea meeting in their new place of worship in the village. To the tea about one hundred persons sat down. There was a small attendance at the subsequent meeting. The chairman said the building was very nearly paid for. 118 persons had contributed a shilling or less which showed a large number of people in Trumpington had a share in the building. # c.83

1900 04 14
It is exactly 37 years ago that the Baptists of Swaffham Prior became possessed of a building in which to hold their services. Mr George Apthorpe recalled how in 1859 someone approached him to ask whether he would go to Swaffham. He readily assented but found some difficulty in finding one who would open his house for the conduct of a Nonconformist service in that stronghold of ecclesiasticism. Accordingly he went to the late Mr Frederick Palmby who granted the use of his barn. Soon the services were attended by some 500 people.

1900 04 16
High winds have made the Easter holidays less pleasant that could have been desired. It has been weather which has put the temper severely to the test. Gusts of wind, dust driving along the road, discover the weak point in a man or woman's patience very quickly. These holidays have been most disappointing to cyclists. They had looked forward to merry spins along country roads; those who have ventured forth have had experience of pedalling in the teeth of a gale. It is impossible to imagine they were getting pleasure out of their favourite pastime.

1900 04 17
Military display, p2 *

1900 04 17 c
Cambridge Town Council moved a resolution tendering its sincere congratulations to the Prince of Wales on his escape from the recent attempt on his life. The Prince was intimately connected with Cambridge. They must deeply regret the epidemic of frenzy against this country which at the present moment was upon the continent, and nowhere more than in the Belgium. The violent language of the press sometimes affected the minds of excitable people and led to regrettable outbursts.

1900 04 19
Cambridge Town Council were told a conference had been held between two members of the committee and the Master and Bursar of Emmanuel College with reference to the construction of a new street from Drummer Street to St Andrew's Street, and the closing and giving up of Emmanuel Street to the college.

1900 04 21
Wicken Fen is, it is reported, about to be reclaimed. Enclosed by broad ditches which can only be jumped with the help of a pole, it is overgrown with coarse sedge and sallow-bush. Rare plants and insects lurk in this natural state and makes a happy hunting-ground for the botanist and entomologist. The swallow-tail, perhaps the most beautiful of English butterflies, still lingers, though not nearly so common as formerly when it was less hunted and the food plant of its caterpillar grew almost everywhere. During the past 200 years fields have replaced the marshes. On the whole it is a change for the better, yet one space might well be preserved as a survival of the olden time

1900 04 21
A serious bus accident happened in Mill Road, Cambridge. The omnibus was waiting for passengers opposite the Royal Standard public house and while the driver was talking on the path, the horses for some unknown reason bolted. The driver and conductor immediately ran after the horses, but were unable to catch them. Two passengers named Annie & Frances Scull, who were on the top of the 'bus jumped off. When the bus was about to pass the Durham Ox it collided with a market cart belonging to Jonas Wilmott, carrier of Orwell and then another cart in charge of Eli Newman, a hawker, of Bottisham. # c.26.46

1900 04 23
A fishmonger of Mill Road, Cambridge, told the bankruptcy court he had started business in 1887 in King Street without any capital. He also traded as a vinegar dealer. He had done some betting and made a small "book". He had not kept accounts, had gambled, had traded when he knew he was insolvent, and had incurred debts when he had no prospect of paying them. It was a very unsatisfactory business altogether

1900 04 23
Cambridge was thrown into a state of intense excitement by the death of a local tradesmen on Christ's Pieces. The shades of night had not yet fallen when the loud report of fire arms were heard. An elderly man rose from the seat he was occupying, just off the path leading from Pike's Walk to Emmanuel Street, staggered forward a couple of paces, reeled round and fell. The fact was then revealed that he had shot himself.

1900 04 25
An inquest on an unnamed child was held at The Mad Cat public house, Pidley. A Somersham woman said she had acted for many years as midwife and had attended at least 100 confinements. The child was born at 10.30 and died about one o'clock. It was disfigured in the mouth. She gave it a little milk and warm water with a spoon but it ran out of the corner of its mouth. She did not think the child could suck and made no further attempt to give it any food. No doctor was sent for.

1900 04 25
The driver of the mail van which conveys the mail bags and hampers from the Soham district to the Norwich and London up mail train at Ely was driving up to the Newmarket post office when one of the two horses harnessed to it began to kick and he dismounted. Just at this time a German band began to play near the horses and this still more alarmed them and they started off at a rapid pace in the direction of Cambridge. The driver followed as quickly as possible and a number of cyclists rode after them.

1900 04 26
The licensing committee were told that the Eagle Tavern in Great Chesterford should be closed. The trade was meagre, only doing half a barrel a week, the house was in an outlying part of the parish and in a dilapidated condition. That would leave the village with two fully-licensed and six beerhouses, with a population of about 700, which included those who did not drink at all. The bench agreed to the surrender of the licences of the Eagle, the Fox & Hounds and the Wagon and Horses, but refused the surrender of the White Horse.

Madingley altar case, p4

1900 04 27
Mr W.B. Redfarn writes: "Sir – Can I be of any service in assisting to save Wicken Fen from the proposed drainage and cultivating scheme? I have a summer residence in Waterbeach Fen and am therefore frequently in the immediate neighbourhood of this charming and interesting bit of ancient fenland. I am sure there would be a deep feeling of regret, among all classes, if this last bit of the English Fens were "reclaimed", and as the land would not be of much value even when under cultivation, its present value cannot be very great". The absolute safety of the fen will never be assured until the whole of it has been acquired by the National Trust, or by private persons determined to save it.

1900 04 28
For upwards of 50 years certain glebe land at All Saint's, Newmarket, has been let as allotments. The land is in the centre of a very thickly-populated part of the town – Exning Road – and is known as Van Diemen's Land. On the rare occasions when a plot is to let there are a large number of applicants. Some plots have been in the same family for as many as 50 years. Two years ago the rector sold a large strip of the land to the Newmarket Gas Company and more recently the Electric Light Company have acquired another strip. Now a new rector has informed the allotment holders that as he has been offered a good price for the land by a Cambridge builder, he was thinking of selling it in order to increase his living.

Excessive motor speed, p3

1900 04 30
Newmarket fire, p4

May 1900 CDN

1900 05 01
For several years past the 1st of May has been observed at the Eden Street Higher Grade School, Cambridge, by a ceremony which is at once attractive and imposing. The scholars assemble in costumes suitable to the best traditions of the sunny month and elect one of their number as Queen for the year. It is a happy survival of May Day festivities, which it is hoped will be perpetuated. Queen Kate and her retinue walked to the throne which was bright with a profusion of spring flowers. The children voted for the new Queen and Ellie Fisher was elected. She was crowned with a wreath of white flowers and saluted with a sisterly kiss by the dowager Queen # c.39

1900 05 01
A branch of the Capital and Counties Bank Ltd has been opened in Cambridge at 63 Sidney Street. The fact that it has been thought desirable to set down another banking establishment is proof of the outside belief in the prosperity of the town. The bank was established in 1834 and have numerous branches in various parts of the country. # c.32.8

1900 05 01
It is a matter of regret that the celebration of May Day has been so largely discontinued. The Maypole has to a large extent disappeared. It was a praiseworthy custom, and its associations were fragrant of rustic purity, but the Maypole has gone the way of the spinning jenny. Children still gather wild flowers on May Day, but the garlands that one sees have too much of the coloured paper and ribbon brought from the draper in their composition. # c.39

1900 05 02
The report that Wicken Fen was about to be drained does not appear to have been well founded. The fen is held in plots by a considerable number of owners and there can be no drainage unless all the owners give their consent. The South Level Commissioners have the right to flood the fen at any time it should seem good to them to do so. Thus they can prevent the land being turned into profitable agricultural uses. The National Trust owns a strip about two acres in extent. In order that it should be permanently secured against mere commercial enterprise it must be acquired on behalf of all the public and it is clear the best thing would be that it should pass into the hands of the National Trust

1900 05 03
Sir – I was charged that I did “drive a motor car at a speed of 20 miles an hour”. The makers advertise that the car is capable of travelling at a rate of 16 mph under favourable conditions, such as recently-charged accumulators, good spirit and well-lubricated pistons. As the cells were almost run down it was impossible for the car to go as fast as was alleged – F.W. Lawrence, Belmont Cycle & Motor Works, Cambridge.

1900 05 04
A most disastrous fire broke out in the centre of Soham which has reduced to a mass of blackened ruins an ancient hostelry, with its contents and outbuildings, a tradesman’s shop and houses, & rendered homeless a dozen persons. The old hostelry “The Fountain”, with its rooms panelled with oak, and interesting alike to the antiquarian and lover of old-style architecture, stood at the corner of Churchgate Street. It was built mostly of timber and had plaster walls, with lath and reeds between. The firemen succeeded in preventing the fire involving a tall building, used in years gone by as a steelyard, hay and straw weighing apparatus.

1900 05 05
Soham fire, p3 *

1900 05 07
Cambridge ambulance men, p4

1900 05 08
An accident occurred at the Norwich crossing, at Queen Adelaide, Ely. A cattle train proceeding at a fair rate dashed into one of the gates which had remained closed across the line. The crash was terrific and caused much alarm to those who heard it. Portions of the gate were flung to a distance of about 50 yards. One portion damaged the spouting of the gatekeeper's house, and after making a hole in the roof, fell into the garden at the back. The gate was a perfect wreck, the iron bars being twisted and broken. The gatekeeper was temporarily engaged at the spot in place of the usual man who was away on holiday. He felt sure the way was clear for the train and it is at present very difficult to account for the gate being shut across the line.

1900 05 09
Sir – As an old user of the East Road Reading Room, Cambridge may I complain of the insufficient supply of newspapers there. Morning newspapers are entirely absent, excepting one a day old. I received a severe shock some time ago when I founded posted up a copy of the "Times" newspaper, but found it was an old copy. In the old days we were allowed the "Times". The reading matter is so seriously curtailed as to prevent one from arriving at a consensus of opinion; this tending to keep in darkness a not highly favoured part of the town – A. Clark, Walnut Tree Lane # c.77.4

Cambridge man in South Africa, p2

1900 05 10
Messrs Gain, Moyes & Wisbey offered for sale by auction two acres of land at Wicken fen described as the only virgin fenland in England. It was valuable in consequence of the rare insects and birds and should receive the attention of any ornithologist or naturalist. The bidding reached £17.10s. at which price Mr George Verrall, president of the Entomological Society became its owner. The next lot, a similar piece in St Edmund's Fen was purchased for the Hon. Nathaniel Rothschild. The freehold licensed premises, the White Hart beerhouse, situate on heath Road, Swaffham Prior was withdrawn.

1900 05 12
Harriet Few of Willingham was fined 5s. for driving a cart without a light at Longstanton. Defendant: I shall not pay; I'll go to gaol. I think it is rather hard for a woman to go to work all the week and be stopped by a policeman simply because she had no light attached to her cart. I am not willing to pay this money. I do not consider that I was doing wrong, and I will go to gaol. How long will it be?

1900 05 14
The extensive Portland Cement Works which are being erected in the neighbourhood of Coldham's Lane and Mill Road are now assuming enormous dimensions; in fact the buildings already completed are ample evidence that one of the largest and most modern cement works in England will be situated near Cambridge. The celebrated gun-makers, Messrs Krupp of Essen, are supplying most of the extensive machinery for the company and a cement will be manufactured that conforms to the specifications of the Board of Admiralty and the London County Council # c.27

1900 05 14
The King of Sweden and Norway will doubtless carry away with him many pleasant reminiscences of his visit to Cambridge. The object of King Oscar's visit, as the guest of the Master of Trinity, was quite a private one. The University however were unwilling that the occasion should be allowed to pass without doing honour to their illustrious visitor, and it was resolved to confer upon the King the honorary degree of Doctor in Law. A large crowd gathered around the Senate House. The galleries were thronged with undergraduates and the floor of the house given up to ladies whose summer dresses contributed materially to the brightness of the scene. # c.02

1900 05 15
Arrangements will be made to celebrate the relief of Mafeking by a bonfire on Midsummer Common, Cambridge. Under the supervision of the Borough Surveyor materials for a huge bonfire are being conveyed and the gradual growth of the pile of builders' materials, boxes and other fuel from local tradesmen is being watched with a great deal of interest. If the debris continues to increase in bulk both town and gown are likely to have a right merry time.

List early closing shops, p1

1900 05 16
The evil-disposed person who has been paying nocturnal visits to the railway stations in the neighbourhood of Cambridge with the ostensible object of plundering the booking office, has scarcely been adequately remunerated for his trouble. He was first heard of at Histon station. In the morning the outer and inner doors of the office were still locked, and the windows were intact. The booking clerk was surprised, therefore, to find that the sum of £1.0.4d, the whole of the cash available, was missing. There was nothing to show in what way the thief had entered the premises. Stations at Quy, Bottisham and Barnwell were also visited and entered.

Serious accident, p2
Aldreth bridge, p3 *

1900 05 18
Stupid trick, Haddenham, p4

1900 05 19
Cambridge has suffered intense anxiety regarding the welfare of Baden-Powell and his gallant men who for the past seven months have been locked up in Mafeking. It was about ten when the glad news was first made known regarding the relief and people began to assemble in crowds to await with baited breath the confirmation. The some half-dozen individuals emerged from Sidney Street and their lusty cheers led many to the conclusion that the garrison had really been relieved. As the little crowd moved along the streets the cheering increased, and people seemed intoxicated with excitement.

1900 05 19
Newmarket was overjoyed to hear the good news of the relief of Mafeking and soon Union Jacks were flying from nearly every house and shop. At St Ives the news was heralded by the explosion of detonators and the streets were at once decorated. At Ely a crowd of enthusiasts marched round the streets carrying flags and at Saffron Walden bunting was displayed in all directions. There was a good congregation at Over church service consisting chiefly of men who came direct from their work.

Private Hopkis at Ladysmith, p2

1900 05 21
In Cambridge every precaution had been taken to keep the great bonfire on Midsummer Common intact until the news of the relief of Mafeking had been confirmed, and special constables barricaded the enclosure within which the wood and other material had been stacked. Subsequently another posse of police constables arrived and the pile was made practically secure. There were attempts to fire it, however. Matches, vestas in particular, were in great demand and there seemed a determination on the part of many to have a blaze. One young man procured a box of matches, lighted them and then threw the burning mass on the brushwood. The police promptly scaled the fence and extinguished the flames. Tomorrow night we will light the biggest bonfire that has ever been seen in Cambridge.

1900 05 21 c
Cambridge has celebrated the relief of Mafeking and it has done it right nobly. There was no recurrence of the riotous scene witnessed on the occasion of the relief of Ladysmith, no destruction of property. This was due to one thing, the discretion shown by the powers that be in organising a bonfire on Midsummer Common. People poured in in thousands from the country in anticipation of the festivities and so great was the influx that some streets were rendered well night impassable. Still, the crowds were orderly and the police had no difficulty regulating the traffic.

1900 05 21
Sounds of cheering in the streets, long-drawn calls of the "buzzers" at the brick works, shrieks of steam engines, ringing of bells, announced in Gamlingay the relief of Mafeking. Shops and houses showed bunting, several flags were as large as tablecloths, notably those at Mr Jiggle's premises, the double Jack at Fowler Bros and the flag of the British Naval Reserve at Mr J. Gears'

1900 05 21 c
Sir – I venture to utter a word of protest against the management of the Mafeking rejoicings. I say nothing about the undergraduate but the manner in which children of 15 and under were tacitly allowed to indulge in drunkenness and other unnameable debauchery ought to bring a blush to every Cambridge citizen. Could not some of the men who were strutting in and out of the Corn Exchange with white ribbons on their arms have been stationed on Midsummer Common to send the incapable children home – C.R. Crookes, Cambridge Boys' Brigade

1900 05 22
The City of Ely played a worthy part in the general celebrations at the relief of Mafeking. The citizens were early astir and as the day wore on the main thoroughfares presented a gay and animated scene. Between eight and nine o'clock shops began to close, whilst everybody thronged in the direction of Market Hill. A procession was formed including Vernon Cross in his van disguised as Kruger, several members of the Ely Constitutional Club cyclists and members of the Ely Volunteers. It travelled via Broad Street to the Market Hill where a large bonfire was lighted. The rejoicings lasted until midnight.

Burwell publican, p2 *

1900 05 22 c
A Harston mother told the inquest she had care of the child who came from Dr Barnardo's Homes for five month, receiving a weekly allowance for her keep. The stationmaster's son said he was ringing the school bell and saw the little girl. A boy tried to take hold of her and she fell on her face. Before she fell she had a pencil in her hand. After the fall she was crying and he saw her eye bleeding. The schoolmaster said he told him she had a piece of pencil which struck her in the eye when she fell. Her eye looked displaced and he sent her home in company with an older girl. Later she was taken to Addenbrooke's where a piece of slate pencil was removed from the eye. She died Friday morning

1900 05 23
A period of nearly 30 years has elapsed since St Mark's church, a primitive wooden structure, was erected at Barton Road, Cambridge, to meet the needs of churchmen. Newnham is destined to become one of the principle residential districts & as the neighbourhood has gradually developed so the need of a permanent church has been the more keenly felt. The scheme which is now intended to carry out is but a part of a larger and more liberal one. The foundation stone now laid will only consist of the main parts of the nave and the north aisle and the extreme west end, and the south aisle will be left for future extensions. The new church will provide for a congregation numbering about 300. # c.83

Runaway horse, p3

1900 05 24
A wife told Cambridge court that for the last fortnight she lived with her husband he was on the drink and did not give her a farthing for housekeeping and the parties agreed to live apart. He had sold a number of wedding presents that belonged to her. They were a mangle, dinner service, what-not, book-case, pair of fancy ink-stands, bread trencher, glass dishes, pair of curtains, Indian tea cosy, work box, coal scuttle and scoop, toasting fork, egg cruet & vases.

Addenbrooke's Hospital testimonial, p2

June 1900 CDN

1900 06 01
Furious driving, p3

1900 06 02
Though somewhat premature, the rejoicings at Willingham for the fall of Pretoria were hearty and enthusiastic. On the receipt of the morning papers the call bell was set going and the ringers were soon in the church tower ringing merry peals. All the flags and bunting as displayed on the relief of Mafeking were again brought out. In the evening Kruger in effigy was taken round the village in a cart and made continually to bow to the crowd of followers. At the conclusion of the procession the effigy was covered with tar and burnt on the green

Barton church theft, p2
Brought up at CU p2 *
Haverhill St John Ambulance, p3

1900 06 04
Will J. Jewitt, p2
Saffron Walden bicycle case, p3

1900 06 05
The Coveney obelisk has been re-erected in the parish churchyard at the spot where it stood before being overthrown by order of the rector. Amid the peacefulness of the notorious little burial ground it is hard to imagine the controversy and ill-feelings which for some time raged and which culminated in litigation. On Monday the monument was erected in its proper position whilst the Rector watched the operations without raising any objections.

Tudor's circus, p2
Waterbeach Baptist Sunday Schoolp2
Whitsuntide, p3

1900 06 05
Instead of the usual set piece for Bank Holiday the management of the New Theatre arranged for a variety entertainment by some popular London artistes. Miss Jenny Lind was down to appear, but was prevented by illness. The management made an offer to those who felt disappointment to either exchange the tickets or return the money. No one made a move to avail themselves of the offer, the opportunity of hearing such performers as were present was too good to be missed. The performance concluded with a series of animated photographs of the war

1900 06 06
We regret to announce the death of Miss Mary Kingsley, the West African traveller and writer. She did not go South Africa to nurse but it seem that, on landing, she found opportunity for using her overflowing energies in tending the sick and wounded. While thus engaged she was herself taken ill. A few months ago Miss Kingsley attended and spoke in Cambridge at a meeting of the "Magpie and Stump".

Police station work, p2

1900 06 07
Chesterton General Purposes, p2
Coveney peace, p2 & p3 *
Isleham farm fire, p3
Linton circulating library, p3

1900 06 08

An accident such as that which befell Mr G. Flowers of Emmanuel College on the Cam is always to be regretted. He was rowing in the Emmanuel College boat when it was bumped by the St John's boat the nose of which came violently against his chest and he received a severe injury. Had it occurred in the days before it was compulsory to put India rubber balls on the noses of the boats there is much reason to fear he must have been killed.

1900 06 08 c
A jolly-looking old man, named Richard Piper, was charged at London Summons Court with causing his horse & cart to stand longer than necessary in Charterhouse Street. Piper: "Well, of course, I ain't no scholar. I was brought up at the University of Cambridge. Give me penal servitude for life, guv'nor, but get it over quick, there's a good 'un. I'd sooner give half-a-sovereign to the Police Fund than I'd be put off with a two-bob fine". The jovial Piper paid a fine of 2s.6d. and was then ejected from the court while endeavouring to put on a policeman's helmet.

1900 06 09
The annual show of the Hunts Agricultural Society took place in the Hassock Meadow, Ramsey, and the only thing to mar the exhibition was the unpropitious weather. During the morning horse shoeing and poultry trussing demonstrations took place, and there were lectures on butter making and kindred subjects, which had an attraction for many. A large number of the gentry and agriculturists from the surrounding countryside put in an appearance.

Sketches at Tudor's Cicus – Cambridge Graphic – 01 06 09

1900 06 12
Trinity Ball, p3

1900 06 13
Heat wave, p2 *
Bus accident, p3

1900 06 14
An inquest on a boy of eight, killed by a bus on Castle Hill, affirmed the death was accidental. It is hardly an exaggeration to describe Chesterton Corner as the death trap of Cambridge. Four road meet; they are all narrow, and the configuration of the corner is such that it is quite impossible for the driver of a vehicle up Magdalene Street to have the faintest notion that there is another coming along Chesterton Lane and if the two do not crash into each other it will be more of an accident than if they do. More room is needed at the corner. This would involve pulling down some old houses. The matter is one which the authorities ought to give attention at once.

1900 06 15
Haverhill extraordinary affair, p3

1900 96 15 c
A very heavy thunderstorm passed over St Neots district. The steeple of Lt Staughton church was demolished by lightning. The ruins fell in the belfry, and caused great damage. At Peterborough a man working on the shaft of the new electric light works was struck and knocked senseless. Mr Edwards, caretaker at Cutlack's Brewery was also temporarily paralysed by a fire-ball which passed through the chimney.

1900 06 16
The Vice Chancellor of Cambridge University has published a letter received from Mr Macfarlane-Grieve of Impington Park. "I have watched the successive efforts of the University to help the teaching of agriculture on an intelligently scientific basis since 1893. It would be a distinction for Cambridge to be the first to found a University School of Agriculture. A Professor of Agriculture without a farm, conducted on both model and experimental lines wherewith to illustrate his teaching, is like a Professor of Chemistry without a laboratory. A farm on this estate will fall vacant at Michaelmas and I am prepared to offer it to the University rent free till 1909". The Senate has accepted the offer with thanks. # c.36.9

Fen Drayton road, p3

1900 06 18
New map by S.V. Galloway, p2
Proposed new Emmanuel Road, p2

1900 06 19
A very attractive programme is presented at the popular hall in Auckland Road, Cambridge, this week. One of the most enjoyable items is kept to the last – Edison's Concertphone. This machine is Edison's own invention and is vastly superior to the phonograph. It is manipulated by Mr Oliver. Most of the records were taken by Mr Oliver himself and are well up to date – indeed one of the best was that of Dan Leno singing "The waiter", which was taken but six days ago. The records of the bands are very fine indeed, each instrument being very distinctly reproduced and heard in every part of the house. # c.69

1900 06 21
The late Alderman Mott of Cambridge was a benevolent man with a sound knowledge of human nature. When he made provision that the Town Councillors should go to church once a year he had a premonition that sometimes the sermon might be dry, and he set apart a sum out of which the church-going councillors should refresh themselves after sermons with biscuits and wine. But the mayoralty of a total abstainer, who has not felt it in accordance with his conscience to do this, has called the spirit of historical research into activity in certain members of the council. Alderman Spalding suggested that if the biscuits had been provided the wine would not have mattered so much.

1900 06 22
Midsummer four days' fair was opened this morning. Of roundabouts there are plenty and there are two resplendent switchbacks. Half-a-dozen shows include a menagerie and cinematograph exhibition and the remainder of the fair is made up of shooting galleries, coconut shies, toy and sweet meat stalls, cheapjack wares and drinking booths. There are no less than 15 refreshment saloons, some of which serve a double purpose in supplying thirsty ones and providing accommodation for dancers. # c.27.3

1900 05 22
A great scare was created by the news of an explosion at Messrs Chivers' Jam Factory at Histon and great alarm was occasioned by the exaggerated reports. An explosion did actually take place when a pipe leading from the boiler-room burst with a loud report and some slates were blown from the roof. Work was suspended for a time, as the explosion had been heard in every part of the factory. Chivers' factory has been singularly free from accidents & it is eminently satisfactory to find that the ill effects of the explosion were confined to slight damage to apparatus, which can be speedily remedied.

Saffron Walden band, p2 *

1900 06 25
Business transactions at Midsummer Horse Fair were carried out under uncomfortable conditions. Horses of all sizes were put through their paces on the sodden grass. Business however was brisk, cart horses and nags forming the major portion of the stock. Buyers from many part of the country were at the fair and quite an average amount of buying and selling was done. # c.27.3

1900 06 26
Midsummer Fair fraud, p2

1900 06 27
The Manager of the Gas Light Company said that Illsley & Sons had agreed to purchase 400 tons of coke and clear it daily. Coke was produced daily and had to be carted away equally to prevent inconvenience to the seller. The price of coke was rising and it was in their interest to get the coke away. On five days they did not send for it at all. The contractors were not at the yard at the proper time; they did not wait at the doors of paradise – the gates of the Gas Company at seven o'clock.

Eversden family squabble, p2

1900 06 28
I have discovered another veteran actor, now in his 87th year who has lived during four reigns, performing Romeo at the age of 20 and appeared as harlequin at 60. His name if Edward Miles and is resident at Wisbech. When a clerk in 1834 he collected rent from Joey Grimaldi, the clown. When Joey discovered the boy was stage-struck he advised him to take to the profession. He acted with Sheridan, Knowles and Charles Kean. The Mayor of Wisbech, discovering that the old actor was in poor circumstances, has started collecting money for his benefit.

1900 06 28
A delegation from Prickwillow appeared before Ely Urban District Council. Rev Kingdon asked for a road to be made from the bridge to the second Drove. It was extremely bad and one of their worst droves. There were a considerable number of children who lived along the bank and they should be able to get to school in some sort of comfort. With regard to vehicular traffic, in some seasons of the year it was absolutely impossible to get along.

Saffron Walden bell ringers, p2

July 1900 CDN

1900 07 02
The Egerton House training establishment at Newmarket is said to be the largest of its kind in the world. The small town of buildings has its own electric lighting plant, its own cooks, kitchen and caterer, employs its own carpenters, blacksmiths etc. in addition to a small army of stable lads. A short time since Mr Marsh determined to have a small church erected on the place. It was from this building that smoke was seen to be issuing. The organ had been badly damaged by the flames. The church is lighted by electricity and the outbreak was caused by the fusing of one of the wires due to a short circuit.

Death Thos Shell of Royston, p4

1900 07 04
Wedding, p2 *
Lightning, p3 *
Lord Roseberry's grapes, p4

1900 07 04 c
The first annual meeting of the Haverhill & District Football League was held at the Rose and Crown Hotel, Haverhill. All the matches had been played without any climatic or other interference. Cambridge St Mary's had gained the honour of being first champions of the league followed by Haverhill Rovers, Saffron Walden, Long Melford & Halstead. It was a matter of regret the League were unable to secure a suitable trophy for the championship, only the sum of ten shillings having been subscribed.

1900 07 05
A fire occurred in a warehouse at Birt's Lane, St Ives, occupied by Mr Cole of the Golden Lion Hotel as a stable. The building stands between the Friends' Meeting House on one side and the Old Baptist Chapel (now used by Mr Ruston as an implement warehouse) on the other, whilst immediately opposite is Mr Warner's large leather-curing warehouse. The Fire Brigade was soon on the spot but the supply of water was very meagre. The whole of the contents of the building were destroyed, together with the roof and floors, only the outer walls being left standing.

Omnibus Company stables nuisance, p2
Waterbeach inquest, p3

1900 07 06
Bribery of Cambridge subject, p2 *

1900 07 06 c
Four young men were at 11pm on their way back to their work in the offices of the Cambridge Daily News – where every Thursday they are engaged for the greater part of the night. On the steps of Mr Gower's tobacconist shop a dust pail was standing which got knocked into the street. Two police constables took them into custody, seized their arms and marched them off to the police station. There was no one to take the charge and they were detained for over an hour. There was a time when men were hung for sheep stealing. The disproportion between this crime and the punishment is hardly less glaring.

1900 07 07
The Society of the Sacred Mission has its headquarters at Mildenhall. Its aim is to establish a monastic settlement to train lay and clerical brothers, both boys and men, for foreign and home mission work. Its inhabitants mostly wear the dress of the monks of the Roman Church, there are eight services in the day, and silence is obligatory at all meals and always till noon. It was here that young Cavalier was received in the summer of 1898, the boy's parents being kept in ignorance of his whereabouts for many weeks

1900 07 09
The Castle, East Hatley, was totally destroyed by fire. The house is part of the estate of Sir Charles Hamilton, of Hatley Park and was rented as a summer residence. The fire originated when a small methylated spirit stove was overturned. Once the thatch caught the flames spread with marvellous rapidity. The walls were lightly built of match-boarding and corrugated iron after the style of an Indian bungalow and in a quarter of an hour the pretty building had collapsed like a house of cards. A more solidly built wing, separated by a conservatory was, with great effort, saved

Cambridge teachers picnic, p2

1900 07 10
Hatley fire, p2
Newmarket Horticultural Society, p2

1900 07 11
Newmarket RDC received a petition calling for an inquiry into the proceedings of Wicken parish council. A clerk had been appointed who holds the post of assistant overseer and district councillor at a salary of £30 a year. He had since obtained the office of sub-surveyor for his son, a boy of 17, with no qualifications for the post, the work having since his appointment been executed by the District Councillor himself. This appointment was made in the face of a strong recommendation by the inhabitants in favour of a man well qualified for the office.

1900 07 11
Ely U.D.C. heard that a traction engine belonging to Mr T.H. Summerlee of Littleport, having got beyond the control of the driver, ran down Back Hill, coming into contact with the kerb in front of the old cottages and overturning on the roadway. The chairman thought that if it were possible to make regulations with regard to traction engines they ought to do so. They might cause serious accidents, as anyone coming up the hill with a big load could not turn round and get away from a runaway engine.

Skeleton at Burwell, p3

1900 07 12
St Ives council, p2
Chesterton junction, p3

1900 07 13
Mill Road library, p2

1900 07 14
Star Yard pump, St Ives, p2 *
Bourn mystery, p3 *

1900 07 15
Grantchester church, p2
Saffron Walden workhouse, p3 *
Storm, p3

1900 07 16
A party of four men were engaged in carting hay from a field situate in Bannald's Drove, Waterbeach when a heavy storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning compelled them to seek shelter. The employer and two labourers crept under the cart. One man remained on the cart holding his pitch fork in an elevated position and the lightning must have been attracted to it. The fork acted as a conductor to his body, though which the electric fluid passed, finally losing itself in the earth where the three men were crouching. One was killed and the others badly injured.

St Ives pump, p2
Waterbeach Jolly Waterman drowning, p3

1900 07 17
Thunderstorm, p3

1900 07 18
The proprietor of Tudor's Circus of Varieties, Cambridge was sued by Foulger's Band. They had been hired for three weeks. The band was composed of five performers – cornet, piano, euphonium & two violins. They were each paid £1.12s.6d. per week. On the first night it was a "scratch band" as Mr Foulger could not be there, & the pianist could not accept the engagement. An important feature in the performance was singing and dancing but a piano was not an essential part of the orchestra. The only complaint was from an inferior artiste who could not sing & had no music.

Parker's Piece, p2

1900 07 19
East Road widening, p3

1900 07 19 c
At the first annual meeting of the Haverhill & District Football League the Secretary congratulated the league upon the successful issue of the first season's competition, all the matches being played without any climatic or other interference. Cambridge St Mary's had gained the honour of being the first champions of the League. It is a matter of regret they had not managed to secure a suitable trophy for the championship, only the sum of ten shillings having been subscribed

1900 07 14
Sir – The birds of prey watching the interest of the East Hunts Water Company have made another pounce and seized the Star Yard pump at St Ives. A large number of persons who have been using this really good supply of water will have their supply cut off. A lad has been found to have diphtheria, and of course it must be this Star Yard pump, while the fact that a child died from the same disease in Filbert's Walk, where the East Hunts water is laid on, is entirely ignored! When all the pumps have been closed by the minions we shall be obliged to use the river, although it has just now a wonderful stench which that august body does not seem to trouble about - Ratepayer

1900 07 14
Some uneasiness of mind has been caused in consequence of strange noises heard at Bourn. Here in 1753 a horrible murder was perpetrated, the perpetrator, a highwayman, was duly hanged at Caxton gibbet. A year ago some workmen averred that they distinctly heard noises resembling the rattling of sticks and some residents have become terrified. Local gossips are busy endeavouring to solve the mystery and some have been seized with the presentiment that the peculiar noises are an omen of some dreadful tragedy.

1900 07 19 c
Saffron Walden & the district have been scenes of daring and successful robberies, chiefly at farms, and harness and fowls formed the major part of the booty. The premises of John Collins, Skippers Hall, West Wickham were visited and a set of black leather cob harness, value 40s. was taken away. At Great Thurlow the thieves visited Hunt's Hall and cleared off a set of brass-mounted harness. To complete a good night's work, as far as the thieves were concerned, they turned their steps towards Exhibition Farm, Wethersfield, were they took a riding saddle. By Friday the police were well on the scent of the miscreants. They journeyed to London, found the bulk of the stolen property in Kilburn & arrested two men in bed.

1900 07 20
For some years the manufacture of Portland cement had been carried on in the district, but it is today that the new Saxon Portland Company is seriously undertaking the scientific manufacture of the product on a large commercial scale. One of the largest and most modern cement works in the kingdom is being erected on the Coldham Lane, Cambridge. Sidings have been connected with the railway capable of holding three trains of 20 trucks each. The buildings, rapidly approaching completion, include eight large cement kilns & an enormous building will provide storage for the manufactured cement. The works will be open by night and by day. The electric light will be extensively used and the current will be generated at the works.

1900 07 23
Failure stationer, p3

1900 07 25
The plan adopted in the villages of amalgamating for the purposes of holding horticultural shows is one to be commended in order to secure friendly rivalry between them. The parishes of Oakington, Westwick & Longstanton followed this course when the society was inaugurated ten years ago and the exhibitions arranged since have met with a measure of success that has continually stimulated its members. The exhibits were a very level lot. The peas, horned carrots & potatoes might be singled out for special mention. A small dish of curious peas of the Ashley Duke variety caused a sensation. Thurston's steam horses were in attendance & in the evening the villagers thronged into the ground in large numbers.

1900 07 25
Sir – I was pleased to notice that someone has at last had the courage to write about the wretched condition of Parker's Piece. Our last wicket was not only full of holes but we had a little hill rising a yard and a half in front of the block. Twelve shillings were paid for this wicket and a tent, whereas a college ground and pavilion (with a splendid wicket) can be hired for 7s.6d. Our cricket club have been so disgusted with the wickets that we have decided not to play again this season on Parker's Piece unless it is impossible to get a wicket elsewhere – Disgusted Cricketer

1900 07 25 c
Sir – Respecting the Star Yard pump at St Ives. I have drunk its water for many years and never heard the purity doubted before. It has always been the best, or as good as any in the town & it is a shame that the users should be deprived of the water unless by the inexorably exigencies of the health of the public warrant such a privation. If I know anything of my neighbours I believe they would rather have had their parish church seized and closed than their pump – Another Ratepayer

1900 07 26
An application was made on behalf of the Royston Horticultural Society as to police assistance at the Bank Holiday show and sports. Last year they had the assistance of an inspector and four constables. This year they were informed that the police were so much pressed on Bank Holiday that they could not be allowed to do duty in private grounds. The committee had others who would take the place of the police and they asked the Bench if they would swear them in as private constables. The chairman said they could only do so when tumults and riotous conduct was anticipated.

1900 07 26
In view of the serious issues which are involved for so many people in the prospect of an immediate strike on the Great Eastern Railway, a correspondent has suggested that the C.D.N. should tender its advice to the local employees and the Company was to what they should do. The people who travel at Bank Holiday are not the rich and well-to-do, but the workers and wage-earners and the strange spectacle will be presented of working men seriously incommoded by the action of other working men. How can this evoke public sympathy?

1900 07 27
In the C.D.N. of yesterday the inadvisability, not to say folly of a general strike at Bank Holiday time of the employees of the Great Eastern Railway was emphasised. It is therefore with great gratification that we announce today that a strike has been averted. The thanks of the whole public are due to our contemporary, the "Daily News", for promoting and carrying out the negotiations which have led to so happy a result.

1900 07 28
A thunderstorm broke with tremendous violence over Gt Wilbraham. Mrs Morley was at her wit's end and sat upon the side of her bed and watched the vivid lightning with bated breath. Then came a flash that rendered her well-night unconscious & the room was enveloped in flames. In an adjoining room slept some children from an orphanage in London who were rescued with difficulty. The alarm was raised and soon there were upwards of 200 men, women & children on the spot and everything of any value was saved. Only the chimney and portions of the walls of the house remain to testify to the havoc wrought by the storm.

Saxon cement works, p4 – pic *

1900 07 31
E.S. Payne has opened premises at Alexandra Street, Cambridge for the manufacture of artificial teeth. Complete sets, upper or lower from £1. Single tooth added, 2s.6d. Easy payment taken. Teeth scaled, stopped or extracted. Trusses and elastic stockings made to order - advert

August 1900 CDN

1900 08 01
Locomotive drivers, p2

1900 08 02
Cottenham Gas and Water Company wrote to say that before they commence laying the mains for the water supply they would like a guarantee that the parish will take a sufficient quantity of water to warrant them doing so. They would erect 33 stand-pipes, 400 feet apart. Mr Wiles said 400 feet was very close together and he did not think the stand-pipes required to be so near each other. 200 yards was a reasonable distance.

1900 08 02
Cottenham water supply, p2 *

1900 08 03
Impington experimental farm

1900 08 04
The annual report on the maintenance of main roads and footpaths in the Isle of Ely shows that the paths at Wilburton have been kerbed with blue Staffordshire kerbing & made up with gravel. At Coveney the road has been widened by the Wesleyan Chapel & the Lt Downham road (Little street) has been widened eight feet and made up with granite and slag. The fencing at Gilgal has been continued for a further 80 yards and a length of tar paving laid by the reading room at Doddington.

1900 08 04 c
The value of Portland Cement in building and engineering work is now fully recognised, and the trade has developed enormously. Portland cement is almost exclusively used for foundations of all descriptions, dams for waterworks and reservoirs. Where bulk is required cement concrete is now almost always used in place of block or masonry work.

1900 08 07
Bank Holiday Monday was a wretched day for pleasure seekers, due solely to the almost continuous downpour of rain and the cyclone that accompanied it. The Great Eastern Railway Company ran excursions to Haverhill for the athletic meeting, for which some 200 passengers booked.

1900 07 08
A Burrough Green labourer told the court that for some times the boys of the village had been a source of considerable annoyance by swinging on his gate and he had warned he would pull the ears of the next boy he caught. On Saturday he caught one and punished him in the way he had threatened whereupon the defendant came up and struck him. They all ‘rounded’ on him at the same time, caught hold of his whiskers, knocked off his hat and tore a sleeve off his coat.

1900 08 09
At Ely council the Surveyor gave a list of bedding etc, which by direction of the Medical Officer of Heath, had been removed to Common Muckhill pending the Council’s instructions either to burn o retain for fumigation. It was resolved to destroy the articles. Mr Norman said they must be careful in burning the articles at Common Muckhill. The Chairman (to the Surveyor): “Don’t set fire to the place”. (Laughter)

1900 08 10
At the meeting of St Ives Board of Guardians the Chairman referred to the evils of overcrowding attending the boarding-out of London children in the district. In several cases children were sleeping six in a bed in very unsuitable dwellings. The Board took no action on the matter.

Haddenham ironmongers, p3

1900 08 13
At Saffron Walden a communication was read from the Postmaster General, asking for consent to erect telephone posts from the junction in Castle Street to Littlebury Mill. Mr Tuke said residents objected to the wires running by their properties and would endeavour to get them laid underground. The Council agreed to the application, subject to the wires being carried on the east side of the road and that the Telephone Company would, at any future time, erect a hollow post if requested for sewer ventilation.

1900 08 13 c
Sir – Now that we are promised a second heat wave, it may be opportune to consider the question of protecting horses' heads from sun-heat. In Peterborough, during the great heat of last month, horse hats or shields were a common sight but Cambridge did nothing. If some courageous tradesman would lead the way, regardless of ridicule, all considerate horse-owners would follow suit. All that is needed is a grass hat of the "Zulu" type with holes cut in brim and crown for the ears. – E.M. Hort

1900 08 15
An accident happened at Cherry Hinton. The 8.55 passenger train was due, but the gates over the Cherry Hinton crossing remained closed; consequently the engine, which was travelling backwards, dashed into them with horrific force and smashed them to pieces. The head lamp on the engine was broken, but no other damage was done. The gatekeeper has been suspended.

1900 08 16
Posting in all its branches by R.A. Williams, job, livery & commission stables, Cross Keys Yard, Saffron Walden. Waggonnettes, large 'busses, Broughams, Landaus, Victorias, Dog Carts & Saddle Horses for any length of time. A handsome Washing ton car & carriages supplied for funerals on very reasonable terms – advert

Peterborough mystery, p2

1900 08 16
Cambridge Commons Committee reported that persons using the women's bathing place crossed the river by a ferry from the landing stage on Coe Fen. It has been suggested it would be better if arrangements could be made for them to cross the river at a point further away from the men's bathing place.

1900 08 17
Hills Road perils, p2

1900 08 18
Sir -. I have hired boats at nearly every place in Cambridge and always found the boat-people most obliging. The charge has been 1s each person for a whole day. Today I hired a boat for one hour and was charged 1s 6d. I asked why the extra cost. "Well sir, bicycling is off, and the river is more in demand. We have had a bad season, so are now making up for it". Vacation is a strange time for raising the prices. It would be as well to arrange the prices before starting on a trip, as that would save a lot of wrangling when a party returns. – "A lover of the river"

1900 08 18
W.H. Smith & Son have recently made a great improvement at the St Ives railway station in opening their smart new bookstall, at which all publications can now be obtained. It promises an abundant selection of literature and should prove to be of great improvement to both the travelling public and the inhabitants of St Ives & district.

1900 08 20
The Star Brewery Company applied for a licence to sell intoxicating liquors at a house about to be constructed near the railway station, Swaffham Prior. It would be a substantial house consisting of a bar, smoke room, parlour and other conveniences with two bedrooms which could be converted into a club room. They would erect a bridge across the watercourse for horses and carts and two footbridges.

It would be used by persons shooting in the neighbourhood. The licence of the Cow and Calf in the village would be given up because Mr Allix did not want two licences in the village.

1900 08 22
In 1885 a large cattle market was erected & shortly after some buildings were erected for providing refreshment for those who required it. These were very small & now the Star Brewery wished to erect a commodious hotel with 10 bedrooms which would be used to put up those who came to the market to buy cattle. At the present there was no accommodation for Irishmen attending the market. Many come on Friday night with their stock & it was necessary for them to be constantly attending to them. It would be put a considerable way back from the road and have space for 50 to 70 horses. The nearest hotel was the Great Northern but it had only a few beds so they had to go to the Red Lion in Petty Cury. 00 08 22 # c.27.3

Ditton Fields bumps, p2
Haverhill sewer, p4

1900 08 23
An inquest was held on the body of a child found drowned at Prickwillow. A seven-year old girl said her brother was playing near the drain, which runs past their house. He was going across the narrow slip running between the drain and the bridge, underneath which was a tunnel. She saw him slip head-first into the water, which splashed over her. The body was recovered from the tunnel after 50 minutes. The jury recommended that a grating should be placed at the entrance to the tunnel preventing such fatalities.

1900 08 23
Agents for Messrs A & B. Hall applied for a licence for a house to be erected in Haddenham at a spot midway between the station and Wentworth, on the site of an old one, called The Tiger whose licence expired about 22 years ago. There were two licensed houses in Wentworth but that of the Red Lion would be dropped. The magistrates granted the application.

Gamlingay Three Horseshoes, p2

1900 08 24
At a meeting of Fenstanton parish council a circular was received with regard to overcrowding. There were cases of eight people with only two bedrooms. The law was perfectly clear; it was for the sanitary authorities to get the matter right. Mr Burt spoke very highly of the work done by the district nurse. She not only showed the people how to do things in a proper manner, but saw they were done, and sometimes did them herself. There would be no difficulty with regard to water supply in the future as in about two months the East Hunts Water Company could supply any amount.

1900 08 25
William Lloyd of Gt Shelford applied for the removal of the licence of the Peacock beerhouse, which had been pulled down, to a house, newly erected, on another site. A fire had taken place in a cottage which adjoined the house with the result that the west end of the beerhouse fell in. But Mr Vinter put in a petition signed by over 30 residents. There are eight licensed houses in the parish and one, the Black Swan was within 33 yards of the new house. Shelford was becoming more a residential place than in former years & if the licence were not granted it would increase the value of the land for residential purposes. But three-fourths of the people who had signed kept their own cellars & not one of the persons who would frequent the house had signed the petition. The licence was granted

1900 08 27
Saffron Walden furious driving, p3

1900 08 28

Mr Walker, blacksmith, noticed that the thatched roof near the chimney of a house occupied by Bert Gentle, a journeyman carpenter, of Earith Road, Bluntisham, was on fire. The fire engine belonging to the village was accordingly manned and a wire despatched to St Ives for the engine and fire brigade. The Bluntisham engine, although an old-fashioned one, was placed in Mr Searle's farmyard and a constant volume of water was poured on to the farm buildings. Too much praise cannot be given to those who worked so indefatigably at the engine pump, for although the flames were driven by the wind to the adjoining thatched barn they succeeded in confining the conflagration to the house where it broke out.

Bogus sheep dealer, p3
Somersham fatal rail accident, p3

1900 08 29
The Star Brewery applied for a licence for a new hotel which it was proposed to build in close contiguity to the new railway station which the Great Eastern Company were building at Newmarket. The station would be one of the architectural features of the town and it had occurred to those who catered for the public that if a station of that magnitude was to be erected, there should be a hotel worthy of the station. The Brewery had secured the services as architect of Colonel Edis, who had prepared the plans of Sandringham House. It would be in the Georgian style with a red brick front and would contain eight bedrooms. The company would give up the Lamb Inn licence and the provisional licence for a new hotel near Warren Hill station. The licence was refused.

1900 08 30
We deeply regret to announce the death of Dr Henry Sidgwick, until recently Professor of Moral Philosophy at the University of Cambridge. Though he was at some slight disadvantage in the matter of enunciation his lectures were unusually attractive and even eloquent. He married Eleanor Balfour, sister of the Rt Hon Arthur James Balfour, the present Leader of the House of Commons. She rendered great assistance in the organisation of Newnham College, being appointed principal in 1892. Her husband resided with her at Newnham and took much interest from the first in the foundation and development of the college. With his death the country loses one of the clearest thinkers that the later half of the 19th century had produced.

Ely accidentally shot

September 1900 CDN

1900 09 01
At Cambridge Police Court 38 summonses were heard for non-compliance with the bye-laws as to the lighting of vehicles. The Chief Constable pointed out that proceedings had been taken in consequence mainly of the large number of complaints received from cyclists and drivers of motor cars who were compelled to carry lights. The Mayor said that taking into consideration that the bye-laws were not generally known, all the summonses would be dismissed with the exception of that against Albert Goodman, a railway servant, who had been previously cautioned, & would have to pay a penalty of 5s. However future cases would be very severely dealt with.

1900 09 03
The first summonses under the new Cambridge Bye-laws with regard to the lighting of vehicles were of sufficient number to make an effective demonstration in favour of the new order of things. The police court was more crowded than it has been for many a day and of the 38 people who were called upon to appear none had been in that predicament before. The Chief Constable advised magistrates that as the new bye-laws were not generally known the defendants should be dismissed with a caution. Of course this leniency will not be repeated but they have secured, free of cost, a capital advertisement for the new bye-law.

Ely accident, p3

1900 09 04
The right of turning out horses on Barrington village green seems to be a very sore point with many of the parishioners. It was agreed to allow owners the right of turning out their horses to feed at 1s per head, or 1s 6d for two horses but this had been absolutely ignored, not one of the persons owning horses having paid. This has caused a deal of feeling in the village. The wording of the parish award is that the feed of the village green is for the use of cottagers only, but how far this is adhered to may be judged by the number of horses seen daily on the green.

1900 09 04
Those who now assemble to witness the ancient ceremony of proclaiming Stourbridge Fair can guess to what extent its glory has departed. The fair has dwindled down to almost the level of the village feast. At one time business and pleasure stalls extended from the railway bridge to East Road and down to the river's edge on Stourbridge common. The custom of proclaiming the different portions of the fair is still religiously observed – the leather fair, the hop fair, the wood fair and so on, when no such exist or are likely to be revived. The Toll Collector broke down a portion of the fence dividing Newmarket road from what was in years gone by part of the fairground, and hurled the portion of broken fence on to the now cultivated ground thereby signifying the right of the Corporation to that ground for six weeks. This concluded the ceremony and the Mayor and town officers departed. # c.27.31

1900 09 06
Better than out-relief, p2 *
Chesterton UDC lovers wall, p4

1900 09 07
At Cambridge police court a girl of 11 years of age was charged with stealing various articles of food, salmon and shrimp paste, tea, herrings, potted ham and preserved peaches from the shop of Messrs Hallack and Bond, Petty Cury. The Chairman said she was very young and the Magistrates felt she had been more sinned against than sinning. Her mother was evidently not a fit person to have charge of her, and she would therefore be sent to a reformatory for five years. They hoped at the end of that time she would be a better girl. The mother was sent to prison for three months with hard labour.

Royston inquiry sewage, p4

1900 09 07 c
At Newmarket a widow lady of 70 years made overtures to the poor law authority in the direction of out-relief. The chairman, with an eye to the ratepayers' interests, suggested she should obtain a post as a housekeeper to someone. She pointed out that a woman of 70 was not likely to get a housekeeper's place. But the lady found a situation as a housekeeper, and has become the bride of her employer. This husband of her's is her third. It would be a rather extreme step to instruct relief officers to say to all single ladies of that age who apply for assistance 'get a situation and get married'. It is not easy to get situations for ladies of seventy; it is still less easy to get husbands for them.

1900 09 10
The controversy relating to the maintenance of Parker's Piece is by no means a new one. It is several years since footballers and cricketers perceived that the ground, both in summer and winter was not all that could be desired and each year the feeling of dissatisfaction has become more apparent. But with the increasing number of persons crossing and re-crossing Parker's Piece it was impossible to keep the cricket pitches in a perfect condition; and with regard to forbidding football in times of frost, it was absolutely impossible to tell within a few hours whether or not a ground would be in a fit state for play.

1900 09 11
Cambridge magistrates gave their decision in the cases against certain tradespeople who had been summoned for obstructing the public footpaths by means of overhanging blinds. A regulation had been issued by the police that sun binds must hand not lower than six feet from the kerb. Ellen Frohock, R.R. Dawson and Alfred Hyman of Regent Street were fined 1s. each

New organ, p2
Theft of copper, p3

1900 09 12
The little Suffolk town of Haverhill is one of the last places in which one would have expected a foul murder to be enacted; and yet it is from Haverhill that the tidings come of a tragedy as revolting in its hideousness as has taken place for many a day. A woman who recently gave birth to twins has been found lying dead, her throat cut, and in her arms the dead bodies of her two infants, their throats also cut. The circumstances point to the husband as the perpetrator of the vile deed. The police gave chase & within a short time ran the wretched man to earth. For the credit of our human nature we are ready to say that the perpetrator must have been out of his mind, but it would be unsafe to argue that because a crime is hideous that it was, therefore, the work of a maniac.

1900 09 12
The Cambridge Omnibus Company and the Tramways Company have entered into an arrangement whereby the Omnibus Company is to leave the whole of the trams route free for the Tramways Company. They in their turn will withdraw all their one-horse 'buses, thus leaving to the Omnibus Company all parts of the town not covered by the tram lines. The arrangement comes into operation on Monday next.

Radwinter fire

1900 09 13
Messrs Bailey & Tebbutt of the Panton Brewery, Cambridge, have their annual support to the harvest employees of Waterbeach who are customers of the firm. The whole function was a great success. Those who contributed to the musical programme included Mr P. Levitt of Waterbeach who was several times encored. Mr W. Flack on behalf of the working men thanked the firm for the way they looked after them. Mr Joseph Toller responding to the toast of 'The trade of Waterbeach' said that the village was fairly prosperous.

Croxton coming of age, p4

1900 09 15
Owing to the absence of Argentine cattle from the English markets owing to foot and mouth disease the Ipswich Butcher's Association has notified an increase of a penny per lb in the price of beef and mutton. In Cambridge prime beef is fetching from 7s 6d to 8s. 6d. per stone. Pork is making a good price now at 7s per stone, but feeding stuffs are much dearer than they were and people won't run the risk of fattening pigs unless they are sure of a profit.

1900 09 15
An inquest was held at Dry Drayton on the body of a seven-year old girl. Her brother said she had been sent to the pond to fetch some water. She was splashing him when she fell on to her face in the water & went under. Two men got her out, but she was dead. It was the only water supply for nearby houses and it was customary to send children to fetch it. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Milford Street fire, p2

1900 09 17
Chrishall is a quiet village between Royston and Saffron Walden. It is the custom, when men have finished harvest upon the farms, to be awarded 'largesse money' which they usually employ for the purpose of a friendly horkey between themselves. A labourer and his friends made the Gate beerhouse their rendezvous, taking possession of the tap room. One of their number purchased an accordion and for a time all went well with them. Then ensued the tragedy that resulted in the death of a shepherd.

1900 09 18
Chrishall inquest, p3

1900 09 18 c
Newmarket rural council heard that at Bottisham the difficulty had been to get at an adequate supply of water in the village, as the geological formation was against it. The wells that had been dug along a part of the village were simply cesspools, as they were dug into the chalk marl into which the sewage and surface water ran and remained. The marl was not a water-bearing strata and water might lay deep. The well at the police station, for example, was 224 feet deep and cost £101 to sink.

1900 09 19
Sober Cambridge p3
Dangerous road, p3

1900 09 20
Boots sell six chromotype views for 1/- # c.65.5
Ashley sewage inquiry

1900 09 22
There was no one to blame for the accident whereby a farm labourer met his death at Quy this week. The man was sitting on a horse's back; it took fright at the sight of a traction engine and he was thrown from it. The noteworthy thing is that this farm labourer was 77 years of age. It is all to the honour of the man that he kept on doing his farm labourer's work rather than become a burden upon others. But the social conditions under which men of nearly 80 are made to work in the road and the field are not ideal.

1900 09 24
Mayoralty p3

1900 09 25
There is that about the re-opening of the Cambridge Theatre after the 'Long' which is unique. In other towns a re-opening night is a great night. In the stalls and circle are seen the ladies, bright and brilliant; and an array of men in dress suits. In the pit are the 'pitties; in the galleries the 'gods'. Not so at the New Theatre when the doors are reopened. The stalls are occupied by those who will in a week or two be sitting in a lowlier part of the Theatre and so on right through the house. But few other towns have long vacations. A fortnight's time and there will be a normal theatre aspect. # c.76

1900 09 26
Stretham collection meet p3

1900 09 27
The village of Warboys was devastated by fire caused by three boys playing with matchsticks in a stackyard. The dry straw was quickly in a blaze, the farmhouse soon involved and fanned by a strong breeze two other farmsteads were also destroyed. The sparks ignited the thatch of some cottages in the High Street and a whole row were burned down, the fire spreading to another row on the opposite side of the street. A brewery and cycle store were also burnt out and great consternation caused by the explosion of a large quantity of gunpowder, several of the firemen being blown off their feet.

1900 09 27
At Newmarket Licensing Session an application was made for a licence for a new hotel which it was proposed to erect in close contiguity to the new station. When last the application was made the justices took objection to the plans which now provided for 14 bedrooms instead of eight. It would be in the Georgian style, similar to Colonel McCalmont's house at Cheveley Park. Mr Bankes-Ashton said they had what on paper looked like a very fine building, but justices would remember that the same company put in plans for the Warren Hill Hotel, which also looked fine on paper, but they did not keep to those plans after a licence had been granted

1900 09 28
Cambridge Library Committee state that during the past year the institution has been used by a larger number of persons than before. The war in South Africa necessitated a larger supply of newspapers, war maps and a service of telegrams. Every hour of the day there was a constant stream of visitors & during two weeks in February the reading rooms were visited by more than 57,898 persons # c.77.4

1900 09 28
Cambridge magistrates received a petition against renewal of the licence of the Windmill public house in Mill Road. Frederick Hodson considered the neighbourhood was overcrowded with them. Mr Papworth said he had visited the house on many occasions but never seen more than two people at the bar at a time. Freeman & Sons, brewers and owners said the house was in a bad state and had been closed for repairs, not because there was no trade. They had no right to take away the licence even if the tenant only sold a barrel of beer a week. Albert Brand, the new tenant said business had trebled, 60 people patronised the house every day and last Saturday he had upwards of 100 customers. The licence was not renewed

1900 09 29
The inaugural dinner of the recently-formed Association of Cambridge Dairymen took place at the Lion Hotel. Sometime ago it was thought to be a good thing if all the brother tradesmen could unite and put themselves on more friendly terms than perhaps some of them had been in the past. It gave them the means of settling their grievances. No man could retail milk at threepence a quart and live on it. That was one thing they would have to grapple with.

October 1900 CDN

1900 10 03
The news of the death of the Master of Peterhouse, Dr James Porter, has come as a blow to all conversant with his part in the public life of Cambridge. The Town Council has been much strengthened by the accession of University members and no councillor has been more keenly interested in every detail of public business. He recognised very clearly that the interests of the University and town are one and acted upon it. It was noteworthy than when subjects that one might have considered hardly worth the attention of University members were under consideration Dr Porter would get up and speak with full knowledge.

1900 10 03
At the meeting at Linton to revise the voters' lists Mr Holttum objected to the name of Henry Webb in respect of a farm at West Wickham. Mr Hutt said the farm had been occupied by members of the Webb family for 146 years. Last Michaelmas the father wanted to give up the farm and the landlord accepted the son as tenant, but he stipulated that as long as Mr Webb sen. lived he should live in the house, thinking it a pity the old gentleman should turn out of the farm where he had resided for 46 years.

Cambridge Gazette affairs, p2

1900 10 06

Sir – I see that several shareholders of the Tramways Company suggest that small buses only should be allowed to run between Cherry Hinton and the Market. If it means that we are to fold and squeeze ourselves up like figs into the wretched boxes that we hoped had long since been turned into firewood the company has reckoned without their hosts. We have had enough of the stuffy snail-paced coffins and if the company can do no better we are ready to start a couple of rattling good two-horse buses of our own – G. Bland.

1900 10 08
Special services were held at Grantchester when the occasion was taken to dedicate the new stained glass window that has been presented to the church by the Rev Dr Streane, the vicar. The new window, at the east end of the church, has been erected by Messrs Heaton, Butler & Bayne of London, and is of beautiful design. It was a perpetual reminder of a life of faithful service and of work for God.

1900 10 08
Two years ago the 'Cambridge Gazette' was brought into being. Its sponsors made a great fuss about it. At last, they said, Cambridge has got a daily newspaper that is worthy of it – an eight page paper with innumerable editions, up to date in every respect. A halfpenny weekly newspaper was also started with a loss on every copy sold. Not only were they bound to fail, but they deserved to fail – and they have failed. The CDN has now beaten off two attacks and our regret is that we cannot say of the second failure as we did in 1892 of the first – that it was a highly respectable sheet. # c.04

Brampton accident, p2

1900 10 09
Newspaper enterprise in Cambridge – Cambridge Gazette, p2 # c.04

1900 10 10
Violent hostilities characterised the election meeting at Cottenham. For upwards of an hour the burly youths began to assemble in the precincts of the schoolroom. The room was soon filled and the booing and yelling of the mob was simply deafening. The arrival of Sir Robert Fitzgerald was a signal for groans and hisses. They seized his coat, which they tore, knocked off his hat and hustled him in all directions. He took refuge in the house of Mr J.M. Gould and finally escaped about an hour later

1900 10 11
Whittlesford attack, p3

1900 10 12
Sir W. Cuthbert-Quilter MP was announced to speak at Castle Camps and, a noisy meeting being anticipated, a policeman was stationed at the entrance so as to allow only electors into the building. On arrival he was received with loud hissing and booing. He said: 'I have come 100 miles today to see you'. (Hissing and 'Go back another hundred'). He attempted to address the meeting, but being frequently interrupted asked 'Will you hear me? A voice: 'We have heard such a lot of rubbish, we want to hear some plain truth now'. 'You will get that from me'. 'You will be the first one who has told the truth then'

Newmarket Hotel, p4

1900 10 13
Just a week ago publication of the 'Cambridge Gazette' was suspended. This morning an extraordinary meeting of shareholders was held to consider that the company should be wound-up voluntarily. The Secretary of the company was not present and it was stated that he had gone to Manchester. The bank overdraft was stated to be £2,200 and the company was hopelessly beyond retrievement. The affairs are to be wound up as speedily as possible.

1900 10 13 c
The news of the Conservative victory in East Cambs was received at Ely with unbounded jubilation by wearers of the pink favours. As night approached there was a good deal of movement in the streets. At 9 o'clock a procession started led by Mr J. Newstead on horseback, who dressed in khaki and wore his medals, then came Peterborough Band, Holy Trinity drum & fife band, men on horseback bedecked with pink ribbons, decorated bicycles and numerous carriages. Fireworks were discharged in the street to the accompaniment of cheers.

1900 10 15
A cold windy day is scarcely an ideal time to hold a Friendly Societies' Parade and an open-air service. Cottenham Society however delayed their annual parade until Sunday, the day preceding the village feast, and as could be expected, the attendance suffered. Cottenham sets a good example to other villages in the way of raising funds for Addenbrooke's Hospital

Presentation to Gazette pressmen, p2
Ely torchlight procession, p3 *
Saffron Walden death J. Emson, p3

1900 10 16
Three cases of typhoid have occurred at Exning. The first was in a house in the Malting Yard, the second was of a person who had called at the house where the original outbreak occurred, and the third case was next door. The water from a well had been analysed and ought not to be used for drinking purposes if better could be obtained. The Waterworks main passed the door and a connection should be made for a supply. The water could be purified by boiling but poor people have not got the time and coal is too dear for that. The sanitation in the house was in a dreadful state and the place quite unfit for habitation.

1900 10 18
Cambridge town council considered the position of town crier. Mr Campkin said the office was a relic of Bumbledon and could well be dispensed with. They had outlived the town crier as they had the Bedell. Alderman Spalding thought it a great pity to get rid of these old offices. The crier preceded the Mayor to church five times a year, went to meet the judges three times, attending the quarter sessions and licensing sessions and made in all sixteen appearances during the year. The salary was £20 per annum. # c.35.7 # crier # c.39

1900 10 19
An appeal was heard against the refusal to grant a licence to the Windmill public house in Mill Road, Cambridge. It had good stabling and in fact was the only public house with stabling. It had been licensed since 1835 and had been thoroughly renovated. It was a labourer's house in a neighbourhood of labourers. A petition signed by 112 residents was opposed to the licence but another signed by 230 was in favour. The decision was reversed and the licence renewed.

1900 10 19 c
The Huntingdonshire police are taking stringent measures to stop motor cars going at an excessive pace on the Great North Road. Fines of £4 and £3 have recently been imposed and on Thursday a motorist was fined £6. The chairman of the Bench said motor car drivers used the road as a racing track and made it unbearable for the inhabitants of the locality. Another time the maximum penalty would be imposed.

1900 10 20
From time to time the announcement goes forth that at last colour photography is a fait accompli, but the statement proves without foundation. While we wait for a solution there is something to go on with in the way of chromotype views. Messrs Boots took the lead in Cambridge and have just issued a new set which are beautifully printed and well worth framing. The set is packed in an elaborately designed wrapper, tied with Cambridge blue ribbon and would make a very acceptable gift # c.65.5

1900 10 22
Properties at Dry Drayton and Comberton were submitted to public auction. The first lot consisted of the freehold licensed premises at Drayton known by the sign of the Queen's Head and three cottages in the rear. It was knocked down to Fenstanton brewery for £320. They also became the purchasers of an acre of land at Comberton at a price of £52 10s.

1900 10 23
A Thriplow labourer was summoned by William Stockbridge, a chimney sweep, for stealing 13 walnuts, valued at 1d. PC Housden said he watched some walnut trees in Pegg's Close; he saw defendant go to one of the trees, pick up several walnuts and get over the fence where he was standing. He requested him to turn out his pockets and 13 walnuts were discovered. A fine of 2s 6d was inflicted

Romsey town fire, p2
Bishop Stortford hoax, p2

1900 10 24
A cab proprietor sued a carpenter, for £17 8s 6d damages resulting from a collision. It included repairs to cab and damage to horse. The defendant counter-claimed for £7 4s damage to bicycle. The cyclist had boasted that he was a 'scorcher' and that he could 'go' at a great pace. He was riding about 12 mph when he collided with a cab, running into the horse's head. The horse's leg got entangled in the wheel of the bicycle & it plunged. The cab fell on its side in the road. Witnesses said the driver of the cab had whipped the horse and it was going at a full gallop. Had the driver been looking ahead he must have seen the cyclist, but he was talking to the occupant of the cab through the well in the top of the vehicle. Judgement was found for the defendant

Cattle King sentenced, p4

1900 10 25
An epidemic of disease has broken out in Cambridge which is of such serious importance as regards the public health that we should not be discharging a duty we owe to our readers if we did not draw attention to the outbreak with a view to their taking the necessary precautions against the spread of infection. That the local medical authorities are doing all that is within their power to seek out the origin of the epidemic of diphtheria that is in our midst there can be no shadow of doubt but meanwhile it is only right that the public at large should be made acquainted with the knowledge that the deadly disease is prevalent. Nor is the outbreak confined to Cambridge for rumour has it that deaths from either diphtheria or scarlet fever have occurred during the past two days at Chesterton. The origin of the outbreak has not yet been established but it is less than the week that the outright assumed anything like a serious nature. The illness and death of certain children attending Park Street Mixed Infants School first brought the matter under the attention of the local medical authorities and the school was immediately closed. Prior to this every child was examined by medical experts with the result that numerous children were found to be suffering from an inflamed throat which is one of the earliest symptoms. Subsequently it was deemed advisable to close the Girls' School in the hope that in the meantime the disease might be stamped out. Several deaths have taken place which are directly attributable to the disease. In the circumstances the necessity cannot be forcibly too forcibly impressed upon parents of taking every possible precaution against the spread of the infection.
An epidemic of disease has broken out in Cambridge which is of such serious importance as regards the public health that we should not be discharging a duty we owe to our readers if we did not draw attention to it, notwithstanding the reticence of the medical authority, which to say the least is inexplicable. The Medical Officer of Health has absolutely declined to take the press into his confidence. That diphtheria is prevalent is beyond dispute, nor is it confined to Cambridge for rumour is that deaths have occurred at Chesterton. The death of certain children attending Park Street mixed infants school first brought the matter under the attention of the local medical authorities. Several deaths have taken place which are directly attributed to the disease. # c.21.1

1900 10 26
In considering a supply of water to Littleport the Inspector said the population would require 50,000 gallons per day. The available rivers ran for a considerable length through the fens and were used as main outfall drains for the pumping engines which pumped water from the adjoining fen lands. It was obvious that any water would be subject to pollution by peaty water from the pumping stations. The waters of the Little Ouse, if taken at the end of White Hall Drove, would prove the most suitable but would still be of doubtful quality. Whatever source was chosen there should be a service reservoir near the main road to Ely

New Technical Institute and school of science, p3

1900 10 27
A sad suicide occurred at Lt Thetford where a platelayer employed on the G.E.R. imagined that he was a sufferer from scarlet fever, although medical examinations proved to the contrary. There were several cases in the village. Shortly before ten o'clock he left his fellow-workers near the bridge over the Old West not telling them where he was going. Time passed and a shepherd brought the intelligence that a handkerchief had been found in the wash near the river. After a diligent search his body was found in the water beneath the railway bridge

1900 10 29
The action taken by the Technical Education Committee in opening technical day schools in Cambridge has brought about a situation which is of the highest interest to the future of education in the town. To put the matter plainly the Governors of the Perse School conceive that the new schools, at which the fees are much lower, threaten their prosperity, if not their very existence. They say that boys are likely to leave the Perse – indeed it is an open secret that some have already left. There is no doubt that the Perse is no longer what it once was – a school for the children of persons of small incomes. Fees of up to £20 a year must depend entirely upon the well-to-do. # c.36.5

1900 10 30
It is doubtful whether a better programme has been presented at the Cambridge Circus of Varieties than that given this week. Mr Fred Brooks has probably appeared before the Cambridge public more than any artiste on the boards – first at Sturton Town Hall and later at Arcadia. He has lost none of his vocal ability and the best of his songs is "Good old Cambridge", a topical effusion

1900 10 31
The village of Stansted was en fete on Saturday for the home-coming from South Africa of Corporal J. Audley Blyth and Privates Philip and Guy Gold. A crowd gathered to welcome them at Bishop's Stortford, as it was first thought the party would detrain at that station. The train however was stopped at Stansted, at which place a crowd of people, most of whom were wearing red white and blue rosettes greeted them. They were driven away in a barouche decorated and wearing the motto 'Welcome Home; when they got to the top of Chapel Hill the crowd took the horses out of the vehicle and dragged it the remainder of the way.

Waterbeach Sunday Schools, p2
Wicken election scene, p3

November 1900 CDN

1900 11 01
We have received an official statement from Mr Alderman T. Hyde, respecting the outbreak of diphtheria at Cambridge. 'Last Friday I stated that we knew of 12 cases of the disease. Since then we have had a rather unexpected increase which made a total of 35 today. There have been four deaths from the disease. With a few doubtful exceptions all cases have been proved to have originated in connection with the Park Street Infants School, although so far investigations have shown no reason for supposing that the actual building on the site has had anything to do with the causation of the disease. No expense or labour will be grudged in the endeavour to stamp out the disease. It is thought advisable not to allow children to attend meetings in public halls during the present conditions".

1900 11 03
Some gypsies who had passed with their vans through Newmarket, after hawking baskets etc camped for a time on a piece of grass near the Cemetery. Three of the men, who had evidently taken too much to drink, began to quarrel and got to blows. Two of them stripped to the waist and commenced to fight. When PC Nice arrived he found them covered with blood and surrounded by a crowd of about 200 persons. The constable, at considerable risk to himself, interposed to stop them but they would not desist. He accordingly sent for assistance. Constables Foulcher, Marjoram and King arrived & took the principal offenders into custody. The others decamped

Cambridge Volunteers homecoming, p2

1900 11 05
Witchford accident

1900 11 06
The 'Fifth' was celebrated on Cambridge in a very orderly fashion. The effigies that once characterised Guy Fawkes Day were conspicuous by their almost entire absence. The best attempt at an effigy was made by three or four men who were rigged out in minstrel fashion and paraded the streets with a vehicle in which were seated representations of Mr Kruger and his wife. This attracted a good deal of attention until the rain came and washed the colour from the faces of the dejected looking figures, and sent the minstrels home # c.36.94

Stansted back from war, p3 *

1900 11 07
Lord John Sanger's circus is paying its annual visit to Cambridge. The spacious marquee is erected on Midsummer Common. This afternoon's performance was somewhat sparsely patronised. The absence of children was especially noticeable. This was probably due to a warning issued by the medical authorities to parents that they would "incur considerable danger if they were allowed to attend the performances" in view of the prevalence of diphtheria. The performance will be repeated this evening when a football match between a "centre-forward" elephant and a Cambridge footballer will be played. # c.76.2

1900 11 08
Sir – your correspondent surely must be joking when he pleads that business should be suspended from Saturday evening, December 22nd until the following Thursday morning. Shop assistants have very little overtime work at Christmas now, and almost everyone has a week or ten days' holiday in the summer, besides early closing on Thursdays, so they cannot need a holiday so badly as he infers. I think we are tending towards too many holidays, which are making our young people think far more about pleasure than business and their future. And think what it would mean to the poor who have not the means to lay in a week's supply of goods – 'Trader'

1900 11 08
Mrs Doggett, of Gt Eastern Street, Cambridge, has received a letter from her son in South Africa, who has been a prisoner. He sent his mother a South African caterpillar with a rose. On arrival the rose had disappeared, and the letter was partially eaten. The caterpillar was very thin, but alive

1900 11 10
Lilian Lawrence, a 'Lieutenant' of the Salvation Army, said she was at Histon conducting a service in the Salvation Army Barracks. On account of a great shouting outside she was unable to commence the service. She walked to the door and saw eight or nine boys outside, whom she asked to go away. They did not reply but laughed at her. They were summoned for disturbing a religious service and fined 5s each.

1900 11 12
P.S. Howlett told the court he had visited a house in Castle Street, Saffron Walden. He found two ounces of sugar, an ounce of dry crust of bread, five onions, scraps of raw meat and bone and two bushels of very small potatoes. The cottage was very dirty and the four children were very dirty also. There was an offensive small upstairs. The mother said her husband had given her only 4d and she had purchased a loaf of bread and butter. He was addicted to drink and she had been begging about the town. The younger children were pallid and looked to be starving. He suggested to the woman she should take them to the Workhouse and offered her a ticket of admission.

Buntingford accident, p3

1900 11 13
An outbreak of fire occurred at the Art Pottery, Castle Headingham. Mr Bingham was executing a large number of glazed tiles for an Ipswich church and these had reached the drying condition. He had left the furnace in a safe state but an additional draught caused the flue to get overheated and the shelves in the drying room caught fire. The chief damage was the destruction of 500 of the tiles.

Volunteers, p3

1900 11 14
Littleport butcher bankruptcy, p2
Colonials – scenes streets

1900 11 15
The Isle of Ely county council's surveyor reported that the driving wheels of the steam roller had worn very thin and would need replacing. It was a disappointment but the roller had been the means of bring them in a deal of money by hire. He was authorised to obtain two new wheels from Messrs Aveling and Porter, the makers of the steam roller. Mr Smith asked how long the roller was guaranteed, if it could be shown there was some flaw in its construction the makers should be approached on the matter. He was told there was no guarantee.

1900 11 15
The National Skating Association meeting heard that the Fen Centre of the Speed Departmental Committee was enabled to bring off both the Amateur and Professional Speed Skating Championships at Littleport, Mr A.E. Tebbit retaining the former, while the latter was won by Fred Ward. James Smart, who had for so long held the title, did not compete, as he has retired from the racing track.

1900 11 16
While lying in hospital in South Africa, recovering from an attack of fever, a soldier was lent a copy of the CDN containing the account of the Ladysmith 'rag'. "As I read it I fancied myself back in the dear old town and could not resist giving vent to my feelings in a wild war whoop, which brought a nurse hurrying to the spot in the fear that a relapse had taken place. I tell you it cheered me up to know that the old home appreciated our efforts and did not hesitate to show how pleased they were with the success of the British Army", he said.

1900 11 17
Fire Mill Road shop

1900 11 19
Sir – Among the many urgent improvements needed in Cambridge stands that of abolishing the old, worn-out buildings and improving the thoroughfares of the town. Disease is prevalent to a large extent and is to be found in districts with narrow thoroughfares and tumble-down houses. The buildings between Round Church Street and Ram Yard are a disgrace and in any other town would have been demolished long since; they should not be tolerated even in conservative Cambridge. - "W"

Massacre of missionaries, p2 *

1900 11 20
An Orwell farmer was summonsed for being drunk whilst in possession of a loaded revolver on the highway. The rector said he was practising with the choir in the church when the man entered the building accompanied by a dog. He turned the dog out. Shortly afterwards it returned to the church and endeavouring to get it out he made it yelp. Defendant came out of the church and almost immediately discharged a firearm. The rector took hold of the man whereupon he flourished a stick. When near the church gates the defendant fell over and refused to move. The rector sent for the police. The man said he had the revolver to frighten away sparrow from the corn he had been threshing. He was fined £2.

1900 11 21
Opportunity improvements, p2

1900 11 22
The Cambridge Coroner opened an enquiry at the Blackbirds public house, East Road, Cambridge into the circumstances of the death of an East Road shopkeeper and her three children who were found lying on the bed in their front upstairs room with their throats cut. She had appeared perfectly sane and was reported not to have financial problems but was very much troubled about her husband leaving her. She was very fond of her children and was a good mother. A lodger said he had come downstairs but found no breakfast ready. He had knocked on her door and got no answer. He had looked into the room, seen the bodies and sent for the police.

1900 11 22
Four boys were charged with wholesale housebreaking and robbery. Detective Marsh said numerous complaints were received of till robberies. Two of the boys had been lodging with their parents at the Victoria Lodging House. One, whose father got his living by begging, had admitted breaking into four other houses in addition with those for which he was charged. Another had received 12 strokes with the birch rod for housebreaking in Oxford.

Reprieve Haverhill murderer, p2

1900 11 23
Fire broke out at the rear of the premises of Messrs Laurie & McConnal, Fitzroy Street, Cambridge. An employee noticed smoke coming from stacks of brooms, a bag of feathers, a stock of confetti and other material in the cellar. The staff of the firm set to work to extinguish the blaze and by dint of the application of water from a line of buckets and from a hose attached to the water tap, the fire was practically extinguished before the arrival of the fire brigade. It is surmised that a match was dropped down the lift hole by a passer-by, and so caused the outbreak.

1900 11 24
Cambridge tragedy, p3

1900 11 26
On Saturday the Inns of Court Mounted Infantry joined the Cambridge University Rifles in a field day on the Newmarket Road. The tactical scheme presumed that a convoy from Newmarket was desirous of entering Cambridge along the main road through Quy and south of Fen Ditton. The CURV were told to attack, capture, hamper or destroy this convoy. Most interesting operations followed with cyclists, horsemen and infantry all fully employed. As dusk set in the convoy seized its opportunity and slipped past. The public schools and town and local corps were unable to attend at the last moment as their rifles had been called in for Government inspection.

Memorial C. Forester, p3

1900 11 27
Cambridge House settlement, p2

1900 11 28
The annual meeting of the Cambridge Female Refuge heard that 28 girls had been admitted to the house. Of these five had left for service, one promoted to laundry-maid and two had been taken home by their parents. Though some of the girls had given trouble at first after leaving the home, they had in the end settled down to steady work and show that the lessons learned there had not be forgotten. One noticeable feature was the number of girls who have been confirmed – no less than eight – after careful preparation by the chaplain.

1900 11 28
An Inspector of the Local Government Board held an inquiry at Cambridge Guildhall with reference to the application of the Town Council to borrow £15,500 for the provision of a new cemetery at a spot near Fen Ditton. Dr Cooper said there was a good deal of talk and it was of the utmost importance to the inhabitants that the formation of the new cemetery would not in the slightest degree be of risk to the purity of the water supply of the town. # c.27.2

1900 11 29
Undergraduate memento, p2
Gamlingay publican, p3

1900 11 30
Cottenham fire, p4

December 1900 CDN

1900 12 01
Property sale, p2
Haverhill shivering horse

1900 12 03
A sad fatality happened on the railway near Black Bank Station, the victim being a farmer who was well known in the district. Earlier in the day he transacted business at Ely, returning in a friend's cart. Later in the evening he joined a number of his friends at the Railway Tavern near the station, parting company with them to go to his house in the Second Drove. He did not arrive home. In the morning the driver of a train called out that there was a dead man laying on the metals with his legs severed.

1900 12 03
The earnest and untiring efforts of Mr William Parker, late secretary of the Salisbury Working Men's Club, Cambridge, were recognised when he was presented with a beautiful marble clock and an illuminated address. In his thanks Mr Parker referred to the dastardly attack on the Conservative candidate in benighted Cottenham. It showed there was work to be done in reclaiming or bringing into the bounds of civilisation such people as those who lived in Cottenham

1900 12 03
Sir – no one who takes the trouble to make even a cursory inspection of the unlovely mass of bricks and timber in Ram Yard, Cambridge, can fail to see that its removal would be a matter of little inconvenience to a very few residents. Several of the buildings show no sign of occupation by night – there is one of two storeys which is occupied as a shoemaker's workroom. Another gloomy pile, now unoccupied, was, I believe, a blacksmith's shop. The whole block is uniformly hideous and obstructive. No one has a good word to say for it – V.S.N.

1900 12 04
The Cambridge Café. Tea and coffee fresh made for each customer. Unrivalled specialities. Cakes, ices, gingerbread, fancy goods and sweets. Accommodation for cyclists. S.J. Freeman, Silver Street, Cambridge - advert

1900 12 04
At a meeting of the Haverhill Magistrates the surveyor of the Bumpstead Rural District Council was brought up on remand charged with making false entries in the cash and wages book for work on the roads. A labourer said he worked for a farmer for eight weeks and during that time he did no work on the roads at all and received no money for working on the roads during that time. But the wages book showed alleged payments to him of 12s a week. Similar charges were made in connection with the Clare Rural District Council

1900 12 04
An undergraduate was summoned for keeping a dog without a licence. Detective Wright stated he called on the defendant and asked if he had exhibited a dog in the Corn Exchange. The student replied in the affirmative and added that he had not got the dog now, as he only had it for the purposes of the show and as soon as it was over he sent the animal away again. He produced a statement showing the dog was licensed by his father. The case was dismissed.

1900 12 05
Cottenham ploughing match, p3

1900 12 06
Of all the memorable occasions which have gathered together the populace to the mother church of the diocese surely one of the greatest and noblest on record must be the memorial service for those who have fallen in South Africa. The Precentor read the painfully long list of those who had been killed in action or died of disease during the war including Charles Hemmings, Robert Holland, William Johnson, Henry Norman & George Pomeroy, (the Ely Volunteers standing during the time).

1900 12 07
Ram Yard, p3

1900 12 08
Stapleford fracas, p2
Ram Yard, p3 *

1900 12 10
An accident occurred at Witchford whereby a boy was killed. The deceased accompanied a yardman with a water cart for the purpose of getting a supply of water at the end of the village. This having been accomplished, the return journey was commenced. On the way, the lad, who was eight years old, fell off the heavily-weighted cart and one of the wheels passed over his head. When he was picked up it was found that he was dead.

St Bene't's church, p2
Ely Boer War memorial, p3 *

1900 12 11
The Exchange Toilet Saloon, Corn Exchange Street, Cambridge. The above establishment, which is extensively patronised by members of the University, Town and County, has recently been considerably enlarged and will be found replete with all the latest and most approved appliances for carrying on a business of this kind, including a continuous supply of both hold and cold water. Ladies' combings bought, and a good assortment of tails always on sale. Combings made up. Umbrellas re-covered and repaired. Advert.

ottisham bikes, p2

1900 12 12
Ely Council's surveyor reported he had visited several house in Fieldside and Cambridge Road where overcrowding existed. At one house two adults and five children (including a boy aged 14) dwelt in one chamber, which was divided by a very thin partition. In another there were two adults and five children in one chamber. In West-end there was a large undrained yard tenanted by a man, where cows and pigs were kept and a nuisance notices was ordered to be served.

1900 12 14
Sweeping paths, p3

1900 12 17
Most of the Cambridge pressmen assembled to do honour to one of their number, Mr Charles Kent, who after a 12 years' service with the 'Cambridge Chronicle' as editor, is shortly to sever his connection with Cambridge journalism. Time was when one journalist fraternising with another of a rival paper was suspected of disloyalty to his own paper. All that had passed away and journalists could now meet on the most friendly terms and still be whole-heartedly loyal to their own papers. In bringing about this spirit Mr Kent had done a great deal. He was presented with an illuminated address. # c.04

Christmas at shops

1900 12 18
At Melbourn Petty Sessions the Bench granted the transfer of the licenses of the Railway Tavern, Meldreth, from Mrs Clarke to Fred Ely; that of the Fox, Gt Eversden, from George Desborough to Joseph Charteris; and that of the Wagon and Horses, Haslingfield, from James Clarke to Henry Charles Carter.

Cambridge & Xmas holidays, p2
Xmas at shops, p3

1900 12 18
Private T.G. Elborn was invalided home from South Africa. He had not been wounded but unfortunately had a very severe attack of dysentery and rheumatic fever. Hence he was sent to the hospital, and was so ill that he was obliged to be sent home. He said he did not give in until he was absolutely forced to do so, but then he went down like a log. He got as far as Middeleburg, about 12 miles further than Pretoria and that was 'a jolly sight further' than some of the Volunteer companies got. He was very pleased to say that not one of the Cambridge boys was dead, and that was a record, but he heard that one of the 'Varsity section was dead. Private King of Saffron Walden died at Netley.

1900 12 20
Cambridge Town Council invited applications for the post of Town Crier, at a salary of £20 per annum, with allowance for delivering and posting handbills, and uniforms to be provided. The crier might be a little out of date, but he was a picturesque figure. Three candidates were interviewed and asked to read one of the Proclamations used at Midsummer Fair. The committee strongly recommended that Henry James Thompson, of Perowne Street, be elected. # c.39

1900 12 20
Mr Whibley told Cambridge Commons Committee that the time had now arrived when they should keep cattle off the west part of Midsummer Common. There was the question of the right of stock owners but the profits of a few ought not to stand in the way of the health and pleasure of the many. They were rapidly outgrowing Parker's Piece and they might lay this part of the Common out for football, hockey and other things. The Chairman said he would be pleased to find that portion of the common turned entirely into a recreation ground.

1900 12 21
A middle-aged labourer employed at the New Police Station buildings, St Andrew's Street, Cambridge, met with an accident. He was on the top scaffold, shifting roof principals. In doing so he tumbled off the platform and fell a distance of 18 feet to the next floor, breaking his jaw.

1900 12 22
A serious fire occurred on the premises of Messrs Coulson & Co., drapers at Peas Hill, Cambridge, and the flames were not extinguished until the entire stock of goods in the shop were completely destroyed. Captain Greef of the Fire Brigade arrived as did 14 firemen and nearly a dozen constables. The fronts of the shop were much damaged. The cause of the fire is attributed to the overturning of one of the incandescent burners in the shop window. # c.34.75

1900 12 22
Holmes, porter Trinity, was reminiscences, p3

1900 12 24
A Corporation employee descended beneath the surface of the road in St Andrew's Street, Cambridge, with a candle in his hand and approached the gas main running under the tramlines. This pipe contained a leakage, and a quantity of gap was escaping. The flames of the candle caused the escaped gap to explode and flames shot up out of the cavity in an alarming manner. The employee arrived at the surface little the worse for his experience. Traffic was suspended for some time until the leakage was repaired.

Mineral water van horse

1900 12 27
The Union Workhouse at Caxton, an institution which is unique for the advanced ages attained by its inmates, celebrated Christmastide in true festive style. To many a grateful old man and woman who lot has been so cast Caxton workhouse spells 'home' and the cheery demeanour of many bore undeniable testimony to the unremitting care and attention which is bestowed upon them. A number of the inmates are confined to their beds but making a tour through the spick and span wards one could not but be struck with the effort that was being put forward by thoughtful officials on behalf of the helpless

Guildhall mishap
Coursing meeting, p3 *
St Ives Ladysmith hero, p3

1900 12 28
Christmas post,

1900 12 29
Swavesey laudanum *

1900 12 31
Baker's Arms, Shelley Row, p2

1901 Cambridge Daily News

There are reader printer copies and scans.
Checked against diary

January 1901 CDN

1901 01 01
All over the country people keep up the practice of watching the Old Year out and the New Year in, but Cambridge is probably unique in the sending up of rockets. Mr Alderman Deck has religiously observed the practice inaugurated by his father and the townspeople are grateful to him for it. Hundreds of people gathered on King's Parade. The two rockets were placed in a crate and just as King's clock was striking the midnight hour the venerable Alderman applied a light to one of the rockets and with its flight was symbolised the flight of 1900. A few moments later the second rocket was sent up, heralding the birth of the New Year and the New Century.

1901 01 01
A great sensation was caused at Baldock when it became known that a woman had committed suicide by jumping down a well. Her husband said he had awoken and thought he could detect something burning. As his wife was closest to the door she said she would go down. After being absent for about two minutes he became alarmed. He found the house was empty and the back door open and immediately heard a scream. He rushed outdoors and proceeded to the well. Finding the lid open he let down a lantern but could not see any trace of her. A well sinker was let down in a bucket & recovered the body.

1901 01 01
The Cambridge Medical Officer of Health reported on the recent outbreak of diphtheria. He had inspected Park Street School and could find no cause for complaint except as to the odours arising from a cesspool. Alderman Dalton said the present school might be perfectly healthy as workshops, or a Sunday School or an evening institute. There was a great difference between children assembling for a couple of hours in one day of the week and living in the place the whole of their time. The question should be decided whether the school should be carried on under the present unsatisfactory conditions or whether new buildings should be erected.

1901 01 01 c
The observations of certain phenomena on the planet Mars has created considerable interest in the astronomical world. All sorts of suppositions have been advanced to explain what was thought to be a possible attempt by the inhabitants of that planet to communicate with this world. Monsieur Flammarion of Paris has proved to his own mind that Mars is inhabited and possessed of a high degree of civilisation but is forced to admit that "our humanity is hardly ready for their trials, which are a little above its ordinary comprehension".

1901 01 02
The number of scholars of the Sunday School connected with Sturton Street Primitive Methodist Chapel, Cambridge, has outgrown the accommodation to such an extent that it has been found necessary to extend the premises by adding a new wing at the rear, with a kitchen and offices. Work will also be taken to reseat the chapel, matchboard and ceiling and renovate the walls. The first stone was laid by Mr W.G. Pike, Mr A.W. Endersby laid the second and the Rev W.M. Batterbee the third.

1901 01 03
The visit of a 'ghost' to the cottages of Steeple Morden, known as 'Moco' and occupied by a gamekeeper and his wife and a shepherd, has caused a great sensation in the village. A fortnight ago the gamekeeper heard strange noises, as from a person in agony, emanate from the party wall. He then heard a thud and the firing of a gun in one corner of their room. It is stated that one if not two murders were perpetrated at this place many years ago.

1901 01 05
Fen floods, p3

1901 01 07
Prospects of early skating are splendid, and unless there is an immediate change the exhilarating pastime will be indulged in tomorrow at the Littleport rendezvous. Swavesey is also flooded and will soon bear. Whether the National Skating Association will decide to hold the Championships there or at Littleport is not yet known. There is much to recommend both places, but whereas they lack length of a proper course at Littleport, the arrangements for racing are almost perfect.

1901 01 09
No provision has been made in Cambridgeshire for the application of the Inebriates Act. This enables magistrates to deal with persons who have been frequently convicted of drunkenness by sending them to a home and is based on the view that habitual drunkenness is to a large extend a disease. It recognises the indubitable fact that for the curing of the drink habit short spells of imprisonment have proved ineffectual... Cambridge town and county are remarkably free from the habitual drunkard and yet cases arise every now and then from which an Inebriates Home would be advantageous. There is no home to send them. Cambridge has not the material to keep up an inebriate home, but East Anglia has. The advantages of conjoint action are apparent.

1901 01 09
At West Suffolk Quarter Sessions the surveyor of Clare Rural District Council was indicted for making false entries in a wages book. His duty was to survey the highways and see that the various labourers employed were paid their wages. In three instances, in the case of two men at Withersfield and one at Great Thurlow prisoner had made entries for work done and money payable when, as a matter of fact,, no work was done and the labourers never existed upon earth. The money did not enter the pockets of the mythical workers but the prisoner's himself.

1901 01 09 c
Quite a sensation was caused in Fordham by the news that the dead body of a young man had been found near a stack on land adjoining a road on the outskirts of the village, along which many people must have passed. The landlady of the Red Lion Inn said she knew deceased as a customer. They took him for a tramp and he hardly spoke all the time he was in the house. He was sitting about for some time with his head on his arms as though sleeping, but was not the worse for drink. Deceased worked as a labourer on the sewerage works at Exning and was in the habit of sleeping out; he had been a rather rough character.

1901 01 09
Mr Luddington said that people might think Littleport was a plague-infested place – (Mr Cutlack: So it is). There was nothing to prevent typhoid germs floating down the river from Ely, while the fen engines were constantly pouring in water that was impure. There was the flood time and the time when the reeds were cut and allowed to lie in the water and stink. Let them look up the river that day and ask themselves if the water was fit to drink.

Cambridge Good Samaritan Society, p3 *

1901 01 10
Ashley drainage, p3

1901 01 11
Cambridge Free Library, p2

1901 01 15
St Ives fatality p3 *

1901 01 16
The wedding of George Colchester will long be remembered by the employees of Messrs Colchester and Ball, chemical manufacturers, of Burwell, who all had a half-day's holiday to celebrate the occasion. All the men, numbering about 85, employed at the Chemical Manure Works, Brickworks and Farm were entertained to dinner at the Anchor Inn. A generous repast, consisting of good English fare was served. James Fabin, the oldest employee, having seen 45 years' service gave an account of the great progress since he worked for Mr Thomas T. Ball who started the Manure Works.

Royston bike theft p3

1901 01 17
The Cambridge British Schools removed to handsome and commodious premises in Auckland Road abutting on Midsummer Common – an exceeding pleasant site where there is plenty of light and fresh air. The common will in summer afford an excellent playground for the boys and a playground for the girls and infants is laid out within the confines of the school premises. Accommodation is provided for 706 scholars and the school is already all but full. Hitherto the scholars have been educated at schools in Fitzroy Street but these buildings have become antiquated

1901 01 17
For some time the Cambridge Borough Surveyor had hired a wharf in the L.N.W.R. railway yard, principally for the purposes of stone breaking. The rent had been £2 but the Company now proposed to increase it to £3 per annum. The surveyor considered it would be advantageous to continue the tenancy.

1901 01 18
A Littleport parish meeting was held to consider the matter of the water supply attracted a large assembly. The clerk reported on three schemes – an independent supply from Beck Row, a supply from the River Lark, and a supply from Ely. Without the proposed reservoir and the fire hydrants the work could be carried out for £5,000. It was for the meeting to decide whether to have water for a favoured few or go to the whole parish. Most of the cases of typhoid had occurred against the drain that came down Black Bank, but there were some cases at Red Cow Drove.

1901 01 19
Owing to the appointment of Miss Annie Gowers from the infants' to the girls' department of the Haverhill Board School a considerable amount of friction has been caused between certain members of the staff and the Board. Four teachers inserted a notice in a local paper that the Board considered as being of a most impertinent and insubordinate character. They have requested the teachers to send an ample and full apology, in default of which to send in their resignations.

1901 01 22
Queen Victoria death

1901 01 23
The melancholy news, which everyone knew could not be long delayed, of the death of Queen Victoria, was received in Cambridge in this brief announcement: - "The Queen passed away at 6.30". The Cambridge Daily News gave publicity to the melancholy event to those who in Cambridge were waiting with anxiety for the latest intelligence, and almost immediately telegrams were posted at the University Union Society and at the Guildhall. The tolling of bells at many of the churches and college chapels also served to spread the sad news and this morning the borough bore a complete aspect of mourning for the loss of our beloved Queen. Royal Standards are flying half-mast and black ties and other emblems of mourning are being worn by members of the University and the townsmen
c.02

1901 01 23
On learning of the decease of the Queen the bell-ringers of All Saints' and St Mary's churches, Newmarket, rang a muffled peal. At Saffron Walden the news caused the profoundest regret amongst the inhabitants. Union Jacks were at half-mast at the Town Hall, the Conservative Club and the Volunteer headquarters and the tenor bell at the church was tolled. Many were the expressions of sorrow and regret in Haverhill; as early as possible a muffled peal was rung at the parish church and flags in all available parts of the town were rung to half-mast. The Raiders' (Tennis Club) Dance on Friday has been indefinitely postponed.

1901 01 24
Royston workhouse burning, p2
Holywell Road, p2
Haverhill walk, p3

1901 01 25
With the solemnities and ceremonies accustomed on like occasions, His Majesty King Edward VII was proclaimed by the University of Cambridge in succession to Victoria, the Well-Beloved. This morning, while the minute bell was mournfully tolling, while black shutters were up at almost every shop window and flags were at half-mast, crowds of scarlet-robed Doctors, sedate Dons and vivacious undergraduates were hurrying towards the Senate House to take part in the ceremony of a lifetime – to proclaim Edward VII King .# c.02

Saffron Walden proclamation

1901 01 26
Amid every sign of loyalty and with great enthusiasm, Cambridge publicly and impressively proclaimed King Edward VII. The unusual attraction naturally brought a vast crowd together, winding their way to the Guildhall which was accessible to all who presented themselves for admission and the building was soon crowded with a throng of sightseers, the majority being in deep mourning.

1901 01 28
At the various places of worship in Cambridgeshire references were made on Sunday to the death of the Queen. Special memorial services were held by the Salvation Army at Sturton Town Hall which were of a most impressive and solemn character. The hall was well filled, many present being deeply touched. At the close the band played the Dead March, the whole congregation standing in respectful homage.

1901 01 29
Mr Cattrall said he was very sorry to find Newmarket behind other places as far as the churches were concerned. He understood that both All Saints' and St Mary's churches had neglected to drape on Sunday to mark the death of Queen Victoria. Why, even in Ireland, they did so, and every denomination, including the chapels in the town, had not failed in that respect. Mr Ellis said All Saints had been decorated for Christmas and the question was whether the death of the Queen should displace that.

Queen – Ely, p3

1901 01 29
Few spots in and around Cambridge have become more notorious for the number of fatalities which they yield than the vicinity of Barnwell Junction and the stretch of line between that point and the level crossing on the Chesterton side of the railway bridge which spans the Cam. And probably nothing has ever surpassed in ghastliness the gruesome discovery made there during the early hours of Tuesday morning. The unfortunate victim was a telegraph linesman.

1901 01 30
The proclamation of Edward VII as King was read in front of the Town Hall, Saffron Walden in the presence of a vast crowd of townsfolk, augmented by many people from the surrounding parishes. The members of the Town Council, having robed, proceeded to a platform in front of the hall. Bugler A.J. Badman sounded the fanfare, after which the Town Crier called for silence for the Major. The town clerk read the proclamation, & the Town Band played 'God save the King' after which the crow sang a verse of the National Anthem with much heartiness. The Mayor then called for three cheers for the King, which were lustily given.

February 1901 CDN

1901 02 01
Great excitement was occasioned in the neighbourhood of Burleigh Street, Cambridge, by an outbreak of fire on the premises of Messrs Prime & Sons, the well-known firm of builders. The alarm quickly spread and only a few minutes elapsed before a tremendous crow of people had assembled to watch the progress of events. It was obvious that the efforts of the firemen and police were somewhat hampered by the increasing density of the large throng of onlookers. The conflagration soon illuminated the whole of the district, the flames hovering above the housetops in alarming brilliance.

1901 02 04
Shocking scene at funeral, p3
Victoria memorial services, p3 *

1901 02 05
There was an extraordinary scene at Gamlingay church. Mr Kensit and two Wickcliffe preachers occupied a pew immediately in front of the rood screen. Everything went on quietly until the point in the service where the bread and wine are blessed and on the vicar raising the same and bowing a cry of "blasphemy" rang though the church. Then the three objectors quietly stood up in their places. Mr Kensit said: "As a loyal Churchman I protest against this service. This is blasphemous". In a moment the church was in uproar. Men ran from the choir stalls and surrounded the protestors. They left the church followed by two-thirds of the congregation.

1901 02 06
Mr Archer remarked that Ely was somewhat behind in expressing their loyalty to the new King. It would be rather a slur if it were the only county which did not make a proclamation. The High Sheriff had said the thought Wisbech was the capital of the Isle. (Cries of "No, no"). It was the wish of the people of Ely that he come down and cause a proclamation to be made

Kensit crusade, Gamlingay

1901 02 08
A great concourse of people assembled at the Clock Tower, Newmarket to hear the King proclaimed. From the steps leading to the drinking fountain of the tower and stretching out some eight or ten feet, a platform had been erected, and was covered with Royal purple baize. The front was hung with the Union Jack. Children from the three Newmarket day schools and those from Exning marched up the High Street and were arranged in the form of a V, facing the platform.

1901 02 08
The ceremony of proclaiming King Edward VII was carried out at Ely. The High Sheriff in his official uniform read the Proclamation from the steps of the Shire Hall and a procession then marched along High Street to the Market Hill where thousands of people were congregated to hear the Proclamation again read. Every point of vantage was seized upon and it was refreshing to see the much-maligned Jubilee fountain proved to be a useful stand for sightseers.

1901 02 08
Sir: The directors of the New Theatre have under consideration plans for doing away with what has most undoubtedly been a great discomfort. We refer to the fact that we have not had enough space for men to smoke in between the acts. The rooms provided are too small and, as a consequence, the undergraduates smoke in the passages, the smoke pervades the house and the ladies are, in many cases, deterred from coming – T. Hyde Hills

New Street school opening, p3 # c.36.5

1901 02 12
As we tread the borders of the 20th century we wonder whether the people of the year 2001 will find the railway train be a thing of the past because they are using flying machines as a means of locomotion. Will the fact of sending a message along a wire be deemed romantic at that period or will the telegraph appear to them as old fashioned and romantic as the first efforts of telegraphy by means of wooden arms do to us. The romance of looking forward is to us not to be compared with that of looking back.

1901 02 14
Haddenham Parish Council passed a resolution: "That the County Council be asked to rebuild Aldreth Bridge at as early a date as possible, as the lack of accommodation is an inconvenience and loss to the parish". However it was not only a question of re-building the bridge but of making the roads on either side. They were in a very unsatisfactory state and unless these were repaired the bridge would be perfectly useless except in summer. Chesterton Council said they would not repair the roads and there was a strong feeling that Ely RDC would not repair them on their side.

1901 02 15
Sir: It has been brought to our notice that certain disparaging remarks were made at an Ely council meeting re the reception of the Ely Volunteers on our return from South Africa. We were very sorry and indignant to hear of the sneers and remarks made. When Mr Norman returns from a patrol up Cambridge Road does he require a band? We came out here to fight for our country and never hoped for or wanted an official reception. The only reception we want, and the best we can have, is that we are sure to receive from the dear ones we have left behind. – Ptes A. Barnard, S. Chapman, C. Cullum & A. Richardson, South Africa

Ely International Stores plan, p2

1901 02 16
An inquiry was held at Littleport on provision for a new burial ground. There was now only room for 20 grave spaces and the Parish Council had decided to purchase a piece of ground known as Dove House Close which adjoined the present cemetery. It was rather near to houses, but they had obtained the sanction of the householders and occupiers. The estimated cost was £1,500.

1901 02 18
An outbreak of fire occurred at the works of the Cambridge Brick Company, situated between Coldham's Lane and Newmarket Road on the outskirts of the densely populated district of Barnwell. The fire attracted large crowds and the flames, aided by a gentle breeze, spread rapidly, soon mounting in the air a distance of about a hundred feet. In just over two hours everything had yielded to the flames and all that remained was the damaged and broken parts of the valuable machinery. Fortunately the conflagration was confined to the corrugated iron roofed wooden building covering the machinery or the entire works could easily scarcely have escaped destruction. # c.23 # c.34.75

1901 02 19
Sir – the new Vicar of Gt Eversden belongs to the English Church Union and the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament. He mixes ceremonially water with wine, wears sacrificial vestments and burns candles in daylight. This is pure, unadulterated Romanism. These practices were declared illegal by the Queen's Courts – Secretary, Protestant Press Agency, London.

1901 02 20
An Epson woman told the court she had entered service as upper housemaid to the Vicar of Wicken and the agreement was that she should receive £24 a year. She was turned out of her situation. No reason was given for sending her away. She was paid no wages and told she would have none. The Vicar said she had declined to do what was asked, which was to fetch coal. His Honour said that even if there was impudence, there must be a month's notice given & gave judgement for the plaintiff.

1901 02 21
West Wratting parish council complained of the draughty state of the school, owing to the windows always being kept open, whereby the children are constantly taking cold. The Vicar replied that, as one of the school managers, he is ever ready to listen to parents, or even to the schoolchildren, but the parish council should mind its own business. The council is neither a father nor a mother, nor, he is sorry to think, even a school child, though this is a pity as it is still young & has yet much to learn. The council was quite at liberty to publish his letter with their own impertinent letter to which it is a reply.

1901 02 21
The report of the Cambridge Volunteer Fire Brigade shows the number of calls received during the year was 20. Nine were received at the central station through the street fire alarms, two through the National Telephone Exchange system, eight by ordinary messengers and one by police constables. Senior fireman Fuller, having served upwards of 17 years has been made an honorary member, with permission to retrain his uniform.

Skating fatality, p2

1901 02 21
Sir – it is reported that Mr Richard Parsons stated that I, the Rector of Elsworth, "refused to hold a memorial service on the occasion of the death of the Queen". Such a statement is not the fact. My people are confined almost solely to the labouring classes, and I therefore gave out that the memorial service would take place on Sunday morning. The service was well attended. Mr Parsons is not a member of the church, but of the Baptist Chapel here – H.K. Hutchinson, rector.

1901 02 23
The annual social evening of members of the Newmarket Jockey Club Owners' and Trainers' Fire Brigade was held at Brigade headquarters. The brigade was as efficient as any in the kingdom and there were plenty of men ready to enter. No men were so hampered at work by people who were without the necessary knowledge of how best to help as were the members of a Fire Brigade, and it was there that the police came in, for they assisted by holding in check such well-intentioned, but too-often unskilled helpers.

1901 02 26
During the past year two thirds of the water supply to Saffron Walden has been provided from the new bored well. The council has accepted tenders for the supply of a Worthington pump, rendering a breakdown nearly impossible and giving a plentiful supply of pure water, sufficient for their requirements for some years to come. The South Essex Water Board's plan to abstract water would entirely dry up some of the springs and streams feeding the river Cam and petitions had been presented opposing them.

1901 02 27
Mildenhall cellar fall, p3

1901 02 28

Mr J. Buckenham, surgeon, public vaccinator for Cambridge, said he visited a house in Cockburn Street and offered to vaccinate the child, but the mother declined to allow him to do so. Her husband had a brother who died through vaccination and she was strongly against it. She was fined 10s.

1901 02 28
An outbreak of fire broke out at the Kennels of the Puckeridge Hunt, situate at the residence of the Master at Brent Pelham Hall. The alarm was quickly given and the Fire Brigades at Bishop Stortford and Buntingford were telegraphed for. In the meantime men liberated some 16 couples of hounds and whelps, some had to be literally carried out of the burning buildings. Onlookers attempted to stay the fire with buckets of water but the building was totally destroyed.

Gamlingay Protestant crusade, p2 *

March 1901 CDN

1901 03 01
Chesterton Urban District Council met with the owner of the land hitherto used as allotment ground and others concerned in the development of the estate for building purposes and the making of the necessary roads. They had achieved one of the greatest possible improvements that had been effected in Chesterton in their time. The public must trust their representatives, with their fuller knowledge, to do what was right. The council approved the making of a path from Aylestone Road to Ferry Path, and the continuation and widening of Montague Road from Kimberley Road to Pretoria Road. One row of houses would have their back gardens towards Ferry Path. It was impossible to consider a 36-ft roadway because there would never be a carriage bridge as it was near Victoria Bridge, but it was suggested that a row of trees be planted to mitigate the unsightliness to the occupiers.

1901 03 04
The Cambridge University Volunteer Corps joined in a large gathering of troops at Hertford for a series of tactical manoeuvres in connection with the Metropolitan Volunteers, Public Schools and Hertford Corps. They paraded some 300 strong in the grounds of Downing College and marched to the station. The special idea was the seizure and holding of the bridges and ferries of the River Beane by an Eastern Force against all attacks from an enemy. After the manoeuvres the Cambridge Corps had a race to catch their trains home after one of the toughest days they have ever experienced.

1901 03 05
There is good reason for believing that before long St Andrew's Street Baptist Chapel, Cambridge, will be materially renovated. The Police Station has gone, the Spinning House has followed suit and now the alterations of the last of the three pre-historic buildings are in contemplation. The Chapel is not exactly a thing of beauty and the removal of the present front in favour of one of greater architectural beauty will be a welcome contribution to the aesthetics of Cambridge. A committee has under consideration whether the present chapel should be "mended or ended". At any rate the present front must go.

1901 03 06
The inhabitants of Over have shown that they consider the Vicar's action in dismissing the headmaster of the National School unwarrantable. Mr Handley has held the post for nearly 24 years and has endeared himself to the parents of the children by his kindness. A meeting was called to protest over the action of the Vicar, but the solicitor of the National Union of Teachers having talked the whole question over with him the rev gentleman agreed to withdraw his notice of dismissal and give him Mr Handley a good testimonial.

1901 03 06
Mr J. Kensit, described as a Wycliffe preacher of London, was to have appeared before the Caxton Magistrates to answer a summons "that at Gamlingay church he was unlawfully guilty of riotous, violent or insolent behaviour during the celebration of divine service and did molest and misuse the Rev William Crouch". Defendant did not appear and the case was adjourned.

1901 03 08
Miss W—of Regent Street, Cambridge was summoned for causing an obstruction by leaving some refuse tins in the street. P.C. Cole said he saw the tins outside her premises at 10.11 pm and they were still there at one o'clock the next morning. She said she placed the rubbish outside overnight because the scavenger came so early in the morning – 6.35am - before she was up. The Chief Constable said something had to be done to stop the practice of putting pails of rubbish out overnight. The defendant was cautioned and dismissed.

1901 03 11
A large field gathered with the Puckeridge hounds at the Red Lion, Reed. The recent heavy rains had converted the land into a perfect quagmire. A mangy fox was found in a field of green stuff near Therfield, and after a burst of a few minutes was pulled over. For the most part it was fitful hunting, the hounds several times being checked owing to the scent failing, although at times the pack ran extremely well and at great pace.

Reed hunt, p2 *

1901 03 12
Great regret will be expressed at the death of Sergeant Wm Edwards Bulman. At the end of 1899 he was a sturdy yeoman, robust in health, who volunteered to help his country through the South African trouble. On one occasion the order to retire had been given but he did not hear it and his men kept the Boers at bay until their last round of ammunition had been fired. Then they had to crawl away and regained the company in safety. He became a victim of enteric fever which caused his premature return and was without doubt the primary cause of death.

Kensit crusade, Gamlingay
Friends' Adult school, p3

1901 03 13
Presentations were made to the Rev Monsignor Scott, Rector of the Church of Our Lady and the English Martyrs, Cambridge, in recognition of his recent appointment by the Pope. The Bishop of Northampton presided over a large and influential attendance. The honour that had been conferred was that he was appointed domestic prelate of his Holiness, so certainly it was the action of the Holy Father himself who had deigned to look upon this poor diocese and kindly raised to a high degree the Vicar General. The conferring of the dignity of prelate did not imply he was leaving them. (Applause)

Failure Alex Wells, butcher, p3

1901 03 14
Mr Redfern, the managing director of the Cambridge New Theatre, having found difficulty in enforcing the regulation that no smoking should be permitted in the auditorium or public passage, applied to make certain structural alterations. They consist of the enlargement of the present smoking room on the first floor and provision of a new smoking room and bar on the ground floor. There were two bars already and the new one would appear in a remote corner

1901 03 18
Two new classrooms at the primitive Methodist Chapel, Sturton Street, Cambridge, were formally opened. The space available at the chapel for teaching the scholars on Sundays has long proved inadequate and the extra accommodation will furnish room for at least fifty persons and may be expected to meet the requirements for some time to come. The opportunity was also taken of entirely renovating the interior of the chapel itself, which has been furnished with new seats, and the ceiling covered with match-boarding. # c.83

Agricultural labour, p3 *

1901 03 19
Trinity College fire, p2

1901 03 20
A shocking accident occurred at the Panton Brewery, Cambridge, when one of the brewery employees lost his life. The man fell into the copper which contained a large quantity of boiling liquid and was frightfully scalded. He scrambled out as speedily as possible but even then it was seen that his injuries were so awful as to leave little hope of recovery. He died from shock the following morning.

1901 03 20
It is now nearly three years since the failure of Mr E.T. Hooley. In view of the magnificence with which he continues to enjoy life, inquiries have been made by a 'Daily Mail' representative. He has, besides his suite of rooms at Walsingham House, his two country estates, Papworth Hall and Risby Hall and pays wages to his servants, gardeners and grooms more than £6,000 annually. He has scores of gardeners at Papworth alone and is constantly adding to his estate. This princely bankrupt is not living at the rate of less than £15,000 yearly.

Horse injured in railway transit, p3 *

1901 03 21
At Caxton Petty Sessions the court was completely packed for the summons against John Kensit for brawling in Gamlingay church. He was away in Ireland assisting his father in a Protestant crusade and not able to be present in person. Defendant's solicitor objected to all the magistrates on the Bench on the grounds they were prejudiced and biased. They convicted Kensit on a charge of indecent behaviour and ordered him to pay a fine of £3

1901 03 22
A meeting to decide upon what steps should be taken should the five shillings rise in wages which the Newmarket stablemen are asking for not be given by the trainers was held in the Wagon and Horses Inn, Newmarket. Every candidate for admission was carefully scanned before he was allowed to enter and our reporter was only admitted on condition that the names of the speakers were not published. It was estimated that between 300 and 400 "lads" were present, and many more were unable to gain admission. The chairman said £1 a week was not a living wage in an expensive town. Even single men could not live properly. They should all stand out for their 25s.

1901 03 22 c
The Department of Trade reports that although snow and wet weather interfered in some districts with work on the land, such as ploughing, sowing and harrowing, generally speaking, agricultural labourers were well employed during February at such work as manure carting and spreading, hedging, ditching, threshing, wood cutting, road mending, looking after stock and assisting at lambing. In Huntingdonshire field work was generally carried on without much interruption. Agricultural labourers in Cambridgeshire were generally well employed and in the Royston Union a short supply is reported

1901 03 23
My commission was to go to the Guildhall and having duly observed both men and things to put down my impressions, without fear or favour. With feelings akin to awe I approached the Council precincts and entered the chamber where the elders of the town engaged in high debate. Comfortable and commodious it was evidently designed to render the labours of the councillors as pleasant as possible, with an air of quiet repose and dignity. I had hoped for some little show of stately ceremony, but shambling and shuffling were the order of the day and the meeting began as it ended in a spirit of haste and lack or orderliness.

1901 03 25
Cambridge may be justly congratulated on her County Councillors. The meeting was opened and conducted throughout in a very business-like & decorous manner. Good nature, a courtly yielding to others and a desire to be conciliatory seemed to be general. The language was decidedly moderate. Another noticeable feature is the large number of young men on the Council. Youthful spirits will go on working cheerfully instead of mournfully shaking their heads and eternally speaking of the "good old times

1901 03 25
The demand of the stablemen of Newmarket for an increase of 5s weekly upon their present wages was refused by the employers and between 500 and 600 of the men struck work. Only one trainer, Mr Robert Sherwood gave the 25s and in the evening a large body of employees of other stables marched to his house and cheered him again and again. All through Saturday police were drafted into the town. Pickets were sent out to various stables but at only one were men at work. Comparatively few horses were out at exercise, ridden by house lads and apprentices who are not affected by the strike.

1901 03 26
Clare constable, p2
Stablemen's strike, p3

1901 03 27
Cambridge police court is bright and lofty and admirably suited to its purpose. So strictly is order maintained that one might have heard the proverbial pin drop, although the crowd of onlookers was much larger than usual and drawn from the noisy section of the town. The case was one of 'hooliganism', the prosecutor having been assaulted to such an extent that "the blood flowed from his ears and nose and mouth like steam from an engine".

1901 03 28
Girton water supply, p3 *

1901 03 30
CDN presentation, p2
Prime bankruptcy, Barrington, p3

April 1901 CDN

1901 04 01
The Newmarket stable employees who are on strike held another meeting at the Waggon and Horses Inn at which 3-400 were present. A well-known trainer had suggested giving single lads 20s per week and married men 20s with the addition of 1s for each child, until a maximum of 25s was reached. The suggestion was absurd, they would accept nothing less than 25s unconditionally. Apprentices only received from 2s.6d. to 5s a week and their board and lodgings. Training was not a bad game. Look at the number of servants trainers had in their houses, the cigars they smoked, the wines they drank, and the way they lived generally.

Census, p3 *

1901 04 02
On Sunday morning the stable employees on strike at Newmarket met at the Jubilee Tower. There were just over 600 present. In a very orderly manner they divided into four sections and marched to churches. A more orderly or better-behaved procession was never seen in Newmarket and the officiating ministers expressed themselves very pleased with the behaviour of the men and youths and their attentive demeanour. After the services they reformed and marched to the Jubilee Tower, where they dismissed.

Elsworth death, p3

1901 04 02 c
Newmarket trainers held at meeting at the Rutland Arms Hotel, to consider the state of affairs. Some were strongly in favour of acceding to the men's requests but after an hour and a half's consultation a resolution was passed refusing to meet a deputation from the stablemen. The lads are incensed by the refusal of the trainers to discuss matters and unanimously determined to continue the strike until the wage demanded is conceded.

1901 04 03
The people of Cambridge were considerably astonished by the spectacle of a singular procession threading its way along the streets from the direction of the station. A band, a lamp borne aloft on a pole, a banner, and, following after, two or three carriages constituted an enigmatical state of things to nearly all except the Cambridge postmen and Cambridge Salvationists. These latter were welcoming from South Africa a soldier who is a member of the local Salvation Army and a postman – Lance Corporal J.W. Weeks.

Ely scarlet fever, p3

1901 04 04
Newmarket strike collapses

1901 04 06
The sudden conclusion of the strike of stablemen at Newmarket was undoubtedly due to the panic which seized a few of the strikers subsequent to the meeting of Tuesday. The consequence is that the trainers have been able to dictate their own terms, instead of having terms dictated to them. Many will give their employees £1.2s (£1.10) but others intend to give only £1. Probably 100 of the strikers have not been re-employed. The members of the strikers' committee have not been reinstated, undoubtedly due to a feeling among certain trainers that they were responsible for the strike.

1901 04 06
The special manoeuvres for cycling troops began on Good Friday. Frequent bright sunshine made the day a pleasant one for the riders traversing the Essex roads and it is to be regretted that the numbers participating have not proved so large as anticipated. The Home District Force's expected thousand cyclists have diminished by quite three hundred. The great purposes is to learn whether it is possible to employ with advantage cyclist troops in large bodies for the defence of the country, using them against the flanks and rear of an advancing enemy. The general idea is that an enemy landed at Aldeburgh has send forth a cycling forced reconnoitring towards London; while the Home Army has sent out a similar force towards the invaders to keep them in check whilst the ordinary troops are taking up their positions as a defending line. # c.45.4

Good Friday, p3

1901 04 06 c
"Here's to You" at the New Theatre, Cambridge, is a jolly fine revue which enables Miss Florrie Forde, the famous chorus singer to pay a return visit with some new work. Large audiences found it full of popular dance songs, clever skits and humour in abundance. Old memories were recalled in "She's a Lassie from Lancashire", "Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag" and "The Old Bull and Bush". Some excellent fun is provided by Mr Chesney Allen, Mr Bud Flanagan and Mr Roy Holgate. Mr Flanagan is an exceedingly capable comedian with a number of fresh ideas in the way of laughter making.

1901 04 08

Sir – In two hours on Saturday evening, with the aid of the efficient staff at the Central Library, two hundred books were exchanged – one every twenty-four seconds; taking back, making returns, finding fresh books and entering same in register and books. All this was done with a politeness and steadiness of deportment most commendable, Mr Pink jun. calling out in clear tones the numbers returned and those taken in place of them and his assistant staff, especially Mr Fenton proved themselves to be the right men in the right place. - One of the Crowd

Cyclists' manoeuvres, p3

1901 04 09
The circus in Auckland Road, Cambridge, reopened on Eastern Monday, Mr G.S. King having become the sole lessee for a year. Leonie Clarke's cats are the prime attraction. Cats of all sizes and colour go through a performance the like of which has never previously been seen in Cambridge. Rope and wire-walking and balancing are all done with consummate care and a fine specimen of the feline tribe descends from the top of the building by means of a parachute. Rats and mice feature largely in the performance. The animals do everything but talk. # c.76.2

1901 04 09
The atmospheric conditions in Cambridge on Easter Monday were on the whole delightful and the people made the most of the opportunities for outdoor amusement and recreation. There was an increase of traffic on the Great Eastern Railway. Excursions were run to Hunstanton, 50 persons leaving, and 70 went to Yarmouth, 20 to Cromer, 20 to Lowestoft and 150 to London by excursions that day. Another excursion brought 362 persons from London to Cambridge.

Cycling manoeuvres p4 & 10th p2

1901 04 10
The Baptist denomination at Histon celebrated the foundation stone laying of the new Sunday School. The old school building has for some time ceased to furnish adequate accommodation for the increasing number of scholars. The classrooms will accommodate about 500 scholars; it will be erected adjoining the chapel and the two buildings will be in architectural conformity. The estimated cost if £2,200 and of this £1,400 has already been promised by Messrs Chivers and Sons.

St Ives accident, p3

1901 04 11
Homecoming of Col McCalmont, MP, p3

1901 04 12
Kensit appeal, p3 & 13th p3

1901 04 13
Sir – the ill-advised strike of stablemen at Newmarket has resulted most deplorably for all who took part in it, and the consequences unfortunately, have told heavily on many who were persuaded against their better judgement into having anything to do with it. Myself and many other poor married men were almost intimidated into striking. On behalf of them, and the wives and children dependent on us, let me appeal to the merciful consideration of trainers. Such men ought to have first claim on their clemency when they re-engage stablemen for employment. As one of the strikers I dare not make my name public – Poor Married Stableman

1901 04 15
Haverhill cattle, p3

1901 04 16

The entertainment given by the Cambridge Pierrots attracted a fairly large audience and despite the fact they have now been before the public a considerable time their performances are always fresh, so extensive is their repertoire. There were songs for soprano & contralto, humorous and sentimental numbers, choruses and dances so as to avoid any suspicion of monotony. Miss L. Unwin gained a well-deserved encore for the song "Oh! Ebeneezer", sung with fine expression.

1901 04 17
A disastrous fire occurred at Soham vicarage. It is really in two parts, the old portion, used by the servants, being connected by a passage with the new wing in which the Rev J.C. Rust and his children were sleeping. The seat of the fire was in the old portion in a room used by the sons of the vicar as a carpenter's shop. The cook and the housemaid were awakened by stifling smoke and clad only in their night attire, climbed on the roof. Practically the whole of the old wing was gutted, the furniture as wells as the belongings of the servants being destroyed.

1901 04 18
Cambridge Council reported that in 1900 a meeting had been held with Emmanuel College as to the terms of exchange of the site of Emmanuel Street for a piece of ground to form a new street from St Andrews Street to Drummer Street. The existing street was the chief means of access to the centre of the town and carried a very considerable proportion of traffic with 1,030 cyclists on Saturday. The new road would be nearly 100 feet shorter and wider. Mr Campkin suggested the advantage would rest largely with the College.

1901 04 19
Varsity types by F. Rutter – Snob #
Kensit & Bishop of London, p4

1901 04 20
Varsity man by I. Allen, p3 #

1901 04 22
The village of Haddenham was the scene of a serious fire. Several persons observed a small flame issuing from the roof of a cottage – one of a block of three situated near Station Road. The flames spread with great rapidity and the village fire engine, of primitive character, being quite unable to cope, was wisely directed to the saving of adjoining property. The Ely Fire Brigade was summoned, but stopped before they left the city, the destruction of the cottages being complete.

Christ Church services, p2
Baldock nuisance, p3 *
Barton Mills fire, p3 *

1901 04 24
Messrs Nichols & Sons, grocers of Cambridge sued for the sum of £5 2s. for groceries – cherry jam and Scotch whisky, tinned herrings, boxes of biscuits and one frisk - supplied to an undergraduate. They contended that an undergraduate, under age, sent to Cambridge by his father had the latter's authority to procure all reasonable necessities and a tradesman had a right to expect that all reasonable debts would be made. Defendant said his son was told he was not to run into debt and had ample means – about £200 a year.

1901 04 26
Number two of Mr Frank Rutter's series of "Varsity Types" sketches is entitled 'The Economist'. The average undergraduate's idea of economy is about the last which would occur to any sane business man of the world & merely consists in owing instead of paying. This is indeed a deplorable state of affairs which many reflect on with sorrow – but if a tradesman deliberately sets himself to foster the credit system he must not be surprised if those who have yielded to his wiles occasionally land him with bad debts.

1901 04 26
The first Nonconformist building ever erected in Swaffham Bulbeck –a Free Church hall – was opened. For the best part of 50 years services have been held casually in various dwelling houses and clubrooms by laymen but there had been no central meeting place. The frame was part of the old Anatomical Schools, and was purchased for £50. Mr Stevens removed the building from Cambridge to its present site.

1901 04 26
The new church of St Mark, Newnham, built to supersede the structure that had done duty for so many years was consecrated by the Bishop of Ely. The Master of Corpus said that in the new church they had visible proof of the continuity of the Church of God and that the gates of hell should not prevail against them; it was a visible link in a long chain of God's claim on the adoration and service of mankind. # c.83

1901 04 27
An inquiry was held into the complaint that Swavesey R.D.C. had not properly maintained Holywell Ferry road as a bridle path and footway. As far back as 1840 it was used for pack horses and other traffic, and after that light trade carts went along. They had an undisputed right along this road. Now a doctor had said it was a considerable risk to his trap, and even his neck, that he drove down the road. The District Council formally took over the road in 1896

1901 04 30
Suicide Dr Perkins, Downing College, p3

May 1901 CDN

1901 05 01
"Ping-Pong was invented by Mr James Gibb, an old Cambridge athlete now living at Croydon. It was started one evening with champagne corks cut as nearly circular as possible, and the lids of cigar-boxes for battledores. Then he tried Indiarubber balls covered with cigarette paper to make them look very white but he was not satisfied and sent to America to have some celluloid balls made. Mr Gibb was one of the best all-round athletes of his day. The game he invented continues to rage virulently in society.

1901 05 02
The annual meeting of the Cambridge branch of the R.S.P.C.A. heard that all the local secretaries were ladies - they were usually more tender-hearted than men. Newmarket had no subscribers; there were a lot of wealthy people there, and they were generally very generous. The speaker referred to the common habit of stopping a tram a few yards before it would be stopped in the ordinary course, and said much unnecessary work was thus given to the horses. People who would be horrified at the idea of cruelty do this in order to save themselves walking a few yards.

George Grossmith and Cambridge, p2

1901 05 03
Mr Arthur Rutter, head of the Cambridge Estate Agency, is to be complimented. Registers of landed estates etc. are common enough but we believe the illustrated list he has just issued is the first of its kind. Preceding the thirty pages of "To be let or sold" are four pages, each containing five pictures of residences which he wishes to dispose of. The illustrations are excellently printed on art paper and the whole production is a credit to the agency. # c.06

1901 05 03
The new British Schools in Auckland Road, Cambridge were formally opened. The three departments – boys, girls and infants – are handsomely accommodated. Mr Alexander Peckover said education was different now from what it was when he was a lad. Then it was a common thing for a mistress of the house to have to make up the washing list – (laughter) – because the housemaid could not do so. He was a banker and a good many of their clients could not even sign their own names. # c.36.5

1901 05 03
A large gathering of Post Office employees bade farewell to three of their number who have recently received appointments as telegraphists in South Africa. They might be sent to any part of an unsettled country and it was though an appropriate token of goodwill would be a weapon of self-defence. Accordingly three revolvers were purchased and presented to H. Emmerson, H. Winny and E.W. Gee. They hoped the only use they would have of them would be to hang them over the mantelpiece and look at them while they smoked.

1901 05 06
Today Cambridge formally recognises and honours the loyalty of her sons who have been at the war in South Africa. The arrival of the Volunteers at Cambridge Station was very quiet and orderly. There were no decorations but a barrier had been drawn across the platform & as time wore on the railway officials became more stringent as to whom they allowed within. There was excitement as a train was seen slowing steaming in with khaki-coloured arms and bronzed faces thrust out of the windows and in another minute the men were standing on the platform, after fifteen months' experience of war and travelling. # c.45.4

1901 05 07
Sanguine people imagined that the rejoicing for the return of the South African Volunteers would pass off quietly. A parental Corporation had taken the wise precaution to secure materials for a fine bonfire on Midsummer Common to prevent the destruction of property. This time it was a plan doomed to partial failure. The fire was comparatively short-lived and undergraduates found a wealth of additional fuel in King Street where a wooden hoarding was dragged off to the Common and triumphantly flung upon the bonfire. Policemen stood guard over the bandstand on Christ's Pieces. # c.36.93

1901 05 08
Willingham was the scene of a destructive fire. In High Street, near the church, was a substantial two-storeyed house and a shop occupied by Mr F.C. Watson who carried on the business of a grocer and provision merchant. These premises are now a complete ruin, burnt out as completely as any building could be. In place of the neat house and shop are piles of blackened and scorched debris.

1901 05 09
The late Mr William Weston was desirous of benefiting the poor of Fulbourn, but died before his plans were complete. His widow is having ten or twelve cottages in good repair conveyed to the rector and churchwardens as trustees for an ecclesiastical charity. It is needless to add that the poor people are most thankful for this kindness.

1901 05 09
The Mayor of Cambridge called a meeting to consider a memorial to Queen Victoria. The large hall of the Guildhall was prepared but there were scarcely a dozen people present and as they appeared lost in the hall, a move was made to the Aldermen's Parlour. The Mayor said it was a very great disappointment to him; he had written letters, placed advertisements and issued handbills. The memory of her Majesty would remain with all of her subjects but they wished for a visible memorial by which future generations might see how deeply Queen Victorian reigned in the lives and affections of her subjects.

Backache kidney pills, p4

1901 05 10
Butchers association, p2

Home to a wanderer, p3

1901 05 13
While playing about on East Road, Cambridge, a two-year-old child was knocked down by a tram horse and run over by the vehicles, sustaining such injuries that she succumbed shortly after. The tram driver said that when he first saw the child she was about a yard from his tram. He applied his brake immediately but it was impossible to stop the heavy car before reaching her. The wheel went over her thigh and she was fearfully mangled about her limbs and lower body

1901 05 13
By the sudden death of Dr John Perkins, senior fellow of Downing College, the University has lost one of its most brilliant, popular and eccentric dons and scholars. Lord Randolph Churchill used to declare that "Johnny knew more about Homer, humbugs and hunting than any man up at the 'Varsity". He was very tolerant of the little sins and escapades of all young men

1901 05 14
Prof Crocker's horses, p3

1901 05 15
Newmarket court – hare, p4

1901 05 16
Sale building land, p3

1901 05 16
A St Ives Inland Revenue officer was summoned for wilfully damaging a petition to the House of Commons against any alteration of the Coronation Oath. Mr Odams said he had produced the petition and allowed defendant to look at it. After doing so he refused to return it. The paper was returned sometime after with many erasures and marks thereon. George Smith, tailor, said his name was on the petition. Defendant came to him and tried to frighten him out of his signature. He was not surprised that some had taken off their names, as defendant was in such a way that it would frighten anyone

1901 05 16
Cambridge Fire Brigade Committee received a letter from the clerk to Trumpington Parish Council asking whether and on what terms the services of the brigade could be engaged in case of fire. Grantchester Parish Council accepted terms for the attendance of the brigade in that parish on condition that the charge for the number of men sent should be limited to the number required. # c.34.75

1900 05 17
Golf, p3 *

1901 05 20
The return of Privates M. Harper of Therfield and W. Sell of Royston from South Africa was the occasion of much enthusiasm. They were hardly given time to alight from the train ere they were seized and, headed by the Royston Military Band, carried shoulder high to the Armoury amid deafening rounds of cheering and shouting by the large concourse of spectators who had assembled to greet them. Private Harper's friends met him with a conveyance and very soon he boarded the trap and drove away amidst continuous cheering.

Smells, Market Hill, p2

1901 05 21
Sir – As a resident of Bateman Street, Cambridge, permit me to protest against the closing of the end adjoining Hills Road and converting it into a workman's yard. For more than a week we have had to put up with hearing the men at work as early as six in the morning. One recognises that the work of preparing the foundation of Hills Road must be done somewhere but it would not require a genius of road-making to arrange that only one half of the street should be blocked at one time – M.A.

Tramps, lady cyclists, p2 *
Toft scholastic dispute, p3

1901 05 22
Parishioners of Toft and Caldecote were present at a meeting protesting against the dismissal of Miss Veall, the schoolmistress. In February the rector gave out Church Catechism books to the children and asked them to learn a certain portion as a home-lesson. Three of the books were returned by the parents who said they did not wish their children to learn it. Miss Veall returned the books to the Rector and told him what they had said. He accused her of inviting the parents not to learn the Catechism and the following day she received notice. Parents proposed starting a school in the Primitive Methodist Chapel

Paper in tatters
Angling society
Norman Bradley advert

1901 05 22 c
Sir – I learn with surprise that the starting of the proposed Cyclist Volunteer Company at Cambridge is "hung up" and may be abandoned owing to an insufficient number of names having been sent in. I hope we shall be able to prevent such a conspicuous admission of the want of patriotism on the part of Cambridge cyclists. We ought not to lag behind Bury St Edmunds where they are organising a company. Ten more names are wanted to make up the 75 required. – A Would-Be Cyclist Volunteer

1901 05 23
Barrington parish clerk reported that at the recent parish council election the stock owners obtained a majority on the council, only two of the old members being re-elected. He asked whether the fact of their pasturing their horses and stock on the green disqualifies them from serving, as their intention is to evade all the laws relating to the village green. The Enclosure Award states that the common shall be enjoyed by occupiers of cottages who are not owners of land within the parish. Any others shall forfeit 5s. (25p) for every horse, ass or mule, 3s (15p) for every head of neat cattle, 1s (5p) for every sheep or swine and 2d (1p) for every goose. Councillors must not manage the green for their own personal interests. There were 15 horses, besides other stock on the green.

1901 05 23 c
Guidice Gelsomnio, an Italian organ-grinder was summonsed for playing a musical instrument in Jesus Lane, Cambridge; as the defendant did not understand English an interpreter named Antonio Arpino was engaged. The occupier of Little Trinity, Mr James Herbert Taylor, said he asked him to desist playing within 100 yards of his house. Defendant gave up playing and went away. He was playing in Bridge Street in the evening. P.C. Evans measured the distance to be 75 yards. Defendant said he did not know how many yards it was from one house to another. He was fined 2s.6d.

1901 05 23 c
Messrs Bidwell, auctioneers, conducted a very successful sale of property in Wheeler Street and Parsons Court, Cambridge. Two shops with a dwelling house, being No.11 Peas Hill, sold for £2,050. Nos.1 & 2 Wheeler Street comprising a cabinet-makers shop, with dwelling house, and a harness maker's shop brought in £1,800 while a private house in Parsons Court was knocked down for £750

1901 05 28
Bank holiday, p2
Haverhill old folks rest. P4

1901 05 29
Cambridge was visited by a thunderstorm. The temperature of the air reached 83 degrees in the shade and was at its most oppressive about mid-day when indications of an approaching storm were observed but the flashes were never very vivid. Thick black clouds rolled up; peals of thunder were heard and lightning was visible in the town. A downpour of rain occurred for a short time but altogether a very meagre quantity sprinkled the parched ground.

1901 05 29
During one of the heaviest storms ever known at Bottisham a barn in the occupation of Mr C. Potter, general dealer, was struck by lightning and owing to the inflammable nature of the materials of which it was built, was in flames in an instant. There were in the barn a pony, two sows, seven other pigs, a cart and some dipping tackle; all these were destroyed. During the storm rain fell in torrents, which will be beneficial to the parched crops.

1901 05 31
Never has a battle been fought with more determination that that engaging the attention of the electorate in the Saffron Walden Division. That both parties were alive to a full day's work was evidenced by the number of vehicles of every description which were to be seen in the streets at an early hour. Among the Liberal conveyances were many from the north of England. Within the first hour 140 electors had recorded their votes. Polling clerks were busy between one and two when a number of mechanics "turned in".

June 1901 CDN

1901 06 03
"Knackeries", are places where diseased and other horses and cows are slaughtered. The common instrument used is the "pole-axe" which requires a large amount of practice to despatch an animal properly. Others resort to the gun, shot cartridges being preferable to bullets. The flesh is cut off the bones, boiled and sent to London for cats' meat, the fat is boiled down and sold for greasing carts and the bones ground into manure. Through all this work of killing, bleeding etc the sub-soil becomes saturated with the fluids which soon decompose and create a horrible stench

1901 06 04
Caxton pub, p3

1901 06 05
Sir – There is now in course of erection a new knackery in Coldham's Lane, Cambridge where some 300 horses can be slaughtered daily with improved appliances for their expeditious slaughter at a minimum amount of pain. To throw the expense upon the ratepayers of the erection of a public knackery, whereby individual enterprise is thwarted, should not be encouraged. The fact that there is already a thoroughly efficient slaughterhouse hardly warrants the expense of a new one being thrown upon the ratepayers – "Vigilant"

1901 06 05
A goodly number of citizens assembled at the presentation to the Ely Volunteers in recognition of their service in South Africa. A good English lever watch and a sum of money was presented to Chaplain Crookham, Corp Wilkinson, Trooper W. Long and Privates Barnard, Chapman, Richardson & Cullum. There were three more who they hoped would be coming home some day, viz Serg Rickwood & Troopers Ferris and Head. Their gifts would be reserved for them. These young men of the Empire had sprang spontaneously forward to offer their services & it was wonderful to see men occupied mostly in sedentary pursuits coming to the front with all the old spirit of their forefathers.

1901 06 07
Ice house damaged by fire, p4

1901 06 07 c
In court Mr E.T. Hooley said that at one time the Papworth Estate was his property. At the time of his "misfortunes" it was bought by friends of his for his wife for £65,000. The amount of his indebtedness at his bankruptcy was £1,087,000 which was reduced by the courts to under £300,000; his creditors had 2s. in the £. He now lived at Papworth in the same state & affluence as he did before. He had plans to buy the Caxton Gibbet public house and rebuilt it on the other side of the road on his own property which would be a distinct improvement

1901 06 10
After the rowing races at Ditton Corner & when the crush of small boats was at its height, a steam launch crowded with people endeavoured to force its way through the block of boats. Frantic endeavours were made to get out of its way but the launch crashed into a boat which contained two men, who were thrown into the river. Shouts from bystanders eventually brought the launch to a standstill but no effort was made to render any assistance. What would have been the results had the boat contained ladies. All launches should have a look-out man on the bow as it is impossible to see from the stern what is happening in front. # c.38 : rowing # c.26.3

1901 06 10
Newmarket's M.P., Col. H. McCalmont was welcomed home after 18 month's absence on active service in South Africa. In Upper Station Road hung a motto 51 feet in length with the words "Welcome Home". Crowds of people lined the side-walks and congregated in the Station Yard. The town band and engine of the Fire Brigade were drawn up near the platform. On the day of the election Mr C.D. Rose, his opponent and he were both in Bloemfontein and might have fought it out there. Mrs McCalmont had fought the battle and won him the election

1901 06 11
There has been no abatement in the interest displayed in this year's Mathematical tripos at Cambridge University. There were 73 male candidates and of these no fewer than 27 are directly interested in sport. Women started well with one of their number taking a high place in part one while in part two Miss Hudson of Newnham equalled the highest achievement of any man

1901 06 11
Between 400 and 500 guests were present at the ball of the First and Third Trinity Boat Club held in the Cambridge Guildhall. Supper was served in the Corn Exchange by Mr W.E. Wood of Trinity Kitchen, who hit upon the happy idea of purchasing all the exhibition roses in the Horticultural Society's show with which to decorate the supper tables. Stanislaus Wurm's orchestra provided the music.

1901 06 12
On the occasion of the annual ball the precincts of picturesque Clare College were lavishly illuminated and decorated. The centre path of the court was covered in and carpeted; palms were placed in groups on the lawn and the whole court made brilliant with hundreds of fairy lamps and Chinese lanterns. Rows of fairy lamps along the river side gave the garden a particularly beautiful appearance. Dancing took place in the hall and the combination room. There were 21 dances on the programme and three supper dances. Supper was set in the reading room

1901 06 13
Yarmouth Guardians received a report on the dissection of paupers' bodies. They had been sent to Cambridge by officials of the workhouse since 1881. Professor Macalister sent a cheque for £6 14s 6d for each body but only £5 10s 0d was really incurred for expenses. The railway charge for the carriage of a body was £4 6s.0d but the Master's clerk said it was £4 9s.0d and that he put the other 3s. in the poor box. £1 was paid for a coffin but he received 1s. from the undertaker. All the clerk had to do was to see the body was screwed down, go to the railway station and pay the charge. He said he gave the porters sixpence each but inquiry proved they only received a pint of beer. # c.21.2

Banks & early closing, p3

1901 06 14
Volunteers' reception, p3

1901 06 15
Messrs Sutton and Phillips, brewers' chemists of Stowmarket claimed £10 3s.6d. from the Rodney Brewery, Cambridge. They make Burton spring liquor and ask for a sample of the customer's brewing water which they analyse and make up a mixture to make it as near as Burton water as possible. If they did not subsequently receive an order they were to be paid for the analysis. Mr Swan for the brewery said they had never used the liquor and did not like trying those sorts of things. When he said the traveller could have a sample of water he had no idea he was to be charged with the analysis of it.

1901 06 18
A large number witnessed the quaint custom of the presentation of the wooden spoon to the last man in the University Mathematical Tripos. This year two candidates were bracketed at the bottom of the list and both gentlemen received large spoons emblazoned and trimmed with their college colours. The spoons were lowered down to their owners from the gallery in the Senate House amid much interest. Mess Crisp & Co of King's Parade, Cambridge, again supplied the spoons, which were artistically painted and decorated. Mr D. Buchanan, who comes from South Africa, has had an additional spoon presented to him by his South African friends, with the arms and coloured ribbons of Cape Colony. # c.39

1901 06 19
Godmanchester town council are making a claim against Mrs Hooley for special damage to their roads caused by the use of traction engines with heavy waggons attached between Godmanchester station and Papworth. Mr Hooley said he had spent £15,000 in building materials for his place at Papworth but nothing had been carted which could be considered extraordinary traffic. He would not pay a penny piece until he was made to

St Andrew's Street subsidence, p2
Newmarket White Lion bankruptcy, p3

1901 06 20
Chesterton R.D.C. heard that Harlton was not badly supplied with water but a few houses were situated on the gault and could not obtain a supply except from the green sand at a considerable depth, from the spring at Bulter's Spinney which would have to be raised by some motor or from the church from which the greater part of the village is supplied. They should search for a disused well indicated as existing on Monk's land in the angle near Yew Tree Gate and make experimental boring at three places.

Hyde Park Corner urinal, p3

1901 06 21
Histon Manor garden party, p2

1901 06 22
Thomas R. of Cave's Yard, Old Chesterton was charged with having stolen a drake. Detective Marsh said he saw the prisoner with a sack on his back. He opened it and found a large brown and white drake which Thomas said he had bought yesterday from a man named Pope of Upware for 2s.6d. (12p). The bird was quite warm – prisoner replied it had been in his house by a blazing fire all day. Then he said: "I knocked it over down the fen against the sewage farm. It came out of a ditch and I gave it a crump. I ain't going to starve as long as there is anything about. You can do what you like: hang me if you like". He was remanded for a week.

1901 06 22
Midsummer Fair, the delight of children and the pleasure of not a few adults was formally opened. On reaching an open space councillors in their carriages commenced throwing the coppers. A spirit of mischief seemed to be present in the first carriage for the coins fell thickest in close proximity to the crockery-ware stalls, one or two even finding a resting place amongst plates. The children pushed and hustled with such energy that a few of the articles were damaged, much to the disgust of the proprietor # c.27.31

1901 06 24
Midsummer Horse Fair, p3

1901 06 25
Sir George Gabriel Stokes, the distinguished mathematician, and the Master of Pembroke met with a carriage accident from which they fortunately escaped without serious injury. The horse by some means got one if its hind legs over the trace, became frightened and dashed across the road. The wheels came into violent contact with the pathway and the carriage was overturned, but fortunately before this had taken place both occupants had managed to get out.

Gamblers caught, p3

1901 06 26
The other day on a road outside Cambridge I met the Vice Chancellor of the University. Mr Chawner was not walking – he was not driving – he was riding a bicycle. I was not surprised. Were the Chancellor himself to take to bicycle riding, or the Bishop of Ely, there would be no comment to be made, except, perhaps on their style of riding. I would remark that on a bicycle the Vice-Chancellor carries himself with the grace and dignity becoming his office.

1901 06 26
The success of the Ely branch of the Railway Mission must give the promoters the greatest satisfaction. Time was when the meetings were held in the waiting-room at Ely station, afterwards the gatherings took place in a small building in Barton Square, till it was found desirably to remove to the Liberal Hall pending the erection of a new mission in Silver Street. Gypsy Smith led the way at the laying of the foundation stone, accompanying on the violin the singing of the hymn “Onward, Christian Soldiers”.

1901 06 27
Newmarket fever hospital, shopkeepers & pavement, p4

1901 06 29
Cambridge people are fond of Hunstanton; the climate is bracing and the air of exceptional purity and dryness, invigorating and health-giving. The resort is little short of a paradise for children. As Hunstanton develops, hotel accommodation must be in great demand and the Glebe Hotel has been erected. It is furnished after Oriental fashion with divans and chairs, studded with palms and ferns and a drawing room containing a Ronish piano. This promising enterprise has been started by Mr C. Ernest Gray, manager of Trinity Hall kitchen and the cuisine is excellent.

July 1901 CDN

1901 07 01
Histon’s three-day feast opened in damp and unsettled weather. On feast Sunday there was the usual crowd of people parading the streets but it was not until the Monday that the feast proper began in real earnest. Hundreds braved the weather and took part in all the “fun of the fair”. Young men and maidens, old men and their wives, rode on Messrs Thurston’s every popular “steam” ostriches to the accompaniment of a full-throated steam organ playing all the latest popular airs. They hurled wooden balls at coconuts and entered into the light-hearted amusement until quite a late hour of the night.

Melbourn cricket, p2

1901 07 04
The excavation of the trenches in which the new sewers are to be laid along the Exeter Road, Newmarket, have reached about half way up the steep part leading to Exning Road. The men were working from eight to ten feet deep when without any warning a large mass of earth from one of the sides broke away and buried some of them. Enquires showed two men were missing, one being a labourer from Bottisham and the other a stranger called "Darky". Up to the time of writing one body has been found, but the other had not been recovered. Inquest 5th p3

1901 07 04
Sir – may I ask when the bus company intend to provide a large 'bus for the Huntingdon Road route in Cambridge? The small bus this hot weather is nearly suffocating. We have increased fares with less comfort. A top bus would bring in more revenue and residents could leave and return to their homes in comfort instead of going through a sardine process. If the bus company cannot really afford to put a large bus on the route perhaps some enterprising individual will run a motor car to Huntingdon Road. I'm sure there would be a good return for the investment – Resident

1901 07 04
Cambridge Guardians agreed that a child who had expressed a wish to learn the trade of a carpenter should be boarded out for a year. If he was given a good trade there was very small likelihood he would come to the House again; if they made him an agricultural labourer he would probably be on the books again in later life. Mr Cook opposed, remarking it was likely to be an incentive to unscrupulous parents to purposely desert their children. Some Guardians seemed to think that because a boy was born in the gutter he should be kept there. (Uproar)

Chesterton allotment, p3

1901 07 05
Rev Latimer Neville, the esteemed Master of Magdalene College, celebrated his jubilee as rector of Heydon. The day was marked by a half-holiday for the children of the day schools and the working classes of both Heydon and Lt Chishill and right pleased must the rector have been to welcome not only Church people but Nonconformists to the Rectory grounds. At a service in the afternoon the interior of the sacred edifice was filled to the utmost capacity after which the parishioners, headed by the Saffron Walden Brass Band marched to the Rectory where there was a presentation.

1901 07 06
Recent rains have improved the fishing waters and with the reed cutting going on apace in the open waters anglers are having a better time all round. Serious complaints have been made as to the number of dead fish between Cambridge and Bottisham. That there is some poisonous matter in the river there can be no doubt. The popular opinion is that the overflow from the sewage pumping station has something to do with the slaughter of the finny tribe

1901 07 06
A disgraceful act marked the battalion drill of the Cambridge Volunteers. As they proceeding up Silver Street water was thrown from a window of Queens' College and men were drenched. They immediately called the attention of Quartermaster-Sergt Rumbolt to the fact and he was the target for a second charge of water. The battalion was called to a halt. After waiting several minutes the men were told the matter was left in the hands of the Dean of the college

Stapleford pub case, p3

1901 07 08

The regrettable incident of the Cambridge Volunteers being drenched with water has caused a great deal of comment. The Dean of Queens' College complains the incident has been very much exaggerated, since it is impossible for four men to have been drenched with the contents of one syphon of soda water, which was directed out of a college window by two visitors. "If the townspeople can get hold of the two men, I shall be as pleased as anybody to see them get a good squirting", he said.

1901 07 08
About 100 employees of Messrs Rattee and Kett spent a most enjoyable day at the Crystal Palace, seeing the Naval and Military Exhibition being held there. The great feature was the stupendous Military Band Concert. The employees of Messrs Redding & Son spent an enjoyable day at Brighton; a saloon carriage was attached to the Great Northern Railway train which left Cambridge at 4.45 am. Messrs Scales and Robins employees enjoyed a combined sea and rail trip and journeyed from Lowestoft to Yarmouth by steamer

1901 07 09
Newmarket drainage worker's funeral, p3

1901 07 10
A rather peculiar accident occurred in Lynn Road, Ely. A load of hay, weighing about a ton, was being carted to the Ely railway station by a young man, Sidney Jugg. The girth band under the horse suddenly broke and the weight of the hay immediately tipped the cart up and lifted the horse bodily into the air. Jugg was thrown between the shafts but escaped with a bruised leg. Meanwhile the horse was hanging in its perilous position, with its hind legs touching the ground but in its struggle managed to break loose and free itself. There was a terrific crash when the cart tipped up, large trusses of hay were strewn all over the road, and both shafts supports were badly cracked.

1901 07 10
The discovery of a complete outfit of women's clothing in a hedge on a lonely road at Meldreth remains enshrouded in mystery. A motor car, driven by a man who was alone, was seen to stop near the spot where the clothes were found. The car is a four-seater with a left-hand drive – a peculiarity of those of American manufacture. A woman of about 50 and of stout build was seen to alight from a bus at Orwell and noticed wandering aimlessly from one side of the road to the other. There are several deep pits full of water not far from the spot; these are to be dragged by the police.

1901 07 11
St Ives council heard the condition of the water was unsatisfactory. There was a sufficient supply in the pipes but it was thick and highly discoloured, so much so that consumers preferred not to use it. The Company was under obligation to supply pure, wholesome water, unless prevented by frost. They could proceed to arbitration as to whether the quality was unsatisfactory, and these would be expensive proceedings

Soham foal show, p3

1901 07 12
An 78 year-old man was summonsed for assaulting Hephzibah D. He had taken her a rose which she'd accepted & said: "If I give a woman a rose, I expect a kiss". He had said so to scores of women. (Laughter). She did not wish to kiss him, whereupon he said: "I don't want to kiss you; so it's of no consequence". He never laid a hand on her; he did not see her frothing at the mouth. Did they believe with an able-bodied young woman of under 30 years and a tottering old man that anything took place. No jury in England would convict. However he was fined 10s. # Stretham

1901 07 12
Great Yarmouth board of Guardians revived the question of paupers' bodies being sent to Cambridge Anatomical School for dissection. Every friendless person who died in the workhouse should be asked before death if he had any objection to his body being sent away for dissection. Mr Saul thought that was a gruesome and unseemly idea. Dissection was perfectly legal and right; if they declined to allow unclaimed bodies to be used surgeons would be compelled to make experiments on living people or resort to paying for bodies stolen from newly-made graves. The practice will continue

Chivers distinguished visitors, p3 *

1901 07 13
What say the shareholders of the Cambridge Tramways Company to the advent of a new service of motor buses working only from Market Hill to the Station – a penny service running from 8.30am to 9.30 pm. I have been assured by one of the promoters that the first of a batch of six new motor 'buses intended to be used on the new smooth road from the Post Office to the station will be tried in Cambridge within a month. It is certain such rivalry would destroy the present useful and satisfactory tram service – "A" # c.26.46

New Theatre annual meeting

1901 07 15
Cricketers will learn with much regret at the death at his residence, Mill Road, Cambridge, of the veteran cricketer and umpire, Bob Carpenter. He was 27 when he played in his first match at Lord's for the United England XI. A powerful hitter, his favourite stroke was to square leg. Playing for Cambridgeshire against Surrey in 1861 he made an innings of 100 described as "probably the greatest display of batting the world has ever seen". He played regularly for England in company with two other Cambridgeshire cricketers 'Pepper' Tarrant and Tom Hayward. # c.38 : cricket

Sawston church parade, p15

1901 07 16
Mr Frederick Layton of Milwaukee, USA, a native of Lt Wilbraham who went to America in 1842 had just presented his village with a handsome gift in the shape of three cottages for aged poor persons which he has endowed with a sum of £2,000.They are prettily situated at the west end of the village; each is comfortably furnished with living room, two bedrooms, pantry and coal place and has a nice garden of its own. Mr Layton heard the house in which he was born was for sale and conceived the happy idea of pulling down the old premises and endowing the present cottages to be known as the "Mary Layton Cottages" in memory of his mother.

Proposed bus service, p3 *

1901 07 17
Motor buses, p2 *

1901 07 18
One of the saddest occurrences in Sutton for many years took place when an old lady, generally believed to be 100 years on her last birthday, was burnt to death before anyone could render assistance. Although relatives offered to stay with her she declined with a confident remark that she was able to take care of herself. Her daughter had said: "Mother dear, take care of yourself. Don't topple the lamp over". She answered "My dear, you need not see any fear of that. I shall never do that". She had evidently knocked against the table which fell over, got saturated with oil and burnt to death.

1901 07 20
Sir – Doubtless most readers are acquainted with the fact that two gallons of most delicious, thirst-quenching, home-made lemonade can be made in a few minutes from a 4½d bottle of Eiffel Tower Lemonade, sold by most grocers. Going into a shop I was persuaded to try another make, but to my great disappointment found it was most inferior. This was most annoying, as I wanted it for a party. I have ascertained that a larger profit can be made by the trader by supplying an imitation and thought I ought to warn your readers not to be put off with inferior makes when they ask for the genuine article – A Reader

1901 07 22
A fire occurred at St John's College, Cambridge and considerable damage was done before the outbreak was extinguished. The scene was the third court, where a bedroom and a sitting room on the top floor of the wing overlooking the river were completely burnt out. St John's college fire brigade were soon combating the flames which had secured a considerable hold upon the dry and inflammable material of the building and it is undoubtedly due to their efforts that the fire was not much more disastrous. It originated in the bedroom where a lighted candle was left on the chest of drawers # c.44.5 # c.34.75

Money lender, p3

1901 07 23
The villages of Linton and Balsham were en fete on the occasion of the homecoming of the local members of the Suffolk Imperial Yeomanry. Crowds assembled at Linton station some time before the train was due, awaiting the arrival of the battle-stained warriors. The Sawston Brass Band (looking remarkably smart in their new uniform) struck up as soon as the soldiers made their appearance. A procession of carriages, horsemen and lady cyclists, their machines trimmed with flowers accompanied the parade that conveyed the men to Balsham.

1901 07 24
A large portion of the town end of Abbey Road, Cambridge suddenly collapsed. For some time the Corporation have been at work making up the road. The steam roller has been much utilised and this is conjectured to be the immediate cause of the subsidence. About seven yards of road fell in; below a crust of about a foot's thickness there was a gaping aperture deep enough for an ordinary man to have walked in. When the road was 'up' for the sewerage scheme an enormous quantity of earth was removed and, it is alleged, the road was never properly filled in.

1901 07 27
The usually quiet village of Hemingford Abbotts was the scene of a very sad occurrence from the effects of a heavy thunderstorm. A farmer and his sons were engaged on the land and determined to return home to dinner. The farmer and one son took a shorter route across the fields, leaving a married son to bring two horses round by the roadway. Nothing being heard the farmer found one of the horses on it's haunches and the other lying in the ditch. Near by was his son, also dead. It was found the lightning had struck the man on the side of his head. The other horse had to be destroyed.

1901 07 29
A series of tactical exercises were carried out by about 210 members of the Suffolk Regiment. A Bury force was to occupy Newmarket; they were conveyed by train to Kennet where they detrained and made their way in the direction of Waterhal. When the Newmarket Brigade had almost reached the "Boy's Grave" cyclist scouts reported having seen the enemy approaching and orders given for the men to remain in perdu in the brushwood. The sound of firing was soon heard but Newmarket easily held the attack. Lessons learned in South Africa were developed and acted upon.

1901 07 30
Bather's mishap, p2
Meldreth fire, p4

1901 07 31
Rural questions, p2 *
Newmarket apprentices, p4 *

1901 07 31 c
Sir – when I gave information in regard to motor buses for Cambridge, I had no conception of the vast interest it would arouse. Suppose that eight buses are bought, two held in reserve in case of accidents, except on Saturdays when all would be running. Four would be "touting" buses and two would be express which would arrive at the station two minutes before the departure of the train. If each bus secures three passengers each journey it would earn fifteen shillings daily. – A

August 1901 CDN

1901 08 01
A novel game of quoits was played in the twilight at the Cavendish Quoit Club headquarters, the Rock Hotel, Cherryhinton Road, Cambridge. Instead of the usual feathers being used on the pins, lighted candles were substituted. Three games were played, resulting in the candles being repeatedly put out, and in each game the captain came off victorious.

1901 08 03
Saffron Walden experiences South Africa, p2

1901 08 05
Mildenhall fen fire, p2
Newmarket runaway horse, p3 *

1901 08 05 c
A man named Lock, who was at work on the land at Eriswell, was struck by lightning; his coat and waistcoat were much scorched, but, strange to say, the man was uninjured other than from the shock. About the same time a tree was struck near Wamil Hall, Mildenhall. At St Ives the rain poured down in torrents and the streets in many instances were flooded, owing to the drains not being able to carry off the extraordinary rush of water.

1901 08 05
Suggestions that the model cottage is not so comfortable as the old-fashioned thatched dwellings must not be accepted without some qualification. Surely nobody will contend that the thatched cottage, with a low roof and a ladder for a staircase, is more comfortable than the brick cottage. Very few have inspected the model cottage on Mr Crisp's estate at Girton or they would not have committed themselves to such an unfortunate pronouncement. It is nothing short of a grave scandal that such large centres as Cottenham, Swavesey and Soham are in danger in the summer of suffering from a short water supply.

1901 08 05
An exciting scene occurred in the High Street, Newmarket. Mrs Smith was driving a lady friend and three children when the horses became frightened and bolted. She twisted the reins and see-sawed them but the runaway continued its career. Hundreds of people were in the main thoroughfare and a man got in front of the horse to try to stop him but was not successful. Many called out "Let it run", knowing the steep ascent to the Heath would check the runaway; this proved to be the case and she was able to pull it up. As it was led home Mrs Smith was cheered for her bravery

1901 08 06 c
A Newmarket apprentice was summoned for leaving his employment. He complained he had been given a fortnight's weeding for talking during exercise time & been hit with a whip. He was not allowed to ride out horses in the first string – he was not nervous, although he had fallen two or three times and four horses had run away from him. He had been drunk twice at work and stolen a postal order. If he were allowed to break his indenture just as he liked there would be no managing the stable lads in the town. The Bench had no hesitation in ordering him back to his work, saying "You put your back into it and you'll go on all right"

1901 08 07
A proposal to erect a new footbridge over the Cam between the De Freville Estate and Cambridge was advanced at a meeting of occupiers. It would put them in more direct communication with Fitzroy Street. A member of Chesterton Urban District Council thought it should be erected at the Fort St George ferry to benefit the owners of the new Central Estate; but this was a thing of the future. If they waited for this development they might wait five or ten years. They wanted a bridge for De Freville inhabitants immediately and would circulate residents for donations.

1901 08 08
A meeting of professional and amateur photographers met to arrange the Cambridge meeting of the Photographic 1901 08 08
Last Monday was a day which the people of Over are not likely to forget; a public tea to say farewell to Mr Handley upon his resigning the post of headmaster of their National School after 24 years. The whole parish were disgusted at the alleged cause of his resignation and the unfortunate position of the managers of the National School, who were practically dummy managers. However much against their will, they had the privilege of paying, but practically no power. Mr Wayman spoke of the work done in religious subjects; it pained him to think of the un-English treatment to which Mr Handley had been subjected.
Convention. The following were elected to the Committee: Messrs W. Redfern, Tyndall (Ely), Bolton (Ely), Wilson (Saffron Walden) and Stearn Bros. Mr Sanderson (Palmer Clarke) was voted to the chair. Mr Sidney Johnson, a University man, an amateur photographer and a contributor to the photographic papers was nominated as secretary. # c.65.5

1901 08 09
Writing in the London Daily Express Mr Rider Haggard reported on conditions in Lt Downham. Cottages were distinctly bad, many owned by small people who could not afford to keep them up. Often they contained two rooms and no more, in consequence of which overcrowding there was much immorality. The reason that the population remained stationary there was that no new cottages were built in place of those which decayed. Smallholders lived worse than the labourers; they rarely have any other meat than pork, their dinner consists of suet pudding and bread.

1901 08 09
The Cambridge Starr-Bowkett Building Society is to be dissolved. They had £2,339 with which to pay £3,028. Members were told an endeavour was made to sue the old directors but the costs would have been very heavy and they would have obtained practically nothing. The meeting, we are informed, was "lively". # c.32.4

1901 08 09
Messrs Pink Brothers new 'Knackery' in Coldham's Lane, Cambridge, stands in an isolated spot and is constructed on the most hygienic principles. In one corner is a large dissecting table and there are two huge coppers for boiling down the carcasses, the remains of which are subsequently sent away by rail. Some distance away is a tank ventilated with a shaft considerably higher than the top of the passenger carriages that may pass on the railway. The possibility of any offensive odour reaching travellers is thus quite obviated and the same care has been exhibited in regard to any unpleasantness that may arise from the boiling operations.

190108 10
East Suffolk police, p2

1901 08 12
A man was engaged in carting wheat at Grantchester mill & without detaching the horse from the cart took the animal to the river bank in order to allow it to drink. This part of the river is habitually used for watering horses and in consequence of the dangerous nature of the stream a chain was once extended across the water. This chain is now broken and there was nothing to indicate the situation of a deep hole in the riverbed, into which the horse stumbled. The heavy cart overturned in the strong current from the mill and began to sink, taking the horse with it. The driver was rescued but the horse drowned.

1901 08 13
H. Rider Haggard writes: Some of the old Cambridgeshire families such as Allix, Pell, Jenyns & Frost still remain upon their ancestral acres, but the majority of them have melted away. Round Newmarket their place has been filled by an influx of millionaire owners from all parts of the globe who are interested in sport but take no real interest in the land or its occupants. The county has but few resident gentlemen, except the clergy. In the fens hardly anyone will live except those concerned in the management of the land, since here are to be found neither sport, scenery or society,

1905 08 14
Boy holiday Buckden, p3

1901 08 15
Councillors considered establishing a municipal telephone system for Cambridge. All the firemen could be wired and every office connected with the Corporation. The first system had opened in Tunbridge Wells where the charge was £5.17.6 to cover an unlimited number of calls. The best instruments were used and each subscriber had a wire to himself, so that he did not hear any other people's secrets and they did not hear his. The existing company had dropped their charges from £10 to £4 to be under the Corporation; if it went down to £4 in Cambridge the ratepayers would get the benefit. # c.27.7

1901 08 16
Stapleford church organ, p3
Ely lions cage, p4 *
Back to Land – rural cottage problem, p4 *

1901 08 17
Miss Gregg, missionary to China, p2

1901 08 20
Circus, p2
Bassingbourn stack fire, p2

1901 08 20 c
In wet seasons fen crops are apt to go down and mildew, weeds are very prevalent and difficult to eradicate, however often the land is hoed, and potatoes, which have become such a favourite and paying crop, acquire a disagreeable taste unless eaten early, and go black in the centre. However they are all sold in London where so long as it gets a tuber that looks well the public does not in the least care about its quality.

1901 08 21
We understand that the Poplar Hall Estate, Fen Ditton, has just been purchased by a London financier and that a syndicate has been formed to float a public company to undertake the manufacture of Portland cement upon an extensive scale. Exhaustive experiments have been made and an eminent local authority has certified that, without a single exception, they are of the most satisfactory character.

Kennet station theft, p2

1901 08 21 c
Between Cambridge and Sandy, in the neighbourhood of the Old North Road, may be seen a stretch of land of which the condition can only be described as truly awful. The soil is for the most part a heavy clay, and much of it has gone down into an apology for a pasture, often so thickly studded with wild thorns and briars that it looks like a game covert which has recently been planted. Here is a crop of beans, dwafted, yellow and devoured with black fly, followed by stretches of twitch and briar and a scattered crop of wire-worm-ravaged oats.

1901 08 21
The Star Brewery renewed its application for a proposed new hotel on the Hills Road, adjacent to Cambridge Cattle Market. There were farmers, dealers in cattle coming from Norwich and Essex who regularly attended the market, coming by train. It was desirable that they should sleep on the spot and take care of the cattle. Mr Grain said there was opposition from Homerton College, a ladies college. What on earth they opposed for he did not know. None of those young ladies, he was sure, would go near a public house. # c.27.3 # c.27.45

1901 08 22
John Durrant, a yeoman farmer living at Burwell told the court that his orchard adjoined that of his neighbour. A plum tree grew on his ground but some of the branches overhung the fence. He asked to gather the fruit by placing a ladder on his neighbour's side, but this was refused. When he had mounted the ladder on his side the neighbour rushed at the separating hedge and threatened to knock his brains out with a screwdriver. The magistrate said it was a pity neighbours could not live in concord and sanity. As to who had the right to the plums it was not for that court to decide.

1901 08 23
Cam Sailing Club, p3

1901 08 24
Magistrates said they were not prepared to grant a licence to the new tenant of the George and Dragon, Willingham. The house had changed hands twelve times in the last eight years and they would like to know something more about it. There were 13 houses which had very frequent transfers. If brewers took a little more trouble in putting in tenants who would be likely to stay it would be better for the public and everyone concerned.

1901 08 24
Any attempt to portray life and characters at the 'Varsity, especially Cambridge, without mentioning that wonderful, but indispensable, personage technically known as the Bedmaker, would be the basest ingratitude on the part of the portrayer, says Mr Frank Rutter in his article on "University Types". What if she does clean your teapot with paraffin, or entertain her friends to breakfast in your room? Such little perquisites are well-earned by the "Bedder" who at her best is a motherly creature and known to stick staunchly to her "young gentlemen" in the hour of need. # c.64

1901 08 26
A large number of the Waterbeach Salvationists congregated at the funeral of Mrs Thomas Shipp jun., of Rosemary Street, who was formerly an active 'Lieutenant' of the Corps. Mr Ellis Merry and other strong Salvationists from Cambridge were in the procession. The service was conducted by the esteemed 'Captain' Miss Westlake of the Sturton Town Army Barracks; there were nearly 500 persons present.

1901 08 27
At the Clare Brewster Sessions the chairman referred to complaints with regard to noises in some of the public houses such as the sounding of tambourines, singing and jumping and the use of rather foul language. This was a thing which must be stopped as the public who were living in the vicinity could not be allowed to suffer through this unseemly conduct. He also referred to the length of time horses were allowed to stand outside public houses, blocking up the highway.

1901 08 27
Bottisham magistrates received an application for a licence to sell beer at premises in Coldham's Lane, Cherry Hinton. There were only two houses near, both the property of the Saxon Portland Cement Company who say it would be a great temptation to the men to obtain drink and neglect their work. The cement factory now employs about 50 men. It would be impossible for the police to have proper supervision; it would lead to Sunday drinking and become a scandal to the neighbourhood.

1901 08 28
A fatality occurred to a man engaged with a traction engine drawing two loads of stone in the direction of Hookhams, Radwinter. They were descending a hill near the Plough Inn and the deceased was applying the brakes to the foremost waggon when one of the wheels of the rear truck caught the heel of his boot, throwing him to the ground and he was run over by the load of stones. The body was removed to the Red Lion Inn to await the inquest

1901 08 29
Cambridgeshire enjoys the reputation of being an agricultural and fruit-growing county but now must be added the reputation of manufacturing centre. There are several factories within a few miles of Cambridge and another on a large scale no further away than Fen Ditton is promised. The Poplar Hall Estate has been purchased where the beds of limestone and clay marl contain every natural ingredient for the manufacture of the highest class Portland cement. In addition blue gault or brick earth underlies the estate and this should make the best white bricks. It has a frontage of nearly half a mile to the Cam on which is already erected a wharf or loading dock which would put the works in direct touch with the steamboat companies running into Lynn docks # c.27

1901 08 30
The opening of any new burial ground in the parish of Melbourn should be prohibited and burials discontinued forthwith and entirely in the parish churchyard of All Saints' Melbourn, for the protection of the public health, Melbourn Rural District Council was told in a letter from the Local Government Board. It rested with the Parish Council to take the necessary steps; a parish meeting had been held for the purpose of closing the burial ground, but there were several persons who did not know much about the matter.

September 1901 CDN

1901 09 07
Sir – some days ago I discovered that a strong young woman was required to attend to the laundry and do the scrubbing at a neighbouring workhouse. I became a candidate and enclose a copy of my application, which received scant courtesy. "Having passed a course at the Royal College of Music I could, when not employed in laundry work, amuse the inmates on the piano, violin, banjo or tambourine. I am adept at cycling and should be glad to teach the young or aged inmates to ride. I could also give the Guardians a lesson on the art of riding. I am tall and fairly good-looking and shall be glad to send my photograph if required" – Gladys Jones

1901 09 11
Sir – Could anyone inform me why the Corporation workmen have deserted the Abbey Estate? Until 14 days ago they were at work making up the roads and laying new paths, which the owners have to pay for. But for the last few days they have been trying to kill time by first laying materials on the road, and then taking it up again and setting it the other way. For a little diversion they put up a pole, and shy at it. They also take double time for meals – "Saxon Road"

1901 09 12
Mr I. Cock told Chesterton Union they should make an attempt to get a trained officer for the post of sanitary inspector. The Local Government Board had refused to sanction the appointment of an inspector at £120 a year on the plea that the salary was insufficient and they would be wasting their time to advertise for an officer at £60 a year. In appointing an officer 15 years ago the idea was simply to fill the office generally and not have it done well. The more they improved sanitation the less illness they would have, and a smaller number of paupers.

Pigeons fly Scotland to Cambridge, p3

1901 09 13
A photographic exhibition was held, this is an entirely new feature to Cambridge and the object is to encourage photography and more especially to bring out the artistic instinct. There were a many good photographs. The judges, Messrs W.B. Redfern and J. Palmer Clarke considered artistic as well as technical merit. The challenge cup for the best photograph went to Mr J. Johnson for a seascape of exceptional artistic merit. Mr F.J. Stoakley illustrated the Sanger Shepherd process of colour photography and produced some magnificently coloured studies as near to the colours of nature as possible. # c.65.5

Old Chesterton Baptist chapel, p3

1901 09 14
When the sad and sudden news of the death of the American President, William McKinley, reached Cambridge the inhabitants hastened to show their regret and sympathy with the great sister nation across the sea. Flags at half-mast mournfully floated from the summits of public buildings, churches, houses of business and a few private residences, for the sorrow and sympathy were as universal as they were keen. From the pulpits of the borough on Sunday the preachers made touching references to the crime of the miscreant and those organisations for the destruction of society which were undoubtedly behind the poor misguided creature. After the assassin's shot the President first murmured a message to his wife, and then bade no one hurt the miserable wretch who had assailed him

Chapel trustees and road, p3 *

1901 09 16
Fitzroy Street fire, p3 * # c.34.75

1901 09 17
Idyllic pictures are drawn of child life in rural England but there was not much of heaven about the infancy of the boy of seven who was run over and killed by a cart at Graveley. This infant was employed on a farm. Has the exodus of farm labourers been so pronounced that farmers must needs rifle the cradles in order to get their work done? He was put in charge of a manure cart and if he "were man enough" might lead the horse. No doubt it made the little fellow proud and he set about his task bravely. He fell beneath the wheel and his head was cut open; the poor child's troubles were over.

1901 09 19
At Huntingdon County Court Godmanchester Council sued the wife of Mr Ernest Terah Hooley, of Papworth Hall for £187 19s. 8d for repairs to a highway caused by excessive traffic. She had a traction engine drawing two trucks which constantly travelled over the road conveying agricultural produce, building materials and road material. This traffic began in 1900 & over 1,000 tons of material had been conveyed. Mr Hooley said he would take care that the engines were not sent on the roads in bad weather another year. During lunch an arrangement was arrived at between the parties; the terms were not mentioned.

Condition of roads, p3

1901 09 20
The Bishop of Ipswich conducted the formal opening of Hamond Lodge, near King's Lynn, as a Home for Inebriate Women. It will accommodate 33 patients on the voluntary principle and is conducted by the Church of England Temperance Society in the Diocese of Ely. A large number of sympathisers, chiefly ladies and clergy attended the dedication service and inspected the house together with the gardens and glass houses which promise much healthy employment for the patients.

1901 09 21
Mr Smith, a member of the Social Democratic Foundation paid a visit to Cambridge and in the evening addressed a gathering on Parker's Piece. A box was conveyed to a spot under the central electric light. From this platform the lecturer discoursed. The majority of the audience appeared to be sympathetic. A few juveniles however found pleasure in throwing lumps of turf at the speaker and disrupting his remarks. A large number of pamphlets were sold at the conclusion of the meeting.

1901 09 21
Magistrates refused to renew the licence of the George and Dragon, Willingham. They were told it had five bedrooms and stabling for 14 horses but there was no sleeping accommodation for guests, only one of the five bedrooms was furnished and that was occupied by the landlord and his wife. The White Hart, 105 yards away, had seven bedrooms and stabling for 12 horses. There were 16 licensed houses and it was not required. The Pampisford Brewery said that since 1876 there had been only one conviction for selling beer outside hours and presented a petition signed by many residents.

1901 09 21
Haverhill School Board expressed sympathy to the people of America in the loss they had suffered by the death of their President at the hands of an assassin who had done it by the direction of others better educated and too cowardly themselves to commit the deed. They were closely associated with that great nation, Haverhill, in Massachusetts, being made by Haverhill people in the first instance. They heard a complaint about parents, who were chiefly tradesmen, keeping their children away from school on the early closing days, and taking them for walks.

1901 09 21 c
Ever since the germ theory was established, persons of active imagination have been liable to hallucinations as to the dangers in this or that article of food or dress until there seemed nothing left for one to do but get into a bath of carbolic acid and stay there. The latest subject of the panic-mongers has been Harris tweeds. The proprietor of South Harris, where tweed-making is most actively carried on is Lord Dunmore who has demolished the unwarranted allegations. He will shortly be connected with Cambridge as Chairman of the Great Eastern Cement Company which has acquired the Poplar Hall Estate.
.
1901 09 24
The Infectious Diseases Hospital, long known as the Sanatorium, in Mill Road, Cambridge is at the centre of the system under which all cases of scarlet fever, diphtheria, typhoid fever and small-pox are notified and wherever isolation at home is difficult the patient is removed for treatment to the hospital. Although Romsey Town has encroached extensively upon what not very long ago were open fields, the Sanatorium is still upon the verge of the country. From the grounds the view of a fine expanse of rural scenery is commanded; the air is fresh and invigorating. There is a large field behind and in this the new diphtheria block has been erected. # c.21.4

Old Girton student, p2
Speed of cars, p3 *

1901 09 25
Newmarket licensing magistrates heard there was an exceedingly bitter cry from the inhabitants of the Stanley and Cheveley Roads that little or no accommodation was provided for obtaining that they required in the way of liquid refreshment. There were 700 people in that part of town, forming in reality a colony. Since 1887, 114 houses, large and small had been built and there was only an outdoor beerhouse. There had been occasions when brandy was urgently required to save a life but the nearest place it could be obtained was distant half-a-mile. The Stanley Arms, owing to the lavish expenditure by Mr Shephard was eminently suited for a full-licensed house. It was refused.

1901 09 26
Council merge with Chesterton, p3 *

1901 09 30
American cup, p2 *

October 1901 CDN

1901 10 01
Addenbrooke's Hospital Advisory Council considered the installation of electric light. The Gas Committee was strongly in favour of the electric light and it would be to the advantage of the patients and in the best interests of the Hospital. But Mr Gibson said that gas incandescent light is a better and broader light than electric light. Mr Whipple said they had decided it would be better financially and better for the health of the Hospital to have electric light. Was it worth going over it all again? The proposal was carried.

1901 10 01
Magistrates heard that the parties were tenants of two out of five cottages built in a yard at Hundon, and there was a right to use a common bakehouse. There had been difficulty about fixing the time at which each of the tenants could use the bakehouse, which was also used for washing purposes. Complainant was always in the habit of arranging with the defendant when she wanted to bake but found the other woman had got the copper full and was washing. As she could not light the bakehouse fire when there was one in this stove she put a little water on it, and took the chimney away and put her bread in the oven. Defendant took the bread out, lit the fire again and boiled the water in the kettle. She then took hold of her round the waist and swung her out into the yard.

1901 10 02
A young bull with journalistic instincts paid a hurried visit to the editorial department of the C.D.N. The editor's assistant went to the door on hearing a slight knock to be confronted by the bull, who evidently desired to see the "chief". As the animal did not present a card, a movement was made to get him off the premises. In this a butcher's boy rendered great assistance and the courageous animal trotted merrily into St Andrew's Street to resume his journey to happier surroundings.

1901 10 02
A meeting of Cambridge tradesmen considered the subject of early closing. In the body of the hall were a good number of employers of labour and their assistants who were liberal in their applause of those who spoke in favour of a uniform and early hour for closing on Thursday afternoons. The Mayor reminded the assistants that the meeting was called for the mastermen and their voices should be silent and their hands still when the vote was taken. After two hours discussion, which at times grew somewhat warm, a resolution in favour of closing at two o'clock all the year round, with certain exceptions, was passed.

1901 10 05
An old otter was killed on Robinson Crusoe's Island by Messrs T.J. Prime and W. Wilson. It was in the grass and they killed it with a bill hook. It was exactly four feet long, and its weight approached 40 lbs. The animal is on view at the Anchor, Silver Street, Cambridge.

Girton stud dispute, p4

1901 10 07
The police station is part of the machinery which Society has devised for its own protection and for inflicting punishment upon wrong doers. In the golden age there will be no use for Police Stations, and the fine building of which Cambridge has just witnessed the opening may justifiably be converted into a Free Library. There is no virtue in locking up a wrong doer in an ugly prison and the architect of the new station, Mr John Morley, has designed a building which is an ornament to the town. The cells are not luxurious but they are not stifling. It is true the building has cost a good deal but is excellent value for money. # c.34.7

1901 10 09
Cambridge Guardians heard that a coffin had been supplied by the undertaker minus the plate and the funeral had had to be postponed. The people concerned had a desire to avoid, as far as possible, what might be termed a pauper funeral and were willing to pay half the expense. The coffin should be provided by the parochial authorities but the relative wanted it made by someone other than the man who did the work on behalf of the Union because, with some of that pride which they had seen so frequently exemplified by paupers, they wanted to escape the eyes of Mrs Grundy. That had probably led to a little friction with the undertaker. # c.21.2

1901 10 09 c
A special meeting of Chesterton Urban District Council was held to consider a suggestion from Cambridge that they should amalgamate with a view of forming a County Borough. The Chairman said they were bound to give proper consideration to any suggestion they had to make but that from the result of the last poll upon the subject he did not think there was the slightest chance.

1901 10 10
A number of Cambridge gentlemen interested in the cement industry have formed the Cambs Cement Chamber of Commerce to further in every possible way the interests of cement manufacturing in the county. To them Mr W. Abbott is prepared to make over by deed of gift fifteen acres of the Poplar Hall Estate, simply asking that the land shall be efficiently worked and from time to time reports published. He is convinced it would put beyond all question that there is money in Cambridgeshire cement.

Newmarket station hotel, p3 *

1901 10 10 c
Our announcement that the result of the race for the America Cup would be made known from the Liberal Club, St Andrew' Street, by a coloured light, caused the liveliest satisfaction throughout the town. The news however arrived before the expected time and we burned the red light at 9 o'clock. Half an hour later large numbers of people assembled and though a whisper went through the crowd that the light of the victorious yacht had been burned the news was not altogether credited. In order that they should not be disappointed another red light was burned as the clock struck the half-hour.

1901 10 11
A smart boy, of good appearance who has passed through the standards at school may find employment as a Post Office telegraph messenger pleasant and varied. From the telegraph boys the letter boys are chosen. He has to be out in all weathers and must needs be of a good physique, but if the hours are somewhat irregular he is always paid for overtime. His income is up to the average of that of the working man and he is also assured, after a certain number of years' service, of a pension.

1901 10 14
Sir – I would like to call attention to the state of affairs which exists on Sunday afternoons at the Backs of the Colleges and Garrett Hostel Lane. I found the railings at the bottom of the Lane occupied by about 20 youths, or rather rowdies, who assailed passers-by with a volley of whistles, noises and remarks of a very coarse description. To respectable people this kind of thing is highly objectionable. Surely something can be done by the police to put an end to such a great nuisance which spoils one of the most pleasant walks in Cambridge – Pro Bono Publico

1901 10 15
The Cambridge magistrates have been rather unfortunate lately. Their justice was recently impugned by the Home Secretary and at the Quarter Sessions this week the Recorder took exception to their law. Unhappily incidents of this kind have happened before and the burgesses have got so accustomed to having the magistrates "sat upon" that the circumstance is regarded as a matter of course. Many entitled to sit on the Bench are men of superior intelligence and yet the Bench makes blunders that bring the town into disrespect. If a JP elects to absent himself there are no means of compelling him to attend. There is only one way out of the difficulty – the appointment of a Stipendiary Magistrate.

1901 10 15
Amongst the reserve men from Histon who went out to South Africa were three brothers – Walter, James and Fred Willson. The former arrived home "fresh from the front" and received a right royal welcome by his family and friends who have been eager to listen to his interesting war tales. His brothers and other comrades are all "fit and well"; one of the Histon boys, Ernest Adams, was a prisoner for some time at Pretoria.

1901 10 16
Ely council heard that some years ago certain ratepayers were allowed to put stalls on the Market Place on Saturday nights, and it was then understood that they should be put there in the afternoon. Now stalls were there from 8 o-clock in the morning and throughout the whole day. On Sunday morning they would find all kinds of offal left from the previous night and discarded fruit attracted numbers of wasps. There was lately introduced a fish stall with the refuse thrown about. They did not object so long as the stalls were confined to Ely tradesmen but found people came from Cambridge. If something were not done it would evolve itself into another Saturday market

1901 10 17
Diphtheria outbreak, p3
Sutton meeting, p4

1901 10 18
Foul smells, p3

1901 10 19
George & Dragon, Willingham, p3 *

1901 10 23
Chemical Laboratory explosion, p3 * # c.36.9

1901 10 24
Surprise for King, p2
Chemical lab inquest, p3
Cromwell statue unveiled, p3 *

1901 10 25
Isleham marriage, p4 *

1901 10 30
A new Diocesan Lodge for the Girls' Friendly Society was opened at Hills Road, Cambridge. Several spacious apartments will be used as recreation and classrooms with lectures on nursing, home hygiene, needlework and astronomy and classes for musical drill and singing. There are rooms for girls being trained for domestic service & accommodation for lady boarders and visitors. The old Servants' Training Home, formerly situated in King Street has ceased to exist as a separate institution. It had been established for 80 years and more than 400 girls had passed through; it had also afforded a home to many strange and friendless girls.

Cambridge elections & party system, p2

November 1901 CDN

1901 11 01

A Lidgate dealer was charged with driving a horse and cart without having a lighted lamp attached. P.C. Towler said he heard two carts leaving the White Horse Inn, Wickambrook, at a furious pace. He tried to stop the horse but the driver whipped up the animal and drove away. The dealer called Harry Nunn who said they had borrowed a lantern with a candle from the Inn and gone by the Duddery and not up the hill, as stated.

Nichols advert, p1

1901 11 02
While Lord John Sanger's great show and menagerie were at Saffron Walden a keeper found that Miss Ada, one of the performing elephants had stolen away in the night, and several men were quickly in search of the missing 'lady'. They found her battering a barn at the rear of Castle Hill and had done a considerable amount of mischief. She dragged the gate off by the hinges and battered the doors down. She then attacked the brickwork, forcing it inwards. A great portion of the roof collapsed. As the show was leaving the town one of the large vans got its rear wheels into a gutter in Bridge Street; it was some time before it was righted, and not before one of the cottages was damaged. # circus

Manchester – Newmarket, p2

1901 11 04
The supporters of the Rev W.T.R. Crookham who, it is claimed, is the "duly-elected chairman of the parish council" convened a meeting at Haddenham. None of the councillors on the opposition side took part in the proceedings. The clerk of the Council was not present but send a letter declining to summon the assembly. The council proposed that proceedings be taken against him for not appearing and bringing the books and documents necessary

1901 11 05
A fruitless burglary was committed at the Mill Road branch of the Cambridge Co-operative Society. The object was obviously cash but they were scantily repaid for their trouble, because on Saturday evening the money is cleared and lodged in the strong room of the central stores in Burleigh Street. The manager noticed the disarrangement of some sugar bags, which had been left ready for the weighing up of sugar. A steel for sharpening knives had been used in breaking open the till. The back door was unfastened but nothing is missing, the thieves preferring not to take away goods which might have been identified.

1901 11 06
There is little survival of the old celebrations of "The Fifth" in Cambridge, save one or two groups of youngsters with an eye to stray coppers carried around "guys" which may have been effigies of anything. Builders, having a recollection of losses of material on bonfire nights, had men guarding scaffolding poles, but they were not called upon. The most noticeable thing was the fog – thick, damp and irritating. It was not the kind of weather suitable to a rag or even a bonfire in the back-yard. It was better fun sitting by a snug fireside than standing with cold hands and feet in a choking fog letting off small pyrotechnic fry. # c.36.94

1901 11 06
Newmarket RDC was told that every year £120 was collected from Swaffham Prior Fen and it was time something was done to alleviate the 100 inhabitants. Corn had to be carted by the river as a result of the bad state of the roads, which were in the worse condition possible – both summer and winter. Certain roads which have been metalled by the Fen Reeves should be taken over and maintained by the District Council.

1901 11 06
Newmarket RDC discussed the depopulation of East Anglia, which some believe was due not only to higher wages in towns, but to the neglect of rural teaching in schools. Every rural school should have gardens so pupils may learn to cultivate their own allotments. Councillors thought bad housing was the problem; can anyone expect a girl who has been in service for a year to settle down in a hovel, they refuse to come back to their homes. They leave the country to go to London, where houses are worse than here.

1901 11 07
Depopulation, p2 *
Bylaws Impington, p3

1901 11 08
Ely Saturday market, p3

1901 11 11
It being the King's 60th birthday it was expected that nightfall would be the occasion for rowdyism and possible an attempt to illuminate Cambridge Market Hill. The authorities cleared away the stalls, but their action left the historic centre of all "rags" open and free for the antics of the crowd. For a long time nothing occurred except the explosion of a few crackers or the discharge of a pistol from a window overlooking the hill. Large numbers of police were hustled about considerably, and were compelled to defend themselves, but compared with other 'rags', they did not have to exert themselves very much. It was a very tame, spiritless affair that will doubtless be deemed by the "bloods" to have been a complete failure, considering that practically no damage to property was done # c.36.93

St Andrew's Street footpath, p3

1901 11 12
Granite blocks, p7

1901 11 14
Cambridge boys in considerable number have been drafted across to France for service as stable lads in the great racing centre of Chantilly where they are kept in condition of practical slavery. Some trainers are kind to the lads, but some know no other means of discipline except brutal severity. They are allowed to grow up unable to read or write & leave the stables unfit for any occupation. It is the duty of all who have any influence with lads tempted to go to France to discourage them as much as possible from doing so.

1901 11 14 c
The London meeting of the Chamber of Agriculture passed a resolution in favour of giving farm labourers an interest in the land. The country that lost its agriculture was in a fair way to decay. Mr Tebbutt (St Ives) argued that the system adopted by the Duke of Bedford, who had built cottages on his estates for the use of the labourers, might be followed with great advantage. Country lads should spend the summer on the land and the winter at school.

1901 11 15
Members of the Old Chesterton Cricket Club assembled at the Bowling Green and presented Mr R.H. Lord, president of the club with a handsome inkstand. Mr Lord, who is leaving the village, promised to present to the club an average bat and also two gold centre medals, one for the highest individual score during the season and one for the best average in bowling.

1901 11 15
The Cambridge Church Army Labour Home was not a lounging place. It was a place where men worked. Each man won something like 6s per week by his work at the Home, by which he provided for his lodging and keep while he was there. Five had left for the pathetic reason that they did not like work. It was a home, not a mere workhouse, nor a shelter, nor a pastime, where men were taken at their best instead of at their worst. Its intention was not to draw drunkards, criminals and vagrants to Cambridge. As it offered work, which the careless vagrant abhorred, the Home's negative effect was almost more important that its positive effective.

R.H. Lord presentation, p2 * # c.65.5

1901 11 16
Last September the people of Cambridge held a gala day for the lifeboat's sake. There was a picturesque procession through the streets, the launching of a lifeboat in the River Cam, with fireworks and music in the evening. Now we read of the incident at Caister, when men went out into the raging sea, not only to risk, but actually to give up their lives in an effort to save others. "Caister men never turn back", said the old lifeboat man who gave evidence at the inquest & Cambridge will rally to the assistance of the women and children whose husbands and fathers have sealed with their lives their devotion to the lifeboat cause.

1901 11 18
C.P. Tebbutt compared the state of the agricultural labourer with that of 30 years ago; the modern labourer had double the comforts of former times. There was a deterioration in the character of the men they now employed. The capable labourers, willing and able to do all kinds of work, were the older men and it was very rare to find a young man who really cared much about his work. There was not the same skill and ability. He advocated a half-time system half-a-day on the school and half-a-day on the farm – as a means for retaining lads on the land. Young lads were being kept longer and longer off the farms; when 12 years old they should be permitted to go to work during the six months of summer and then go to school during the six months of winter. They would be much better educated and would be better men on the farm.

1901 11 18
Mr C.P. Tebbutt has abandoned the half-day system as a solution of the rural problem. His new scheme is one of six months at school, alternated with six months of farm work. The obvious criticism is that neither the schooling nor the learning of farm work are likely to be efficient. He thinks that schooling makes young people dissatisfied with rural life and implants a desire to be off to the towns. There is only one remedy for rural depopulation: it is to make country life more attractive

1901 11 19
One of the largest companies ever seen at a boxing display was present at the assault-at-arms in Cambridge Corn Exchange. A ten-round contest between two promising local lads, W. Shipp and Bill Topper created a great amount of interest and so gamely did they box that the audience was roused to enthusiasm. A powerful left-hander flush in the face so dazed Shipp that he caved in and Topper was returned an easy winner

1901 11 19
A spirit is unrest is rife in the parish of Histon. Unfortunately for the work of the church there are two distinct parties, or factions, and as a consequence, any efforts made in connection with the church are seriously hampered. The vicar is endeavouring to introduce ritual into the services; there is a dispute over a certain seat in the chancel, the bellringers and choir have struck and some of the sidesmen have refused to carry the alms-bag. On Sunday a number of worshippers deliberately walked out of church

Prickwillow curacy, p3

1901 11 20
Histon church letter, p3 *

1901 11 21
Mr Benstead of Swaffham Prior asked Newmarket RDC to take over parts of the road which have been metalled by the Fen Reeves. Some councillors spoke in opposition. Mr Tebbitt said there was pretty much 100 miles of such roads in Soham and he would move that Soham Fen roads be served likewise. Mr Munsey said he would do the same as regards Fordham. It was decided to refer the matter to a committee to thoroughly consider and report.

Billiards, p2
Histon church, p3

1901 11 22
Mr W.B. Redfern enters today upon his twentieth year of theatrical management in Cambridge. He is a personal friend of Sir Henry Irving and all the leaders of the theatrical world. He has been instrument in eradicating prejudice against the theatre in Cambridge and in vindicating the possibilities of the drama in the moral elevation of the people. In managing a theatre in a University town he had peculiar difficulties to overcome but he is entitled to congratulation on all that he has achieved. The New Theatre is one of the best in Britain # c.76

1901 11 22
The 32nd anniversary of the Theatre Royal Barnwell Mission, Newmarket Road, Cambridge was celebrated. Three private boxes had been prepared for the comfort of those who attended the meetings, the building frequently containing over 1,000. If the theatre had been altered when it came into their possession it would not have done a tenth of the good it had done. By keeping it in the original form they get people who would not attend an ordinary place of worship. They had introduced lantern services, which had caused prejudice, but people were very nervous about any new form of service. # c.83

1901 11 23
A breach of promise case heard that when the parties first met the defendant was a Freshman in Caius College with an income of £1,000 a year which would be substantially increased under the will of an aunt. The couple became exceedingly affectionate and entered into an engagement. But then in August he wrote a letter saying that owing to the unsatisfactory state of his affairs it would be better for her to release him from his promise of marriage. In October he sent a telegram, “Married today”. She was awarded damages of £3,000

1901 11 25
The funeral of Mr C.F.G. Stanhope, who was better known by the stage name of Mr Charles Gervase, under which he played the part of Harry Bronson in Mr W. Greet’s “Belle of New York” Company, took place at Mill Road Cemetery. The deceased actor contracted typhoid fever whilst at Cambridge and died at Addenbrooke's Hospital. The internment took place in the presence of a large number of persons who showed deep sympathy with the mourners.

1901 11 25
The most militant of religious organisation had a field day at Cambridge on Sunday. Mrs Bramwell Booth, of the Salvation Army, addressed three large meetings at the Guildhall. “Fire a volley” was the command of a senior officer as Mrs Booth mounted the platform. A waving of handkerchiefs, a clapping of hands, a deep sound from the big drum, was the response. She is not a great woman speaker, but she has earnestness & spoke for nearly an hour. She is not sweet-throated but her manner impels one to listen.

Building accident, p3

1901 11 26
A Chesterton lady, Miss A. Masterson of Humberstone Road, was among a number of passengers who underwent an alarming experience while travelling by the Central London Railway, which is better known as the “Twopenny Tube”. A train was suddenly stopped as it was about to enter Marble Arch Station. The tunnel became filled with dense and suffocating smoke. Several ladies fainted and others became hysterical. People were rushing pell-mell from the front of the train, scrambling over seats to get out of danger. Then the lights went out. It was twenty minutes before the train moved back slowly. There was a terrible smell of burning flesh and it was learned that a gentleman had fallen in front of the train and been crushed to death.

1901 11 27
A hawker from Chelmsford was charged by Burrough Green Parish Council with drawing horses on the village green, in contravention of the bye-laws. The clerk said he saw 15 horses on the green and drew attention to a notice prohibiting vans or horses from standing or staying there. The men refused to give their names. A policeman uncovered a name on the van but there is such a thing as putting a person's horses in another person's van and there was not enough evidence to convict. The proper thing would be to impound the animals. They would then soon find the owner

Smells, p2

1901 11 28
Omnibus Company, p3
Diphtheria outbreak, p3

1901 11 29
Chesterton RDC considered the provision of an adequate water supply for Cottenham to remedy the unsatisfactory system of carrying water round in a water cart. It was one of the largest villages, with a population of 2,500 and should have a supply commensurate with its needs. They regretted that a scheme proposed six months ago had broken down and wished it could now be carried out. A meeting favoured spending £20 in erecting a standpipe at the end of Broad Lane supplied with water from a well on the premises of the Crown Trading Company, but this was too small of make it pay as a private enterprise.

December 1901 CDN

1901 12 03
Incidents at front, p2

1901 12 04
A Saffron Walden doctor was summonsed for not notifying the Medical Officer of Health that a woman and two children were suffering from an infectious disease. There had been a serious epidemic of scarlet fever and it was essential to stamp it out. The symptoms were a sore throat, sickness and a rash and if all were together an ordinary medical man would have no difficulty in diagnosing the case. But where they had not all these factors it was absolutely difficult to say whether it was scarlet fever or not.

Photographing dying, p4

1901 12 05
The Church Street Mission is quite distinct from the Cambridge Female Refuge but is auxiliary to it. Miss Elsden walks about the street at night and is able to persuade women who have gone astray to go with her to the Mission House and stay in safety for a few days until they can be received into the Refuge. Sometimes women come voluntarily and sometimes they are brought by the police. She also provides an escort for female prisoners on their discharge, meeting them at the prison and escorting them to the railway station, thus protecting them from evil influences in the town at the first moment of their freedom.

1901 12 06
The arrest was reported from Queenstown of a Cambridge man on a warrant charging him with felony. Detective-Sergt Bryne effected the arrest on the outward-bound American steamer. The accused was travelling as a saloon passenger under an assumed name. As is well-known the man held a position of trust at Messrs Foster's bank and was actively identified with politics and parochial movements in the Abbey Ward. His disappearance from Cambridge has been the subject of many rumours. Detective Marsh has been sent to Queenstown to bring the accused to Cambridge.

1901 12 07
The wood paving of the main street of Cambridge from the station to the post office has now been completed and last evening the men engaged in the work had a dinner at the Red Lion. When the mind is carried back to the days of the Long Vacation when St Andrew's Street was so decidedly 'up', some impatience may be forgiven to shopkeepers and householders who were anxious that normal conditions should be restored. Credit should be given to the police for the excellent way the traffic was regulated during the 'upheaval'. There was not a single accident.

1901 12 09
A little more than a month ago a churchwarden, Sunday School superintendent, president of a local political club, honoured and respected by fellow tradesmen, left Cambridge. On Saturday evening he returned, a prisoner in the hands of the police. The transformation was startling. The effect was seen by few people; the cause was known to many. The prisoner, who arrived on that dull, depressing evening was to answer a serious charge of embezzlement. Now he wears an abstracted look but the almost white hair, curling slightly at the neck, the white moustache and long beard, and the portly figure are just the same.

1901 12 11
Following a dispute over the election of a Chairman Haddenham parish council brought an action against its Clerk to recover the possession of certain books relating to the affairs of the Parish Council. The Judge gave judgement for the clerk; he found he had not been called upon by a legally-called meeting of the Parish Council and when that meeting was called he trusted the clerk would obey his orders. He awarded him costs and held that these should be paid by the council. He gave them the right to appeal against his decision.

1901 12
A sadder sight that that which was witnessed at the police court of Cambridge this forenoon it would be hard to imagine. An old man, the greater part of whose life has been lived in Cambridge, a burgess, well known and esteemed, who had mingled actively in the public life of the town, the friend of almost everyone who was present in the court, stood in the dock, charged with embezzlement. Pitiful it was, and the pity of it came home to every heart there. The court was full, but there were few of the loungers from street corners who resort to the Police Court as a place of entertainment; they were mostly well-known residents of Cambridge.

1901 12 12
A fashionable wedding took place at the church of St Andrew the Great in Cambridge of Baron von Rigal Grunland, groom in waiting to the German Emperor and Miss Roberta Nuttall of San Francisco. Notwithstanding the high social position of the bride and bridegroom, quietness characterised the ceremony. The pathway leading from the gate was covered in, carpeted and ornamented with palms. The bride was attired in a handsome white costume, largely composed of lace, over which fell a long veil. The long train was supported by two little pages. She carried a bouquet consisting of lilies of the valley. The honeymoon will be spent in France. Telegrams conveying congratulatory messages were received by the happy pair from all parts of the world.

1901 12 13
Stanton case, p3

1901 12 14
A man described as a gentleman of the Retreat, Buntingford, a certified home for habitual drunkards, was summonsed for refusing to obey orders whilst an inmate. Regulations set forth that work should be performed by each patient for six hours each day. The work consisted of removing gravel from a footpath for the purpose of making a recreation ground at the Home for the benefit of the patients. Defendant said he was willing to perform other work in the carpenter's shop which would be of benefit to him when he left, but not with pick and shovel. The Bench did not impose a penalty on this occasion if he would give an honourable understanding that he would in future do what he was asked.

1901 12 16
Christmas in shops, p3

1901 12 17
Christmas in shops, p3

1901 12 18
While the Green End residents of Histon were peacefully sleeping, the Church End villagers were rudely awakened from their slumbers by a man shouting "Fire! Fire!! Help! Help" They found Mr Smith Rowley's farm buildings were issuing volumes of flames to a considerable height above the well-known massive trees in the Manor grounds. Villagers came upon the scene, closely followed by seven or eight county constables who were attracted to the scene by the flames that lit up the sky. Little could be done as the big barn and other buildings were enveloped. Rats by the hundreds ran from the buildings enveloped in flames, presenting a peculiar sight of "balls of fire" hopping over the grass which was white with frost.

1901 12 18
Sir – Crowds which perambulate St Andrew's Street, Cambridge, on Sunday evenings have been growing in numbers and disorderly conduct and unless something is done we shall soon have a reproduction of the conditions prevailing in many of the large manufacturing cities. I am no prude, but to those going and returning from places of worship these crowds are an intolerable nuisance. In almost every parish with an artisan population there is an institute or club or reading room, but how many of these are opened for free use on Sunday. Should not the clergy seek out and rescue these lads and girls from the vice and immorality which is involved in their method of "getting through Sunday". – J.J.

1901 12 18
Mr Frank Cooper, an undergraduate of Clare College, made an ascent in a balloon from the grounds of the Welsh Harp, Hendon and dropped in a parachute from an altitude of 1,500 ft into the grounds of a private mansion about a mile and a half away. The parachute did not open immediately and the daring aeronaut had a dead fall of at least 300 ft after which the canvas inflated and then descended gradually. Mr Cooper is engaged in the study of aerostatics and intends to apply himself to the problem of aerial navigation, which he believes is possible by mechanical means # c.26.1

1901 12 19
During the recent epidemic of diphtheria in Cambridge great assistance was rendered by Dr Cobbett of the Pathological Laboratory. He is one of the greatest authorities on diphtheria and as so little was known about the general treatment quite a new plan had to be adopted. As he will not be available in future the Cambridge Public Health committee recommend that Dr Graham Smith be appointed bacteriologist to the council. It was only a skilled bacteriologist who could examine the throats of those who had been in contact with the patient. One child in school might affect twenty or thirty. Other councillors thought they would be creating a new office when they were overrun with officials at the present time. They had organisations all over the place. The Medical Officer of Health was quite capable of dealing with it.

1901 12 20
The interior of the Wesleyan Chapel at Waterbeach has been considerably improved; the pulpit, which formerly was of an inconvenient height, has been lowered to a position more consistent with the comfort of the congregation occupying the floor pews. In front of it the dais for the accommodation of the choir has been enlarged and provided with new chairs. The scheme also included the provision of a new organ, and an American instrument now occupies a place in the chapel.

1901 12 21
An Old Perseans Society was formed at a well-attended meeting held in the School Hall. Among the objects of the new organisation are united support of the school in all matters concerning its honour and welfare whenever occasion demands, and the compilation of a register of Old Perseans. It was a particularly suitable time for the formation of such a society at the close of a long connection with the school of the late Headmaster who struggled long against adverse circumstances, and at the arrival of a new Headmaster, Mr W.H.D. Rouse.

1901 12 23
Electric motor manufacture, p3

1901 12 27
Up to Monday afternoon there was every prospect of a Christmas such as Englishmen love, clear skies, hard roads and several degrees of front. Vendors of skates had already done a brisk trade and those who possessed the pleasurable implements hauled them out of their summer resting places, furbished them up and promised themselves some hours' enjoyment on the ice during the Christmas holidays. Just as the ice was at bearing point in came the thaw and Yuletide was ushered in with driving rain. The treachery of the English climate is sufficient explanation.

1901 12 27
A most successful pigeon-shooting match took place on the pastures at the back of the Red Lion Hotel, Whittlesford Bridge. There were about 30 guns and about 350 birds were shot. The chief event was shooting for a fat pig; each competitor had five shots and Mr Townsend of Saffron Walden, being the only person killing five birds in succession, won the pig.

Christmas in workhouse, p3

1901 12 28
Even at this distance of time from its occurrence the calamity known as the "Liberator Smash" has not ceased to have a disastrous effect upon its victims. An old inhabitant of Linton was one of the many who lost his savings in that great financial fraud and it is supposed that this so affected his mind that on Christmas Day he took his own life. Deceased was in the habit of referring to his loss in a despondent manner and lately suffered from acute sleeplessness.

Anstey stack fire, p2

1901 12 30
Stanton trial, p3

1901 12 31
A meeting at Cottenham decided to formulate a new scheme for supplying the whole parish with water. Considerable uproar was occasioned by the Chairman, on observing a stranger in the room, and being informed he was a reporter representing the "C.D.N.", exclaiming: "We don't want any reporters here". Mr Todd moved the reporter should remain, as he would no doubt fairly report the meeting; they would do nothing they were ashamed of. It was then proposed he be admitted as a representative of the "Independent Press" and this was agreed to

Cambridge Daily News 1902

There are reader-printer copies and scans
Checked against diary

January 1902 CEN

1902 01 01
The one event in Cambridge on New Year's Eve that rises superior to all others is the midnight ceremony on King's Parade, where for many years past the public have assembled to bid farewell to the old year and welcome the new, in a manner that obtains in a few other towns in the Kingdom. There was little except the associations of the ceremony to tempt hundreds of people to make a midnight journey. The space in front of Alderman Deck's house, facing King's College was densely packed and shortly before 12 o'clock the first rocket ascended and about a minute later the second followed. A few illuminative fireworks were discharged near the church and King's Parade resumed its normal appearance by 12.15 # c.39

1902 01 01
Last evening an employee of the New Theatre was passing along King Street, Cambridge, when he observed that fire had broken out on the ground floor of one of St Mary's Almshouses, which are situated on the west side of the street adjoining the Horse and Groom. He found the inmate of the room lying unconscious on the floor and the fire had taken a strong hold. The construction of the almshouses made the situation really dangerous for those who lived in the upper rooms, to which the only communication is by a narrow staircase. Fortunately 16 firemen with three hose carts were quickly upon the scene and the flames were soon got under

Delayed funeral, p3
Mail horse, p3

1902 01 02
Chesterton RDC received a resolution from Longstanton All Saint's parish meeting that members of property in the parish should provide their tenants with water. In every case the landlords had agreed. The Clerk: "We supply water by water carts; the contracts expires at the end of the month & it is thought that the owners should now provide it". The council agreed to continue the water cart system for three months to give landlords the opportunity to supply their tenants with water.

Death T. Hyde Hills, p2
Warning to cyclists, p3 *

1902 01 03
Stretham trespass, p3
Saffron Walden police, p3 *

1902 01 06
When the Recorder inflicted three years' penal servitude on the ex-cashier whose crime & capture have made such a painful sensation in Cambridge there was a good deal of speculation about where he would be sent. Some averred they had actually seen him leave Cambridge, others were prepared to stake their veracity that he was still confined in the county gaol and employing his time in the task of picking oakum. In fact he left Cambridge this morning. In the custody of two wardens he was driven to the G.E.R. station where they made for the general waiting room. It was a shock to those familiar with the benevolent-looking figure to see him clothed in convict garb with the ominous-looking arrows. His hair was closely cropped and his flowing white beard cut quite close to the chin. The change was more accentuated by the bowed and broken way in which he walked.

1902 01 09
The Rev Weston of Orwell appeared before the Rural District Council with regard to the village water supply. The well had been filled up about 14 years ago at the request of the parish council. Previous to that there was a good supply of water, which was used for drinking purposes. He asked that it be reopened or that another should be dug. What did it matter whether the Parish Council want water or not? The people want water. If they refuse then the RDC should do it. A committee was appointed to go over to Orwell and investigate the matter.

Ely Vineyards wall, p3 *

1902 01 10
Saffron Walden Girls' British School in Debden Road, which has done service for half a century, has been found most unsuitable for educational purposes. The British and Foreign School Society offered to take on the schools. The opening ceremony took place in the presence of a large gathering of townsfolk. The school had been constructed on most advanced lines as to give teachers and scholars the very best opportunities of teaching and learning. Associated as they were with the Training College they would be perfect models for the students who would practice in them. There is a large playroom for the kindergarten children which will also serve for the drill of the older scholars and a room fitted up with appliances for demonstration lessons in cookery. A portion of the grounds will be prepared and stocked for object lessons in gardening.

1902 01 10
At a meeting of the Saffron Walden town council a recommendation was adopted for the closing of the November fair, an old-timed institution. The necessary document was sealed and it will be laid before the Home Secretary. Councillor Williams strongly opposed the recommendation and moved an amendment that the fair be held on the Tuesday instead of Saturday. The last fair was one of the most successful ever held and purchases of horses were present from London, Manchester, Cambridge and other large centres. There was no doubt but what the town derived benefits from the fair. He contended that a public meeting should be held before any resolution of abolition should be put into effect.

1902 01 13
Saffron Walden council heard the November horse fair was rapidly declining and very little genuine trade was done. It had been reduced almost to an encampment of travelling shows and other attractions, bringing together a large number of dealers in caravans with their animals and other accessories, under very undesirable conditions. The noise of steam organs, roundabouts and shooting galleries caused a great annoyance to the residents. But Coun Williams said that 200 additional persons came into the town by train on the fair day, 20 horses were sent away by rail, and a great number more travelled by road. It was resolved that the fair should be abolished.

1902 01 14
After being 'wanted' by the police for years a man who is supposed to be a suspicious character named Villiers, was arrested by Scotland Yard detectives at his residence on Trumpington Road, Cambridge. They searched the house for a considerable time without finding him. At last he was discovered concealed between the ceiling and the roof. To this secret hiding place he had gained access by a door secreted behind a piece of furniture. The arrest is in connection with the publication of obscene literature and prints. Since being removed to the station the man has died. # c.34.6

1902 01 15
The 'Cambridge Express' charges the police with having supplied the CDN with information and refusing to give it to the other newspapers. This is unfair. The CDN gathered its own news in its own way, without any help from the police at all. We telegraphed to Cork for a report of the hearing before magistrates which gave the probable date of arrival of the suspect in Cambridge. Three reporters were stationed along the railway. One at Gamlingay saw detective Marsh and the prisoner in a compartment, entered the carriage and rode with them, thus securing the information. c.04

St Andrew the Less church institute, p3

1901 01 61
Doctor's tragic end, p3

1902 01 17
The stationmaster at Fulbourn told the court that under the company's rules the Teversham railway gatekeeper had no right to appoint anyone to take charge of the gates. He had to be at the gate all the day, but had a boy relieve him during the dinner hour. On the day of the accident he had been suffering from diarrhoea and went to the Baker's Arms to get something to stop it. He had twopennyworths of whiskey and some ginger wine. He did not return because he was ill and did not feel capable. PC Salmon said he found one of the gates broken; the boy was there with a hand lamp. The jury returned a verdict of guilty with a very strong recommendation to mercy. He was discharged and would not lose his pension.

1902 01 17
Cambridge Volunteer Fire Brigade's new fire station in St Andrew's Street is in telephonic communication with different parts of the town through the National telephone Co and by means of ten fire alarm posts. There are three permanent salaried firemen on duty, one during the day, and two during the night. They have a double call bell to the stables of the Lion Hotel where there were two horses in readiness to be called out for the fire tender. It was contemplated to have a steam fire engine but how soon it would come it was not possible to say. # c.34.75

"Doctor's" double life, p3
Elizabeth Sadler of Stretham's church – Henry Crisp p4

1902 01 18
Dead "Doctor",

1902 01 20
Cambridge Star Brewery shareholders were told that the Directors had purchased the Fenstanton Brewery together with licensed premises and sundry private houses & cottages. That brewery has now been closed. On the whole the accounts were extremely satisfactory. Going back to the first report of the company in 1892 the assets had been increased by nearly £18,000 c.27.4

1902 01 21
An appeal has been moved to set aside the recent decision in the County Court which declared Mr Walker to be chairman of Haddenham Parish Council. Meanwhile, having made several futile attempts to hold a meeting it was agreed to call councillors together. A goodly number of councillors and parishioners were present; the desks intended for councillors were occupied by parishioners in free-and-easy attitudes while the council table was monopolised as a very comfortable seat by some of Mr Crookham's party. The police took up position near at hand in case their services were wanted. After agreeing to pay accounts the meeting broke up in disorder.

1902 01 22
A Cambridge cattle dealer appeared for examination in bankruptcy. He had learned his business working with his father who was a dealer in cattle, sheep and pigs and started on his own in June 1898, immediately after his return from his honeymoon. He had £200 at the time and spent some to pay off his furniture. He got into difficulties as he had to sell stock for less money than he gave for them, though some weeks he got money and some weeks he didn't. By November 1900 he had lost £800. He didn't keep books. He only spent about £3. 10s.0d. a week as he had got a good wife.

1902 01 24

The annual diner of the H (Newmarket) Company of the 2nd Volunteer Battalion of the Suffolk Regiment took place at the Hotel Victoria. There were present about 100 rank and file. Recruits must attend 30 ordinary drills during their first year and at least ten during subsequent years, but probably all their recruits put in 50 drills a year. Major d'Albani presented Lieut O.E. Griffiths with the Royal Humane Society's certificate on vellum for his cool courage in rescuing a boy who had fallen into water 12 ft deep.

1902 01 24 c
An accident of somewhat curious character occurred in St Andrew's Street, Cambridge. A butcher's cart collided with a tram and the wheel of the cart went on to the platform of the tram. A mail van then collided with the tram and cart and for a while everything was in disorder. The vehicles were with difficulty separated without, fortunately, anyone being injured.

1902 01 25
The Cambridge Watch Committee have disapproved of the holding of the annual Police dinner, feeling that it is not desirable that the police should be put into the position of seeking subscriptions from the public towards the meal. There are many people in the town who think kindly of the police and would gladly subscribe towards affording them a break in their laborious and somewhat monotonous lives. The CDN is ready to afford this generous feeling outlet and, providing the Committee offer no objection, a fund will be opened in our columns. There is no doubt that the proposal to give 'Robert' a treat of this kind will commend itself to the people of Cambridge. # c.34.7

1902 01 27
Death trooper Parker, S.A. p3 *

1902 01 28
Dr F.W. Hutchinson of Cambridge made an ascent with Mr Graudron, the aeronaut, from the grounds of the Crystal Palace in a balloon of 38,000 cubic feet capacity, to make observations with respect to the presence of bacilli in the upper reaches of the atmosphere. He took with him eight samples of sterilised gelatine and exposed them at different altitudes in order to capture stray microbes suspended in the air over London. These he intends to bring to Cambridge and cultivate, afterwards determining the nature of the bacilli he had collected. c.26.1

1902 01 28
A rabbit coursing and whippet race meeting was held in a field near the Milton Road, Cambridge and some good sport was witnessed. There was a smaller programme than on some former occasions. A good entry was received and some fine dogs were in the field. A proposal has been made to organise a coursing society for Cambridge and the idea is receiving considerable support. c.38 : dog

Streets on Sundays, p3*

1902 01 29
The wife of a vicar of Cowling, a parish near Newmarket, applied for a separation order in consequence of his persistent cruelty. He had taxed her with having committed adultery with a man in the village, saying "God has revealed to me that you have been unfaithful as I drove back from my service". He had repeated the terrible charge daily since, not only in the presence of the servant but to others and it had been torture to her. A witness said the wife had an excitedly violent temper and a great way of nagging.

1902 01 30
A man told the court he had been employed as foreman by a Coton farmer and it was arranged that he should have 18s per week wages, one third of the rabbits he killed and £4 for harvest money. During harvest he worked from 4.30 am to 9 pm and received no extra pay. He went to the various shows and had to sit up at night with the cattle. They were successful but he never received anything extra. He broke in a cob and now claimed £1 for the work; a horse-breaker would have charged three guineas.

1902 01 30 c
Cambridge Discharged Prisoners Aid Society heard that Cambridge prison has not been fully occupied by local prisoners during the past year but the Commissioner had sent down a number of military prisoners as well as others from London and other prisons. These transfer cases had added considerably to their work. They had investigated 186 cases, including 53 female. The Church Army Home in Fair Street & the Cambridge Female Mission had been most helpful. An Association of Lady Visitors had been established to adopt measures for setting up in honest life of those unfortunate women who come under the grip of criminal law, in whose case the attendant shame is always attended with peculiar difficulty # c.34.6

1902 01 31
Coun Few drew attention to the extravagance under which county roads were maintained by the County Council. It cost them £970 to superintend 242 miles of county roads, which worked out at £4 per mile, but cost the District Council £955 for 481 miles - £2 per mile. In the Isle of Ely it was also a fraction over £2. There were 15 parishes which had not a mile of county roads and he thought a more economic system could be evolved.

February 1902 CDN

1902 02 01
A new branch of trade has been opened by the buttery of Christ's College, Cambridge in the direction of a stationery store. The CDN has been favoured with samples, but the party had omitted to enclose his name or even say when he intends to "call for orders". This omission is either intentional or points to a certain amateurism pardonable in a new venture. The samples are small post quarto Club writing paper priced at 1s.6d. per five-quire packet; envelopes 1s.3d per 100 and writing paper with the college arms embossed in blue at 2s. Can any Cambridge stationer improve on these quotations? # c.25

1902 02 01
Cambridge council heard that no demand appeared to exist for public wash-houses and owing probably to the facilities of bathing in the river. Ald Deck said it was true that every house built now was provided with a bath but they did not come within reach of some people who lived in old houses, of which there was a vast number. Public baths would be a great advantage & not only to the working classes. There was not a Turkish bath in Cambridge and a great many people had to go to London to get one. # c.21.1

1902 02 03
Sir – Allow me to warn cyclists using Hills Road that if the large patches of stones on the road tempt them to save their tyres by riding on the footpath they will probably be taken by constables in plain clothes. I am told they use a convenient post for observation, where they can watch the progress of cyclists along the footpath. Their action can be expected to yield a good crop of cases before the magistrates and fines of five or even ten shillings. Authorities who set constables to pounce on cyclists have devised a mean and contemptible means of employing a set of honourable men. This is against the spirit by which the law is meant to be administered – G.F. Searle. # c.26.485

Pymoor vaccination, p3

1902 02 04
In at least one thing Cambridge is abreast of the times. She has the craze for ping-pong, or to call it by its more dignified name, table tennis. For a long time past the ping of the racket could be heard coming from the houses of the up-to-date. By Christmastime ping-pong parties had become quite general, ping-pong clubs were formed and now Cambridge has been brought into line with the metropolis by holding a tournament. It was to be held at the Conservative Club, but owing to the large entry it was decided to transfer operations to the Corn Exchange. The one table reserved for ladies was always an attraction. The lady competitors, generally in smart costumes, played a milder game, though there were some who would have made the male sex jump about. c.38 : table tennis

Clara Butt, p2

1902 02 06
Newmarket death, p3
Billiards, p3

1902 02 06 c
We have all heard of the rise of ping-pong as well as predictions of its decline and fall. It would appear that Cambridge people, who were not behindhand in the appreciation of the attractive game, have already lost some of their liking for it. The opportunity that the Imperial Ping Pong Tournament offered to local players to compete for handsome prizes valued at 45 guineas has not been extensively accepted. At no time during the evening was there a very large attendance. # c.38 : table tennis

1902 02 06 c
The smallpox case from Richmond Road, Cambridge, has been transferred to the smallpox hut in Coldham's Lane. All steps have been taken to minimise the future dangers. The clothes and the whole of the bedding have been destroyed and the house thoroughly disinfected. # c.21.1

1902 02 07
The memorial window to the late Mr James Hough is now complete and the church of St Benedict is in possession of a work of art which will be a constant reminder of a Christian life. It is a three-light stained glass window immediately over the altar, designed by Arthur Savell of London and Regent Street, Cambridge. # c.83

1902 02 07
Swavesey Rural District Council considered the recent smallpox epidemic. Each division must provide its own isolated building for such cases. Each councillor had been asked to look around their parishes and see if they could find a cottage sufficiently isolated to serve as a smallpox hospital in case of emergency. No one seemed to have discovered such a spot. The St Ives district had purchased a couple of railway carriages which were being used. It was proposed that two such carriages be purchased by the Council.

1902 02 10
Saffron Walden railway accident, p3 *
Gamlingay child death, p3
South African reports, p3

1902 02 11
Death William Chivers, p2

1902 02 12
Cambridge Electric Supply Company reported that they would probably outgrow the present site, in Thompson's Lane. They had secured a site at Chesterton, situated at the side of the railway line so they would be able to bring coals into the yard and they had also arranged for the use of the river and the road. The site would not be required yet but as no other spot on the river was so placed they were justified in buying the land. # c.24.6

1902 02 13
The National Skating Association were able to bring off the British Amateur Championships at Lingay Fen. The ice at the start was in a fair condition but the sun coming out quickly affected it. In the final Albert E. Tebbitt was very quick at the start and left his opponent, F. McGuire of Boston, a long way behind. Cheered by the spectators he showed surprisingly good form, considering the state of the ice and won easily, amid considerable enthusiasm

1902 02 13
The Isle of Ely county council Highways committee considered the re-building of Aldreth Bridge; they recommended sharing half the cost with Cambridgeshire county council, upon the Lord of the Manor of Haddenham finding the other half. It was not only the question of building the bridge but of maintaining it in the future and relieving the Lord of the Manor from further responsibility. The Chairman said they were in a very awkward position and he had made up his mind not to sign his name to the contract or the cheques

Gas explosion, p2

1902 02 14
Skating, p3 *

1902 02 15
The funeral of the late Mr William Chivers took place at Histon. It had many times been said that he was the best-loved man in the county. In the village signs of mourning were to be seen on every hand; all places of business were closed and at every house blinds were drawn. Most of the inhabitants were attired in black and those that were not so wore some emblem to testify their respect for the deceased. Nearly 2,000 were present either at the graveside or at the Baptist church

Smallpox, p3
Skating, p3

1902 02 17
Skating, p3 *

1902 02 18
Newmarket Gas Company shareholders heard that the Working Men's Conservative Club had given orders to have the gas fittings taken out and electric light substituted, but after using it for two years it had proved to be unsuitable. The electric light fittings were pulled out and the incandescent gas was installed. The club now found their gas light was costing less than half of what the electric light did and they were getting a far better light

1902 02 19
Newmarket sale, p3

1902 02 20
W.H. Hattersley funeral, p3

1902 02 21
Sir – Verily the doing of Cambridge Town Council are marvellous. They have recommended the installation of the electric light in the Corn Exchange "owing to the representations made to them by 'corn merchants and others' using it". I should have thought they would have known that corn dealers can only carry on their business by daylight and it is impossible to buy and sell corn by electric or other artificial light. Moreover the business of the Corn Exchange is all over by 4.30, so what do they want the electric light for? If the council thinks it necessary to light it by electricity by all means let them do so, but they should not talk nonsense as they do when they say the traders want it. – J. Toosher

1902 02 22
Caxton and Arrington RDC have agreed on the erection of an isolation hospital in a building near Old North Road Station. It is to contain two wards, with six beds in each, together with administrative department, nurses' room, kitchen etc. As a necessary complement to the hospital an efficient ambulance will be provided. There can be no doubt that for some cause the death rate from cancer is increasing; Huntingdonshire has the unenviable notoriety of having the heaviest death rate from cancer of any county in the kingdom

Smallpox at gaol, p3

1902 02 24
Cycle & motor show, Corn Exchange, p3

1902 02 25
We understand a Ping Pong Club, open to residents in the New Town district of Cambridge has been started. The large room of the New Town Conservative Club, Russell Street, has been secured, and two Whitmore patent tables are provided. The hon secretary is Mr E. W. Illsley of 23, Bateman Street # c.38 : table tennis

1902 02 25
Advert. New Year's Register. Sales & approximate price. Residences: De Freville Avenue £350, Guest Road £400; Mill Road £425, Hartington Grove £425, Malta Road £425, Huntingdon Road £450; Villas, Cherryhinton Road with land £850; modern town residences £1,000; terrace near Mill Road, (let for £100) £2,000; Country residence about 3½ acres, near station G.N.R. £2,000

1902 02 25
The Cycle and Motor Show at the Cambridge Corn Exchange has undoubtedly "caught on"; those who do not cycle are a steadily decreasing minority, while motorists are daily increasing in number. Messrs Macintosh are exhibiting a Sunbeam Mabley Motor Car which is a very handsome-looking vehicle with several distinctive features. The riders are in a position to face each other, although occupying different ends of the motor. The car is not of extraordinary width and can be manipulated with the greatest ease; a small exhibition run was made even on the limited floor space of the now-crowded Corn Exchange # c.26.48

1902 02 26
How often is the extremely low-priced machine a pitfall and a snare to the unwary novice. Glittering plate and enamel make it as attractive as the more reliable cycle, but also serve to hide a crowd of defects. The sensible cyclist knows that good value can only be obtained in one way and Messrs J. Howes and son of Regent Street, Cambridge have proved that good value is the foundation of good business. Their own bicycle, the Granta, is a fine piece of workmanship constructed with the greatest care. Now that the free wheel has come to stay, brakes have become absolutely essential. c.26.485

1902 02 27
Everyone in Cambridge knows the Maypole in Portugal Place, kept by Mr Rowell, the renowned pedestrian who holds the championship of the world. They will be sorry to hear that Mrs Hetty Rowell has not been enjoying the best of health lately; in fact she has been suffering from disorder of the kidneys, for which she has been taking Doan's Backache Kidney Pills. "I have so much improved that I cannot speak too highly of the pills", she says. A free sample. Send 1d stamp for postage and a sample will be sent at once. Mention Cambridge Daily News – advert.

1902 02 28
The Cambridge Review refers to the conduct of three undergraduates whose behaviour disgusted all respectable people at the New Theatre. But the acts to which reference is made – loud talking during the performance, inopportune laughter and the evident watchfulness for double entendre – are condemned by the great body of undergraduate theatre-goers. To drag an offender out during the middle of the play would cause disturbance and annoyance to the audience. Mr Redfern has instead reported their names to their tutors who have seen that punishment has been administered. The few silly young men who still act in this way will find it prudent to amend their manners. # c.76

Cambridge and coronation, p3
Addenbrooke's Hospital management, p4

March 1902 CDN

1902 03 03
Sir - Cambridge Corporation has its roads cleaned between the hours of eight in the morning and five in the evening. As soon as the roads become busy a one-horse sweeping machine makes its appearance and begins to sweep the mud from the centre of the road to within three inches of the kerb, and there leaves it for 36 hours. By that time the public have removed it on their clothes, or it has been splashed on the front of adjoining houses, or else the Corporation employ a few boys to sweep it into nice heaps which they leave at some place that it is convenient for the public to step into. But should there by any chance be any left the Corporation kindly send two men and a cart to remove it – Grateful Ratepayer # c.29.8

Small pox at prison, p3

1902 03 05
Ping pong, p2 *

1902 03 06
A small pox case from Richmond Road, Cambridge, has been removed to the small pox hut in Coldham's Lane and all steps taken to minimise any future danger. The clothes and the whole of the bedding had been destroyed and the house was thoroughly disinfected. The public vaccinator had vaccinated persons willing to be vaccinated # c.21.1

Ping pong, p3

1902 03 07
Bikes, Midsummer Common, p3 *
Ping pong, p3

1902 03 08
It is one of those purely agricultural villages which struggle in unequal rivalry with the urban prosperous population. Crops of barley, peas and roots are not sufficient attraction to country folk who steadily migrate to industrial centres. The church is not pretty, the covering is peeling off in places though the interior is in good repair and of cheerful aspect. But unfortunate domestic troubles at the vicarage resulted in justices granting a judicial separation and the Bishop of Ely has declared the living vacant. The vicar has been, as it were, expelled from the parish. “I really do not know what I shall do. I have formed no plan”, he said, adding that a prominent parishioner had done everything in his power to make things unpleasant and try to drive him out. [Village was Cowlinge]

1902 03 10
Another case of smallpox has occurred at Cambridge Prison, Castle Hill. The spread of the disease is a mystery. The first case was in a prisoner from Maidstone. Prompt isolation followed. Another was found suffering from an infectious disease diagnosed as scarlet fever and he was moved to the Sanatorium. Other symptoms developed and he died. A few hours after a warder was smitten with smallpox and now there is a fourth case, a prisoner confined in the gaol for several months. Elsewhere infection has been traced to letters that have come from London where the epidemic is now raging. At Cambridge gaol mailbags are repaired in large numbers. They come from all parts of the country and may have carried the microbes that cause the disease. # c.21.1

1902 03 11

Joseph Poole's Myriorama, now showing at Cambridge Guildhall, takes the form of a tour round the world. Much is made of the South African war and the mechanical sound of the canon roaring enhances the realism of the spectacle. Particularly good is the battlefield by night and a bivouac on the veldt. The tour ends in a grand display depicting shipping in which are faithfully portrayed some of the principal vessels in the navy. # c.38

GER coaching staff, p3
Ping pong, p3

1902 03 12
Dr Dalton said that in the case of smallpox taking a real hold upon Cambridge the very fact of waiting two or three days for vaccination would be the cause of more cases. He would prefer to pay for vaccination rather than pay for the erection of new smallpox huts. He hoped more people would go openly to the public vaccinators to show it was not accompanied by any taint of pauperism; some believed they would be vaccinated with purer vaccine than they would get if they went to their own medical men. # c.21.1

Ping pong, p3

1902 03 13
Newmarket Justices considered a right of way from Ashley to Moulton along a drift road that shortens the journey by about two miles. The road led to nowhere and in order to reach the high road again it was necessary to trespass on land belonging to Sir Ernest Cassell. It was for the accommodation of two gentlemen and the cottagers on the farms. The difficulty only cropped up since building operations commenced at Moulton and workmen have used the drift as a short cut. Some palings were put near the gate at one end to make it unclimbable but the men smashed them down. The Justices decided the men believed they had a right of way and dismissed the case.

Revolver shot, p2
Ping pong, p2
Smallpox, p3

1902 03 14
Sir – A man from the Cambridge prison, which they knew to be infected with smallpox, was admitted to the Sanatorium and yet no precautions were taken in the way of vaccination. His nurses passed into the room day and night. I object strongly to the want of promptitude in telephoning me as soon as smallpox was suspected so that I might be aware of the possible danger and be able to take precautions. I would not allow my patients to go to the Sanatorium if they are to be exposed to such risks – E. Lloyd Jones. # c.21.1

Saffron Walden fair not to be abolished, p3
Cowlinge parish problems, p4

1902 03 18
Sunday was a great day amongst the Roman Catholics of St Ives and neighbourhood. For the past two years they have worshipped in a wooden building in East Street. Now the former church of St Andrew, Cambridge, which was pulled down in 1894, has been secured, removed and re-erected at St Ives. The ceremony of laying the foundation stone took place in the presence of a vast concourse of people. The original church was somewhat deficient in light but this will be remedied by a clerestory light over the altar. The new building will be known as the Church of the Sacred Heart

1902 03 19
A regrettable occurrence took place in Mill Road, Cambridge; beasts from Kingston were being driven to the slaughterhouse in Tenison Road when one bullock became excited. It ran away near Donkey common and charged a twelve-year old girl, tossing her as high as the top of a street lamp. Miraculously no bones were broken but there are slight internal injuries.

1902 03 20
Smallpox, p3 *

1902 03 20 c
Cambridge councillors considered possible sites for public baths, including Mackenzie Road, Quayside and Castle Street. The most suitable is Christ's Pieces. In order to provide a good swimming bath, length baths, a Turkish bath installation, together with boilers etc a sum of £8,000 would have to be expended, exclusive of the purchase of the site. £500 a year would be required for maintenance. In view of the half-hearted character of the public meeting they could not recommend expenditure of so large a sum of money # c.21.1

1902 03 21
The fifth annual race promoted by the Cambridge Cross County Union was decided over the county course. The competitors having been photographed were send on their journey. The Champion of the County, F. Hewish was the first man home. C.A. Mitchell ran well for the second place and H.H. Stacey was third. The Albert Institute Harriers who won the first race in 1898 got all their men home in the first seven # c.38 : athletics

1902 03 22
Sir – A beautiful permanent memorial of the Coronation year would be the building of a bridge at De Freville Avenue. The Avenue is planted with elm trees on each side, the houses are all substantially, and some very tastefully, built; they are all set back and have flower gardens in front, making a very attractive approach to the proposed new bridge. It would provide a safe road for children attending the best Cambridge schools and provide the nearest way to Newmarket Road and the Railway Station, thus benefiting labourers, working men, college servants etc. The more bridges there are built over the river the more surely you bind communities together to the advantage of both Cambridge and Chesterton – F.R. Leach # c.44.7

1902 03 24
A wife told Royston court that she had gone into the Buffalo's Head at Wicker Hall and asked her husband if he were coming home. He replied that he should come when he liked. About 11 o'clock he came home and on getting indoors commenced to swear and struck her with his fists. He took two tumblers off the shelf and threw them at her. She went across the room to get a small glass mirror to throw back at him and as she was turning round he struck her in the head with a knife. She said: "You have struck me in the head, Charlie". He replied: "Serve you right". The husband said: "I did throw a brick at you after I got outside the house. But you threw a brick at me first. I did not interfere with you until you interfered with me". He was committed for trial.

1902 03 25
Sir – with regard to the Clock Tower Permanent Memorial which it is proposed to erect at the Hills Road end of Station Road, Cambridge. I cannot see the need of such a clock there as I am quite sure anyone can see the clock at Hyde Park Corner from Station Road. Would it not be more beneficial if it was placed in the centre of Parker's Piece? It would not only serve the cricketers and footballers but would be of great boon to the working man as he passes two and fro – F. Miller

1902 03 29
A disastrous fire occurred at 56 Bridge Street, Cambridge, occupied by William Agger, glass and china dealer. When the Fire Brigade arrive they found flames had obtained a great hold on the interior and the peculiar construction of the house made it difficult to get the hose at work. They succeeded in confining the damage to the one house, though the woodwork of the next building was scorched by the heat of the flames. Had the fire occurred at night the occupants would have had a very small chance of escaping as the fire swept the middle of the house clean through.

1902 03 29
Folk have different ways of observing Good Friday. Devout church people spend some part of the day in church, chapel-goers attend meetings in the evenings, and many – the great majority – spend the day in health and recreation. Quite early – ere the vendors of the indigestible bun had ceased their rounds – cyclists rose and by the time ordinary stay-at-homes had broken their fast were enjoying brisk rides into the country. Many of them look forward to Easter as a time when "the craze motion" can be gratified. The Wanderers Cycle Club took advantage of the bright light to be photographed in a club group.

1902 03 31
Three men were charged with breaking into a warehouse in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge and stealing a quantity of oranges, the property of Messrs Sturton Bros. Detective White said he found a box with three compartments, two were full of oranges, the third was empty. There was a quantity of orange peel on the warehouse floor. He eventually went to a house in Brunswick Walk where the wife showed him some oranges. Later one man admitted the offence. The men were remanded in custody, an application for bail was refused.

April 1902 CDN

1902 04 01
Orange raid, p3

1902 04 02
At Haddenham the disputed chairmanship of the parish council continues. Neither side will give way. The past 12 months have proved a period of unrest during which meetings have been held again and again without any progress being made. The latest phase of the 'crisis' was the annual parish meeting but after a few moments it was clear any attempt to hold a meeting would end in failure. But for a few public-spirited individuals who have provided lights the village would be in darkness.

1902 04 03
Thomas Askham applied for a licence for the public performance of stage plays at the Circus of Varieties, Auckland Road, Cambridge and presented a petition of 900 signatures in favour. The Committee would recommend it on condition that the old buildings were pulled down, that electric light was placed throughout and at least four hydrants connected with the water supply. Plans would have to be produced. Mr Askham intimated his willingness to do so. # c.76

1902 04 03
Chesterton U.D.C. had asked the Prison Commissioners to provide accommodation for small-pox patients at Cambridge Gaol but they did not see their way to do that and urged the local authorities to provide room for the patients in their own accommodation. Chesterton would be prepared to place the small-pox hospital at the disposal of the gaol authorities but felt the prison should guarantee expenses and pointed out the difficulty of the safe custody of the prisoners. c.21.1

1902 04 03
Newmarket council heard that the Jockey Club would grant the free use of the steeplechase stands and grounds for the coronation celebrations. It would be infinitely better than the Portland stand as they were covered and undesirables can be kept out better. There was also, if necessary, cooking accommodation. They would offer waggons to get the younger children there. (Applause). An Ipswich firm could supply a tent to accommodate 1,400 adults at a cost of £48. (Oh, oh). Mr Morris: We don't want to buy it!

Gipsy Smith, p2

Willingham measles, p3

1902 04 04
Haddenham accident, p2 & 5th p4

1902 04 07
The Great Eastern Railway Company opened for traffic their new station at Newmarket, about a quarter of a mile nearer the Race Course. It provides very superior accommodation for dealing with passenger traffic. Long platforms have been constructed, connected by a subway with excellent waiting accommodation and spacious refreshment rooms specially designed to provide for the requirements of the race traffic. Colonel McCalmont has constructed new roads which afford good facilities for reaching the new Station both from the town and race course as well as from the direction of Cheveley

1902 04 08
Mr O. Griffith offered for sale at his Rothesay House Auction Rooms a freehold property situate opposite The Terrace in High Street Newmarket and known as Aston House, with stables and coach-houses and a cottage adjoining. The lot was withdrawn at £1,500. Other properties including Kingston House, Amelia House and Chudleigh House and a lock-up shop in the occupation of Mr J. Jennings were also withdrawn without sale.

1902 04 10
Willingham Parish Council have written to Addenbrooke's Hospital concerning a case of measles which it says was sent into the village from the hospital some six weeks since, by which means an epidemic of measles has resulted and at least two deaths caused. They accuse the Hospital authorities of a grave error of judgement and request steps be taken to prevent such an occurrence in future.

1902 04 11
Sir – Cambridge council propose to erect a clock tower at the end of Station Road as a permanent memorial of the coronation. There are other places more suitable. The Four Lamps on Newmarket Road would be better and a great convenience to Barnwell and Chesterton. But why not erect a statue to our departed Queen, Victoria? This could be done by the removal of the present dirty drinking fountain and replaced by one more useful with the statue to her memory – Charles Hoppett

1902 04 11
One of the most enjoyable of the performances at Haverhill this winter was that given by the Haverhill Amateur Dramatic Society on behalf of the Cricket Club and the Eastern Counties Asylum for Idiots. It cannot be denied there are some good amateur actors; Mr F.W. Gurteen capitally sustained the character of George Impulse and Mr H. Cross was very mirth-provoking. During the interval the Haverhill Orchestral Band played a selection of music

1902 04 14
Sir – a recent article in the "Cambridge Express" stated that the Chairman of the Public Health Committee had to stop 'larking' between a nurse and an undergraduate in the scullery of the Sanatorium, and that another professional man had been pestered by a nurse to take her to the Theatre and upon this being indignantly refused he was insulted by with a letter asking him to visit the nurse's rooms at night. These are serious allegations against the character and conduct of the nurses. Not one of the statements is correct – J. Congreve

1902 04 18
The Histon and Impington Bicycle Club were "at home" to members of the Cambridge Wanderer's Cycling Club at the Boot Inn, Histon. Every preparation had been made for the comfort of the cyclists & the room presented the gayest aspect, owing to decorations of flags, bunting etc. Mr G.H. Whitehead of the "Senior Wrangler" Bicycle Firm, Cottenham and Mr George Tolliday of the "George" Cycle Works Histon were amongst those present. A capital programme of music was gone through including 'Goodbye, Dolly Gray" and the comic song "Cheer up, you'll soon be dead"

1902 04 18
Coronation 1902. A Proclamation. Messrs Starr and Rignall, the people's photographers, being confident that every loyal subject of H.M. King Edward will appreciate some memento of this the most eventful year of the present decade have decided to give everyone the opportunity of securing one of their high-class cabinet portraits, finished in their best style, for one shilling. See window for special babies' offer. 108 Fitzroy Street, Cambridge. – advert # c.65.5

1902 04 19
The contractor for the erection of Aldreth Bridge is making progress with the works. There have been great expectations of antiquarian finds but very little has been found. A square oak beam some thirty feet long, thought to have been used in the erection of a bridge previous to anything known, has been taken out in good preservation. Smaller things such as hammer heads and old sword etc have been taken to Cambridge, but nothing has turned up equal to what was ploughed up in a field within a mile of the bridge in 1857.

1902 04 21
The King passed through Cambridge on his way from Sandringham to London. The special train steamed through at a slow pace. The king was plainly visible reading a daily paper. A barrier was thrown across the station where the London trains go out. A number of people assembled on that part of the platform which was open to the public, but there was no demonstration.

1902 04 22
A Cambridge butcher was charged with obtaining money from Caius College. A system of frauds had been in operation since 1886 in reference to the supply of meat to various colleges. He had been asked to produce his books but said they had been burnt on the bonfire on Ladysmith night. A detective visited the shop and found some ledgers in the safe. There were more in the stoke hole of the conservatory and in a large meat basket tied up with rope # c.27

1902 04 22
An exciting scene took place at Newmarket Police Court when a Deptford butcher was charged with being drunk. The prisoner was arrested suffering from delirium tremens had had since been an inmate of the Workhouse Infirmary. When the magistrates intimated he would be further remanded he rushed towards the reporters' table and then attempted to strangle himself with a neckerchief. Several constables secured him and he was led away uttering threats.

1902 04 22 c
Sir – may I call attention to an almost intolerable nuisance that maintains on Mill Road, Cambridge. The shopkeepers are in the habit of sweeping the refuse from their establishments into the streets (especially on Saturday night) with the result that dirty paper is blown about the streets and into the gardens of private houses. It is most objectionable and annoying to have one's gardens and yards filled with rubbish of this description. Is it not an offence against the bye-laws? – Resident # c.29.8

1902 04 24
In the course of works at Grantchester Mill in connection with providing a turbine it had been noticed that the brickwork to the retaining wall which supported the public road was getting somewhat out of repair. The arch over the waterway appeared inadequate to bear any but the ordinary traffic and there was considerable risk if traction engines were allowed to pass. The tenant of the mill had put up a notice that the bridge was unfit for heavy vehicles. The bridge was a private one, although the Council had to make up the roads on either side and the matter was referred to the Highways Committee.

1902 04 24

Tom Hayward, the cricketer, was the recipient of an expression of that pride and admiration which his fellow-townsmen so unstintingly entertain for the man and the sportsman. It took the form of the time-honoured complimentary dinner at the Lion Hotel, Cambridge on the occasion of his return home after a most successful cricketing tour in Australia. Mr Hayward thanked the company for the kind reception which made him more nervous than playing before 40,000 people. As to the tour they had a very pleasant time. There was only one thing to mar it and that was losing four out of five of the test matches. But they had bad luck, all their best bowlers being ill or injured. # c.38 : cricket

1902 04 28
William Edwards of the Rock Estate, Cherry Hinton, applied for an exemption certificate from vaccination for his child, William. He had an exemption before and was more firmly convinced that vaccination was not required. His first child died through it and, if small pox broke out at Cherry Hinton, he would not, unless forced by law, consent to his child being vaccinated. If there were a loophole of escape from it he would not have the child done, if it cost him every stick of furniture he had got. The exemption was granted.

1902 04 29
Crowded houses are the order of the day at Cambridge Guildhall for the marvellous entertainment provided by Maskelyne and Cocke's mysteries. The sleight of hand and illusions mystify and amuse the audiences while M. Gintaro varies his clever feats of juggling. Quite a feature of the evening's amusement is the first-class animated photographs.

1902 04 29
Outside Cambridge police court there was an air of suppressed excitement. As soon as the doors of the court were opened the space allotted to the public quickly filled. Hundreds were unable to obtain admission and eagerly waited outside for the chance of catching some details. A butcher from Petty Cury was accused of cheating and defrauding Caius College since January 1888. It was alleged t hat meat was constantly booked to the college which was not delivered at all and the cook was supplied his own meat gratis. # c.27

1902 04 30
Sir – Drives for the aged, infirm & invalids. Some scores of poor creatures in Cambridge would welcome a free country trip which could be done with little expense. A brake could call at the hospital, the workhouse and almshouses and take them out for short drives into the country. It would be the means of brightening the existence of many of our aged, infirm, feeble and poverty-stricken people who are compelled through affliction or old age to spend the remainder of their miserable existence in the house. It would be much appreciated and heartily supported – Sympathy

1902 04 30
The King left London on Tuesday for Newmarket and reached the new station at 1.45 in the afternoon. Entering a carriage his Majesty drove along the avenue into High Street and thence to the racecourse, repeatedly acknowledging the cheers of the people en route. He lunched in his private room at the grand stand and chatted with several people in the Jockey Club enclosure. After the races the King drove to Egerton House where he looked over the training establishment and returned to his rooms at the Jockey Club to sleep

May 1902 CDN

1902 05 01
Old English customs are, unhappily, dying out slowly but surely. Even the romantic revels which formerly attached to May Day have to a large extent disappeared and but little remains to mark what was an important day in the calendar. May Day is essentially a day for youthful jubilation and in one place in Cambridge is at least observed as such. Scholars at Eden Street Higher Grade Schools annually take part in a quaintly pretty ceremony of choosing a May Queen. Queen Nellie – last year's queen was escorted to her throne and formally abdicated. Votes were taken and it was announced that Miss Daisy Coulson had been elected and she was crowned with a crown of roses. # c.39

1902 05 02
A deep feeling of horror spread like lightning through Cambridge when it was reported that a cook at a Cambridge college had committed suicide. Enquiries show he was fearful of being drawn into the hearing of the Cambridge meat case and made to become a witness against his own brother. This undoubtedly preyed upon his mind and he became exceedingly suspicious of any stranger entering the college hall. The other day a friend observed: "I see you have a new waiter". "No", he replied, "he is a detective shadowing me" # c.28 # c.34.6

1902 05 03
Ashwell blacksmith's death, p3 *
Cook's death, p3 *

1902 05 05
Clark case, p3

1902 05 06
Caius meat scandal, p3

1902 05 07
It will probably surprise many that there is no telephonic communication between Cambridge Police Court and the County Gaol. This morning when a trial was to have proceeded it was reported that the defendant was too unwell to leave prison. The question was asked as to how long he was likely to be absent and a special messenger was sent to Dr Buckingham, the Prison Surgeon. The Chairman said they were surprised to find there were some antiquated notions which had prevented the telephone from being laid on between the two places and thought councillors should see it was remedied

Clark illness, p3

1902 05 08
Years ago the foundations of the tower of St Mary's church, Haverhill gave way a good deal and in 1858 a turret was built in the hope that this would support the tower. It was examined some time back and it was then seen that the foundations under the turret had given way, thus increasing the cracks in the walls of the tower. Out of a peal of five bells two are cracked and the remaining three are worn exceedingly thin. The work will now be done due as a memorial to Rev Robert Roberts who was vicar for 55 years.

1902 05 09
Clark proceedings, p3

1902 05 09 c
Artificial teeth. Set of teeth from £1.0s.0d. Single tooth from 2s.6d. Advice and any information concerning the manufacture and adaptation of artificial teeth to the mouth given free of charge. All cases guaranteed. Consultation and every information free daily from 9 till 7. Mr P. Hawkes, 26, Hills Road, Cambridge – advert.

1902 05 10
The funeral of P.C. Thompson of the Cambridge police was conducted on military lines. His comrades, accompanied by members of the Borough Fire Brigade, marched to Sturton Street. As the coffin was brought out of the house the police band played the death march in "Saul" and Drum Major Inspector Johnson, his staff draped with crepe, led the hearse & mourning coaches in procession to Mill Road cemetery. The route was line by people and many were the manifestations of sympathy with the mourners. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr Ellis Merry. # c.34.7

Clark case, p3

1902 05 12
Meat case, p3

1902 05 13
A young Cambridge man who was imprisoned through being in arrears on a wife's maintenance payment contracted small-pox whilst lying at the county gaol, Castle Street. He was removed to the hut but succumbed to the disease on Sunday last. Deceased, we believe, had only been in gaol 18 days. He was buried last night. # c.21.1

Sale 31 Kingston street, p2
Meat case, p3
Circus of Varieties, p3

1902 05 14
A motion was made in the Chancery Court for an injunction to restrain the Bishop of Ely and the churchwarden of Cowlinge from interfering with the village minister in his enjoyment of the living and the emoluments thereof and instituting any other person to the living. His wife had been granted a separation order and given the custody of their five children. After the Bishop gave notice to deprive him of his ministry the churchwardens had kept him out of the church and threatened to eject him from the vicarage house

Clark case, p2

1902 05 15
Cambridge councillors considered a report on a scheme for the establishment of a municipal telephonic system. The probable cost for a system with 500 subscribers would be £10,000. This was a small sum when the council spent nearly double that amount on certain luxuries. £12,000 would cover the cost of putting down facilities for another 500 lines. If the system were adopted subscribers would be able to get on to the trunk line. c.27.7

1902 05 15
The Cambridge Gazette Company has been wound up. As the business had proved so unprofitable the daily and weekly papers had been discontinued but a number of hands were engaged in jobbing printing work. Liquidators discharged them and proceeded to realise the assets. They had arranged the sale of the printing plant, machinery and effects in January 1901 but had no funds to meet the claims of the creditors or shareholders. There was no object in delaying the winding up further. # c.04

1902 05 16
Sir – now everyone is thinking how best to celebrate the Coronation I suggest that this is a suitable time to free from toll the bridge at Clayhithe. It that were to thrown open it would be a great boon to hundreds of people both at Cambridge and Waterbeach. The Cam Sailing Club have their headquarters there and cyclists should move to free the bridge, as one of the prettiest rides around here is through Horningsea, Clayhithe, Waterbeach and Milton – R.P.B.

Clark case, p3

1902 05 17
Cowlinge case, p3
Funeral Capt Machell, p3

1902 05 19
A young man in charge of a horse attached to a cart left it unattached in the station yard at Ashwell while he took a parcel to the booking office. The horse became restive, dashed off into the goods yard and crossed the sidings to the main line, following closely in the wake of the 7.39 down train. The runaway continued on its career till it reached the Litlington gate level crossing where in endeavouring to cross the line it fell. It was at length secured and seemed none the worse for its gallop.

Barrington Cement Company, p3

1902 05 20
Railway presentation, p2

1902 05 21
Swaffham Prior is unique in that it possesses two churches in one churchyard. St Mary's was formerly a picturesque ruin, the restoration of which began in 1878 when the chancel and vestry were rebuilt. The next process in the work included the restoration of the whole body of the church and both aisles. They are practically finished at the present time, the walls and roof having been completed. The work remaining to be done includes the flooring and glazing of the windows. It once possessed a steeple but now only a portion of the tower remains, dilapidated in condition.

1902 05 22
Jones … paper, p3 *
Doan's pills, p4

1902 05 23
Ely Board of Guardians discussed what they proposed to do in regard to the Coronation and agreed to only one day's festivities. Mr Darby said they at Sutton wished to bring over to the village all the inmates belonging thereto. The Guardians had no objection. Coronation fare for the inmates should be similar to that provided at Christmastime and during the afternoon they would be allowed to attend the festivities in the town. Each would be presented with a Coronation medal and the Master would provide four sets of draughts and dominoes for the use of inmates.

Grantchester drain, p2 *

1902 05 24 – 1902 05 30 – no papers

1902 05 31
New Town Cycles adv, p1 *
New Chesterton bike, p1
Accident, p3 *
Coronation procession, p3 *
Cottenham vaccination, p3
County Council, p3
Storm, p3 *

1902 05 31 c
At the annual inspection of the Second Cambridge Company of the Boys Brigade physical drill with arms, company drill and manual firing exercises were capably done. Exercises with the dumb-bells were given and a squad gave an excellent display on the parallel bars. Capt Titterington said they believed in teaching the boys to look after their bodies as well as their lives. Every boy of the Brigade is a total abstainer and non-smoker

1902 05 31 c

Cambridge is the centre of a prosperous agricultural district. To the north lie the fens, a rich corn-growing district; to the south and east are light sheep and barley lands and to the west heavy clay lands which, in past times, have produced large wheat supplies, but which now in consequence of agricultural depression, have been largely laid down to grass.

1902 05 31
Won on Whit Monday at Dersingham by A. Brown of Milton, 1st prize, pair of solid silver candlesticks, value £7. This prize was won on a New Chesterton Bicycle, made to order. Racing machines a speciality. I invite customers to see their machines being constructed. Riding tuition free if a new machine is purchased. Tyres re-rubbered and repaired from 8/6 each. Repairs and machines overhauled at moderate charges by experienced workmen – W.J. Ison, Chesterton Cycle Works, Chesterton Road, Cambridge – advert.

June 1902 CDN

1902 06 02
June 2nd 1902 is a date which will be indelibly fixed in the minds of Cambridge people, for it marks not only the blessed announcement of the proclamation of Peace in South Africa but also the trial at Cambridge assizes of various persons for conspiring to defraud Caius College in their meat accounts, a case that has not parallel in Cambridge history and which has created the most profound interest throughout the kingdom.

1902 06 03
Peace in South Africa produced strife in Cambridge – one of those fierce contests between the police and the united forces of town and gown which, combined with the destruction of property, constitutes a "rag". In King Street a large double gate was attacked as wood for a bonfire but a vigorous-looking dame appeared from the other side. Her only weapon was a duster, but such a formidable appearance did she present that the crowd melted away before her advance. Skirmishers went towards the Circus of Varieties to obtain a hoarding but this was well guarded and soon they were retracing their steps. The hoarding whict surrounded the underground topilets on Market Hill was torn down and lighted. More wood was wanted and the mob pulled down glazed bricks and girers, door-posts and window frames. Next morning the appearance of the projected underground lavatory was more like an archaeological excavation. Thiusands of bricks were lying in the bottom mixed up with the dirt and pieces of wood and the general appearance of the place showed how wanton and reckless had been the young hot heads who had wrought the damage c.36.9

Cattle market, p2 *
Meat scandal, p3

1902 06 04
The following notice has been issued by the Vice Chancellor of Cambridge University. "Whereas the attendance of members of the University at certain public exhibitions, performances and places of dramatic entertainment has been productive of grave disorder, notice is given that the attendance of any member in statu pupillari at the Circus of Varieties, Auckland Road, is prohibited and will render him liable to be punished by suspension, rustication, expulsion or otherwise." # c.76 # c.36.9

Meat – not guilty – reprinted as book

1902 06 05
Grantchester mill bridge, p2 *
Meat scandal, p3
Circus & grads, p3

1902 06 05 c

Chesterton medical officer reported on the provision made for smallpox patients in the district. The hospital was now clear of patients and was closed. There was still a possibility of cases occurring, as the disease was still present in London. The buildings would be at once available for use & the staff of the Cambridge Corporation was also at their service.

1902 06 06
An undergraduate was summoned for cruelly ill-treating a cat. He had for some time been annoyed by their "unmusical noises", obtained a Martini-Henry rifle and deliberately shot at a cat belonging to the next-door neighbour. His aim had been very accurate and the bullet penetrated the animal's shoulder. His intention was to kill the cat and he did not learn until afterwards that he had not killed it.

1902 06 09
The day of thanksgiving for peace was universally observed and in Cambridge, as elsewhere, large congregations gathered to express the joy and thankfulness felt by all at the termination of the long struggle waged in South Africa. The Mayor and members of the Corporation attended service at Great St Mary's and two special thanksgiving services were held at King's College chapel. At Christ Church the curate-in-charge of the Abbey Church made fitting allusion to the termination of the war and the National Anthem was sung at St Luke's and St Matthew's churches.

1902 06 10
Furious driving, p3

1902 06 12
On 13th June 1889 the foundation stone of St Philip's Church, Mill Road, Cambridge, was laid by Professor Babington; on June 11th 1902 it was consecrated by the Bishop to the worship of God and "for ever set apart from all profane and common uses". A small wooden church was built by a pious, but somewhat eccentric Churchman, which was eventually to give place to the present building. It is a chapel-of-ease to the populous parish which ere long may be a distinct ecclesiastical parish. # c.83

1902 06 13
The Cambridgeshire Weekly News is acknowledged to be the Cambridgeshire County Journal and possesses an unrivalled circulation and standing throughout the County. It gives the fullest, most accurate and most attractive reports of any newspaper. It contains a carefully-compiled summary of home and foreign news, a bright and attractive London letter written by a journalist of great ability and an illustrated ladies' letter devoted to the newest modes and fashions – Advert # c.04

1902 06 14
A public inquiry was held into the desirability of the County Council having the control and management of the metalled roads in the county. It had been said that county and district surveyors were acting on the same roads. Some said the parish councils might, for a small fee, look after some 15 or 20 miles of road, others that the County Council's management of the main road had been a failure & maintenance should remain with the district councils. But to keep two machines going cost considerably more than one and management under one control would effect a considerable saving. # c.44.65

Newmarket trainers & stablemen, p3

1902 06 16
A large number of members of the Society of Friends from all parts of England met at the Friends' School, Saffron Walden, to take part in the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the foundation of the School. The day saw the opening of a new swimming bath and gymnasium. By the courtesy of the Great eastern Railway Company special trains at reduced fares were run from London

1902 06 17
Newmarket Salvation Army, p3 *

Cottenham water, p3 *
Newmarket stablemen's dinner, p3

1902 06 18
There were lively scenes at a public meeting about arrangements for celebrating the Coronation in St John's Ward, Cambridge. There was a good deal of controversy. They would provide for tea for 500 at Homerton New College. But servants will say "This is not for me; it is for the residents – my mistress and my master". Mr Clark said: "It is absurd to come and waste our time here. We have spent no end of time arranging this thing, and now you want to upset it, instead of supporting us like men"

Rothschild speeding, p3 *

1902 06 19
A giant mushroom has just been grown at Cottenham. This marvellous agaric measures over four feet in circumference, weighs over four pounds and is of perfect shape. Mushrooms exhibit a special preference for damp localities so hopes may be entertained that the question of water supply at Cottenham, which is still unsolved after twenty years, will shortly be brought to conclusion. It is remarkable that a brainless fungus should have so signally succeeded where the combined wisdom of public authorities and private parishioners has so signally failed.

Cambridge & Chesterton amalgamation, p3

1902 06 20
Cottenham typhoid, p2
Coronation festivities, p3 *

1902 06 23
Their primary object of Isolation Hospitals was to pick out early cases of infectious diseases and isolate them so that it might not spread. Newmarket district had a well-appointed hospital and when there had been epidemics of scarlatina they had been stamped out rapidly. Caxton had erected a smallpox hospital in a temporary building but thought it desirable for a central hospital for smallpox alone. Linton wished to manage the matter entirely themselves. They had spent an enormous sum on vaccination and an epidemic ought to be impossible. They were very anxious to keep out of the hands of the County Council, in which they had not much confidence.

Newmarket School Board election, p4

1902 06 24
The startling and unwelcome intelligence that the Coronation of King Edward VII had been postponed, owing to him having to undergo an operation, created a great sensation in Cambridge. Those who first heard were incredulous and treated the matter as a mere rumour. Scores of enquiries were received at the News by telephone. Crowds assembled round the type-written announcements that were displayed and turned away with expressions of mingled astonishment and pain.

Cottenham water, p3

1902 06 25
Coronation postponed, p3
Sturton contractor Government, p3

1902 06 27
Never before has Cambridge Corn Exchange been the scene of such a curious sight as when a distribution was made of the large quantity of food intended to form part of the feast to the old folks in celebration of the Coronation. When the news of its postponement was received the cooking of the food had already begun. Several hundred of the poorest inhabitants gathered outside the front gates of the Corn Exchange as quickly as their too-evident infirmities would allow them. Quite a number wrapped quantities of fruit tart in grimy newspapers that could hardly have improved their semi-liquid contents.

Newmarket 'coronation night', p2
Saffron Walden coronation, p4

1902 06 28
As soon as the King's illness was announced volumes of telegrams commenced to pour into the Cambridge office. On Tuesday no fewer than 350 telegrams were waiting to come through from London and the abnormal pressure was kept up until Friday. Press wires, commercial wires and private telegrams increased at such a rate that in order to cope with them employees from the postal department were drafted into the telegraph department. Even then it was only by working at very high pressure, and working overtime, that the staff were able to get through their task. c.02
Cambridge coronation committees, p3

1902 06 28 c
A violent thunderstorm passed directly over Cambridge & exceedingly vivid flashes of lightning were witnessed. One was seen to strike the chimney stack of 116 York Street, a house occupied by a labourer named Charles Chapman, & several bricks fell down the chimney into the fireplace. A house at 21 Victoria Park was also struck and 250 slates dislodged. Rain descended in such torrents that the drains could not carry it away quickly enough. Several houses in Silver Street were flooded and when the Pitt Press boys left work many took off their shoes and stockings to ford Trumpington Street which was several inches under water.

1902 06 30
Albert Easy of Cottenham applied for an order exempting his child from vaccination. He said a child in the village was healthy before vaccination but afterwards it was all over sores and a nonconformist minister's son had been ill through vaccination. The chairman said it was better to have it. The boy would not be able to go either into the army or the Civil Service unless he had been vaccinated. The application was refused.

1902 06 30
News from Cottenham as to the outbreak of typhoid fever becomes daily more serious. Twelve cases are now reported and in three more persons the disease is suspected. The cases are attributed to the bad water available in the parish for drinking purposes. Whether this latest outbreak will result in some action being taken to give the district a wholesome supply of water we cannot say. One epidemic of typhoid had passed over the village but the warning then given was unheeded and now Nature has taken the matter in hand in her own summary and peculiarly effective manner.

1902 06 30
An alarming report was widely current in Cambridge that his Majesty had succumbed to his operation. One credulous tradesman actually put a shutter up on the strength of an absolutely unofficial report to that effect, which was posted on a shop window adjacent to the office of the Cambridge Independent Press. The tradesman was Mr C.S. Addison who is indignant at being credited with the responsibility of making the erroneous announcement. He had absolutely nothing to do with the report except that he gave permission to the Independent Press to exhibit upon his shop front any intelligence that might come to hand. The announcement caused much pain and indignation & ought not to be made except on the receipt of official news & certainly not upon the strength of a mere rumour. c.02

July 1902 CDN

1902 07 01
Locomotive after hours, p2

1902 07 03
At the Central Criminal Court a clerk was accused under the Official Secrets Act that he did corruptly attempt to communicate certain information to R.J. Ashworth Sturton. He had written to Messrs Sturton Bros, wholesale grocers at Cambridge, who had a contract from the Supply Department offering, for a consideration, to supply them with information as to prices and future contracts. Mr Sturton communicated with the police at whose instance he wrote some letters to the accused, to which the latter replied. Eventually he was arrested. The judge commended Mr Sturton's conduct

1902 07 04
At a recent meeting of Newmarket Council Mr J. G. Cattrall opposed an application by the Salvation Army to hire the Town Hall on the grounds that the "music" of the Army "was all discord" and that it would "alarm the horses in the stables". Now W. Streeton, Divisional Officer of the Cambridge Salvation Army has written to him saying that such refusal will not keep them out of Newmarket. He continues "Thanking you for your assistance (?) to the work of God and reminding you that Eternity is in the future and you may be called into account for your influence in the above matter".

Ely pauper's last journey, p3

1902 07 05
PC Allen said he received an anonymous letter and visited the Admiral Vernon public house at Over on the night of the annual meeting of the Stock Club. He passed through a small bar into the room where there were 40 people. There was a central table and men were playing cards. If he looked through the window it was impossible to see the people who were gaming because people were smoking and there were a number of old high-backed chairs. There was a notice in the taproom prohibiting gaming but none in the room where the meeting was held. The Club paid 5s. for a room from which the landlord was excluded as it was necessary they should not have strangers among them.

Girton water, p3 *

1902 07 07
Histon feast, p3 *
Photographic convention, p3 *

1902 07 08
Photographic convention, p3
Cambridge & Chesterton, p3

1902 07 09
Sir – the County Council is much misunderstood by the majority of Cambridge people who seem to regard us with suspicious eyes and seek to alienate the town and county by setting up Cambridge as a County Borough. As I look back over the last 14 years there is not a single instance where Cambridge has not had the utmost consideration and fairness of treatment from the hands of the County Council. The setting up of the backs of Cambridge people against the Council is the work of a small body of discontents – C.C.

Tennis Court Road accident, p2
Ashwell tithe map, p4

1902 07 09 c
At a sale at the Lion Hotel, Cambridge a terrace of three newly-erected villas upon the Cherryhinton Road was put up for auction. A hint was made about electric trams which it was hoped would shortly be in vogue and increase the value of such a property. At £1,125 the three villas were knocked down to Mr Goldsmith. Two dwelling houses in Catharine Street were sold for £160. The auctioneers stated they failed to see how such property could depreciate in value. Bidding for four cottages at Toft started at £7.10s. apiece and were eventually sold for £65

1902 07 10
It is not a common feat to take down stone by stone, transport for fourteen miles and re-erect, practically without alteration, a solidly-built church capable of accommodating some 250 worshippers. That is what has been done with regard to the old Roman Catholic Church of St Andrew at Cambridge which has been removed to St Ives. The church is one of Pugin's earlier masterpieces and for 59 years it was in use in Cambridge. Then it was superseded by the magnificent new church of Our Lady and the English Martyrs. It was in danger of falling into a ruinous condition when the idea was conceived of transporting it to St Ives. # c.83

Photographic enlarging, p3

1902 07 11
One of the most fashionable weddings seen in Haverhill for a long time was that when Miss Katherine Gurteen and Mr R. Ellis Long of Lolworth were united in the bonds of holy matrimony. The event created a great amount of interest amongst the townspeople, by many of whom the bride is greatly esteemed and she carries with her good wishes for her future welfare. After the ceremony at the Old Independent Chapel a reception was held at the Coupals, the guests numbering over 200. The wedding presents were very numerous and beautiful. The honeymoon is being spent in Switzerland.

1902 07 12
Cambridge welcomed the Photographic Convention of the United Kingdom, numbering some 350 amateur and professional photographers. Quite early this morning numbers, with their indispensable cameras, were to be seen about the town and many impressions of the most interesting spots and ancient buildings will doubtless be taken away. Permission has been obtained for small parties of members wearing their badges to photograph in various colleges and churches. The official group photograph is invariably taken by a local photographer and as so many are competent the post was decided by draw and Mr T.B. Hunt was successful. # c.65.5

Amalgamation question, p2 & p3

1902 07 16
Sir – if Cambridge and Chesterton are excluded from the County Council it will become a superfluous organisation whose few remaining functions could well be carried out by the Rural Councils. The loss of revenue would impose upon the rural districts a burden which would be simply crushing. What would Cambridge gain – nothing unless it is made a County Borough. But with the population of Chesterton, Cherry Hinton and Newnham Croft added Cambridge would still be short of the 50,000 requisite to form a County Borough – John Bester

1902 07 16
The day long looked forward to by the youngsters of Haverhill has at last come and gone, and the Sunday School treats are over for another year. It is an afternoon and evening of unalloyed pleasure. It was a sight well worth watching to see the 1,500 children all attired in summer dresses, marching through the streets to the strain of inspiring music. They were headed by the Haverhill Old Brass Band and behind them the members of the Church Lads' Brigade marched with their rifles at the slope. Wright's roundabouts, shooting galleries etc were in attendance and at dusk there were fireworks.

Hooley – Kisby's Hut, p3

1902 07 17
Cambridge Paving Committee had approached the vicar and churchwardens of St Giles' church to ascertain whether it would be possible to acquire a portion of the churchyard for the widening of Castle Street. They would agree provided that the work of excavating and collecting human remains be screened by a hoarding & the bodies reverently re-interred. Chesterton Road corner was a most dangerous one and when the improvement was carried out one corner out of the four would be cut back. # c.44.6 # c.83

David Scales & kidney pills, p4

1902 07 18
Now his Majesty is on the high road to recovery many places are holding the festivities arranged in celebration of the Coronation. Out of sympathy for King Edward these were postponed and now while the bright summer days and long mild evenings are at their best the committees are taking the wise course of holding the jubilations rather than wait until a later stage in the year when there is a greater chance of unfavourable weather. Unfortunately St John's ward, Cherry Hinton picked upon early closing day and any shop employee will say that this is practically synonymous with rain. Nevertheless the festivities must be written of as a success. # c.02

Workhouse coronation concert, p3
New Theatre agm, p3

1902 07 18 c
You can wash with half the work, and wash better if you use Fels-Naptha soap. The grocer who sells it to you returns your money if you don't like it. You mean that I can use your soap – use it up – and then if I think it wasn't good my grocer would give me back my money? Yes. Do you mean to say I can buy two bars, use one and get my money for both bars back? Of course. Aren't you afraid I'll tell him a fib? Not a bit – you won't want your money back – Advert

1902 07 21
Professor T. McKenny Hughes was summoned for riding a bicycle on the footpath at Cherry Hinton. P.C. Sanford said when he stopped him the defendant then began to complain and said the police would be doing better if they were moving the horses and carts on the road as they were a great nuisance. There was no traffic about at the time. The Chairman said the defendant was hardly setting a good example and would be fined 3s 6d and 6s 6d costs.

1902 07 21
The people of Sawston did their best for Addenbrooke's Hospital and exceeded the contributions given on the previous Friendly Societies' parade by several shillings. Members of the "Florence Nightingale" and "Star of Friendship" courts, headed by the Sawston Brass Band, marched to the Congregational Church which was completely filled for the service.

1902 07 22
The problem of the general servant is with us always. The tyranny of the domestic, her varying moods and fluctuating caprices seemingly know no end. Her demands have gradually become more peremptory and extensive for some years past and housekeepers have become painfully familiar with Sundays off, evenings out, cycles in the kitchen and swains in constant evidence. The Cambridge autocrats of the kitchen are now going a step further; the very latest request is a week's holiday at the Coronation. It is not stated whether the majority of them propose attending the Abbey # c.27

1902 07 22
Haverhill council called the attention of the police officers to the misconduct of roughs in damaging seats and shelters on the Recreation Ground after the ground was supposed to be closed. The obvious thing was for the council to fence it and enclose it, so they could close the ground entirely. Plates with enamelled letters should be obtained for distinctly marking each gymnasium & the custodian should report names of males using the female gymnasium and vice versa

1902 07 24

Chatteris, right in the heart of the breeders' country was the venue for the 1902 show of the Cambridgeshire Agricultural Society. It welcomed the society with open arms decorating its few streets as gaily as flags and bunting would allow. Visitors leaving the station passed under a triumphal arch of evergreens with the word 'Welcome' on the arrival side and 'Success to Agriculture' on the reverse. The number of entries and the attendance of the public were records and by mid-day 2,450 people had passed the turnstiles.

1902 07 25
P.C. Savidge said he was walking along Mill Road, Cambridge and noticed a motor-car which appeared to have been on fire outside Mr Storey's shop. A number of boys were looking at it and a three-year-old boy was on the path near the motor car. Defendant came out of a shop and deliberately kicked the boy with such force that he was lifted off the ground. The man said there were parts of the car liable to injury if meddled with by inexperienced hands. A number of boys were "pulling it about the whole afternoon". Time after time he warned them away and had "cuffed" two or three boys. The youngsters were a perfect pest in Mill Road and he considered the charge ridiculous. There was no doubt defendant lost his temper and he was fined £2

Mill Road flower show, p3

1902 07 26
An important property sale was conducted under instructions of executors of the late Messrs Edmond and Ebeneezer Foster. Amongst the lots were dwelling-houses, offices and shops in Cambridge and farm houses and cottages. A tailor's shop in Green Street sold for £1,500, & a newly-built farmhouse at Gt Eversden sold to Mr J. Fossey for £550. Livery stables in Gwydir Street Cambridge were withdrawn at £325, as was a residence in Scroope Terrace at £300

Charabanc drives, p3

1902 07 28
The people of Old Cherryhinton participated in festivities in celebration of the Coronation. They took the form of sports and a tea, besides various minor amusements, while music entered largely into the scheme of pleasure. 900 people availed themselves of the opportunity to take tea which took place in a large erection constructed of canvas under trees in a meadow. Beside this temporary tea-room stood a traction engine with steam up but it was not attached to any bread-cutting arrangement such as might have been necessary to cope with the extraordinary demand. It was used to boil water for the tea. # c.02

1902 07 29
A Cambridge man from Thoday Street, was charged with stealing two brooms and a pair of boots, the property of the Corporation. He worked as council yardman. A woman in Staffordshire Street said she had been living with the prisoner as his wife for the last four years. She saw him bring home brooms with "C.C." burnt in the top, which he filed off. He'd sold a pair of boots for 6s having told the buyer that the Corporation had provided him with them to go down the manholes and when he'd finished the surveyor said he might have them. He was sentenced to two month's imprisonment with hard labour.

1902 07 30
Cottenham, it would appear, has no desire to spend money upon such a necessary of life as water but is prepared to sanction money for the purpose of providing an illuminated clock tower to commemorate the Coronation of His Majesty the King. It is pleasant to see so much loyalty and patriotism, but it would be even pleasanter to see a much greater regard for the elementary principles of sanitation. The village has for the past 18 years wrangled over the water supply question until a second serious outbreak of typhoid. The matter is, of course, one for Cottenham people but we could have hoped they would regard pure water as of even greater importance than illuminated clocks

1902 07 31

Cottenham clock tower comment, p2 *
Transvaal war fund, p3
Swine fever, p4

August 1902 CDN

1902 08 01
Foster sale, Ely, p2

1902 08 02
The Ipswich Journal has ceased to exist. No newspaper can be produced for a penny per copy without a considerable advertisement revenue and while sales have increased the income from advertisements has as steadily diminished. Few things more vividly illustrate the change over the past 50 years. A paper once a week can no longer satisfy the needs of the busy people in our chief centres of population & unless news is "served hot" it fails to interest them. So the daily paper has become indispensable. However much we may regret the disappearance of weekly journals the inexorably law of change must be accepted. Businessmen are realising that in the matter of advertising there is a great gulf between the weekly and daily newspaper. # c.04

1902 08 02
All Saints church Newmarket vestry meeting considered tenders for lighting the church from the Electric Light and Gas Companies. Speakers pointed out the ease with which the electric light could be switched on and off and that it was the more healthy of the two. But arrangements for turning down incandescent gas were easily made, it was much cheaper and it gave out heat, thus saving somewhat on the coke for heating. The Gas Company manager guaranteed to reduce the present gas bill by at least a half as the incandescent system was more economical and cleaner that the flat burners. The committee voted four-four and it was decided to leave the decision to the Churchwardens, one of whom was strongly in favour of electric, the other gas.

1902 08 05
A multitude of people, many of whom travelled all the way from London, passed the Bank Holiday at Dunmow where the annual connubial competition took place for the flitch of bacon. Two couples claimed the trophy. The questioning and cross-questioning was conducted with the mock-judicial gravity for which the trials have become famous and the answers were often greeted with bursts of laughter. The husbands and wives came through the ordeal so triumphantly that the jury unanimously awarded each couple a flitch and complimented them on the great fact that in their cases marriage was not a failure.

Coronation celebration, p2
Theft bike, Castle Inn, p2

1902 08 06
At Rampton the Free Church Mission Hall, which has recently been completed, was opened for public worship. It is an unpretentious brick built building but was an ornament to the village and could strengthen the hands of local Nonconformists. Dr Harris said popular education was being Romanised and if the Education Bill passed in its present form in 20 years more of this regime would effectively Romanise the people of England

1902 08 06
Popular Country Drives. The "Alexandra" and "Coronation" char-a-bancs will leave Cambridge Market Hill on Wednesday for Shelford, Newton and Whittlesford; return fare 1s. Thursday special drive to Royston, Friday Haslingfield and Saturday Earith bridge. Special Sunday drive to Whittlesford Bridge pleasure gardens. H. Buck, jobmaster, Crown Inn, Jesus Lane, Cambridge – advert # c.26.46

1902 08 07
Bus company cruelty, p2

1902 08 08
After he had finished his sermon the pastor of Newmarket Congregational Chapel read a letter sent him by the deacons of the chapel which said that as seat rents and donations were falling off they were unable to keep up his salary of £220. There had been a lot of unpleasantness and it was felt the pastorate had better be brought to an end as quickly as possible. He said the Deacons had overstepped the mark. A meeting was held and proved to be decidedly more "lively" than such meetings usually are, some of those present walking out of the room while it was in progress.

1902 08 11
The venerable University town can have scarcely witness such as scene as animated gaiety as on Coronation Day. Street after street was bright with flags and blazing in a brave show of scarlet and white and blue. Visitors poured in by road and rail, in vehicles and on foot until it seemed as though the population of Cambridgeshire must have drifted en masse into the town and left the surrounding country empty and desolate. To and fro though the narrow streets, laughing, talking and singing the gay crowds eddied and swirled. # c.02

Crowd well behaved, p4

1902 08 12
All day the great mass of silk which was presently to make a journey to the skies was a source of deep interest. Around Parker's Piece where the balloon was taking its huge meal of 32,000 feet of coal-gas were rings of spectators. Slowly the gas inflated the silk, the aeronauts loosened the ropes and the balloon rose from the grass a graceful pear-like shape. After settling the final details Spencer gave the word for the two passengers to jump aboard, then with a startling rapidity the balloon leaped up and was soon several hundred feet above the earth. It first travelled in the direction of Hills Road but then, caught by a current of wind, sailed over to the Newmarket side. # c.26.1

1902 08 13 c
Enquiries were being made as to what had become of the balloon and her cargo which left Parker's Piece, where it had landed, and whether the two Cambridge voyageurs had returned safely. No one knew. One wag said that the quartet had been blown across the English Channel and landed at Dieppe. And there were those gullible enough to believe it. As a matter of fact the balloon did an hour's trip and covered 28 miles, landing in the grounds of Spencer's Grange at Great Yeldham in Essex. # c.26.1

1902 08 13
Mr Deasley told Newmarket Council that he thought some corner lamps should be lighted at Exning. They were quite as necessary there as at Newmarket. Mr Compodonico: Why have they not been lit? Mr Verrall: People go to bed at 10 p.m. at Exning.

Coronation, p2 & p3
Burwell murder, p3

1902 08 14
It would appear from a case of assault that the village of Balsham is not tolerant of strangers in their midst. A couple of shepherds were quietly walking along the road and were unfortunate enough to pass near two Balsham men who were engaged in a wordy war. "Oo's that, Bill? "Dunno". "Then 'eave 'arf a brick at 'is 'ead". The men of Balsham appear to have fallen violently upon the strangers for no other reason than that they were strangers. It might be just as well that peacefully disposed people should in the course of their wanderings in Cambridgeshire keep the incident in mind.

1902 08 14

A very serious incident has occurred at Thriplow to the family to Mr Arthur Wood, baker, as a result of eating tinned white herrings. Mrs Wood, the three children and the servant became seriously ill and Mr Wood himself, after driving the baker's cart for four miles, was seized with similar symptoms. The whole family are in a critical condition.

1902 08 15
His dusky Highness Lewanika, King of the Barotseland, with his equerry, arrived at Newmarket Station on a short visit to Dalham Hall, the residence which the late Cecil Rhodes purchased for something over £100,000 shortly before his death. Their advent was almost unnoticed as the secret of the time of their arrival had been so well kept that even at the railway station it was unknown. The Newmarket Town Band had been retained to play at Dalham at a garden party but no definite date was given until late on Wednesday. The king played croquet on the fine lawn in front of the Hall and returned to the station for the London train.

Milton coronation, p2

1902 08 16
The Cambridge Express has joined us in sounding a note of warning with regard to the proposed establishment of a municipal telephone system for Cambridge. From a financial point of view the experiment would be decidedly risky. Moreover no one can reasonably find fault with the efficiency of the existing telephone service, although everyone would like to see a reduction in the charges. Even in Tunbridge Wells where municipalisation was taken up with peculiar enthusiasm, they have done little than to pay working expenses. # c.27.7

1902 08 16
At various times I have had occasion to refer to the destruction of fish by the discharge into the Cam of poisonous matter, either from the Gas Works or the Sewage Farm. After the heavy rain last week the destruction of fish was very great. At Baitsbite locks carcasses covered the surface of the river over a large area. The serious danger is that such poisoned fish may by some thoughtless juveniles be taken home and eaten. Serious illness has been caused by precisely similar means.

1902 08 18
Waterbeach coronation, p2
Newmarket minister death pulpit, p3

1902 08 19
A correspondent from Six Mile Bottom describes a most destructive flash of lightning witnessed on 7th August. One person saw a burst of smoke mingled with a shower of leaves rise from the shrubbery; another saw a horizontal flash and a third was almost dazed by a discharge that seemed to take place at his very feet. A tremendous crash of thunder accompanied the triple flash and three distinct cases of damage were discovered. In one place the ground had been ploughed up, ivy being burnt up and a large flint split. An oak post was cut clean in two and a horse chestnut truck, all three strikes being in a line with one another.

1902 08 20
Stones at trains, p2

1902 08 21
Sir – Is Cambridge becoming overbuilt? As one looks around it is palpable that many of the recent erections of new houses is hardly the result of demand, but of speculation. Its effect must be the deterioration of older properties, and wasted energy and capital in the newer. The census shows the population to be moving slowly and the demand for new properties correspondingly small. To see a town dotted over with properties "to let" has a dispiriting effect to strangers and residents alike, and more especially to those whose capital must be sunk in them – Observer # c.23

Market St paving, p2
Coldham's Lane widening, p3
Aldenham church lighting, p3

1902 08 25
The growth of the population in Cambridge is not keeping pace with the building of houses and in various parts many houses are constantly empty. But the absence of overcrowding is in the highest degree beneficial, not only to public health, but to the public morals as well. The housing problem is one of the most difficult of the day and the proportion of income which has to be paid as rent by artisans in the neighbourhood of London is so great as to make the problem of obtaining sufficient food almost insoluble. It is to be hoped that such a state of things will never exist in Cambridge # c.23

Oak Building Society contracts, p2

1902 08 25 c
A Sawston labourer was summoned that he being the occupier of a cottage overcrowded so as to be injurious to the health of the inmates did neglect to abate the nuisance. The building contained two rooms, one of the bedrooms being downstairs, and also a lean-to kitchen. There were eight persons living in the house, the defendant and his wife, the daughter and her husband, and their four children whose ages ranged from six to 12 years. The magistrates ordered that he should quit the place in fourteen days.

1902 08 26
Mr W. Saunders, the veteran captain of Histon and Landbeach Cricket Club has been aptly dubbed the local "W.G." [Grace] – not because of any physical similarity – his spare even youthful-looking frame cannot compare with the great girth of the one and only Doctor – but because both have long and honourable records in the game. He has been actively engaged in cricket for no less a period than 48 years. His career commenced in 1854. Later he and his three brothers took a prominent part in forming a club at Impington & he finally settled at Histon about 1884

1902 08 27
Melbourn rabbit theft, p3

1902 08 28
Sawston houses, p2 & p3 *
Stetchworth water supply, p2 *

1902 08 30
In Lincolnshire some experiments have just been made with a petrol motor specially designed to assist in harvesting operations. The new motor, attached to a reaper and binder, cut a field of barley in excellent style. After cutting the crop it drew the laden wagons from the field, and may also be attached to machinery for chaff cutting, pulping roots, threshing or grinding corn. It has also been tried with a double throw plough. On the point of cost it compares most favourably with horse teams and much less time is lost in handling. It can do the work of which a horse is capable and the cost of keeping or hiring a steam engine is thus to a great extent saved

Gas, p2

September 1902 CDN

1902 09 01
Boy injured Driver's farm, Stretham, p3

1902 09 02

An entirely new company is responsible for the programme at the Auckland Road Circus, Cambridge this week. The judicious mixture of "turns" by music hall artists and items by circus performers of the old stamp seems to find favour with Cambridge audiences. Miss Babette Rose, a clever vocalist and dancer merited the applause awarded her. Ecnarf, a wire walker was vigorously applauded and one of the most enjoyable items was a clever act on horseback by Miss Daniels. The Sisters Korosko Bale gave a clever exhibition of juggling, a feature being their performing pigeons. # c.76

Coronation tea, p2

1902 09 03
At present owing to the long interval between the running of the trams thousands of people walk to and from Cambridge station who would gladly ride if they could do so without waiting longer than it would take to walk. Remarkable developments in electrical traction have been witnessed recently. The electric cars are speedy, clean and cheap but whether it would be possible to install in Cambridge a system of electric tramways depends upon a variety of considerations among which is the extreme narrowness of the streets and the appearance of wires to convey the current. The electric tram with its two minute service and low fares has improved conditions in London and it is to be hoped its advantages will be extended to Cambridge. # c.26.44

1902 09 03
Burglars, evidently no 'prentice hands at their business, entered the premises of Messrs Norman Bradley, pawnbrokers, in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge and after rifling the jewellery department left with goods to the value of several hundred pounds. The establishment has suffered in this way before. Iron bars have been added to windows until it might have been assumed that everything was secure against even the most determined cracksman. So the thieves turned their attention to the weakest spot - the roof

1902 09 05
Yesterday young Cambridge celebrated the coronation of King Edward VII. Half of Parker's Piece was covered with twelve tents and soon the happy throng was taking tea to the strains of music furnished by the Cambridge Police Band. Over 800 gallons of tea were brewed, roughly 6,400 pints. For 6,000 children the quantity was abundant. The Mayor distributed commemorative medals which will doubtless remain treasured possessions for many a year. The centre tent contained a large number of people who were present at Queen Victoria's Coronation # c.02

1902 09 05
The oldest living printer in the British Isles is Thomas A. Hills of Ely who has reached the patriarchal age of 95. So hale is the venerable craftsman that it is little more than six years since he finally disposed of his business to Mr Tyndall. His 80th birthday was celebrated by the composition of a "Conditions of Sale" unexpectedly received after the staff had closed down for the holiday and which were wanted in a great hurry. Another proof of his wonderful vitality was the perfect performance of the duties of town crier in 1902, a post he held for many years.

1902 09 06
The Mayor of Cambridge, Alderman Kett made a tour of sixteen schools for the purpose of distributing Coronation medals to the infant scholars. It had been suggested that they should also be given a tea in the tents on Parker's Piece but it was felt that little mites of four could hardly be expected to walk to and from the Piece and it was more advisable to provide tea for them at the various schoolrooms. At East Road school tea had to be provided for 250 infants and the cutting up of the large quantity of bread and cake entailed several hours for work for the teachers. # c.02

1902 09 08
Sir – Of all places Cambridge seems to suffer most from the plague of bell-ringing. It is not time the custom was discouraged? Now every home possesses at least one timepiece church bell-ringing seems superfluous. What must be the sufferings of any nervous invalid in or near Jesus Lane, compelled to lie and listen, sometimes for twenty minutes on end, to the doleful "Ding, dang, dong" which comes from that direction. Why should people be allowed to murder the calm of a Sabbath evening with the hideous din of their bellwhacking? – Americus

Accidents, p3

1902 09 09
Newmarket council considered that owing to the prevalence of motor vehicles the reason which formerly existed for the Council's steam roller not being used in the streets between the hours of 8 a.m. and noon had now been to a great extent removed. They were losing four hours' work daily. The bye-law had been made at the wish of the trainers but horses were not frightened of the steam roller in these days when motors dash past them every day.

Death Spring Rice, p3

1902 09 10
An accident took place at Pampisford. A party of ten, including young children, were on their way to Abington in a waggonette. A halt was made near the station where the horse nodded its head, causing the bridle to fall off. The driver got down & the horse bolted, going four miles into Abington where the waggonette was overturned, the front part was broken, but the horse was unhurt. It is a most marvellous thing all the passengers were not killed.

1902 09 11
Photographic exhibition, p3

1902 09 13
The annual meeting of Newmarket Football Club heard that interest in the club diminished when through some mistake the team was ruled out of the cup tie. After that the season was more or less a failure. A sort of split had followed, and another club had been started. There was not room in the town for two good clubs and they hoped that an amalgamation would be arranged. It did not matter under what named they played but all the best players should belong to one club

1902 09 13
Squires suggests camera club, p2

1902 09 15
The Horticultural Society's photographic exhibition was a great improvement on last year. The amateur photographer was apt to follow the lead of the professional and be influenced by his window exhibits. The professional photographer had absolutely the last chance in the world of producing the best photography because he had to work at a price and gain a livelihood. The Rev H.R. Campion, Ely, won a silver medal for a photograph of the entrance of Bishop West's Chapel, Ely and A.G. Swannell was commended for a study of Houghton Mill. # c.65.5

1902 09 15
The mystery attaching to the discovery of a suit of khaki clothing on the river bank at Clayhithe has been solved in a remarkable manner. The person seen by four labourers is declared not to have been a man at all, but a woman in disguise. When the khaki clothed individual carrying a brown paper parcel was lost sight of a woman appeared from the same direction. The theory is that the parcel contained not only a woman's attire but was further intended to be the means of removing property which was that night to be stolen from Norman Bradley's pawnbrokers premises in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge.

1902 09 15
Under proper conditions Cambridge cement is equal to the finest the world produces. The up-to-date methods of the Saxon Cement Company has resulted in it commanding a considerable advance per ton in the open market. The Admiralty, after protracted tests, has placed a contract for Cambridge

Portland Cement which will extend over a considerable period, proving beyond doubt that the local deposit is in every way suited for producing a perfect natural cement. # c.27

1902 09 16
The news that it has been decided to wind up the business of the Cambridge Omnibus Company will be received with a great deal of regret. If they cease running they will be very seriously missed. Many employees in shops and offices now live so far from their places of employment that without the benefit of the omnibuses it would be a serious tax on their strength to get to and from their homes in the hour usually allowed for dinner. The distance of the remoter parts of the town from the station will be a serious disadvantage to residents and lead to depreciation in the value of property. # c.26.44

1902 09 16 c
Sir – Many people have felt genuine concern at the announcement that the Cambridge Omnibus Company is to be "wound up". Huntingdon Road, Old and New Chesterton, Mill Road and the rapidly growing suburb of New Cherryhinton have all benefited by its service. It is regretted that in spite of the hundred the Company has conveyed daily, the venture does not pay. Their difficulty is the Tram Company's opportunity and they should arrange for a good suburban service of 'buses to run in conjunction with their cars – New Cherryhinton # c.26.44

1902 09 17
Exning shooting, p3
Charles Flack music seller bankruptcy, p3
Brewing beer, p4 *

1902 09 18
Histon vicar leaving, p3

1902 09 20
Soham Grammar School is keeping abreast of the times and of modern educational requirements. Under the present headmaster, Mr W.H. Mould, the number of scholars has risen from 20 to nearly 70. Though of ancient foundation a progressive spirit pervades the establishment as is evidenced by the addition of a laboratory and workshops. Here the art and woodwork master, Mr F.V. Worthy will instruct the boys in woodwork and the use of tools. The object is not to turn out carpenters; it is to train the boys' faculties so they will have an intelligent appreciation of the value of work and of workpeople.

Early closing, p3

1902 09 23
Housebreaking, p2

1902 09 24
Cambridge Football Association heard that on many college grounds football was played up to Christmas and the ground was prepared for cricket afterwards. The same thing should be done on Parker's Piece. Manuring had already begun. The manure was the sweeping of the streets, which had not been sifted, but had been raked. People were going over the ground and picking up stones. To start to play football and then proceed to manure the ground was giving with one hand and taking away with the other. The surveyor had said he hoped that some rain would come and wash it in. # c.32.3

Histon welcome soldiers, p4

1902 09 25
There was a large attendance at a meeting to discuss forming a Camera Club in Cambridge. A long time ago there was a club but it had died through lack of interest. Prior to that there had been a club in connection with the University. In the early 1880s it was going fairly strongly but ultimately closed.

Since then there was a club in conjunction with the YMCA but what they wanted was a club unsectarian. It ought to be social, but not political. Mr Tindall said he could get ten members from Ely and they had promises from villages all around Cambridge. # c.65.5

Posing as detective, p3
Linton pistol accident, p3
Poplar Hall Farm, Fen Ditton case, p3

1902 09 26
There was an exceptionally large congregation at St Mary's church, Saffron Walden, to witness the marriage of a couple who are both deaf and dumb and there were 30 who were unable to hear and speak. The contracting parties were Mr Frederick Baish of Cherry Hinton and Miss Emily King of Saffron Walden. The ceremony was performed by the Rev A.H. Payne of the Deaf and Dumb Church, London.

1902 09 26
All that is now left to the trader at Stourbridge Fair is the horse fair. This survives and flourishes where other branches of trade have declined. Buyers were in fair number and trading was brisk. Cart horses, hackneys and hunters, foals and ponies were offered for sale. One dealer, Mr Titchmarsh of Barrington got rid of about 40 carthorses during the morning. The pleasure fair consists largely of refreshment saloons and stalls from which pungent odours proclaim, even at a distance, the nature of the edibles on sale. Some roundabouts, swing boats and one peep show, in Garlic Row, complete the fair # c.27.31

1902 09 27
Early closing, p3

1902 09 29
A fire did considerable damage at 30 Bridge Street, Cambridge, a University lodging house situated close to the Quayside. The only fire in the house was a small one in the grate of the back sitting room on the ground floor, but this room was not damaged. In the front room most of the furniture was consumed and the walls and ceiling badly burned. The fire broke out close to a gas pipe and although the grate contained paper, sticks and coal laid in the usual way, the fire only scorched the paper.

1902 09 30
Mr Richard Long of the rectory Farm, Fulbourn, invited his harvest men and lads to a horkey. About 20 were present and after an excellent supper the company were amused by songs etc. A midnight vote of thanks was proposed by Mr Sam Long. Mr Richard Twinn also gave his men a horkey at the Six Bells. Supper was served in good style by Mrs Whitmore and afterwards the men were regaled with tobacco and ale.

Free Library report, p2
Dog cart accident, p3
Omnibus Company wound up, p3

October 1902 CDN

1902 10 01
It was a foregone conclusion that the business of the Cambridge Omnibus Company should be wound up. It was finally agreed to endeavour to dispose of it as a going concern and we are still convinced that under thoroughly effective management the business could be conducted at a profit. In the statement of company assets the horses were valued at £16 apiece but within three weeks their condition had changed considerably for the worse and the average is now about £6. The most valuable assets of the Company had been allowed to become seriously depreciated at a time when the Directors knew that to continue the business was impossible. This is one of the “glaring mistakes” which have been made # c.26.46

1902 10 01
A fire broke out in the women’s ward at the top of the left wing of Addenbrooke's Hospital. In a very short time the flames secured a firm hold and the unfortunate patients had to be removed. Flames burst through the roof and worked towards the centre of the building. Nurses and probationers heroically entered the wards and brought their patients to a place of safety. Many scenes, tragically distressing, were witnessed. To such proportions did the fire assume that it was deemed advisable to remove other patients and several afflicted old men were brought to the lawn. The news of the outbreak spread quickly throughout Cambridge and some thousands of people gathered in front of the Hospital. # c.21.4 # c.34.75

Dentists, p4

1902 10 02
The scene on the open plot of greensward in front of Addenbrooke's Hospital presented a curiously medley of hastily-improvised arrangements for caring for patients evacuated from the blazing building. Bed after bed, each with its living freight, was carefully lifted with stalwart arms and borne steadily to the quarters assigned to it in neighbouring houses. In the meantime the dull clouds of smoke rolling skywards from the Hospital gradually grew less in volume. The ceaseless exertions of the firemen were telling their tale and soon water pouring in a cascade down the staircase adjoining the blazing wing made it clear that the building was flooded to the extent that rendered the further spread of the fire improbable # c.21.4 # c.34.75

1902 10 02
In the centre of Cambridge a man will pay any price in reason for the tobacco which appeals most to his palate. But in other quarters, such as Mill Road where the small shopkeeper thrives and people like a lot for their money a great quantity of cigarette packets containing showy photographs and alluring coupons have been sold. Mr Banyard of East Road, Cambridge says customers gave over their regular brands for those with the coupons but the demand was chiefly in cheap cigarettes. But Cambridge undergraduates have not descended to packs of Tabs, or even to tu-penny-ha’-penny Guinea Gold.

Chatteris Friendly Society, p2 & 3

1902 10 03
The police report on the Addenbrooke's Hospital fire says they found a man at the top of a ladder with his head through the trap door leading to the roof of Victoria Ward, using a small hosepipe. Shortly afterwards the firemen arrived and after much trouble, mainly through the low pressure of water, got to work, but could not extinguish the flames before the roof and contents of Victoria Ward were destroyed. Police assisted to maintain order, regulate the traffic in Trumpington Street where there was a large crowd, and remove and restore patients, many of whom were in a fainting condition. # c.21.4 # c.34.7

1902 10 03
Addenbrooke's Hospital Governors heard the roof over Victoria Ward has been completely destroyed by the fire and the adjoining corridor is partially so. The plaster of the walls of the ward was damaged and the wards themselves are doubtless injured. The floor has been partially damaged. The beds, a quantity of bedding, linen, tables, chairs and other furniture have been destroyed or damaged and the ceiling of the Hatton Ward is also injured by water, so much that it will have to be taken down. All the property is insured.

1902 10 06
Earl Grey’s Public House Trust movement is spreading to Cambridgeshire. Moderate temperance advocates see in a public house specially organised to push the sale of food and non-intoxicants, but supplying drink to those who desire it, one of the best and most certain means of lessening the terrible amount of excessive drinking which unhappily prevails in this country. The managers have absolutely no financial interest in the sale of drink which strikes at the root of an abuse which goes on far too extensively – the supplying with drink of men, who if not absolutely drunk, have obviously had more than is good for them. # c.27.4

Cottenham fire, p3

1902 10 07
A Newmarket man was summoned for betting on the highway at Exning. PC Clark said he saw defendant came out of the Cherrytree Inn and walk up and down. People came up and slips of paper were given to him. He asked defendant for the slips and, after the names of the horses had been entered into a book, they were handed to him. In mitigation the man said he had acted in ignorance of the law – proved by the fact he had been making bets in the face of the policeman. This and the fact that betting was carried on by a large majority of the people of Newmarket led him to believe he had done nothing wrong. He was fined 2s 6d with 7s 6d costs.

1902 10 07
Sir – Canterbury Road, Chesterton was made by ourselves, as owners, at a cost of £90, in the anticipation at the Council would take it over, which they promised to do. We have asked them several times to do so and the only excuse they make is that it must be steam rolled. We have had it rolled. We have worked in every way to conform to their orders and the only reason we have placed posts across the road is to protect and preserve the road from being cut up by vehicular traffic – J. Piddock, H. Riseley, E. Wonfor

1902 10 08
Kensit's death, p3
Newmarket betting, p3
Coronation Committee work, p3

1902 10 09
Sugden at New Theatre, p3
Photographic club, p4

1902 10 11
The proprietors of the CDN also publish the "Ely Weekly Guardian" and is represented in Ely by a reporter who devotes his whole time to our service. Messrs Sharman and Co publish the "City of Ely Standard" which competes in the surrounding district. During the past few months large quantities of news have been taken from the CDN and published in their paper. Now we have received a letter from Mr A. Sharman to say he has requested his staff to refrain from "scissors and paste" in future. # c.04

1902 10 11
The villagers of Girton hope to conclude their celebration of the Coronation in November. The commemorative festivities have been taking place by instalments. Two celebrations are now things of the past. It is singular that neither of them coincided with the ceremony the memory of which they were meant to perpetuate. On the original date a tea was held but subsequently no time could be spared for anything less serious that the harvest. Wet weather accounts for the third postponement until "the Fifth" when the villagers will see a fireworks display and then at last Girton's Coronation festivities will be over

Orchestra Society, p2

1902 10 13
In consequent of the strike amongst the coal workers in the United States large quantities are being exported from this country to the benefit of the colliery owners but to the detriment of the home consumers. October is a month in which the reoccupation of the colleges and the advent of cold weather create an immense demand for coal in Cambridge but the quantity at the depots in the Great Eastern district are somewhat below the average. Wood blocks which develop an enormous quantity of smoke & smoulder in a depressing manner now command a quicker sale than before.

1902 10 14
A Bottisham farmer was summonsed for unlawfully killing a bustard. His cowman saw a bird walking about among the cabbages and shot it. He gave it to the farmer who, not knowing what it was and whether it was good for food, took it to Mr Stanley's at Cambridge who said he thought it was a sort of turkey. It was sent to be stuffed at Mr Farren's who identified it as a great bustard, about two years old, worth about £20. The Chief Constable said a bird of this kind had been seen at Swaffham Fen and he had 30 placards with reference to its protection posted up. The man was fined £2

1902 10 14
The New Edisonograph Animated Pictures were presented for the first time in Cambridge. They are by far the best yet seen, being considerably larger than usual and without any flicker. The Coronation pictures are exceptionally clear and very vivid are the pictures of the Prince and Princess of Wales visiting the dinners to the poor in London. For those sentimentally inclined nothing can be finer than the "Soldier's Return from the War" – to find the house to let and his mother in the Workhouse. The band of the University Volunteers is engaged and add much to the evening by their appropriate music. The pictures will be changed nightly and animated scenes of Cambridge streets will be presented. # c.76.9

1902 10 15
At Cambridge Photographic Club the President (Dr Bansall) said pictorial work – by which he meant the making of pictures and not "fuzzygraphs" - was one of the most delightful branches of their art. It was easy to obtain a really high-class portrait for a reasonable sum of money, but the re-toucher polished away all the defects of the sitter's face. Cambridge was fortunate in having a first-rate colour photographer in Mr Stoakley who would give a demonstration of what he had done in this wonderfully interesting work. # c.65.5

1902 10 16
Football on Parker's Piece, p3

1902 10 17
The manager of the Cambridge Tramways Company was summoned for damaging, injuring and spoiling the public convenience situated at Hyde Park Corner by scribbling on the woodwork with a pencil, thereby doing damage to the amount of 2s. After looking round to see if the custodian, Mr Thompson, was there he had scribbled "Thompson, old pig" on the woodwork.

1902 10 18
Oliver St John of the Phoenix Brewery, Little Shelford, brewer trading as Saunders and Co applied for discharge from bankruptcy. In 1887 he had started as a brewer in Whittlesford, purchasing the business as a going concern. In 1892 he left, having lost the whole of his capital and became tenant of a brewery at Lt Shelford, borrowing from his brother. In 1892 he gave a bill of sale in favour of his brother for the plant, barrels and effects but next year was pressed by other creditors.

1902 10 18
As the King drove to Newmarket races in an open carriage an Italian organ-grinder named Arpino was grinding out the strains of "When the boys come marching home once more". When the Royal carriage passed the Italian raised his hat and held it as is customary with him for a coin. The King ordered the carriage to stop. Arpino ran to catch it up and said, in Italian, "Good morning, King". This unusual mode of address evidently caused the King considerable amusement for as the carriage drove off he was thrown a florin. Arpino now says the King has "patronised" him and he intends to have the Royal Arms painted on his organ.

1902 10 22
St Mary's church, Swaffham Prior, having been for years the ruinous companion in the same churchyard, of the parish church of St Cyriac is now open once more for public worship. The work of restoration had been proceeding for a considerable time. It is now probably one of the most unique looking sacred buildings in all England. The old and new parts form a bizarre combination. Above a new roof are the remains of what has been a magnificent Norman tower. About half of it is left and is still extremely picturesque. Before a large congregation the Bishop conducted the re-opening service after which St Cyriac's ceased to be, and St Mary's became the parish church.

Acton library to UL, p2

1902 10 23
Swaffham Prior church, p2 & p4 *

1902 10 24
The members of the Cambridge Y.M.C.A. celebrated their jubilee with a soiree in their rooms in Alexandra Street. 50 years ago the Church of England Young Men's Society and the Sunday School Teachers' Institute amalgamated, forming the Association. It settled in Rose Crescent. In 1853 it moved to larger premises at 5, Sidney Street, moving to Hobson Place in 1858 and then St Edward's Passage. In 1870 the first stone was laid of their present building; it was completed a year later. To call the soiree a success is scarcely adequate; the visitors never had a dull moment from the time they entered the door until the National Anthem brought the evening to a close. # c.37.9

1902 10 25
Not long ago the remotest of all probabilities seemed to be that a time would come when, at Cambridge, Briton and Boer would grasp hands in perfect concord. Yet that strange event has come to pass. Boers visited and received a cordial welcome from a large number of people. But unfortunately their reception by a certain section of the inhabitants had neither the element of cordiality nor of welcome. The appearance of our former foes was the signal for a hostile demonstration. A huge crowd gathered in front of the Auckland Road Circus to witness the arrival of the Generals, whose visit was to raise money to restock Boer farms. Bricks and stones were hurled upon the zinc roof and hooting and shouting mingled with the other noises. # c.45.4

1902 10 27
Burwell murder trial, p2

1902 10 28
Boer generals, p3

1902 10 30
A most enjoyable evening was spent by about one hundred harvest-men of the Stretham district who were invited to supper by Messrs Bailey and Tebbutt of the Panton Brewery, Cambridge. Afterwards a concert was held in which local talent took a prominent part, especially a youth named Dimmock who shows great promise of becoming a good comic singer. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded George Wright who for several years has placed his large barn at the disposal of the guests for this annual feast and to Host and Hostess Jacobs for the excellent manner in which they cater for the large company.

1902 10 31
Ely council has conferred with the manager of the Gas Company as to the proposed new lamps on Ely High Bridge. It was agreed the light should be incandescent, but should the wind prove too strong for it the gas manager would substitute ordinary burners. Mr Archer asked if the bridge was outside the council's jurisdiction and whether they ran the risk of the expense for the new lamps being surcharged to the Council. The bridge was not theirs. The Clerk replied they were doing a duty to the district and he did not think they would be surcharged. He was quite willing to go to prison over it.

1902 10 31
An Ely man was summonsed for assault. Levi Denton said he was in the farmer's field gathering blackberries without asking his permission. Defendant, who had a large stick, came up and asked what he was doing – but he could see for himself. He then caught hold of his whiskers, knocked him down, kicked him and dragged him out of the gate. Mr Denton went back into the field for his basket. The chairman: "I observe one side of your beard is longer than the other. Was it pulled out by the accused?" Denton: "Yes, and they are on the field now, if not picked up" But he was on the wrong side of 50 and whiskers come out more easily at that age. The case was dismissed

November 1902 CDN

1902 11 03
The King was driven to Cheveley Park for a day's shooting with Colonel McCalmont. On reaching the park gates a number of children who had assembled cheered. No unauthorised person was admitted by the constables on duty at the gates to enter the park. Lunch was served to the party at the house of Mr Tuffs, the head keeper. The total bag was 2,159 of which 1,876 were pheasants. It was expected that the bag would have been far larger. The king planted a young South African tree in Cheveley Park in commemoration of his visit.

1902 11 05
Albert Pell of Wilburton Manor accused the land tax collector for the parish of Wentworth of wrongful seizure by distress of three lambs for land tax. He was the owner of about 1,000 acres in Wilburton and in 1900 had purchased two fields in Grunty Fen. He did not see how the land could be assessed for land tax in the parish of Wentworth. The defendant had come on to his land and taken away three lambs which had been sold by auction for £2 14s. But the judge found the land in question was properly comprised in the parish of Wentworth land had been taxed for over 100 years.

Burwell toll gate, p4

1902 11 06
The County Council considered a resolution from Sheffield City Council in favour of the compulsory adoption of the metric system. Alderman Fordham said there was an enormous labour thrown upon the children of the country by the present complicated system of weights and measures and if England were to hold its position in the trade of the world we should co-ordinate with the system of weights that generally obtained. The intricacies of the present system were difficult enough for Englishmen but to the foreigner were simply inexplicable. It was bigoted conservatism which resented a change of this kind (laughter and applause).

Sawston 'Flower Pot', p3 *
West Wratting vicar bike, p3 *

1902 11 10
Notice to Entertainment Providers. Messrs Coulson & Co of St Andrew's Street Cambridge have purchased one of the latest Cinematograph Machines that it is possible to get. This machine is capable of showing 2,000 feet of pictures without any breakages. Pictures shown are very bright and steady and any size up to 20 feet may be obtained. It can be used either in dining room or public hall with equal safety. Sleight of hand and other items of entertainment can also be supplied. # c.76.9

1902 11 12

On October 30th the CDN published a full list of creditors in a bankruptcy case and paid at the usual rate charged by the Bankruptcy Court. The following day a portion of our list was copied, without permission, by the Cambridge Independent Press and Cambridge Chronicle. We are determined to put a stop to the unacknowledged appropriation of our news by rival journals and both have now issued apologies. The C.D.N. is the only paper in Cambridge which maintains a staff sufficiently large to deal properly with events and it is intolerable that our rivals should supplement their deficiencies by taking from our columns without permission the news they cannot obtain for themselves. # c.04

1902 11 12
The report of the committee on the fire at Addenbrooke's Hospital shows that the fire did not originate from any carelessness, but from the improper construction of the building itself. Joists have been found extending to the interior of the chimneys, which the committee regards as dangerous. The marvel is that it was ever permitted. If this method of construction prevails generally then some rather extensive alterations will have to be faced. # c.21.4

1902 11 12
W.B. Redfern told Cambridge Photographic Club that he remembered a man standing at the corner of Parker's Piece taking photographs of a most ghastly character. At the time they thought they were works of art. Many of them were daguerreotypes and they saw a sort of ghost of themselves. Now Cambridge had some of the best photographers in the kingdom. Mr F.J. Stoakley lectured on photography in natural colours and the Sanger Shepherd process. # c.65.5

1902 11 13
Newmarket councillors will ask the Great Eastern Railway Company to run a certain number of the special trains in race week to and from the old station because of the serious effects upon tradesmen caused by the opening of the new railway station. In the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire weeks when race trains were sent to the old station people had patronised the shops of the tradesmen on the road to the course and that showed plainly what a loss the diversion of the traffic had been. But the Railway Company considered their own interests before those of the town.

Trinity Place fire, p3 *

1902 11 14
When Cambridge council decided to widen Castle Street by acquiring part of St Giles' churchyard the improvements necessitated the demolition of the wall and the removal of human remains from the consecrated ground. This work is now being proceeded with as reverently as possible. A considerable exhibition of morbid curiosity to view what is being done has been manifested, but it has received every discouragement from those responsible for the proper exhumation and reinterment.

1902 11 14
A piece of work, involving operations similar to those by which the "Tube" railway was constructed, is on the point of being finished, having been in progress for nearly twelve months. It is the sewer connecting the New Cemetery with the Sewage Farm, Cambridge. Its length is over a mile and in some places it is laid to a depth of 24 feet. The greater part of the work has been done by the "tunnelling" system and carried out entirely by Cambridge men under the supervision of the Borough Surveyor # c.29.8

Burwell tragedy, p3

1902 11 14 c
The widening of Castle Street, Cambridge, by acquiring parts of St Giles' churchyard has necessitated the demolition and transference of the churchyard wall, as well as the removal of human remains from the consecrated ground. A considerable exhibition of morbid curiosity to view what is being done has been manifested, but it has received every discouragement from those responsible for the proper conduct of exhumation and reinterment.

1902 11 17
Young England will learn with regret the death of Mr G.A. Henty. He was a soldier, miner & war correspondent but it was as a novelist that he will go down to posterity. He was born at Trumpington and went to Caius College, Cambridge, but before he could take his degree an opportunity occurred which was irresistible to a young man of his adventurous temperament. The Crimean War broke out and he received an appointment in the Purveyor's Department of the Army. His stories for boys numbered considerably over eighty and he sometimes produced a book in three weeks.

1902 11 17
A serious accident occurred at Hyde Park Corner, Cambridge. Two horse attached to a farm cart became restive when passing a flock of sheep and dashed off at great speed in the direction of the shelter at the corner of Lensfield Road. An old man who was crossing the road was knocked down and considerably injured. The cart came violently into contact with the shelter, the railings around the entrance to the public convenience were dislodged and the stonework supporting them broken in several places.

1902 11 18
Newmarket sewerage, p3
Littleport fatal accident, p3

1902 11 20
Unfortunately the Cambridge Omnibus Company have been unable to find a purchaser for their business as a going concern and their horses, omnibuses etc had to be sold at their stables in Chesterton Road. A two-horse omnibus to carry 26 passengers fitted with garden seats on the top sold for 20 guineas. Buses by the 'Star Omnibus Company' were not in such good condition and realised £10 while others went for as low a sum as £4.10s. The one-horse 'buses did not sell for much but a four-horse charabanc, "The Cambridge Belle" sold for 62 guineas to Mr Ellis Merry. Prices for horses dropped to as low as three guineas. # c.26.46

Bridge over Corn Exchange Street, p3 *

1902 11 21
Valuable licensed premises for sale. In Sutton: the brick and slated beer house known by the sign of "Exhibition Inn" in Painter's Lane, containing tailor's shop and two bedrooms, stable and iron-roofed open hovel. In Hillrow: the fully-licensed public house known as "Two Pot House" containing tap room and six bedrooms, thatched stables and timber closet. In Haddenham: the beer house known by the sign of "The White Lion" in Station Road.

1902 11 21
Mr W.B. Redfern, the managing director of the New Theatre Company, Cambridge, is an attractive and familiar personality. He has completed twenty years of continuous theatrical management, which constitutes a record. The theatre in Cambridge has had to struggle hard for recognition and toleration; it has had to combat opposition to make its way to favour in the minds of those most ignorant of its possibilities. He has won almost all – we say 'almost' because there still lurk in the minds of reactionary and antiquated brains some feelings of prejudice which the theatre had yet to overcome.

Bishop Stortford farm fire, p2

1902 11 24
At Cambridge court Mr Redfern, director of the New Theatre, renewed application for licences to allow two children, aged 10 and nine, to perform at the theatre with Mr Edward Terry's company. The children's performance was not an acrobatic one; they simply came on and had some lines to repeat. They were under the watchful eye of a governess and their parents were travelling with the company which was on tour and acting every night. It was not unusual for the Government inspector to run down from Norwich to visit theatres in which children were acting and had always been satisfied.

1902 11 24
A fire broke out in a stack of oats and a stack of thousand-head at Parish's farm in Littlebury and the outlook became serious. There was a lack of water which was not accessible nearer than the river Granta and an unusual length of hose was required by the fire brigades. Then on Friday night a fire broke out at the rear of the Falcon Inn, Littlebury. A tank was placed in the middle of the village into which the Walden Brigade pumped water from the river while the Great Chesterford men pumped it on to the burning premises. Great consternation prevailed among the inhabitants who, from many cottages, removed all their goods into the street. The back portion of the Falcon Inn was damaged and the buildings in the yard destroyed.

Henry funeral, p3

1902 11 25
Littleport tragedy, p3

1902 11 26
The new motor omnibuses which are being constructed for the London streets promise well. If they fulfil what is claimed for them they will beyond question be a great boon. They are capable of speeds up to fourteen miles an hour and Cambridge people will heartily wish some speculative philanthropists would put two or three such vehicles on our roads. The old omnibus company is being sorely missed, especially by people living in the suburbs; the old familiar vehicles, unsatisfactory as they were, were yet better than nothing # c.26.46

1902 11 27
Dohany at Cambridge, p3

1902 11 28
The well-known fully-licensed Hoop Hotel, Bridge Street, Cambridge was offered to public auction. The establishment has had a long career, having been established in 1729, and was referred to by Wordsworth – "And at 'The Hoop' alighted, Famous Inn". Bidding commenced at £2,000 and rose to £4,000 at which figure the property was withdrawn.

1902 11 28 c
Newmarket RDC are to ask the County Council to use their influence with the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, the owners of the Burwell Ness Toll Bar, to ascertain on what terms they would allow it to be removed and the road made over to the public. There were a great many people in the neighbourhood who would be pleased to see the road open, including cyclists from all parts of the county.

1902 11 29
Coronation procession dinner, p3

December 1902 CDN

1902 12 01
Sutton circular saw fatality, p3

1902 12 03
Well-deserved tributes were paid to the excellent work by Detective-Sergeant Marsh. It has been owing to his sagacity and promptness that a number of exceedingly slippery rogues have been brought to book during the past few months. His capture of the man sentenced for stealing the cash box from Messrs Stearn was made in the nick of time – a few minutes later and he would have been too late.

One especially noticeable feature about his methods is his scrupulous fairness to accused persons, a matter of the highest importance in the proper administration of justice. # c.34.7

E.J. Mortlock, p3
Burwell turnpike road, p3 *

1902 12 04
A fire occurred at the premises of Messrs Redding and Son, Tennis Court Road, Cambridge. The outbreak took place in a shed where firelighters are manufactured and is supposed to have been caused by some resin boiling over on to some of the inflammable material lying about. The damage is considerable. A similar fire occurred on the same spot three or four years ago.

1902 12 04
The Provost of Kings said that whatever good had been done by the University Spinning House it was of a very rough and ready kind. It succeeded in arresting women in a course of evil, and sending them to their homes, but one could not say much for the humanising and Christianising influence that was brought to bear upon the women there. In any town there was a probability of evil and if they added 3,000 young men in they hey-day of youth, many of them without fixed principles of right and wrong, and a number of young women coming from bad homes and bearing an hereditary disposition for evil there must be some danger.

1902 12 06
Messrs Scruby and Wright sold by auction four brick-built and tiled cottages, nos. 195-199 High Street, Old Chesterton, with outbuildings and gardens, price £310. Two adjoining houses, 64 & 76 Sturton Street, Cambridge, made £330. The family residence, Primrose Croft near Victoria Road with over an acre of land, and the windmill and cottage on the Milton Road were not sold.

1902 12 08
Col Harry Leslie Blundell McCalmont, M.P. for the Newmarket Division of Cambridgeshire since 1895 died suddenly at his London residence. He served in South Africa and received an injury to the head through which he was invalided home, receiving on his arrival at Newmarket a remarkable reception from his constituents. He was a well-known owner of racehorses & his racing stud is housed at Cheveley Park. It was his custom to distribute thousands of head of game throughout the country and was especially mindful of his poorer neighbours. There were many claims upon his large fortune and he did much for the County Cricket Club which will be one of the greater losers by his death.

1902 12 09
The death of Colonel Harry McCalmont was received with incredulity in Newmarket and it was not until the C.D.N. arrived that the news became generally known and believed. At various business establishments the town blinds were down and the billiards handicap at the Conservative Club was not proceeded with. His death will mean a great loss but how seriously the town would be affected none were prepared to say.

Lame horse, p3 *

1902 12 10
Sutton inquest, p2
Colour photography, p3

1902 12 11
The buildings of the Royston Infectious Hospital are practically completed. Situate at the extreme end of Garden Walk it enjoys splendid isolation from the town – the nearest dwelling house is a quarter of a mile away. The whole of the buildings are surrounded by a six-foot fence and every consideration has been given, not only to preventing the spread of infection, but the comfort of patients. The wards, male and female, are spacious and comfortable. There is a bathroom with a portable bath and a linen closet with ventilating shelves.

1902 12 11 c
An inquest was held at Denver concerning the death of Elihu Lewis, the father of Mr H. Lewis, pianoforte dealer of Cambridge. The deceased, who was in his 70th year, was riding his bicycle and in consequence of the machine skidding was thrown under the wheels of a cart laden with corn. He was placed on a cart and taken home. A doctor said he had received serious injuries which must prove fatal. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

1902 12 13
A meeting of residents in St John's Ward, Cherry Hinton considered what support could be given to a scheme for running a line of omnibuses into Cambridge. Now buses had been taken off the road the value of their property would depreciate and the new houses being built would not be let readily as people would not come down that end of Cambridge if there were no buses. There was a possibility of their finding sufficient money to run a line of buses themselves if 15 people put £10 each into the concern # c.26.46

1902 12 13
One of England's most stately homes – Audley End – is to be let furnished. The original building was much curtailed in 1726 but there still remains the large hall with its minstrel gallery, the state apartments and the state bedrooms on the ground floor, contrary to custom. There are magnificent pictures and portraits.

1902 12 16
The landlord of the Boot Inn, Histon had the very nasty experience of being tossed by an infuriated bullock at Cambridge Cattle Market. The animal, a Scottish beast with very long horns, was being driven into a pen when it broke away, caught Mr Vialls with its horns and threw him over the rails into one of the pens. The horns penetrated his trousers and made a scratch about seven inches long. The wild beast was eventually safely secured and sold to Mr Mills of Cambridge without being brought into the auction ring.

1902 12 18
Cambridge Water Company sued Messrs Kerridge and Shaw for water supplied for a building in course of construction in Rose Crescent, Cambridge. The supply recorded by a water meter had increased from 78,000 gallons one quarter up to 220,000 gallons the next. A new meter was installed and consumption fell. They claimed the old meter must have got out of order. But it was quite possible considering the number of taps they were using that one was left running and the water wasted. # c.24.2

1902 12 19
Christmas shops, p3 *

1902 12 22
Christmas holidays, p4

1902 12 22
Sir – most large towns are closing on Saturday and thus giving their employees a splendid holiday. The plea against the Saturday holiday is that people are unable to cater for four days but it appears that in the neighbouring town of March they think differently, and if they can close there, surely we can here. The grocers' assistants have put in a lot of extra time and I think our employers could give us at least a half-day holiday – "Grocer"

1902 12 23
At the spacious premises of Laurie and McConnal, Fitzroy Street, Cambridge readers can secure anything they require for a seasonable gift. A special showroom is set apart for the display of cards, pictures, books, toys, games etc and they have a chose selection of mechanical toys which are quite a novelty in themselves. There is also a variety of artificial grasses and plants which it would be difficulty to tell from real; these would make very pretty decorations. There has just recently been added a lending library which includes books of the best-known writers.

1902 12 24
During a lull in the traffic at Ely Railway Station, Sir George Newnes, the former Liberal MP for East Cambs, addressed a gathering of railway men on the green outside the station. The railway audience was augmented by citizens who gave their former member a cordial welcome. The railway authorities, he said, had been very kind in allowing the men to leave their work to hear him.

1902 12 24 c
A good Christmas dinner is desired by all and Messrs Sturton Bros of Fitzroy Street, Cambridge are open to provide everything required. A good fat turkey or goose and a nice ripe Stilton cheese are their specialities. Their groceries are of the very best quality and in the hardware department will be found a large display of useful goods suitable for presents.

1902 12 27
The demand for electric light is continually on the increase and Messrs Millington and Everett, King's Parade, Cambridge, have a good show of high-class electric lamps which they are selling at 1s. These lamps are guaranteed to be much more economical than the ordinary electric lamp. Telephone and electric bells are also well displayed here. # c.24.6

1902 12 29
Messrs Bailey and Tebbutt, Brewers, Maltsters, Wine and Spirit Merchants, Panton Brewery, Cambridge. Price List. Strong ale 1s.8d. (9p), Indian Bitter Ale 1s.4d. (7p) & Stout 1s.2d. (6p) per gallon. Hennessey's brandy 6s. (30p), John Walker's (Kilmarnock) whiskey 4s.1d. (20p), Very Old 1876 rum 3s.7d. (18p) per bottle – advert

Gt Wilbraham heckling vicar, p3
Newmarket Christmas, p4

1902 12 30
The Auckland Road Circus, Cambridge, has re-opened under the name of the Empire Circus of Varieties and enjoyment of an excellent nature is assured at each performance. Several excellent 'turns' are included in this week's programme including the London serio-vocalist comedian, George Egerton and the first appearance in Cambridge of Leno, the midget comedian. The Great Dakota, an American necromancer in original stage illusions, keeps the audience in wonderment and laughter from the start. # c.76

1902 12 31
Electric light, p2
Witcham theft, p3
Littlebury pub fire, p4

1903 Cambridge Daily News

There are reader-printer copies and scans
Checked against diary

January 1903 CDN

1903 01 01
Young men and matrons, old men and children, gathered on King's Parade, Cambridge, at midnight to speed the dying year and welcome the new. Everyone was waiting for Alderman Deck who left his house a few minutes before the hour, carrying the rockets, to see the flight of which so many people flock to the Parade. Standing in front of King's gate the venerable alderman lighted the rockets and the crowds broke into hearty cheers. # c.39

Small-pox report, p3
Christmas Day accident, p4

1903 01 02
Ely Rural Council's surveyor prepared a plan of the Grunty Fen road showing the proposed building at Wilburton station by the G.E.R. Company. Mr Pell said it was a one-storey building and the man was frequently complaining of the dampness of the house. It would be better if the Company would run up a second storey. It was going to be a very expensive matter to force them to remove the building. They agreed to withdrawn their opposition provided the Railway Company undertook they would not further advance their buildings to the south-west corner of the station.

1903 01 03
Polling took place for the election of a Member of Parliament for the Newmarket division. Motor cars and carriages, the horses decorated with blue and pink favours were continually passing up and down Newmarket High Street. A motor car containing a number of labouring men pulled up at the polling station just after 8am, and as time went on the motors and carriages increased in number; at times as many as four motors could be seen in the street at one time. Some contained ladies who did their best to encourage reluctant voters to poll and in the majority of cases their persuasive powers were not used in vain. # c.33.3

1903 01 05
Ely football team paid their first visit to the enclosure of the Haverhill Rovers, and after a somewhat scrambling game were defeated. Give-and-take play followed for a time, good back play on both sides preventing the goalkeepers being troubled. Woodward had a good opening but the muddy state of the ground caused him to slip whilst E.R. Evans was tripped by Arber when he had got away. The final score was Rovers 5, Ely 0.

1903 01 06
At the kennels of the Puckeridge Hunt a tame fox belonging to Mr E. Barclay, the master, has lived in luxury and ease from infancy. Two months ago Reynard broke the chain with which he was fastened up at night and made good his escape. It was feared it might meet with its death when the packs were hunting but two men saw what they took to be a collie dog, called it and it stopped. They took it to Hitchin police station where the identity of its owner was discovered by the name on the collar. The fox was conveyed by train to Royston and reunited with its master # c.38 : hunting

1903 01 07
Saffron Walden rural council categorised its roads in four groups: main, (County Council) roads with which they have no concern; chief roads on which the traffic is considerable and heavy, such as those from Stump Cross and Ashdon to Walden; secondary roads in which the traffic is slight, such as that from Littlebury towards Ickleton, and accommodation roads leading to one or more farms or houses but with no through traffic, such as Cates' Lane in Ashdon and Building End lane in Chrishall

Apprentice's holiday. p3

1903 01 08
Cambridge tradesmen complain bitterly of the tipping system in vogue by the 'Varsity men by which they are compelled to pay blackmail on a very extensive scale. There is quite an army of college servants clamouring for tips and all must be satisfied if the tradesmen wishes to keep his University clients. The college porter 'farms' for Freshmen's lists. The minimum price for a list is 1s. Then there are the bedmakers, gyps and shoeblacks, all of whom expect to receive presents from the shops where 'their gentlemen' give orders. # c.36.9 # c.27.2

1903 01 10
In many villages the number of houses licensed to supply intoxicating drink is out of all proportion to the reasonable requirements of the population, with one to about 150 of the population. Many cannot by any possibility be profitable, they contribute practically nothing to the public and they may become a source of danger to individuals. There can be no good reason for a continuation of their existence and magistrates have decided to effect a reduction # c.27.4

Gas engine used, p3

1903 01 12
Licensed houses, p2

1903 01 13
Newmarket Urban Council have received a letter from Messrs Beasley, son and Nichols asking for a cheque to be drawn in settlement of their outstanding account; unless they receive a cheque in the next week they will place the matter in the hands of their solicitors. They are to reply that the council's account is overdrawn and they do not have unlimited credit, but the bill would be paid as soon as they got the money.

1903 01 14
Royston Fire Brigade only received one call to a fire last year, at Mr Ebbutt's in the High Street. The hose was in good condition, as were both the engines, although the wheels of the old engine were unsafe and needed repairing. In consequence of the death of Mr Matthews they were without a Captain; James Course, the foreman, should be asked to accept the post as he took a great deal of interest in the Brigade. A key should be provided and placed in a box with a glass front outside the station so as to give members of the Brigade an opportunity of gaining admission in case of a fire, instead of having to wait the arrival of the captain. # c.34.75

Ely Prickwillow case, p3

1903 01 15
The Directors of the Great Eastern Railway Company have replied to the petition asking them to use the old station at Newmarket for some of the race traffic. They remind the inhabitants that the large and costly station recently erected was the outcome of constant representations from the racing community who complained about the inconveniences of the old station. Keen competition has arisen during the past ten years through the establishment of race meetings at such places as Sandown and Lingfield resulting in the falling off of numbers attending Newmarket Meetings. This influenced their decision to build a large new station affording every facility to race goers as near the course as possible. The late Colonel McCalmont had planned to develop the land alongside for building purposes and thus add to the prosperity of Newmarket as a residential place. # c.26.2

Stretham accident, p4

1903 01 16
Samuel Sleigh, formerly occupier of the Blue Boar Hotel, Trinity Street, Cambridge, sued an architect for damages. In 1899 he took the lease of the Blue Boar which was very much out of repair, both structurally and otherwise. Trinity College, the owners, recommended Coulson and Lofts to carry out alterations and consented to expend £3,000, but no more. When the costs went over budget he had been sued for the extra but claimed the architect had been negligent. His case was dismissed # c.27.4

Riverside improvement, p3

1903 01 16
A sad skating fatality occurred at Cow bit Wash, at a point known as Brotherhouse Bar, about six miles from Spalding. A young lady, her brother and a man to whom she was engaged started off towards Crowland, skating on the new river which runs through the Wash. The water here is very deep and the ice giving way, all three fell in. Every effort was made to rescue them but the girl was drowned and the two men were in imminent danger, one of them being taken from the water in an exhausted condition. The deceased was the daughter of the district manager of the Wombwell Main Colliery Company. # c.38 : skating

1903 01 17
An inquest was held at Spalding touching the death of a young lady drowned whilst skating on Cowbit Wash. Her brother had made very gallant attempt to save her but there were two farm labourers only yards away. They could have saved his sister but they would not help. If only they had taken their coats off they might have reached them and got the girl out, but they stood looking on like cowards. He never saw such cowardice in his life. The jury strongly condemned their conduct, though who they were no one seemed to know. # c.38 : skating

1903 01 19
Littleport skating, p3

1903
The frost-bound ground prevented any football being played at Haverhill. The Rovers were due to play Bury Alexandra, but thinking the ground would be unfit they did not make the journey. The Bury team and the referee, however, made an appearance, and the latter declared the ground fit for play. The matter will therefore come before the West Suffolk League Committee and be dealt with in the usual way

1903
Ely court heard that an eleven year old boy was employed to ride a horse attached to a machine which was cutting beans in a field in Grunty Fen when another lad fire a gun at some rabbits. This frightened the horse and the boy was thrown upon the knives, which cut off his left arm and two fingers of his right hand. There was a considerable argument as to the wages for a boy of 11 years; he had earned 1s.6d. the day before for driving cows whilst 2s. a day was a harvest wage, and not the standard wage. Compensation was fixed at 3s. a week as long as he was incapacitated. CHILDREN

1903 01 20
The visit of General Sir John French will remain memorable for his reception by all sections of the inhabitants. The famous cavalry leader was sought after, first at the railway station when he arrived and later when he proceeded to the Guildhall where he received the freedom of the Borough. Lord Kitchener's is the first name on the roll of Cambridge Freemen and it's fitting that the name of General French should follow his illustrious Commander in the South African war. Many who have already been presented with the freedom have served under him and learned to admire him as an ideal commander who never asked them to do what he was not prepared to do himself. # c.35.7 # c.45.4

1903 01 20
Roads at St Ives assumed a dangerous condition for pedestrians, as a sharp frost had made them as slippery and smooth as glass. On Sunday morning one could skate from St Ives to Hilton on the main road, a distance of over four miles, without injury to the skates. Mr Thomas Phillips, wholesale fruiterer of the Market Hill slipped and sustained serious injury to his thigh. Mr Mason, the noted bone setter, of Wisbech, was sent for but could not come.

1903 01 21
An inquest was held on the body of a railway locomotive fireman. The engine driver said he was driving a train from Peterborough to London, passing through Shelford. The deceased had fired up at Shepreth Junction. On approaching Shelford bridge he saw deceased standing on the engine side of the tender raking coal towards him. That was the last time he saw him. He looked forward to watch the signals and first missed the fireman when approaching Sawston siding. If he had seen his mate fall he would have stopped at once. The body was found on line near the bridge # c.26.1

Fulbourn patient, p2 & p3

1903 01 23
Dr Cocks and his chauffeur were proceeding along Hills Road, Cambridge, in a motor car, when the car skidded. The front wheel turned into the gutter and came into contact with the kerbstone with great force. The wheel was completely battered and every spoke was broken. Fortunately no one was hurt and the car was removed to the Cambridge and Newmarket Autocar Company for repairs. No less than seven cyclists also had spills through the greasy state of the road. c.26.48

1903 01 23
An exhaustive test of the capabilities of a steam fire engine took place on the lawn before Addenbrooke's Hospital. At first sight the ‘steamer’ produced an impression of admirable workmanship and construction. For an hour and a half the mayor, councillors and a large gathering of the general public were absorbed witnessing how quickly steam could be obtained of sufficiently high pressure to start the engine. Blank cards were distributed for the insertion of the time at which smoke issued from the chimney and with these in one hand and watches in the other they stood watching. When up to pressure a great volume of water was thrown above the roof of the Hospital. # c.34.75

1903 01 26
The Sabbath calm at the Barnwell Mission services held in the Barnwell Theatre was rudely disturbed. Religious fervour had been well sustained and the atmosphere became somewhat overheated. The superintendent requested that the hot water might be shut off. The warming apparatus gave a series of resounding reports and the supply cistern overflowed, causing steam to pervade the auditorium. The congregation jumped to the conclusion that the Theatre was on fire and dashed out. The panic was worst in the gallery, which was filled with about 150 young people who made a dash for the steep stairs. The band stuck to their posts and played the greater part of the congregation out and the Benediction was pronounced to those who remained. # c.83.01

1903 01 26
An undergraduate told the court he was riding his motor car in Trinity Street, Cambridge. Opposite the entrance to Rose Crescent the car suddenly stopped in consequence of something going wrong with the gear. A hackney carriage was coming along and he held up his hand, thinking there was not sufficient room for it to pass the car. The cabman did not stop, but swore and carried on. The cab came into contract with the motor car and two mudguards were bent. The cab-proprietor was fined 5s. c.36.9

Barnwell Theatre, p2

1903 01 28

St Andrew's Street Baptist Chapel, Cambridge, is to be swept away and another more ornate is to be substituted. It has often excited the curiosity of strangers and not a little ridicule has been bestowed upon those who have worshipped in such a prison-like building. Even Charles Spurgeon described it as suitable for private executions. The new building will have both a tower and spire and be worthy of the prominent position it will occupy. # c.83.05

1903 01 29
Ely Cathedral church, p3

1903 01 30
A disastrous fire occurred in the quiet little village of Buckland. The origin of the outbreak is attributed to sparks from a chimney that was on fire alighting on the thatched roof of two unoccupied cottages. The flames spread with alarming rapidity and occupants of adjoining property set about to remove their furniture as the houses being very old bunt like tinder. In a short time six cottages were a mass of fire and were burnt to the ground. At one time the whole village was threatened with destruction.

February 1903 CDN

1903 02 03
A Fulbourn wood dealer claimed his horse had been bewitched and conducted an experiment to see who had bewitched it. He took two bottles to the blacksmith's shop and filled them with nails and pieces of hoof from the floor, then bought some pins and needles. At midnight he put water in a saucepan and boiled it with the parings of hoofs nails, pins and needles in. He sat quite in the dark. At last somebody came to the door but he was so frightened he blundered off upstairs. The magistrates attributed the condition of the horse to starvation rather than the evil eye and imposed a heavy fine. It is almost incredible that such fooleries should be believed, but the bucolic mind evidently lingers in the shadows of a century ago. # WITCH # c.39

1903 02 04
The most famous wise woman in the fens lives in the town of Cambridge itself. On market days farmers and labourers and servants come to seek her advice, cross her hand with silver and go away with spells for love and marriage, for the cure of all kinds of ills and good luck in cattle-dealing. Another famous Wise Woman lives in a cottage in a village near Newmarket. She does a good business in spells and charms, from wart-curing to love philtres. She has cured thousands of warts by a process of rubbing the root of the dandelion plant on the hard skin to the accompaniment of some incantation gibberish. On stormy nights she is still fondly believed to go for midnight rides on a broomstick. WITCH # c.39

1903 02 05
Application was made for a new full licence in respect of the former Three Horseshoes at Knapwell. It was discontinued as the former owner had extreme views on the temperance question and purposely shut the house up. The nearest public house was at Elsworth and if a man had to walk two miles to fetch his supper beer there was a great temptation for him to have more before he left. It was the wish of the inhabitants that they should have some means of obtaining drink in the village. Many lives were saved by the prompt administration of brandy during an illness; cases might frequently occur at Knapwell and lives be lost through there being no stimulant brandy. # c.27.4

1903 02 03
Steps are to be taken all over England to reduce the number of licensed houses, Bottisham magistrates were told. They have one licensed house to every 123 people. The Cow and Calf beerhouse, Swaffham Prior has not applied for a license, as one has been granted to a new house near the railway station & The Harrow, Fulbourn, has been closed. In the last year the landlady of the Crown and Thistle, Fulbourn has been convicted of supplying beer to a drunken person. # c.27.4

1903 02 07
A joint committee on the employment of barmaids has sent a resolution to the London magistrates asking them to recommend the employment of women in public bars shall be discontinued and no new employees be engaged. They believe the conditions of work are unsuitable for women and girls; it is quite customary for hours to range from fifteen to eighteen hours a day, seven to nine hours on Sundays. Thousands of women are employed in serving intoxicating liquors and find difficulty into settling into other occupations. # c.27.4 # WOMEN

1903 02 09
Sir – Christ's Pieces, Cambridge, would be a good site for the establishment of public baths. Vast number of undergraduates are at present unable to obtain the very necessary hot bath, as only a small proportion of licensed lodgings have fixed baths with hot water supply and few of the colleges are sufficiently equipped in this respect for those in residence. Country people of both sexes would also make use of the baths in the daytime – M.A. Hyman # BATH # c.32.3

Sawston fire, p3

1903 02 12
Mr Balding told Royston council of the dangerous state of the Royston Cave in Melbourn Street owing to the heavy traffic which is constantly passing over it. The apex of the cave was close to the traffic and there was a possibility of its giving way at any time, especially if a traction engine were passing over. Serious consequences might arise and it was a danger the council should consider at their earliest convenience. But the road is under the supervision of the County Council.

1903 02 12
Newmarket fever hospital was only made for 15 beds; they had had 36 patients in at one time which showed the hospital was not up to requirements. When the outbreak of scarlet fever occurred at Stetchworth there were nine cases in the hospital. They might get disease spread from one case all over a village in a very short time. There was nothing like isolation for stamping out these diseases. It was almost impossible for poor people to take the necessary precautions. # c.21.4

1903 02 13
The Rev Charles Crump, of Sawston, was summoned for riding a bicycle on the footpath. The police superintendent held up his hand and the defendant rode on the road saying, "You have fairly caught me". The road was in an abominable condition; had he been a young lady not a word would have been said, but he supposed the policeman was glad to catch a parson. He was fined 6d. An undergraduate of Caius College was summoned for wheeling a bicycle on the footpath in Round Church Street. He said perambulators and mail carts were being wheeled along the path and he was not causing any danger or annoyance. He was fined 10s. # c.26.485

1903 02 14
Messrs Laurie and McConnel are almost universal providers, for their extensive premises, nos.121-124 Fitzroy Street, contained many departments. Today they are no more. In their place is a great gap, a space which instead of containing the thousand and one articles wherewith to furnish the homes of Cambridge has nothing to show but heaps of charred timber, twisted iron girders and dismembered masses of masonry. The whole premises have been destroyed as completely as fire can destroy. In less than three hours they licked up goods and buildings valued at up to £100,000 # c.27.2 # c.34.75

1903 02 17
Many thousands of Cambridge people witnessed the spectacle of the fire at Laurie and McConnell's in Fitzroy Street. The crowd increased to gigantic proportions and to keep them in check it was necessary to stretch ropes across on either side. The Mayor, Aldermen and members of the Fire Brigade Committee watched the progress of the fire and the unremitting efforts of the firemen. The interested crowd did not let the firemen work without encouragement and the fireman with the nozzle working in clouds of smoke was cheered heartily when he commenced his task. As soon as the hopelessness of saving Lauries was recognised special attention was turned to defending the adjoining premises of Messrs Sturton and Mumford. # c.34.75 # c.27.2

Sherlock Holmes, p3
Snailwell wedding, p4

1903 08 18
Fire letter, p3
Newmarket sale, p3

1903 02 19
Disinfecting store, p3

1903 02 20
After the great fire in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, public opinion was strongly expressed in favour of the Volunteer Fire Brigade being in possession of a steam fire engine. It would require, with driver and stoker, eight men to work the engine and, with reliefs of the same number, would necessitate 16 men being engaged. But with only one engine they would have been able to play four jets on either the front or back of the fire, and one side would be entirely unprovided for. The engines and paid brigade would be so expensive that the town authorities would not be justified in incurring the outlay for protecting the few buildings at which they might be necessary. # c.34.75

1903 02 20
The Great Fire. Laurie & McConnal, Ltd., Universal stores, Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, will open their temporary premises in Fair Street with brand new stock of furnishing, general ironmongery, stationery, haberdashery, china and glass. Business usual in the Boot and Tool department, right opposite the destroyed building. – Advert # c.27.2

1903 02 21
There are many colonies of Dr Barnardo's children in Cambridgeshire, and no pleasanter life for them can be imagined than the breathing of pure air and association with happy village children, whose happiness is shared by their playmates. At Witchford there are no fewer than 22 boarded out from the Home. Two girls, one six year old and her sister, eight, were given a ride by the Vicar in his carriage while he made arrangement for meetings in neighbouring villages. He is exceedingly fond of children, enjoying the company of the little ones and shared merrily in their conversation. He took them to Stretham station and they walked back home to Witchford. # CHILDREN

1903 02 23
The Cambridge Corn Exchange exhibition of cycles and motors has become an annual event. Motors and motor cycles are as yet in their infancy and each year sees great strides taken towards perfection. There are on view some fine, up-to-date specimens of motor cars. The Mayor said he was a cyclist of some years' standing but his experiences of motor cars was very limited. He had been for a ride on a motor car, and thoroughly enjoyed it. Manufacturers were handicapped by stringent laws as to the pace motors might travel over public roads. While so many horses were about it was startling for them to find a vehicle coming at 20 miles and hour and making rather a peculiar noise. # c.26.485

1903 02 23
For some months Cheveley parish church has been in the hands of the builders who have just completed their task of thoroughly renovating the sacred edifice. Nearly the whole of the roof has been renewed, an entirely new system of heating carried out and the seats have been re-arranged. Wooden blocks have been substituted for the original flooring and red tiles laid along the aisles. A new vestry has been added and the organ rebuilt. The whole has been carried out at the expense of the late Col Harry McCalmont, who took a deep interest in the welfare of the parish. At the time of his death the building was not in a fit state to be used for public worship and there was something pathetic in the fact that his generosity prevented his funeral being held in the church. # c.82.01

1903 02 24
Exhibition, p3
Witchford fatality, p3
Newmarket rifle club, p4

1903
Wilburton Parish Council drew attention to the ruinous condition of Twenty-pence Ferry Drawbridge, the owner of the bridge refusing to do any repairs to it. They think it desirable that a permanent bridge be put up. But it was a public road on one side of the ferry and a private one on the other. It was not a connection between two public roads. Wentworth people again recommended that the well at the end of the village should be deepened to the extent of 15 ft. But pumping machine would then be required and the water would have to be filtered before it was used for drinking purposes. People were willing to pay the money. Samples of water from both wells in the village had been condemned for drinking purposes # c.44.75

1903 02 25
A serious fire occurred at Stapleford by which a house, known as The Poplars, was completely razed to the ground. It was large, spacious and old-fashioned, having been build about 200 years ago and was composed of woodwork, lath and plaster. Only the chimneys were made of brickwork and it is quite obvious that a fire of any size would soon destroy such an old place. Such was the case. It is believed that a spark from the wash-house chimney fell on the thatched roof and spread rapidly. # c.34.75 # c.61.7

Accident noise motor bike, p3
Photographers Tyndall & H. Campion, p3 # c.65.5

1903 02 26
Albert Chevalier in Cambridge, p3 *

1903 02 27
Twentypence Bridge, p3 *

March 1903 CDN

1903 03 02
P.C. Salmon told the court he had been called to Fulbourn signal box and found the stationmaster and another man in charge of the box with the door locked. The defendant, a signalman, was outside. He was drunk and creating a disturbance. Subsequently he'd gone back to the station, got inside the box and abused the man who had taken his place. The policeman had ejected him but the man remained very close to the station and was abusive. He had also been ejected from the Railway Tavern and the magistrates were glad the landlord had acted properly. He should always be careful in dealing with railway men. # c.26.2

1903 03 03
An inquest took place at Saffron Walden on a workman who fell from a ladder in the church whilst preparing for the erection of a memorial window to the late Lord Braybrooke. A labourer in the employ of Messrs W. Bell and Sons said he was in the north chapel of the church with the deceased. They were up ladders paperhanging on the screen for the purpose of keeping the dust out when he heard the deceased's foot slip. It was an accident and it was lucky he did not fall on the gas standard. The man was greatly respected and a most reliable workman. The jury passed a vote of sympathy to his widow and children. # c.82.01

1903 03 03

Joshua Taylor are making a special show of all kinds of leather and rubber motor clothing for drivers of cars and cycles. The exhibit includes the latest styles of long-thigh motor leggings, leather & tweed motor caps, gauntlet gloves, wind cuffs and foot muffs. They also specialise in mechanics' clothing including waterproof, wooden-soled clogs for washing down cars. – Advert # c.26.48

1903 03 04
Newton Hall sale, p3

1903 03 05
A petition for a new public house at Knapwell was considered by magistrates. The rectors of Conington and Caxton both said it would be a public advantage as there was not a public house in the village. There were 24 houses in the village proper, of which two were empty, two in which only women lived and three had not signed the petition. Three petitioners lived in one house, one had died and eight had left. Some did not live in the parish at all. One man had signed for 12 persons who could not write for themselves. c.27.4

1903 03 06
The well-known aeronaut, Rev J.M. Bacon, an old scholar of Trinity College said the afternoon of his first balloon ascent was a very boisterous one and it was only the consummate skill of Captain Dale that brought them safely to earth again. Not long afterwards Captain Dale was dashed to pieces and lost his brave life. He made one ascent to witness a wonderful shower of meteors when, instead of being up for two hours, he was drifting helpless for 10. His experiments in the use of a balloon in time of war and his races, carrying despatches against 70 cyclists, are well known and the graphic views which illustrated them made the lecture at Cambridge Guildhall additionally attractive. # c.26.1

1903 03 06
Thomas Askham was summoned for presenting a stage play, "Robinson Crusoe", at the Grand Circus and Hippodrome, Auckland Road, Cambridge, the building not being licensed as a theatre. There was pantomime action and considerable dialogue in verse. There was a temporary stage with scenery at the back and footlights. But it could not be described as a play, it was only an entertainment. The Theatre catered for the 'Varsity and the better classes and the more humble people went to this music-hall and circus. # c.76

1903 03 07
Zulus in Cambridge, p3

1903 03 09
A dangerous outbreak of fire occurred at 245 Mill Road, Cambridge when a lighted standard lamp was accidentally knocked over by a child. The contents of the lamp spilled upon the floor and became ignited near to the windows. Before the flames were extinguished the curtains, Venetian blinds and several articles of furniture were destroyed and a carpet and table cover badly damaged. News of the fire was received through the Mill Road fire alarm post but when firemen arrived at the scene with the horsed fire escape and tender the fire had been extinguished.

1903 03 10
Spitting, p2
Downing St fatality, p3 *

1903 03 12
There are a number of Canadian Farmers' Delegates offering to the depressed English agriculturist a chance in the farmer's El Dorado, Western Canada. James D Bambridge of Manitoba is visiting Cambridge to answer questions. The Canadian government gives a free grant of 160 acres of land to every emigrant, most of it prairie – virgin soil, rich in quality. It is not only farmers they want but all labouring classes, male and female, who can make $250 a year # c.22

Newmarket station roads, p4

1903 03 13
Sir – I read in the CDN of the advantages for the farming man in Canada. I know it to be true; I went to London, Ontario and found it a beautiful, healthy and prosperous country, inhabited by intelligent, hospitable people. I am sure that any industrious Englishman will have a hearty welcome in the Dominion of Canada – W. Pitstow, James Street, Cambridge. # c.22

1903 03 14
CDN editor leaves, p2

1903 03 16
Magistrates considered renewing the licences of various public houses. The Hoops at Barton was in an untidy state; at Chesterton the Castle Inn was much improved but the Prince of Wales had a great deal of accommodation and was the best in the district. The Black Bull at Longstanton was a genuine business for the benefit of the public and was absolutely essential. The George and Dragon, Swavesey had four bedrooms but the back entrance gave facility for secret drinking – this was a parish where there were too many public houses in proportion to the population. The licence was granted on condition the back way was closed up # c.27.4

1903 03 17
One of the best cinematographic entertainments ever seen in Cambridge is running at the Guildhall. The North American Animated Photo. Co. are showing some of the most interesting sights it is possible to conceive. Mr Joseph Chamberlain landed at Southampton on Saturday and on Monday a series of pictures were showing the Cambridge folk his reception. The operator was busy at work on Fenner's on Saturday where the Cambridge athletes achieved a sweeping victory. Music adds to the attraction. The entertainment will be repeated twice a day. # c.76.9

House prices, p2
G.P. Sennitt funeral, Stretham, p3

1903 03 17
There are several places of worship at Waterbeach but the one that most strikes the imagination of the outsider is the Baptist Church in which the Rev Charles Spurgeon ministered, and from which, even at the present time, the glamour of his personality has not departed. The members celebrated the centenary of the foundation of the church building which preceded the present one. It had a thatched roof and a brick floor and was burned down about 1862. # c.82.05

1903 03 19
For some time past the police have been busy in the village of Clavering, endeavouring to unravel a mystery. Five years ago a man, who appeared to be a man of means, rented an isolated farm where he was joined by a lady who was said to possess a considerable amount of money. She has since disappeared and nothing has been seen or heard of her. The man was charged with forging her cheque and bank notes amounting to £600 were found upon him. Now a skull, believed to be that of a middle-aged lady, has been discovered at the farm. # c.34.6

Matrimonial squabble, p4

1903 03 20
Cambridge Free library, p3

1903 03 21
A large number of ladies interested in cycling met for the purpose of forming a cycling club for the benefit of those ladies engaged in business during the day in order to provide some recreation in their evening and leisure time. Runs and picnics will be arranged during the summer with socials and dances in winter. No opposition was aroused until the question of colours was arrived at and light blue and pink were decided upon. There was a little more discussion as to how they were to be worn but it was decided to leave it to the discretion of the members. # c.26.485

1903 03 23
A two-year-old baby boy was found on a seat on the Cambridge Railway Station platform. Nobody could be found to claim the youngster who was contentedly munching a bun and entirely oblivious to his surroundings. He was fairly well dressed but had no parcel containing extra clothes or anything that could lead to his identification. The Great Northern stationmaster's wife (Mrs Fenn) took charge of the little fellow and he was subsequently given into the charge of the police and removed to the Workhouse to await identification. #
CHILDREN

Clavering mystery, p3
Strong cigar, p3
Barkway fraud, p4

1903 03 26
Since the declaration of peace last year the ranks of the unemployed in Cambridgeshire have been swelled by the steady influx from South Africa of thousands of discharged soldiers and reservists which has seriously upset the labour market. One cannot pay a visit to the tramp ward of any Workhouse without being impressed by the number of inmates who are evidently returned "heroes". In 1901 7,754 vagrants were relived at the various Unions in the district, last year the number had risen to 9.591. Cambridge spends the least per head – two shillings and three farthings – whilst Linton spends the most, six shillings and eightpence halfpenny. # c.32.1

1903 03 27
The little village of Saxon Street was the scene of a fire which resulted in the total destruction of two cottages, caused by a spark from a chimney falling on the thatched roof. From the moment the thatch caught fire the flames rapidly spread. Willing neighbours assisted with the removal of the furniture and one rescued a 70-year-man who had fallen from a stack and received such severe injuries as necessitated him having to keep to his bed. He succeeded in removing the old man to a shed but ran a great risk of losing his own life, the roof threatening to fall in and bury him at any minute. # c.34.75

1903
Why do men forsake public worship, asked the Rev Joseph at Cambridge Guildhall? Inquiries had been made of four men in a college kitchen. One said: "Because we don't want to be hypocrites"; another: "I get nothing there worth listening to"; the third: "The parsons are such humbug". The fourth said: "Because so-called Christian men don't live up to the teaching of Christ and the standard they themselves set up". In summer it was beneficial and in no way harmful to spend Sundays in the open air. # c.83

1903 03 30
Ely Social Anglers have some 40 paying members but there was a lack of enthusiasm. Although they offered various prizes for the best fish caught not one single fish had been weighed in. It had been an unsatisfactory season but surely someone had landed something worth weighing. Monthly meetings were held at which all members were invited to attend in convivial and piscatorial conversation and debate but they had not been a success.

NSPCC

1903 03 31
Wilbraham footpath, p3 *
Deserter. P3 *

April 1903 CDN

1903 04 02
Swaffham Prior rail accident, p3

1903 04 03
Cambridge Horse Club exists for the amelioration of the suffering of the horse as well as the benefit of the members. Not only was a member benefited if he lost a horse, but should the horse become ill it received prompt attention from their veterinary surgeon, Mr Bennett, and this saved money on doctors' bills. The number of horses was 177; during the year eight had been lost and £80 had been paid to the owners who were well satisfied with their compensation. There had been an outbreak of glanders but the disease had been stopped. #
c.19

Two Newmarket men were charged with assisting a private in the 3rd Suffolk Regiment to desert, by supplying him with civilian clothing and disposing of his uniform. A widow said the man had brought a red tunic to her house and asked her to buy it for a shilling and make a hearthrug with it. She found a number on one of the pockets and handed it to the police. P.C. Page said he went to a house and found a shirt, a pair of trousers and tunic. A day later he went to Swaffham and was handed a coat. One of the defendants said he had gone to a public house in Newmarket, got drunk, and bought the clothes from a man who said he had just come from South Africa # c.45.4

1903
Two Newmarket men were charged with assisting a private in the Suffolk Regiment to desert, by supplying him with civilian clothing and disposing of his uniform. Sarah Covey, a widow, said one of the men had brought a red tunic to her house and asked if she would buy it for a shilling and make a hearthrug with it. He also brought a coat, which he said would do for a man who worked in the fields, and a pair of trousers. He claimed his cousin who had been to the front gave them to him. Later he said he had met a man in a pub and had given him some old clothes in exchange for the uniform.

1903 04 06
An inquest was held on the former assistant manager of the Empire Theatre of Varieties, Cambridge. He had deposited £10 as security on taking the post and after he had held the position for a month this was to be returned to him in instalments. But the company was a failure and he had lost his savings in the venture. He had pawned his watch for half-a-crown and said he did not have a farthing. But he had £40 in his bank and his mind must have been deranged by his theatrical reverses. # c.76

1903 04 06
Since the members of Kensit's Wycliffe Preachers came to Cambridge there has been a general anticipation that a 'protest' by them would be made in one of the local churches. In an attempt to gain information as to their intentions two dozen opponents, most of them undergraduates, assembled at the Alexandra Hall to listen to an address. Afterwards a very heated linguistic duel raged over the doctrine of transubstantiation. Applause and counter-applause urged on the contestants to further efforts. A lull in the debate gave an opportunity to take a collection, which was contributed to by the opponents of the preachers. At the end one undergraduate asked whether they were going to brawl in any other churches tomorrow. # c.83

1903
A licensed refreshment house keeper of East Road, Cambridge, was summonsed for keeping his premises open during prohibited hours. P.C. Symonds said he saw a man eating something from a paper outside the shop after 11 o'clock. He told the owner he had seen a man eating fish, but the defendant said it was potatoes. The man had come in while he was sweeping the shop out and his wife served him. The policeman was in plain clothes and never said he was a policeman. The magistrates recorded a conviction, but there was no further penalty

1903 04 07
The Rev K.H. Smith told Ely Burial Board of the state of things at a funeral. The curator was busy and so was the gravedigger, with their respective engagements, and, no policeman being on duty, just before the interment the gate was left unattended. An army of little children came into the cemetery and he narrowly escaped being swept into the grave by their pushing. There should be some regulation that children should not be allowed close to the grave at funerals.

1903 04 07
Sergt Mobbs told Newmarket magistrates that he saw an electric motor car going up the High Street being driven in a very reckless manner. He followed the car to the Horse Shoe Inn where they saw the defendant leaning against it, very drunk. The policeman told him he was not fit to drive and another man said he would drive for him as he had to go to the old station to meet his master, Dan Maher, the jockey. When the jockey did not arrive the defendant decided that he would drive. The car was a silent one and when he drove off he turned the lights off and was arrested. It was a most dangerous thing for a person entrusted with a car to get into such a state. He was endangering his master's property as well as the lives of the public and was fined 20s.
Secretaries association, p3

1903
Interest in the Moat Farm Mystery has been stimulated by an action against the editor of the 'Daily Express' for contempt in publishing articles tending to prejudice the fair trial of the man now under remand by Saffron Walden magistrates. They had put forward the theory that he had murdered the lady whose cheque he was said to have forged. Other applications were made against the 'News of the World' who had published an article practically copied from the 'Express', and the 'Star', which had alluded to another charge of forgery against him. The Lord Chief Justice said it was right to comment upon mysteries and undiscovered crimes but the 'Star' had gone beyond fair comment and seemed to connect the person charged with one of the crimes.

1903 04 08
There is every probability that the baby recently found at the G.N.R. station has now but a short time to stay at Cambridge Workhouse. There have been two or three applications to adopt the child. One, from the neighbourhood of East Road which read: 'I have been thinking you might like to board it out', created a considerable amount of laughter but did not appeal to the Guardians. A very respectable tradesman and his wife were very anxious to adopt the baby and inquiries should be made.

Saffron Walden Salvation Army, p4

1903 04 11
Itinerant vendors of the delicacy inseparable from Good Friday awakened citizens to the fact that a public holiday was at hand. While the majority of householders were still sleeping peacefully, unmusical voices in the streets below broke the stillness of the morning with offers to sell 'two a penny' and a proportionate number for 'tup-pence' in a sing-song for which three notes of the scale provided the tune. All modes of traction were utilised by holiday-makers, affording evidence of the growing popularity of the motor. Dusty and noisy they may be, but that they continue to grow more popular there can be no doubt and motorists comprised no mean section of the Good Friday road traffic. # c.39

1903 04 11
The accounts of 'ragging' at a Cambridge Theological College led to an interview with a Cambridge minister acquainted with one of the victims – the man who had the adornment of his upper lip removed by amateur barbers. The undergraduate did not have the whole of his moustache removed, but only half of it, the operation performed while he was held down in his bed. He had a splendid moustache. It was quite the pride of his mother who was terribly upset over it. His life has been made thoroughly unbearable by his tormentors, who wanted him to give up preaching. They have broken all his windows several times and the young fellow has been thoroughly broken down and ill. # c.36.9 : rag

1903 04 14
Boys birched, p3

1903 04 15
Trumpery case, p4

1903 04 17
On Thursday 23rd April a novel sight will be witnessed at Strange's Boat House, when Mr Tom Barton, the popular and world-renowned Log Roller, of Canada, will give his unique display of rolling a log of Bovril tins on the river. He will give £5 to anyone who will get on and stand on the log for three minutes. From the boat house Mr Barton, who is champion of the world in this particular line, will proceed through the locks and down the river for a mile or two.

1903 04 17
Magistrates considered the renewal of the licence of the Unicorn Inn, Trumpington. The accommodation consisted of three bedrooms, two were furnished and used by those living in the house. The third, the guest chamber, was at present bare. The Chairman: Poor guest. Mr Ralkes: He would be a very poor guest who came there. There was no stabling; the landlord did keep a pony and trap, but whether he kept them in the unfurnished room he did not know. (Laughter). It was difficult for a man to make a living there; the actual consumption of beer in the house per week was half a barrel. # c.27.4

1903 04 17
Brewers Lacon and Co appealed against the refusal to renew the licence of the White Horse, Chesterton. The house was of good repute and considerable size and did a good trade. It was the best of the firm's houses in the district. There were some cottages situated at the back of the property, and though there was no suggestion of secret drinking, the cottages gave facilities for it. Magistrates wanted an undertaking either to have the cottages fenced off or not used for human habitation. They could be turned into stables or something of the sort. Gates had already been put across the entrances so that anyone could not get to the public house from the cottages. The appeal was allowed.

1903 04 18
All the arguments in favour of converting Cambridge into a County Borough having failed some councillors have threatened to petition for an extension to the town's boundaries so as to include not only Chesterton but Newnham Croft and St John's, Cherry Hinton as well. To silence opposition they have threatened that all children from these districts attending schools in Cambridge will have to be turned out to seek education under their own authority. This has confirmed the opponents in their opposition and alienated the sympathies of supporters. Fortunately nobody is likely to be frightened by such pusillanimous threats. # c.35.7

1903 04 18
A serious fire occurred at the village of Barton by which almost the whole of the Manor Farm, with the exception of the house, was razed to the ground. It is supposed the drum of a traction engine after working for a considerable time, got very hot and some corn which was standing near by caught alight. A cart with horse attached was close by and the horse was taken out only just in time, being slightly singed. The cart was consumed by the flames. The men worked assiduously with buckets and water but their efforts were without avail and soon all the farm buildings were blazing.

1903 04 20
Barton fire, p3

Tossed by bullock, p3

1903 04 21
At a meeting held at the Horse and Groom Hotel, Cambridge, it was resolved to form a new cycling club to be named the "Belmont Cycling and Motoring Club". Mr Lawrence, of the Belmont Cycle Works, who is the founder of the club promised members a very substantial reduction on all goods and repairs at the Works and also offered a 10-guinea challenge cup to be competed for yearly. The club promises to become very popular # c.26.485

1903 04 21
P.C. Symonds said he heard dancing from an upper room of the Hopbine public house, Fair Street, Cambridge and found six couples dancing to music supplied by a harp and concertina. Charles Huntlea said he went to the Hopbine with his brother of their own free will to play music either for the customers to listen to or to accompany dancing if anyone indulged in it. Their remuneration depended on the generosity of the customers, the landlady had never given them anything and he had to pay for his drink. She had a licence for music, but not dancing and was fined 10s.

1903 04 22
Fall from window, Littleport, p3

1903 04 23
The weather at Hunstanton has now changed and the stormy winds of the Easter Holiday given place to something more like spring. Among the many Cambridge people spending the Vacation at Hunstanton were the Master of Trinity and the Master of Caius. Visitors at the Globe Hotel were Mr & Mrs E.H. Parker and family from Cambridge, Dr Atkin and Dr Wilders from Holbeach, Rev T.H. Orpen of Selwyn, Miss E.M. Robinson and Rev Robinson, Grantham and the Rev and Mrs Gee, Cambridge.

1903 04 24
Chesterton RDC heard that Cottenham had got a full supply of water. They were obliged to supplement the supply with the old water cart. It seemed bad they should be paying both the water company and the man who owned the cart. The Clerk said that he wrote to the man and told him to discontinue but was informed that he had a contract for 12 months, and would expect the money, so he might as well use the cart. The contract was only up to the time when a proper water supply was obtainable but the new pipes had discoloured the water and it was not quite fit for drinking purposes. The Inspector of Nuisances (Mr Bunnett) was authorised to obtain a sample of water for analysis.

1903 04 24
Tom Barton, the world's champion log roller provided entertainment for several thousands on the banks of the Cam. He made a journey from the University boathouse, through Jesus Lock to Strange's boathouse on a cylinder composed of Bovril tins soldered together, nine feet long and one foot in diameter, without so much as wetting his feet. A chair was passed to him, then a light table and placed thereon a large bottle supposed to contain Bovril. It looked so easy that the challenge to any person to stand on the cylinder for two minutes and win £5 was irresistible. A man assayed the feat but did not remain for two seconds and was precipitated into the water. # c.46.5

1903 04 25
The landlord of the Boot Inn, Histon, was summoned for allowing gaming on his premises. PC Plowman said the billiard room door was closed and he heard rattle of money. There were 18 men in the room and they were playing halfpenny pool. Defendant said: "I never saw this game before and if I have done wrong I will bury the balls. I did not know that pool was wrong, as we always played it at Cottenham". Pool was played with different balls and so much a ball was paid for the use of the table. There was no evidence they were playing for money. The case was dismissed.

1903 04 28

Interest in the sensation known as the Moat Farm Mystery received a sudden stimulus by the announcement that the body of a woman, fully dressed, had been unearthed on the farm premises and identified as that of the missing woman. For the past two months it has been our duty to record the progress of the search which the police had been carrying out with such untiring diligence. Day after day they had pursued their labours, almost without remittance, and until yesterday they had been unrewarded by anything in the shape of human remains. It was decided to remove the mud from the moat and a lady's shoe was discovered containing a portion of a human foot.

1903 04 28
Mr Askham applied for a theatrical licence for the Auckland Road Circus, Cambridge. A dramatic performance was instructive to the working classes and tended to keep them out of public houses. But those who were labouring in connection with the various religious organisations felt strongly it would be injurious to the morals of the people. As soon as the audience came out they were 'on the Common in the dark'. A poster for one play contained the figure of a young lady almost in a state of nudity and if a man took his wife or daughter in the vicinity of it the ladies would hardly know where to put their heads. # c.76

1903 04 28
Soham House Estate, situated in one of the best positions in Newmarket was offered for sale by auction. The mansion is fitted throughout with every modern convenience and luxury and contains a billiard room, nine bed and dressing rooms, three bath rooms, an extensive suite of domestic & culinary offices, a racquet court and a suite of bachelor's quarters. The estate covers an area of ten acres and is one of the best show places of the town. The cost was stated at considerably over £30,000. Neither this, nor two other properties in The Avenue were sold.

Histon pool case, p3

1903 04 29
The University Arms Property, Sawston, consisting of the old licensed beerhouse, the University Arms, 32 cottages and the cricket ground were offered for sale by auction. The pub sold for £775, one block of four cottages facing the main road was sold at £450 and four in Occupation Road realised £250. The cricket ground was purchased by Mr Hudson for £280. The remaining 20 cottages were withdrawn. The fully licensed inn, The King's Head, and the old beerhouse now named the Golden Fleece in Bridge Street were offered and withdrawn as were the Cock and the Bell at Feltwell and The Ferry Boat at Hockwold-cum-Wilton. Six freehold cottages at Fulbourn were sold to Mr Jacobs for £250

May 1903 CDN

1903 05 01
A stormy meeting of Linton Guardians told the chaplain to conduct services in such a way they would not be extreme and hurt the sensibilities of any member of the Board. He should remove the candlesticks from the altar and take them out of the Workhouse chapel. Mr Wright asked what they meant to do with the candlesticks. He was sure the Salvation Army would not want them and they would not have them at the chapel. Mr Potter proposed the candlesticks be allowed to remain but that the candles be not lighted. A committee will meet the chaplain to see if a friendly arrangement could not be arrived at.

1903 05 02
House for sale, p3 *

1903 05 06

The work of rebuilding St Andrew's Street Baptist Chapel, Cambridge, has reached an important stage with the ceremony of laying the foundation stone. The travelling crane upon the elevated railroad around the site was stationary, the workmen had turned their attention to the erection of a platform to accommodate the spectators. An important factor was the bottle placed under the stone which may in some remote age meet the gaze of an explorer yet unborn, the contents being a plan of the church, a programme of the day's ceremony and a copy of the CDN. # c.83

1903 05 07
While excavating in Grange Road, Cambridge, some workmen who were digging a trench for drainage purposes came across a skeleton of great age, but in a perfect state of preservation. Behind the skull was a small vessel of yellow ware, with a handle. Messrs Coulson and Lofts had the remains carefully uncovered. Other remains, including a stone coffin and brooches have been found in the adjoining area and confirm the date as late Roman. It is hoped the remains will be removed exactly as found and placed in a glass case at the Archaeological Museum. # c.41

A sale of work was held to raise funds for the furnishing of a 'Cats Home' in Mr Banham's yard, Cambridge. Persons going away from home can have their cats taken care of. The fee is not a large one. There will be room for an odd stray, provided it is a healthy cat; if not it will be mercifully destroyed. c.19

1903 05 08
A raid on motor cars was made on the Royston Road. P.S. Gilbey, stationed at Sawston, said he and P.C. Davies measured a mile on the road, compared watches and set them exactly at the same time. At 3.49 a car passed and went towards Royston. He saw P.C. Davies come out to stop the car from beside a straw stack. The time was just under three minutes. Both policemen were in plain clothes; if they had been in uniform people would not go at such an excessive speed. The magistrates were not without sympathy for the motorist but there was proof that the limit of 12 miles per hour had been exceeded. They imposed the smallest possible fine of 5s.

1903 05 11
The desirability of Cambridgeshire as a residential district is not sufficiently appreciated. Our county burden is second only in point of lightness to that of the Isle of Ely which should appeal to the heavily-burdened ratepayers. Now Saffron Walden are making application to be transferred from the county of Essex to Cambs. Being at the fag-end of London suburban counties have the pleasure of paying for the extravagances of the wealthy suburban residents without enjoying any of their advantages.

Royston storm, p4

1903 05 12
An exhibition of gas stoves for cooking and heating purposes, the products of the Richmond Gas Stove and Meter Company, was opened in Cambridge. It gives those who have not yet taken advantage of the modern substitute for an ordinary fire the opportunity of discovering how gas is far superior in the point of economy, comfort and cleanliness. The stoves can be hired at small rentals from the Cambridge Gas Company

1903 05 13
At Cambridge police court a married woman was charged with having stolen a piece of pork, value 1s.2d. from Joseph Butler, a butcher of Mill Street. He said he heard the shop bell ring and noticed the pork was missing from the counter. He found it underneath her cloak. The magistrates had to convict, but in consideration of the fact that the prisoner had ten children she would be bound over.

Cambridge & Chesterton, p2
Royston dilapidated houses, p4

1903 05 14
A section of noisy undergraduates at a performance of 'Naughty Nancy' at the New Theatre behaved in an unruly manner. Remarks, many of them in bad taste, and incessant shouting delayed the progress of the comedy and Mr Redfern, the Managing Director appeared on the stage. For 20 years he had had the management and until the last three or four such conduct was perfectly unheard of. He said he was sure they would cease this ungentlemanly conduct but if they continued he would simply drop the curtain and the performance would cease. Cries of 'Good old Redfern' were heard at the conclusion of the protest. They speedily subsided and the performance was concluded quietly. # c.76

1903 05 14
Scarcely has one sensation abated in Saffron Walden than another mystery has come to the surface in that now popular and much-talked-of town. In the small hours four men were engaged emptying a cesspool and having secured a load they proceeded to deposit it on the sewage farm; on the cart being emptied they noticed that something solid rolled out. Upon examining it they found it to be the body of a male child which may have been in the cesspool two or three weeks, as the body is somewhat discoloured.

GER March ambulance, p2
Buntingford cottage, p3
Dealer's cart, p3 *

1903 05 16
Mr Percy Humphreys, formerly a regular player for Cambridge St Mary's Football Club is now the possessor of an international cap. Cambridge has a way of showing appreciation of distinction attained in sport by complimentary dinners and it was only fitting that following those to cricketers Ranji and Tom Hayward a similar compliment should be paid to a townsman who has attained the highest honour in the other great national game. He was known as 'The Little Terror' and was the subject of hero worship by lads in Cambridge. # c.38 : football

Clare water, p4

1903 05 18
Grantchester sheep, p4

1903 05 19
The permanent motor exhibition which is in process of formation is to supply a universal automobile mart for all those persons interested commercially or sportingly in the horseless vehicle. It is to be for motor cars what Tattersall's is for that now decadent animal, the horse. It will be at once a market, a bazaar and an exchange where motors and component parts can be obtained and will prove an undeniable boon to the automobilist.

1903 05 20
Another prosecution for driving a motor car at excessive speed was brought before magistrates. PC Connell said that on Easter Monday he was on duty near the 50 mile stone on Newmarket Road when he saw a motor car occupied by three gentlemen being driven at great speed. When the car passed he noticed the time, then mounted his cycle and followed after the car to the next milestone near Worcester Lodge where he conferred with PC Bugg and found the mile was completed in 110 seconds, which worked out at the rate of 32½ miles per hour. The driver was fined £1.

1903 05 21
Cambridge councillors discussed plans for the erection of new premises for Laurie and McConnal, Fitzroy Street. The bye-laws said there should be a certain amount of air-space behind domestic buildings – house, office or shop - and these had no such space. There was no doubt the plans were in contravention of the bye-laws, the question was whether the Council would refuse them. If they were passed it would be an illegal act. They should not alter the bye-laws to suit the convenience of any class of people. # c.27.2

1903 05 21
The Cambridge Telephone Committee reported that the mass of existing telephone subscribers lie grouped in the centre; the number of existing lines belonging to the National Telephone Company does not exceed 450 in Cambridge and 20 in Shelford. They would provide for 600 lines with poles for 600 more. Wires would be put underground and out of sight. The Council should apply for a licence to work a telephone system of their own with modern instruments # c.27.7

Laundry advert, p1

1903 05 22
An old lady residing in Peterborough, named Mrs Susan Dudley, relates how she suffered intolerable agony from indigestion. Her sleep was disturbed by dreams and she arose with a splitting headache and totally unfit for work. She found a cure in Mother Seigel's Syrup: "Six bottles completely cured me and I have not suffered from indigestion since", she says. It is always so, Seigel's Syrup does thorough work, no patching.

1903 05 23
A man living in Ainsworth Street, Cambridge was diagnosed with small-pox. He was forthwith removed to the small-pox huts, Coldham's Lane, and all known contacts vaccinated and kept under observation. He was a goods guard on the Great Eastern Railway whose train shunted opposite the small-pox camp in Tottenham Marshes and there was reason to believe there was communication between persons in the camps and the officials on the train. It is highly probable the disease was incepted from the camps. He made a good recovery. # c.21.1

1923 05 23
Typhoid fever was present in Cambridge during the year, 17 cases in 14 households having been notified. Four were county cases admitted into Addenbrooke's Hospital for treatment; five were imported from Fenstanton, Swaffham, Norfolk, Littleport and London. Two cases were probably due to eating shellfish. Two were nurses who had charge of typhoid patients and others could not be accounted for. Three of the cases proved fatal

1903 05 26
The New Swiss Laundry, Cherryhinton Road is the largest in Cambridge and one of the most improved laundries of the day, having a glass roof so that the smallest grain of dust can be detected. The position is the best, being situated on the Hill and surrounded by fruit trees, away from any dwelling whatsoever. Our work people are supplied with white clothes so that the clean linen is in no way soiled by coming into contact with material of a different colour and only the best pale soap and boiling water is used. All goods are aired by us and we also mend all holes in tablecloths and other linen free of cost. We are the only laundry that does this in Cambridge. (Advert)

Kett, p2

June 1903 CDN

1903 06 03
The new municipal cemetery, which Cambridge Corporation has prepared on Newmarket Road, was opened for interments. In anticipation of the time when the general public will regard burial more from a sanitary than from a sentimental point of view, a part of the ground adjoining Ditton Lane has been reserved for the erection of a crematorium. The first interment was a child named Alfred Willet Whitmore; the coffin was borne by six young ladies and Mr Ellis Merry was the undertaker. # c.21.1

1903 06 03

Ely court heard an interesting case relating to Grunty Fen which arose out of an agreement with respect to cutting corn. James Howard had a horse and man and William Driver had a machine for cutting wheat and they came to an agreement that they would first cut Howard's crop and afterwards Driver's. Driver's son employed an 11-year-old boy to ride the foremost horse but it became restive and the poor lad was thrown and received injuries

Coronation Hotel, Newmarket, p2
Over libel, p3 *

1903 06 05
The policy of passive resistance to the Education Act by the non-payment of the education rate is now being widely adopted in Cambridge. A marked increase in the number of those refusing to pay has taken place since the manifesto by Cambridge Nonconformist ministers. Before its issue local Nonconformists who had merely pledged themselves to passive resistance were to be numbered by dozens. Now at least 200 have withheld that part of the rate they consider would be apportioned for education purposes # c.36.5

1903 06 05
Like the farmer the fruit-grower may now and again be permitted a grumble. This year the crop promises to be one of the poorest within the recollection of living man. At Histon hundreds of the inhabitants of this quiet village find lucrative and healthful employment picking – or 'pulling' fruit and the failure of the crop is a matter of import. The consumer too will have reason to complain when he has to pay a greatly increased price for his favourite brand of apple, when he may long in vain for pears and only catch an occasional glimpse of plums. There is one consolation; strawberries may be plentiful and perhaps cheap

1903 06 06
There is no doubt that the supply of lady housekeepers greatly exceeds the demand. The salaries asked are pitifully small – an undertaking to act as a good plain cook, to be musical and cheerful, for £20 a year, with board and lodging! A middle-aged woman is often preferred to a skittish young thing, but she must be comely and needs to have 'a face for a rainy day' and not a countenance on which the tragedy of failure in life is too strongly marked.

1903 06 06
To Mr Sidney W. Lack of Cottenham belongs the honour of a feat which has never before been accomplished by any other cyclist in England, namely winning eight first prizes and one third prize at three consecutive athletic meetings in four days. They were held at Dersingham, where he won three including the half-mile scratch cycle race, Norwich where he won three more, and Wymondham where he secured two first prizes. At Norwich two lads were leading him by some six lengths when they both came a 'cropper', leaving him to race alone. This will stand out pre-eminent as a red-letter week in the annals of Lack's racing career.

1903 06 06
Sir – I was surprised to read that Cambridge Town Council is to apply for a licence to establish a municipal telephone. Any scheme of municipal trading which involves large public expenditure should be based on the fullest knowledge. The council has no local experience and are certain to have all the competition of a powerful company, admirably managed and not too scrupulous. They have asked advice from a man whose business is to sell schemes and to be the engineer to carry them out; of course he said it would work. Will a ferret suck a rabbit? – G.A. Matthew # c.27.7

1903 06 08
The influence of the cod liver oil famine has extended to Cambridge. A rise in prices had reminded consumers of how curiously their pockets can be affected by the capricious appetite of Norwhal whales that disport themselves in the northern seas & have entered into a close partnership with the codfish. Six hundred cod were recently found reposing in a stomach of a Norwhal which has proved very destructive to a branch of commerce that depends upon the codfish. To make matters worse reports from Bergen say that the fish caught recently possessed diminutive livers. At Addenbrooke's Hospital the oil is being used somewhat less freely than formerly, though patients for whom a supply is absolutely essential are not being stinted.

1903 06 09
Cyclists, p4

1903
Midland Railway. Cambridge University Summer Vacation. For the convenience of Members of the University going down for the Summer Vacation, a special train (with through carriages) will leave Cambridge affording a quick service to Kettering, Leicester, Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool and Edinburgh. Passengers' luggage in bulk is collected from the colleges and schools at the charge of 8s per load – advert 1903

1903 06 10
The Granta Cycling Club ceased to exist when the annual meeting was held at the Blue Boar Hotel, Cambridge. When the track at the Backs of the Colleges was in use the membership rose to 50 but it has been gradually dwindling for the last three years since no cycling track has been available in Cambridge. In the event of a cycle track being obtained they will make an effort to revive the club. The balance sheet showed that the club died solvent. # c.38 : cycling

1903 06 11
An interesting and pretty wedding was solemnised at Haddenham between the Rev Walter Covey Crump and Miss Hilda Porter. The bridegroom was until recently curate of Haddenham and the bride has been for a long period connected with church matters there. It was therefore not surprising that upon so auspicious an occasion the ancient church should be crowded by a large concourse of friends and well-wishers. The bride looked charming in a dress of soft ivory satin and chiffon, trimmed with true lovers' knots of chiffon, with a wreath of orange blossoms and a veil of old Limerick lace.

Circus of Varieties, p4

1903 06 13
A terrible discovery was made at a stack near Saffron Walden. A labourer came across the remains of a man with his leg protruding beyond the covering of the straw and P.C. Field of Newport was sent for. The body upon being uncovered presented a ghastly spectacle, all plump portions of the flesh having been devoured by rats, together with portions of the face and neck. There was no left arm, not any indication the deceased had had one. It is thought he had been there many weeks. He was attired in the remains of a fashionable cut tweed and wearing good boots with a hat of the Christy's make.

1903 06 13
Messrs Simpson and Co's bakery in Cherryhinton Road Cambridge is as up-to-date and hygienic as any in the Kingdom. It is the only steam and machine bakery, a substantially constructed building fitted with machinery of a strange appearance. Electricity supplies the light and driving power but exquisite cleanliness is the feature which most strikes the visitors. The public have not yet realised the importance of insisting on such conditions though they send a whole-hearted grumble at finding a cremated insect, stray pieces of the miller's sack or unusual traces of potato in their bread. # c.27

Rag that failed, p3 *

1903 06 15
Passive resistance, p3

1903 06 16

Sir – it is well-known that owing to inadequate incomes some of our foremost resident mathematicians, whose work reflects honour upon the University, are compelled to divert their energies to routine work of a remunerative character. It is very desirable that means should be found to obviate this difficulty which has become more pressing owing to the shrinkage of college incomes. Very substantial benefits would accrue if funds were available to raise the stipends of two lecturers in mathematics from £50 to £250 a year – G.H. Darwin. # c.36.9

Oxlode drowning, p4

1903 06 17
For the past two days thousands of acres around Sawston and Whittlesford have been flooded to the depth of six feet; a considerable stretch of the main railway line has been under water and trains have to very carefully plough through it. A gang of platelayers were at work to combat with anything that might occur and slag, granite and other ballast was unloaded. Early in the afternoon the water sank considerably and the rails were for the most part visible. A new danger presented itself for as the water subsided the ballast began to disappear and, the line becoming unsafe, all traffic was stopped.

Building speculation, p3

1903
Enormous interest centred round the opening of the sensational trial of Samuel Dougal on a charge of murder at the Moat Farm, Clavering. From all parts of the county crowds of people made their way and congregated in front of Shire Hall, Chelmsford. Many who hoped to be present at the opening of one of the most grimly interesting dramas ever enacted in a criminal court were doomed to disappointment. In order to accommodate the large number of Press representatives special desks had been erected in the small space usually allotted to the public, leaving but a tiny side gallery for those with a special ticket.

1903 06 18
There has been a recurrence of small pox in Cambridge. A well-known tradesman was removed to the Isolation Hospital and everybody who had been in contact with him was vaccinated and the premises and clothes disinfected. Had the information about smallpox spread it must have had a very deterrent effect upon the trade of the town and driven away many 'May Week' visitors. Ladies especially view possible disfigurement with feelings of revulsion. We considered we were justified in withholding the news until the close of festivities. The smallpox is contemporary with a widespread epidemic of scarlet fever which has taxed the Sanatorium almost to its limits. # c.21.1

1903 06 18
Two cottages in Albion Row belonging to Cambridge Corporation and next to the Nag's Head public house are in such an unsatisfactory state that it would be inadvisable to execute any repairs; they should be pulled down and new cottages erected in their place. By setting back the frontage it will increase the width of the road and render a further improvement possible when the lease of the adjoining property falls in.

1903 06 16
Numerous complaints have been received from residents of Chesterton Road about nightly depredations upon their flowerbeds and window boxes. Some of the prettiest gardens facing the road have been completely wrecked by mischievous persons. One garden was stripped of every flower. Many residents take a great deal of pride in their gardens and spend no inconsiderable amount of their incomes in keeping them smart and well stocked. It is to be hoped the police will keep a sharp eye for offenders and they will be dealt with in a manner which will prove a salutary warning to similarly-inclined persons.

1903 06 19

Not every village is favoured as is Little Gransden, the picturesque dwelling place of an agricultural community. Under the will of Miss Julia Norris a respectable proportion of the 200 inhabitants are provided for in their old age and four will, in addition to receiving a weekly stipend, be housed in ornate almshouses which will be the envy of less fortunate parishes. The trustees have caused to be erected a block of four almshouses, in them one old married couple, a widow and a widower reside, with a caretaker. The married couple receives 10s, weekly, the widow and widower 7s.6d. each while the caretaker is paid 10s per week. The remainder of the revenue is distributed among the poor who are aged or inform and must be communicant members of the Church of England. Those who have been resident in the parish three years have the first claim

Cottenham water, p3
Wilburton Clark's Lane, p4

1903 06 20
Undergraduate freak, p3
Death Jagg, printer, p3
Floods, p4

1903 06 22
Soham church parade, p4

1903
Large crowds waited outside the Assize Courts at Chelmsford in the hope of gaining admission to the trial for murder at Clavering, ladies especially exhibiting the keenest eagerness to obtain seats in the courts. Punctually on the stroke of ten Mr Justice Wright entered the court with a fanfare of trumpets and a second later the prisoner, with head erect and shoulders squared, made his appearance in the dock. The shoemaker who made the boots found on the woman's body took his place in the witness box, then came a gunmaker who gave evidence as to the range at which the fatal bullet was fired.

1903 06 23
The Moat Farm Mystery is solved at last. The verdict of 'Guilty' brought to a close a case that will rank as one of the most celebrated in the annals of British crime. In the minds of the general public the prisoner was condemned to death on the day the body was found with a bullet in the skull in the slimy ditch at the lonely farmhouse. The spot was well-selected for such a purpose, lonely and with no inhabited houses in the vicinity and far from a railway station. She was a cultured lady, possessed of some £6,000 inherited from her aunt and a woman of charming disposition. The deed that has put the hangman's rope round his neck was cowardly and brutal beyond expression. Advert: A brake will leave Hyde Park Corner on Sunday for Moat Farm. Return fare 3s.

Midsummer Fair, p3 *

1903 06 24
An action arising from the Moat Farm murder case came before the Lord Chief Justice. The editor of 'The Star' committed for contempt for publishing an article alleged to prejudice a fair trial. But the article related to a charge of forgery, which had been withdrawn. The murderer's solicitor was then charged that after obtaining a rule against the 'Star' he had threatened other newspapers, from one of which, 'The Herts and Essex Observer' he had accepted 50 guineas in consideration of his taking no further steps.

1903 06 24
A conference on Passive Resistance heard that Nonconformists were now called upon to pay directly out of the rates for Prayer Book and Catechism teaching in schools. This would lead inevitably towards the Church of Rome & they ought not to be called upon thus to aid teaching that their dearest convictions and cherished beliefs thought false. They would be met with passive resistance upon the other side and this would give rise to a regular 'see-saw' of non-payment of the education rates.

1903 06 25
Cam pollution, p3

1903
Those who knew the jaunty master of the Moat Farm would hardly recognise him in the haggard and dim-eyed man lying under sentence of death in Chelmsford gaol. He has changed vastly since the day he was arrested at the Bank of England. He has lost the sprightly step and the easy manner which made him so fascinating to many women. Yet he has never lost his nerve. Though sullen and morose, he is absolutely indifferent to his end. He knows his doom and is prepared to meet it without flinging.

1903 06 26
Once again a large crowd was attracted to the now historical Moat Farm for the sale of the whole of the live and dead farming stock as used by the man who (unless a reprieve is granted), will in a few days be the principal actor in the last act of a drama inseparably connected with the lonely grange. Vehicles of every description, brakes from Saffron Walden and motors from longer distances, brought crowds of people, some intending to purchase, others merely curious to watch the sale, with an intent ear to the prices realised. Everybody wondered who would be the purchaser of the trap in which the murderer took his victim for her last drive in May 1899. The prices realised were not so large as had been expected.

1903 06 26
Local sportsmen will be sorry to hear that the provisional committee of the proposed Cambridge Town Football Club have been unsuccessful in securing a ground for the coming season. The ground near the Cattle Market belonging to the Corporation was not available and negotiations were entered into for a ground at the corner of Milton Road. Mrs Gurney, the owner, has not been able to see her way to allow its use as it is too close to her private garden. She offered a ground near Dant's Ferry but the preparation would cost about £100 for draining and was out of the question. # c.38 : football

1903 06 27
A meeting of Nonconformists to protest against the Education Act was held in Mr Goat's field at Prickwillow. The vicar, Rev C.D. Kingdon, who had ridden into the field on a horse, was asked to take some active part in the meeting but replied that he 'did not take part in politics'. The Rev J.A. Cheesman said he was a Constitutionalist from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot; they could imprison him, take his goods and destroy his body but they would not compel him to be disloyal to his conscience. The Nonconformists of that village would be pleased to receive in their schoolroom between 9 and 9.30 in the morning any children whose parents would like them to profit by good, sound unsectarian teaching.

1903 06 27
June 20th seems to have been rather a 'high day' with a certain section of the inhabitants of Waterbeach. P.C. Greygoose said he saw a chimneysweep and three lads walking up and down the street rattling tin cans and kettles and making all the noise they could. He asked him to desist but the man replied 'That's all right, old mate, we are only going to give them a tune or two" and continued playing an instrument something like a tea tray which he hit with a bit of a stick. There was a crowd of about 200 persons round. The chimneysweep, who was deaf, stated he did not hear the constable tell him to go away. He was the boss of the band and was fined 5s.

Clare road repairs, p4

1903 06 29
Librarian's salary, p4

1903 06 30
Cam Sailing Club camp, p3

July 1903 CDN

1903 07 01
County girls open day, p3
Ownerless baby, p3

1903 07 02
Chesterton chaplain, p3

1903 07 03
Royston walking race, p3

1903 07 04
Moat farm contempt, p3

1903 07 06
Dougal in gaol, p3 *

1903 07 07
Cambridge is becoming an uncongenial place for the purveyor of pirated music. The latest of several seizures took place at the instigation of Messrs Bedwell, music dealers of St Mary's Passage. A member of the firm, with the assistance of police, examined a stock of music being sold by several hawkers on Market Hill. About 80 copies of well-known songs and some of Sousa's marches were found among the stock being sold cheaper than authorised charges for music produced by the holders of the copyright. They were promptly confiscated and taken to the police station. The hawkers were agents of a huge and craftily constituted organisation that exists for the distribution over the country of music of this description. # c.69

Ison bicycle advert, p1
Dougal reversion & sale, p3
Foxton motor raid, p4

1903 07 08
The light-fingered gentry were very busy at the Moat Farm sale and an aged farmer from Trumpington had his pocket picked and a purse containing £20 stolen. The horse, trap and harness so closely associated with the murder, which fetched such good prices, were purchased for exhibition purposes. After the sale the trap had to be placed under the protection of the police to save it from the ravages of memento hunters. The number of people who visited the farm was upwards of 3,000.
Motor bill, p4

1903 07 09
Romsey new school, p2
Moat farm robbery, p3 *

1903 07 10
Electric railways, p3
Dougal confession, p4

1903 07 11
Two little children surreptitiously obtained some matches and amused themselves with creating miniature fires with shavings in a shed at the rear of 57, Ainsworth Street, Cambridge, occupied by Mr John Horobin, sweet manufacturer. The woodwork of the shed became ignited and there was every prospect of the fire spreading to neighbouring buildings. The Central Fire Station was communicated with through the Norfolk Street fire alarm and P.C. Savage promptly ran out the Hooper Street reel but there was no chance of saving the shed

1903 07 14
Samuel Dougal was hanged at Chelmsford gaol for the murder at Moat Farm. He went to his death serene and unconcerned; his iron will never failed him and he mounted the scaffold with a light step and without a tremor. Never did a murderer meet his doom with more composure. Before the bolt was drawn he admitted his guilt then the trap-doors swung open with a loud crash and he disappeared into the pit. The rope twisted violently for a moment, then all was still.

Newmarket drainage, p4

1903 07 15
John Mott, farmer of Littleport, said he occupied 650 acres of the Dairy Houses Farm. There were three droves adjoining his land, all running from Common-acre drove. These belonged to the parish and he had to repair them himself & keep the dykes cleaned out. There were 20 head of cattle on the drove which were feeding on the grass of his dykes, the sides of which they were treading in and he meant to keep them off his property. The cattle always had a boy with them and were turned out on the public road and were allowed to go where they liked. The judge said Mott was entitled to his injunction, though he was sorry to interfere with the use of the droves which had been enjoyed for a considerable period. He gave a verdict for nominal damages of one shilling

1903 07 15
A few weeks ago we reported several cases of a disease which was at first stated to be smallpox and afterwards chicken pox. The disease does not appear to have been stamped out and there are no fewer than 50 cases. As to what the disease actually is there seems to be some doubt, and a London expert in infectious diseases has the outbreak under observation. He reached Cambridge this morning and was met by the Chairman of the Public Health Committee, Dr J.H.C. Dalton.

1903 07 16
Dr Dalton has confirmed that the dangerous epidemic prevalent in Cambridge is smallpox and there have been no less than three deaths from the disease. Nobody who has been vaccinated recently had it but two unvaccinated children had the disease badly. He must insist absolutely on isolation of every case, however mild. He had ordered one tent which held 15 people – tents were very suitable at this time of year – and must order sufficient to provide for every case which required isolation # c.21.1
Mount Pleasant steps, p3

1903 07 17
A milliner carrying on business in Regent Street, Cambridge was summonsed under the Factory Acts. When an Inspector visited the workshop the occupier, who could only legally have ten people in the room because of the size, had as a matter of fact employed 11. She told one, Hilda Redding, to go out of the work-room, to prevent the Inspector from seeing there were more present than there ought to have been. The case was as bad as it could be. A fine of £1 was imposed.

Small pox, p2
Small pox letter, p3

1903
On June 18th we informed the Cambridge public that a case of smallpox had appeared in the town. The day following we were officially instructed that it was not of smallpox at all, but of chicken pox, there was nothing like an epidemic and there was no cause for alarm. Now the announcement that there have been three deaths from smallpox is so astounding as to be almost incredible. Midsummer Fair has been held, probably the best means of disseminating an infectious disease that could be imagined, and no warnings issued to the public. A terrible scourge has been allowed to run riot without check or hindrance and we are afraid that Cambridge is face to face with a disastrous epidemic # c.21.1

1903
The charge of sensationalism that has been urged against the CDN in consequence of the stand we have taken in the epidemic of smallpox is entirely unfounded. We have published nothing we have not ascertained to be true. No doubt a few tradesmen will suffer but it would be a short-sighted policy to allow the outbreak to spread for the immediate benefit of a limited number of people.

1903 07 18
Hardwick is a hamlet possessing much rustic beauty but at present relations between the inhabitants and the Rector are rather strained. Some boys heard distressing cries from the Rectory and rumours spread. The inhabitants came down in force, only those too old to take part in the hazardous proceedings of attacking the citadel failed to put in an appearance. Most had secured kettles, trays and tin cans which they beat vigorously. When the Rector refused to parley abusive language was freely used and several Cambridge men driving through the village stopped and offered to drive off the crowd by force. In fact the cries came from a boy from a charitable institute employed to do light work who was upset because he could not go out as his nether garments were being repaired.

1903 07 21
Smallpox Scare. The Stetchworth Dairies beg to inform our numerous patrons that the utmost precaution is being taken to protect them during the prevailing epidemics, the Dairies being under strict medical supervision. The working staff are being vaccinated. Eucalyptus Soap, specially manufactured by the Castle Soap Company, Castle Works, Cambridge, is one of the surest means to prevent contagion. Petrol Preparations keep off infection; order through your chemist or apply to Petrol, Limited, Union Road, Cambridge. - Adverts

1903 07 21
Since the outbreak of smallpox in Cambridge was official announced there has been a large increase in the number of cases reported. Unfortunately the infection has spread to surrounding villages and a case has broken out at Histon. This has resulted in the abandonment of the Histon Show and Sports, the Waterbeach Show has been postponed, the Promenade Concert on Christ's Pieces cancelled, schools have been closed and the Barnwell Theatre Mission have suspended operations. Wherever crowds assemble in a town where smallpox is prevalent there is danger of infection. # c.21.1

Death of Pope, p3

1903 07 22
Skeletons, p2

1903 07 23
Smallpox, p3

1903 07 24
Soap adverts, p1 *
Smallpox insurance, p3

1903 07 25
Smallpox editorial, p3

1903 07 25 c
Sir – Being engaged in preparing a list of the Cambridgeshire mammals for the Victoria County History I should be very grateful for any local specimens of mice or bats, or notes relating to the mammalia of the district. Specimens may be left with Mr W. Farren, Regent Street, Cambridge – J. Lewis Bonhote, Ditton Hall.

1903 07 27
Sir – a stream of water fed by Hobson's aqueduct flows down each side of Trumpington Street, Cambridge but when we have a thunder shower the road is flooded from side to side. I have just had to change the whole of my clothes after being out in the pouring rain wading nearly up to my knees in water trying to get the grates up to let the water down. But it only comes up the drains in cellars all around and takes the householder in the rear while he is battling with the floods outside. Twice in the last six years our cellar kitchen has been full of foul water up to the ceiling, leaving behind an unwholesome smell for months – B.A.

1903 07 28
Sir - An exciting scene occurred at 11.30 pm when the small-pox hearse was just reaching its destination and turning round previous to receiving the body of a young man who had died that morning. The night was very dark and the hearse overturned on its side, the smashing of glass and the bumping of the vehicle on the road causing a great commotion. After some delay it was righted again, the body duly deposited inside and it rumbled and groaned off to the cemetery, grating on the road with its iron-shod wheels in the dead of the night in a most unpleasant manner. Any private firm would have an india-rubber tyred vehicle for such work but Cambridge Corporation have apparently yet to discover that such 'luxuries' exist – 'Mill Road' # c.21.1

Obstruction – bike, p3
Newmarket pumping station, p4

1903 07 30
Cambridge Commercial Traveller's Association submitted a petition to the Great Eastern Railway Company praying for an improved service. The want of a train between Cambridge and London which would permit business men to reach the City before 10 am is very badly felt and there is no return to Cambridge between 5.15 and 8.20 pm which causes great inconvenience. Such provision would render it possible for gentlemen engaged in business in London to reside in Cambridge, which at present is found impossible, owing to the absence of convenient trains. 03 07 30

August 1903 CDN

1903 08 01
The County Council considered the implications of the Motor Car Bill, now before the House of Lords, especially the section relating to the rate of speed, which was now limited. That limit was to be altogether abolished and it would be legal to drive at any pace that was not a public danger. They could apply to proscribe certain areas in which the speed should not exceed 10 mph but there would have to be an enquiry in each case and large notice boards would have to be erected at the ends of these roads in order to inform persons going at the rate of about 60 mph that their speed would have to be reduced. They would not object to a speed of 20 mph, although Ald Briscoe felt this was far too much and suggested it be 14 mph.

Black Swan new management, p3

1903 08 03
Three additional cases of smallpox have been notified in Cambridge. In a large business house a young lady engaged in taking money became ill and the cause was traced to the money received into the establishment. Some businesses are now disinfecting coins as soon as they are received and none but disinfected coins are given in change. At Foxton the horticultural show has been postponed owing to an outbreak in the village. # c.21.1

Bank holiday, p3

1903 08 04

Cambridge Borough has had its pride wounded by the London Express charging it with having incurable slums and possessing filthier homes than Whitechapel. In reply Mr Campkin, a Guardian said: "There is no doubt there is an amount of poverty and squalor in Cambridge but there has been a vast improvement in the St Matthew's district over the last 40 years. There is evidence of the effects of drink in some parts of the town but in the Romsey and Petersfield district the residents are respectable working people". Commenting on the Cambridge slums Dr Roper said: "I think even the very worst are fast becoming demolished; take St Peter's Court, Castle Street, they are pulling that down. In consequence that there are large families in the poor quarters a woman very often has to go out and work as well as her husband to keep things going, and they can't keep their houses quite so clean as they otherwise might. In New Street you will not see much dirt or dilapidation, though in summer time the people are sitting outside nearly half-dressed in consequence of the heat. But their homes are not so bad as you might imagine". # c.32.9

1903 08 05
St Matthew's vicar view on smallpox, p3

1903 08 06
Cambridge police are attempting to discover a man who, when he broke into a Hills Road house, wore clothing of such inconsiderable value that he relinquished it without hesitation, and emerged from the premises faultlessly attired. In all probability he had his exit in a blue serge suit, walked in a pair of boots nearly new and freshly cleaned, carried a couple of overcoats despite the month being August, and had his pockets full of cigars.

1903 08 06
The slight put upon Cambridge by comparison of its slums with those of Whitechapel continues to call forth indignant protests. "In many working class homes there is only one room for doing everything and it is difficult to keep it scrupulously clean. Poor people can be taught to cover their floors with oilcloth but where is the money coming from? How can it be expected for them to spend all their earnings on beautifying their homes when there is a family to be provided for? Need it be said that the 'better' class people who would equally as dirty were it not for the working people to keep them clean"

1903 08 06
Sir - many Cambridge homes are scrupulously clean but they hardly make up for the dirty households. Some of the nice new houses in healthy parts of Cambridge are rented to people who have not the faintest idea of housekeeping or common sense. The really deserving people seldom get practical assistance, while the spendthrifts dupe the ladies and gentlemen who take an interest in them; even the resident clergy are sometimes taken in by these shrewd people – M.W.

Chesterton sanitary precautions p4

1903 08 07
Ely small pox, p4

1903 08 10
Sir – whatever may be said about slums, in Whitechapel you could go into any house in the poorest district but you would find a flushing cistern to every w.c., and that is more than you can find in Cambridge. When we had the sewers put in the Corporation tried to have the flushing cisterns put in but they were ruled out by the objections of the large property owners. Until these matters are remedied we shall always be in trouble, either with this epidemic of some other – Ratepayer # c.21.1

Newmarket fire, p3

1903 08

Sir – I have for some years called on an average upon 200 to 300 houses in Cambridge weekly and can truthfully say that I consider the working classes clean above the average, and for anyone to say that their houses were dirty is untrue. The real cause of a great deal of illness is houses being shut up all day, when the wives go out to work – too often to provide for a lazy husband, who sits in a public house most of the day – A Scotchman
"

1903
Sir – Barnwell is not a "most miserable part of Cambridge" but a neighbourhood inhabited by respectable working people; there are whole streets of bay-windowed respectable residences occupied by shopmen, clerks etc who work in the centre of the town. I will admit than on Newmarket Road, a district about a mile in length, cursed by about twenty public houses, there are a few poor cottages, but chiefly where the pubs are thickest – A Barnwell Tradesman

1903 08 11
Sir – I believe a great number of antiquarians in Cambridge will learn with regret that the Falcon Inn Yard in Petty Cury has been removed to make way for modern improvements. So quietly has the old Falcon taken flight that I fear our local photographers have not secured pictures of the old buildings and its destruction has escaped even the lynx-eyed representatives of the Press. I am consoled that I have retained my water-colour drawing of this famous inn, which I made 25 years ago for 'Old Cambridge' – W.B. Redfern # c.44.6 # c.65

1903 08 11
Our attention has been drawn to the fact that another link with the fascinating past of Cambridge is being severed by the almost entire demolition of the one-time famous 'Falcon Inn'. Many years ago the front of the building, with its fine old gables facing Petty Cury, disappeared and about eight years ago the buildings on the left side of the Falcon Yard were demolished to make way for business extensions. Now the rooms on the right side are in process of demolition for extra accommodation for the Lion Hotel. The back part possessing a small specimen of the open gallery remains # c.44.6 # c.61

Newmarket smallpox, p3 *

1903 08 12
Sir – the alarm about the old Falcon Inn, Petty Cury, being demolished unrecorded seems to me unnecessary. Certainly within the last 40 years I have sent out almost as many drawings of it, to say nothing of the etchings. It, with the old Wrestlers Inn, has been a small gold mine to me. One noticeable thing I might mention: it was the last inn to hang out a flag as a sign that the recruiting sergeant was at home – Robert Farren # c.44.6

1903 08 12
At Littleport parish council Mr Cross brought forward a motion calling attention to the desirability of a public urinal. He had spoken to many ratepayers of the poorer classes and not found many against it. It would mean only a half-penny rate if it were erected with a tank in the coal place (there being a sewer near by). There were no such public conveniences except on licensed premises. The Chairman was in favour and Mr Martin said he would support it if there were a sufficient supply of water. He also thought it important to have a bathing place so that everyone should learn to swim

Anti-vaccination, p3
Tram fatality, p3

1903 08 13
Chesterton small pox, p3

1903 08 14
Ely Council considered the site for a small-pox hospital, a temporary building of wood and iron; they agreed to hire 22 acres of land in Grunty Fen, two miles from any village. A case of smallpox had occurred at Wilburton after somebody was allowed to come from a house at Cambridge where the disease existed. None of them were safe if that sort of thing could occur. Dr Anningson said there was another possible cause but did not speak in a tone that could be heard by the reporter.

1903 08 18
Cambridge Library Committee considered the supply of literature for the use of the blind; they will subscribe for the supply of books provided a sufficient number of persons expressed their willingness to use them. It is hoped that those who "live in darkness" will be made acquainted with his decision. From 1895 to 1899 books were issued in response to applications but the number of blind readers never reached double figures. The average citizen will always be inclined to stretch a point with regard to expenditure in order to provide food for the brain for the blind. But how many are able to read the Braille type which has superseded the Moon system that was in vogue for some considerable time. # c.77.4

Abbot's Ripton small pox, p4

1903 08 19
Sir – last evening I met three horses running loose and apparently unattended along Mill Road, Cambridge. Some distance behind them two men were being dragged along by a young horse which they were evidently trying to 'break in'. Carts, cycles and other users of the road overtaking them had to slow down until they could dash past & foot passengers had to seek safety in doorways. I have also frequently met in St Andrew's Street a high-spirited, high-stepping horse being led by a single rein about 20 feet long, the other end being held by a man on a bicycle! These things ought not to be allowed in our streets – Citizen # c.19
Motor cycle trials, p3

1903 08 20
Laurie and McConnal applied for permission to erect a bridge over Fitzroy Lane to connect the two buildings which they propose to erect on either side of the lane. It would be 33 feet above the level of the street in the centre and 28 ft 6 inches at each end. They also desired to lay an iron pipe under the roadway from one portion of the premises to the other for heating purposes. The application was approved on payment of a rent of 5s. per annum # c.27.2

1903 08 21
An Ely fishmonger was summonsed for keeping a refreshment house open during prohibited hours. Inspector Burton said he saw five men in the shop eating fish at 11.10pm. There were no forms, knives or forks and they stood against the counter and ate the fish with their fingers. One of them saw him watching whereupon the fishman shouted "You can't eat that fish here; you'll get me into trouble" and they picked up the fish and came out of the shop. When fined 9s. he replied "This is a cheap advertisement for me"

1903 08 22
Speed trap, p4

1903 08 24
A unique scene was witnessed at Isleham when an elderly couple, named Mark and Sarah Turner, were publicly baptised in the river Lark and thereby became a member of the Baptist Church. The ceremony took place at the ferry water only a few yards from the house in which the couple live and was witnessed by upwards of a thousand people. Some cycled and drove whilst others came in farm carts, waggons and traps. An enterprising bargeman let his barge at a penny per head and this accommodated 50 people who were able to get a good view of the proceedings. The ferry also took a good number of passengers, whilst others found room in boats on the water.

Moat Farm memorial, p3 *

1903 08 25
Sir – the famous barrows known as the Bartlow Hills will soon be no more. It matters nothing that they were reared in Roman times or are the private property of a possessor bent on preserving these splendid relics. The railway company that would have destroyed them 50 years ago but for determined opposition at the time, has set its mind on their removal. They have elected to run their lines through the barrows instead of around them. So the picks of English navvies, backed by compulsory powers, will soon be at work 'dinging doon' these works of our Romano British forefathers, since they stand in the way of their company's dividends. It is nothing short of a national scandal - A.R. Goddard

Passive resistance, p3
Waterbeach Baptist church, p4

1903 08 26
A meeting arranged by the Cambridge Anti-Vaccination League was held on Market Hill. A large crowd of people assembled but the opinions of the principal speaker aroused some opposition & a little heckling took place. Someone placed a quantity of calcium carbide into the water of the fountain. & the acetylene gas which was generated was borne among the audience to whom the disagreeable odour was most objectionable #. c.21.1

1903 08 27
Sir – there is an undoubted need of facilities for higher education in Haverhill. There are numerous businessmen who cannot see their way to send their sons to the Perse or County schools at Cambridge on account of the great expense of travelling. It seems hard that the boys of Haverhill should be debarred from all chance of advancement through the want of an available Secondary School. I hope we may start a movement that will end in the establishment of a Grammar School here so that any lad endowed with exceptional intellect would have his future before him – A. Crosfield.

Passive resistors goods, p3
Haverhill school, p4 *

1903 08 29
Motor cycle reliability trials are taking place at the Crystal Palace. One Cambridge competitor, Mr W. King, of Messrs King and Co, Bridge Street, has been holding his own on a 'King' machine manufactured by the firm. The machine is 2 ¾ hp which took a gold medal for the best motor cycle of its class in February 1902. Journeys of about 150 miles are being made daily and then the machines go back to the Palace and are locked up. Next morning the competitor is allowed time to fill up and then set off on another journey. The 'King' machine is doing well and all interesting in motoring in Cambridge will wish it continued success. c.26.485

1903 08 29 c
Sir – a report is circulating that a lad was sent from Cherry Hinton to the tents on Coldham's Common supposed to be suffering from smallpox and that after a week he was sent home, only to be taken away a second time in a few days. Another report is that during the recent heavy rains the beds in the tents were surrounded by water and the deaths that have occurred there have been caused by cold and not by smallpox, as reported. As ratepayers we have a right to know whether this is true or false. – Villager # c.21.1

1903 08 18
We do not think there is the slightest risk of smallpox spreading through the use of books belonging to the Cambridge Free Library. Almost directly the epidemic was made public, Mr Pink, the librarian, wrote to us stating that every infectious case was immediately reported to him by the Medical Officer of Health. If such persons were borrowers a notice was despatched informing them they would not be able to borrow any book until the house had been properly infected. Any books or cards they had were collected and promptly destroyed. We do not see any necessity for the closing of the Library – Editor # c.77.4

1903
A shoemaker from March was charged with exposing a girl in the village street of Abbots Ripton during the time she was suffering with scarlet fever. Dr Evison, Medical Officer of Health for March, said he attended a sister of the girl and found her suffering from scarlet fever. A week later Cecilia was also taken with the same complaint. He gave orders for complete isolation but on his next visit had been told the children had been sent away. Dr Newton said he attended two village children suffering from scarlet fever and afterwards found the March children had come in contact with his patients. But he did not see the girl in the street. The summons was withdrawn.

September 1903 CDN

1903 09 01
That part of the Education Act which relates to elementary education opens up the prospect of a destructive and constructive change in the administration of county schools. The County Council has been engaged in formulating regulations on the training of teachers, village libraries etc and circulars for the guidance of the managers will be issued shortly. The Bible shall be read and instruction in the principles of the Christian religion and morality given but no attempt made to attach children to any particular denomination; managers and parents may apply for the exception of the school from this regulation. Fruit industry, Histon p3 *

Fruit industry, Histon, p3

1903 09 02
Vicars vaccination, p3
Tramway & smallpox, p3

1903 09 03
Cambridge burgesses who for conscientious reasons refuse to pay the Education Rate appeared in court. Large crowds packed the entrance as cheering in the street heralded the approach of the passive resisters. The decorum of the court broke down and applause gave way to lusty cheering which the police made no effort to subdue. George Shippey said public money should not be devoted to denominational teaching. Benjamin Liles of Fitzroy Street said the Education Act violates the British Constitution; hitherto he had an opportunity of taking part in the election of the persons who made the rate, now he would have no voice and that was why he refused to pay. # c.36.5

Moat House farm payment

1903 09 04
Goods seized from Passive Resisters for the non-payment of the education rate were auctioned at Cambridge Corn Exchange. Due precautions were taken to prevent unseemly disturbances. The auctioneer was enclosed in what resembled a laager, composed of corn merchants' desks and a large number of constables kept a vigilant watch on the crowd who clambered upon desks to obtain a clearer view of what was going to happen. No sooner had the auctioneer started than his words were drowned in a perfect storm of hooting and hissing. # c.36.5 # c.33

Waterbeach rough band, p4

1903 09 05
The first sale of goods seized from the passive resisters of St Ives was held near the police station. None of the local auctioneers would accept the office so a Peterborough firm was imported to carry out the sale. The appearance of the auctioneer was the sequel for an uproar of groans, hooting and hissing. The first lot was a Brussels carpet and teapot, then came a sewing machine taken from Mr Money, tailor, to pay his arrears of 9d; this was run up to 30s. at which price it was knocked down to his employer. The sale closed amidst general uproar and the crowd made for the Cromwell Statue for a great demonstration.

Stetchworth lighting, p3 & 7th p3

1903 09 03
Two firewood dealers were charged with stealing a quantity of timber, the property of the Roses Timber Company. The company had purchased 53 trees on the Madingley Estate, amongst which were two elms; later they found that 17 feet had been cut from one of them, and ten feet from the other. Police discovered the timber on the defendants' premises in Beche Road, Cambridge. When questioned they said it had come from King's Hedges. They were each fined £3.

Storm, p3
Resistance seizure, p3

1903 09 09
The Mayor of Cambridge read a letter: "The teacher of the school which my daughter attends has asked that she be sent away from Cambridge during the last 18 days of her holiday in order she may have a period of quarantine before returning". He was sorry Cambridge had such an unenviable reputation. It was not deserved. There was no town in which a smallpox epidemic had been got under with such rapidity and this was due to vaccination. Not one who had been vaccinated had taken the disease. Six weeks ago there were 95 cases under treatment, now there were only 24 (applause) # c.21.1

1903 09 10
A crisis in education has arisen at Cherry Hinton. St John's Infants School, Blinco Grove, is to be closed due to the abominable condition of the road which makes it next to impossible for the infants to attend in wet weather. On June 30th the average attendance was 49, compared to a high of 74 and the amount received by the school has dwindled proportionally. The school was condemned three years ago but the managers were asked to carry on until the new Education Act came into force. Now the County Council has decided not to take over the school and the closing is a drastic step taken to avoid a larger deficit.

Newmarket passive resisters league, p3 *

1903 09 11
Smallpox walked street, p3

1903 09 12
Colonel W.F. Cody, known as 'Buffalo Bill', is to bring his famous "Wild West show to Ely. The cast of 700 includes American cowboys and Indians, Russian Cossacks, South American gauchoes and some of Roosevelt's Rough Riders. It includes the exciting representation of an attack by Indians upon an American stagecoach and a remarkable demonstration of skill with the rifle by Colonel Cody.

1903 09 14
A blacksmith was summonsed for obtaining beer at the "Wait for the 'Bus" public house, Bottisham by falsely representing himself as a traveller. The landlord said the man called for beer shortly after ten o'clock; asked whether he had come the necessary distance – three miles – the blacksmith said he had come from "just this side of Cambridge". If he had not represented himself as a traveller he would not have been served. He was fined 10s and asked for time in which to pay. The magistrates said: "We never allow time here. When you come to court here you must expect to be fined and bring your money with you".

1903 09 14
The second sale of goods seized from Cambridge Passive Resisters was conducted at the Corn Exchange. Notwithstanding the presence of a large force of constables, there was a good deal of disturbance, shouting and hissing and altogether it was a complete fiasco. The auctioneer conducted the sale from behind a barrier of corn merchants' desks. The crowd made a determined attempt to break through and would have succeeded but for the very active resistance of the police.

1903 09 14
The Cambridge & County School for Boys, which during the past four years has been very insufficiently accommodated at St Columba's Hall, reached an important stage in its career. The builders were displaced by the boys at the new school house that has been erected upon Hills Road and henceforth the scholars will participate in the manifold advantages that the most approved educational equipment, utilised amidst ideal surroundings, can supply. Few buildings can possess such a curious means of access. The boys are to make their entrances by means of a slope leading into the basement where they can leave their bicycles, hats and coats before climbing a broad staircase to the ground floor. # c.36.5

1903 09 15
About 400 people were present at a meeting to support Cambridge council's decision to erect a boys' school in Romsey Town to accommodate not less than 500. If ever a district needed a school it was that one. The council had voted in favour by 23 votes to nine but four gentlemen had appealed against it. What larger majority did they want? Romsey required a school in which their boys could secure a proper education without going into the town. # c.36.5

1903 09 16
Buffalo Bill's "Wild West" circus visited Ely. In the early morning many heavy show waggons conveyed all the apparatus from the G.E.R. station to Gill's Field, Common Road where the work of fixing up the tents was watched with unflagging interest. The programme opened with an overture, then a waggon train was seen to be crossing the plains when it was attacked by marauding redskins. The cowboys opened fire and after a sharp fight drove off the enemy. The show left an impression of wonder and delight that cannot fail to remain for a long time to come.

Gt Chesterford blacksmith, p3
Bartlow bricks, p4

1903 09 17
Coun Morley said the Cambridge Borough Surveyor had met with an accident when driving in the Corporation trap. It was time they should come more up to date and go in for a motor. (Laughter). The Corporation had laughed at this before – they generally did at any matter that was up to date. It was said that motors were not reliable but he had one that had travelled 3,000 miles in six months and never had a breakdown. Motor traction cost considerably less than a pony and trap - £20 a year including petrol and everything else. He proposed that they buy a motor tandem tricycle which would cost £75. # c.26.48

Lensfield Rd tree, p3
Mount Pleasant steps, p3
Photographic exhibition, p4 *

1903 09 18
Passive resistance, p3

1903 09 19
Burwell fire, p3 *

1903 09 22

Unemployed, p4 *

1903 09 23
Gruesome discovery, p3

1903 09 24
The result of the Rochester by-election was received in Cambridge about 10.20pm and was announced to all and sundry by the ascent of the Cambridge Daily News balloon with its coloured lantern attached. An alternative signal of a green flare from a parapet overlooking St Andrew's Street was also given, and the numbers were read out from the door of the CDN. A large crowd assembled in the vicinity and the announcement was received with cheers, mingled with an occasional groan. The news was conveyed to the New Theatre where it was announced from the stage by Mr Charles Gerant, who worked it cleverly into his dialogue. It was received with enthusiastic and prolonged applause from all parts of the house.

Hirers' liability, p3

1st October
1903

1903
Mr A.E. Crawley from Hadstock wrote to The Daily Chronicle to say he experienced difficulties getting labourers for farm work. He received quite 200 replies and many men had tramped all the way down from London on the off-chance of getting a job. He has employed five who are coming to live in the village and is passing other applications to his friends who wanted workmen. This indicates a solution to the problem of how to bring people back to the land.

1903 09 25
Cambridge is a unique place in many respects, some not altogether enviable. The number of judgement summonses is out of all proportion to the number of inhabitants. The cause is easily explained. It is due to the enormous extent to which the credit system obtains here, an extent unheard of in any other town in the world. An excessive credit system inevitably means a number of bad debts – usually for small amounts – and these gradually get into the hands of the professional debt collectors who do not hesitate to bring their debtors into the County Court. # c.32.8

Ely passive resisters, p4 *

1903 09 26
Notes re drunkenness,

1903 09 28
A meeting at Haverhill to revise the voting lists considered the hamlet of Monk's Risbridge and some amusement was caused when the Overseer said there was no voters in that place, because there are no residents. The only building liable to the rates consisted of an unoccupied farm building and a brick wall, the owner of which resided Newmarket way

1903 09 29
Little hero, p3

1903 09 30
Jonas Leonard of Soham told magistrates he brought the growing crop of oats on Mr Mainprice's land and shocked it and raked between the shocks. The shocks were carted and the rakings left on the land with four sheaves, two at each end of the field to show the land was not cleared; this was the custom of the parish. But he saw some 30 people, mostly children, clearing the field, taking litter for pigs. The magistrates warned the defendants that they went on the land without authority and must not run such a risk again.

Photographic Society 1st a/m, p3

October 1903 CDN

1903 10 01
Sir – being the parties responsible for the payment of the rates on the Baptist Chapel House, Prickwillow, we decided to refuse payment of the new Education rate. We sent a postal order for the remainder of the poor rate and directed the collector to take what steps the law permitted to obtain the balance. Now we find some 'friend' unknown has paid that balance for us and deprived us of the opportunity of making the public protest we desired against the injustice of the new rate. We do not appreciate this 'kindness' but protest against it as a piece of uncalled-for and unwarranted interference – The Trustees of Prickwillow Baptist Church

1903 10 02
There has been speculation at Ely as to the identity of the unknown person who paid the education part of Mr Cragg's rate and thus prevented his appearance before the magistrates and also a Nonconformist demonstration. Now it appears the Prickwillow Baptists have been treated in a similar fashion. When Mr H. Drake of Sutton came before the magistrates there were very few nonconformists in court as they were not aware the case was coming forward. There will be much more heard of passive resistance after the next rate has been levied.

1903 10 05
At St Matthews' church, Cambridge a service of thanksgiving to Almighty God for his mercies in delivering many from small-pox, scarlet fever and diphtheria was conducted by the Vicar. Since the parish was formed 37 years ago nobody had known anything like the amount of sickness God had been pleased to send them this year. In eight months they had been visited by three terrible diseases, each taking a large number of victims, 12 of which had proved fatal. How the people in the small-pox huts on Coldham Common suffered and longed for health so as to escape what seemed a prison. Those who were still convalescent wondered what was going on in their homes and were looking forward to the time of their release. No one wanted to stay in the huts a day longer than there were obliged to. # c.21.1

1903
The passive resistance movement in Ely has suffered a temporary check. The Nonconformists were intending to hold a large demonstration after Mr Cragg of Lynn Road had appeared at the Police Court for non-payment of the education rate. All preparations were made, the meeting place fixed and speakers engaged. But at the last moment the defendant received notification that the rate and costs had been paid. This caused great indignation amongst the Nonconformists, leading them to abandon their programme.

1903 10 06
From certain events that occurred in Shamrock Passage, Newmarket Road, Cambridge recently it appears that the virtues of the flat-iron as an aid to argument continues to meet with dangerous recognition. One woman adopted this method of silencing her neighbour who was rendered insensible. Complainant: "She flew out of the house, shouted 'You old ---, take that'. I went down and remember nothing afterwards. Defendant: "When I came home you was wonderful drunk … you kicked me and 'busted my door open"

1903 10 07
A discovery has been made which seems to throw some light on the now happily disappearing epidemic in Cambridge. A professor claims to have discovered a new species of blood nematode which is productive of a disease called 'craw-craw' & has many points in common with small-pox. He contacted the Cambridge Medical Office and obtained blood films of a doubtful case of small-pox and on examining them found the same nematode. But an expert who was consulted was quite clear that the Cambridge outbreak must be an exceptional form of small-pox # c.21.1

Old Chesterton club, p3

1903 10 09
Herbert Railton has contributed fifty drawings to the book 'Cambridge and its Story' in the reproduction of which a new method of lithography has been employed for the first time. The resulting prints have all the delicacy of pencil drawings and the effect is much enhanced by a slight wash of colour added by his wife. No such beautiful architectural drawings have been produced since the days of Samuel Prout. A large-paper edition, of which 100 copies will be issued, will include an original pencil sketch by Mr Railton with each copy # c.64

1903 10 09
One hears of many curious accidents to cyclists but one which befell a Histon cyclist near Cottenham was quite unique. A cat became entangled between the spokes and the fork of the front wheel of his machine and was so badly injured that it died. Usually cats manage to steer wonderfully clear of machines but this unfortunate feline must have dashed right into the cyclist's front wheel

1903 10 10
An instance of the usefulness of the telephone as an aid to the detection of crime was demonstrated at the Cambridge Police Court. Detective Marsh was informed of the theft of a bicycle from Mr Edwards of Emmanuel Street and given the description of the suspect. He telephoned to Bishop Stortford and Herts police arrested the man near Buntingford. The prisoner told the court "If I had had another hour I should have been in London". # c.27.8

Baths, p3 *

1903 10 12
There was another heavy downpour of rain; the Cam has but in a few places overflowed its banks and the ferries between Cambridge and Chesterton are still working. The Granta has not behaved so well and the water is already over the banks; there is a vast expanse of water with the tops of the hedges and the trees only showing. At Grantchester mill the road is knee deep. The basement of houses in Newmarket High Street are flooded as are some of the low-lying streets at Saffron Walden and the railway line at Chesterford is threatened with being submerged. # c.46.5

1903 10 13
Cam valley history, p3 *
Deluge, p3 *

1903 10 14
The Rev Dr. J. Mayo sued the churchwardens of Mepal. He said he had been requested to come from Cambridge on a Sunday to preach in the absence of the vicar; his charge was £2.2.0 with 5s.9d. expenses. The judge said the sum seemed not too much for the services he had rendered and he hoped the money would come immediately the judgement was pronounced. He trusted the churchwardens would pay it, and not the new incumbent.

Photo club prizes, p3 *
St Tibbs Row Livery stables, p3
'Billy Fairplay', p4

1903 10 15
Ald Spalding said the Free Library was a very worthy institution, but it was supported by the rates of the town & these should be used in opposition to legitimate businesses. There were three lending libraries in Cambridge, the proprietors of which paid a considerable sum of money for the rates. He did not think it right that the Library enter into competition by offering the use of fiction and the other advantages of the Library to county residents for the minimum annual subscription of 5s. It was not fair and should be discontinued. # c.77.4

1903 10 15
The marriage of the niece of General Sir John French was celebrated at Hemingford; in order to attend the ceremony the distinguished soldier passed through St Ives where the Mayor and Corporation extended him a civic welcome. The town has witnessed no such excitement since the unveiling of the Cromwell statue. Inhabitants decorated their houses with flags and bunting and a contingent of the Hunts Volunteers, the Fire Brigade and Boys' Brigade paraded with a brass band.
Undergraduate behaviour, p3

1903 10 16
An aquatic entertainment of a unique kind was given on the Cam by Leonard F. Durell. It consisted of a genuine exhibition of log rolling. The log, not very large, was painted red, white and blue. He jumped lightly on it, spun it into mid stream, then sat down and, using a long pole, commenced his journey. Along the Backs of the Colleges he performed various revolutions and arrived at his destination without mishap. There his feats were little short of marvellous; he stood on his head on a chair resting on the log and was heartily applauded. # c.46.5

Cottenham history, p4

1903 10 17
The King went out for his customary horseback exercise on Friday morning earlier than usual, the weather being delightful. He was on Newmarket Heath shortly before nine and spent upwards of an hour cantering over the greensward. After watching the horses exercising His Majesty returned to his rooms and subsequently proceeded in an open carriage to the races. On his return his carriage only just escaped being run into in congested traffic by a heavy vehicle whose horses were pulled on their haunches to prevent the collision.

1903 10 19
Small pox, p7
Paganism, p4

1903 10 20
The Pistols Act for the regulation of the sale and use of pistols and other firearms has come into force. It is now illegal to sell or hire a pistol to anybody without a gun or game licence unless he is a householder and purposes to use the pistol only in his own home or is going abroad for six months. Persons under eighteen years of age may not buy, use or carry a gun, subject to a fine of £2. The sale of pistols to insane or intoxicated persons is prohibited. The provisions do not apply where an antique pistol is sold as a curiosity or an ornament.

Moat Farm mystery & sale, p3
Blackmail brewers, p3

1903 10 21
Cycle hirer, p3
Education mass meeting, p3

1903 10 22

The Passive resistance movement at Newmarket has reached a new stage; a fortnight ago 21 persons were summoned for non-payment of the poor rate, warrants were issued and the unpleasant task of distraining goods fell to the police. They called at the defendant's homes while they were there and selected one or two articles they considered of sufficient value to cover the rate and cost. These will be auctioned. One of the Resisters will probably buy the goods in; the sale is hardly likely to last more than a few minutes and be free from any disturbance.

1903 10 23
Some inhabitants of Gamlingay imagine they on the verge of acquiring riches. In the serial running in "Tit Bits" the publishers have inserted clues indicating the whereabouts of hidden gold. Lately a considerable number of strangers have been prowling round the "Old Moon" in the hope of unearthing £100. The inhabitants of the Cinques have not been slow to make their own deductions; a systematic search is being carried on and excavations are being made by those afflicted with the gold fever.

St Andrew's Street chapel weathervane, p3 *

1903 10 24
The recent completion of the Atlas Stone Company works at Coldham's Lane will add to the industrial importance of the Romsey Town and Cherry Hinton districts of Cambridge. A complete plant for the manufacture of artificial paving slabs on the most up-to-date principles has been installed with a hydraulic press capable of 500 slabs per day worked by electric power. The chief market is in London and the Eastern Counties where the value of artificial flags for footways has been firmly established. # c.23 # c.27.1

Shops – undergraduates, p3 *
Haverhill rifle range, p4

1903 10 26
The Cambridge and County School for Boys was formally opened bridging that gulf from primary to higher education which has been such a blot on our new national system; now a secondary education is placed within reach of that very wide class previously content with elementary education only. The progress of the school has been phenomenal; on the opening day three years ago 41 boys presented themselves; each term saw an increase and now there are no fewer than 210 scholars. # c.36.5

1903 10 28
In recent years so many gloomy predictions have been made concerning the decline in the birth rate that Lincolnshire Agricultural Society offered a prize for the labourers who had brought up the greatest number of children. It was won by Thomas Hought of Market Rasen with a record of 19 children born, 17 brought up and 12 placed out. It is quite refreshing to find that John Bull has still left a remnant of sturdy sons and daughters possessing the faculty of perpetuating their species. That such large families should still be common in rural districts at a time when the urban birth rate is declining is proof of the damaging effects of city life and air upon the national health and vitality.

1903 10 29
Notes – smallpox, p2 & p3

1903 10 30
Swavesey swan killed, p3

1903 10 31
Boy birched

November 1903 CDN

1903 11 02
The working of telephones and telegraphs throughout Europe was disorganised in consequence of a magnetic storm, attributed to the influence of the solar activity in the form of sun-spots. The effect was noticeable in the telegraphic instrument room at Cambridge Post Office where strong deflections of the needles of the telegraph instruments were noticed, but fortunately this did not delay the transmission of messages. One example of the disorganisation of electrical communication was that the full lists of results of the League matches on Saturday were not, as they usually are, contained in the 6.30 edition of the Cambridge Daily News

Drunk in pram, p3

1903 11 05
Royston passive resisters, p3

1903 11 06
Time once was when the concentrated animosity between Cambridge Town and Gown found annual outlet on 'The Fifth'. There are many old inhabitants who have seen the traditional riots gradually die down with the building up of mutual ties between University and Town. Athletic Varsitymen and pugilistic townsmen no longer belabour each other; they join issue in attempts at bonfires with police baiting thrown in as a sideline. At Castle End undergraduates managed to secure a shutter with the intention of making it the nucleus of a bonfire; a constable was rolled to the ground, his helmet knocked off and his whistle and truncheon lost before more policemen arrived and three arrests were made – one member of the Varsity, a soldier and a townsman. # c.36.9

Bus & tram, p4 *

1903 11 09
One hardly expects in the present day to find a highwayman abroad in the early hours of the evening. But Stephen Hagger, a farmer of Stapleford had just crossed the Stump Cross when a man rushed from under the hedge and called upon him to stop. Hagger however spurred his horse and galloped off but two pistol shots were fired at him; on arriving home he examined his hat and found a hole in it, such as might have been made by a revolver bullet.

Waterbeach railway accident, p4

1903 11 10
A startling scene occurred during a performance at the New Theatre, Cambridge. Shortly before its conclusion the play was stopped and an undergraduate was ejected. An attendant was first sent to remonstrate with the man who had been making himself an intolerable nuisance, but as this seemed to be of no avail the Manager, Mr Redfern stopped the play and asked him to leave. The undergraduate remained seated, saying "My good man I have nothing to do with it". Redfern: "I am not your good man". The reluctant offender donned his gown and left the Theatre looking very crestfallen amid cheers and hisses. The play then proceeded.

Royston passive resistance, p4 *

1903 11 11
Few firms possess so high a reputation for the manufacture and fitting of artificial molars as Messrs F.W. Bradley of Wisbech. Times have changed since the days when 'false teeth' were a disfigurement. They can now be fitted so perfectly that detection is practically impossible. Starting in 1887 the business has spread with branches in every town of importance in the Eastern Counties. Mr Bradley has issued a tasty brochure with expressions of thanks from people in all stations of life, for he has proved that it is possible to execute high-class work at reasonable charges.

Steeple Morden mystery, p3
Turpin, p3

1903 11 11
Under Government regulations no child can be boarded out with foster-parents of different religious denominations to that in which the child is registered. At Cherry Hinton a girl had been fostered with a couple who took very great interest in her. At the time they took her the wife was undoubtedly Church of England and the husband went nowhere. Since then he had started going to the Baptist Chapel and his wife felt it her duty to go with him and take the child. Now the Ladies Boarding-Out Committee had threatened to take the child away from them. Being Government servants they must obey the rules and regulations laid down for their guidance.

1903 11 11 c
The first sale of good distrained under warrants for refusing to pay the education rate took place at Royston police station. A number of constables were in attendance but there was a complete absence of interruption, the crowd of sympathisers, which numbered about 100, being very orderly. The goods which were seized from people in Nuthampstead, Reed and Barkway were all brought back. Afterwards a meeting heard that the ranks of resisters were multiplying day by day and it is more than probable that future sales will be necessary. They did not blame the police for doing their unpleasant duty in carrying out this iniquitous act; as soon as they got an opportunity they would turn out the present Government.

1903 11 12
A second shooting outrage has been committed on the highway at Abington. Harold Chamberlain was in charge of a van belonging to Pegg's Brewery, Cambridge when two shots were fired in his direction. Naturally he was alarmed and drove off as quickly as possible. Police Superintendent Everitt of Linton was apprised of the occurrence and every available constable was sent to hunt for the highwayman.

1903 11 13
A lady from Chesterton says that since she took up her abode her house has been invaded by battalions of tradesmen's representatives, most of whom went away empty-handed, as they were all anxious to sell the same goods. One individual of righteous appearance bearing a bundle of what appeared to be the latest thing in tracts asked if the household was a teetotal one and hoped she would accept one of his pamphlets. When she came to look at the pledge form it was an advertisement for bottled beer. It is curious that all the others have been bottled beer men too.

1903 11 13
The shooting outrages near Saffron Walden continue to arouse excitement; a rumour circulated that a commercial traveller had been fired upon near Littlebury, that he had been struck and was carrying a considerable sum of money, having sold four horses. But none of this is correct. Two gentlemen motoring near Stump Cross were 'pulled up by a gentleman' who asked the way to Hinxton church, he was something over fifty with a greyish beard. The whole affair has instituted a reign of terror in the district.

1903 11 13
Another shooting outrage has occurred when two shots were fired through the bedroom window of a labourer and his wife in London Road, Great Shelford. They looked out of the window and saw a man on a bicycle with another man in a trailer attached. Pistol shot holes were found bored through the windows of the front sitting-room and the impression of a bullet on the wall is observable, but the bullet has not been found. The police have traversed long distances at night on a motor car in their search for the modern Dick Turpin and are keeping watch on places likely to be frequented by wanderers.

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1903 11 14
A recital was given at Cambridge to exhibit the capabilities of the Angelus piano player, an instrument for assisting the interpretation of compositions for which much is claimed. Its power has by no means been over-rated. It can be manipulated by anyone, with no knowledge of music and gives a perfect command of the piano. The recital was arranged by Messrs G.C. Bedwell, music sellers of Hills Road, Cambridge.

1903 11 16
Milk watered, p2 & p3

1903 11 18
Three Blackbirds case, p2

1903 11 20
Table Talk lost & found, p3 *
Highway terror, p3 *
Kingston school, p3

1903 11 21
One of the events of the year was the great fire which swept away the extensive premises of Messrs Laurie & McConnal in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge. Now within nine months the ruins have been replaced by more convenient, commodious and up-to-date premises and the business is in full swing in its new home. They are the first entirely steel-frame buildings erected in this country. Those who remember the former premises cannot but be struck with the immense improvement effected, with lifts, driven by an electric motor, at the service of customers any time of the day. # c.27.2

1903 11 21
A growing demand for the stone, marble and granite objects with which the memory of the dead are perpetuated indicates an expansion of business for those who provide these melancholy tokens. Messrs Ivett and Reed have found their premises on Mill Road and Regent Street inadequate and have opened a new branch on Newmarket Road, appropriately near the new cemetery. The premises consist of a dwelling house and show-room and are built of Bath stone with a portico supported by two graceful Corinthian pillars. Inside is a chimney-piece of statuary marble upon which delicate-looking foliage is represented in the Italian style. # c.21.2

1903 11 24
The contents of Herringswell House have been sold including a remarkable collection of paintings by J.F. Herring, senior which was formed by the late Mr Mure, who was one of his principal patrons. Many are known to have been painted there. A remarkable painting of the Coach and Four at Bottisham Swan was the gem and the buyer was fortunate in acquiring it for 310 guineas. Others fetched prices from £215 for a set of six hunting pictures to £12 for 12 finely-drawn crayon drawings attributed to Herring.

Highway terror, p2 *

1903 11 25
An agreement has been reached for the incorporation of the Capital and Counties Bank, London and Messrs Foster's bank in Sidney Street, Cambridge. The Capital was established more than 69 years ago and holds eminent rank among the leading London clearing banks. It is already well known here, having a branch in Cambridge under the management of Mr Guilmant, and others at Newmarket, Haverhill and Wisbech. We feel confident that the enlargement by this amalgamation with Messrs Foster of the Bank's sphere of operations cannot but prove of general advantage. # c.32.8

1903 11 26

Teachers salaries, p3

1903 11 27
A fire broke out in a storehouse at Messrs Lincoln's premises in Sidney Street, Cambridge; a quantity of petroleum became ignited and the fire assumed dangerous proportions. Three hydrants were quickly at work with hoses were taken through Trinity College and directed from college windows. But as the water streamed along the floor oil settled on the surface and becoming ignited created an effect of running streams of flame. At the time of going to press the fire was still burning but has been sufficiently subdued to enable some of the goods in the store-room to be removed. There were over 100 gallons of petroleum in store. # c.34.75

Death Shield, p4 *

1903
A report has circulated in Haverhill that Mr & Mrs Todd of 106 Withersfield Road were disturbed by revolver or pistol shots, the bullets hitting the wall of the house. The opinion is being expressed that some of the same gang who have created such terror on the highways had paid one of their nocturnal visits. A bricklayer named Suckling was returning home to Steeple Bumpstead when he was stopped by two men who emerged from a hedge. Without more ado he turned tail and ran back to his father's house at Haverhill.

1903 11 28
As reported yesterday nearly 150 gallons of petroleum became ignited in a warehouse in Sidney Street, Cambridge. It appears that one of Messrs Lincoln's carmen sent a lad to the warehouse to trim a van lamp. The boy was apparently not aware that the warehouse is lighted by electricity and while trimming the lamp he allowed it to remain alight. The oil in the lamp by some means became ignited and he dropped it on the floor. Two tanks of petroleum and a cask of methylated spirits were soon blazing furiously and the interior was a mass of flame.

1903 11 30
The unprecedented rainfall has taxed waterways beyond their capacity and floods are the natural consequence. In Cambridge boathouses have been invaded by the flood and the ferries have stopped plying. The flood has taken possession of Sheep's Green and part of Coe Fen while the Upper Granta has inundated many acres of pasture. In the fen country the dykes are full to overflowing and the land clogged with water, while in St Ives there are floods to a considerable depth covering hundreds of acres. # c.29

December 1903 CDN

1903 12 02
If the scene that attended the opening of the children's reading room at the Mill Road branch of the Cambridge Free Library can be relied upon the experiment ought to be attended with the happiest results. Within a few minutes of opening it was fully occupied by boys and girls and the demand for admittance was in excess of expectations with a large number waiting patiently outside until room could be made for them. Some had a long wait as once the children had settled down to the store of attractive books and pictures provided the employment became completely absorbing. Their clean faces and hands and well-brushed hair helped form a charming sight which their complete quietness and good behaviour rendered all the more attractive. # c.77.4

1903 12 03
Some 20 years ago premises in Gwydir Street Cambridge were used as a brewery; they became dismantled but now through the enterprise of Mr Frederick Dale it has been converted to an up-to-date brewery where beer made from pure malt and hops will be manufactured. Its speciality will be family pale ales and nourishing or invalid stout, an article a small brewer seldom undertakes to manufacture.

Messrs Adlam of Bristol have installed the most improved machinery and the most up-to-date methods are employed. # c.27.4

Brutal sports, p3
Whittlesford Congregational Chapel, p4

1903 12 03
Mill Road library opened a reading room for the exclusive benefit of children. Apart from the love of books and pictures likely to be instilled into the youthful mind there are habits of cleanliness, order & discipline. Dirty hands and faces are not permitted to enter and bad behaviour is punished by immediate expulsion. The children will be well looked after and tired mothers and weary fathers can rest with easy minds knowing their offspring are enjoying themselves without injuring either their bodies or their morals. # c.77.4

1903 12 04
Fulbourn fire, p3
Miss Holland memorial, p4

1903 12 05
The Central Temperance Hotel and Coffee Tavern, Market Hill, Cambridge was for sale by auction. It has been an important and famous inn for centuries; originally known as the 'Three Tuns' it was visited by Pepys in 1660. The large ballroom with the minstrels' gallery still exists with valuable panelling and carved chimney pieces. It occupies an excellent position in a busy thoroughfare and is freehold. # c.27.4

Herbert Railton, p3

1903 12 08
Christmas Day happening to fall on a Friday means that trade generally will be at a standstill for three days in succession. Housewives must either purchase their stocks of meat, bread, fish and vegetables on the Thursday or dealers in these goods must open on Saturday. Opinion is divided. Some bakers say they cannot make enough bread on Thursday for the three following days but others say they sell practically no bread on Boxing Day as people do not each so much at Christmas. Butchers are inclined to close on the Saturday but fishmongers, where the supply of ice is an item of the trade, will open for a few hours only. Unless united action is taken some persons engaged in the four trades will have their holidays considerably cut into. # c.27.2

1903 12 08
A unique performance took place at the Cambridge New Theatre when the Eastern Vacuum Cleaner Co. demonstrated spring cleaning up-to-date by which a building may be thoroughly cleansed of all dirt and dust. Standing outside was a machine provided with a pair of vacuum pumps actuated by an oil or electric motor which maintains an exhaust of several pounds to the square inch. Connected with it were lengths of hose which terminated in 'cleaners' or 'renovators'. Members of the 'Varsity, civic dignitaries, keen business men and householders with their wives watched the dust being collected. No dust is raised in the apartment being cleaned which should be especially appreciated in Cambridge where there are so many works of art and delicate instruments.

1903 12 09
Sutton tradesmen, p3

1903 12 10
Magdalene master 50 years, p3
Local building societies, p4

1903 12 11
Christmas holiday appeal

1903 12 12
Her Majesty the Queen was awoken at Sandringham by Miss Knollys who found her bedroom full of smoke. Her chamber had immediate access to Queen Alexandra's and her first thought was to secure the safety of Her Majesty, who wrapped in a dressing gown escaped into the corridor just in time to avoid the fall of the ceiling of her room. Sir Dighton Probyn alarmed the household fire brigade and it says much for their efficiency that within a very short interval the flames were entirely subdued. Several accounts are current as to the cause of the fire, one being that the electric light was defective. But they are in perfect order, says the consulting electrical engineer to the royal residence.

Chesterton grumble, p3 *

Sir – Some weeks ago a travelling tinker called at my house and told my wife the old, old story of out of work and wife dying of starvation etc. She took pity on him and gave him a small job to repair a kettle, for which after putting a piece of putty in the hole he had the audacity to charge 8d. My wife paid him out of fear. Then some rascal decamped with my shirt and some tablecloths from our washing line. People should not encourage travelling tinkers and rag-and-bone-men who come to see in the daylight what can be had at a later period – A. Stevens, Richmond Road, Cambridge. 03 12 12

1903 12 14
The organ which for many years had been in use at Trumpington church has been replaced by an instrument of a much more satisfactory character and one which will add considerably to the beauty of the musical portion of the service. It cannot be described as being entirely new as old parts and part of the old case have been incorporated into the ancient instrument's successor which was built by Messrs Miller and Sons of Cambridge.

1903 12 15
Haverhill resisters, p3
J.H. Priest new shop, p3

1903 12 16
The new bakery of Mr G.P. Hawkins in Parsonage Street, Cambridge is a substantially built erection with deep foundations. The visitor passes through an artistic lobby covered with green and white newelite tiles of white glass which fit tightly together so no dirt or insect can attach itself to the walls. The floors are of granolithic and the electric light is installed in every compartment. The bread is produced by up-to-date machinery. In a short time a continuous electric current and an automatic kneader will be installed. There is a glass roof in the yard so the carts can be loaded comfortably, irrespective of the vagaries of the weather. # c.27

Blue Boar failure, p3

1903 12 17
Balsham right of way, p3 *

1903 12 18
A new cement company is being floated under the title of 'The Foxton Cement Co. Ltd' with a share capital of £60,000. It will acquire about 93 acres of land adjoining the Foxton Hall Estate where experts have predicted there is an exceptionally good bed of cement marl. It is proposed to erect the most modern machinery capable of producing about 500 tons per week of first-class Portland cement. There is also a large deposit of chalk and a considerable trade is already being done with the gravel and sand on the surface.

1903 12 19
Some excitement was caused when it became known that a fire had broken out at the extensive malthouse of Messrs Christmas and Co., the well-known brewers of Camps Road, Haverhill. Captain Bridge and the members of the Fire Brigade were soon on the scene with their hose but the flames had obtained a good hold and a considerable portion of the wall and roof fell in before the fire was subdued. A small fire also occurred at an unoccupied cottage in Eden Road. A number of paraffin matches were found on the window sill which led to the supposition it was the work of an incendiary

Bakers and Christmas, p3

1903 12 19
Cambridge Cheap Funeral Furnishing. Polished Elm Coffin, Glass Hearse, 2 Carriages, Bearers, and Attendance complete £5 5s. – C. Osler, Mawson Road. Glass Hearse and Pair, with rubber tyres, 7s.6d. Brougham with single horse, 5s. No extra charge for Black Plumes or Velvets if required. Coffins finished and delivered in two hours if required. Guaranteed five per cent cheaper than anyone else – Ellis Merry, Abbey Walk [Adverts] # c.21.2

1903 12 23
Cambridge architect Edwin Bays has produced a plan for a new 60 feet-wide road from Downing Street to Guildhall Street, parallel to Corn Exchange Street. This would create valuable frontages for business premises on either side and lead to a site for a new Cambridgeshire County Hall. There would be a fountain to take off the nakedness of the wide entrance at St Andrew's Hill, replacing the old Corn Exchange. It would relieve the congested traffic in the narrow Petty Cury and provide a direct access to the chief colleges. # c.49.4

Sidney Street sale, p3 *

1903 12 24
Driving licence, p3
Inebriate home, p3

1903 12 28
The idea of a happy Christmas being spent by those who are unfortunate enough to inhabit a workhouse is to most people incomprehensible. But in Cambridge workhouse Christmas Day is a happy day. The master tempers discipline with mercy and sheds a small ray of sunshine upon those whose lives have been darkened with misfortune. He has done more for the salvage of wrecked humanity that is ever likely to be known by the public at large # c.32.9

1903 12 28
Addenbrooke's Hospital unfortunately contained many suffers at Christmas but the season of goodwill was ushered in with the usual ceremony. A large number of toys having been sent to the Hospital every child was able to have one. Santa Claus distributed them from a splendid Christmas Tree whose adornment by means of coloured electric lights was most picturesque. Each patient was the recipient of a parcel of clothing through the kindness of the Needlework Guild and Miss Bennett of Orwell. To the patients of the men's surgical and accident wards Mr Joseph Clark made a present of cigars and Mr Leathart, the assistant house surgeon, gave them pipes, tobacco and cigarettes, which were greatly appreciated. If a suitable environment is conducive to recovery from illness the patients must have made rapid progress this Christmas.

1903
Christmas in Cambridge did not pass without its sensation. On Boxing Day three men were walking along the river bank at the rear of the Abbey Estate when one fancied he discerned something struggling in the water. The light was dim so they struck a quantity of vestas but could see nothing. As they turned away the discovery of a woman's hat lying on the bank strengthened their belief that something was wrong. The alarm was given and since then those who delight in mysteries have had a subject for conversation. No one is reported missing and it maybe a practical joke.

1903 12 28
The Christmas holiday has been observed in Haverhill in the customary manner. On Christmas Eve the railway officials were kept extremely busy with numerous arrivals and departures, and thanks to the absence of fog, the train service for the most part was punctually kept. At noon on Christmas Day toys, oranges etc were taken to the Burton End Church Sunday Schoolroom, being the proceeds of the recent 'doll' service and were distributed amongst the poor children of that part of the town.

1903 12 29
New motor car act – its Cambridge effect, p3 & 30th p3

1903 12 30
Mill Road trench collapse, p3
Sparrows, p3
Motor car act, p3

1903 12 31
Mill Road collapse, p3

1903
Three Balsham labourers were seen in a gravel pit adjoining Wratall Farm with a loaded gun, rabbits and nets in their possession. They claimed they had a right to be there. Under the Enclosure award two acres were apportioned for the benefit of the parish but the herbage was reserved to the rector who sub-let it. A gate was to be erected and kept in repair by the rector, but this had not been done so he had forfeited his rights. One of the men was a member of the Parish Council, by whom it had been discussed.

1903 12 23
An important property sale was conducted, consisting of various properties in Sidney Street, one of the most central and important positions in the business part of Cambridge. Naturally there was a large attendance and the bidding was spirited. It included the coachbuilder's factory of T. Hunnybun, including carriage showroom and harness-maker's shop. These were withdrawn but sold after the sale at a considerably enhanced price; we understand they will continue their business in Hobson Street. A draper's shop occupied by F. Blott found a purchaser at £3,600. # c.06

1903 12 30
A crusade against the house sparrow has been launched by the Board of Agriculture. They are welcomed by the town dweller as a picturesque addition to the wilderness of streets amid which he passes most of his life. But when cornfields are in proximity to the outskirts of the town it is no uncommon thing to find that a whole grain crop has been ruined by the ravages of a multitude of the birds. They inflict damage upon garden produce, stripping gooseberry and red currant bushes of their buds, tearing in pieces flowers such as crocuses and pulling up rows of newly-sown peas. Sparrows have become a pest and no more sympathy need be wasted upon them than is bestowed upon rats.

1904 Cambridge Daily News

There are reader-printer copies and scans
Checked against diary

January 1904 CDN

1904 01 01
For a span of seventy-odd years Cambridge has had a rallying point from which to speed the Old and welcome the New Year. The venerable Alderman Deck has sent two coloured rockets skyward and attracted a portion of the population to King's Parade. For the first time a similar event took place at Old Chesterton when his son ignited the fireworks close to the Horse Grind ferry. But it was not known that a new ceremony would take place and not a single resident left his abode to witness the rockets' flight # c.39

Small-pox report, p3
Christmas Day accident, p4

1904 01 02
Laurence Humphry, physician, was summoned for not clearing the footway in front of his house known as Lensfield, on Lensfield Road, Cambridge. The pavement had been covered with leaves which fell chiefly from a tree in the doctor's garden so a constable called and told him it was in a dangerous condition. However the Corporation had erected a fence separating his land from the highway; his premises adjoined the fence but did not adjoin the footpath. He had another frontage to Panton Street and swept the pavement there.

1904 01 02
The terrible catastrophe at the Iroquois Theatre Chicago has caused English theatrical managers to overhaul their precautions against fire. Mr Redfern has caused the whole of the arrangements for the Cambridge New Theatre to be made as safe as possible. The stage and foot lights are all electric, it is amply provided with fire hoses and experienced firemen are told off each night. The hydrants are on the high-pressure main and they have all desirable exits. The greatest danger is panic but every man, woman and child had the means of getting out of the building. He has timed the people making their exit and it had never exceeded four minutes, without one emergency door being opened. # c.76

1904 01 02
The Eastern Vacuum Cleaning Company has cleaned two of the large rooms, the coffee room and the commercial room, of the Lion Hotel in Petty Cury, Cambridge and the result is remarkable. The carpets are rich, large carpets, so large in fact as to be almost unwieldy under the old method of beating, but under this system they have been cleaned in the most perfect manner and not a particle of dust can be found. Out of one carpet 28 lbs of dust and dirt was extracted and now the whole of the hotel is to be dealt with in similar manner # c.27

Sweeping path, p3
Mill Road storeyard, p3 *
Local retrospect, p4

1904 01 04
Considerable damage was done by a fire that started in the attic at the Rose Hotel, Rose Crescent, Cambridge. News was received at the Fire Station by means of the fire alarm post on Market Hill and they were soon on the scene with the horsed fire escape and tender. Much damage was done in a comparatively small area but every room in the hotel suffered from the effects of water, which saturated the ceilings. Fortunately none of the bedrooms were occupied at the time # c.27.4

Fires, p2

Fire extinguisher, p3
Local retrospect, p4

1904 01 05
Rose Crescent fire, p3
Local retrospect, p4

1904 01 06
An inquest was held at Guilden Morden on a 70-year-old man who was given a dose of laudanum shortly before his death. His daughter said she had never known him take it before; she obtained two-pennyworth and gave him half a teaspoonful neat. William Bridgeman, registered chemist from Ashwell, said two grains was a fair dose for an adult. The doctor said laudanum was a great deal too much used in that part for pains of all kinds. Two grains of opium was too much and dangerous for such an old man but not sufficient to account for his death. He had died from heart failure.

Local retrospect, p4

1904 01 07
Ely T.A. Hills town crier, p3
Sale plate, p3
Local retrospect, p4

1904 01 08
The recent inquest on an old man who took a dose of laudanum sends a warning. The tendency nowadays when any minor ailment calls for relief is to rely far too much on medicines. Many of these specious remedies are not the innocent compounds their manufacturers claim and many a patent medicine is absolutely poisonous. There is a certain ‘soothing syrup’ extensively used which will soothe an infant into the sleep of death; eight or ten drops answers the purpose, the child dying speedily with all the symptoms of opium poisoning. 15,000 children are killed every year by soothing syrup and other similar preparations. # OPIUM

Local retrospect, p4

1904 01 09
Caxton and Arrington Guardians met at the Workhouse when the Master, referring to the consumption of tobacco and snuff in the House, said that non-smokers received nothing equivalent to the tobacco received by smokers. Mr Anthony objected to tobacco-smoking and thought the ratepayers should not be asked to provide anything that was not good. But Mr Evans said it aided digestion and was one of the pleasures the inmates enjoyed. It is only given to people over 60 years of age, including the old ladies. Non-smokers cannot appreciate

1904 01 12
Brewery dinner, p3

1904 01 13
Newmarket drainage, p4

1904 01 14
The Cambridge Free Library committee are desirous that no resident should remain ignorant of the means at their disposal for acquiring knowledge. They have authorised the sale of the new catalogue at considerably less than cost price and issued a circular to every house. The Central Library reading room, with its wide selection of newspapers and periodical literature, invariably has its full complement of readers. Borrowers are induced to take a work of fiction and another work away together and so a taste for reading of the useful kind is being instilled. # c.77.4

W. Farren on bird life, p2
Burwell barber, p3

1904 01 15
Some London people having an artistic sense come to Cambridge for identification marks for motor cars. Under the new Act motor cars may be registered in any county; each has one or more letters of the alphabet allotted to it and underneath are printed the number of the car. London has but one letter, 'A', and as the registered cars there already number over a thousand the one letter perched over four numbers looks awkward. Cambridgeshire is endowed with two letters 'C.E.' and has presently only two numerals beneath, making a nicely-balanced identification mark. But the demand may not continue as the number of motor cars, as well as of drivers in this county, rapidly approaches the hundred. # c.26.48

Fire brigade, p3

1904 01 16
The Old Bailey heard the case of an Ely lady, Florence R.; her first husband William had obtained a divorce nisi citing Henry F. as co-respondent, though it was never made absolute. But Florence married Henry, or at least went through a form of marriage, but as the first was not dissolved the second wedding was illegal and bigamous. Further complications followed. Henry went away to South Africa and she made the acquaintance of a man named B., whom she subsequently married. Her mother subsequently married William's father in the belief he was dead. William thus occupies this bewildering position: His father is his father-in-law. His mother-in-law is his step-mother. His wife is his step-sister. Two other men have married his wife. Florence was sentenced to five day's imprisonment # WOMEN

1904 01 18
A Warkworth Terrace man told Cambridge magistrates that he believed his neighbours had some artificial means of making their voices heard by him alone: "They use talking machines and electric wires contrived to convey sound to a certain point only. I have seen what look like an electric telegraph wire in their garden beside a system of beams, boards and ropes which I conclude to be part of some telephoning system. Nearby in Melbourn Place there lives a telegraph clerk who searches my room with an exceedingly strong electric searchlight and conveys a message by Marconi's wireless telegraphy to let them know the right time to call out and wake me" # c.27.7

1904 01 19
Grand opera, New Theatre, p2

1904 01 20
Sutton draper bankruptcy, p3

1904 01 21
Cherry Hinton sewers, p3*
Mammoth Show Society formed, p4

1904 01 21
Cambridge councillors considered the purchase of a steam fire engine. The two fires at Addenbrooke's Hospital and Fitzroy Street were bad, but took place under favourable conditions – in the first the wind took the flames away from the Hospital and in the other there was a brick wall, instead of lathe and plaster. Since then there had been two other fires, in Sidney Street and Rose Crescent which might have resulted disastrously. In the centre of town whole blocks of buildings might be burnt down. The only additional expenditure would be the cost of an engineer. But the Fire Brigade did not want one and they ought to know more than councillors. # c.34.75

1904 01 22
Boer War memorial, Gt St Mary's, p2

1904 01 22
Three Cambridge gentlemen were discussing the new Motor Car Act which introduces car numbers. "There is no dashing past a policeman now because the number would be easily seen and identification would follow as a matter of course. For instance, that car is CE 25." "No, 35", contradicted one of his friends, "20" exclaimed the third. The car drew up and they looked again – it was 23. If it had been going at 40 mph in a cloud of dust it is impossible to say what number might not have been given it. If the members of the police force have no better eyesight than those gentlemen it seems to me that complications will ensue. # c.26.48

1904 01 23
Shelford railway guard killed, p3
Electric trams, p3

1904 01 25
Cambridge Press concert, p4

1904 01 26
Cambridge magistrates said the custom of sending round for 'Christmas Boxes' was a bad one and liable to be greatly abused. They heard how a groom from Castle Street had obtained a shilling from the cashier at Hallack and Bond's shop after claiming that he was an ostler at the Carrier's Arms. He also tricked Eaden Lilley's into giving him a similar sum. No less than 11 similar charges could have been made against the prisoner who was sentenced to seven days hard labour. # c.39

1904 01 27
As I passed through the huge swing doors, the crisp tinkling of electric bells, mingled with a loud confused chatter of female voices, smote on my ear. I was standing for the first time in a Telephone Exchange. I passed through another door into a long low room along the sides of which ran what appeared at first sight to be a huge 'Upright Grand' piano and seated in front of it a long row of girls stretching into an almost dim perspective. Each girl has 200 subscribers to attend to and immediately one lifts his receiver a lamp emits a golden glow and the girl puts a small brass plug in a hole, pushes a lever forward and speaks to him. She then puts another plug in the requested number. # c.27.7

1904 01 28
St Andrews Street chapel, p3 *
Newmarket garage fire, p4

1904 01 29
Many are the amusing incidents related by canvassers for Parliamentary honours. One called at a modest house in Norfolk Street, Cambridge and asked for the master of the house. A sturdy working man appeared but when asked for his support burst out: "Look here, guv'nor, you must see the 'missus. I have only voted once, and since then our rates has gone up. So she says I'm no class at voting, and in future she's going to vote herself, instead of me". In vain did the canvasser endeavour to explain that the man's good wife could not vote, but he responded "Can't vote? Can't she? Perhaps you'll tell her so!" # c.33

1904 01 30
The 'Eastern Morning Gazette', a Conservative organ published at Norwich for the last 12 months, has ceased publication. An editorial states this is not due to the hopelessness of the political situation but to other causes, it will be remembered that the price was recently reduced from a penny to a halfpenny. The 'Norfolk Evening Standard' will continue to chronicle all the news of the day with its customary impartiality, to shape and guide public opinion and to champion the Conservative cause. # c.04

Police annual report, p3

1904 01 30
A savage attack has been perpetrated by a prisoner at the Cambridge gaol upon a warder named Andrews, which resulted in severe injuries. Amongst a gang of prisoners chipping wood was one of morose disposition who suddenly rushed upon the unsuspecting warder and dealt him a terrible blow with a hatchet. Assistance was at hand and the prisoner was secured. He has been reported to magistrates and subjected to a severe flogging for his cowardly assault. Flogging is the most severe punishment than can be inflicted on a prisoner and is only carried out in serious cases such as this, or for mutiny. # c.34.9

February 1904 CDN

1904 02 01
The new St Andrew's Street Baptist chapel, Cambridge, was formally dedicated. The exterior of the building is captivating, the interior is beautiful and the structural arrangements for the comfort of the congregation well considered. Unfortunately the pastor who had so strenuously worked on the scheme was unable to attend due to illness but so that he should not be entirely deprived of participation in the events the deacons arranged to have the speeches delivered in the building transmitted to his home by means of electrophone # c.83.05

1904 02 01
Sir – I read of safety concerns about the new St Andrew's Street Baptist Church in Cambridge. No public building in Cambridge is better provided with safe and speedy exits. The new gallery can be cleared in much less time than before; all the doors open outwards, the stairs are wide, the exits are accessible and unobstructed. The chapel is lighted by electricity but there is an auxiliary service of gas which can be brought instantly into use. Panics very rarely occur in ordinary religious assemblies and we have taken all reasonable precautions to deal with an unexpected calamity – Chas. Joseph # c.83.05

1904 02 01
The recent decision to reduce the number of days on which the Cambridge Sanatorium can be visited from two a week to one a month has effected a change to which the patients' parent are not becoming easily reconciled. On Sunday afternoon several made the journey hoping to see their children through the windows. But all the blinds had been drawn and the children instructed not to look out. The parents waited for half an hour in the rain and then all but one departed. One man, who had not seen his son for five weeks, waited in an adjoining field. His vigil was rewarded when one of the blinds was raised and a timid little face peeped out and waved. The father went away somewhat gladdened at having seen his child in the distance. # c.21.4

1904 02 02
Magistrates received a complaint with respect to the Swan public house, Bottisham. An individual had applied at the house for some tea and bread and butter, but failed to get them. This was a very undesirable state of things in a public house which existed for the accommodation and refreshment of the public. The provision of food is equally as important as the provision of drink. When a man asked for such simple things as tea and bread and butter or cheese, certainly it ought to be within his reach. Similar complaints had come from University men. The public house was on the highway and something should be done to oblige the public. # c.27.4

1904 02 02

There was another infringement of the rules for preserving order at the Cambridge Theatre and three undergraduates were ejected. They occupied seats in the front row of the stalls and commented somewhat too audibly on the subject of the piece. When requested to leave two quietly complied but their companion remained seated and accordingly two attendants were instructed to remove him by force. The undergraduate, seeing that his ejection had been determined upon, capitulated in time to avoid the indignity of being roughly handled. "Don't take me out, my dear sir", he pleaded. "I will go out quietly". He did so. It was not necessary on this occasion to stop the performance. # c.76

1904 02 08
Death A. Macintosh, p3
Rock Estate roads, p3 *

1904 02 09
Newmarket Rising Sun, p4

1904 02 11
A Wimbish labourer told the inquest into his three-year-old son that he earned 14 shillings a week and had eight to keep. His wife was strange in her mind; she looked after the children as well as she could, but did not wash the linen so well as she might. The cottage had been lime-washed by order of the sanitary authority owing to scarlet fever, and all of them had taken colds in consequence of it. The doctor said when last seen the child was very dirty and lying on rags # c.32.9 # c.21.5

1904 02 11
Haverhill is justly proud of its fine old parish church and the pleasure of the parishioners has been enhanced by the reopening of the tower and bells after complete restoration, the cost of which was borne by the family of the Rev Robert Roberts, vicar for 55 years. In 1883 large cracks had appeared in the tower, some extending the whole way up. An entirely new foundation has been put in & the west side of the tower practically re-built. Various 'finds' have been made including several human bones, a stone coffin lid and part of an ancient font.

Capt Stevens, RN, p3
Cherry Hinton fields, p3

1904 02 11
Police told Linton magistrates that most public houses were satisfactorily conducted. But the landlord of the Swan, Linton had not exercised control over his guests, the publican of the Three Hills at Bartlow had been convicted of fighting with another publican from Brinkley outside the Montford Arms, Horseheath and the landlord of the Wheatsheaf beerhouse, Duxford had permitted people to remain in his house when drunk. The licence of the Pear Tree, Hildersham was transferred from Frederick Peters to George Gibson. c.27.4

1904 02 12
Messrs. Church and King's establishment in Sidney Street is the first business in Cambridge to be cleaned by the Eastern Vacuum Cleaning Company. The settees in the showroom were a fair test of the process. In thick upholstery dust must necessarily accumulate but after the cleaner had been applied no amount of beating could raise a speck of dust. The carpet also was cleaned effectually and the colours brightened. Mr King said: "It takes absolutely all the dust out" # c.27

1904 02 12
A fire broke out at Haddon House, Newmarket. It originated behind a stove in the hall and was discovered by Mr Butcher who telephoned for the Fire Brigade at nine o'clock. The call was received by Lieut. Cooper, the brigade was at once called and at ten minutes past the men left with the hose reel for the scene. The firemen (seven in number) found the skirting, joists and floor boards round the stove well alight but a good supply of water soon extinguished the flames and the brigade were back at the fire station by ten o-clock. Owing to their promptitude the fire was not of a very serious nature.

CURVC parade, p3
Flying car, p4

1904 02 13
The funeral took place of Mr W.R. Brown. He served his time as a grocer on Hills Road but retail grocery had no charm for him; books and book lore engrossed very much of his leisure and he acquired much antiquarian knowledge about local persons, places and things. Not only could he describe what he saw but he could produce sketches from his own pen and pencil. The local press received many contributions from him and he published a series of numbers variously entitled 'Cambridgeshire Cameos', 'Mems and Gems' and 'Leaflets of Local Lore' # c.39 # c.65

1904 02 13
The Cambridgeshire Public House Trust Association was registered in 1903 and has taken over the Tharp Arms Inn at Chippenham, the Duncombe Arms at Waresley with the George Inn, Babraham soon to follow. The movement was a commercial undertaking with a philanthropic end. They wanted to raise the tone of the public house and promote temperance. The managers obtain no benefit from the sale of alcoholic liquors but make a profit on non-intoxicants; hot soup is supplied and villagers seem to appreciate the change as more and more public houses are ready to supply non-alcoholic refreshments. # c.27.4

1904 02 13
Samuel Bell of the Brookfield beer house, Cambridge, applied for a full licence. It was in a growing neighbourhood, near the Saxon and Norman Cement Works where 300 men were employed. It was doing a good beer trade and he had received numerous applications for spirits. The nearest full licensed house was the Royal Standard, a quarter of a mile away. Two petitions had been extensively signed, some be people who were teetotallers # c.27.4

1904 02 15
An enquiry at Swaffham Prior into the repair of fen droves heard evidence from elderly residents that they were used by the public before the Highways Act of 1835. C.P. Allix said he remembered the droves for 50 years. All kinds of vehicles had been driven over the roads, with the exception of a motor car. But Newmarket R.D.C. said they were specified as private roads in the parish award of 1814 and had never been repaired by the ratepayers at large. There was nothing to show they had ever been used as public highways. # c.44.65

1904 02 17
James Gimbert won a claim against Sutton Shepherds' Independent Friendly Society. It had been registered in 1863 and he had been secretary for 55 years before resigning owing to ill health, aged 83. He became ill, suffering very badly from rheumatism and claimed relief until January 1903 when it was refused on the ground that he had been seen out of doors after seven o'clock in the evening, contrary to the rules of the society. He had been collecting the Sutton Poor's Land rent for which he received payment. They had suspended him from sick pay and refused his subscription. # c.37.2

1904 02 17
Sir – owing to the recent heavy rains the road from Ely High Bridge to the opposite bank has been submerged for some time. Why does not the Council raise the road, providing tunnels underneath to carry the water away? This would render the approaches less dangerous for vehicular traffic. I am told the road is a private one but the Ely Urban Council lights the bridge and fences the road in times of floods by chains. Why not go farther and place and man and boat there day and night at the public expense also. I have heard it suggested that a temporary platform might be erected by the side of the post for foot passengers – T. Burns, Stuntney # c.44.75

Friendly Society law, p3 *

1904 02 19
Cambridge Liberals have been turned out of their handsome home in St Andrew's Street. Few provincial political clubs have had such a palatial clubhouse with large lofty rooms, spacious hall and staircase with a terrace overlooking gardens. The deceased Alderman, Henry Rance, who built the extensive premises practically ruined himself in the process. Members are now removed to a property in St Tibb's Row formerly occupied by a now defunct newspaper until new premises are completed on the site of the old Bird Bolt Hotel. # c.33.9 # c.61

1904 02 19
A Cambridge cab proprietor was summonsed for not keeping his cab in a proper condition. A policeman said he found the near side window completely smashed, and the front seat saturated with water. He moved the cushion and found it was mouldy underneath so that it must have been in that condition for some time. The side panel had come away from the body and when it was washed water ran on to the cushions. Defendant said that the driver was responsible for the cleanliness of the cab but magistrates said he should know the state of his vehicles and fined him five shillings. # c.26.48

Peckover freeman, p3

1904 02 22
Since the introduction of picture post cards by Messrs Raphael Tuck five years ago much rapid strides have been made in the development of this delightful form of art. The 1904 productions surpass everything had has been previously issued. Each card in the 'Oilette' series is a veritable miniature oil painting, so perfect that to use it as a postcard seems profanation. The demand for these cards is simply unprecedented. Every particle of the work is entirely of English production and the previously undisputed superiority of continental colour cards is a thing of the past. # c.65.5 # POSTCARD

Electric Supply Co, p4

1904 02 23
County Council electioneering tactics at Cherry Hinton were exposed in confidential correspondence between two potential candidates. Mr Neal, the owner of Cherry Hinton Hall, was too unknown to have the slightest chance of carrying the seat. Many scarcely knew there was a Hall and he had not had time to make it a centre of interest. The parish is Radical to the backbone and the Conservatives would be giving the seat away to the opposition were he to stand. However Mr Brooke had great strength with the cottagers and even the Dissenters would support him. In the event of his being elected he would not serve once the Education question had been settled and would stand down, making it easier for Mr Neal to win the seat. # c.35.2 # c.33.35

1904 02 23
Swavesey has been visited by another heavy flood and several householders obliged to get fresh lodgings. The County Council has had temporary footbridges, with handrails, put across the gateways against the Swann pond to keep the footway open to the church and station. One gentleman accidentally pushed the bridge over, and found the water very wet. The road to Over was under two feet of water so they provided a horse and cart to take people across. Hundreds of acres are still under water and they have had so many floods lately that farmers are at their wits' end. # c.29 # FLOOD

Newmarket race traffic, p4

1904 02 24
Passive resistance, p4

1904 02 25

Duxford & Linton pub, p3
Company trading, p4 *

1904 02 26
Passive resisters summons, p3
Social problems, p4 *

1904 02 29
'DailyChronicle' launched, p7 * # c.04
Bumpstead water, p4

March 1904 CDN

1904 03 01
All Cambridge united in welcoming King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra to open the new University buildings known as the Sedgwick Museum, the Squire Law Library, Botanical and Medical Schools in Downing Street. Cambridge University has never stagnated but kept pace with the demands of the time. Newer universities have their place in the general scheme of things but they can never supplant our ancient university of Cambridge, nor her twin sister on the banks of the Isis. With the increasing spread of education their prosperity increases. # c.02 # c.36.9

1904 03 02
The Royal visit to Cambridge was followed by an undergraduate 'rag' which caused wanton destruction of public and private property even though a large body of police, included mounted men, were on duty. One policeman guarding the proctors was singled out for a little 'baiting'. As they surged around he took out his baton which was immediately snatched from his hand. Now unprotected the affair seemed likely to develop into a serious disturbance but mounted policemen began to harry the crowd who fled before the horsemen. Many youths annoyed the riders by throwing crackers near their horses. One animal was so startled by an explosion that it threw its rider and careered across Parker's Piece. # c.02 # c.36.9

1904 03 04
The drinking fountain for cattle and animals erected opposite Haverhill council schools in Station Road was formally handed over to the town by the secretary of the Metropolitan Drinking Fountain and Cattle Trough Association on behalf of the donor, Lady Malcolm of Poltalloch. The structure, composed of the finest grey Aberdeen granite, is in the form of a circular basin standing on eight columns, the base forming a channel for the use of small animals. It is fitted with an automatic water apparatus which ensures a constant supply. At the conclusion of the ceremony a bystander filled a glass with water from the fountain and drank the donor's health, but as snow was falling, the example he set was not followed.

Royal visit, p2
Nichols Bridge St advert, pic p4 *

1904 05 03
CDN royal souvenir, p2

1904 03 07
Owing to the enormous demands for the C.D.N. souvenir of the Royal Visit to Cambridge the whole edition was sold out less than an hour after publication. Now in response to enormous requests a second edition is ready. It contains a full report of the proceedings together with special articles on previous royal visits, King Edward's undergraduate days etc. It has photographs of the new Downing Street buildings reproduced from the series of pictures specially taken by J. Palmer Clarke for presentation to the King. Printed on superior paper and being of a convenient size it is an admirable memento of the auspicious and historic occasion. # c.04

1904 03 09
Cambridge Women's Temperance Association heard of the misery of a bright country girl desirous of obtaining employment in a South London gin palace. She had to be at the bar at nine in the morning and there stand in unutterable weariness until two o'clock the next morning, with two hours off for all her meals and rest. She could never get out into the fresh air except on her alternate Sundays. Inside the atmosphere was foul and the country flower sickened, the roses faded from her cheek; she needed a pick-me-up so much that she took the beer which was allowed three times a day and a glass of spirits at night. At last she became an inebriate and swelled the ranks of out-cast women. # c.37.7

Shelford baby body, p3
Tindalls of Newmarket & Ely, p4

1904 03 09 c
Last year the Cambridge Trader's Association collected £2,681 of debts on behalf of its members at a cost of five per cent (the costs and fees having been recovered from the debtors). Most were small in amount but others were complicated such as would require the services of a solicitor and counsel at much higher costs. They had to bring 712 actions in the High Court, which shows the difficult character of the debts. They also made a great number of enquiries regarding the status of Cambridge people, most of which were satisfactory, while 250 enquiries as to the status of customers against whom proceedings were contemplated have been made of correspondents in other towns and abroad. # c.32.8

1904 03 09 c
On any evening youths of between fourteen and eighteen roam about the principal streets of Cambridge for hours. This is not an altogether innocent activity. For them the streets are not thoroughfares but a rendezvous from whence 'the temptations of our streets' proceeds. It is difficult to attract these young people to the churches; for some years a small institute with two rooms and a pantry has been open in St Andrew's Street for reading, games, boxing, Indian club exercises. It is managed by a committee of University men and its success has now emboldened them to hold lantern services in the Victoria Assembly Rooms. # c.37.9

1904 03 10
Professor Sims Woodhead, speaking on behalf of Cambridge Passive Resisters, told magistrates that they were refusing to pay their education rate as they believed the money would be applied to the teaching of religious doctrines with which as Protestants they absolutely disagreed. Supporters in the grand jury gallery and in the space usually occupied by the public applauded. # c.33.9

Thompson Cooper dies, p3

1904 03 11
County council elections, p2
Undergraduate and whisky, p3
T. Cooper obit, p3

1904 03 12
Magistrates refused to licence the Walnut Tree off-beerhouse, Impington. The house had four rooms, was thatched and in an extremely damp condition with fungus on the inside wall of the sitting room. It was not fit for habitation and even if it were properly made watertight it would not be of the annual value of £8 as required by law. A four-roomed cottage at Impington would be rented at no more than £4 a year as a private house. But no accommodation was required inside the house for drinking purposes. Negotiations had been in progress for the sale of the house, which is why no repairs had been done. # c.27.4

Shelford inquest, p4

1904 03 15
St John's College students carried out a mock funeral for an undergraduate who was ejected from the New Theatre on three occasions in one week for having infringed the rules adopted to preserve order. The college authorities decided he should be 'sent down' and his friends showed organised a process of 13 cabs which filed along the streets at funeral pace to the railway station. A halt was made outside the New Theatre to allow the travellers to indicate their disapproval of the management. During the whole journey shouts, singing and the blowing of horns was continuous. 04 03 15

1904 03 16
A meeting of Cambridge Omnibus Company shareholders was convened to receive the Liquidator's accounts. It had been impossible to sell the business as a going concern. The livestock and machinery were sold by auction for £768 but there was still a considerable deficiency. Not a single shareholder attended the meeting and the Board of Trade will be contacted to sanction the destruction of the company's books and accounts. # c.26.46

1904 03 18
Ratting is a form of amusement which dates back to the dim ages. Usually this practice is carried on in out of the way places but in Cambridge ratting parties are to be seen on Midsummer Common on Sundays. The undergraduate takes a great pride in the sporting qualities of his "dawg's" pedigree, half-bred or mongrel, and certain townees feed this pride by collecting a supply of rats for the alleged sporting dogs to worry. With stout wire cages slung on their backs the dealers await the arrival of undergraduates and then offer rats at a "bob apiece". Rat after rat is released from the cage, given half a dozen yards start, and then the dogs "course" it to its death. The slaughter over, the dead rats are piled on the common to fester and rot. # c.39 # c.19

Rag – cannonballs, p2

1904 03 21
Cambridge Property for sale: Cyprus Road – freehold terrace, sure to improve, £475. Huntingdon Road – pair of villas, £650. Ross Street – freehold terrace of five well-built houses, £1,025 the five. Searle Street – freehold terrace of four houses, £600 the four. Sedgwick Street – a terrace of five freeholds, rare investment - £1,100 the five. Sturton Street – freehold bakehouse, shop, house and stabling - £350. Suez Road – three newly-erected houses, £510 the three. – advert # c.06

1904 03 22
Big Fire at 'Belmont'. We do not think the meaning of this heading will be very clear to you: we have only put it there to attract your attention. What we really want to do is to let you know about the 'Royal Belmont' bicycles, tricycles, tradesmen's carrier tricycles and trucks built to order on the premises. Belmont Cycle and Motor Works, King Street and Belmont Place, Cambridge - advert # c.26.485

1904 03 22
Newmarket is being well catered for in the way of pictorial postcards. A delightful set of six views in colour has been issued by Mr Ernest Parr, stationer. Having seen them one can well understand the enormous success with which they have been received. The cards are selling at the rate of 250 a day. The series includes views of St Mary's church, horses returning from a morning gallop, the royal entrance to the Jockey-Club grounds and the High Street on market day # c.65.5 # POSTCARD

1904 03 22
Newmarket councillors heard a great many complaints had been made with regard to cabs loitering in the High Street and the police had difficulty regulating the traffic. Owing to the removal of the railway station a good many of the cab ranks were no longer used and the cabmen had nowhere to take their cabs. There were several charabancs and brakes in the town better than those which came from outside but they had never been able to ply for hire. They should reduce the number of hackney carriage licences and not grant them to anybody outside twenty-mile radius. One said that after the races a whole turnout would be sold for £5, with the driver's great coat thrown in.

1904 03 23
Two Saffron Walden labourers were summonsed for being on land in search of game. PC Field said he was on duty near the Horseshoes, Wicken when he noticed one man's pocket was bulky and on searching found a rabbit on him and catapults on both defendants, together with stones. The rabbit was warm and their boots covered with mud. The men said they were going to Walden fair and picked the rabbit up on the road. They were both fined.

1904 03 24
Goods seized from the Cambridge Passive Resisters were put up for auction; of the 64 lots all but three were bought in by the owners but three pairs of new boots the property of Mr E. Haynes were knocked down for 14s. 6d. (amount due 9s.), three new albums belonging to Mr H.S. Driver were sold for 16s. (amount due 10s.) and four dozen boxes of pills which were seized from Mr Sturton were obtained for £1 – the retail value of the patent medicine would be considerably over £2. After the rowdyism of previous sales this was a deadly dull affair and most of those who assembled were too lethargic even to bid to say nothing of attacking the auctioneer or cracking a joke. # c.33.9

1904 03 25
The disgraceful state of certain roads at Cherry Hinton has become a standing grievance with the residents. But now it would appear that the roads are at last to be repaired and local grumblers will have to fall back for a subject of abuse upon the ever-changing weather. It is to be hoped the work will be pushed through with all possible despatch. Another winter with the roads in their present condition would be intolerable. # c.49.62

Clayhithe bridge, p4

1904 03 25 c
Cambridge Licensed Victuallers' Protection Association was started 14 years ago with 15 members and now they have 260. People must have drink in the shape of alcohol and they must have persons who would supply it. It was not always their fault if they got into trouble because it was impossible to see what every individual did who came into their house. But they failed to see why the persons who sat on the Bench and were known to be teetotallers should exercise their jurisdiction in dealing with licensed houses. There were people connected with the Trade quite as competent to act as magistrates who would not be so biased in favour of the Trade as the teetotallers were against it. # c.27.4

1904 03 26
There is still a doubt in scientific circles as to whether last year's epidemic in Cambridge was really small-pox or a similar disease with another name: 'Craw-craw'. A lecturer on Patho-Histology at Birmingham University has sampled some blood films and is convinced that this the disease which has been puzzling the authorities at Cambridge, Smethwick, Kidderminster and Burton-on-Trent amongst other places. # c.21.1

1904 03 26
Messrs J. Carter Jonas sold by auction an important estate in King Street, Cambridge comprising the fully-licensed public house, the Millers Arms and adjoining dwelling house and outbuildings. The pub contains beer cellars and washhouse in the basement, a large room fitted with a kitchen range, bar parlour etc now in the occupation of Messrs Bailey & Tebbutt. The business premises at the rear include a paint shop, workshop and stables whilst the house has four bedrooms. When Sussex Street is widened King Street must become an important business thoroughfare. It was acquired by Mr Nockolds at £3,700 # c.44.6 # c.27.4

Empire, p4

1904 03 28
The report of an enquiry into the repair of the fen droves at Swaffham Prior heard that the alleged public highway measured a little over four miles and formed a thoroughfare from near the village railway station to a ferry over the Cam in a hamlet called Swaffham Prior Fen, which has a post office, small chapel and population of 100 persons. The roads were set out as private byways by the Enclosure Award and had not been formally adopted as public highways so the question was whether between 1814 & 1835 there was uninterrupted use by the public. They took evidence from various witnesses and the RDC claimed they were repairable by drainage commissioners under an Act of 1853. They concluded there was no evidence to show the roads should be repaired by the inhabitants at large and recommended no action be taken by the County Council. # c.44.65

Red Cow Concert Hall

1904 03 29
It is certain that the farm motor has got a footing and much more will be heard of it before long. If prices could only be reduced somewhat a number of farmers, disgusted with the short time made by horse teams and appreciative of the advantage of being able with a fast and powerful tractor to choose favourable weather for tackling their arable, would be disposed to give motor ploughing a fair trial. Motor farming is likely to result in a more thorough cultivator of the land and not be an extension of those deplorable land-scratching and acres-grasping methods of which many pitiful examples may be seen on clay soils. Simplification of the mechanism is to be expected and it remains to be seen whether the proposed substitution of steam for petrol is wholly advantageous. # c.22

1904 03 29
The last words of the St John's College undergraduate who was sent down from Cambridge the other week were "I'll see you at the Empire". Faithful to his promise he turned up on Saturday night but was in such a drunken condition that he was promptly ejected. Even then he refused to go away and had to be forcibly moved by a policeman who conveyed him to the nearest lock-up. In court he denied he was drunk but only excited; he was fined 5s. Two other undergraduates who had been removed from the Alhambra pleaded guilty to being drunk and were also fined. # c.39

1904 03 30
Property, p3
Child labour, p5

1904 03 31
Sir – I must protest against the sanitary inspector's report on the pump on Barrington green. All the people living near it and having horses use it and have done so since the year dot. The water is not any worse now than it was then. If the inspector were to visit some of the cottages and make the owners keep them in a thoroughly sanitary condition, instead of trying to upset old customs, it would be better for the village. But there is the old story, 'I must not upset my masters', who are generally the owners – A Villager # c.24.2

April 1904 CDN

1904 04 02
Messrs Chivers propose to erect a number of model cottages for the accommodation of their workpeople. At present many of the employees live in adjoining villages and are compelled to walk to the factory each day, while others are conveyed to and from Cambridge by train. The scheme has already started; not far from the village chapel there are four cottages which occupy little more space than the ordinary dreary erection in which the working man has to make his home. But brains as well as bricks and mortar have been used in their construction. They are really miniature villas with windows of the old-fashioned lattice type and are approached through rustic gates. If the new houses are on the same scale many will cast envious eyes at Histon and its happy inhabitants

1904 04 02
On Good Friday Cambridge residents now expect their repose during the early hours of the morning to be broken by the appropriately mournful cries of the purveyors of the stodgy hot cross bun. As early as half-past four in the centre of the town the 'Two-a-penny, four-for-tuppence', pitched for the most part in a minor key, commences and continues without intermission until the disturbed sleeper in sheer desperation gives up attempted repose and descends to breakfast, at which meal the Good Friday bun is usually of more ornament than use. The custom of taking a supply of the buns shows little decline & manufacturers say there is still a good demand. As far as the weather was concerned, after the snowstorm, hail-storms and rain of Thursday, it was a pleasant surprise, but amusements were restricted by the high wind. Easter is the commencement of the season for pleasure patrons of the wheel, but few cared to face the grind of many miles in the teeth of such strong currents and the roads were but little # c.39

Small pox epidemic, p4

1904 04 04
'Tally Ho', Trumpington, p3

1904 04 04 c
There is a peculiarity common to all builders – their absurd predilection for affixing ridiculous names to the small villas which abound in the suburbs of Cambridge. I noticed three modest dwellings which flaunted the high-sounding titles of 'The Laurels', 'The Beeches' and 'The Chestnuts'. I imagined that somewhere in the vicinity would be found stately avenues of trees from which these names, suggesting of the quiet delights of the country, had been derived. But vainly did I seek the trim and shady lawns, the sweeping avenues, the flowery banks and moss-grown terraces that used to be the merest accessories of houses to which such dignified titles are customarily appended. Not only that, there was not a laurel, a beech, not a chestnut tree in sight. # c.48

1904 04 05
A new era in the chequered existence of Cambridge's second place of entertainment, the Empire in Auckland Road, has opened. Hitherto its reputation for providing entertainment has not been entirely faultless but the new programme revealed a pleasant change and there was a packed audience. Performers included an impersonator of characters in the works of Charles Dickens, the Danby-Gordon Trio who displayed a tragic interlude entitled 'The Penalty' and Miss Gladys Fontaine, a singer with a cultivated contralto voice. Two comedians amused with 'patter' and songs of 'nonsense rhymes' and music was supplied by Miss Zetti Handel's Ladies Orchestra. # c.76

1904 04 06
Treating constable, p3

1904 04 07
A memorial tablet commemorating the men of the Isle of Ely who lost their lives during the war in South Africa, 1899-1902, was unveiled at Ely Cathedral. As the hour for the service drew near it was realised that all road led to the Cathedral and both inhabitants and visitors were making their way to the building. The bugle sounded and soon the military – easily distinguished by their spic and span scarlet uniforms – dotted the main streets as they proceeded to the rendezvous for 'falling in'. Presently the sounds of martial music fell upon one's ears, telling that the Militia band, heading a large number of men, had started forth. It was a most picturesque scene, not soon to be forgotten, as the old flags of the Ely Armed Association, 1798, were carried into the cathedral. # c.45.3

1904 04 07
A few years ago such a group such as the Cambridge and Chesterton Horse Club would have been out of the question but over the last six years it had grown beyond all expectations and now has a membership of 185. All who possess horses should join: during the past year they paid £235 to 16 members who lost horses by death. The condition of horses in Cambridge and the treatment meted out to them is much better than previously for if an owner neglected his animal he is prohibited from receiving the benefits of the club # c.19

Child in carriage, p3

1904 04 08
A few days before Christmas a young man arrived in Bristol absolutely without means but soon learned from a firm of solicitors that he was the son of the late Rev E.A. Stephens of Cambridge and entitled to a huge fortune. But the gentleman must have lived here many years ago for clergymen who have seen long service do not remember him, his name does not appear in any University calendar and even members of the police force who have proverbial long memories do not recall him. The story recalls a hoax played on a drayman who lived in Cambridge. He was informed that an uncle had died and left him a fortune so he threw up his position and went to Portsmouth to conclude the formalities, only to learn that the fabulous fortune was a myth and he had been cruelly hoaxed. # c.34.6

1904 04 08
An inquiry was held into the promotion of the Meldreth and Melbourn District Gas and Water Company Bill; it aroused a deal of opposition and at times the exchanges were of a very lively character. The present Gasworks at Melbourn were not up-to-date and with growing demand a new company had been formed who would erect new gasworks in Meldreth; there had been no objection from residents. Water supplies were obtained from the river and wells and a good supply would enhance the value of property. There would be a pumping station near Melbourn Heath Farm and a 200,000-gallon reservoir. The County Council supported the scheme but the Parish and District Councils objected # c.24.2

Workhouse romance, p3

1904 04 09
Impington Walnut Tree, p3

1904 04 11
Sir – I would like to know who is responsible for the very cold atmosphere in the Cambridge Free Library Reading Room. A few weeks ago I tried to enjoy an hour's reading, but the cold and draughts were so severe that, although a hearty vigorous man accustomed to outdoor work in all weathers, I caught a severe cold. There are three stoves in the room but I have never seen more than one alight and a radiator which is usually almost cold. In the recent cold snaps the room has been under 45 degrees all day long. There is only a little cylinder boiler about the size of a beer cask inserted in an ordinary fireplace behind the counter of the lending department. Now they have installed a ventilating fan which works at intervals which not only causes a distinct chill but the noise and vibration are maddening, resembling the sound of a motor car running round the room – 'Ouvrier' # c.77.4

1904 04 12
Bike treasure hunt, p3
Newmarket sale, p3
Wicken Fen fire, p3

1904 04 13
Meldreth shooting, p3
Earith resister sale, p3

1904 04 14
Meldreth shooting, p3
Free Library heat, p3
Ely – Prickwillow road, p4

1904 04 15
Wicken Fen has been desolated by a disastrous fire, the worst of many which have played havoc with this, the only piece of primeval fen left in England. It was caused in the same way as the others: a wax vesta, thrown away after use, did not die out and the sedge was set ablaze. Carried by the wind the fire did its deadly work. Between 30 and 40 villagers were quickly at work; after hours of hard toil they succeeded in beating out the fire with branches of trees and the conflagration was stopped at Running Water. Two gentlemen visitors who had travelled a considerable distance to search for beetles were the cause of the disaster and have offered to recompense those on whom the loss will fall but the damage to the animal life cannot be replaced. # c.44.2 # c.34.75

A.E. Stephens myth, p4

1904 04 18
Upware seems to be a favourite hunting place for the fisherman's pest, the otter. Several have been killed there of recent years and another female, weighing about 17lbs and about six years old has been added to the list. Its capture and subsequent execution occasioned an exciting scene at Swaffham sluice. Mistress Otter was resting quietly with only her head visible above the water and it was thought to be a large frog floating on the water. However she gave a leap, dived down and reappeared with a pike in her mouth. Three men commenced a hunt, cornered it and administered the coup de grace.

Hidden treasure, p3

1904 04 19
Sir - I would like to know if the Americans are going to capture the whole of the trade in small cheap cars. We have long had several of their cheap cars on the market and now appears another with a horizontal engine, where vibration is greatly reduced, being at right angles to the spring resistance of the coach work. Some may say these are but runabouts – but they run, which many other small voiturettes do not for long. They run a man to the station, run his wife out shopping in the afternoon and take both out fifty miles on a Sunday. Besides this, they only cost from £150 to £200 – Major Matson # c.26.48

Empire circus

1904 04 21
Cambridge Paving Committee received a memorial from a number of residents in the Hobson Street area calling attention to the present state of the carriage-way. They directed the Surveyor to report the cost of paving the street with wood blocks, together with the portion of St Andrew's Street from the tramway terminus. But Hobson Street was used by very few people; traffic was not half what it used to be and as the trams were likely to be electrified it would be better to wait. However a great amount of traffic came from Newmarket Road to the centre of town down King Street; very often there was a great block of traffic in Sussex Street because it was dangerous to go down Hobson Street where the pebbles were very uneven. Traffic went on dropping, and business went on dropping, simply because the street was so badly paved. # c.44.6

1904 04 21
Swaffham Bulbeck inhabitants were surprised to see a piece of land adjoining the Malting railed in and found that workmen had received orders from the property owners to fence a portion of the green. A public meeting was at once called to protest against the encroachment of Poors' Charity land. Much amusement was caused when it was discovered that the fence so hurriedly erected had been just as quickly taken down, leaving just a few stakes to mark the disputed territory. The land had long been looked upon as parish property and although the Maltings had changed hands on several occasions never before had there been a claim set up for that portion of the village green next to the Swan. # c.32.3

1904 04 22
The Cambridge Medical Officer of Health reported that during the recent small-pox epidemic 154 people had been infected of whom 15 had died. At the start the Small-pox hospital consisted of two huts with an administrative block and a caravan for the use of men employed. Subsequently an addition hut and two tents were provided to give a total accommodation of 85 beds. There was also a tent for the nursing staff, a discharge tent, a dining tent, a mortuary hut and an additional caravan for the male staff. # c.21.1

1904 04 23
Three weeks ago Messrs W. King of Bridge Street, Cambridge announced that a medallion had been secreted which would entitle the finder to one of their bicycles. Three clues were published and large numbers of people have attempted their solution. The winner was Mr C.T. Pask of Gwydir Street who read the third clue in the Cambridgeshire Weekly News and found the medallion by measuring 17 revolutions of a bicycle wheel from one end of Hauxton Bridge in a straight line, followed by one revolution to the right. # c.26.485

1904 04 23
The inhabitants of Royston had a little excitement on Wednesday evening and now have a joke good enough to last for some time. Someone noticed in the sky a reflection of what appeared to be a big fire in the direction of Fowlmere. Quickly the news spread and the firemen made all preparations and waited for the call. The glare was so great that many people walked into Royston expecting to see a large conflagration and a number of town residents journeyed to Fowlmere on bicycles and traps only to find it was caused by the burning of a heap of rubbish on Mr Beldam John's Farm

Treasure hunt, p3 *
Lordship Farm fire, p4

1904 04 28 c
The danger of wearing celluloid combs was revealed at an inquest. A young woman who wore her hair in a semi-circular comb was reading before the kitchen fire when suddenly her head became enveloped in flames. The heat of the fire had ignited the ornament, a cheap French imitation of the tortoiseshell comb. The father produced a portion of it and on the coroner applying a match there shot up a long tongue of flame. The comb did not require fire to cause it to ignite – heat was sufficient.

1904 04 28 c
A man was sitting quietly in his office in Cambridge the other day when he heard a buzzing noise and looking down he saw smoke and flame issuing from his coat tail pocket. He tore the coat from his back and succeeded, with difficulty, in putting out the flames. On investigation he found the fire had originated in a box of 'safety' matches. He admits he may have been sitting on the box but safety from friction is one of the 'safety's' strong points. The manufacturer says that the head of a match may have come into contact with the side of the box but he feels it ignited by the heat of his body and has banished them from his house, his office and his person for ever

1904 04 28
Nonconformists launched their organised opposition to the Education Act at a meeting in Victoria Road Congregational Chapel Cambridge, held instead of the usual service. They could not give their money to pay for their children to be taught doctrines they did not believe in. The State was a secular institution and should look after secular affairs. Schools should be undenominational, paid teachers should not give religious instruction – it should be given by clergymen - and church people should appoint teachers without regard to denominational test or beliefs.# c.33.9

1904 04 29

The stone laying was held of a new Wesleyan chapel being built at Old Chesterton to supersede one which has been in use for 60 years and is dilapidated and unsightly. It was first intended to erect it on Chesterton Road facing De Freville Avenue but a site in Church Street was chosen and the builders, Messrs Kerridge and Shaw have commenced operations of a simple structure capable of accommodating 150 persons together with 120 Sunday School scholars. The building was within sight of two other Christian churches but they came in the old Methodist spirit, as friends of all and the enemy of none and would not injuriously rival or detract from their work. # c.83.06

1904 04 29
Saffron Walden was roused from its normal quietude by a bellman announcing that the sale of goods of passive resisters would be held on the Market Square. The town was soon in a state of excitement and nearly 200 persons were present. Upon the auctioneer offering the first lot, a silver watch, a few moments elapsed before there was a bid of 10s, at which there was a cry of 'Shame'. The next bid was 15s when some rather unpleasant remarks were directed towards the auctioneer. The watch was eventually bought by Mr Septimus Holttum for £1 16s 6d. On the second lot being offered there were shouts of "Don't bid". It was a matter of satisfaction that out of half a dozen auctioneers in the area, not one would take on the job. # c.33.9

Duxford vicar dies, p4

1904 04 30
Mormons in Cambridge *

1904 04 30 c
At midnight Friday, the driver of a goods train from Cambridge discovered that several of his trucks were on fire. He got to Audley End station as quickly as possible when it was found that a truck of straw, another containing corn, and also one loaded with mangolds had become ignited. The burning trucks were promptly shunted on to the Walden branch siding, and strenuous efforts were made to extinguish the flames. However the trucks of wheat straw was burnt out. The corn is somewhat damaged, and also the truck containing the mangolds. # c.26.1

May 1904 CDN

1904 05 03
Sir. I should like to call attention to the nuisance existing in Gwydir Street Cambridge caused by the volumes of dense black smoke from the chimney of the brewery of Mr F. Dale. At times it is impossible to open either doors or windows without the houses being filled with smoke and dirt. The chimney shaft should be built to such a height that the smoke is not poured into the street to the injury of the heath of the inhabitants – A Lover of Pure Air # c.27.4

1904 05 03
The name and reputation of Maskelyne and Cocke, the most accomplished of wizards, was sufficient to fill the Cambridge Guildhall to overflowing. The audience experiences a certain bewilderment at the apparently supernatural occurrences on the stage, but the performance is pleasantly blended with mirthful and musical interludes that anything approaching monotony is avoided. A series of animated photographs conclude with an ingenious representation of a motor car running full tilt at the audience and both the cabinet and box tricks are worthy of their reputation. # c.39 # c.65.5

1904 05 04
The County Coroner has pointed out the stupidity of the superstition which induces people to refrain from rendering assistance to the apparently hanged or drowned person, until the arrival of the police. A labourer at Burwell found his brother hanging in his cellar and instead of cutting him down he sent for the police. In this case the unfortunate man had been dead for many hours but it is essential to render immediate aid on the supposition that life is not extinct. Many a person now dead would be alive today had this simple rule been acted upon #

c.39

Elmdon speeding, p4

1904 05 05
Councillors agreed a scheme for a mixed school for 200 boys and 200 girls in Romsey Town, Cambridge. There should be a central hall, separate entrances, playgrounds and offices and the architect should arrange his plans to allow two additional classrooms at a future time. But they did not know how the numbers in the district would be increased; this would only meet existing demands and the school should be enlarged to take 500 as this would be much cheaper in the end. # c.36.5

1904 05 06
The visit of England's greatest living actress to Cambridge New Theatre will always be regarded as an epoch for it is rare indeed that provincial audiences have an opportunity of seeing Miss Ellen Terry. Naturally the house was packed from stalls to gallery when she played Portia in 'The Merchant of Venice'. She first appeared in the third act and was given a fitting reception; the applause having died away the audience listened in a complete silence, testimony of their appreciation of her perfect elocution. Now and again the impulse to show appreciation became irresistible and the progress of the play was punctuated with outbursts of applause. # c.76

Lode drowning, p3

1904 05 07
Elly Terry illustration, p3

1904 05 09
The Association of Managers of Sewage Disposal Works inspected the Cambridge pumping station destructors where all kinds of refuse turned out from households daily, sweepings and other undesirable matter is tipped into huge trucks and burnt, giving off heat used whose steam is used to pump sewage. During winter months some 40 tons of refuse is burned each day. The disinfector was examined with interest; it was installed in 1902 and during the smallpox of 1904 was of great service in disinfecting a great number of articles using super-heated steam. They then moved to the Corporation sewage farm, Milton Road, for a practical demonstration of sewerage analysis # c.29.8

1904 05 10
The ancient custom of proclaiming Reach Fair is observed on Rogation Monday by the Mayor and Corporation of Cambridge and has the advantage of imparting pomp and circumstance it would otherwise lack, of making glad the hearts of children en route with the sprinklings of copper coin, of affording members of the Corporation pleasing relaxation from weightier cares and of increasing the profits of proprietors of pleasure fair paraphernalia, particularly those of owners of cocoanut shies. Trading in horses constitutes practically the only business part of the fair and this year the animals were in short supply. A quack paid one or two people a shilling for the privilege of extracting their unsound teeth and then did a brisk trade selling patent medicines for most of the ills of mankind # c.39 # c.27.3

Ellen Terry unwell, p3 *

1904 05 11
Hooley arrested, p3

1904 05 14
Some years ago a Wicken labourer who was remonstrated with by the parson for not sending his son to school, gave as his reason the ignorance of the schoolmaster who "actually taught his son Alf to spell 'taters' with a 'p'!" But in Fitzroy Street Cambridge we have a 'Shrit' maker (presumably a maker of shirts) and find 'fresh fish on sail every day'. A shoemaker announces that boots are sold and heeled at reasonable prices' and nearby there is a 'wheelebarrow for sale'. Not far removed one can read that 'Horehound Bear' is on sale. # c.39

Hooley & Papworth, p2
Ashley trap, p4 *

1904 05 14 c
It is little known that the Master of Trinity College has the prerogative of remaining covered in the presence of the Sovereign and on one occasion when Queen Victoria visited Cambridge he kept his hat on. The Queen apparently did not notice the circumstances and he began to feel uncomfortable. At length he said; "Your Majesty has perhaps wondered that I should be so far lacking in respect, but Lord Kingsale in Ireland, Lord Forester in England and the Master of Trinity have a right to keep their hats on in the presence of their Sovereign". "Quite so – ahem – but not in the presence of a lady" was the Queen's freezing reply. # c.39

1904 05 17
A Waterbeach man was summoned for riding a motor bicycle in Downing Street, Cambridge, with the mark obscured. P.c. Rowlingson said he saw the number CE 110 on the front but could not see one on the back. Defendant said the number was on when he left and was there later. But it was close up to the saddle and had perhaps been obscured by his coat. The police were right to bring the case; the number was there but could not be seen. However there was no intention to obscure it and the defendant was convicted and discharged.

1904 05 17c
Sir Edmund Verney told a Cambridge conference on the Poor Law that everybody in the country hated education. The squire and the parson could not bear it. (Cries of 'No, No'.) They said 'Oh, if you teach these men they will be too independent: we don't want these independent men'. ('No.No.'). 'A farmer said to me: 'I don't want my labourers to know all I know, and the labourers' wives will come to me with tears running down their cheeks begging that their children may be allowed to work on the land and earn a little money'. Nobody could say 'No' to that. All three classes hated education. # c.32.9 # c.36.6

1904 05 18
The unexpected death of a prisoner at the Cambridge Prison occasioned the holding of an inquest. The man's name appeared to be Patrick O'Shea, though as a matter of fact he had a variety of names – Nil, Laughton, Carrington, MacDonald, MacArthur, Montmorency and Hassan Effendi. He gave his age as 45 and his occupation that of a labourer and was committed for trial for stealing money in Wisbech. Warder Andrews said he heard a noise from the cell and found the man apparently in a fit. Death was due to apoplexy. # c.34.7

1904 05 18
A fire destroyed Mrs Cornell's fishmonger's shop on Mill Road, Cambridge. It was caused through the ignition of some fat used for the purpose of frying fish. Although the shop was sparsely stocked there was sufficient inflammable material in it to make it impossible to arrest the fire in its early stages, and soon the interior was a mass of flames which rapidly penetrated through the ceiling and attacked the contents of the front room on the first floor. The alarm was given by means of the Thoday Street fire alarm and the firemen arrived within twelve minutes with the horsed fire escape and tender and prevented the flames attacking adjoining premises. # c.27.2 # c.44.6

1904 05 18
The placid life of Linton has been stirred by a rumour that the dead body of a pauper had been sold by the Master of the Workhouse to the Cambridge School of Anatomy. This was a perfectly lawful proceeding under the Anatomy Act which provides that the bodies of unclaimed paupers may be used for scientific study. The matter had been debated by the Board of Guardians who voted five for and five against but the Chairman declined to give the casting vote. The Master had taken it upon himself to send the body to Cambridge. But it was not 'sold'. # c.32.9 # c.21.1 # c.39 # GHOST

Vagrancy, p3 *

1904 05 19
Cambridge cemetery committee considered whether to close the whole of the Mill Road burial ground. They had asked the various incumbents as to the number of grave spaces allotted to their parishes and whether it was possible to identify the graves of all persons buried there. It appeared to be dependent on the knowledge of the sexton and there was no way of identifying the position of each grave. There should be a public enquiry. But there were many timid widows who had husbands buried there and would like to be buried there too who would not go to an enquiry. Alderman Kett agreed: he would like his bones to be laid there and had six or seven unoccupied spaces for members of his family. What would an inspector care about such sentiments? He would be overruled by those fanatics of sanitary improvement. # c.21.2

1904 05 19
Cambridge Fire Brigade committee reported on the provision for extinguishing fires in large buildings and the cost of maintenance of a steam fire engine. They visited the University Library where regular fire brigade drills took place regularly, but there was no special provision for the escape of work people from business premises except in one instance where a canvas shoot had been obtained. A fire engine would cost less than £200 a year, which was less than that paid for the police imported on the occasion of the King's visit to keep order for a single night. But there was not space at the fire station to accommodate it and most of the large buildings were protected by means of private fire appliances # c.34.75

Cattle drinking trough, p3 *

1904 05 20
Linton workhouse, p3 *

1904 05 21
Knoll Cottage, Bourn was burnt down on Saturday afternoon. The fire broke out about 3pm and although the Bourn Hall Fire Engine under the direction of Mr Weightman was quickly got to work it was not until seven o'clock that the flames were subdued and by then most of the roof had fallen in. Mr & Mrs Barker are at present in India and their pretty residence had been sub-let to Mr Farquharson who takes a great interest in poultry. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a defective lamp used for heating an incubator. # c.61.7

Whitsun holidays, p3 *

1904 05 21 – 31 not checked

June 1904 CDN

1904 06 01 c
Sir – some months ago when estimates were presented to the District Council for a new iron footbridge in Horn Lane, Linton the District Surveyor offered to do the work for less than the lowest tender. This was accepted and the old wooden bridge was pulled down. But since then the thoroughfare which is almost as much frequented has the High Street has been impassable. On going down it I was confronted with a notice saying 'No footpath'. This I cannot understand as the path is there all right, but no bridge. I hope this will not continue indefinitely – 'Lintonian' # c.44.75

1904 06 01

There has been a sequel to the hostile demonstration by the village of Hardwick against their rector. Although nearly a year has elapsed since the eventful evening on which members of his flock marched down to their shepherd's abode and expressed their unfavourable opinion of the occupants by beating improvised tom toms the influence of that episode still disastrously infects the village. The Rector recently gave notice to the occupiers of allotments on the glebe land and the impression is prevalent that it is because of their refusal to attend church. The number of the congregation has dwindled and now only eight attend Sunday worship with the others holding services in a dilapidated cottage on the outskirts of the village. # c.82

1904 06 02
Chesterton Wesleyan chapel sale, p3 *

1904 06 03
Dant's ferry danger, p3
Cemetery opened, p3
Over libel, p3

Fire in Messrs Bell and Son's premises in Wheeler Street, an ancient building used as a corn and seed merchants premises for two or three centuries. Police constable Winter noticed fire and smoke at 4.30 am and gave the alarm. The hose reel from the Guildhall was affixed to a hydrant and a stream of water directed on the burning building. Firemen appeared on the scene with the horsed fire-escape and tender but the building of three floors and constructed largely of lath and plaster was burning fiercely. The flames leapt high through the roof and shot out through the windows. In a very short time the roof fell in with a crash and all hope for saving the property was destroyed. The efforts of 28 firemen and 15 police was directed towards preventing the spread of the fire to the adjoining property. The cause of the outbreak is unknown. There had been unusual activity among the rats and mice in the old premises, now taken as a sign that the fire had got a good hold on Sunday evening. The damage was extensive. The fire and second floors, used for the storage of fodder and seed were nearly burnt out, the ground floor and offices were severeley damaged by smoke. The basement and the top floor and a small part of the roof of the 'Bell' public house were damaged by water as were the contents of the tobaconnist's shop at the end of Wheeler Street occupied by Mr Canham. The window frames of the Cambridge Free Library were slightly damaged by the heat. 04 06 03

1904 06 04
Newmarket White Hart, p3

1904 05 09
Lt Downham fire, p3

1904 06 10

1904 06 10
An important property sale was conducted at the Lion Hotel, Cambridge. Several lots were offered including the Wesleyan Chapel at Old Chesterton which, however, was not sold. The brick-built building with a class room at the rear was withdrawn at £165. A plot of building land opposite De Freville Avenue fetched £285; the residence 'Sepha Villa', Lyndewode Road was withdrawn at £640 and a modern family residence known as 'Lucerne' on Hills Road with gardens of a quarter of an acre was withdrawn at £725. Winthingham House, 199 Chesterton Road with gardens and a coach house was withdrawn at £1,850 but a University lodging house at no.9 Malcolm Street, licensed to let three sets (two at £11 and one at £7) sold for £355

1904 06 10
A serious accident occurred following the 'Mays'. After the half-past six race there is usually a scramble from the course to the boat-yards and collisions are frequent. But when a steamer and pleasure craft collide the consequences are unpleasant for the occupants of the smaller boats. Two of these were overturned and their eight occupants, including ladies, were precipitated into the water but happily all were rescued. One lady excited admiration for her cool behaviour in a perilous position and managed to climb into one of the small craft. # c.26.3 # c.38 : rowing

1904 06 10
Professor Darwin was summonsed for riding a bicycle on the footpath on Coe Fen. Pc Ridgewell said he had got off when he spoke to him but then mounted his bicycle and rode off. The Professor said he thought he had better get off the common as quickly as possible and it never occurred to him that he should walk. He had ridden the path for ten or twelve years and had never been spoken before. He was fined five shillings. # c.26.485

1904 06 10
Cambridge Victoria Cricket Club celebrated its jubilee. From as far back as 1855 there are complete histories of matches played. The first took place between teams captained by Mr Goody and Mr Merry. In 1859 an All England XI played 22 of Cambridge Town on Parker's Piece, five of whom were from the Victoria Club. In the early 1860's there was keen rivalry with village of Abington who possessed a very decent eleven composed of people gathered from surrounding places such as Linton, Hinxton and even Cambridge. The Victorians were so keen they played cricket whenever the opportunity offered, even on ice when 'the ball was returned very quickly and a number of men run out' # c.38 : cricket

May Week, p3, p4

1904 06 10 c
An extraordinary story has been going the rounds that a large sum of money has been found in a house sold after the death of its occupant. The house in question is 79 Regent Street, Cambridge and the occupant was C.J. Drage, recently deceased. Furniture and plate came under the auctioneers hammer and the house itself put up for auction. After the sale it was said that money, in far larger amount than an even wealthy gentleman would ordinarily keep in his house, was accidentally discovered. The solicitors for the executors does not confirm the truth or otherwise of the rumours but I understand that a 'find' of some sort was really made. # c.39

1904 06 11
During 'May' Week the permanent part of the population takes much coin of the realm from the floating part but this year visitors seemed likely to be well down because of the weather. Then on Thursday sunbeams brought a large number of visitors bringing with them awe-inspiring loads of luggage. Airy dresses of muslin and chiffon and a boating excursion are inseparable to the feminine. They were very comfortable during the all-too-brief spell of sunshine but then the ladies grew colder and colder until in desperation they gratefully accepted loans of jackets and even overcoats from their male escorts. Thus the racing was not as picturesque as it might have been. # c.36.9 # c.39

1904 06 11 c
Cambridge University Polo Club commenced their May Week activities with a polo pony show, the first held by the club. A driving competition through posts separated from the wheels of the vehicles by only two inches was productive of some amusement as some competitors used hansoms and one a large brake. Ladies took part and the first prize was obtained by Miss de Freville. Later a fair number of spectators watched the polo tournament and had the satisfaction, or otherwise, of listening to amorous melodies rendered by Pierrots whose accompaniment proceeded from a harmonium. # c.38 : polo

1904 06 13
The list of candidates who have been sitting for the order of merit competition in the Mathematical Tripos will be published tomorrow morning. The interest is just as great as in past years and the utmost eagerness prevails as to who will win the Blue Ribbon in Mathematics. The Colonies are not supplying so many candidates; India is represented, but Sanhara Balaji Dhavle, of Kelhpur is not likely to emulate Paranjpye, the Senior Wrangler of five years ago. Ireland in G. Leatham of Belfast has a candidate of the strongest credentials while the North of England has a formidable array of mathematicians. One of the most striking features is the number of candidates who were at Board and Elementary Schools, including the Trachtenberg twins, who are Jews, who were at Higher Grade Schools. #

c.36.9

1904 06 13
The Rev N.W. Shelton, vicar of Old Chesterton and his party, half-a-dozen in all, met with an unpleasant experience at the 'Mays'. The party, in an ordinary rowing boat, had left the scene of the action and arrive, after the usual difficulty, at the Pike and Eel ferry where their progress was barred for a time. During the period of waiting a big houseboat, towed by a horse, 'crashed' into the boat which it sunk and precipitated the occupants into the water. After a short period of excitement the party, which included several ladies, were landed safely on the houseboat, which proceeded on its course. It is an abominable shame that these large houseboats are allowed to travel on the river when it is crowed with smaller craft. It was going at from six to seven miles an hour and was in charge of a small boy on a horse. # c.26.3

1904 06 13
A father and son were summonsed for using lime for the purpose of taking wild birds at Saffron Walden. Pc Fell said he saw them placing twigs with lime upon them upon the bank under a hedge. When he approached they let linnets fly out of a cage. Defendants said they were sparrows but he was positive they were linnets. It was a cruel thing to take birds in that way and the father should not take his boy out again for the purpose, but let him get his living in a respectable manner. # c.19

1904 06 14
Cambridge people always delight to honour distinguished townsmen and we congratulate Mr O.H.B. Starte for his brilliant display in the Mathematical Tripos. It is not often that a townsman, and a son of a townsman, gains such high honours in the University and his success will prove a very popular one. He was a foundation scholar of the Perse Grammar School and entered Clare with a scholarship. Now he has crowned his brilliant career by coming in as fifth wrangler. Such honour gained by a Cambridge man trained in a Cambridge scholastic institution should increase the affection for their native town which all Cambridge residents feel. # c.36.9

1904 06 14
It is not often that a school attracts the attention of the burgling fraternity but the Cambridge and County Boys' school on Hills Road has done so. The intruders obtained entrance by forcing open the door of a bicycle shed and got into the school kitchen where they forced a drawer which contained money. The headmaster's bicycle, which was also in the kitchen, the intruders punctured by sticking a fork into each tyre. They then made their way upstairs to the masters' room and each locker was plundered. In all their haul consisted of £1 16s in coppers, a corduroy tobacco pouch with the initial 'C' worked upon it, a light waterproof overcoat and a cap. Several burnt wax matches and the stump of a cigarette were left behind by the burglars. No arrest has yet been made. # c.36.5

1904 06 15
One day only. The one exhibition in the world that has no counterpart: Buffalo Bill's Wild West and congress of Rough Riders of the World headed and personally introduced by Col W.F. Cody, 'Buffalo Bill'. Three special trains, 500 horses, 800 people. 100 Redskin braves including the famous warriors of the Sioux, Ogallallas, Brutes, Uncapappas, Cheyenne and Apache tribes in Indian pastimes and war dances. Includes the Battle of Little Big Horn, Custer's last rally. The vast arena illuminated at night by special electric light plants. The entire grand programme will positively be presented twice daily (Rain or Shine). Dennis James' Fields, Huntingdon Road, Cambridge. Friday June 24th – Advert. # c.76

1904 06 15 c

See Buffalo Bill, the master exponent of horseback marksmanship in his wonderful exhibition of shooting while riding a galloping horse. Introducing the pioneers of the plains who tell the story of the progress in the great drama of civilisation by pictures of border life. The stage coach 'hold-up'. Cowboys' 'round-up'. Riding wild bucking broncos. Indian war dances. Attack on the Emigrant train. The intrepid cowboy cyclist. Imperial Japanese troupe in ancient and modern war drill. Mexican Vanqueros. South American Gauchos. Cuban Patriots. – Advert # c.76

1904 06 15 c
On Friday Cambridge is to be visited by Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders. Beside the usual features of the show including Indian war dances, riding of wild bucking horses and a realistic scene of General Custer's last battle there will be a thrilling and daring bicycle feat of descending from a height of 85 feet and cycling through the air over a chasm of 41 feet, perhaps the most spectacular and dangerous of all bicycle novelties. # c.76

1904 06 15 c
The unique character of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show was reflected in the character of the audiences, immense in number which the two Cambridge performances drew. Staid college professors, busy professional men and members of the clergy formed not an inconsiderable number of those who watched the performance with as much interest as the most ingenious juvenile and applauded as loudly as any. It is not everybody who has the opportunity to seeing a cowboy in his characteristic costume but the representation of incidents that have long since become historic were most interesting. There is no Deadwood coach now except in Colonel Cody' show and pony express riding has been superseded by the trans-continental railroad and the telegraph but he preserves the ancient method of carrying letters for the benefit of another age. Cambridge people thoroughly appreciated the visit.

1904 06 15 c
A terrible fatality occurred on a farm at Catley Park, Linton where a steam cultivator of Messrs Pamplin Bros of Cherry Hinton was at work pulling in a field. There was a large steam traction engine at each end of the field and the great boiler of one of them suddenly burst without the slightest warning with portions of the engine sent flying in all directions. The driver was caught by a piece of iron about the breast but is not seriously injured. A water cart was standing near under the charge of a farm workman who was struck on the head and killed on the spot. Portions of debris were found more than 200 hundred yards away. The thick iron boiler was broken and twisted into all shapes and little of the engine was left intact. # c.26.48

1904 06 16
Cambridge Town Council honoured Alexander Peckover, Lord Lieutenant of Cambridgeshire with the Freedom of the Borough in recognition of his services to Cambridge and his munificence to Addenbrooke's Hospital and the Eastern Counties Asylum at Colchester which has made his name a household word in the neighbourhood. The address was enclosed in an ebony casket supplied by Messrs Cole of Market Street on which was a silver plate. It was, said Peckover, something he would value very highly. The casket would go down as an heirloom to his daughter. # c.35.7

1904 06 16
Cambridge Library committee referred to the recent fire on Peas Hill and the destruction of the premises adjacent to the library. But for the skill of the fire brigade the reading room must have been destroyed and the contents lost. The accumulation of books, pictures and scarce literature could never be replaced. Now the old dilapidated buildings should be cleared away and a more appropriate building erected. Next year they would celebrate the jubilee of the opening of the library and the appointment of Mr Pink as Librarian. The Library Association should be invited to hold their annual meeting at Cambridge, free of charge. #c.34.75 # c.44.6 # c.77.4

1904 06 16

The inquiry into the Linton traction engine boiler explosion heard from Elijah Pamplin the proprietor of the Cherry Hinton firm. They had purchased the engine in 1895 from the Oxford Steam Plough Company and it was not new then. It had been thoroughly overhauled and was repaired each winter. He had inspected the inside of the boiler himself and no new plates were needed. It was doing ordinary work and the steam gauges had indicated 120 lbs pressure. The bracket which supported the winding drum had been torn away from the boiler but he could not say whether it had burst at this place. The firm had done everything possible to prevent danger or injury. The jury reached a verdict of accidental death. A formal Board of Trade investigation will be held. # c.26.48

1904 06 17
Linton inquest, p3
Duxford King's Head, p3

1904 06 17 ES
The Post Office telephone exchange was opened during the past week at Ely; twenty-one subscribers have already been found – 29 06 14(3) ES

1904 06 18
A series of picture postcards showing the results of the fatal explosion of the traction engine at Linton has been issued by Mr S.F. Talbot. They illustrate the terrible force of the explosion. The heavy engine was torn in sunder as if it had been paper and huge pieces of metal were thrown many yards. Looking at the photographs of the wreck one can only marvel how the driver escaped with his life – it was the driver of a water cart that was killed. # POSTCARD

Haverhill butcher, p4

1904 06 20
St Andrew the Great church, Cambridge, has been thoroughly renovated and the congregation sat within spotless walls, under a roof which afforded no resting place for the busy manufacturer of webs and in an atmosphere suggestive of spring cleaning. The dignified furniture shines anew, the walls are nicely painted and distempered, the windows (coloured and plain) admit the full quota of light. Gas has given way to electric light and there is a sermon switch which will turn off the current from two-thirds of the lights. The organ has been removed from the west gallery and will be placed on the south side of the choir, at present it is in London and a harmonium sufficed for the Sunday services. # c.83.01

1904 06 21
Buffalo Bill, p4 *

1904 06 21 c
At the death of Queen Victoria, a little more than three years ago, the Mayor of Cambridge started a subscription to provide a memorial. Plans for a substantial improvement at the hospital had to be abandoned but they agreed to procure a bust of the Queen from Thomas Brock. It was a magnificent work of art by one of the leading sculptors of their generation which the Corporation would always treasure. It would be an ornament to the Guildhall and retain an honourable position in that building as long as it lasted and then take a more distinguished position in more sumptuous surroundings. # c.02 # c.35.7

1904 06 23
Buffalo Bill, p3

1904 06 24
The Midsummer Fair brought its usual amusements but the cinematograph held undisputed sway: it is the autocrat which swallows hundreds of 'tuppences' and is always ready for more. It was patronised liberally and showed some very excellent representations of national and local life. War pictures form no inconsiderable part of the programme and among the turns of local interest were views of the May Races and the boiler explosion at Linton. In other respects it was much as other times. A good deal of space was occupied by stalls filled with souvenirs of gaudy hue, swing boats, coconut shies, vending machines of more or less domestic utility and a long array of refreshment saloons. # c.27.3

1904 06 24
Young people in Linton are being driven out of the village by their inability to secure a house to live in. But the prospect of doing anything is very shadowy indeed; the greater part of the land is in the possession of two owners neither of whom seem disposed to do much. Now the R.D.C. proposes to erect ten cottages to be rented for half-a-crown a week. This would relieve pressure on the present accommodation which is overcrowded to a degree few people would believe. Some of the houses are like rabbit hutches and 16-year-old boys and girls had to sleep in the same room together. At least ten cottages were so unsanitary they were unfit for human habitation but to condemn them would only intensify the problem. # c.23

1904 06 25
Newmarket accident, p3
Billiards match, p3
Passive resistance, p3
Lodgings, p3
Bike terror, p4 *
Buffalo Bill, p4 *

1904 06 25 c
Now Midsummer Fair is over again it is appropriate to consider how much the carnival costs Cambridge. The switchback, roundabout and show proprietors were taking money as quickly as they could. One machine carried an average of 60 persons and as it travelled for a minute at intervals of half a minute the takings must have averaged £10 an hour, multiplied by five to give the total for one evening. The thirteen coconut shies were in charge of impulsive maidens whose invitation, “Ave a shy, my dear” must have been almost irresistible. There were 20 drinking booths on Horse Fair Day when an immense amount of drink was consumed. Adding it all together it comes to £645 an evening to say nothing of the amount expended during the afternoons # c.27.3

1904 06 27
Haverhill water polo, p4

1904 06 28
Newmarket Road Tabernacle, p3

1904 06 29
For a week a sturgeon estimated from eight to 15 feet has disported itself at Over Staunch and successfully resisted all efforts at capture. Vicious lunges with iron-headed quants or poles have failed to reach it, rifle shots have gone astray and a supply of harpoons have proved of no avail. Meanwhile visitors to the staunch are increasing in number. A doctor was making his way when his boat behaved in a most unaccountable way. It tilted and rolled and when the startled occupant saw it was a huge fish which had caused the commotion there was no more pleasure in boating that day. # c.38 : fishing

Vanishing tradesmen, p3

1904 06 30
Linton explosion, p3 *
Accident garage, p3

July 1904 CDN

1904 07 01
Cherry Hinton Free Church, p4

1904 07 02
Newmarket Road cemetery, p3
Midsummer Fair, p3 *
May Ball, p3 *
Children exams, p4

1904 07 04
Sir – why was it necessary to have 20 drinking booths at Midsummer Fair? No reasonable person can contend they were all required. The licences have to be applied for and the magistrates appear to be too faint-hearted to deny one applicant what they grant to another. I am concerned that either through their negligence or the apathy of temperance people the annual pleasure fair should become a drinking debauch. There was practically a whole street of drinking saloons. Apart from their presence being a strong incentive to a serious amount of unnecessary drinking this is unfair to the public houses in the vicinity who would have done an increased trade in a legitimate way for a few days. – Disappointed # c.27.3 # c.27.4

Priests first mass, p3
St Ives memorial, p3

1904 07 05
An inquiry into the proposed closure of Mill Road cemetery, Cambridge heard objections from several parishes. The All Saints portion would not be absolutely full for another 23 years and was as sanitary as any other. There were 142 spaces available for Holy Sepulchre and 120 for St Paul's parish which was strongly opposed to closure. The Rev E.C. Pearce of St Bene't's said there were 60 vaults and brick graves likely to be used again; he had never seen remains exposed when a new grave had been made. At St Edward's there had been 47 interments in the last 10 years, 23 of which were not parishioners and had no right to burial in the ground & there was space for another 120 graves. But St Michael's parish only had space for 50 # c.21.2

1904 07 06
Mill Road cemetery, p2

1904 07 07
Police problem, p2

1904 07 08
Gt Wilbraham Baptist chapel was re-opened for worship. The building, which as far from an imposing appearance, has greatly benefited by the process of renovation and the interior now looks clean and tidy. The walls have been effectively treated with pale blue and the seats nicely varnished by members of the Village Preachers Association who took it over ten years ago. The place then was more like a prison than anything else. It was very old and dilapidated, there were little windows and a deep gallery and the seats were anything but comfortable. # c.82.05

1904 07 08 ES
While excavating on a site for some news houses at Town-end March, some workmen came across a quantity of human bones in a decayed state. There were no signs of any coffin, but, from the appearance of the bones that were unearthed, they are believed to be part of a skeleton of a full-grown person. Portions of the skull were found, and the lower jaw, with 16 teeth fairly well preserved, was intact. The other bones indicated that the person was buried with the hands and arms above the head – 29 07 12 ES

1904 07 08 ES
The promoters of the scheme for the erection of a bridge over the river at Guyhirn do not appear to be meeting with the success that was at first anticipated. The Isle of Ely County Council have practically refused to assist them in any way, and an application for a grant from the Holland County Council has been treated in the same manner. The estimated cost of the bridge was stated to be £3,800, and it would be of great benefit by opening another road between South Lincolnshire and Cambridgeshire – 29 07 12 ES

1904 07 09
Horse sun bonnet, p4 *
Houghton Mill, p4

1904 07 09 c
Mr F.B. Kelly has retired as District Manager of the Great Northern Railway at Cambridge after 55 years' service. He began at Lincoln when the railway began to compete with a boat that used to ply between Lincoln and Boston. Instead of seeking to attract custom by providing a more comfortable means of travelling they decided that anything cheap, though nasty, would do. They provided fourth-class carriages which had neither seats nor covering and packed them in like so many sheep. He also recalls the better type of carriage that was modelled on the stage coach and remembers how before the introduction of vans luggage used to be piled on the top of the carriages and covered over with a sheet. # c.26.2

1904 07 12
King at Peterborough, p3

1904 07 13
The King visited Newmarket Workhouse and made a tour of the building which has been recently reconstructed at a cost of £23,000. When in the kitchen he remarked upon the superiority of that room over the one in existence when he previously visited as Prince of Wales in 1895. He threw out suggestions of a practical nature, notably that the iron building used as an inspection ward should be covered with creepers and that the slab over a stove in one of the rooms should be rounded off, his Majesty having caught his foot against the corner whilst passing. A stable lad, an infirmary patient, came in for some attention and at the King's request he played a selection on his mandolin. & 14th p2 # c.02 # c.32.9

1904 07 13
The bandstand erected at Newmarket in commemoration of the coronation of King Edward VII was opened. Considerable difficulties had been experienced with regard to the site but with the consent of the Jockey Club it was erected on the Town Corner of the Severals. It is in the usual style and painted white relieved with the King's racing colours of red and blue. It was decorated with small flags and illuminated when darkness came on by means of electric lights, a number of the globes of which pore portraits of the King and Queen.

1904 07 13 c
Few realise the lavish expenditure on the May Balls held in Cambridge Corn Exchange. After the corn merchants have vacated the building on the Saturday evening a small army of workmen take possession. They labour until midnight when the advent of the Sabbath and the strict rules governing municipal buildings shut them out for 24 hours. With the first hour of Monday morning they re-enter and by eight that evening the place is transformed into an artistic ballroom through which not a vestige of the prosaic Corn Exchange is seen. What of the cost? There is not less than £2,000 worth of goods in the ball room; add to that the cost of utilising the Guildhall as a supper room and include the china and plates for the supper and you have a total of some thousands of pounds to provide our moneyed visitors with an evening's entertainment. # c.36.9

1904 07 14

The Waterbeach Passive Resistance sale was entirely devoid of the buffoonery that characterised similar events in Cambridge. It was the outcome of the refusal of Mr Mark Wyatt and his sons, of Chittering, to pay the Education rate. The amount of the distraint was £4 for which two coombs of corn was seized. This was conveyed to the village green and sold by auction to the highest bidder. The proceedings attracted a good many villagers and the singing of the hymn 'Oh God our help in ages past' preceded the sale. Mr Wyatt was a quiet, peaceable, law abiding and god-fearing man. He had been taken into a police court, charged with violating the law, his goods had been seized by force and sold publicly in order that the outraged majesty of the law should be satisfied. # c.331904

1904 07 15
A small private fishery near Ely has become infested with otters. They afford no sport as they cannot be hunted by dogs, to track them in reeds and water is impossible, and they are too cunning to be outwitted in any way. As fish are seriously thinned the holder of the fishery placed himself in a likely spot with a gun. At dusk there was a great deal of crashing among the reeds and two or three large animals began chasing each other in the water. More joined and there was a general plunging and diving all round. Kneeling in the boat the fisherman found one brute with a widely distended mouth close to his elbow, the gleam of the teeth was quite ferocious. That such shy animals should show signs of attacking can only be accounted for by the mating season.

1904 07 15 ES
Good swimmers are numerous in March and it is surprising that no swimming club exists. There are comfortable shed and a good basin at the west end of the town but what is absolutely necessary is cleaner water. A few pounds spend cleaning out the weeds, the mud and filth for about fifty yards would never be missed, and it would be conferring a boon on all bathers. At times the smell of the water is offensive – 29 07 19 ES

1904 07 16
Shopkeepers are urged to ensure that their sun blinds are sufficiently high. Two well-dressed ladies were passing along the footpath of a certain Cambridge thoroughfare and were shielding themselves from the glare of the sun beneath a parasol, when suddenly the sunshade was dragged from the lady's hand, and came in contact with the other lady's hat, with the result that the head gear was torn with considerable force from its resting place and fell upon the pavement. The most unfortunate part of the whole affair was that not only the hat but the hair became enfastened and fell at the wearer's feet. The lady looked what most men would have said. # c.27.2 # WOMEN

De Freville, p2
Hot weather, p4
Garden robbery, p4

1904 07 19
Cambridge New Theatre had a poor year. The depression affected the well-to-do people who sent their sons up to University and naturally young men were warned not to be extravagant about his amusement. The theatre being the chief amusement it was the first thing the undergraduate cut off. The New Theatre endeavoured to spend as much money as possible with local tradesmen but they went to London for their amusements, which was very hard lines. Several companies cancelled their engagements but good companies with people like Ellen Terry had been unable to half-fill the theatre which spoke very badly for the taste of the Cambridge audience. # c.76

1904 07 21
Royston passive resisters, p3

1904 07 23
Cottenham is proud of its sturdy boys but would much rather that the youths should demonstrate the strength of their arms on other material than the school windows. Recently nearly 40 panes of glass were discovered to be smashed. There had been a stone-throwing competition among the lads whose correctness of aim did them more credit than their disregard for public property. The names of some of the culprits are known but fines would punish the parents rather than the boys. A stout application of the birch, or homely cane, would probably fulfil the requirements of the case.

1904 07 23
Isleham band furnishes a striking example of what can be accomplished by steady and determined work. It was only formed a year ago but has become an important and appreciated institution. Its members have had to work hand and faced their first public performance on the occasion of the Harvest Festival last October with trepidation. Recently they have given short open-air sacred concerts on the green on Sunday evenings after the services at the various places of worship. It is to be hoped that their success will stir up the inhabitants of other villages.

1904 07 23
Four Passive Resisters from Toft appeared before the magistrates for non-payment of their poor rate. Joseph Worboys, a builder, said: "I am a Passive Resister, and my father is not, or rather he does not want the bother of it". The 1902 Education Act was made for the benefit of one religious party and he objected to supporting a doctrine to which he was opposed. The State did not ought to have anything to do with the religious convictions of the people. It was a damnable Act of Parliament. The magistrates understood and said the remedy was to get the law changed, but he had to pay in the meantime. # c.33

Moat Farm fatality, p3*
Cottenham windows, p3 *

1904 07 25
Residents in Cambridge were among the witnesses of a race between two balloons which started from the Crystal Palace. The first, named the Norfolk, contained Mr C.F. Pollock, D. Lloyd and J.T.C. Moore Brabazon and the second, the Aero Club No.1 contained the Hon C.S. Rolls, a former Cambridge man, Prof Huntingdon and Mr Frank Butler. Mr Pollock obtained a lead of several miles by trailing – keeping very low and trailing a rope along the ground – but this could not be done for long as a village had to be 'jumped'. When approaching Bottisham it was very near the ground and a number of cyclists awaited the descent; their hopes were doomed when the occupants threw out a quantity of ballast and ascended to a good height. A safe landing was effected near Ely for one balloon and the second was captured by a motor that was sent to chase it. # c.26.1

1904 07 25
Two young ladies visited Cambridge as part of a tour in a coster's cart. Arriving at Ye Olde Castel Hotel they attracted a large crowd as much for their costume as their conveyance. They wore holland dresses, large sun hats, sandals and were without stockings. Needless to say the sight of such attire created astonishment among the hotel staff which increased when the travellers requested a bed for a donkey as well as themselves. Their departure next morning was attended by a great crowd who minutely examined the East End turn out, the cooking stove and the harness of the donkey which would not have been despised in the Old Kent Road. # WOMEN

1904 07 25
The publication of Mr John Sweeney's book 'At Scotland Yard' recalls one of the most sensational tragedies Cambridge has known. The detective mentions the arrest and subsequent death of the swindler who styled himself 'Dr Sinclair Roland' and resided at a well-furnished, expensively-rented house called Edenfield in Trumpington Road. It had been chosen for its security from observation and general utility as a hiding place. There was an elaborate system of cupboards and secret passages by which he could hide or escape. But the police blocked every exit, a systematic search was made and a secret panel discovered where the man was found. He called for a glass of water and fell dead, having taken poison which he carried in a ring. # c.34.6

Tragedy recalled, p3 *

1904 07 26
Horseheath accident, p3 *
Floods, p3

1904 07 28
William Bond, p3

1904 07 29
The quietude of Ely was rudely disturbed by news of a shocking tragedy enacted on Back Hill, one of the most peaceful parts of the old City. A bricklayer's labourer twice shot at his neighbour with a double-barrelled gun, the bullets going through her left breast and causing such deadly wounds that she shortly afterwards expired. He then coolly walked into his own house and shot himself through the head. The murder caused the greatest sensation, news spread with rapidity to all parts and the place of the ghastly murder, the humble home of a cottager, became the scene of the greatest excitement Ely has known for years, particularly evinced by the arrival on the scene of several photographers. # c.34.6

Barkway lightning, p3

1904 07 29 c
Numbers of people who saw a lady at Coe Fen on Sunday evening with nothing on her head but a large quantity of woman's crowning glory, imagined her to be one of the enthusiastic hygienic faddists known as the hatless brigade. Her courageous defiance of custom aroused much admiration inspired by her profuse and glistening golden locks. The belief that the new custom of going hatless had found followers is however groundless. The prosaic explanation is that lady had left a boat, in which her headgear was, and walked along the Coe Fen path to the bridge to avoid passing through the bathing place. # WOMEN

1904 07 30
University farm, p2 *

August 1904 CDN

1904 08 01
Mammoth Show, p3

1904 08 02
Mammoth Show, p2 *

1904 08 04
Linton explosion inquiry, p2 *
UFO, p2 *

1904 08 05
Linton explosion judgement, p2 *

1904 08 05 c
The spell of hot weather has been followed by thunderstorms. At Needingworth the end of a cottage in the occupation of James Allgood was struck by lightning, bursting the wall open. The window panes were broken and the house was much shaken. The current passed through the bedroom and descended to the room underneath where Mr Allgood was sitting opposite the door. He was struck senseless. His wife was sitting near the window at the sewing machine wearing a steel thimble on her finger. She was struck on the right side and at first it was thought the shock had killed her. Both were put to bed and are progressing favourably. # c.12

1904 08 06
The current issue of the 'Strand Magazine' possesses a special interest for Cambridge people since the town has furnished Sir Arthur Conan Doyle with material for his latest Sherlock Holmes story, The Missing Three-quarter. It concerns the disappearance of a member of the Cambridge University rugger team on the eve of the annual match against Oxford. Holmes is supposed to visit Cambridge, residing in an inn next to a bicycle shop; he explores Histon, Oakington and Waterbeach before the final scene of the story is set in a lonely cottage in a field near Trumpington. # c.76

1904 08 06
Attendance at public bodies bear the mark of the exodus. Chesterton Urban District Council was reduced to three members and a chairman. The clerk was away on holiday. With him went the keys which keep the Council's documents away from prying eyes so when the minutes came up for confirmation there were no minutes to confirm. Then the seal could not be had because it too was under lock and key. However the business of the Council was not impeded # c.35.3

1904 08 09
Littleport suicide, p3

1904 08 10
Royston town council was told some ten or twelve persons had purchased land in Green Street and it was only fair to them to have a good road. At the same time lighting should be provided and the Gas Company instructed to lay on the necessary services. But the Tradesmen's Club objected. They were the largest owners of land in the street. The houses had neither gas nor water, just the sewer and it would be better to wait until the mains had been laid. In the event of more building the road would have to be opened to connect these services and leave scars on the surface

Workhouse inspection, p3

1904 08 13
Grantchester theft, p3

1904 08 15
Mrs Sarah Ann Edwards told the Soham court that she had several occupations and besides being a midwife and a washerwoman, prepared dead bodies for burial. She purchased a pony and lent it to her husband who went to Fordham with it. He got very drunk and went to the Windmill where the made a bargain for the pony with William Harlock. It was taken from the cart and replaced by another one. This was a broken-down creature, only fit for the knacker's yard. When her husband got home she went in search of her own animal and found it in the Ely pig market. Harlock said he had bought it from her husband # c.21.1

1904 08 16
Motor cycle trials, p3

1904 08 17
March school, p3
Death from cut foot, p3 *

1904 08 18
Members of the British Association meeting in Cambridge witnessed the making of scientific instruments, the process of lithography, the making of cement and the method of cleaning the interiors of buildings by the Eastern Counties Vacuum Cleaner Company. By the operation of their machinery the whole of the dust contained in a building, saturating its carpets, clinging to inaccessible portions of its furniture and permeating its curtains and draperies, is removed entirely. At present expense is an obstacle but the company intends to institute a method by which a series of rooms can be cleaned at one time, minimising the expense of conveying machinery backwards and forwards. Medical men taking part in the present scientific pilgrimage will find themselves well rewarded by a visit to the exhibition. # c.10

1904 08 20
The visit of the British Association has affected Cambridge. Hotels and tradesmen – particularly butchers and confectioners – are busy, public servants are feeling the pressure, notably pressmen, postal officials and police. Almost every important daily paper has a special representative and to cope with the labours of these journalists four Wheatstone telegraphic machines have been installed at the Post Office # c.27.9

1904 08 22
Harston passive resistance, p3

1904 08 24
Evidence of the lack of cottages at Saffron Walden was illustrated when magistrates were asked by the Town Council to eject four cottagers from their homes in Faireycrof Road as they were required for demolition for street improvements. The residents said they were willing to get out but had tried all over the town to get houses and could not find any. Under the circumstances they did not know what to do. Magistrates said they had to grant the orders but the residents should not be turned out until other cottages had been found.

1904 08 25
The Local Government Board have decided to close those parts of Mill Road cemetery which are assigned to the parishes of St Andrew the Less, St Mary the Less and St Botolph but say there is no need for the protection of public health for other areas to be closed. The three portions will be sealed while in the rest of the burial ground interments will continue as usual. This is in accordance with the deep feelings expressed at the inquiry where representatives of the other parishes had protested strongly against their grounds being closed, with the single exception of the Rev Wood who was acting in direct opposition to the wishes of his parishioners. His ‘aesthetic’ vapourings were appreciated by the Inspector for their true worth. # c.21.2

1904 08 25
The 1904 meeting of the British Association is over, our distinguished visitors have departed from our midst, and we are settling quietly down to the dreary dullness of what remains of the Long Vacation. It has been a memorable week. Considered numerically and socially the meeting has been one of the most successful they have ever held. In no other town could greater hospitality have been offered than that displayed in Cambridge; all the important buildings – municipal and university were placed at their disposal. Garden parties and receptions were as plentiful and bounteous as even the most frivolous of savants could desire. # c.27.9

1904 08 27
Waterbeach fire engine, p3
Balfour on foot, p4 *
Wooden blocks, p4

1904 08 29
Motor cycle trials, p4 *

1904 08 30
Price of bread, p3 *

1904 08 31

Advertising, p2 & p3 *
Diamond hunt, p3 *

September 1904 CDN

1904 09 01
King interviewed, p3 *

1904 09 02
Cambridge has had more than its fair share of tragedies. Foremost is the terrible tragedy enacted at Shrapnel Barracks, Woolwich, when a Cambridge girl was destroyed by her soldier lover who subsequently shot himself. Then there was the inquest into the wife of a Chesterton hairdresser who committed suicide, a pitiful tale of conjugal unhappiness, poverty and religious mania. Equally shocking was the terrible death of a Bassingbourn girl in a London shop fire. Emerging safely from the burning building she rushed back into the flames in a foolish attempt to rescue her engagement ring.

1904 09 03
Green Street, Cambridge would hardly be suspected of any pretensions to the romantic. Its well-ordered lodging-houses, the policemen who parade it and the milkmen who visit it, all seem to bar the entrance to anything more fanciful. Yet it is home to a Russian Pole, Mr Ignatius Knaster who became a political offender by the publication of a political pamphlet dealing with the conditions in Poland and was given the alternative of incarceration or banishment. # c.44.6 # c.33

Railway attack, p4 *

1904 09 06
Sir – In November a Cambridge man borrowed £20 from a money lender, agreeing to pay £30 back by payments of £5 per month. He duly made the first four payments, thus returning all that was advanced in cash. The last two payments were made, on in May, five weeks after it was due, and the other in July, six weeks late. The borrower still owes £21. In times of depression and bad trade as in Cambridge at present is it unreasonable to ask newspapers not to carry advertisements for such moneylenders? – Citizen # c.32.8

1904 09 06
Three Cambridge lads were charged with committing damage to the Cambridge Volunteer Corps rifle butts. Quartermaster-Sergt Rumbolt said that no sooner had shooting concluded than these boys invaded the butts and pulled the earthwork about in their search for bullets. This is a great nuisance and a great deal of expense has been incurred in restoring them. The Corps could obtain £20 per ton for the bullets # c.45.4

1904 09 08
A number of complaints have reached the CDN as to the impertinence of a moneylender in Russell Street. His circular reads: “Do you want a little temporary assistance without the usual money-lending routine, without publicity, without delay. If you do call at my offices”. Regarding as we do all men of this stamp as dangerous to society we hope his tenancy will be terminated by the owner of the property and that the police will prevent this man thrusting upon the citizens of Cambridge by means of their letter boxes, circulars of this unsavoury trade.

1904 09 09
Our Special Correspondent gives a graphic account of the days fighting at the Essex manoeuvres which resulted in the defeat of the defenders and the fall of Colchester. The Bedfordshires had just entrenched themselves when suddenly the sentries gave the alarm that the enemy was upon them in the darkness. They endeavoured to make a stand and began firing vigorously but General French attacked with nearly a whole division and in the end they had to clear out of their camp or be captured. # c.45.4

1904 09 09
An NSPPC Inspector told the court he visited a cottage at Babylon, over the river at Ely. The house was very dirty and smelt very bad. The children were 'very very dirty' and an infant was laid in a clothes' basket. All the bedding in the house was an old flock bed lying on an old straw mattress which was rotten, and all was wet and dirty and full of vermin. The wife said she had emptied the bed and washed the tick which was hung out to dry. He could not see it she said the wind must have blown it down. She went to the fence bottom and pulled up an old rotten piece of bag. It was full of slugs and worms and had obviously been lying there some time. She said 'I am going to wash it and my husband will fill it with straw. # CHILDREN

Theft of dog, p3

1904 09 10
This week's manoeuvres in Essex were brought to a conclusion when the invading army were driven from the country. In the night the wind changed, the rain stopped, and from early morning the sea did not shown ripple enough to disturb the mother of the paddling child, much less the scared and defeated invader hurrying back to his ships. The tide was so low that the horse-boats and whalers could not get up to the beach, and if our army had been at hand we could have compelled the foreigners to bathe for once in their lives. But out troops were held up by the enemy seven miles away. For four hours the battle raged without ceasing and by the time the fighting was over the tide had risen.

1904 09 10
A correspondent points out that the circular issued by the Russell Street moneylender bears no printer's imprint, indicating that the printer was ashamed of his task. This is an offence against the law of the land and both he and the person who distributes it are liable to a fine of £3 for every copy. The police thus have two grounds for taking action. We express our appreciation of the spontaneous thanks which have reached us from all classes of Cambridge people for our attitude in this matter. It shows that the evil results of the presence in a community of these advertising moneylenders is widely recognised. # c.32.8

1904 09 10
For four or five days in all weathers people have been searching several miles of hedgerows between Cambridge and Buntingford. They have been marshalled in extended order and down they swooped upon the inoffensive hedges. It was something like a pegged-down fishing competition and each hoped that to him had been portioned the fateful stretch of ground wherein a stolen tin of diamonds is supposed to have been hidden. One day a cry of triumph marked the discovery of a tin box. Were the diamonds there? Not a bit of it. The tin was one from which a celebrated smoking mixture had been abstracted. Another man found an empty mustard tin. The search has been fruitless.

Grantchester and Haverhill resisters, p3
Essex manoeuvres, p4 *

1904 09 13
Haverhill resisters, p4

1904 09 14
The Official Receiver examining the affairs of a cycle dealer in King Street, Cambridge heard that he had begun business in 1895 and made a fair income until two years ago. The causes of his failure were bad trade, loss on a motor car and the illness of his wife and family. Since the receiving order had been made he had kept two men on the premises at work doing repairs to keep the business going. The New Hudson people had written asking what he would take for the whole thing and Mr Ison had also been after it. The Receiver said 'A man who would work would do very well. Of course when a man stands outside for an admiring crowd to gaze at you cannot wonder …' Among his creditors were Macintosh and Sons, J.F. Amps, Enfield Cycle Co, The Cycle Exchange and H. Swainland. # c.26.485

1904 09 14
There was a larger attendance than usual at Royston court on account of the Passive Resisters' claims. The case of Charles Whyatt, a member of the Urban District Council, was taken first as a test case. He said the passing of the Education Act has been a source of great offence to some Nonconformists who had determined to resist its operation by every means in their power. Passive Resisters had been formed in very part of the country and at Royston they felt it was their duty to deduct a portion of the rate that had been levied for educational purposes. One of the overseers had said he would have nothing to do with collecting the money but the auditor had threatened to surcharge him with the amount not collected. # c.33

1904 09 14
Four Soham passive resisters were before the magistrates for non-payment of the education rate. They were the Rev Shreeve Baptist minister, Rev H.C. Gant the Congregational minister, C. Fyson a wheelwright, and Frederick Owers. He was aged nearly 80 and had always paid his rates before but objected – 'I expect I have got to pay, but that does not make a just thing of it any the more for that'. Rev. Shreeve said it was no pleasure for him to come to court; it was obnoxious as he had always been a law-abiding person but he had a conscientious objection to paying the rate # c.33

Exercises, p4

1904 09 15
A poorly-attended council meeting considered an offer from the Cambridge Electric Tramways Syndicate to electrify and extend the present tramway system. The overhead trolley system for running the cars would not to be employed in King's Parade without the consent of the council. But consultants say that the existing lines in King's Parade should be abandoned & they cannot recommend new lines in the town centre because the narrowness of the streets would generate great opposition from residents. A new line should be laid in Silver Street but this is so narrow that the trams would take their turn with ordinary road traffic and keep to the left. There may be some objection to a track down Queen's Road which has the character of a boulevard but this would not be disturbed by the working of the tramways. The busiest section would be Hills Road where trams would run at about 2¾ minute intervals. # c.26.44

Library editorial, p3

1904 09 17
Comment was aroused by the sight of a Cambridge magistrate assisting a workman to carry a heavy pail along Corn Exchange Street and into the Town Clerk's office. It was not a common or garden pail but a vessel of great antiquarian interest that had been discovered amongst some rubbish in the old office of the Inspector of Weights and Measures. It is a bushel measure of solid bronze with ornamental handles inscribed 'Elizabeth' and dated 1601. # c.43

Rambler, p4

1904 09 19
Shelford resisters, p4

1904 09 20
Touting, p3
Cambridge passive resisters, p3

1904 09 21
Breach pf promise, p3
Bankruptcies, p4

1904 09 22
Seventeen Passive Resisters, including two magistrates were summoned at Linton for non-payment of portions of the poor rate. They included Richard Holttum a Linton grocer, Robert Maynard JP, engineer of Whittlesford and Egbert Gregory a Congregational minister from Duxford. When magistrates asked John Maris, a Duxford corn merchant, what he had to say he replied that what he wanted to say the bench did not wish to hear – he was opposed to paying for sectarian teaching. In some denominational schools children were taught that it was a sin to enter Nonconformist places of worship. # c.33

P3 scuffle, p3 *
Cattle in street, p4
Mayoral chain, p4

1904 09 23
Sturmer church has a harmonium which has done excellent service for many years but the time has arrived when an instrument more in tune with modern ideas should be provided. The rector noticed that the renowned millionaire philanthropist Mr Andrew Carnegie was giving portions of his wealth away and wrote to him. Now he has offered half of the cost of a £120 organ providing the parish raises the other. A public meeting has decided to accept; a sale of work will be held and small amounts collected weekly from the poorer parishioners.

1904 09 26
Gt St Mary's windows, p4 *

1904 09 28
Lewis, tailor, bankruptcy, p4

1904 09 29
Trams editorial, p3 *
Letter carrier, p4 *
Circus glanders, p4 *

1904 09 30
Cambridge resisters, p3 *

1904 09 30 ES
This year's statute at March surpassed all its predecessors within the memory of the oldest inhabitants so far as the pleasure section went, for as a business concern its effect may be said to be practically nil. The whole of Broad Street was occupied by the multifarious amusements common to the fair ground and the Market Place was fully utilised. There were almost a hundred stands occupied – 29 10 04(3) ES

October 1904 CDN

1904 10 01 c
William Chapman, a travelling hawker and umbrella repairer at present staying in a caravan at the Butcher's Arms, Newmarket Road, Cambridge told magistrates a man had asked to drink out of his mother's glass. When she refused he'd used bad language and struck his wife who called out "Bill run quick, there's a man a-beating of me". The man, tripped him up, got on top of him and bit his arm. Defendant, a pedlar who was staying at the pub, said he was under the influence of drink and was sentenced to a month's imprisonment with hard labour. Police said they would make a full report on the condition and management of the pub.

1904 10 01
This week the once famous Stourbridge fair has been held and the question arises, how much does the Borough of Cambridge benefit by allowing its ground to be used for trading purposes. Last year £30 10s. was paid in tolls but council expenditure was £18 17s. including wages for the collectors of tolls, carriages in which the Civic Fathers rode to the proclamation and printing bills. Then there is 'new copper'. That is the shining pence our benevolent Borough rules have the privileged of hurling to crowds of children. That cost 18s. But in the case of Reach fair we have actually to pay in hard cash for the privilege of exercising jurisdiction over the village merrymaking and horse-dealing transactions. # c.27.3

1904 10 01 c
Two friends met at Newmarket, one without a bicycle, one with. As they were both returning to Cambridge they challenged each other to get there first. They started off from the Post Office at 3.47pm; within ten minutes the first had caught a train and was soon speeding along. Punctual to the minute it arrived in Cambridge and he was soon rattling along in a cab. He arrived at the office at 4.40 to see the cyclist cool and smiling waiting in another room. # c.26.485

1904 10 03
A serious fire broke out at Haverhill as a result of which the granary of Mr J.J. Mitchell, corn merchant of Queen Street was burnt down and a large quantity of grain completely ruined. Adjoining the premises are the stables of the Urban District Council and the station where the hose cart of the fire-brigade are kept. It was got out and connected and within a few minutes after the arrival of the police and other helpers a couple of jets were playing upon the flames. Until a fortnight ago when the destructive conflagration occurred on the premises of Mr John Atterton, engineer, the town had been happily free from fires of much extent for many years. Both fires were the result of incendiarism.

Carlton Grange Farm, p3

1904 10 06
The coming winter will be one of the worst for the employment of labour known for many years. The building trade, so important to Cambridge, is the one most affected. The reason is in part the wave of depression that is sweeping over the whole industrial life of the country but also because Cambridge is rapidly becoming overbuilt. The conclusion of the new University buildings have also thrown a number of artisans upon the labour market. We have never known so many men out of work at this season of the year. One bright spot is that the three cement companies will provide work for some 350 men # c.32.1

1904 10 06
A disastrous fire occurred at Histon when the Green Hill public house was totally destroyed. It was a quaint old house with a thatched roof and was occupied by Albert Gawthrop who also carries on the business of a grocer and baker. One room of the house had been converted into a grocer's shop, while a bakehouse was in the rear. The fire was caused by a spark from a neighbouring chimney being blown on to the roof. A number of employees of Messrs Chivers were sent to assist together with a vanload of buckets. They did excellent work until the arrival of the Chesterton Fire Brigade. All that remains is a heap of ruins with the chimney rising from the centre. # c.34.75

Eden Street School, p4

1904 10 07
Roads, p4
Workhouse as hospital, p4

1904 10 08
Master Wee Willie M. the Waterbeach schoolboy, is a precocious child with a liking for cigarettes. He purloined a silver watch, sold it and devoted the proceeds to the purchase of his favourite brand. In the natural order of events he appeared before the magistrates who remanded to an industrial school. The prospect an exchange of the freedom of Waterbeach for the confinement of one of these dreadful schools was not at all to his liking, so when he was packed off in a carrier's cart Willie made up his mind to escape at Milton and has disappeared. # CHILDREN

1904 10 08
Many old people will remember the time when Newsome's Circus was a great institution in Cambridge. For many years they conducted a permanent circus here and became very well known in the town, but of late years they have dropped out of the public gaze. James Newsome is still alive – aged 80 years of age – but his wife Pauline has just quitted the ring for ever. She died at Cleethorpes last week, at the age of 79. # c.76 # CIRCUS

Cambridge traders, p4

1904 10 10
Salvation Army, p3

1904 10 11
Foxton Hall sale, p3

1904 10 12
Trams alternative, p3

1904 10 12 c
During the next few days some 800 to 1,000 young men will be coming into residence at Cambridge University. One of the first things they will notice is the number of people who are anxious to recommend them to tailors or robemakers. These people draw five shillings commission for each customer recommended. The fresher will also find in his room a number of 'necessities' from other tradesmen. If he keeps these his 'bedder' draws the commission he had to pay. There are many tradesmen who do not indulge in this kind of touting and young men are advised to go straight to their tutor to find the best traders to deal with. # c.27 # c.36.9

1904 10 13
The first step towards the abolition of Fulbourn Feast from the street was reached at a public meeting. The booths and stalls standing in the road were a great nuisance. The people in the caravans were not of the better class; they were a dirty lot and their sanitary arrangements were very bad. Little bags of filth were left about the street and proved very objectionable. Fulbourn was a respectable and clean village and it was a disgrace they should have such a state of things. No one could abolish the Feast altogether; they could have feasts every day on private premises. What they wanted was to abolish the feast in the street. # c.27.3 # FEAST

Station fatality, p3
Chesterton Wesleyan chapel, p3 & 14th p4
Bedford House, p3

1904 10 14
The Wesleyans have added another to their places of worship by opening a new chapel in Church Street, Chesterton. It is the successor of a building in the High Street which during the latter period of its existence has been difficult to reconcile with conventional ideas of what a place of worship should be. Though doubtless hallowed in the memory of many its defects were numerous. Mr B.C. Jolley provided a piece of land upon which building operations began a few months ago. The architect adopted a Queen Anne style and the result is a pleasing-looking building with an appearance more domestic than ecclesiastical. # c.83.06

Ely Kempton death, p4

1910 10 15
Cambridge used to be famous for its 'characters' and even to this day can point to some human curiosities, including a hibernating man. When winter approaches he copies the dormouse and spends all the day in bed. He is supplied with newspapers and only descends at night when he raids the larder. It is not desirable to indicate his whereabouts lest he be carried off bodily by some enterprising showman. We cannot lose such a novelty. # c.39

1904 10 15
The apathetic manner with which the Cambridge public have received the important decision of the council in regard to tramways does not display that healthy interest in matters municipal which ought to prevail. The terms upon which the streets should be handed over to a private traction company were settled without keen controversy and public excitement. They were passed by a 'holiday' council and only one letter on the subject has since appeared in the press. This public indifference is difficult to explain. # c.26.44

1904 10 15 c
Lord George Sanger's circus is billed to appear at Newmarket and ordinarily such announcements are welcomed. But on this occasion it has given rise of alarm as one of the circus horses has been slaughtered owing to its being affected with glanders, the disease most dreaded by horse keepers on account of its highly contagious and infectious properties. Newmarket is home to many valuable racehorses and the circus site was at the Severalls, a site much frequented by racehorses. The News has approached a veterinary expert who says that if Government precautions had been undertaken there was probably no danger. But council officers will examine the horses at Sudbury before they arrive. # CIRCUS

1904 10 17
A devastating fire broke out on Charles Parker's farm near the church at Bottisham, in the most thickly populated part of the village. Had there been a strong wind it would be impossible to calculate the extent of the damage for there are 20 cottages close at hand. Police constable Whitwood, who is stationed at Swaffham, noticed a bright reflection in the sky and at once mounted his cycle, losing no time in reaching the scene while PC's Salmon and Driver ran from the direction of Fulbourn. The old manual engine which is stored at the Police Station was requisitioned and proved useful, despite its age. It is dated 1796 and was repaired by the Parish Council in 1897. # c.34.75

Cambridge walking man, p4

1904 10 18
An additional cabman's shelter was opened on the ground floor of Cambridge Guildhall in a room formerly used as a temporary police office. There is a stove where for a small payment a man will warm food brought by the cabmen and will also sell tea, coffee and light refreshments. It is comfortably furnished, a few pictures as well as flowers being among the adornments. All cabmen will welcome the shelter where they can dry their clothes in wet weather # c.26.48

1904 10 18
Is the local Passive Resistance movement becoming monotonous even to the Resisters themselves? Are they tried to attending farcical sales, at which fictitious bids having been made by non-existent buyers, the goods are tamely knocked down to their owners? The poor attendance at the sale at Cambridge Corn Exchange certainly suggests it for it was a very dull and dreary affair; not more than 30 people attended and some displayed such a languid interest that they left before the conclusion. # c.33

1904 10 19
Newmarket trainers bankruptcy, p3

1904 10 19
An inquiry was held at the Black Bull Inn, Earith on the death of a labourer. He lived at Over and had thirteen children but suffered from nervousness ever since he lost a son aged 21 by small-pox in London. He would often be muttering and talking to himself and sometimes took too much beer. He rambled about from village to village for eight or nine days at a time. A man who was fishing at Over Staunch saw his body on the bed of the river. It was brought to Earith on a plank in a boat and put in the outhouse where it was viewed by the jury. They returned a verdict 'Found drowned'

1904 10 19 c
Cambridge councillors received a memorial from residents regarding the triangular piece of ground in Tenison Road. They appreciated the tasteful manner in which it had been laid out but considered that it should remain enclosed. The space was so limited it could not be used for any kind of recreation but would undoubtedly be the scene of misconduct by certain persons. If it were thrown open the trees and flowers would be damaged and the cost of upkeep would be considerably increased.

1904 10 20
Mr Pierpont Morgan, the American millionaire, has leased for five years the estate of the late Mr Hall at Six-Mile-Bottom together with the shooting which was held by the late Duke of Cambridge for so many years. It is believed Mr Morgan will reside on the estate. The shooting is excellent and in all probability large parties will be held there each season. Such parties have been frequently graced with the presence of the King and other members of the Royal Family # c.61.7

1904 10 21
Sir – the village feast is a danger to health with the carrying of infection from village to village from the sweets eaten, from the want of cleanliness among the van dwellers and the absence of sanitary appliances. A 'test your strength' appliance was erected opposite a house in which a poor woman lies dying. The friends appealed to the owner not to use it because of the constant ear-splitting noise. Did this appeal influence the good feeling of the feastman? Not a bit of it and the noise continued without ceasing the whole evening. Is it right this kind of thing should continue? – F.L. Nicholls, Fulbourn # FEAST

1904 10 22
A covey of five partridges flew into the yard of the Crown Hotel, Royston, where four of them were promptly caught. It is not unusual for a stray bird to wander into town but a covey rarely leave the open country. The birds may have been frightened by a shooting party or impelled by hunger and attracted by the straw in the stable yard. They formed a welcome addition to the table of the hotel.

Cycling on commons, p4

1904 10 24
For a number of years Cambridge has been without a troupe of minstrels and the idea was mooted of reviving the old X.L.C.R. Minstrels who performed about 14 years ago. The new company is composed chiefly of employees of the University Press. The band comprises nine performers and the chorus and singers provide ample testimony of the excellent training of Mr Stanley Spring. It appears to have a promising future. # c.69

1904 10 27
Assault-at-arms, p4 *

1904 10 28
A Cambridgeshire boy who commenced life under inauspicious circumstances is now, at the age of 16, lying in the country gaol charged with attempted murder. He was abandoned when an infant and brought up under workhouse rule until 13 when he was engaged upon a secluded farm at Coleseed Drove in the neighbourhood of March. But one morning the farmer heard screams and found his wife smothered in blood with terrible wounds about the head. One of his children said, between sobs, 'Your new boy hit mamma with a big pole'. When questioned the lad replied 'She did not treat me well. She would not speak to me' # c.34.6

1904 10 28
A London court was told that complainant's son had an infatuation for the defendant's daughter, a young actress now acting at Cambridge, and was engaged to be married to her. Her parents were not favourable to the match but the girl left their house and went to live with her intended husband's parents. Since then the young couple, both under age, had had the banns published in church but owing to the parents' objections the marriage was not proceeded with. However on hearing that the girl had been married her mother went to the house and demanded to see the 'marriage lines' before labouring the complainant about the head with her umbrella, breaking the weapon into two pieces. # WOMEN

Decimal coins, p4

1904 10 28
March Police Court was crowded when the man charged with attempted murder was placed in the dock. As he walked from March Station to the 'bus that was waiting to convey him to the court he chatted and laughed with the constable who had charge of him, and took no notice of the large number of the public who were curious to catch a glimpse of him. Through the windows of the 'bus pedestrians stopped to gaze at him and though there were a few unpolite remarks passed, there was no scene. Two miles out in the fen lies his victim, wife of a farmer in Coleseed Drove. # c.34.6

1904 10 29
Press explanation, p3 *
E.J. Morden case, p3

1904 10 29
The vicar of Deeping St Nicholas pleaded for the creation of new roads. He said that poor people living in the neighbourhood of Tongue End were for months and months shut out from civilisation, from schools, from churches and chapels, and from any social entertainment. They could not leave their homes for six months in the year, children going to schools had to wade almost knee-deep in mud for two miles, and farmers complained of losses through inability to get their produce to the railway.

1904 10 29
Some explanation is due to the people who surrounded our offices last night to secure copies of our special edition which we promised for half-past-nine but was not published until an hour later. We had ordered from the Press Association a series of private wires to be dispatched as the Prime Minister's speech was being delivered. But such was the wretched state of the telegraphic arrangements that hardly one of the messages reached Cambridge in under an hour. It is as well that the Post Office is a Government department for any private trader who was so lamentably incompetent would soon find himself in the Bankruptcy Court. # c.04 # c.27.7

1904 10 31
King at Chippenham, p3

November 1904 CDN

1904 11 01
Farmhouse crime, p3 *

1904 11 02
Swaffham Prior house accident
Whittlesford Congregational minister, p4

1904 11 03
Chesterton Council has purchased land in Carlyle Road, Cambridge, for a recreation ground. They bought rights in the Brickfield Estate from Mrs Wragg-Gurnie and frontages to Alpha Road from Mr Thoday for £1,350. They then sold off the frontages and after paying for the land were left with a bill for £425 together with a further amount for fencing, laying out and planting the ground. This was a very small sum for so large a piece of land and they had carried out a great improvement in Carlyle Road by widening it from Dalrymple Terrace to the end of the road. # c.32.3 # c.38

1904 11 04
The court heard how, 30 years ago, a young man had been sent to Cambridge University, his father allowing him £250 a year, which was intended to cover all his college bills. Like a good many other young men he became seriously involved with the worst class of moneylenders. His father was extremely angry but arranged the payment of £6,000 to his creditors. He lad was taken away from Cambridge and sent first to Boulogne and then Australia. Arrangements were made to tie up his inheritance to prevent him from borrowing another shilling and to settle everything upon his wife if ever he got married. He and his father never saw each other again. # c.36.9

Linton housing, p4

1904 11 05
Downham tragedy, p3
St Andrews Street builders, p4

1904 11 07
The results of the fifth of November 'rag' in Cambridge were more or less serious injuries to two policemen, considerable damage to private property and several police-court summonses. A little boy engaged in firing a squib in the midst of a 'ragging' party proceeding along Jesus Lane was knocked down by a cyclist and rendered insensible. Fortunately he was soon revived by a number of undergraduates who at once attended to him. One man fainted and another was admitted to Hospital suffering from injuries to the head caused by his being knocked down by a cab. # c.34.6 # c.36.9 # c.39

1904 11 07
Damage was sustained at Quy caused by youths who cherished a desire to celebrate the 'Fifth' in a manner more realistic than by a common pyrotechnics display. A stack of mustard seed on Caius Farm provided the fuel for a blaze and was utterly destroyed. Stacks on the Stuntney Road at Ely also caught fire. It was noticed by some boys standing on the High Bridge who conveyed the news to the Railway Station from where a telephone message was immediately dispatched to the Police Station and the Fire Brigade quickly summoned. But the fire had got a firm hold and the six stacks formed a great blaze that could be seen for miles around. c.34.75

Ely tires

1904 11 08
Mr F.G. Postans retired after occupying the position of postmaster at Newmarket since 1866. At that time all postal work was carried on in the boot shop now occupied by Mr Quant in the High Street.

There were five staff for postal work. Gambling was allowed anywhere and everywhere and registered money was sent through the post in large quantities. At that time there were deliveries two or three times a day but now they have increased to five. There was no telegraph work in the shop but there was a telegraph office adjoining the Subscription Club Rooms and another in the White Hart yard. A number of operators used to come down for the race weeks.

Injured policeman, p3

1904 11 09
Sir – while Cambridge is debating ting in what course should be adopted with regard to the tramway system two of the London bus companies have adopted motor traction. It is strange that after all the progress made by the petrol engine that one has adopted steam. The difficulties for a good petrol bus are many as frequent stopping and starting is required with much changing of gear. The steam bus has many advantages as any variation of speed is got by merely turning on more or less steam. Electric buses are out of the question as the batteries are too heavy and will only travel about 40 miles on one charge. The overhead electric trolley system disfigures the street by the overhead wires but can be relied upon and with ornamental trolley poles they do not look half as bad as it is made out – C. North, Cambridge. # c.26.46

1904 11 10
The King's birthday is one of those occasions upon which a certain section of the 'Varsity and Town consider it necessary to turn themselves into public nuisances. This year they avoided the Borough police by making a raid on Chesterton. The mob made tracks for Midsummer Common with the object of having a bonfire. Several hundred crossed Jesus Green Bridge where a council of war was held. Carlyle Road was mention as leading to fuel for the fire but a number of the belligerents made an incursion down a private road. Several fences were broken down and flames shot into the air as the surreptitiously-obtained timber was thrown on to the fire. No police appeared on the scene, though a number of members of the Force were on duty on the borough side of the river # c.02 # c.36.9

King motor cycle, p2
Cambridge Scientific Instrument Company in USA, p3

1904 11 11
Cement making has already become a very important Cambridge industry. Extensive new works are rapidly approaching completion and have made a great change in the landscape of Cherry Hinton. The pleasant path through the fields from the end of Mill Road is hardly recognisable now. It has been diverted to make room for a huge collection of buildings from which a new siding leads to the railway line close at hand. These are the Norman Cement Company's works. # c.27 # CEMENT

1904 11 12
Last week some Frenchmen visited Cambridge. There was no doubt about their being Frenchmen. They displayed many of the features of their race, but they were also possessed of phenomenal dash and staying-power. They came to play Rugby football against a team which nominally represented Trinity College but which was far stronger than any single college could put in the field. And they beat this team completely. Many seemed surprised: "I wouldn't have thought a Frenchman could last out a game of 'Rugger'" one said. The shoulder-shrugging, frog-eating Frenchman of the story-books is a rare creature. So let's banish this nursery-bred illusion and hope one day for the friendship of this great people. # c.38 : rugby

1904 11 12
At Divorce proceeding a Cambridge medical practitioner alleged his wife had been guilty of misconduct with a Worcestershire man. She counter-claimed on charges of cruelty and adultery, alleging that while practising he had been guilty of impropriety with lady patients. In the evidence will be strange stories of violent scenes at their residence, of the wife taking poison and so forth. # WOMEN

1904 11 14
Marvel of mechanics, p3 *
Poem, p4

1904 11 15
A gruesome accident occurred at the railway crossing at Little Thetford. Two men were returning from Fulbourn with the corpse of an Ely native who was by trade a basket maker and had been detained in the asylum. A four-wheel cart, with no lights, collided with their trap which was turned over on to its side. The horse was dragged down with it and the two men hurt. The coffin containing the corpse was left on the road and the trap had to make a second journey to convey the remains to Ely # c.21.2

1904 11 17
Up to last night there was a cluster of buildings, workshops, tool-sheds and fowl houses at the apex of a triangle formed by property facing Mill Road, Hemingford Road and Belgrave Road, Cambridge. Today nothing remains but a heap of charred timber and twisted iron. Fire has made a clean sweep of the evidences of industry of several inhabitants and caused damage of about £250. Mr G. Woolfenden, an electrician, has lost a workshop. Most people living in the three roads have a wooden erection of some kind at the end of their gardens and those burnt down stood side by side or back to back in an area covered by 20 square yards. # c.44.6

1904 11 19
De Freville Bridge, p4 *

1904 11 19
No reasonable person expects to find a ferryman on duty after ten at night and is reconciled to the necessity of grinding himself across the few yards of water. About midnight a husband and his wife returning from Chesterton determined to make a short cut across the river as rain was pouring down in pitiless fashion. The husband seized the handle of the grind to get to the other side as quickly as possible. But when they got to the middle the ferry stuck fast, nor would it go back no matter how hard he strained and pushed. For ten minutes they wrestled with that ferry in the pouring rain and were just about to shout for help when the unwieldy affair began to work and they got back to the bank they had left. As they walked around the road home they decided that ferries were contrivances of the Evil One # c.44.7

1904 11 22
Frederick Silk told the court that he was driving the prison van along St Andrew's Street in Cambridge when he ran into a handcart & knocked its 63-year old driver down, cutting his hands and face. The man had been drunk and pushed the cart into his wheel; there was no other traffic on the road at the time. Silk could not stop because he was going to the station with the 'Black Maria' to fetch some prisoners from the 4.30 train. He was fined £1. # c.34.6

Assault in Cambridge, p3

1904 11 23
The Cambridge Female Refuse is sorely in need of increased support for their accounts show a deficit of over £250. The amount realised by laundry work during the last six weeks was very much higher than for a considerable time past but they could not rely on a continuance of a large amount of washing and must get more subscribers. During the year nine girls had been admitted to the Home and eight sent out to service after the completion of their training. But for the first time in many years there were four cases to record of probable failure. # WOMEN # c.37.3

1904 11 24
Since September 14 cases of diphtheria have been diagnosed among Cambridge school children, 11 of whom have been removed to the Infectious Diseases Hospital. Swabs have been taken from their classmates and any harbouring the diphtheria bacillus are removed to the Isolation Home. Three cases have proved fatal. One was of a child who died through medical advice not having been sought in time. It had been ill for four days before a doctor was called in. Steps were taken to remove the patient to the Hospital as quickly as possible but when the conveyance arrived at the house death had taken place only a few minutes earlier. # c.21.1

1904 11 25 ES
The Baptists at Haddenham marked a new era in their history by the laying of the memorial stone of their new chapel – 29 11 29 ES

1904 11 26
Distress is likely to be more acute in Cambridge this winter than for many years past owing principally to the slump in the building boom locally and the depression in trade generally. The Church Army has evolved a scheme through which married men may obtain work. A number of tickets are issued to philanthropists who fill in the name of a married man in need of employment and offers to repay the Army one shilling towards the cost of employment. The man is found work wood chopping or log sawing and is paid about 2s.6d. a day. But the Home is now overloaded with the produce of its labour and there are 25,000 bundles of wood which must be sold to the public before it can continue. # c.32.9

1904 11 26
The troubles between the parishioners of Hardwick and their Rector, which have made the village notorious, culminated in a police case when the Rev John Lee summoned John Hodson for assault. It was the climax of a series of annoyances that had dated back to January. It had started when the Rector had vetoed Hodson as a school manager claiming he was not a bona-fide member of the Church of England since he had jeered the Bishop on his return from the re-opening of the church. Hodson said the affair was an accident; he was swinging his stick as he was in the habit of doing, and the Rector had put his hand underneath it. The case was dismissed. # c.82.01

1904 11 26
The bedmaker is an institution. Without her the University would be sadly disorganised. Now The Granta has been conducting a bedmakers competition which Mrs Jacob of Magdalene has won. She was born in 1829 and has served the college for 62 years. Mrs Hills of St Johns has a record of continuous service since 1839 while Mrs Nichols has served 28 years at Corpus with 11 at Peterhouse before that. But several ladies entirely declined to take the contest seriously, one saying she had read in The Granta ‘articles which no gentleman could possibly have written’ # WOMEN # c.36.9

1904 11 29
Lincolnshire has long been a county noted for drug-taking. A chemist said that he had sold more opium and laudanum in four years at Spalding than during the previous twenty in other parts of the country. The habit had been handed down amongst the inhabitants for many generations. It was originally resorted to as a means of allaying pains resulting from ague but the present generation are not such slaves to the habit as their predecessors. More opium is sold at Peterborough than in any other town in England but it is not one-tenth of what it was 30 years ago. The sale is now mainly confined to villagers, especially women, and the evil appears to be gradually dying out # DRUG # c.21.1

Barrington farmer, p3

1904 11 30
The anticipation of the probability of distress in Cambridge some weeks ago, before the wintry weather came to give a keener edge to hunger and a more painful and sharp reminder to the poor of their inadequate resources in food and clothing, was widely discussed but was felt to be unduly magnified. The Town Council vetoed a proposal to supply aid to the unemployed. But Miss Wilson of the Nursing Institution on Newmarket Road began to undertake the provision of free dinners to which the children of poor parents resort for their midday meal of soup and bread. "We give the children as much as ever they can hold", she said. Boys in pitiably ragged garments and decrepit old women and little girls with starvation all too plainly written on their features come with jugs to take soup home to those unable through illness or lack of clothing to come themselves. # c.32.9

1904 11 30 c
Cambridge Corporation has made arrangements to provide extra work at their stone-breaking yard with the object of relieving distress. The granite used for the roads is customarily brought here in its broken condition. Just now however much of it is being reduced to the requisite size at the stone-yard where they are prepared to employ any applicant who lives in Cambridge. The rate of payment is 3s.6d. for every cubic yard of granite broken and it is possible to earn about 14s weekly, enough to keep a man from actual starvation. But the pinch of want has not been keenly felt by the lower class of labourer at present for only one application has been received. c.32.1

December 1904 CDN

1904 12 02
News of a murderous attack on a 70-year-old man at Sutton had been kept well within the village, where it caused quite a sensation, but now a smart-looking fellow wearing the uniform of a private in the Suffolk Regiment has been brought before Ely court. Police Sergeant Towns said he had gone to a house in Sutton Gault where he found a farm labourer known under the respected nickname of 'Uncle' suffering from a very bad fracture at the back of his head and other wounds on his face. The victim made a statement after which he had arrested the soldier. The accused lived on the opposite side of the road. He was remanded in custody. # c.34.6

Redfern book on gloves and shoes, p3

1904 12 06
There was good attendance at Rothsay House Sale Rooms, Newmarket when the late Prince Soltykoff's estate at Moulton was put up for sale. The sporting estate, known as Landwade's Stud Farm was offered in two lots. One included a residence, flower and kitchen garden, stud buildings, groom's cottage, farm buildings and 259 acres. It had been bought on the open market for about £21,500 and a considerable sum spent upon it. But bidding only reached £9,500 and it was withdrawn. A second lot including cottages and horse boxes attracted no bids.

1904 12 07
A serious accident occurred to men repairing a railway bridge between Mildenhall and Isleham. At the time part of the arch of the bridge had been taken away and girders substituted. While standing on the arch it gave way and precipitated three men on to the railway which was blocked by the ruins of the bridge. By one o'clock however the line had been cleared and the injured men taken to Cambridge, a train having been stopped to convey them. Two others also fell with the bridge but fortunately escaped injury.

1904 12 08
Chesterton council considered a petition for the construction of a footbridge across the Cam between Victoria Bridge and Dant's Ferry, subject to £200 being raised by private subscription towards the cost. But by asking for a subscription they would be setting a precedent and they would never be able to carry out public improvements without asking local occupiers to put their hands in their pockets to help them. It would be an advantage to those on the De Freville, but they all paid rates. The bridge would be an advantage, but not a pecuniary one. If it was placed at the Fort St George it would benefit a very large number of people and no ratepayer would object to a farthing rate for the project

Ely electric lighting, p4 *

1904 12 08 c
Caxton Medical Officer reported that he had analysed the water in the reservoir at Graveley which was highly contaminated and unfit for drinking purposes. It was the only place from which to obtain water but was open to all pollution. He suggested wells be sunk in different parts of the village, a course which had been adopted at Yelling with success. Abundant water could be obtained at about a depth of eight feet. One councillor said they should wait until the parish had a meeting to which another replied: "I know if we have a public meeting we shan't get the water. They will go against it". But even if the parish was not in favour the responsibility of a good supply of water rested on the R.D.C # c.24.2.

1904 12 09
A party of Macedonian gypsies, apparently coming under the designation of 'undesirables', are being chased from one county to another as vigorously as civilised government will permit. No county wants them, no county will have them. Hertfordshire police have pushed them on to the Essex police and today the Cambridgeshire police are putting them over the boundary where the same process will be repeated. At Stump Cross Linton police received charge of the forty-old wanderers and obtained horses to drag the alien caravans to Balsham where other police were waiting. # GYPSIES

1904 12 10
At Balsham police searched in vain for horses to pull the Macedonian gypsies' caravan and hit upon the expedient of pressing a traction engine into service. So the motley crowd with their caravans and tiny ponies proceeded on their weary way. The idea of being drawn along by a traction engine greatly delighted the wanderers who crowded into their caravans and very contentedly made the journey into Newmarket where they camped for the night on the Heath. The police accompanied the party as far as the Red Lodge where the Suffolk authorities continued with the procession, their intention being to dump the vans on land at Brandon in Norfolk. # GYPSIES

1904 12 10
Caxton Medical Officer said he had examined the water supply in the reservoir at Graveley and found it was open to all pollution. It proved to be highly contaminated and entirely unfit for drinking purposes. One or more wells should be sunk in different parts of the village, a course which had been adopted at Yelling with success. Water would be obtained at about a depth of eight feet and in abundance at very little expense. The matter should be debated by the Parish Council who would doubtless vote against it. The responsibility for a good supply rested upon the RDC. # c.24.2

1904 12 10
The latest development in street traction comes from Perth where the council is to experiment with a petrol motor tram car on the ordinary tram lines. This is the first such vehicle to be built in this country and great things are anticipated from it. It might be worth considering by the Cambridge Corporation along with another invention: a motor fire engine with a high-pressure pump equal to an ordinary London Brigade steamer that also carries a fire escape. Built by Messrs Merryweather is it specially valuable for areas where horses are not always immediately available for drawing a steam engine to a fire. # c.34.75

Terrington St Clements inebriates house, p3 *

1904 12 10
Hamond Lodge Inebriates' Home at Terrington St Clements was opened in 1905 for inebriate women. It is a fine manor house surrounded by large gardens and the change which has been wrought in many of the poor women who come there amply proves that the venture was fully justified. There is a dark side too, for there are failures and sad ones. But we have a great anxiety. A great many patients come direct from the London police and their friends cannot guarantee the weekly charge. The Home is costly, there is dry rot in the floors and gardener's cottage, defective drainage and insufficient water supply. The result is a deficit which cannot be reduced without increased support. # c.27.4

1904 12 12
Having been 'dumped' in Norfolk the Macedonian gypsies returned to Newmarket which offered facilities they could not resist. They wanted horses and in that town there were plenty with excellent spots where they could encamp. Attempts were made to get the party to proceed in the opposite direction but without success. The travellers were feeding nearly the whole of the way. They begged from house to house, some people gave them a large quantity of clothing but when they made a charge of a coal bunker had to be driven off with a hammer. # GYPSIES

1904 12 12
An aged maiden lady was severely burned in a house in Abbey Road, Cambridge and there are little hopes of her recovery. She had been left comfortably sitting near the fire in the back sitting room but later found huddled on the floor in a corner with practically all her clothes burned off. The stair carpet was smouldering and the room filled with smoke. Neighbours extinguished the fire. It is thought the fire originated in the bedroom while she was endeavouring to light the gas, she ran downstairs and collapsed. # OLD

Whaddon rectory fire, p3

1904 12 13
The Macedonian gypsies were moved from Newmarket to Six Mile Bottom, the number of followers increasing as the journey continued; by the time they got to Pampisford station they numbered at least 300. Essex police were waiting at Stump Cross but Cambs police decided to take them further into that county. They camped at Chesterford before passing on to Stansted where they were transferred to Hertfordshire police who will take them on to London. # GYPSIES

1904 12 13
Newmarket councillors were all aware that a certain gang of gypsies had been in the district and everyone saw what loathsome and dangerous people they were. The vice-chairman had followed as the caravans containing these verminous beings had been dragged to Brandon but they had then decided to come back. Essex, Herts and Cambridgeshire had decided these people should be moved on and the only county council that had failed to deal with the matter was West Suffolk. The police were responsible for the removal of the gypsies but they said they could spend no money to back up any actions. # GYPSIES

1904 12 13
Whaddon rectory was completely destroyed by fire. Owing to the inflammable state of the old woodwork and the old-fashioned internal arrangement of the building the fire spread with great rapidity. Whaddon is a peculiarly isolated village and on their arrival Melbourn Fire Brigade saw there was no hope of saving the rectory. It was not sufficiently ancient to be of antiquarian interest nor sufficiently recent to be of modern design. The Rector and his family have suffered considerable inconvenience and much irreplaceable furniture is destroyed but they are none the worse for their terrible experience. # c.34.6

Newmarket health, p4 *

1904 12 13
Newmarket council considered the rights of the public to exercise horses on the Severalls. A most respectable gentleman had been told to take his horse off and not go again. From time immemorial it had been used for all kinds of purposes: fairs, cricketing and even carpet-shaking; when the Americans were here they were allowed to gallop their horses on it. The Jockey Club had hired the land but the public had the right of exercising horses on it. If people were stopped they would go to Royston to train their horses and trade would be driven from the town.

1904 12 16
Saffron Walden transfer Cambridgeshire, p3

1904 12 17
Cambridge & Chesterton, p2

1904 12 20
Chesterton amalgamation, p3
Christmas, p3

1904 12 20
For the last three days the thermometer has been registering eleven degrees of frost; should it hold the professional skating race open to all the world for the Littleport Fifty Guineas Challenge Cup will take place. It is imperative that skaters all over the country should receive due notice; once the amateur champion, W. Housden of Wicken Fen, did not hear and was u4nable to defend his title. There is already a fine sheet of ice on Lingay Fen but it is doubtful if the public will be allowed on it for a few days. Sheets of ice promise to be ready for use at Newnham shortly & 1904 12 24

1904 12 21
Christmas, p3
Steeple Bumpstead negligence, p3

1904 12 22
Ferry drowning, p3
Burnt Fen death, p3
Death F.R. Leach, p3
Share-out clubs, p3
Black Horse Drove School, p3

1904 12 22 c
A clay gas pipe has been dug up in Newmarket Road. It is probably one of those used when coal gas was first introduced to Cambridge about 1836. Previous to this oil gas was manufactured by John Grafton from works in Staffordshire Street and found considerable favour with inhabitants until about 1830. Six years later he began to manufacture coal gas; there were only two small gas holders and by 1848 only 400 street lamps. Now the Cambridge Gas Company supplies 1,160 public lamps in the town alone. # c.24.4

1904 12 23
P.C. Winter told an inquest that he went to Dant's Ferry and found a body in the water fully dressed with the head towards Victoria Bridge and the feet under the ferry boat. He raised the head out of the water but the body was caught in the chains and he could not lift it. The Coroner said that a bridge instead of a ferry would probably be better and the number of accidents would be less. The ferry boat was a private concern, people paid tuppence a week and pulled themselves across early in the morning or late at night. There was no blame, it was one of those unfortunate circumstances which had happened at the same spot before.# c.44.7

1904 12 24
Christmas customs, p3 *
Corpus ghost, p4 *
Rail fog, p4

Mormons, p4 *
Egg lady, p4 *

1904 12 24
A few says ago I dropped across a couple of gentlemen of the religious persuasion known as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Elder S.S. Downes and Elder H.B. Brown are their names and they are endeavouring in a quiet way to found a church in Cambridge. For and against Mormonism is not my mission to preach but they have as much right to extend their views as other folk on mission bent, providing they do it in a decent way. # 04 12 24

1904 12 24
A few nights ago a citizen was walking across Midsummer Common, Cambridge, when he was accosted by a rough-looking individual who said he was out of work and intimated in blunt terms that he wanted money and meant to have some. But his intended victim was endowed with some courage, a good supply of muscle and a strong leathern belt with a weighty buckle. He slipped off his belt and made for the footpad, who seeing he had no chicken to deal with took to his heels and was soon lost in the gloom.

1904 12 24
Has any reader had experience of the buxom old lady who with a clean basket on her arm, knocks at your door with hard-boiled eggs at eight for a shilling. Very carefully she sets down a basket lined with fresh straw containing a quantity of eggs which she affirms were only laid that morning and are being sold at the same price she obtains from shopkeepers who buy wholesale. The housewife congratulates herself at the bargain, but imagine her disgust when it is discovered that the eggs were laid months ago and when the shell is broken emit an effluvia which rises up violently about the proboscis. Needless to say the old lady does not call again. # 04 12 24

1904 12 24
Last term in the small hours of the morning an undergraduate in the old part of Corpus Christi College saw something of a supernatural appearance. It so unnerved him he became quite ill; he refused to continue to occupy the room and moved to another staircase. Naturally the college authorities deemed it desirable to prevent the story from gaining publicity and until now have succeeded in suppressing the circumstances. But now the harrowing and gruesome facts have leaked out and the recent visitation of ‘something’ to the undergraduate is beyond dispute. # 04 12 24 # c.39 # GHOST

1904 12 27
Workhouse, p3
Shilling fund, p3

1904 12 27 c
Dr Seaton’s Animated Photographs and Concert Company visited Cambridge Guildhall on Boxing Day. The pictures include the latest Japanese and Russian war films, “Life in Canada” a grand film of 1,200 feet long, “The Kingdom of the Fairies” and a large variety of humorous subjects well worth witnessing. The performance included a high-class variety entertainment including Professor Carson, ventriloquist and mimic and Dr Seaton with his conjuring and plate-spinning. # c.76.9

1904 12 28
Soham raffle, p3

1904 12 29
CWN Review of the Year
Milton cycle explosion, p3

1904 12 30
Witchford road, p4

1904 12 31
Chatteris emigrants, p3 *
Retrospect of year, p4

1904 12 31
The Master of Kedington Workhouse reported that nearly all the old men went one evening over Christmas and the greater part of them came home the worse for drink. One man was brought in a wheelbarrow, simply smothered with mud. Where the men got their drink is a mystery, but apparently the inhabitants of Haverhill had been exceedingly generous. Many of the paupers were not entirely without money: one firm had sent a shilling to each of twenty men who used to be in their employment, others had received letters from friends enclosing stamps. The result of the spree was an attack of dysentery among the men who had participated.

1904 12 31
Liquid air is no new thing in Cambridge for it was our own Professor Dewar who was the first scientist to obtain liquid in hydrogen. Its application to everyday life is new and emanates from the stage. The principal attractions at the Inventions and Trades Exhibition in the Corn Exchange will be Dr Savant's demonstrations of a kettle boiled on ice, eggs poached in one second, grapes instantly turned into hailstones and ice cream made over fire. It is one of the most marvellous and astounding performances every placed before the public. # 04 12 31

1904 12 31
For some time Miss Wilson and her hard-working band of ladies have been daily allaying the pangs of hunger in hundreds of little children and their mothers in the Newmarket Road area of Cambridge by giving them free dinners. Now their effort is brought to an end. Not only are the financial resources exhausted but the staff have physically worked themselves out. But on the very day that these free meals cease the CDN Shilling Fund commences its distribution of tickets for food, fuel and clothing, continuing the work they have been compelled to give up. Subscriptions continue to come steadily in with cheques from Messrs Starr and Rignall photographers, Moore and Company tobacconists and the Cambridge Waterworks Company # c.32.9

1905 Cambridge Daily News

There are reader-printer copies and scans
Checked against diary

January 1905 CDN

1905 01 02
Cambridge councillors discussed the reappointment of an Inspector of Nuisances. Wilson was a thoroughly effective officer; he was one of the few who can find their drains, had been honest and would rectify any problems. He had found the previous system slipshod and had the courage to say so. No complaints against him had been substantiated. Some felt that it was perfectly ridiculous to reappoint a man who came from London in the morning and went home at night but he was in Cambridge in time to take up his duties and had to report to the Medical Officer every night. When appointed he had been told it was a temporary position and could not reasonably be expected to remove his house until it was put on a more permanent basis. # 05 01 02

KP ceremony, p4
Local retrospect, p4

1905 01 03
Local retrospect, p4

1905 01 04
Trades exhibition, p3
Retrospect, p4

1905 01 05
Local retrospect, p3

1905 01 06
Cambridge rating committee considered the University's Sedgwick Geological Museum. As it was a memorial and not a commercial speculation some difficulties arose. It had cost more than required for business purposes with materials of the very best character, thicker walls and a good deal of superfluous work. There could be no other tenant. The land had been purchased from Downing College at an exorbitant rate - £6,800 per acre. Then there were the specimen cases, should they be considered in the valuation. A museum without cases was no more a museum than a factory was complete without its machinery. # 05 01 06 # c.03

1905 01 06
An inquest on a Soham lad heard that his death was due to his ignorance of the dangerous nature of the liquor of which he was partaking. Gambling had been going on at the George and Dragon and the King's head at Soham. The licensees had provided dice and bottles of spirits as prizes. It was by these spirits that the poor lad was poisoned and as long as spirits are readily procurable such accidents must occasion.

University rating, p3 *
Moffet, Foster's Bank, p3
Stapleford school, p4
Retrospect, p4

1905 01 07
The Macedonian gypsies who were touring this vicinity have got back to London. One of them created a sensation in the Thames Police Court when he was charged with ill-treating a horse on Tower Hill until the blood spurted from its nose. When taken to the police station he threw himself on the floor and kicked for over an hour. He was sent to prison for six weeks. When his wife heard the verdict she threw down the infant she was carrying and sat screaming on the pavement for some time # 05 01 07

1905 01 07
The motor 'bus has now passed the experimental stage and is likely to supersede electric traction in towns such as Cambridge. 'Motorbustle' is the new word invented by a gentleman on Westminster Bridge. He was going to Peckham and a friend supposed he would travel by the electric tramcar. "No I am I in hurry, so I shall motorbustle" he said as he stepped into the 'Times' motor omnibus. It is a handy word expressive of the latest locomotion and the modern need for quick movement.

1905 01 07
Continuing their compulsory itinerary, the Macedonian gypsies with their three caravans have reached Edmonton. News of their approach preceded them and they found sanitary officers waiting. The horses were tired and the caravans were drawn through the parish into Tottenham. They were just as unwelcome here and they were soon removed over the border into London. The three caravans are occupied by no less than 52 persons and the conditions are said to be wretched in the extreme 05 01 21a # GYPSY

Graveley water, p4

1905 01 11
Annesdale granaries, p2
Royston fire, p3

1905 01 13
Rock Road, p4

1905 01 14
Sussex St fire, p3
Redfern nutcracker, p4
Kedington beer, p4

1905 01 17
C.J. Clay death, p2
Stretham litigation, p4 *

1905 01 18
The largest and most destructive fire at Soham in recent years took place at Cross Green. It originated in the roof of a thatched cottage occupied by James Boon, a horsekeeper. Although when first noticed the flames might have been covered by a bushel measure, they increased in size at an alarming rate and very soon the whole block was in flames. It spread with such rapidity that firemen had to leave their work and slide down the ladders with all possible speed. The cold was intense; there were several degrees of frost and the icicles formed on the burning buildings within a foot of the flames after the hose had been at work a few minutes. The town was empty, trade was at a standstill and everyone flocked to witness the destruction of the Old Malting. # 05 01 18 – 18b

1905 01 19
XLCR Minstrels, p3
Royston passive resisters, p3

1905 01 21
A serious charge has been brought against the trumpeters who, on the occasion of the Assize at Cambridge, blow a fanfare as the judge steps from his carriage at the Shire hall. They are accused of being unable to keep in tune and wailing as diversely as any pair of cats. I would not undertake to estimate their ability as musicians, but as a sort of variety turn they certainly take a high place. But the learned judge expressed himself highly pleased with the way they performed their duties. 05 01 21 # c.34.9

Clare workhouse stone pit, p3
Littleport skating, p3
Macedonian gypsies, p4 *
Wedding oath, p4

1905 01 24
Russia eye witness, p3
Skating championships, p3

1905 01 24 c
We regret to announce the death of Mr Samuel Woodham at his residence in Gamlingay. The deceased gentleman has been slowly breaking up and of late could scarcely bear carriage exercise. He was the last of the old school which numbered such men as the late J. U. Paine, George S, Plowman and John Gray. He was a fine horseman even up to later years. He was a Liberal in politics and placed Gamlingay Park at the disposal of the local association for meetings and summer picnics.

1905 01 25

Old actors and old journalists are almost as rare as dead donkeys or deceased postboys. The oldest living actor is though to be Mr Edward Miles of Wisbech. He was born in March 1815 before the era of the railroad, the telegraph and the music-hall. He has seen Edmund Kean and Charles Kemble tread the boards, he even knew Grimaldi. Indeed it was on the advice of that great clown that he adopted the stage as a profession. He acted until he was 82, retiring a little over seven years ago when he settled at Wisbech 05 01 25 # c.76

Newmarket heath, p4

1905 01 26
Cambridge councillors were told of a fatal accident at Dant's Ferry a few days prior to Christmas when the breadwinner of a family was drowned. It was only one of many; during the present winter at least five persons had tumbled into the water at that spot. There should be a bridge in the neighbourhood of Abbey Road. But Victoria Bridge was not a long way from Dant's Ferry and before any bridges were built Chesterton would have to join Cambridge. 05 01 26 # c.44.7

1905 01 27
The villagers of Cottenham have been provided with a suitable building, to be known as the Victoria Institute, in which to spend their spare time in a profitable and enjoyable manner. It has been erected on the site of the Old Philo which has been used as a reading room for nearly 40 years. But now Mr F. Darrell has erected the new building at his own expense. Subscribers will have use of periodicals, billiards etc while more unfortunate residents will be able to use the public room where papers will be provided as well as various games including bagatelle, chess and draughts. 05 01 27 # HALL # c.77.7

1905 01 27
Skating would have been quite possible on the Electric Light Ground, Newnham, today had not some evilly disposed person drawn the water from the ground the other evening. The work was done with a care and thoroughness worthy of a better cause. The bank of the ditch which runs from the river to the pump was cut through and so great a fall allowed that the whole of the water on the ground was drained away. Two ladies heard somebody at work on the bank but imagined it was the proprietor and paid little heed. In addition to the annoyance caused the proprietor has suffered a considerable financial hardship. 05 01 27a # c.38 : skating

1905 01 27
Linton's new parish cemetery was dedicated. The churchyard and chapel burying grounds being almost full up, the church had tried to extend their graveyard but the Inspector would not consent owing to the proximity of the land to the river. The Parish Council decided to make an entirely new cemetery at a cost of £500. The situation is not unattractive, a few trees have been planted and there is ample room for extension. There has been a good deal of discussion as to how the cemetery should be opened. Various suggestions were made, some of them rather out of place, including an evening service by torchlight. 05 01 27b # c.21.1

1905 01 28
Cambridgeshire hunt, p4

February 1905 CDN

1905 02 01
Boer war reminiscences, p3

1905 02 03
Ely medical officer reported that the want of house accommodation for the working classes had led to cases of overcrowding. The low-level sewers in Annesdale and Waterside had been thoroughly cleaned out and defects remedies. Three old cesspools in connection with the sewers at Ship Quay, Blackbird's Yard and the bottom of Victoria Street, which required frequent emptying, had been abolished and new manholes substituted. The emptying of ashpits was now done fortnightly and the removal of house refuse from ash boxes and pails thrice weekly was about to be started. The isolation hospital, he was sorry to say, did not exist, although it was much needed. 05 02 03 # c.21.

1905 02 04
Mr P.R. Salmon writes: I have in my possession one of the old original song sheets sold in the streets of Cambridge a few days after the visit of the Shah of Persia in 1873. You will recollect that the Mayor and Vice Chancellor went with their entourage to await his arrival at the railway station, only to find it was a hoax. Part of the verse reads: 'The Mayor and Council so queer did look, As from the station they took their hook; The Chancellor the back slums did go, As he didn't want all the people to know, That he didn't see the Shah of Persia". 05 02 04 # c.75 # c.36.9

1905 02 04
There have been whispers of difficulties in connection with the erection of the new premises at the corner of Downing Street, Cambridge, but they appear to have been overcome since this week recommencement of operations has been made. The site was cleared, and for several months nothing further was done. At length the foundations are being put in. Let us hope it won't be long before we are spared the expense of having a special policeman on point duty to regulate the traffic at that corner in consequence of the hoarding that has obstructed the view there for so long. 05 02 04a

1905 02 04
A disastrous fire broke out at Mr H. Kent's farm, Swaffham Prior; of the thirteen stacks which stood in the farmyard not a vestige remains, except a small heap of ashes. It originated in a corner of the horse yard; Mr King immediately liberated all the animals which were then left to their own devices. Four had strayed as far as five miles away before a search party discovered them. About a hundred fowls that became panic-stricken dashed into the burning stacks in their fright, and were consumed. The only water available was from a small horse-pond and a well from which it had to first be drawn and then conveyed in buckets to the fire engine before being pumped on to the burning stacks. 05 02 04b # c.34.75

Letter from South Africa, p3
Military manoeuvres, p3
GER traffic, p4
Downing St site, p4

1905 02 06
Bill Posting Co, p3
Unemployed and land, p4

1905 02 08
A violinist of considerable ability is travelling the country for a wager under peculiar circumstances and is expected to arrive in Cambridge. He is pledged to tramp round the world in clogs and to make his living en route as a street musician. He can only enter a house or hall by invitation. During the last few days he has been drawing large crowds at the Hoops Hotel, Saffron Walden, where he has been giving a series of recitals. 05 02 08a # c.69

1905 02 08
It is doubtful whether any audience assembled in Cambridge Guildhall have been more interested auditors than those who gathered when Captain Scott, R.N., told the fascinating story of the discoveries made by the expedition which sailed under his command to the Antarctic regions in 1901. Many details have been chronicled but they are dull and uninteresting compared with an explanation from the lips of the chief explorer. Aided by a graphic and beautiful photographic record of the region he took his audience in imagination to every point of importance to show them scenes of inconceivable grandeur and beauty. 05 02 08

1905 02 09
In the light of recent developments of the motor bus, Cambridge people must feel devoutly thankful for the failure of the proposed electric tramway scheme. When it was proposed we felt compelled to protest against the introduction of an ugly and cumbersome system, totally unfitted to our narrow and crowded streets. We advised the provision of 'motor buses and the gradual abolition of even those tramlines which exist at present. The great objection to the motor 'bus was that it was only in an experimental stage but now the London trials show they stand out as the road vehicle of the future. Railway companies are adopting them as 'feeders' instead of constructing additional branch lines or light railroads. We do not think anyone would seriously argue that an electric tram system would be preferable to an efficient motor 'bus service for Cambridge. 05 02 09 # c.26.46

Royston poor law, p2

1905 02 10
Sherlock Holmes and New Theatre, p3 *

1905 02 11
Casualties in the battle between the University Rifle Volunteers and the Red Army were confined to a few rabbits and none were slaughtered by the contending armies. While the conflict raged fiercely with fusillades of blank ammunition there was an impromptu coursing events and as soon as a frightened hare 'got up' dogs were let loose, regardless of the snapping of the rifles. The soldiers voted the civilians a nuisance, and the civilians voted the soldiers jolly good fellows for providing an excellent afternoon's sports. But there was one serious incident. Mounted infantry horses are not always properly broken in; two maddened animals plunged, rearing and kicking in the centre of a crowd of Volunteers and spectators and one lad was knocked down 05 02 11 # c.45.4

Recently-formed county licencing committee, p3

1905 02 14
Cambridge Women's Temperance Association have acquired the tenancy of an East Road property formerly known as the Barnwell Coffee Palace which they have transformed into 'The White Ribbon', a well-conducted temperance establishment at which palatable food and clean lodgings can be obtained at moderate prices. The position of the building in one of the poorer districts has led to some apprehension but care is to be taken to ensure that the frequenters of the establishment are somewhat more select than formerly. It is not intended for the tramp class but for young people who require lodgings. It contains 16 bedrooms with a tastefully-furnished sitting room 05 02 14a # c.27.4 # c.32.9

1905 02 14
On Saturday a caravan containing two families of the Macedonian gypsies passed through Royston escorted by two constables, but some of the women managed to do some shopping. As their pony was obviously unfit for the hills on the Buntingford Road they camped for the night near Ashwell Station where a policeman kept supervision over them. They pretended to know little English beyond the words 'shilling' but suddenly developed a knowledge of English sufficient to bargain for hay. There were two families with nine children, unkempt and dirty. Mr Clark, an enterprising photographer, endeavoured to take a photograph but they declined to group themselves till they had received money. A tremendous number of post card pictures of the group have been sold. They are apparently one of the two vans which disappeared and were practically forgotten when the others were deported last week. 05 02 14 # GYPSY

1905 02 14
Magistrates heard that there were four public rooms in the fully-licensed 'Wait For the Bus' at Bottisham. There were four alehouses, four beerhouses and one grocer's licence for a population of 624. It used to be a very good pub when the old omnibuses used to run to Cambridge but since the railways had been opened there was little or no traffic on the road to Burwell. The landlord, Samuel Marshman said the trade amounted to about three barrels a month but it also provided teas and luncheons. He did not want the licence to be extinguished.

05 02 14b # c.27.4

1905 02 15
Stretham breach of promise, p3 *
Lewis Bell actor, death, p3
Street organs, p3

1905 02 16
Public interest in growing in the development of the motor omnibus service. The most recent improvements in construction largely obviate noise and other inconveniences. The cars travel smoothly, pick their way through traffic with ease and are amenable to all the controls essential in crowded streets. Unlike the tramways it involves no expense of electric installation, no overhead wires or underground conduit and may thread its way among vehicles of all sorts without led or hindrance. Village travellers may shortly see the carriers' carts which have laboured up the hill roads for generations replaced by a swift locomotion which will make the remotest hamlet seem no more than a suburb of the market town 05 02 16 # c.26.46

1905 02 17
Omnibus invasion, p2 *
Street organ, p3

1905 02 18
passive resisters, Wyatt & Toft, p3 *

1905 02 20
Redfern publishes 'Royal * historic gloves & shoes', p3

1905 02 21
Passive resisters meet, p3
Telephone to France, p3

1905 02 23
Serious allegations have been made against the sanitary administration of Cambridge in a letter to 'The Times'. As that newspaper reaches but a small section of the burgesses it would normally have been reprinted in the columns of the C.D.N. We were, however, requested by the Town Clerk not to give publicity to the complaints until a reply had been given. But now we can print both. The manner involved a furnished apartment in which a child died from diphtheria. Finding the apartments to let 'The Times' journalist took them. She claimed it had not been disinfected and a survey showed very serious defects in the W.C. between the two bedrooms. 05 02 23 # c.21.1 # c.04

1905 02 23
A meeting of Chestertonians was held in furtherance of the scheme for constructing a bridge across the Cam at the Fort St George. The Council has accepted the necessity of a bridge and will spend £500 provided another £200 is raised by private subscription. It was not a large sum for such a district. Inhabitants should remember that once it was built they would save further expense on ferries. Several promises were made on the spot and various college boat clubs will be approached. 05 02 23a c.44.7

1905 02 25
It would appear as though the automobile is going to revolutionise transit in all departments and the next application is likely to be the railways. The Great Northern Railway Company have been allowing a motor manufacturing company to make experiments upon their lines with a petrol car as a conveyance over branch lines passing through sparsely-populated districts. It is being seriously considered whether the automobile carriage carrying a few passengers shall not supersede the ordinary locomotive-drawn train. The car with which experiments are being made ran into Cambridge from Hitchin. It is driven by two engines and lighted by electricity obtained from storage batteries. Some parts of the journey were covered at about 50 m.p.h. 05 02 25 # c.26.2 # c.26.48

1905 02 25
The Cambridge Amateur Dramatic Club completed its 50th year of existence with a dinner in the Guildhall. It has experienced financial embarrassment and its defaulting cashier; it has been served with writs; in its early days it suffered from something nearly akin to ostracism. A Royal patron and social and official recognition followed. The first performances were given in lodgings over a shop in Trinity Street, then moved to a room at the Hoop Hotel. In 1856 one of its members while escorting some ladies to a ball underwent the unpleasant experience of being served with a writ for £50 due to a carpenter 05 02 25a # c.76

1903 02 27
Public House Trust annual meeting, p4

1905 02 28
Local gas manufacturing, p3

March 1905 CDN

1905 03 02
Tindall photographer, p3

1905 03 03
The University threw open the Senate House to the four thousand and odd voters on the electoral roll to say ‘aye’ or ‘nay’ to the proposal that Greek shall in future be an optional subject in the curriculum of this ancient seat of learning. There is at present none of the wild excitement which characterised the rejection of the claim of women to University degrees in 1896, but there is at least equal interest for in half-an-hour about a hundred votes were registered. Masters of Arts from all parts of England have been summoned and poured into Cambridge by rail and road, the motor-car, as in political elections, bringing many electors to the poll. 05 03 03a # c.36.9

Swaffham charities scheme, p3 *
Passive resistance, p3

1905 03 04
Cambridge streets have not presented for many a long day such an animated appearance. Trams and cabs have been doing a roaring trade, foot passengers throng the narrow thoroughfares and motor cars dodge in an out of the traffic in a manner that is somewhat bewildering. All this is caused by the closing scenes of the Greek controversy. Dignified decorum is gradually giving way to infectious excitement. When the Prime Minister, Mr Balfour, arrived at the Senate House to record his vote he was given a rousing reception. Photographers snatched up their camera and raced across the grass to the voters’ entrance whilst University dons covered the ground in a manner reminiscent of the racing track. 05 03 04 # c.36.9

1905 03 04
A large crowd was attracted to the vicinity of the University Senate House by the unusual spectacle of clusters of electric lights suspended from its exterior walls and the sounds from within of intermittent loud cheering. Members of the University and a number of ladies clambered on to the window sills to watch the proceedings within as the vote reached its conclusion. One of our reporters, whose Greek had grown rusty, sought the assistance of a policeman to decipher an inscription. “Well, it means

'Alas for Greek', doesn't it" he replied promptly. But Greek was triumphant and is to remain a compulsory subject within the University. The end was heralded to those without by a burst of cheering 05 03 04 – 06 # c.36.9

1905 03 04
A practical joke of a particularly senseless character has just come to light. The incident recalls a similar hoax that was effected during the visit to England of the Shah of Persia years ago. The CDN became apprised of the visit but in view of the former hoax refrained from publishing any account and our suspicion was confirmed by a telegram from the Carlton Hotel saying 'No member of the Sultan of Zanzibar's suite was away from London'. The Mayor was very cautious and took care not to make any elaborate preparations for the reception of the visitors. 05 03 04 # c.36.9 # RAG

1905 03 06
Undergraduates started a bonfire on Parker's Piece with the aid of a wooden fence from the front of a house in Melbourne Place. One of the proctors who arrived on the scene before the appearance of the police became the object of the amusement of a large number of roughs, some of whom, after having smashed the hats of the 'bulldogs' began to hustle him. He escaped actual injury owing chiefly to the stalwart and vigorous defence of the 'bulldogs' assisted by one or two townsmen. The fire was extinguished by a bucket of water 05 03 06b # c.36.9

Greek, p3 *
Cottenham Lamb & Windmill pubs, p4

1905 03 07
Janet Mundy, the Bassingbourn district nurse appeared in court charged with riding a bicycle on the footpath. PC Frost said she told him 'What am I to do. I can't get about with the roads in such a state'. Next day he saw her again and he had received numerous complaints about her. The Rev Clarkson said she was a district nurse and had to ride a great deal. Sometimes the roads offered a choice of riding over unbroken stones or deep ruts so she simply took to the path. If she were acting in a private capacity it would be different. She was fined 2s.6d and the Chairman said that if the offence were repeated the full penalty would be inflicted. 05 03 07 # c.21.3

1905 03 07
Swaffham Bulbeck electors considered a new draft scheme for regulating the Poor's Charity. One clause that caused such a stir related to £25 to be applied for educational purposes and administered by a separate foundation. If carried out the charity would be taken out of the hands of the original trustees and given to the foundation managers. If they gave them any power they would not know where it would finish. After considerable discussion the meeting rejected the proposals. 05 03 07 e-f # c.32.9

Hoax, p3
Passive resisters, Melbourn & Haverhill, p4

1905 03 10
A company is being formed to provide a service of motor 'buses for Cambridge. Eight 'buses will be put down at first by which it is hoped to run a 15 minutes' service from Chesterton, another from the Huntingdon Road district to the centre of town and a seven minutes' service to the railway station. Should the venture prove successful the more outlying districts such as Newnham Croft and Cherry Hinton will be catered for 05 03 10 # c.26.46

Linton vicar, Rutter, p3

1905 03 11
The Hon C.S. Rolls lectured on 'The History of the Motor Car' to the University Engineering Society.

He had owned the first motor car ever seen in Cambridge and frequently got into trouble through getting back late at night after a breakdown, but he squared numerous Dons by taken them out in the car. Many of these runs ended in pushing the car home with the assistance of his venerable passengers. He described some exciting experiences including a collision with a tree at 70 miles an hour, being run away with downhill, being stuck in the flood, dug out of a bog, having a wheel come off and on one occasion getting run over by his own car. What the public really want was a simple reliable car that could be purchased at a popular price. Low priced motor cars of good quality could only be produced by proper factory organisation and manufacturing in large numbers with standardized parts and automatic machinery. When the motor came within reach of the less-moneyed classes people would be able to live in the country in healthy and picturesque places unapproachable by rail or tramway, instead of clustering as they now do around railway stations or tram car routes. Properly designed motor van would double the range for delivery of a tradesman's goods. It could run all day and night and would cost nothing when not in use. Motorised lorries been further developed and had a big future before them. They would act as feeders to the railways and farmers would be put in touch with towns and markets at present quite out of their reach. Motor cars would greatly improves the condition of the streets and of traffic generally.The horse would never become extinct but much of the work of drudgery was now relegated to the horse which could be far better done by mechanical power and with consequent definition of suffering. 05 03 11a-c

1905 03 11
There was no little stir in Toft; it seemed as if the whole village had turned out to be present at the sale of Passive Resisters' goods, seized for the educational portion of the Poor Rate. The auctioneer stood on the little hillock of the Green and offered the first lot, a silver teapot the property of Mr J. Worboys. He followed with a watch belonging to Mr D.Creek, and a gold chain and watch from Mr A & B.Tebbit. A gun, the property of Mr P. Roggs caused some merriment and was sold for 12s.6d. Afterwards the company went to the Primitive Methodist Chapel for a meeting about the injustice of the Act forced upon them by the Conservative Party 05 03 11cc # PASSIVE RESISTERS

National Trust meeting, p3
Zanzibar, p4 *

1905 03 13
Cambridge magistrates were told there were about 440 houses on the Rock Estate with one full-licensed house, the Rock Hotel and one off-licence. Either of these sent out beer to houses as ordered. There are also at least four brewers' vans to deliver beer in gallon jars and bottles, and grocers from Cambridge send up pint bottles. If they granted a new licence to William Conder of Marshall Road, which was a new and fairly populous district, it would lead to secret drinking, more especially by women at their homes. The licence was refused. 05 03 13a-c # c.27.4

Cambridge brewers, p3

1905 03 15
Stretham defaulter, p3 *

1905 03 17
A CDN reporter had occasion to send a telegraph message from the Swaffham Prior post office to this paper; he then began to return to Cambridge by cycle. After a leisurely ride he found had beaten the wire. This was an annoyance, bearing in mind the reputed speed of electricity. It appears the message had first to be despatched to Ely where it had to wait before being transmitted to London, from which it was retransmitted to Cambridge. It arrived one-and-a-half hours after being sent! 05 03 17 # c.27.7

1905 03 17
Two Ely Passive Resisters should have appeared before magistrates for non-payment of their education rate. Summonses had been served on each – Mr A.E. Cragg intends to have his framed – but then both received a curt note to say the money had been paid and the proceedings stopped. They were indignant and now must wait until the rate becomes due again. So far no Passive Resister has graced the Ely court for on four occasions the money has been paid anonymously 05 03 17a # PASSIVE RESISTERS

1905 03 17
Saffron Walden Co-operative Society opened new premises in High Street; the front of premises formerly occupied by J.R. Long were pulled down and a shop with show-room over constructed on modern principles. The rear of the building has been repaired and a hall for the Society's meetings constructed. The ceremony was followed by tea for about 375 people at the Town Hall. The Society had faced opposition when it first started in Walden and there was much competition and keen cutting of prices. 05 03 17b

1905 03 21
A public meeting under the auspices of the Cottenham Total Abstinence Society was held at the Boys' School, giving them the opportunity of firing another shot at the great enemy of strong drink and the drinking customs of the country. They had a tremendous foe to fight and must bring out all the weapons they possibly could. The new Licensing Act had been a set-back but it was not a defeat. Even the Government was beginning to recognise the value of temperance by voting money for the teaching of total abstinence in the ranks of the British Army 05 03 21 # c.27.4

1905 03 22
Albert Clark told the court that in November a political meeting was held at Great Eversden and afterwards he went to the Hoops public house. A man in front of him clapped his hands and called out 'Good old Tory' at which the landlord's dog flew at him and bit his thigh. He was laid up for 17 days. Harry Wick the postman and Edward Hagger a farmer said the dog had flown at other people but without biting them. The landlord said the spaniel was a very kind dog. A doctor had examined Clark and found a scratch mark across the thigh made by a dog's tooth, but it was not a bite. He was awarded two guineas 05 03 22

1905 03 22
The story of a feud between two Waterbeach farmers was unfolded in the County Court. On Christmas Eve William Morton got out of a train at the station and went to the Lion Inn where his horse was put up. He remained until closing time and then rode home but somebody followed behind his cart; he used strong language and asked what he meant by hunting him home. They came to blows and he knocked two of his opponent's teeth out. He was known as 'The King of the Fens' until he was knocked over. 05 03 22 a & b

1905 03 23
Waterbeach farmer feud, p4 *

1905 03 24
The begging fraternity appear to regard Chesterton as a Happy Hunting Ground. On the new estates, the De Freville and the Central the evil is particularly rampant and when the male members of the households are mostly away at business the weaker sex are particularly intimidated into relieving the able-bodied tramps who frequently threaten violence unless they receive assistance. One actually walked right into the kitchen and demanded money or food. The police have made an attempt to suppress this nuisance but when the principal penalty inflected by magistrates is to discharge the beggar on his promising to leave town the evil quickly becomes as bad as ever. 05 03 24a # c.32.9

1905 03 24
Alderman Hurrell called attention to the decision of the Education Committee to close Stapleford Council School and accommodate the scholars at Shelford. As this was a mile and a quarter distant the children would have to walk five miles a day or take their dinners with them. It was not all sunshine in the winter months when children aged from three to five would have to get up at 7.30 and tramp away through slush and snow. But there were 98 schools in the county with an average attendance of less than 100 and if every little school was to be kept alive it would mean high rates 05 03 24c-d # c.36.6

1905 03 24
A sad discovery was made at Ely of a tailor, found dead on the Cutter Railway Bridge. His head was in the four-foot way, severed from the body, which was on the other side of the line, and his hat and collar were on the buttress of the bridge. He was last seen at 10.40 pm when he was going in the direction of the Great Eastern Railway gates, near the station 05 03 24b # c.26.2

1905 03 25
Those motherly ladies, the motherly nurses of our land – 'Sarah Gamps' as they have been designated – have rendered great service in assisting into the world the offspring of poor parents who cannot afford to pay for a doctor. But under the Midwives Act all such women must be qualified by training. However those who have carried out the trade are not swept away by one stoke of the pen. In many instances the village clergyman or doctor has paid the ten-shilling registration fee to allow the ladies to continue. 05 03 25 # c.21.3

1905 03 28
Considerable indignation is being felt by Chesterton ratepayers at measures adopted by the parish to ensure the payment of the rates. Some people are being summoned while others are not. In view of the allegations made against the overseers the law should be stated: summonses can be issued seven days after a rate has been made and the fact published on the church doors. But the usual practice is to send a second notice to the ratepayers who have not complied 05 03 28a-b # c.32.6

1905 03 31
Bottisham fre, p3 *

April 1905 CDN

1905 04 01
Corporation property fire, p3 *

1905 04 04
Bertram Palmer, a Meldreth fruit grower, has been sentenced to seven days imprisonment for refusing to pay his education rate on conscientious grounds. He was one of eight Passive Resisters who were convicted but would not allow his goods to be seized and removed them from the reach of the police. The magistrates passed judgement but then left the court without signing the warrant. We understand it is the intention of the Cambridge Passive Resisters to entertain him to a breakfast on his release from prison 05 04 04

1905 04 08
The warrant against Mr Palmer, the Meldreth Passive Resister, was quietly executed and to avoid publicity the police conveyed their prisoner direct to Cambridge by cab. The journey was not without incident however; the bolt came out of one of the shafts and the horse ran away. Some Melbourn sympathisers managed to communicate with Cambridge Resisters and a number were waiting outside the gaol to give Mr Palmer a word of welcome when he arrived. 05 04 08b

1905 04 08
The Cambridge Motor Omnibus Company has been formed. It is nowadays essential for the business of the town to have a convenient and quick means of transit and the omnibuses will be appreciated by the public and become a source of income to the shareholders. With eight vehicles it will be quite easy to maintain a 15-minute service from Chesterton and the Huntingdon Road to the centre of town and a seven-minute service to the railway station. Should these prove successful it will be extended to outlying districts such as Newnham Croft and Cherry Hinton. There is little doubt that horse traction for omnibuses and tramcars will shortly be superseded by petrol and electricity. 05 04 08a # c.26.46

1905 04 08
Magistrates refused to renew the licence of the George and Dragon public house at Soham. There were 14 fully-licensed public houses, 18 on beer-houses, two off beer-houses and one grocer's licence for a population of 4,230 people – Soham must be a thirsty place, they commented. In the High Street there were eight pubs within 400 yards. The former landlord had allowed gambling for spirits on the premises and proved the dice and dice-box, but he had already been punished and it was not a disorderly house. 05 04 08 # c.27.4

1905 04 08
The alleged appearance of an apparition at Corpus College is recorded in 'The Occult Review'. It describes attempts to exorcise the spirit who says he is Thomas Harding and killed himself in the rooms in 1707. It is a known fact that a former Master, Dr Butts, hanged himself in these rooms but of Harding nothing has yet been found. There are mice in the rooms but it would be difficult for any noise they make to be mistaken for footsteps, nor could they shake a wash-stand to and fro. 05 04 08f-j # c.39

1905 04 10
A meek-looking man of middle age appeared in Cambridge court for damaging a plate-glass window. He had then sought out a policeman and confessed, saying he could not get any money and would rather go to gaol than the workhouse. He had a long list of convictions for malicious damage and did no work when out of gaol. He played the flute about the streets and also made use of a galvanic battery. There was a need for some sort of labour colony to deal with such people. He was sentenced to five months with hard labour 05 04 10a & b

1905 04 10
A keen struggle is to be witnessed in Cambridge for the privilege of conveying people by means of that modern convenience, the motor omnibus. On Saturday the prospectus of the Cambridge Motor Omnibus Company made its appearance and today we carry one for another company, the Cambridge University and Town Motor Omnibus Company. They hope to have their first bus on the streets soon. Owing to the boom in buses there is difficulty in securing these vehicles but they have five chassis (the working parts) and the coach work is being pushed forward as quickly as possible 05 04 10c # c.26.46

1905 04 11
Sir – in June 1902 I purchased a house situate on Mill Road, Cambridge having a side street with roads and paths made. To my surprise I received a letter from the council saying that the previous owner had agreed to pay the costs of road making by instalments but had not done so and that I have to pay the debt and the interest for twelve months before I had the house. There must be some neglect somewhere. I have the honour of being an Honorary Freeman of the Borough and it seems that I am paying very dear for it. – Arthur Livermore. 05 04 11

Man in the moon, p3

1905 04 12
Stretham breach of promise, p3*

1905 04 14
Mr Palmer, the Melbourn Passive Resister who determined to suffer imprisonment rather than pay the education portion of the poor rate has emerged from Cambridge gaol after seven days. As a teetotaller and non-smoker prison discipline brought few privations but the food was painfully plain, all the bread was brown and there was a bran suet pudding. He was set to work mending mailbags. He had no complaint about his treatment by the warders but says the governor went out of his way to be offensive 05 04 14a-c # c.34.7 # PASSIVE RESISTERS

1905 04 14
The battle of the 'buses in Cambridge commences in real earnest. The 'bus armies are known as the Motor Omnibus Company Ltd and the Cambridge University and Town Motor Omnibus Company Ltd and will battle on practically even terms. They are of different manufacture, the first by Thorneycroft will accommodate 32 passengers, 14 inside and 18 out. Its body is dark blue with yellow decoration. The other is the Straker-Squire type, painted Cambridge blue. Both are driven by petrol, have non-slipping tyres and upholstered with spring cushions inside and seats like light garden chairs outside. 05 04 14d&e # c.26.46

1905 04 15
The rival Cambridge buses ran trial trips round the town to demonstrate the suitability of this form of traction and both were eminently successful. The Thorneycroft's hill-climbing capacities were tested on Castle Hill and seemed to present no difficulties except a decrease in speed; the Straker-Squire passed with the greatest ease. Both naturally created somewhat of a sensation in the streets and the way they threaded their way in and out of the busy traffic excited much admiration. They were under perfect control and could pass through traffic where a horsed vehicle would have to wait its turn. 05 04 15 # c.26.46

1905 04 15
Both Cambridge buses started to ply for hire and the novelty induced people to make trips. Had several more 'buses been running they would have been crowded. The scene on Market Hill was unprecedented. Apart from those who lined one pavement in the hope of obtaining a seat it was alive with folk who were content with watching. As soon as a vehicle drew up a crowd swarmed around the steps, clutching the handrail and endeavouring to get a foothold on the step. Each time there were many left waiting on the pavement disappointed and most waited until it returned. 05 04 15 & a # c.26.46

1905 04 17
The new Cambridge buses have experienced their first small accident. The 'Light Blue' was slowing down in St Andrew's Street and drew up close to the kerb in order to take in a passenger. The incline of the road naturally caused a slight tilt of the bus and as the cradles of the street lamps project over the road the two met with the result that the top of the lamp was bent and a pane of glass smashed.05 04 17a # c.26.46

1905 04 17
The arrival of the motor buses does not appear to be disturbing the Cambridge Tramway Company who are about to introduce a better service on the Post Office – Station Road route by constructing an extra loop line. So many made bus rides 'for the fun of the thing' that the trams gave many on business bent their only opportunity for quicker transit to and from the station. The conditions will change when 'abnormal' passengers on the buses have been reduced and those whose object is facility in travelling and not amusement will have unrestricted access to the automobiles. 05 04 17a # c.26.46 # c.26.44

Swaffham Bulbeck charity scheme abandoned, p3

1905 04 18
Bertram Palmer, the Melbourn Passive Resister said the County Gaol seemed to be the busiest place in Cambridge. It was like a beehive. There were a number of cells and a busy bee in each one. The warder gave him a number of mail bags to patch and said he expected to see them done by the next day. He had to keep things clean in his cell. He was given a bucket, a scrubbing brush, a piece of stone and a piece of cloth. It was not at all amusing being in gaol but he had been the 150th Passive

Resister to go there and he would go again if he thought it would aid the cause. 05 04 18-c # c.34.7 # PASSIVE

1905 04 19
Waterbeach passive resisters – 05 04 19

1905 04 20
Cambridge Medical Officer reported on the recent scarlet fever epidemic which affected undergraduates at one college. The only common link was the milk supply. He discovered that the dairy had obtained a supplementary supply from fifteen different sources. One of these had a milker who had visited relatives at a village where scarlet fever had been present and had suffered from a sore throat. But there was no definite proof he had suffered from the disease. The dairy had stopped distributing any milk other than that of its own cows and no further cases have occurred. 05 04 20 a-c # c.21.1 # MILK

1905 04 20
Cambridge Street Tramways Company have determined to improve their service by constructing an extra passing loop in St Andrew's Street opposite Emmanuel College to enable them to double the number of trams on that route. But no cart would be able to pass if two trams were standing together and there was already a great deal of traffic at the dangerous corner with Downing Street. There was talk of some 20 motor 'buses and if so it was unlikely whether any other traffic would venture in the streets at all 05 04 20c # c.26.44

Willingham resisters sale, p3 *

1905 04 22
Not a week ago motor 'buses commenced running in Cambridge and already there is a smart skit upon the horse trams on sale in the form of a picture postcard. The artist has used his talent to depict a tram, a woe-begone vehicle, harnessed to an antique horse which is fit only for the knacker's yard. There is one solitary passenger. With humorous impertinence he has dubbed it "A bit of old Cambridge" 05 04 22d # KEENE

1905 04 22
Despite Good Friday's gradual change to a roystering holiday it is still a day consecrated to public religious observance & the putting aside of all business cares. The churches were all well attended. One of the features in Cambridge is the way in which a crowd indulges in skipping upon Parker's Piece and the congregation of young people there is reminiscent of the survival of a pagan spring festival. When the skipping was at its height a young woman, who had become over-excited with the exercise, unfortunately had a fit. 05 04 22

1905 04 22
Willingham is one vast flower-garden, and as the flowers are nearly all of the purest white, they present the appearance of heaps of fallen snow. There are hundreds of acres of plum trees in splendid bloom, a sight worth going miles to see. Apples and pears are also giving signs of an abundance of bloom 05 04 22d

Isolation hospital, p3 *
Mason photographer, p3 *

1905 04 25
A valued correspondent asks whether the Cambridge Town Council are going to take any action in regard to the recently-constructed drinking place for cattle on Midsummer Common. "In view of the recent scarlet fever epidemic which was directly traced to infected milk their apathy is remarkable. Unless something is done the cattle from which the milk supply of Cambridge is principally derived will shortly be feeding on sewage" An iron trough should be inserted in the existing waterway so that the water the cattle are drinking would escape the sewage which currently mingles with it. 05 04 25 # c.21.1

1905 04 26
Wood Ditton ducks, p4

1905 04 28
Mr James Runciman, son the veterinary surgeon of Ely, met with a serious accident while driving his trap along the Mildenhall Road towards Littleport. His horse shied on meeting a motor and plunged head first into a deep ditch, breaking its neck. Mr Runciman was thrown after it and the trap overturned on top of him. He managed to extricate himself and was taken to the house of Mr Glover, a farmer, where he was treated with the greatest kindness. The motorists pulled up about 30 yards beyond the accident. 05 04 28a

1905 04 28
Newmarket heath highway robbery 300 years ago - 05 04 28b # c.34.6

1905 04 29
Northumberland women lead healthy open-air lives and compare very favourably, both in morality and physique, with the factory hands. Without them it would not be possible to carry on agricultural labour because the rural exodus has diminished the available supply of men. Their pay is 1s.8d a day and 3s. a day for twenty days at harvest. This enables them to live in very great comfort as compared with the farm servants in the Eastern Counties where there are many men with families to keep who do not earn high wages 05 04 29a

1905 04 29
The picture post card artist has turned his attention to the motor 'bus service with an amusing sketch of one of Cambridge's up-to-date vehicles. The 'bus is plunging along at a terrific rate, much to the alarm of a female passenger, who, evidently to the driver's satisfaction, has thrown her arms around his neck to ensure her safety. Simultaneously the 'bus has struck a lamppost and run over a dog, so it will be seen that the artists has not had to rely entirely upon his imagination for the incidents of the sketch 05 04 29b & c # KEENE

May 1905 CDN

1905 05 01
John Pink, the veteran Cambridge Librarian says that a man ceases to read books after attaining the age of 40. Library statistics show that older men do not borrow books but read more periodicals. The newspaper of today is a very different thing to what it was 40 years ago; around the newspapers in the reading room were many men, some eagerly peeping over each other's shoulders and several reading monthly magazines.

1905 05 02
The University and the New Theatre have joined hands to warn undergraduates that ungentlemanly behaviour will not be tolerated. A warning was placed in every programme and supplemented by a speech between the acts by J.W. Clark, registrary of the University and Chairman of the Theatre Company. His words were received with respect by the audience, already in high spirits by a splendid production of the 'Mikado'. He was loudly cheered as he walked on to the stage and at the conclusion he was accorded quite an ovation. 05 05 02a # c.76

1905 05 02
An outbreak of fire occurred at the premises of Messrs Hallack and Bond, wholesale grocers, Petty Cury, Cambridge. About 11.18 pm smoke and flames were discovered issuing from a store room. The alarm was at once given and the horsed fire escape, tender and hose cart were soon on the scene. With the aid of one hydrant, the inmates of the building and the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the outbreak just in time to prevent a serious conflagration 05 05 02b # c.27.2

1905 05 05
Fifty years ago Messrs Richard and Holttum the well-known drapers and grocers started their business at Linton. They celebrated with a tea to old inhabitants of the village; 135 assembled in the British School where a substantial meal was provided. Subsequently an excellent programme of songs and recitals was presented. The event was crowned with complete success and will be remembered by those who took part for the remainder of their lives as one of the happiest and most enjoyable. 05 05 05

Lady cyclists photo, p3

1905 05 06
Owing to the enormous demand for the current issue of the 'Cambridgeshire Weekly News', the entire edition was sold out on the day of issue, and we regret that we are not able to supply the numerous orders that continue to arrive. To avoid disappointment in future, place a definite order with your newsagent. The 'Weekly News' is the best local weekly paper: sale exceeds 10,000 copies 05 05 06a # c.04

1905 05 06
John Philip Sousa with his famous band performed at Cambridge Guildhall but they are capable of filling a much larger building with a wonderful volume of sound. The programme included selections from the works of Wagner and Puccini. Encore followed each item and in response some of Sousa's celebrated military marches were given with great effect 05 05 06b # c.69

1905 05 08
Varsity volunteers, p3
Missing councillor, p3

1905 05 09
A grocer and baker from Saxon Street, Wood Ditton, told the bankruptcy court that he took over the business from his mother as a going concern in 1902. He afterwards discovered that whilst the stock-in-trade, utensils and fixtures were worth only £30 the liabilities amounted to nearly £200. He obviously had been insolvent from the time he commenced business. Now heavy accounts were becoming due which he could not meet, so he filed for bankruptcy 05 05 09

Wilbraham pub, p3

1905 05 11
Cambridge is likely to know a great deal more about vegetarianism following meetings of the Vegetarian Society. Their President, the venerable Professor of Latin, Rev. J.E.B. Mayor has reached his 80th birthday and is still active and vigorous. Few could more appropriately be president of a society advocating an unpopular dietetic regime. A cookery demonstration in the Guildhall did its best to extol the merits of sausages made of breadcrumbs, rice and tomatoes over the more traditional 'Cambridge' variety. 05 05 11b

1905 05 11
Mrs Bunsnell of Skillington, Lincs., is looked upon as a village prize. As I entered her little thatched home I found her reading without spectacles. After giving me a real old-fashioned welcome she said: "If I'm spared I shall be 101 tomorrow but I'm as nimble as ever. I remember the Battle of Waterloo; two of my uncles fell in it and out village clergyman was taken prisoner by the French. I've always worked hard and lived chiefly on potatoes and black, or barley, bread. In recent years I've had back pains but now I take Dean's Kidney Pills and they've quite cured me. I can recommend them truly. They can be bought in boxes from all Chemists and Stores. 05 05 11b

1905 05 13
Residents in Soham have to 'fetch a pail of water' from the public pump when they need it. But Mrs Brown of Bushel Lane complained: "It was a great trial to me. My back was so weak that carrying the pails would send pains through it of an excruciating character. It was when my first girl was born that I became so very ill. She was a very weakly baby and fretted continually. I became so knocked-up that I had to have someone in to do my housework. One night my husband returned to find me in a pitiable plight. Then I decided to take Dr William's Pink Pills and I have not been ill since". 05 05 13

Motorists, p3
Costumier, p3

1905 05 16
A Cambridge lady has patented a coffin to minimise the possibility of premature burial. It contains an electric bell, the button of which is fixed near the hand of the occupant with the bell on the top of the grave. There is also a glass plate in the lid together with a hammer to allow the person to break out, though it is hardly conceivable that anyone would have sufficient strength to scramble to the surface 05 05 16a. # c.21.2

1905 05 16
An attempt has been made to remedy the serious defect of the new cattle drinking places on Midsummer Common. A concrete wall has been built to prevent the sewage flowing into the water. Unfortunately it also stops the majority of the cattle from drinking at all and so the stockmen have to drive them some distance to another site which rapidly gets into an indescribably filthy condition. The cattle are in fact consuming their own sewage 05 05 16b # c.32.3

1905 05 16
Ely now has a thoroughly up-to-date, well equipped girls' secondary school as Bedford House has opened to scholars. It includes a large room used for recreation during wet weather, the old kitchen is now fitted up for the teaching of cookery and the stables converted into a preparatory school. No stranger going over the building would have imagined the use to which it was once put 05 05 16c # c.36.6

1905 05 16
Newmarket Rural District Council discussed the tolls payable at the toll-gate on the Ness Road between Burwell and Fordham. They were a great inconvenience to travellers & the Crown Receivers would accept £600 for the purchase of the tolls, making the road free. Mr Ambrose has promised £100 and if the County Council would contribute £250 they should find the remainder. 05 05 16d # c.44.65

1905 05 19
Newmarket fire, p4

1905 05 20
The King was involved in an exciting scene at the conclusion of racing at Newmarket. Within a few minutes of the finish of the last race a steady stream of traffic poured from the Heath townwards, and in the dozens of vehicles of all sorts and description was the royal equipage. The vagaries of a motor car caused a sudden halt and although the driver of the King's carriage pulled up promptly the horse pulling one behind struck the King a sharp blow in the back with its head. His Majesty, though naturally startled and shaken was not at all injured. 05 05 20a # c.02

1905 05 20
It is doubtful if any town the size of Cambridge has as many motors and motor-cycles running about the streets as are to be seen in term time. All day long the 'pouf-pouf' of panting engines is to be heard in our streets and we are becoming quite accustomed to having an undergraduate motorist fly by within a foot on one's elbows. Some are expert drivers, some are not, but there is no class determined to get more pace out of his machine. Numerous small accidents occur; within a week a couple of motor-cyclists smashed into a couple of cows. 05 05 20b # c.26.48

Tinkers, p3

1905 05 23
The memorial to the men of Cambridge who fell in the South African War has been completed. It takes the form of a brass tablet designed by Mr W.W. Fawcett affixed to the wall of Great St Mary's church. It is surrounded by stone moulding surmounted by the badge of the Suffolk Regiment but commemorates all local men who died in the war. 05 05 23 # c.45

1905 05 24
The new St Ives Wesleyan Chapel replaces one which has served for nearly 90 years. New school premises were opened last September and have been used during the building of the new church. It occupies a larger area and is of a beautiful and commodious design. Mr F. Sidney Webber of London was the architect and F. Giddings of St Ives the builder. The door was unlocked by Mrs Gawthrop using a silver key. 05 05 24 # c.82.06

1905 05 26
Chesterton residents will be glad to see the inauguration of a new motor 'bus service by the 'Light Blue' company. Special arrangements have been made for the convenience of residents intending to travel to London by the early morning train. The 'bus will leave Old Chesterton Green at 8.25 and run through to the station in time for the 8.53 train. It will also run as frequently as possible between one and two-thirty for the convenience of residents employed in Cambridge who go to the suburbs for their midday meal 05 05 26 # c.26.46

1905 05 27
Herts motor trap, p3

June 1905 CDN

1905 06 01
Aldreth Causeway was clearly shown on ancient maps as a highway; if so it was a highway for every purpose and for all time. Whether it was repairable by the Bishop of Ely or anybody else the fact remained that for 200 years no definite persons had been made responsible for the repair of the highway and so it was repairable by the highway authority – the Rural District Council. 05 06 01 # c.44.65

Australian cricket, p3

1905 06 02
The Macedonian gypsies ago have reappeared at Ely and are causing a great deal of trouble. A party encamped at the Half Way House on the Cambridge Road; Ely police escorted them through Stuntney and into Cambridgeshire. But next morning Cambs. Constabulary moved them back into the Isle of Ely. Only the future can show for how long the game of battledore and shuttlecock with the Cambs and the Isle of Ely police as battledores and the gypsies as shuttlecock will continue. 05 06 02 # GYPSIES

1905 06 03
The revival of the use of the crinoline has long been heralded with ladies misguided enough to appear arrayed in the hideous appliance. With a feeling of dismay I report that it has now made an appearance in Cambridge. It cannot be said it was of the abnormal type that helped make women ridiculous in the sixties but it resembled them entirely in form. The wearer was a lady well known locally for the prominent part she takes in local political affairs.05 06 03 # WOMEN

1905 06 08
Johnson & Nephew postcards, p3
Stephenson library, p4

1905 06 09
Some 500 working men have been spending a very pleasant month under canvas just outside Colchester. They have been comfortably housed in spacious bell tents, fed on the best of food and entertained between meals by military exercises, shooting competitions and the like. Nor has the holiday been an expensive one. On the contrary each man has received a shilling a day pocket money. In other words the 4th Battalion (Cambs) Suffolk Regiment have been enjoying their annual training. 05 06 09 # c.45

Boer memorial, p3

1905 06 10
An extraordinary incident occurred at the May Races. The stroke of the Downing boat was experimenting at the Laboratory in the morning when he was the victim of an unfortunate accident which greatly affected his eyes. To requisition another stroke would be impossible so with indomitable pluck he decided to row. This he actually did, but was blindfolded. Sadly his energies were of no avail and his boat was bumped by Trinity Hall. 05 06 10 # c.38 : rowing

1905 06 12
The sinister hand of Death has cast its shadow over Cambridge in its most joyous mood. In the very midst of the May Week holiday three people were drowned through the capsizing of the ferryboat known as the Red Grind at Fen Ditton. Two journeys had been made after the racing, the ferry crowded each time and when the boat was ready for the third about 20 people commenced the fateful voyage. Two University men jumped on at the last moment, the ferry gave a lurch and turned turtle pitching the screaming occupants into six feet of water 05 06 12 # c.38 : rowing # c.44.7

1905 06 12
Words cannot describe the scene at Fen Ditton when the ferry sank. People in the grounds of the Plough rushed to the bank, one or two men plunged into the water, others seized chairs and hurled them towards the struggling mass in the river. Pleasure boats hurried and scurried in answer to frantic appeals for help and the Ditton men shoved off in their black fishing boats. Off the twenty or so who went down with the ferry all but three were saved. 05 06 12a-c

1905 06 12
Miss Violet Handscombe was engaged to Mr Thomas Day and together they enjoyed a visit to the May races. From the Plough pleasure gardens they stepped aboard the ill-fated Red Grind ferry. When it sank Mr Day became separated from his intended bride and managed to reach the bank unassisted. Eagerly he looked for his betrothed but she had become entangled with the rail when the ferry capsized; he plunged into the river again and brought her to dry land but she had been so long under water that life was extinct. 05 06 12

1905 06 12
Miss Minnie Murkin is the central figure of the Fen Ditton ferry sinking. Today she was to have been a happy bride but now her body will be borne to the tomb. At her home in Selwyn Terrace the last few days have witnessed all the preliminary events that precede the wedding; presents have been arriving and her finance came from Swansea. He was on the bank, witnessed the upsetting of the boat and endured the agony of seeing his prospective bride dragged beneath the surface by the sinking craft. 05 06 12a-c

War memorial, p3

1905 06 13
The memorial to the Cambridge men who died during the South African War was unveiled at Great St Mary's Church. It is not inside the church but looks out upon the Market Place, seeming to say that in the midst of life we were in death. A guard of honour consisting of a hundred men of the Cambridge Town Volunteers together with a detachment of the Suffolk Militia, a dismounted body of Hussars, Cambridge University Rifle Volunteers and the band of the Scots Grays joined old soldiers who had seen service in South Africa to witness the proceedings 05 06 13c # c.45

1905 06 13
The inquests on the three victims of the ferry sinking was opened in Fen Ditton schoolroom. The jury proceeded to the melancholy task of viewing the bodies. Those of Mrs Annie Thompson and Miss Minnie Murkin were laid side by side in a darkened room at the Plough, attired in white as for burial, and awaiting outside were the coffins. They then proceeded to a house in which Miss Handscombe was already laid in her coffin. Next they viewed the boat which had been raised from the river. 05 06 13a

1905 06 14
Duchess' jewellery, p3

1905 06 14
Almost before Cambridge has had time to recover from the shock of the Fen Ditton ferry tragedy another sad fatality has occurred. A conductor employed by the Cambridge Motor Omnibus Company was on the front of the vehicle talking to the driver when another bus passed. He leant out to shout something to it, hanging on to the handrail when his head struck a lamppost. He was thrown underneath the 'bus and one of the hind wheels crashed over his head, which was battered out of recognition. 05 06 15a # c.26.46

1905 06 15
The whole of the Duchess of Westminster's missing jewellery has been discovered in Cambridge including a very valuable pearl necklace and twenty diamond brooches. Police arrested a Cambridge man formerly employed as a night watchman at Grosvenor House; they then went to a house in Priory Road and to a field up Newmarket Road where the jewellery was found. 05 06 15a # c.34.6

Bus accident, p3 *
Ferry funerals, p4 *

1905 06 16
Sir – whilst regretting the shocking death of the bus conductor it must be said that the Cambridge University and Town Motor Omnibus Company (the 'Light Blue') have carried 68,000 passengers in the last two months without a single accident having been reported to me – James Hammond, Manager. 05 06 16 # c.26.46

Ferry funeral, p3 *
Bus inquest, p3 *

1905 06 17
The unveiling of the South African war memorial was marred by two small incidents. The Mayor of Cambridge was without his trusty mace-bearers - apparently the maces were securely locked up and the individual who holds the keys was not to be found. Then police failed to recognise the military veterans and refused them admittance to the ceremony to which they had been invited. There was a considerable amount of confusion until the constables were enlightened as to the nature of the guests and allowed them to pass. 05 06 17 # c.45

Bus inquest, p3 *
Duchess's gems, p3
Weekly News rates, p3
Ferry c…s stolen, p4 *

1905 06 19
A sensational report in the London papers that 'the body a woman upon whose body a variety of curious tattoo designs was found was discovered in the river at Cambridge' actually refers to a tragedy at Chatteris a fortnight ago. Two women of the tramp class were pulled from the river. One had tattoos of the crucifixion on her chest, a soldier, sailor and flags on her right arm and a fully-rigged ship, English and American flags, the letter M and a woman in tights on her left. Her left leg had a representation of a Highlander playing bagpipes 05 06 19a # c.39

Bus funeral, p3 *

1905 06 20
Leys school Moulton chapel, p3
Ferry inquest, p4 *

1905 06 22
In the more ancient parts of Cambridge colleges several students used to occupy one large room wherein they lived and slept; they had as private studies small partitioned-off spaces in the corner of the room, each having a window. These still exist but as students no longer live in groups they are now used for sleeping and dining. It is unfair to criticise them as if they had been originally designed as sleeping apartments. 05 06 22 # c.44.5

1905 06 27
Sir – is it not about time that the annual Bacchanalian orgy known as Midsummer Fair was abolished? On Saturday night men, women and even children intoxicated by drink were behaving like maniacs. There were 14 tents for the supply of intoxicating liquors whilst behaviour in the dancing tents is indescribable. In one booth I saw two tiny mites whose mothers had given them too much to drink, for they were quite intoxicated and outside another I saw five perambulators standing unattended – A.J.L.B. 05 06 27a & b # c.27.3

1905 06 27
Sir – may I protest against the needless pandemonium Chesterton residents are forced to endure during the Midsummer Fair by the hideous orchestrations attached to shows and merry-go-rounds, grinding out harsh and discordant sounds which make day and night a time of torture. No sane people can find pleasure in the ear-splitting metallic sounds emanating from these machines. Such a noise, coupled with the hooting of horns and the screeching of steam whistles render rest an impossibility – Nerves 05 06 27e # c.27.3

1905 06 27
Sir – every year our Midsummer Fair is visited by a number of itinerant merchants selling pots, pans, linoleum, furs, drapery and various oddments. They pay little rent and no rates and taxes and yet they take away hundreds of pounds which ought to be spent in local shops. In many cases people actually pay more for the goods at these mock auctions than they would in a proper shop – Tradesman 05 06 27c # c.27.3

1905 06 28
The sale of the contents of Brooklands, the residence of the late E.B. Nunn at Royston, featured a collection of objects that were formerly exhibited in the Royston museum. They included a fine funereal urn found in excavations on the Heath in 1854 which was sold to Baron von Hugel. A Roman brick bearing figures of soldiers, found in a garden at Kneesworth, fetched 20s, a large spearhead made over £4 while old muzzle-loading guns fetched only a shilling each. A collection of 70 17th-century tradesmen's tokens were sold for £7 05 06 28 # c.41

Westminster gems, p3

1905 06 29
Westminster gems trial, p3
St Pauls organ renovated, p3

1905 06 30
A four-wheel baker's van was found in Mr Duke's meadow at Littlebury. It had a covering reading 'Pure Yeast Company, London' and contained a set of harness, a pair of reins, two baker's baskets and five loaves of bread. The Metropolitan police ascertained that it had been stolen on 22nd June and gave a description of the horse which was found in a field near Sawston in a weak condition. The thief has not been traced 05 06 30

July 1905 CDN

1905 07 01
The 'Light Blue' bus was chartered to take 20 King's College men to Hunstanton and back. The driver sent telegrams reporting their progress. The bus departed at 6.40 and reached at Ely at 7.50 where the party breakfasted before finally arriving at 2.20 in the afternoon. The return journey commenced at 4 pm and the passengers were safe landed in Cambridge just before eleven. All agreed the trip was successful: the roads were perfect, the scenery appreciated and only one light shower fell. The bus pulled well and travelled the 120 miles without the slightest hitch. 05 07 01a # c.26.46

1905 07 01
Tea dealers have been running down their stock prior to the reduction in tax announced by the Budget. Last night there was a tremendous rush to get tea out of bond to replenish supplies. At Cambridge the stores of the four railway companies have been converted into bonded warehouses where tea has been accumulating and by Friday they had 245 chests ready for delivery. At six o'clock this morning about 23 tons was taken away to the shops so customers can be supplied. 05 07 01 # c.27.2 # c.28

1905 07 04
Christ's College is celebrating the 400th anniversary of its foundation and a host of past members have returned. Dignitaries of the church, members of parliament, men of eminence in the legal world and members of the learned professions are among the distinguished company of guests 05 07 04 a & b # c.44.5

1905 07 04
Cambridge Salvation Army held their annual field day at Jesus College when 'twelve hours of holy joy' were spent by more than 1,000 members. There was lantern and scarf drills and a feature of the variety fanfare was the singing of two converted comedians, Poole and Rash. There has been a remarkable outbreak in the various Salvation Army corps and more people have professed conversion during the last six months that any other period on record. 05 07 04b

1905 07 08
Ely council debated whether to acquire a steam fire engine. Messrs Merryweather's estimate was £314 and they were willing to allow payment to be spread over three years. But they would have to build an engine house. Cambridge had many more valuable buildings and they did not think it worth having one. Many ratepayers felt it was not required; they had a system of hydrants and a very good pressure which would reach any ordinary building without an engine at all. But several shopkeepers said they should have one. 05 07 08a-c # c.34.75

1905 07 08
The oldest industry in Britain, the manufactory of gun and tinder-box flints is still carried on in the village of Brandon. The work is done in little sheds at the back of the cottages where those engaged in this almost out-of-date occupation dwell. They are sent to Spain and Italy where the tinder box still holds its ground in rural region and travellers in remote areas find flint and steel a veritable boom. Flints are also used in ingenious little mechanical devices for lighting pipes and cigars which one sees in tobacco shop windows. 05 07 08a # FLINT # c.27

1905 07 08
Mr Prevett, the clever local Punch and Judy man was performing at a garden party near Cottenham and demonstrating the unhappy relations between Punch and his spouse with much vigour. At the conclusion of the show he was accosted by a lady who protested his manipulation of the dolls was too brutal and would have a demoralising effect on the poor innocent rustics. A short time after the lady married, and quite recently was fined for assaulting her husband with a garden rake! 05 07 08a # c.39 # WOMEN

1905 07 08
Mr Hutchinson of Brooklands Avenue attached a pair of natural wings to a swinging balance and actuated them by means of an electric motor in the way in which a bird's wings move. Encouraged by the experiments he constructed a larger machine with wings of 60 feet square, the power being supplied by a petrol cycle engine. The results are encouraging but no actual attempt at unrestrained flight has been attempted due to the probability of an unpremeditated decent. Were it to be exhibited at the Mammoth Show what a 'draw' it would be. 05 07 08b # c.26.1

1905 07 08
An accident which came within a shade of becoming a fearful disaster occurred on the main London to Norwich railway line at Lt Downham. A herd of horses were crossing in Kiln Lane when they stampeded into the line. An express train came around the curve and dashed into the animals. Four were killed outright and a fifth injured. The engine and some of the coaches passed over the carcasses of the horses but by some miracle the train kept on the metals. The bodies were removed and the train continued its journey within 20 minutes 05 07 08d # c.26.2

1905 07 08
'Cyclist' writes that he started on a long ride into the fen districts and distinctly remembers placing a repair outfit in his saddlebag. When in one of the most benighted parts of the fen he discovered a puncture he turned his machine in readiness to repair it. To his disgust he found his repair outfit had been abstracted from his bag. The theft is one of those paltry offences that only an excessively mean nature would cause a man to commit. 05 07 08c # c.26.485

1905 07 10
Perseverance and country drive, p3

1905 07 11
Newmarket flooding, p4

1905 07 13
Ashwell R.D.C. heard that at Kelshall there was a portion of a fourteenth-century village cross lying bottom upwards in a pond by the side of the Sandon road. It was an interesting relic and should be placed on the green with a fence around it. The cost need not exceed £2. The Chairman thought it was a matter for Kelshall parish to deal with, but Mr Rand said: "Then it will stop where it is". (Laughter). It was referred to the parish meeting. 05 07 13c

1905 07 13

Cambridge has regained a missing charter granted to the Borough in 1632 by King Charles I. It is plainly written in Latin upon a huge scroll of parchment but is mutilated by having a large circular patch cut away, possibly to cover a drum used in the civil war. It was presented by the Royal Institution of South Wales who had found it amongst their ancient papers; how it got there is not known. 05 07 13a-c # c.35.7 # c.43

1905 07 15
Mr J.A Martin of Ely said the water supply of the country was a most difficult question. In the fen district the rivers constituted the main supply and every precaution ought to be taken to keep them free from contamination. If they could utilise the water out of the rivers they would have as good a supply as they could wish. Mr Luddington of Littleport said many of the inhabitants turned to the river for their supply but the city of Ely poured crude sewage into the stream above them. 05 07 15a-d # c.24.2

1905 07 15
Coe Fen was the scene of an interesting fire-extinguishing demonstration by the Valor Company. A light wooden erection had been constructed coated by three gallons of tar and a shavings and straw saturated with motor spirit was heaped around. It was ignited by a match and with such violence did the flames break out that the watching crowd was forced to fall back. The representative brought the appliance into operation and the fire was subdued in about 25 seconds. 05 07 15dd # c.32.3 # c.34.75

1905 07 17
Licensing magistrates were told that the old ferry at the Plough, Fen Ditton, scene of the tragic sinking, would not be used again and a new boat would be obtained. The old tenant had no knowledge of boats but the new one was a lighterman by trade and understood the workings of a ferry. The old ferry was a 'death trap' and the new one must be a safe one and competent to carry passengers. 05 07 17a # c.44.7

1905 07 17
"Sir – the motor-car has come to stay, and some day everyone will wonder how people could ever have done without it. The dust nuisance is very serious, but this will soon come off the road, the noise is objectionable and so is the smell but they are not unbearable. But the terror is the sight of an approaching car coming at the rate of 30 or 40 miles an hour. Recently an increasing number of cars have been taking the road between Cambridge and St Neots. Near the village of Croxton there are two cross roads and several cottages and the village school stand on the high road. Past these the motors dash by at such a furious rate that the numbers at the back cannot be read. There would certainly be much rejoicing if the police 'happened' on one of these offending cars as it was racing past the school" 05 07 17 # c.26.48

1905 07 18
The new Cambridge cemetery on Newmarket Road is nothing less than a small farm with oats, wheat and barley covering over 20 acres. As yet very few interments have taken place and years must elapse before graves encroach upon a great expanse of the site which would otherwise be lying unproductive. The crops have a very promising appearance and will produce a profit for ratepayers 05 07 18a & b # c.21.2

1905 07 18
A number of gypsies who have been camping beside the Half-way House, Little Thetford and employed as peapickers were responsible for a serious disturbance at the pub. One had taken half a gallon of beer to work with him and returned for more. On being refused service as he was drunk he became obnoxious, smashed a quantity of crockery and assaulted the landlord.05 07 18b # GYPSIES

1905 07 18
The landlord of the Central Hotel, Cambridge, told how a man rang the bell in the commercial room and as if he could have a 'number''. This was the customary way in which commercial travellers asked for a room. Later the man said he could not pay his bill. He did not believe he was a commercial traveller and called the police. The man carried a parcel, neatly done up similar to those carried by travellers but when opened it contained two racing calendars, a tin of boot polish and some newspapers. 05 07 18d & e # c.27.4

Visit Newmarket, p3

1905 07 19
Ramsey theft, p3

1905 07 20
Sir – Great Shelford Parish Council have agreed at a meeting where ratepayers were poorly represented to purchase land for a recreation ground at a cost of £600. I believe slips of paper should have been left at every house on which the occupants could have given their vote about adding this extra rate upon the already over-burdened ratepayer. The owner of the land was deeply interested in the scheme and would have presented it to the parish if he had been approached – John Raymen 05 07 20a

1905 07 20
The population of Welches Dam was decreasing and the houses falling into ruins, except the public houses. They were originally erected by the Middle Level for their workmen and were not being kept up at all well. There was a chapel but it had no sanitary convenience. The building of a school was entirely out of the question. A conveyance should be provided to take the 33 children of school age from there and Purl's Bridge to Manea school. But they already had more children than they could accommodate. 05 07 20b

1905 07 20
According to Dr Wilkinson Huntingdonshire has one of the highest death-rates from cancer of any county in England. He believes that cancer is more prevalent in low-lying or damp districts than elsewhere. The height of the land locally varies from a few feet only above sea level in the fen district to between 200 and 250 feet above 05 07 20d # c.21.1

1905 07 20
The Board of Education have declined to recognise March Corn Exchange as a suitable place to open a Girls' School. This has caused serious problems. The committee had advertised for a mistress but fortunately no appointment had been made. However they had about 30 teachers who needed a secondary school but had nowhere to send them. So they have decided to erect a temporary building for three years and asked Mr Perkins to prepare rough plans 05 07 20c # c.36.6

1905 07 21
Babraham flowers & fighting, p3

1905 07 22
Romsey burglaries, p3
Ely river tragedy, p3
Cheese, p4

1905 07 25
A bus driver employed by the Cambridge Town and University Motor Omnibus Company was summoned after an accident with a tram. He had tried to overtake a trolley when one of his mudguards touched the tram's front handrail. The collision caused the tram to leave the line and go to the other side of the road. He claimed he could have got through but the tram horse had become frightened at the noise of the bus and quickened its pace; he had seen the horse 'dance about' on several occasions. But magistrates said the bus driver had been too anxious to pass; the state of the roads necessitated the greatest care and patience. 05 07 25a # c.26.46

1905 07 25
Littleport Parish Council considered a report on the outbreak of typhoid in the village in 1904. Their natural water supply was from the river but Ely council was now planning to discharge a large quantity of extra sewage into the Ouse. A piped water supply was said to be too expensive and nobody would give them a direct reply to their enquiries. 05 07 25b

Ely river victim, p3

1905 07 26
Romsey terror, p3

1905 07 27
Romsey burglar, p3
Mepal bridge, p3

19005 07 29
Risbridge Union clerk, p3
Country road danger, p4
Whipping horse, p4
Dandelions, p4

August 1905 CDN

1905 08 01
A Cambridge motorist was summoned for driving a motor omnibus without having a hackney carriage driver's licence. PC Wade said the bus, carrying passengers, was driven on to the pavement, damaging a lamp and flagstones. The driver said he lost control as it was not the same gear he was used to. It was the usual practice to try a man before applying for a licence and he was being taught to steer under the supervision of a qualified person. He was fined 5s.
05 08 01 # c.26.46

1905 08 02
Sir – I was given permission to give Pierrot concerts on the children's playground, Christ's Pieces but then the committee refused to allow me to use any seats for my audience. I was then told they must be discontinued but offered a site on Midsummer Common, only to have this withdrawn when residents complained. I am now left with artistes on my hands and money wasted. My position is consequently very awkward - Robert Elmslie 05 08 02 # c.69

Cambridge Photographers visit Ely, p3 *
Prickwillow foal show, p4

1905 08 04
Cambridge is to be one of four centres of the Light Delivery Van Trials organised by the Automobile Club of Great Britain. Such mechanically propelled delivery vans will enable the more expeditious delivery of goods and isolated parts of the country will be linked with the cities. The trails will comprise 30 day's service of each vehicle in four classes from 5 cwt to a ton. 05 08 04

1905 08 05
Mr Jesse Boot the chemist's chauffeur was convicted for driving at excessive speed between Buntingford and Ware. One police officer stood by the 13th milestone, another by the 7th, each clicked their watch as the car passed them. When they later compared the readings they calculated that the intervening six miles had been covered at a speed of 25 and five-sevenths miles an hour. They could not prove that the chauffeur had been driving all the way but the only other people in the car were Jesse Boot who was crippled with rheumatic gout and his wife, one of the most nervous ladies that ever got into a motor car. But as the speed limit of 20 mph had not been grossly exceeded the fine was reduced. 05 08 05

1905 08 05
Two undergraduates said they were fishing at Holywell when Baron de Ketschemdorf arrived in another punt and asked them to move. They declined, saying the river was public, at which the Baron said he would throw them in the river. There was a wrestle during which he tried to throttle them. The German said he had driven a pole in the bed of the river showing that he had already occupied that water and it was a point of etiquette not to fish there. The men had threatened to hit him with a bucket. He was fined £1.05 08 05b – d # c.38 : fishing

1905 08 05
The burglary scare in Romsey Town has caused several amusing and one dangerous incident. A gentleman was keeping an all-night watch for the burglar and about 1.30 a.m. thought he observed his quarry. At any rate a revolver which he had in his possession went off. The bullet sped across the street and through the window of a house opposite. It cut two holes in the hanging curtains, smashed a large fruit dish and ended its career in a photographic frame.
05 08 05e # c.34.6 # MILL ROAD

1905 08 10
A fire of alarming dimensions broke out at Witchford, two cottages and a number of farm buildings opposite the church being totally destroyed. The flames attracted a large number of people, harvest fields being deserted and work suspended for the time but the flames had too good a hold. Ely Fire Brigade had difficulty finding water but eventually a pond was found and the manual engine, with some 40 men to pump, was got to work. The furniture was removed and placed in the churchyard, the various domestic utensils dotted in amongst the tombstones. 05 08 10 # c.34.75

1905 08 14
Proposed cycle treck, p3

1905 08 15
Volunteer, p3
Cycle treck, p3 *
Hardwicke Arms, Arrington transferred to Public House Trust - # c.27.4 05 08 15c
Proposed cycle track, Midsummer Common – 05 08 15a & b # c.38 : cycling # c.32.3

1905 08 16
A unique feature of the entertainment to be given in the Fellows' Garden of King's College will be a series of cinematograph pictures illustrating the recent visit of the French fleet. During the display the Police Band will discourse descriptive music. The Chorister Glee Singers will be present and Mr Gambling will introduce his new set of Italian Marionettes.
05 08 16 # c.76.9 # c.69

Cycle treck, p3

1905 08 17
An accident took place on the Adelaide Bridge: Mr G. Washington of Littleport was driving a party of nine or ten in his carrier's van to Shippea Hill and when descending the bridge the brake did not act properly. The horse became troublesome and the front wheels of the cart separated from the rest of the wagon. Most of the party were pitched out but escaped without serious injury. They had to make their way home on foot. 05 08 17

1905 08 18

The Clare and Bumpstead Joint Hospital Board have recently made use of their isolation hospital on the Haverhill Road for the first time. The land was secured in 1899 and the hospital erected at a cost of £350. It was not used until this year when an outbreak of scarlet fever was notified at Clare and a nurse employed. The case was successfully dealt with and the hospital has closed again. 05 08 18 # c.21.4

1905 08 19
Caxton workhouse inmates had a pound of suet pudding with treacle for dinner on Wednesday but left a great deal of it. On Thursday they had suet pudding again with a little bread and cheese but simply ate the bread and cheese and left the suet pudding. It was a waste of good stuff. Surely nobody could eat a pound of suet pudding for dinner? But the Master said some of them ate three or four pounds of it. It was decided to change to Irish stew on Wednesdays. 05 08 19 # WORKHOUSE # c.32.9

1905 08 19
With the next issue of the 'Cambridgeshire Weekly News' will be presented an art supplement containing photographs of the late Bishop of Ely and his successor. Both have been specially taken by Messrs. Scott and Wilkinson and are remarkable likenesses. They will be printed on specially prepared art paper in a style suitable for framing. Much disappointment will be saved if those who desire a copy will let their newsagents know without delay. Only a certain number will be printed and the issue will not be repeated.
05 08 19a # c.04

1905 08 19
Sir – the present motor buses are exceedingly disappointing. They are far too cumbrous and top heavy; in the narrow streets people on the paths run the risk of being struck by the projecting bodies. In damp or frosty weather the top heaviness may cause the wheels to skid and one fears the consequences should one overturn. They are very noisy and the stench from the oil is intolerable – in fact the streets are contaminated all day long with the disgusting effluvia – 'Ratepayer' 05 08 19 # c.26.46

1905 08 21
Cambridge Free Library is singularly rich in local literature due mainly to the Librarian, John Pink. He was born some 67 years ago and is steeped in Cambridge lore. There is little that he does not know and is always able to tell where the answer is to be found. His catalogues testify to a conscience for detail and a zeal to make the library as comprehensive as possible. His conscientious manner and obliging disposition are reflected in all the members of his staff. 05 08 21b # c.77.4

1905 08 21
Library Association conference debate on Sunday opening – 05 08 21aaa # c.77.4

1905 08 23
Library Association, p3

1905 08 24
The Library Association Conference in Cambridge discussed Sunday opening. To believe opponents Sunday was a season of celestial peace where only the sound of church bells and the hymns of devout worshippers broke the sacred silence. By opening libraries were doing a noble work in providing young men with a place to read periodicals or great fiction. But others said Sunday opening had failed because the average working man did not want to go there. It involved extra expenditure which would be better devoted to new books. 05 08 24 & 24a # c.77.4

1905 08 26
In 1901 there was a curate at Prickwillow named John Etheridge who created a very favourable opinion but whose stay was short as it was discovered he had been appointed upon forged credentials.

He was arrested at a garden party at Liverpool and sentenced to imprisonment. He is now in custody in the village of Catskill, New York State for obtaining money by false pretences 05 08 26a & b. # c.82.01

1905 08 26
Sir – I wish to protest against an act of vandalism. The fine sight of Cambridge from the corner of Petty Cury with the stalls, old fountain and University Church has been ruined by the erection of a lofty 'stink pipe' in the middle of the Market Place, cutting the east window of the church in half. Why could this not have been run up the side of the Guildhall where it would not have been such an eyesore? – Cantab. 05 08 26c

1905 08 26
At Willingham the labourers go to work at seven o'clock in the morning and work until eleven. Then he has his luncheon (or 'docky' as he calls it) and begins again at noon, working for another four hours when his day's work is done. He does not necessarily work until four for he has to get to his home then and leaves in such time as to allow him to arrive comfortably. Likewise if his work lies at a distance from his cottage he does not get to his place at work at seven but leaves home at that hour. But he doesn't get high wages. 05 08 26d # c.22 # c.32.1

Periodical scam, 4

1905 08 28
Artificial diamonds, p3

1905 08 29
Cambridge councillors refused to allow the Post Office to lay an underground cable along Emmanuel Road to complete a telegraphic communication with Ely if telephone wires belonging to the National Telephone Company were also laid. Now the Postmaster will have to exercise statutory powers to complete the work. There is already direct communication with Ipswich, Norwich and Peterborough; recently a private wire giving the state of play in the Cambs v Norfolk match was handed in at Norwich Post Office and in the offices of the C.D.N. eight minutes later. 05 08 29a & b # c.27.7

1905 08 29
A number of fishermen and fireman had an enjoyable outing on board the 'Majesty'. On arriving at Upware they sat down to one of Host Peachey's liberal dinners after which the fishermen went fishing and the remainder had a trip to Ely, returning for tea and games. The return journey was enlivened by songs accompanied by Mr Sid Smith on his banjo. They reached home by 10 pm. 05 08 29d # c.26.3

1905 08 29
The Rector of Coveney, Rev Charles Turner, has closed his church except during the hours for service because of the visits of hatless women. Sightseeing, archaeology and snap-shooting are subsidiary to worship and prayer; general conversation, giggling and general moral hatlessness are utterly unbecoming and out of place, he says. Some weeks ago a party of well-dressed girls wanted to have the keys of the church and on being asked if they wanted to say their prayers burst out laughing. 05 08 29e # c.82.01 # WOMEN

Baby Ely manhole, p3
Prickwillow curate, p3 *
Kidd & Baker photographer, p3

1905 08 29
John Etheridge in gaol AMERICA – PRICKWILLOW vicar – 05 08 29c

1905 08 31

The new Romsey Town School is almost in a state of completion. The registration of intending scholars has been taking place while the painters are putting the last coats of varnish upon the interior woodwork. All that remains to be done consists of the arrangement of the furniture. There are separate entrances for boys and girls and the asphalted playground is divided by a wall to separate them during play hours. Trees have been retained providing a charming environment which will be made more delightful when the flowerbeds have been filled. 05 08 31 a/aa # c.36.5

Newmarket photo, p3
New Harries club, p4

September 1905 CEN

1905 09 02
A curious incident occurred at a Baptist chapel in a village near Ely. As evening service proceeded the daylight failed rapidly but no artificial lights were forthcoming and the service had to be concluded in absolute darkness. Fortunately the preacher did not rely upon notes and who shall say that his sermon will not prove a light unto many, even if he himself was practically hidden in the prevailing gloom! 05 09 02b # c.82.05

1905 09 02
Cambridge council refuses to allow telephone company to lay underground cables & they unable to erect poles; want wayleave payment - 05 09 02 # c.27.7

Motorists responsibility, p2-3 *

1905 09 05
It is approaching 20 years ago that the strange sect called the Agapemonites founded by the late Brother Prince first secured a footing in Cambridge. Its advent is surrounded in some mystery and owing to the secrecy imposed on its followers it is difficult to speak with any degree of certainty of its growth. It was the time when the Wesleyan community was undergoing a severe trial and many families left the church, some joining the Abode of Love at a little school room in Elm Street where services were marked with great simplicity. The death of Prince was a severe test to his followers' faith but things have gone on much as before. 05 09 05 – 05c # c.83

1905 09 06
Sir – thousands of people in Romsey Town are anxious for a shorter route to the railway station. Some years ago they had a private path but this was closed; a shorter route, known as Coulson's Path, was also taken away and passengers have to go by the Devonshire Road. The erection of one of the old foot bridges, now lying useless, somewhere near Charles Street or David Street would be a boon to both railway and inhabitants – S. Hurrell. 05 09 06 # c.26.2

1905 09 07
Thomas Stearn, the photographer, has died. He was one of the first resident photographer in Cambridge 60 years ago, though an itinerant exponent of the art known as Sarony had previously experimented with the faces and features of people at his van on Parker's Piece. He practised the wet process by which the unfortunate subject has to compose his features for at least 30 seconds until in 1880 the 'dry' process reduced the exposure to a fraction of a second. His wife had the distinction of being the first lady photographer in England. His two sons, Harry and Walter, continue the business. 05 09 07 # c.65.5

1905 09 08
Midsummer railings, p3

1905 09 09

It is seldom that a Cambridge tradesman, in the short time he can allow himself for a holiday, undertakes such a hazardous venture as that successful accomplished by Mr Alphonso Smith. He has succeeded in ascending Mont Blanc only to find the little observatory on the summit so covered with snow that he could not find the door. It was so bitterly cold that he made only a very short stay. He has no wish to make a second ascent. 05 09 09 & a # c.38 : climbing

1905 09 09
The absurdity of the system by which the Government issues licences to drivers of motor cars has again been illustrated. Last year a licence was secured for a blind man, now Hertfordshire County Council has issued one to an inmate of Leavesden Asylum. A driving licence should be a certificate of competence to undertake certain duties or what use is it? 05 09 09b # c.26.48

Lock payment, p4

1905 09 11
Ely football, p4

1905 09 12
The Auckland Road variety theatre, Cambridge is now known as the Hippodrome. It has been taken over by Geo. Saphrini who has experience at the Britannia Theatre, Glasgow and Alex Aubrey who has performed at all the principal halls in Great Britain. Although the old circus ring has been retained there were no equestrian turns but Professor Garford's performing dogs and pigeons proved very wonderful and the hundreds who filled the building saw feats of agility and strength and extraordinary examples of human dexterity. The programme was to have concluded with a bioscope exhibition but owing to a mishap with the lamp the pictures could not be shown. 05 09 12 # c.76

Passive resistance, p3
Oil vendor, p3

1905 09 13
Sir – I believe the earliest Cambridge photographer was George Proctor, who lived in New Square until he died about 1850. About the same time Sarony, a celebrated photographer, was allowed to carry on his business in a caravan on Parker's Piece. There were others including Nichols who had a flourishing business; he moved from Slaughter House Lane to St Mary's Passage and later his son to Post Office Terrace. He took my own portrait in 1854 and it is as good today as it was then – 'Three-score and twelve' 05 09 13a # c.65.5

1905 09 13
Haddenham's new Baptist chapel is an ornament to the village; it will seat 339 adults or a mixed congregation of 450 with a small gallery at the front end. The choir and organ will be placed in the south transept. The opening ceremony by Mrs J. Chivers was attended by Baptists from almost every village in the county. A party of 50 journeyed from Cambridge by motor 'bus, cycle and train. The event was a success and will doubtless be remembered for many years. 05 09 13b # c.82.05

1905 09 14
The number of children inmates of the Newmarket Union Workhouse is too small to justify employing a teacher and for some years they have been sent to the Exning School. Then a new Exning Road Council School was erected less than ten minutes' walk from the Workhouse and the children admitted there without hesitation. But now the Education Committee wants 25s. [TWENTY-FIVE SHILLINGS] a child per annum for their education which the Guardians have refused to pay. The children went to the school but were refused admission 05 09 14 & a # c.32.9 # c.36.6

1905 09 16
Members of Sturton Street Methodist chapel cycled from Cambridge to Haslingfield to celebrate their harvest thanksgiving. During the service some evilly-disposed person with a table fork or hat-pin punctured the tyres of four ladies' and one gentleman's cycles. Those who suffered in this disgraceful way would be pleased if the police would take the matter in hand so that such scandalous conduct does not reoccur.05 09 16a

1905 09 16
A resident from the De Freville Estate, Cambridge, complains of the nuisance caused by cock crowing. Two of his neighbours keep six to a dozen each and the annoyance is so great that he has decided to leave the neighbourhood. Yet even life in a charming suburb such as this has its disadvantages. It is like those referred to by the auctioneer in selling a country mansion when he admitted that the rose leaves made a great litter and the singing of the nightingale was inclined to disturb the sleep of the occupants. 05 09 16b

1905 09 19
A fire of gigantic proportions in Willingham completely destroyed 14 stacks. The services of the village fire engines were requisitioned but one was found to be out of order and practically useless. The fire was seen from Ely and hundreds of people arrived from surrounding villages. Had the wind been in the south a large part of the village would have been razed to the ground 065 09 19 # c.34.75

Tram company a/m, p3

1905 09 21
The will of the late Mr Stephen Mansfield of Trumpington includes a bequest of £250 to Chesterton Baptist chapel where he once a teacher in the Sunday School. This is not his only benefaction to the village; there are five almshouses erected by him and their upkeep and stipends for the inmates are provided out of other property. He also subscribed to the Royal Albert and Victoria Friendly Societies' asylum and left £100 to the poor of Trumpington 05 09 21 # c.32.9

1905 09 22
The vicar of St Philip's Church Cambridge recalled he had opposed a scheme for abolishing the boys', girls' and infants' Church Schools in Ross Street. There would now be a new mixed school where nonconformist children would relieve religious instruction – but not from him. If parents cared for Church instruction they should fight to keep Ross Street schools open and support the new master, Mr Meakin. 05 09 22a & b # c.36.5 # c.83.01

1905 09 23
The differences between the Cambridge Town Council and the National Telephone Company have resulted in a grave situation. A writ ordering the removal of poles from Corporation property has been issued which, if obeyed, would disconnect the whole of Fitzroy Street and Newmarket Road from the rest of the system. The crux of the matter is the Council's decision not to allow the Company to lay underground wires. But this would give a more efficient service and they have offered to pay the Council to do the work and give them half-a-crown per subscriber. 05 09 23 & a # c.27.7

Overhanding trees, p4

1905 09 26
The Bishop of Norwich has accused a Suffolk vicar of immoral conduct. He was curate of Holy Trinity church, Ely when he made the acquaintance of a somewhat eccentric lady with partiality for the cloth who offered him a living of his own at Wickham Market. This he accepted. Later she was admitted to a London workhouse and sought his assistance, which he declined. In the meantime his congregation dwindled away, the choir, organist and bellringers withdrew their service, repairs to the church were neglected and church work paralysed. 05 09 26b-c # c.82.01

Ely train smash, p3 *

1905 09 27

Cyclists, p3 *

1905 09 28
Midsummer Common recreation ground, p3

1905 09 29
Fen Drayton wall, p3 *
Cambridge photographic club dinner – 05 09 29 b & c # c.65.5

1905 09 30
Buntingford milestones, p3 *
Littleport angling, p4 *
Harston cow, p4
Chesterton club, p4

October 1905 CDN

1905 10 02
Dogs & bikes, p3
Panton brewery visit London, p4

1905 10 03
A gruesome discovery was made near the G.E.R. station of Black Bank, a few miles past Ely. On the railway line was found the trunk of a man's body, and some feet away the head which had evidently been severed by a passing train. The body has been identified as a publican of Little Downham who was formerly in the Militia Band at Ely. 05 10 03 # c.26.2

Workhouse porter assault, p3
Thriplow theft, p4
Hippodrome, p4

1905 10 05
Cambridge Town Council wrote to Chesterton R.D.C. saying they wish to extend their boundaries to incorporate parts of Chesterton, Cherry Hinton, Trumpington and Grantchester. Chesterton are to reply saying they will give such project its most strenuous opposition. 05 10 05-b # c.35.7

Grantchester Road fire, p3
Black Bank body, p3
Haverhill chess club, p4

1905 10 06
Cheshunt College opened its doors to theological students without any ceremonial. It was founded in 1768 by Selina, the Countess of Huntingdon, and is strictly undenominational. It moved to Cheshunt in 1792 where it was recognised by the University of London and has now transferred to Cambridge. Houses in Cintra Terrace, Hills Road, have been adapted for the 15 students; most will become members of the University and read for degrees. 05 10 06 # c.36.9

1905 10 06
Selwyn Road, p4

1905 10 07
The Cambridgeshire Weekly News has a larger reporting staff than any newspaper within a radius of 50 miles and is enabled to give accounts of all local happenings at first hand. It is non-party and non-sectarian, reporting Conservative and Liberal functions and church and chapel events with strict impartiality. It also publishes a first rate serial story together with columns of Friendly Society,

Photographic and Agricultural notes. The guaranteed weekly sale is over 10,000 copies. 05 10 07 # c.04

Downing St corner, p4
Violin & butcher, p4

1905 10 10
Romsey school opening, p3

1905 10 11
Wood Ditton butcher suicide, p3

1905 10 12
Cats home, p3
Ferry accident, p3
Newmarket Carr chemist bankruptcy, p4

1905 10 13
A fire of considerable dimensions broke out at the Kennels farm, Great Wilbraham. The farm buildings are roughly in the form of a square one side of which was a spacious barn with a thatched roof. Villagers released horses from the stables and the carts, wagons and harness were also quickly got out. Two chickens were the only livestock to perish. The reflection in the sky of the burning buildings was plainly discernible at Cambridge. Within 40 minutes the fire was practically over, so rapid had been its progress. 05 10 13

Nelson St fight, p4

1905 10 14
The English-speaking race are mourning the death of the greatest theatrical figure of modern times, Sir Henry Irvine. He received an honorary degree from Cambridge University and maintained a keen interest in Mr Redfern's struggle to free theatrical performances from the strangling control of the University. He was to have visited the New Theatre on his farewell provincial tour next year. 05 10 14a & b # c.76

Cheap cottages, p3 *

1905 10 14
The Trumpington Road has an unenviable notoriety for being frequented by shady and suspicious characters. Lately the large houses have suffered depredations at the hands of one of the burgling fraternity. Police supervision should be strengthened: one constable was not sufficient. The Chief Constable said that being with easy reach of London they offered a tempting bait to the criminals of the metropolis. The man involved pretended to be collecting for a cricket club. He was today being tried at Exeter 05 10 14b # c.34.6

1905 10 17
Nelson celebrations, p3

1905 10 18
The picturesque little church in the village of Kedington has recently been visited by some nefarious individual and the two alms-boxes robbed of their contents. One box is of a unique construction and consists of an oak tree trunk firmly embedded in the ground, hollowed out at the top and having an old iron lid. The church is locked during the week and there is no indication of forced entry; the robber may have got the key from the Post Office. 05 10 18

Bishop of Ely consecration, p3

Swaffham Prior hoard, p4

1905 10 19
Fire at St Neots resulted in the complete destruction of the extensive brewery premises of Messrs Paine and Co in the centre of the town. An adjacent flour mill was also burned down and it was only the fortunate veering of the wind that saved the whole of one side of the Market Square from demolition. The inhabitants were in a state of panic. The telegraphic instruments from the Post Office was removed, together with furniture from many adjoining houses. The blaze was seen for many miles around. 05 10 19 # c.27.4

1905 10 21
Nelson celebrations, p4

1905 10 23
Nelson Day in Cambridge was marked by flags and on Sunday references to his life and death were made in many of the churches. On Saturday evening a partially successful attempt at a rag was made by a number of University and town youths, thus amply justifying the Mayor's decision not to promote any public demonstration which might have provided the necessary excitement for a serious disturbance. 05 10 23a # c.02

1905 10 23
Because a hundred years ago Horatio Nelson won the Battle of Trafalgar, the youths of Cambridge, University and town, united in a 'rag' in which the destruction of property was a necessary element. Two constables were mauled by the mob, one at the Parsonage Street fire and the other at the Park Parade fire, but are little the worse for the rough handling they received. A tram was stormed by a large number of undergraduates; dozens of them clambered on to the vehicle until it was a black mass of struggling beings. But despite the heavy load the horse managed to crawl along. 05 10 23b-c # c.02 # c.36.9

1905 10 24
Having been closed for a week when it was handed over to the care of the carpenter, the Hippodrome, on Newmarket Road Cambridge reopened. The performances will now be carried out on the music hall principles, the old form of ring having been dispensed with and a large and spacious stage erected with all the necessary scenery and curtains. There will be one performance nightly with half-prices after nine o'clock. The Carr Brothers kept the house in a constant state of applause by their wonderful manipulation of a large inflated ball 05 10 24 # c.76

Cherry Hinton sewage, p4

1905 10 25
The licensee of the Cambridge Hippodrome made a claim for breach of contract against Charles Prinz, described as 'the most wonderful and sensational lion tamer on earth'. He had agreed to perform for a week at a salary of £40 but had taken another engagement at the Olympia, Liverpool. As a result their takings had fallen to £30, compared to £112 the week before. The Hippodrome would seat about 2,000 people and £25 had been taken one evening. The judge said that in his undergraduate days the University would not allow a theatre to pollute the atmosphere. They had changed their views since then. 05 10 25 # c.76

1905 10 26
Cambridge councillors discussed an alternative route from Madingley Road to the Cattle Market by constructing a road from Barton Road over the river by Newnham Mill Pit and along Coe Fen Lane to Trumpington Road. Two bridges would have to be erected and the Leys School would give up a strip of land. But there was no argument in favour of making a winding lane into a straight road unless it was for traffic. It was a bad system to introduce a big scheme piecemeal and commit the council first by one step and then another. 05 10 26b # c.32.3 # c.49.62

1905 10 26
A society for the promotion of the international language, Esperanto, in the University and Town of Cambridge was formed at a meeting held in the residence of Dr George Cunningham. It was of the highest importance to the University and two of their most advanced members should start classes for teaching the language. Letters of support were read from Alex Wood and the Rev Rust of Soham 05 10 26a

1905 10 28
An exhibition of watercolour sketches of Grantchester by Mr Payne Garnett, art master of the Leys School is being held at the well-lighted galleries of Crisp and Co., King's Parade. Many of the sketches are of exceedingly high artistic merit including his studies of the river by moonlight. Already most of the pictures have been bespoken.05 10 28a # c.64

1905 10 28
Morning letters are being delivered much earlier than formerly. The gradual growth of Cambridge suburbs had lengthened the postman's walks until it was almost impossible to get out the deliveries in the time prescribed. Now the number uniformed letter carriers has been increased from 98 to 110 with more men on each of the seven daily delivery rounds. The number of collections has also increased with six tricycle carriers appointed. 05 10 28b # c.27.7

Almeric Paget career, p4

1905 10 30
Photographic exhibition, p3 & 31st p3

1905 10 31
Constance Cochrane of the Cambridgeshire Rural Housing Council said that in country villages there was 'no room to live'. Fast as the rural population had been flocking to the towns still faster have their homes been falling into decay, sometimes at the rate of one a year, and not replaced. We are unable to cater for local people who wish to stay because there are no homes for them and many cottages are unfit to live in and certainly cannot cope with people from the towns who are being encouraged to return to the villages. 05 10 31a-c # c.30

1905 10 31
King visits Newmarket – his drive – 05 10 31 # c.02

November 1905 CDN

1905 11 01
Photographic club – J. Johnson 'Wilbraham Fen', Miss Robson Magdalene Street, W.H. Hayles three-colour printing on paper, photographic survey - 05 11 01 & a & b # c.65.5

Bishop of Ely enthroned, p3

1905 11 02
A halt occurred in Newmarket High Street when race traffic was at its height and Earl Cadogan's motor brougham was slightly damaged. In slowing up the driver of a vehicle backed into the motor car, smashing a pane of glass in the side of the hood. At Soham a horse and cart belonging to a man named Johnson, bolted. He was hawking vegetables when the animal took fright at a firework exploded by some children. It was brought to a standstill by Mr Saberton the butcher but one of the shafts of the cart was broken. 05 11 02

Library annual report, p4

1905 11 03
A new branch of the Union of London and Smith's Bank has opened in St John's Street. They have 150 other branches and a subscribed capital of £23 million. This makes the fifth banking institution in Cambridge, the other being Barclay's, Capital and Counties', Lloyds and the London and County. It includes almost the cream of the important joint stock banking concerns 05 11 03b # c.32.8

1905 11 03
Old Baptist chapel, Old Chesterton new infant's classroom – 05 11 03a # c.83.05

Marriages, p3

1905 11 04
The death has occurred in Australia of Councillor William Beales, only brother of Robert Beales, tailor of Sturton Street, Cambridge. He was one of the first settlers in Geelong, Victoria and the Government presented him with a gold medal and piece of land called Beales' Hill. His funeral was one of the most impressive spectacles witnessed for some years with a procession headed by the Artillery Band and the steam fire engine served the purpose of a hearse. 05 11 04a # EMIGRATION

1905 11 04
Justices awarded compensation under the scheme for reducing the number of public houses. They included the Hoops pubs in Kneesworth, Melbourn and Steeple Morden, the Ram's Head at Swaffham Bulbeck, Rose and Crown at Dry Drayton & the White Hart Swaffham Prior. In Oakington the King's Head had an average trade of 28 barrels a year while The Windmill sold a barrel of beer a week. Frank Savidge, the tenant, said he and his father-in-law had been tenants for 50 years. He had closed the house because it was condemned. At Swavesey the Sir Harry Smith sold 41½ barrels a year for the past five years while the Bird in the Hand averaged less than half a barrel a week. The owner of the Railroad Hotel, C.S. Lindsell, a brewer of St Ives, appeared to support his claim for £50 compensation. The Cottenham 'Windmill' had not taken out a spirit licence for three of four years and the pub had closed recently because the tenant would not pay his contribution to the new tax under the Licensing Act. But the closure of the 'Wait for the Bus' at Bottisham was contested. It stood at the corner of four crossroads which made in valuable as a public house. In addition to the house there was half an acre of ground. The tenant, Samuel Marsham gave detailed evidence. He said the profit on a barrel of beer was 12/-, on a gallon of spirits 5/-; he made £3.15.0 in tobacco and £5 on tea and refreshments. 05 11 04b-d # c.27.4

1905 11 06
It is a recognised custom in Cambridge, which no amount of protest seems able to abolish, to make the celebration of the Fifth the occasion for a rag. This year it fell on a Sunday but this did not deter them and a huge bonfire was started on Midsummer Common. The chief sufferer was G.P. Hawkins whose premises in Parsonage Street was attacked during the Nelson rag and on Saturday another unsuccessful assault was made. But on Sunday several hundred undergraduates returned, smashed the fence and seized egg cases, barrels and a tarpaulin to add to the flames. 05 11 06b # c.36.9

1905 11 06
The information that a number of Varsity and Town roughs broke into Mr Hawkins' premises on Sunday night and stole and destroyed property to the value of £20 will surprise even Cambridge people. To disturb the peace of a Sabbath by forcibly entering a tradesman's premises and to burn the stolen material in a public place is just as truly a robbery as if the marauders had broken into the Guildhall and taken £20 from the safe. We trust the University authorities will look facts in the face and that such activities will be promptly scotched. 05 11 06a-d # c.36.9

1905 11 07
An inquest was held at the Mill House Hinxton into the death of a four-year-old boy. His father said he was at the top of the mill when he heard a noise and thought something had gone through the stones. When he went down to the mill-wheel shed he saw the lad horribly mutilated and quite dead.

He had probably been killed between the spoke and the brick pillar where the wheel bearings rested.
05 11 07 # WATERMILL

1905 11 07
Dartigan, the only exponent of the daring and sensational acts of cycling around a loop heads the bill at the Auckland Road Hippodrome. The wonderful sight of a cyclist careering head downwards along the inverted part of the track aroused a storm of applause. Since he began his dangerous occupation he has experienced many accidents. Once at Yarmouth he fell from the top of the loop and his head crashed through the track with the result that his jaw and nose were broken and his head so severely injured that he sustained concussion of the brain.
05 11 07a # c.38 : cycling

1905 11 07
The new scheme of the Charity Commissioners relating to the Swaffham Bulbeck Poor's Fen has met with disfavour with inhabitants. Eight of them drove forty head of cattle off the Fen, which had been let by the Trustees under the new scheme. The first scheme was that the land should be laid out in allotments or garden lands but it was two miles from the village and inconvenient. There were already 114 allotments in the parish of which 20 were not let. 05 11 07b & c # c.32.9

1905 11 09
Sir - On 1st March 1904 a sergeant of the Metropolitan Police, sent to Cambridge on the occasion of the King's visit, was violently assaulted and kicked by an undergraduate. After six months' illness, during which his pay amounting to £54 was paid by the Borough of Cambridge, he was pensioned off as unfit for service. On 5th November 1904 a constable, having taken one undergraduate into custody, was brutally attacked by others and was left insensible. He has been on the sick list ever since and pensioned off. All members of the University should co-operate to prevent such scenes of riot and disorder - H.M. Taylor, Trinity College. 05 11 09 # c.34.6 # c.36.9

1905 11 09
It is almost incredible that any undergraduate should so far demean himself as to treat a policeman with the blackguard violence of a hooligan. If we have hitherto been inclined to take a lenient view of the occasional destruction of property it was because we felt sure the grosser acts were the work of town loafers who were encouraged by thoughtless undergraduates. But those who took part in gutting a shop should suffer the legal penalty and not be saved from imprisonment by University authorities. – Cambridge Review 05 11 09a # c.36.9 # c.34.6

1905 11 10
Rag – great damage to property – 05 11 10 a & b # c.36.9

1905 11 11
One does not associate Sidney Sussex College with the rowdyism that is rampant in Cambridge. Yet on Saturday night the porter found the door of his lodge refused to open: it had been securely screwed up and he was a prisoner. After a troubled night he was aroused by the bedmakers' loud ringing at the gate and saw there was no option but to smash the window and escape through the jagged aperture to admit the waiting and wrathful 'bedders'.
05 11 11a # c.36.9

1905 11 11
Newmarket possesses two fire brigades: the Volunteer and the Jockey Club Owners and Trainers. Both have separate stations. The Volunteer possesses an engine but it is in very bad condition, the parts which should be bright being thickly encrusted with rust. The Jockey Club has a more up-to-date engine which is in a neglected state but has not gone to rack and ruin to the same extent, though practically the whole of the hose is absolutely useless.
05 11 11b-d # c.34.75

1905 11 13
Rag compensation, p3

1905 11 14
The Cambridge Hippodrome has secured the services of Alec Bain, one of the best-known wrestlers in the country. He offers £20 to any man he fails to defeat in 15 minutes or £50 to anyone who defeats him. His opponent in a 'catch-as-catch-can' contest was Mr Davis, a well-known local exponent of physical culture. For eight minutes he extricated himself from dangerous holds but then was fixed in a 'hammer-lock', a hold he claimed was not allowed as it was very dangerous. But the referee's judgement was in favour of Bain. 05 11 14a # c.38

1905 11 14
Newmarket horse and landau smash – 05 11 14b

1905 11 15
Sir – twenty years ago undergraduates at Oxford had two types of 'rag'. On the 5th of November we went out and provoked people who didn't wear caps and gowns to hit us, and we hit them back. Then whenever our college had done something great in sport we burnt up a good deal of the college property in the 'quad' and paid for it in out 'wattels' at the end of term. But when the authorities thought there had been too much friendly hitting they used to 'gate' their colleges en bloc at nine o'clock. Now Cambridge undergraduates have discovered a third sort – plundering, robbing and annoying citizens to get wood for bonfires. This is hooliganism and the Riot Act might not be out of place – V.S.N. 05 11 15 # c.36.9

Rag costs, p3

1905 11 16
Cambridge police have warned of a new fraud; people receive a letter from a man who claims to have served in the Cuban war and came to England bringing with him a trunk containing £39,000 which has been deposited in a bank. If the recipient will send enough money for the writer's daughter to collect it then she will give them a quarter of that sum. The swindle has gone on for years; the bait is so plausible that many simple people fall victim to the fraud.05 11 16 # c.34.6

Freeman, confectioner, death, p3

1905 11 18
Mr G. Shepherd, landlord of the Light Dragoon public house in Panton Street, Cambridge, was awakened by a smell of burning and found a cupboard in the bar parlour was on fire. He called P.C. Sirett, who was on his way to the police station, and while another man ran to the Trumpington Street alarm to signal the fire brigade the landlord and police constable set to work with buckets of water to extinguish the flames. Meanwhile Captain Greed and twelve firemen with the horsed fire escape were making all speed to the scene when they were accosted with the message that the fire was extinguished. 05 11 18a

1905 11 18
Complaints have been received of the methods of certain travelling traders. A packman knocks at the door and announces himself as the representative of a large London firm who 'finding themselves overstocked' are selling out at under cost price. He exhibits a sample of towels and quotes a ridiculously low price for them. Madame does not need to pay until they are delivered. Meanwhile he shows some extraordinary cheap dress material and persuades her to buy and pay on the spot. Then she waits patiently for the delivery of the very cheap articles held out as bait. She waits in vain and finds she has paid fourpence a yard more for her dress material than in the shops. 05 11 18b # c.27 # WOMEN

1905 11 18
The other evening a large expanse of the north eastern sky was suffered with a rosy glow which waxed and waned in intensity. The light extended upwards from the horizon in a broad band and illuminated the edge of a thick bank of cloud towards the left of the moon. It is believed to be the Aurora Borealis, the famous northern light, though others felt it was caused by the moon shining through falling snow. 05 11 18c # c.12

1905 11 22
Large beds of watercress have been laid down at Fowlmere where water is raised by a dam to spread over the low-lying land. An industry of some dimensions has grown up and there is a growing demand from London. It is important that the protection of the law should be extended to those who have embarked capital and employ labour in this industry. George Hallworth summoned two Cambridge labourers for stealing two bags of cress. A porter at Foxton station said they had tried to take them into a carriage but as they were wet he had put them in the brakevan. 05 11 22a & b

Cambridge school of art, p3
Journalist's accident, p3

1905 11 23
P.C. Broughton, a young constable, was injured during the disgraceful 'rag' of November 5th last year. He was kicked whilst on the ground and injured by an undergraduate whom it had been impossible to trace. He had been sent to a Convalescent Home for two months and medical experts called in but had suffered a spinal injury and would not work again. He had been strong but was now crippled and doubled up. He was granted a pension equal to the full pay he was receiving at the time - £1 5s 7d a week. 05 11 23 # c.34.6

Mepal accident, p4

1905 11 30
Two young women were charged with frequenting the streets of Cambridge for the purpose of prostitution. One explained she was a native of Dundee, living at a common lodging house; she had been a domestic servant at Newmarket but had to leave on account of illness. Being destitute she was obliged to 'go on the streets' for a living. 05 11 30a

1905 11 30
Sir – may I raise a feeble voice of protest in regard to street music? Now examinations are nearing it is heart-breaking to feel the wasted hours slipping away to the tunes of 'Navaho' or the otherwise impressive 'Hallelujah' chorus. My rooms are the scene of furious contests between an organ grinder of foreign extraction, a body of carol singers and a violinist; the latter must be the envy of the male cats of the district – 'Undergrad' 05 11 30b

December 1905 CDN

1905 12 01
The toll gate between Burwell and Fordham was removed and declared open and free from tolls for ever. Its removal will be a great blessing to everybody who has occasion to use the road. The price for which the gate has for ever been freed from tolls is £600; the county and rural councils have contributed £250 each and the balance raised by Mr Ambrose who declared the gate open 05 12 01a

1905 12 01
Whittlesford church tower has been restored from a very dilapidated condition through the generosity of an anonymous benefactor. The work which has included the restoration of the masonry, the addition of a bell and the re-casting of three others and the introduction of a new ringing frame and a clock has cost about £1,600. The restored tower was consecrated by the Bishop of Ely who said much remained to be done but the work had begun well. 05 12 01b

1905 12 02
The Cambridge "Girl's Realm" Guild was founded in connection with the "Girl's Realm Magazine" and members do all they can for the sick by sending toys, picture-books and garments for distribution among the poor. Any boy can become a 'squire' at a subscription of one shilling. A Factory Girls Home has been built in Kennington Road, London to assist tired work-girls who would not otherwise gain relief from the year's toil 05 12 02a

1905 12 02
The Cambridge University v Dublin rugby match stopped suddenly and the players hastily gathered together in a group and remained perfectly still. It seemed a new way of playing rugby, even less comprehensible that the ways of the New Zealanders. Then one of the crowd ran out with a lengthy overcoat and out of the circle emerged the form of a famous three-quarter back, shrouded in the voluminous garment. Sedately he commenced a journey across to the pavilion, but then he ran and the secret was revealed – he had rent his football knickers
05 12 02b # c.38 : rugby

Chesterton football, p4

1905 12 02
Burwell toll gate – history – 05 12 02c, d & e # c.44.65 # BURWELL

1905 12 04
Gog Magog Hills serious fire overheating threshing machine – 05 12 04 # c.34.75

1905 12 07
Proposed footbridge Fort St George – 05 12 07 # c.44.7

1905 12 08
12-yearold burglar – 05 12 08 – CHILDREN

1905 12 09
Cambridge Corporation's new Mill Road storeyard is nearing completion on land behind the Free Library. Here material for the repair and making of roads is stored, vehicles housed and mended and appliances for any contingency kept in readiness. It has a siding to the railway for granite or cement, an open shed for refuse vehicles and stables together with accommodation for two steam rollers. There are blacksmiths, carpenters and wheelwright's shops and a men's mess room 05 12 09a & b # c.35.7 # c.44.6

1905 12 09
This distress this winter must be greater than usual; already 28 unemployed men have been found work at the Botanic Garden for four days a week for which the receive 10s. About 60 loads of compost have been prepared, leaves raked and much washing of glass accomplished. One man with heart disease has been found sitting-down work picking moss for orchid culture. Further men may be employed depending entirely upon contributions; the curator is willing to receive any sums for the Winter Employment Fund 05 12 09b # c.32.1

1905 12 09
Last night a man was seen careering around the floor at a Covent Garden Ball in a suit made of sateen upon which pages of the CDN was printed. It was made by Mr A.W. Smith of King's Parade to the order of an old University man. The same trader made a similar order two years ago but the material was then white. On this occasion it was pink. 05 12 09c # c.04

Sir Richard Jebb death, p3

1905 12 11
Mildenhall Road baby, p3

1905 12 12
Mr Thomas Day, whose sweetheart, Miss Violet Handscombe, was one of the victims of the Fen Ditton Red Grind ferry disaster, has died in Addenbrooke's Hospital aged 25. He was with her on the ferry when it upset and they became separated. He reached the bank, then plunged back into the river and found her, but she later died. The shock had a detrimental effect on his physical condition and when he was attacked with illness quickly succumbed. He died of bronchial pneumonia and rupture of the lungs. 05 12 12 # c.44.7

1905 12 14
An inquest was held on an inmate of Caxton Workhouse. It was the first night the cells had been artificially heated this winter, the flue passed underneath his cell and there had been an escape of carbonic acid gas which had suffocated him. The occupant of the next cell was also affected. The cells will not used again until the flues were replaced by a hot water heating apparatus 05 12 14 & a # c.32.9

Lt Thetford inquest, p3

1905 12 15
The telephone trouble – charge for poles – 05 12 15 # c.27.7
New Theatre annual meeting, p3
Littleport Globe, p4

1905 12 16
Death E.A. Wadsworth, mineral water manufacturer – 05 12 16a # c.27.4

1905 12 16
Charles Parnell, Irish patriot & Cambridge – 05 12 16b

1905 12 18
With the approach of Christmas shops are beginning to assume an extra brightness. Laurie and McConnal's huge emporium has a collection of steam and clockwork toys together with dolls priced from the humble penny to 15s. They are selling the newest game 'Quit' at a particularly low price, something of the sort is almost indispensable to Christmas. 05 12 18a, b, c

1905 12 18
St Paul's church memorial window, Elizabeth Jones – 05 12 18c # c.83

1905 12 19
A Royston meeting considered forming an athletic association and erecting a building to serve as a drill hall, gymnasium and swimming bath. Lord Roberts was proposing that every boy in every public school should be instructed to shoot with the rifle, young men should stretch their limbs and learn the noble art of self-defence and singlesticks and every boy and girl should learn to swim. If they wanted such a place and put their backs into it then they could do it. 05 12 19a&b

Sturmer water, p4 *

1905 12 21
Phone lines, p3 *

1905 12 23
Telegrams between Ely and Cambridge are transmitted via London and much time is lost. A Cambridge physician received a wire from Ely requesting his immediate presence. He at once despatched a telegram saying he would travel by the next train, haled a cab and drove to the station. At Ely he had to walk a mile to the house he was visiting – and arrived before the telegram! Considering the intimate connection that exists between the two towns, particularly in the fruit season, this is most undesirable. 05 12 22a # c.27.7

Election, p4

1905 12 27
On the eve of Christmas merrymaking a gloom was cast over the little village of Kirtling by a tragedy. A shot was heard in the vicinity of a cottage and subsequently a seven-year-old girl startled some relatives by running into their house saying, 'Mother is dead. Father has shot her'. Not caring to investigate the matter themselves they sent for the village constable, who was out. In the evening he proceeded to the cottage where he found a woman's body lying in a pool of blood with a shot wound to the head. Her husband was sitting nearby nursing the youngest child, a baby. 05 12 27a # c.34.6 # MURDER

Christmas in Cambridge, p4

1905 12 28
A substantial free dinner was given at the People's Mission, off Sturton Street, Cambridge to all that could be crowded in. Over 200 enjoyed hot roast beef, legs of mutton, boiled beef, vegetables, Christmas puddings and tea. Afterwards gramophone selections and songs were much appreciated. Each person received an orange and each man a packet of tobacco. There will also be a free tea to about 300 poor children 05 12 28

Kirtling trial, p3

1905 12 29
About 250 of the poorest inhabitants of Cambridge attended the Christmas Free Dinner arranged by the Salvation Army at the Sturton Town Hall. Needless to say the fare provided was done full justice to and subsequently the guests were entertained by the Army Band. The function was attended by the Parliamentary candidates for the borough who shook hands with guests each of whom received a copy of the Christmas 'Way Cry' and a pamphlet on 'How to be Saved' 05 12 29a

1905 12 29
A staunch adherent to Primitive Methodism was laid to rest at Haverhill. James Bareham started a chapel for the cause 50 years ago and paid the rent when times were hard and it looked as if services would have to be abandoned. He was a general dealer in Queen Street and a total abstainer and non smoker. Walking was a recreation and he accomplished long distances on Sundays to take services in the district. 05 12 29c # c.82.06

1905 12 29
Two Weston Colville girls, aged 11 and nine, stole two dolls, a quantity of soap and washing blue. Hannah Clark, shopkeeper, said the articles were kept at a shed at the back of her premises. The children played with her boy, she had been very good to them because they were motherless. P.C. Lowe said small footprints lead from the shed to next door, where the children lived and he found soap in their garden. They were bound over, 05 12 29b

1905 12 30
On Christmas Eve the casuals at Newton Union were given a liberal breakfast of bacon and eggs and told they could share the fare of the regular inmates and not be expected to work for their food and lodgings. A workhouse is not a bad place on Christmas Day. Discipline is relaxed, there is plenty of good food and not a few luxuries. One would have thought they would have seized the chance of such a comfortable day. Not they, they all took their leave. The explanation is simple. They can make a good thing out of begging from good-natured folk at Christmas. 05 12 30 # c.32.9

1905 12 30
Fire Mill Road boot stores – 05 12 30a # c.34.75
Weather, p2
Newmarket cab, p3

1906 Cambridge Daily News

There are scans of these stories
'Peeps from the Past' stories from Ely Standard added

January 1906 CDN

1906 01 01
The old custom of assembling on King's Parade to witness the death of the old year and the birth of the new, as signalized by the discharge of a couple of rockets, was again observed by a large number of the inhabitants of Cambridge. The crowd was in a happy frame of mind but there was nothing to complain of in their behaviour. A few seconds before midnight one rocket soared skywards to the accompaniment of cheers. Shortly afterwards 1906 was heralded by a second. The custom, which was initiated by the late Mr Deck, has now reached its 80th anniversary. 06 01 01a # c.39

1906 01 01
Fire gutted the Mill Road Boot Stores adjoining St Barnabas Church, Cambridge. The flames rose to a great height and melted some of the lead of the windows of the church. The building was a one-storeyed erection, largely composed of wood. A number of wooden packing cases at the rear formed a source of danger as they connected with a thatched cottage and a stonemason's yard adjoining was also seriously placed. 06 01 01b # c.34.75 # c.44.6

Painting of Queen Victoria unveiled (removed from Council Chamber in 1930) [06 01 01 Rev Yr, 30 07 19]
1905 review, p4

1906 01 02
A Kirtling man was remanded at Newmarket police court, charged with the murder of his wife. A number of persons waited on the platform at the railway station in the hope of seeing the prisoner alight from the Cambridge train, but they were doomed to disappointment. He was conveyed by road in a two-horse conveyance but not a glimpse could be caught as it was driven into the yard at the rear of the police station. 06 01 02 # c.34.6

1906 01 03
Kirtling trial, p4

1906 01 04
Ely workhouse trial, p4

1906 01 06
A fire broke out in the roof of Addenbrooke's Hospital and extensive damage by fire and water has been wrought. A laundry maid saw wreaths of smoke above the roof of the operating theatre. The staff devoted themselves to the safety of the patients; those who could walk were hurriedly clad in warm wraps and led down the emergency staircase down which the more infirm, some on stretchers and some in their beds were carried. A similar fire broke out in October 1902. 06 01 06a-c # c.21.4 # c.34.75

1906 01 06
Last night's gale was one of the most severe within living memory. Great damage was done all over Cambridge. On Newmarket Road a tall chimney at the brickworks began to sway violently and then fell with a tremendous crash. The large trees at the Backs suffered considerably; five were uprooted and blown into Queen's Road. During the morning numbers of poor people were busily engaged in taking away the portions they could carry for firewood. Two children took away a branch of considerable weight using a pair of wheels taken from a perambulator 06 01 06d-e # c.12 # c.18

1906 01 06
This week has died near Chatham an old man named Walter Tibball, said to have been a prosperous pork butcher of Cambridge. But nobody here remembers him. He had at one time been prosperous but was crossed in love and lived in as a hermit in a dirty hut in a meadow swarming with rats. There was a similar case at Cottenham six years ago; he too had an ill-fated love affair followed by fondness for spirituous liquors and lived in a squalid hut on his own bit of freehold. 06 01 06f

Coton carrier, p3 *
Field Hyde, p4
Adelaide death, p4

1906 01 08
Addenbrooke's Hospital fire – 06 01 08a & b & c # c.21.4 # c.34.75

Stretham suicide, p4*

1906 01 09
New Theatre & rag, p4 *

1906 01 12
Political strife led to rowdyism and disorder at Great Thurlow where the Liberal candidate was to have addressed a meeting. A member of the Conservative party distributed leaflets of an election song with a refrain that ran "Wait till the poll's gone by Quilter" which was quickly taken up. The vicar appealed for order to no effect. Then a message was received from the candidate whose motor car had been stopped by men with flags to say a hostile crowd was awaiting him. Not wanting to run the risk of having his motor lamps smashed he decided to turn back. 06 01 12 # c.33

1906 01 13
The University is deciding who shall be their representatives in parliament. But voting is not by secret ballot. Three polling stations are furnished with desks and packs of voting cards of different colours with a space for the voter's name, college and degree to be written. Two electors arrived together, one in academicals and the other cap and gownless. He had to wait until his companion had completed his business before borrowing his gown & thus be allowed to vote.06 0 13a&b # c.33 # c.36.9

1906 01 13
When the election meeting at Newnham concluded the candidate's carriage was drawn to the Conservative Club followed by a procession which included a couple of motor buses. Just as it reached Cambridge Market Hill a similar procession of demonstrating Liberals poured out of Petty Cury. These two bodies of citizens conceived an intense dislike for each other, shouting vigorously. A little later there was an exhibition of fisticuffs in Sidney Street 06 01 13 # c.33

1906 01 15
Kirtling trial, p3

1906 01 16
The polling box from Norfolk Street was the last to arrive at Cambridge Guildhall and with it came the story of a tactful police inspector who had piloted the carriage containing some hundreds of votes through a Petty Cury crowded with excited partisans. Inside the ballot papers were counted and it became known that Mr Buckmaster was elected. Mr Paget, with the generosity of an English gentleman, shook his hand and congratulated him on the victory 06 10 16b # c.33

1906 01 16
The newly-elected Cambridge Liberal MP, Mr Buckmaster, proceeded to the Bull Hotel. Hundreds upon hundreds thronged King's Parade and still hundreds more from Market Hill arrived, cheering as they came. When he appeared on the balcony the applause reached fever heat, handkerchiefs and hats were waved and he was informed that he was a jolly good fellow. At last, it seemed from very exhaustion, the people settled down to hear his speech. 06 01 16b # c.33

General election scenes – 06 01 16a, c, d; 06 01 22a & c

1906 01 18
Trials of motorist, p2
Duxford fire, p3
Victoria Road Congregational church organ, p3

1906 01 19
The Ely surveyor said he had examined the Prickwillow Road and found that for 140 chains between the Norwich gates and the Old Bank the road was badly cut up. For some months there had been exceptionally heavy traffic caused by Messrs R. Drake of Sutton's traction engines and wagons who had been making three or four journeys a week carting agricultural produce. 06 01 19

1906 01 20
An extraordinary incident at the Cambridge election left some Conservatives thinking their candidate had been elected. It may be that the white handkerchief waved from the window of the Guildhall seemed in the glare of the gaslight, to be a pink favour. Great was the jubilation, they cheered and they cheered and one gentleman commenced a congratulatory speech. The shock of the news that the seat had gone to Liberalism was therefore harder to bear when it arrived. Nevertheless the Conservatives gave their champion a stirring reception when he joined them – defeated or not. 06 01 20a # c.33

1906 01 20
The Liberal agent in a nearby town has always used a certain cottage as the committee rooms for parliamentary elections. He placarded the walls with various posters including the familiar design of 'the closed schools' referring to the disabilities of the Nonconformist teacher. But the cottage adjoins the National Schools and the managers ordered them out. When the Liberals refused to leave they told the tenant to lock the door and refuse to let them in again. This constitutes an infraction of electioneering law. Now the offending placards have been covered up and there is much peace in the cottage and much paste on the walls. 06 01 20b # c.33

1906 01 22
Newmarket is represented in Parliament by two MPs as it is in two different counties; residents of one side of the High Street are in Suffolk and will vote next week, the other Cambridgeshire. Here numerous carriages and carts drove electors to the polls. When a conveyance bearing a poster 'Vote for Guinness' passed through the streets cheers were at once raised but the motor car used on Mr Hardy's behalf was greeted with booing and hisses. One Conservative driver carried on the top of his silk 'topper' a loaf of bread, leaving electors to put their own construction on the meaning. 06 01 22b

Shelford meeting, p3 *

1906 01 24
Haverhill balloon, p4 *

1906 01 25
Addenbrooke's Hospital fire cause mystery, p2
Rag compensation claims – 06 01 19, 06 01 25a & b # c.34.6 # c.36.9
Candidates motor tour, p3

1906 01 26
Newmarket hoardings, p3 *

Shelford council school, p4 *

1906 01 27
Dr Hodgson former lecture psychical phenomenon America – spiritualism – 06 01 27b # GHOSTS
Ely election picture, p3*

1906 01 30
Bowtell, p2
Lodging house, p3 *
Atkinson, Clare 50 years, p3 *

1906 01 31
The new Cambridge Liberal Club premises in Downing Street includes an assembly room with a ladies gallery, reading, smoking and games rooms. But it has nothing that can compensate for the loss of the beautiful garden they enjoyed in their old home at Rance's Folly in St Andrew's Street. It will be formally opened by the Solicitor-General. 06 01 31a # c.33

1906 01 31
Saffron Walden Guardians were told the women from Romford in the Workhouse had asked for more sugar and tea, and also snuff. The men had an ounce of tobacco each week, which is what they had at Romford. But Walden inmates had only half that amount. All inmates ought to be treated the same 06 01 31b # WORKHOUSE

1906 01 31
The proposed bridge at Bartlow had been before the Council since 1901. The Rev. C.H. Brocklebank had offered to contribute £300 towards the erection of a bridge over the road stream. But it meant people would have to go half-a-mile further to church and a piece of land would be taken worth £500. They decided not to do anything until Bartlow and Hadstock parish councils had a meeting about it. 06 01 31c

February 1906 CDN

1906 02 01
Since January 15th when the Kirtling murderer was sentenced to death for the murder of his wife, three petitions praying for a reprieve have been prepared. One was signed by eleven of the jurors who served on the coroner's inquest. The jury had recommenced mercy as the man had been under the influence of drink. Now the Home Secretary will advise the King to commute the sentence to penal servitude for life. 06 02 01 # c.34.6

1906 02 01
Some councillors had taken exception to the bricks proposed to be used at the March Schools, saying they ought to come from inside the county. But Fletton bricks from the London Brick Company at Peterborough were cheaper than the Gildernburgh from Whittlesea. Mr Laxton of Ely had also offered bricks but failed to send samples and quotations. Nobody could say that the contractors did not have a fair trial 06 02 01b

1906 02 01
Addenbrooke's Hospital fire – further report on cause – 06 02 01a # c.21.4

1906 02 02
A London carpenter was charged with driving a motor car at greater speed than was reasonable and proper. PC Aworth said he saw a car turn into Hobson Street, Cambridge and put on speed. "The car went 30 mph, if fact I never saw a motor car go faster", he said. In turning the corner at Sussex Street the wheels went for some distance along the pavement. Harry Stearn, a photographer, said he was walking in the gutter and had to jump on the path to save himself. The driver was fined 50s. 06 02 02a

1906 02 02
Ely boys birched for sweet stealing – Creaks – 06 02 02b

1906 02 03
The length of time over which General Elections are spread is protracted beyond all reason. Before the advent of motor cars considerable time was needed to enable a candidate to make himself known to the electorate but now a week would answer all purposes. A general election could then be over in nine days instead of three weeks and the polling occupy three days instead of a fortnight. 06 02 03a # c.33

1906 02 03
Years ago it was not uncommon for the poorer classes of agricultural labourers to eat rats. Last week West Wratting went a-ratting, and seven young men had a rat supper. They were members of a village club who meet over a village shop. The flavour can be compared to that of 'sweetened soap'. Rat pie is the best method of serving up the dish though rat curry would reduce the flavour. There is a 'yellow streak' which must be removed or nobody would go near the pie when cooked and on no account should the rats be full-grown as they are too strong in taste and smell. 06 02 03b

1906 02 03
Modern undergraduates' dress is a neat disorder. Flannel trousers, brogues, a fancy waistcoat, a shooting jacket and low golfing collar is the costume in which he lounges into his lectures or goes to the theatre in the evening. Dons are hardly known for their strict attention to the latest fashions but they have never known men so careless in their dress before. 06 02 03b # c.36.9

Shilling fund, p3

1906 02 05
Perowne, Corpus dies, p3

1906 02 06
Newmarket measles, p4

1906 02 07
Most people have seen gas works and will remember the great gaping mouths of the retorts, belching forth hungry flames and intense heat, where perspiring half-naked men laboriously shovelled-in coal and at the end of the process raked the cokes out under even more trying conditions. They could not work many hours at a stretch and needed much beer. Contrast this with the De Bronwer method which now obtains at the Cambridge gasworks and seems marvellously simple 06 02 07 & a & b # c.24.4

Sparrows, p2

1906 02 08
We deeply regret the death of Harry Cotterill Stearn of the famous Cambridge photographic firm. He asked to be laid at rest in the new cemetery, Newmarket Road, 'within sound of my work' – the commotion caused by the University boat races where for many years his slight figure has been familiar to successive generations of undergraduates. 06 02 08a # c.65.5

1906 02 08
The consecration of the land acquired for an additional burial ground at Over was performed by the Bishop. The need for an extra cemetery had been felt for some time, all the spaces in the churchyard having been filled. The trustees of Over town lands at length offered a piece ground adjoining the churchyard. The neighbouring clergy were present in strength and a tea for 120 people was held in the schoolroom. 06 02 08b

Liberal club opening, p3

1906 02 09
For some years the people attending the little Wesleyan chapel at the far end of Mill Road, Cambridge, have been inconvenienced by lack of space due to the growth of the neighbourhood. An idea has been afoot for some years to build a chapel to seat 380 people on the ground adjoining the present building. The land has been purchased and the plan is approaching maturity. It would not include a gallery at first but they were confident this would soon be needed.06 02 09a & b

1906 02 09
The extraordinary weather was experienced in all its bewildering variety. Thunder, lightning, hail, snow and a hurricane provided a new experience. Many pedestrians were blown over by the wind which swept over the mill at Chippenham with such suddenness that before the sails could be adjusted, the top of the mill was blown off. The storm travelled at a remarkable pace. It took less than an hour to travel from Leicester to Cambridge. 06 02 09c # c.12

1906 02 10
Undergraduate dress – 06 02 10a # c.36.9

1906 02 10
Sugar beet industry experiments, Essex – 06 02 10b # c.22.2

Telephones, p3
Gas, p3

1906 02 12
Harry Stearn funeral arrangements – 06 02 12d # c.65.5
Parliament fire, Oct 1834 – 06 02 12e

1906 02 12
A crowd of 300 packed Soham court to hear a case involving a heifer. It had been taken to the washlands on which Isleham parishioners are allowed to put their cattle but had later gone missing. The loser said: “When I went to bed I asked the Lord to show me my heifer, and he showed me it in John Collen’s ground”. But he swore it belonged to him, and his wife remembered it being born. The case lasted until 7.30, the court remaining crowed until judgement was given. 06 02 12a-c

Wickcliffe preacher, p3

1906 02 13
The Plough public house at Fen Ditton comprised three public rooms, a long room, stabling for 10 horses and three bedrooms. Weekly trade was about one barrel, three-dozen bottles of beer and about half-a-gallon of spirits. A new ferryboat had been built, following the recent sinking tragedy, but it would not be used until it had been inspected. Police objected to the renewal of the licence as there were four full-licenced houses and three ‘on’ beer houses for a village of 680 people including the Harvest Home beerhouse and the Long Reach on the opposite side of the river. 06 02 13a # c.27.4

1906 02 13
The Anchor, Swaffham Prior, had been closed since October on account of the tenant absconding. Since then it had been let to a man, whom the Star Brewery found had been convicted a few years back, and they did not propose to bring him forward as tenant. Magistrates asked whether it was worthwhile re-opening the house. The firm thinks it is; it is more for the convenience of anglers and boating people during the summer. The licence was renewed to the old tenant. 06 02 13b # c.27.4

1906 02 13
Licences – John Bull, Swaffham Prior; Plough, Bottisham; Hopbine, Cherry Hinton – 06 02 13c

New Theatre lost costumes, p3
Harlton fire. P3

1906 02 14
An extraordinary accident occurred in Queen Street, Haverhill. The Bell Hotel bus meets all trains arriving in the town and was conveying two commercial travellers to the hotel when it had to pass a van. The wheels came into contact, the fore part of the bus left the cab and the two portions parted. The driver was a little knocked about but the passengers crawled out none the worse for their adventure. One travelled in the glass and china trade and his stock suffered, though not so much as might have been expected.06 02 14

1906 02 15
Sidney Lack, the champion cyclist, has been suspended by the National Cycling Union and his licence cancelled, after taking part in a race at Wellingborough. Local crowds will be sorry if he is unable to compete as an amateur again. He was a great favourite, largely because of his reputation for riding 'straight'. But he has been approached by the British agent of the Paris Velodrome with a view to a career as a professional cyclist in Paris 06 02 15 # c.38 : cycling

1906 02 17
Wellington St fire, p3

1906 02 19
Wellington St fire, p3

1906 02 21
Emmanuel St, p2
Royston shop fire, p3

1906 02 22
In 1901 an agreement was made with Emmanuel College for the closing of Emmanuel Street and the opening of a new one nearer Christ's Lane. It had been needed when electric trams were being planned to remedy a dangerous corner with St Andrew's Street – but there would be a more dangerous corner to the proposed new street. Now some councillors called for the agreement to be cancelled. However the council had entered a binding contract and they were honour-bound to carry it out.06 02 22a,b,c # c.44.6

1906 02 22
Steam fire engine approved – 06 02 22a # c.34.75

1906 02 23
Baby found garden, Ashwell – 06 02 23a
King's Lane scheme – 06 02 23b # c.44.6

1906 02 28
A sad fatality occurred at Jesus College. A Freshman was engaged in cleaning with benzoline a pair of gloves, which he was wearing on his hands and arms when the gloves took fire from a lighted candle. Help was near at hand and a doctor was promptly in attendance, but the shock was so great that despite every attention he sank rapidly and died in little more than an hour. The deceased should have rowed in the Lent Races but in consequence of the accident the Jesus boats did not take part. 06 02 28a # c.36.9 Inquest: 06 03 01a

1906 02 28
The Vicar of Royston claimed five shillings from the International Tea Company as a tithe on their premises in the High Street. An Act of Charles II specified houses that should pay, but this was no longer occupied as a dwelling-house. However Joseph Archer had it as a saddler's shop until the International took it, and he'd paid the tithe. Dovecotes and warehouses were also rateable. 06 02 28a & b

J.H. Clements, J.A. Dimock, p3

March 1906 CDN

1906 03 01
An assault-at-arms at the Conservative Hall, Soham, included a ten-round boxing contest between 'Happy' Pinfield of Newmarket and 'Porkie' Archer of Soham. Pinfield proved himself the best boxer and hardly a minute had elapsed ere Archer had enough; he dodged through the ropes and hit behind the screen amidst the laughter of the spectators. Later Steve Canty guaranteed to defeat three men in nine rounds, but only two accepted the challenge and were quickly disposed of. 06 03 01b # c.38 : boxing

Police chief, p2
Emmanuel St, p3
Jesus college fatality, p3 *
New Chesterton Institute, p3

1906 03 02
A widow employed as servant by the Vicar of Poslingfield was dismissed and took lodgings in the house of Mrs Rawlinson, the village baker. Shortly afterwards the vicar cancelled his order for bread and this has caused gossip. The vicar says that although the baker is a dissenter he did his best to help them, contrary to the custom in other villages. But they had tried to make mischief so he exercised his right to place his custom where he wished.
06 03 02

Passive resisters, p3

1906 03 03
Sir – for the past two Saturday afternoons a young Freshman has been disporting himself on a motor bicycle, making a circuit of the main thoroughfares of Cambridge, starting from Jesus Lane and ending at the Catholic Church, taking in Petty Cury and the Market Place. Being market-day the already too-congested streets are filled with many country folk, ladies and children, both on foot and on bicycles. He evidently likes to hear the sound of his hooter and the stench from his machine is disgusting. L.P.C. Macquaid. 06 03 03 # c.26.485

Steeplechases, p4
Liberal meeting, p4
Church Army home, p4
Trams, p4

1906 03 06
The postmistress at Great Bradley told the court that a labourer had come into her shop, asked for a half-pennyworth of peppermints and wanted change for half a sovereign. But she did not have sufficient silver. Later he returned and asked for a ten-shilling postal order and gone out with it. He never offered her the sight of either silver or gold. The prisoner's mother said that at the rise of the leaf and the autumn of the year her son's head always went wrong as a result of a kick. 06 03 06 # POST OFFICE

1906 03 07
Two Steeple Morden labourers were summoned for damaging a fence on election day. Witnesses said they had thrown stones at a window and pulled down 27 feed of palings, a charge they denied. The magistrates said: the proceedings were perfectly disgraceful; because there happens to be an election it does not justify people in doing as they like. One man was fined 30 shillings and jocularly asked the other if he could lend him a sovereign to pay. 06 03 07 # c.33

1906 03 07
The Dolphin public house in Draper Row, Newmarket was old and in bad repair but was very convenient for the class of people who used it. They sometime put up 20 people a night, chiefly hawkers, and charged fourpence to sixpence each. During race nights 30 to 40 people slept there, magistrates were told. It provided a home for people who were struggling and had to get the utmost value for their money 06 03 07a & c # c.27.4 also Two Brewers, Albion Stores

1906 03 08
The Battle of Haggis and Dumpling Farms took place on Wednesday. They stand on either side of the road from Coton to Grantchester and here the Cambridge and Oxford University Rifle Volunteer Corps engaged in an interesting encounter. About 1,800 combatants included cadets from the Leys and County Boys Schools, with mounted infantry and cycle contingents on both sides. The rifle fire was continuous and maxim guns added their sinister bark to the noise. Fortunately the weather was fine. 06 03 08a & b # c.45.4

1906 03 08
The Beehive public house, Honey Hill, Cambridge had four rooms on the ground floor, including a parlour and a taproom for the use of customers. There was a front entrance from Honey Hill and a side entrance which also gave access to four cottages. It was therefore impossible for the police to maintain proper supervision as a constable would be seen going down there and people could slip out. There were 15 other public houses within 200 yards.
Also: Golden Cross, Suffolk Hotel Grafton St, White Horse Coronation St, Sun in Sun St, Star in Castle St, Boot in King St 06 03 08c & d # c.27.4

1906 03 08
A miniature rifle range for Morris tube practice opened on the premises of Mr W.H. Rickwood. It is central, comfortable and contains all the essential points of a good range, making it a valuable addition to the equipment of the Ely Volunteers. To make the Empire safe it was important that every man could shoot and shoot straight. Capt Stuart, the new Militia adjutant formally opened it by firing down the range and Lieut Bullock also shot.06 03 08e # c.45.4

1906 03 09
A boy from Prickwillow was summoned for placing a sleeper on the railway line. He'd left Cole's farm and walked along the wire fence till he came to Palmer's crossing and went to Fryart's about a piece of bicycle, passing a pile of sleepers. Police found footprints of boots which were nailed peculiarly; these matched those the lad was wearing. He said "I did it for a lark. Don't lock me up, please". 06 03 09 # c.26.2

1906 03 10
The John Bull beer house, Swaffham Prior, contained two public rooms and stabling for four horses, it was 34 yards from the Red Lion, a full-license house. Mr Bulman had held the licence since 1898. Lacons had purchased it in 1901 The trade was over two barrels a week as well as ginger wine, which was very good for a beer house, there had been no complaints and it was well-conducted. The licence was renewed. 06 03 10 others: Blue Boar Grantchester, King William Willingham, Plough Cottenham – 06 03 10a

1906 03 10
At Shepreth a path runs diagonally across the football pitch and when a lady is passing the game ceases; players no longer rush madly after a football as the vision of beauty passes on her way. But in Royston 22 men were held up by a bulldog who followed the ball to the six-yard line where he stood with his nose glued to the leather sphere. The goalie refused to kick off with the dog so close while the spectators laughed. Presently a fashionable steeplechase jockey carried it off by its collar 06 03 10b

1906 03 10
The Red Cow, Landbeach, sold half a barrel and six dozen bottles of beer a week. A share-out club with 65 members met there fortnightly. Within 760 paces there were 47 private houses and four licensed pubs. The British Queen, with better accommodation, was nearby. The population of the village was 413 and allowing for 78 school children, there was a licensed house to every 67 adults. There were cottages at the back which provided facilities for secret drinking, especially as the house stood back 15 yards from the road. But the landlord was a teetotaller who did not encourage this.
Also: Carrier's Cart Shelford, Haunch of Mutton & Plough & Horses Waterbeach, Rose & Crown Willingham, Hare & Hounds Over, Dolphin Stapleford, 06 03 10c & d # c.27.4
County licences – Blue Boar Grantchester, King William Willingham, Plough Comberton, 06 03 10a # c.27.4

Football, p4 *
Cat & cycle tyres, p4 *

1906 03 12
Landbeach – county licences, p4 *

1906 03 13
Swaffham Prior, John Bull, p4 *

1906 03 14
Burwell passive resisters, p4

1906 03 15
A difference of opinion has arisen between parents of children and the Managers of the Morley Memorial Schools over the practice of opening afternoon school at 1.45 instead of two o'clock. One mothers say it is highly inconvenient: "My husband comes home to dinner at ten minutes past one; we sit down to eat five minutes later and my children have to 'bolt' their dinner and rush straight off to be at school by twenty to two. I'm sure it does them no good." But the managers say parents had asked for the change. 06 03 15 & 15a # c.36.5

1906 03 15
A couple from Barkway Road, Royston were charged with neglecting their children. They were very badly clad, with old ragged shirts that were blackened and filthy and vermin running all over their bodies. The house appeared very dirty: there was an iron bedstead with very little bedding where the four children slept. The wife had been laid up with influenza, otherwise she would have bathed the children; the husband earned 15 shillings a week and there were eight in the family. 06 03 15a # CHILDREN

1906 03 15
The militia assembled at Ely barracks for training. Recruit numbers are a record: it provides men with a healthy enjoyable holiday and brings them in winter, when wages are low and work scarce, a bounty which must prove acceptable. They are paid a shilling a day, a sum that scores of farm labourers would regard as munificent. They also receive certain articles of clothing and boots which they are allowed to retain and last till the next training. The barracks have a pleasant recreation room and good food, regular hours, drill and discipline improve the men both physically and morally. 06 03 15d # c.45.4

History of Cottenham by C.H. Evelyn-White 06 03 15b-c # COTTENHAM

1906 03 16
Witchford proposed new road 06 03 16 # c.44.65
Prickwillow train wrecking, p3

1906 03 17
Skating – King's Cup – Tebbitt, p2
Le Queux novel, p2
Local brewing trade, p3

1906 03 20
Burwell road, p4

1906 03 21
Since 1886 the parish of St Andrew the Less has theoretically been richer by the sum of £5,299 through the munificence of Frederick Bailey, a well-known brewer who resided at Burleigh House, Newmarket Road. Up to the present the riches have conferred no practical benefit but now a scheme has been formulated and income will flow to the relief of poor residents. There is also to be a commemoration service on his birthday. Now a poor parish will receive a substantial charity and the memory of a generous benefactor will be kept green for many an age. 06 03 21a & b # c.32.9

Frederick Bailey charity 06 03 21b # c.32.9

1906 03 23
Linton health, p4

1906 03 24
The smoke helmet purchased for the use of the Cambridge fire brigade is similar to a diving helmet. The upper part is made of still glazed leather fitted with square eyeglasses, the lower part is buckled tightly round the neck. Two tubes are fixed to the mouthpiece attached to a bellows worked by a colleague, which supplies a continuous current of fresh air. There is also a speaking tube. It will be useful for entering rooms filled with smoke as well as sewers and wells where foul gases may be encountered. 06 03 24a # c.34.75

1906 03 24
When Albert Tebbitt was handed the King's Cup by the President of the National Skating Association he was without progeny. But within 24 hours he became the father of a sturdy boy. His own father, when 50 years of age, was still a formidable opponent and it was predicted that any son of his would become a future champion. A few jokes were cracked about a future young Tebbitt skating gaily away to the North Pole. It is possible that the glacier age may arrive during the lifetime of the latest addition to this athletic family and the predictions be quite within the bounds of probability. 06 03 24a # c.38 : skating

Wyatt Passive resisters, p3
Stuntney horses, p4

1906 03 27
When Cambridgeshire magistrates started the task of extinguishing licences of public houses thought to be superfluous the offers of compensation were accepted in all but three cases. These were the Wait for the Bus at Bottisham, the Sir Harry Smith at Swavesey and the King's Head, Oakington, all owned by Hudson's Brewery of Pampisford. Now the Inland Revenue Commissioners have awarded larger sums for two, but reduced the amount offered for the Wait for the 'Bus from £355 down to £120. Now the brewery may appeal 06 03 27a # c.27.4

1906 03 28
Dr Bushell Anningson has served as Cambridge Medical Officer of Health since 1875. Then the whole sewerage was most unsatisfactory and 800 houses in Sturton Town had only middens and cesspools. 2,000 houses had no water supply other than pumps or wells – in many cases contaminated with sewage – and there were no arrangements to cope with a serious epidemic. Household refuse was collected by private individuals who did the work for what they could get out of it. They used donkey carts which were emptied in their own backyards in the neighbourhood of Gas Lane where it was examined for saleable material such as bones and cinders. 06 03 28a # c.21.1 # c.29.8

Isleham resisters, p3
Rampton history, p4
Ely quoits, p4

1906 03 29
Post office salaries, p3

1906 03 31
The owner of the Holme Wood Estate went to court to restrain four undergraduates from trespassing on his land to catch moths. They had arrived on the reclaimed mere with elaborate paraphernalia for luring unwary insects to their doom and remained twelve days, to the annoyance of gamekeepers. They swung lanterns in the pheasant covers, placed 'sticky stuff' on trees and erected a sheet on the roadway. They were fined one shilling.
06 03 31 & a # c.19 # c.36.9

April 1906 CDN

1906 04 02
Patrick Canty was born in County Kerry and fought at Sebastopol during the Crimean campaign when he went to the rescue of a French general and was awarded the Legion of Honour, one of the few Irishmen to have received that medal. He emigrated to the USA before coming to Cambridge as licensee of the Crown and Harp pub in John Street. 06 04 02 # c.45.4

1906 04 03
Nonconformity meeting, p3

1906 04 04
According to a Government expert who was sent down to inquire into last year's outbreak of typhoid at Fulbourn there is a 'potentiality of danger' that the water supply of Cambridge might become contaminated with the Asylum sewage. Their present system is antiquated - it is irrigated over grass land and may percolate through the soil into the vast subterranean lake beneath from which the Water Company pumps their supplies. We do not want even the 'potentiality of danger': the public health is too serious a matter about which to take any risks whatever. 06 04 04 # c.24.2

Pauperism, p3

1906 04 05
Lord de Ramsey's notice to all the allotment holders on his Huntingdonshire estates has caused a sensation. He writes: "For 19 years I have endeavoured to improve the conditions of the working householders in those parishes where I own land. I have 44 fields set out in 1072 allotments and have established small holdings. But there have been insinuations of over-renting, favouritism and such charges so the scheme must be abandoned." 06 04 05 # c.22

1906 04 06
Rev S. Newling, a nonconformist minister of Isleham is spending a week in the Cambridge county gaol for non-payment of the educational portion of the poor rate. Magistrates issued a distress warrant but he had made over all his worldly goods to his wife, so he was committed to prison. It is expected that when he is released he will be met at the prison gates by several prominent members of the Free Church Council. 06 04 06 # PASSIVE RESISTERS

1906 04 07
The motor omnibus has now had a fair trial on the streets of London and has shown its worth despite more vibration, noise and smell than the electric tramcar. It is quicker and subject to less obstruction than a vehicle on rails. The liability to fire, the unpleasant smell and noise are receiving the attention of engineers and the future prospect is that the 'Mobus' will become assistants and feeders to all classes of rail vehicles. 06 05 07a # c.26.46

1906 04 07
A serious accident occurred on the Great Eastern Railway at Shippea Hill station. The engine attached to the Norwich-London express jumped the line, the coach following reared up on end and fell down the bank into the ditch, breaking the telegraph wires. The second coach was hurled down the bank on the opposite side and the third, fourth and fifth coaches left the lines. Three passengers were injured, two seriously, but all had a miraculous escape from death. The line was completely blocked and a breakdown gang was speedily conveyed to restore communication. The passengers were send on by special train 06 04 07b # c.26.2

1906 04 07
The Isleham Baptist pastor was sentenced to seven days in Cambridge county gaol but only served four. Having entered on Monday evening he was released on Saturday, as they do not keep a prisoner over the Sunday. He brought out with him a huge lump of the brown bread that formed the chief article of his diet: it was served with tea for breakfast, with soup for dinner and cocoa for supper. 06 04 07c-d # c.34.6 # PASSIVE

1906 04 09
A fatality occurred at the portion of the river known as Paradise; two nurses from Addenbrooke's Hospital hired a Canadian canoe but it overturned and they were precipitated into the water. One clung to the boat and with the aid of a pair of horse reins was brought to the bank. A man pluckily jumped into the river after the other nurse but the depth of the water – about 15 feet – made it impossible for him to reach her. Eventually the clothing of the unfortunate lady was hooked but she had obviously succumbed. 06 04 09d # c.46.5

1906 04 09
Shippea Hill train crash 06 04 09a # c.26.2

1906 04 10
George Edward Foster was the principal partner in the banking firm of Foster and Co which was amalgamated with the Capital and Counties Bank. He never married and concentrated his whole energies on the undertaking which attained great dimensions through his skilful direction. His wealth enabled him to be munificent to an unusual degree. When St Andrew's Street Baptist Church was replaced he gave £1,500 towards the new structure 06 04 10a # c.32.8

1906 04 10
A report on the health of Royston reveals four cases of scarlet fever, five cases of diphtheria and two of typhoid occurred last year but there have been no deaths from diarrhoea since 1899. Several dilapidated or insanitary cottages were repaired or improved, 21 houses erected and 15 connected with the sewer. A fish-frying establishment on Fish Hall had been the subject of complaint but measured had been taken to raise the chimney 06 04 10c

1906 04 10
Education bill – opinions – 06 04 10b # PASSIVE

1906 04 12
Ely should provide better accommodation for the horse and cattle fairs now held in the public streets. The horse fair was very dangerous and the cattle fair a nuisance in more ways than one. They did not want to take the fair away, just make it more respectable. If St Ives could do it, why not Ely? But what was the use of providing a field if they could not compel people to go to it. Councillors decided to take no action 06 04 12d & e # c.27.3

1906 04 12
Everitt accident – 06 04 12a-c # WILBURTON

1906 04 14
'Hare scramble and bottle-kicking' custom, Hallaton – 06 04 14 # c.39
Photo Backs, p3
Hepzibal Constable, Stretham, dies, p3 *

1906 04 16
Lieut-Col Wm Browne Ferris, was appointed Chief Constable of the Isle of Ely in 1879. His death has removed a smart soldier, an excellent officer and a man who gained the loyal, whole-hearted confidence of every member of the force. Born in Belfast he was gazetted to the Suffolk Regiment and served in India before being appointed adjutant of the Ely Militia in 1875. 06 04 16 # c.34.6

1906 04 16
One of the most important activities of Friendly Societies is the provision of skilled medical advice in time of sickness. Cambridge Medical Association was formed in 1883 with a membership of 1,740 and one medical officer. It now serves 7,350 and has engaged two and sometimes three. It is important to keep good doctors: you must treat them as gentlemen and their services should be made as pleasant as possible 06 04 16a # c.21.1

1906 04 18
A ten-year-old boy of Fordham made a gruesome discovery whilst watching the waters of the river Snail near Dobede Hole. He noticed what appeared to be a bag floating on the water and, boy-like, started pelting the object with stones. Other lads joined in the fun but eventually an older boy drew the parcel out with a fork and discovered the decomposed body of a child and a piece of brick. PC Ellwood removed it to a shed at the Chequers Inn. 06 04 18

1906 04 18
An alarming railway accident occurred at Ramsey on the branch line to Holme. A train of four coaches, full of people, did not pull up as usual but ran past the platform at a speed of 20 mph. Against the buffer stop there were two horse boxes and with a terrific impact, heard a mile off, the train dashed into them. The engine was damaged but the coaches were not derailed though the passengers were terribly shaken. 06 04 18a # c.26.2

1906 04 19
'Cambridge for Cantabrigians' was a sentiment voiced by two prominent men. W.B. Redfern objected to looking outside the county when appointing a new council surveyor while Mr A.S. Campkin said Cambridge tradesmen were being ousted by large combinations of non-resident traders. Money spent in the shops of genuine local tradesmen remains in the town; already many find it hard work to keep their heads above water. 06 04 19a # c.27.2

1906 04 19

Cambridge Borough Surveyor bought a new watering van at a cost of £52. They had 11 vans but four were unfit to travel as the wheels would not go round. With the sudden arrival of hot weather there was not one fit for use. They should have been overhauled at the end of the season. But scavenging in two districts had been let out to contractors and the vans belonging to the council were in their hands. 06 04 19b # c.21.1

1906 04 19
Collins Passage, off Northampton Street, consisted of a number of very dilapidated houses closely packed together. They had low ceilings and the floor was insecure. There was no ventilation behind and a high brick wall at the front so they got no sun at all except for half-an-hour at the height of summer. They were unfit for human habitation. A good many other premises in the area were defective but did not justify wholesale demolition. 06 04 19c # c.23 # c.21.1

1906 04 20
The gipsy fraternity visited Linton police court to hear some of their brethren answer charges of having inflicted malicious damage. One night 161 palings were broken from a fence at Horseheath shortly after their vans had passed. Policemen visited the camp and saw a large quantity of the wood beside a large common fire. The gypsies said it belonged to a man who had moved on; they were fined 5s. 06 04 20abc # GYPSY

1906 04 21
River trips, p3

1906 04 23
No one who has seen the courts of many of the old colleges in early summer, well furnished with window-boxes full of luxuriant plants can deny they add greatly to their beauty. There is not much variety in the contents: usually geraniums, calceolarias and Paris daisies, while lobelia hangs down from them in long trails. In winter small shrubs, generally variegated, are used. 06 04 23a # c.18

1906 04 23
Histon Salvation Army opened its new hall. For the last three years they have been without a meeting place but a site becoming vacant in a prominent position near the village green, great endeavours were made to obtain it. The small but convenient hall was built by those the Army had rescued at Hansbury Street Shelter and presents a neat and attractive appearance. 06 04 23b

1906 04 24
News that the Cambridge water supply might be polluted by sewage from Fulbourn Asylum has spread alarm and is getting the town into disfavour. More than one anxious father or mother as they read the report in 'The Times' will decide "We must send Jack to Oxford" and we fear that the entrance at the University next academic year will suffer considerably. No trace of contamination has been discovered up to present but even the possible risk must be removed. 06 04 24 # c.24.2

1906 04 27
Sid Lack of Histon, whose exploits on the cycle track are famous, has left Cambridge for America. Mr Lack, who filled the position of second engineer at Chivers' factory, aims at finding more scope in his vocation and for a time will be engaged in a motor car business at Boston. He has at present no intention of taking up racing over there. 06 04 27 # c.38 : cycling # c.26.485

Royston tithes, p2
Decline of coaching, p2

1906 04 28
Tripos etc, p4
California earthquake, p4

May 1905 CDN

1906 05 01
The main features of Mr Asquith's budget are one penny per lb off the tea duty, duty on tobacco reduced by threepence, cheaper postal orders and no change in Income Tax. This is quite a humdrum budget, pandering to the working classes. A Cambridge resident engaged in the tea trade says it won't benefit the really poverty-stricken people who only buy ounces of tea at a time and tobacco dealers say that cheap tobacco will be of better quality, rather than leading to a reduction in price. 06 05 01b & c

1906 05 01
Artificers Guild handicraft revival – 06 05 01a
Rescue, p4

1906 05 02
Newmarket RDC read a letter enclosing a resolution passed unanimously at a large parish meeting at Wesley Waterless: "We wish to draw the attention of the Government and local authorities to our excessive rates which tend to depress the district, and make employment scarce. We also consider that the cost of education should be taken off the rates, and charged to imperial taxation". (Laughter, and hear, hear) 06 05 02

1906 05 03
The University discussed proposals to restructure the Mathematical Tripos; the competitive nature should be abolished and instead of publishing the names in order of merit from the Senior Wrangler downwards they should be given in alphabetical order in three divisions – Wranglers, Senior Optimes and Junior Optimes. But the order of merit was the greatest stimulant to continued exertion and a great advertisement for the university. Prof J.J. Thompson said pure mathematics was of very little use. Numbers had decreased until last year there were only 56 taking the examination 06 05 03 # c.36.9

1906 05 04
Shippea Hill theft of hens – 06 05 04 wranglers, p2

1906 05 07
Balfour at Cambridge, p4

1906 05 08
Mr E. Finch was delivering milk on Milton Road when a motor car ran into his cart and horse. They were thrown upon the path, the cart was badly damaged and the horse severely cut about the knees. The lad in charge of the cart was also thrown out. The car, which was travelling at a good pace, did not escape without injury: two lamps and a mudguard were broken and the fore part considerably bent about. An amicable arrangement has been agreed whereby the motorist will defray all damages. 06 05 08b

1906 05 08
Mr H.C. Banham has launched a motor boat service on the Cam. Last season he ran trips to Clayhithe with steam launches but now 'The Enterprise' has been specially built to carry 50 people. The body is of oak with a snug cabin with glass superstructure where one can retire when winds are too boisterous. It is powered by a twelve horse power engine giving speeds of 7½ mph without any of the 'blacks' given off by a steam launch and an entire absence of smell. It glides through the water so smoothly one can forget there is any motive power on board.06 05 08c & d # c.26.3

1906 05 08

Water colour exhibition by M.C. Greene, A.G. Chataway, A.J. Pertz & M. Watson of the Garden Studio, St Andrew's Street – 06 05 08a # c.64

1906 05 09
A most regrettable accident occurred at Ely Conservative Club garden party to inaugurate the new Morris Tube range and bowling green. Part of the proceedings consisted of a shooting competition for ladies on the indoor miniature range. A number had shot when a rifle held by Mrs J.S. Barnett accidentally exploded and the bullet struck her husband in the neck while he was writing his wife's name on the target. Fortunately the wound was not serious but it spread horror and dismay over the gathering 06 05 09b # c.45.4 # c.38 : shooting

1906 05 09
W.H. Hayles lectures on antiquarian curiosities of Cambridgeshire – photos – 06 05 09a # c.65.5

Death in gaol, p3 *

1906 05 11
Risk to Cambridge water supply of contamination from Fulbourn sewage – 06 05 11

1906 05 12
Stourbridge Fair was once very important but now was of very small dimension. The council took a toll of 4d for each horse, 2d for each pony and 1d for a cow. They also got money from the roundabouts and shows, making £33. But they had the expense of opening the fair, which meant a couple of carriages. Most of the fair was held on the side of Garlic Row but now there was a scheme for bringing a road right through from the Newmarket Road. Mr Banyard had started to erect some house and wanted to stop fair people putting their vans upon his ground. 06 05 12c &d # c.27.3

1906 05 12
One of the most disgraceful 'rags' occurred a few days ago. An undergraduate had been celebrating his birthday by giving a party to his intimates where they dined too well. Shortly before midnight the raiders returned to the room but their victim had not retired and succeeded in repelling the onslaught. Later they came back, breaking and destroying indiscriminately. The graduate was a great traveller and his room contained many valuable Eastern trophies which he had collected in out-of-the-way parts of the world. 06 05 12a # c.36.9

1906 05 12
Buy a motor car with a name – Darrac, from Howard of Kirtling – advert – 06 05 12b # c.26.48
Laurie advert, p2
Mormons, p4 *

1906 05 14
The most gigantic and destructive fire seen in Newmarket for many years broke out at Stanley House, the training establishment of the Hon. George Lambton. In spite of the smoke and heat the horses were removed to other stables. Crowds journeyed up the Bury Road to watch. No sooner had chests of drawers containing clothes been removed from the buildings than a number of thieves got to work and several of the lads lost their clothes. All that remains standing of half the magnificent block of stables, one of the finest in the district, was the walls. 06 05 14 & a b # c.38 : horseracing

1906 05 15
Cottenham and the telephone – 06 05 15 # c.27.7
Card sharps, p3

1906 05 17

An agreement had been made between the Borough Council and Emmanuel College for the closure of Emmanuel Street and the creation of a new road further north. As a result the college had taken no steps to erect new buildings on the site of two dilapidated houses that had been pulled down and had lost ground rent for several years. Now the council had changed its mind. They should make compensation by providing, free of cost, a subway to link college property on either side of Emmanuel Street 06 05 17b & c # c.44.6 # c.49.62

1906 05 17
Cambridge councillors compared costs for a motor propelled steam fire engine against one pulled by a horse. They had approached insurance companies for a contribution towards the capital expenditure but they replied that it should be paid from the rates. It was proposed that a horse-propelled fire engine should be obtained from Messrs Shand, Mason and Co, at a cost of £410 06 05 17a # c.34.75

Fulbourn bells, p3

1906 05 19
About 500 day trippers from Manchester poured into Cambridge, attracting much attention. Most were obviously north-country lads and lasses, the lads in tweed clothes and caps, the lasses in more daring colours than usually seen, and all with an accent broad enough to span the Cam. " 'Aw, lad, but this is bonny little toon", said one to another. The Cam was prettier than their Ship Canal. It proved a greater attraction than the colleges and the visitors took practically sole possession of it. 06 05 19a # c.46.45

1906 05 19
Cambridge station fatal accident, horse shunter – 06 05 19b # c.26.2
Wicken School, p3

1906 05 21
'Kleno' is a liquid cleanser for domestic and industrial use manufactured in Broad Street, Cambridge. Chemical changes take place in a locked room before it is refined in a series of vats from which it emerges clear and bright. The bottle washing apparatus is worked by steam and the factory has its own warehouses making packing cases ready for despatch. It is a matter of satisfaction that the factory has been established here, for it involves the employment of more labour and all the benefits of a growing industry. 06 05 21a b c # c.27.1

1906 05 26
Cambridge General Benefit Society has taken over the Orwell Society which has a membership of 83. A branch has been revived at Waterbeach but the one at Duxford has been without a local manager for some time. They now admit juveniles and women almost on the same terms as men. A history of the society has been written by the Rev J.W.E. Conybeare which shows it is one of the oldest and soundest in the country. 06 05 26a & b # c.37.2

1906 05 26
Two large meetings of Cambridge church people passed resolutions strongly condemning the Government's Education Bill. The Bishop of Ely said the dying of church schools would only be a matter of time. Religion was the only part of education worth having, the great question was how it would be taught. The Bill denied parents the liberty to have their children educated in the faith which they themselves held. 06 05 26d e f # c.36 # C.83

1906 05 26
Condition of Cam – dredging etc - 06 05 26c # c.46.5
Greek, p3

June 1906 CDN

1906 06 02
On Thursday Prof Sims Woodhead declared positively that all whisky is poison and the following day Sir James Dewar, Professor of Chemistry, admitted that he has consumed barrels of this poison. He said the variety of whisky depends on the state of your health and what you are doing, some made you miserable even on small quantities. For 30 years he has drunk Cambus Scotch whisky, a patent-still product, and has never found any ill-effects. 06 06 01a # c.27.4

1906 06 02
One evening the boots at the Castle Hotel, Cambridge, beckoned a cab from the nearby rank and a lady and gentleman in evening dress stepped in. 'The New Theatre' said the gentleman and the cabby quickly crossed the road to the theatre opposite. One shilling was tendered as the fare but the cabby demanded the full amount of 1s 6d. His actions over such a remarkably short drive were sharply criticised but it is only fair to remember that he lost his position on the rank 06 06 01b # c.26.46 # TAXI

1906 06 02
The income from a professional beggar is often the subject of speculation. A blind man writes: "For more than 30 years I have been dependent on the Cambridge public for my daily bread. A rumour says that I have been made very good offers to cease standing in the streets. The Guardians did offer me 10s a week in 1886 but I had a wife and four young children and this would not have found us a home and the necessaries required for six people". It would appear that the charitably disposed of Cambridge have saved the rates over £500! 06 06 01c # c.32.9 # BLIND

1906 06 04
An inquest was held into the sad circumstances of the death of Police Inspector Sampson of Bottisham whose leg was crushed beneath a traction engine after a fall from a bicycle. He was free-wheeling down Allington Hill when he encountered Messrs Sturton's traction engine going down the centre of the road. His bicycle wobbled, he swerved and fell off under the wheels 06 06 04a # c.34.6

1906 06 04
A Government Inspector's report into the derailment of a passenger train near Shippea Hill on April 7th concluded it was caused by unduly high speed over a portion of track under repair. At Cambridge Assizes a 15-year old boy from Prickwillow was indicted for having placed a sleeper on the railway line near Ely on the evening of March 6th. It was hit by the Norwich train and carried for a mile and a quarter 06 06 04b, 06 06 04c, d # c.26.2

Wisbech grower libel, p3 *

1906 06 05
When the Wesleyan chapel in Romsey Town was erected in Hemingford Road, space was left for a more commodious structure. The new chapel of which Mr W. Wren of Castle Street is the architect is designed in the Queen Anne style with utility, rather than elaborate decoration; nevertheless the building with its cathedral-like windows will be a considerable addition to the notable buildings of that end of Mill Road. 06 06 05 # c.83

1906 06 06
Albert Whitehead, fruiterer of Burleigh Street told the court that his shop had been broken into and 90 oranges taken. Four schoolboys were charged with the theft – they had taken them to the gala ground on Midsummer Common and sold them. Two of the lads had very bad characters and were sentenced to receive 12 strokes with the birch. 06 06 06

1906 06
Newmarket now possesses a splendidly-built and equipped miniature rifle range in the Drill Hall paddock. There is a need for a band of national defenders, and with the present Government in power and the War Office in its present state, the main defence of the country would be the Volunteer rifle-shooters. The Newmarket club now had 100 members. The range was opened by Lady Cooper who scored a bull's eye with a rifle which had been placed on a rest for her. 06 06 06 & a

Arts & Crafts Society formed, p3

1906 06 08
Dr A.H. Mann, the University organist and chorus master, completed 30 years work in Cambridge. He was appointed organist of King's College in 1876, coinciding with the founding of the new choir school and important changes in the musical services at the chapel. They hoped his tenure of office at King's would match that of his predecessors – Dr Pratt (55 years) and Dr Randall, 66. 06 06 08a # c.69

1906 06 09
A serious fire at Barton Rectory resulted in the picturesque old two-storey structure being completely gutted. Mrs Monkhouse, the vicar's wife, who is an invalid, was in bed and it was with difficulty that she was aroused in time to make a hasty escape in her sleeping apparel. Mr Robinson cycled to Cambridge to give the alarm at the Fire Station. A plentiful water supply was available from the village pond but it was evident the building would be gutted and it was left to burn itself out. The church books and plate were rescued but a servant's bicycle was reduced to scrap iron. 06 06 09a

1906 06 09
Cambridge has surrendered to May Week visitors very completely. These pretty butterflies, who transform our mundane streets into kaleidoscope scenes of colour and animation, mean increased profit for the tradesman and are a source of joy to the lodging-house keeper. They must have somewhere to lay their heads, dainty dinners and mayonnaise for supper. They cause money to circulate and many is the summer holiday they provide for the householders who provide rooms for their comfort. 06 06 09b # c.36.9

1906 06 09
Wisbech death of Edward Miles, England's oldest actor – 06 06 09b # c.76
Littleport suicide schoolmaster of Fen and Dairyhouses School – 06 06 09b & c

1906 06 11
Funeral James Day, Wicken

1906 06 12
A crowd of dons and undergraduates congregated in the Senate House to learn who had gained the coveted distinction of Senior Wrangler but those who were expected to obtain good positions awaited in the seclusion of their rooms the news brought by friends. The examiners stood in the gallery holding the fateful papers in their hands and announced that Mr A.T. Rajan, an Indian student, and Mr C.J. Sewell, both of Trinity, were bracketed as Senior Wranglers. When the order of merit in printed form came fluttering down from the gallery the customary wild scramble for the sheets ensued. 06 06 12 # c.36.9

1906 06 13
Tomorrow Cambridge councillors will discuss spending £4,000 on street improvements. But the Cambridge public, who have to pay the bill, will know nothing about it until it is too late to comment. Ratepayers are debarred from any intelligent participation in the town's affairs. Were this kind of Russian Censorship tried in some manufacturing town, every councillor would lose his seat at the next election. But Cambridge people have become used to it. 06 06 13

1906 06 14
Cambridge water supplies might be polluted from sewage from Cherry Hinton and Fulbourn. Householders use pails for the collection of excreta and if this is spread on the land then the possibility of typhoid organisms finding their way into the water supply must be remote. A more serious menace is the soakage of infected matter from improperly-constructed cesspools and the sewage from the Asylum. Some Cambridge people have started to boil their water 06 06 14a & b # c.24.2 # c.29.8

1906 06 14
The junction of Castle Street and Northampton Street, Cambridge, was continually congested and the corner ought to be improved. The council wanted to demolish a cottage and widen the road, but the owner wanted £260 for a property that a few years ago was worth £120: that was too great an increase 06 06 14a-c # c.44.6 # c.26.48

1906 06 14
A Salvation Army funeral in Sturton Town Hall attracted a great crowd. Among the congregation was Joseph Wilson, an elderly man of about 60 years of age. He commented upon the sudden death of the deceased bandman and said that he himself suffered with his heart. "I shall go off one day just as suddenly", he observed. His prediction came true: whilst the service was in progress he fell to the floor and expired. His wife was at the ceremony but was separated from him by a large crowd and had no knowledge of the calamity until she was called out of the hall. 06 06 14d

1906 06 14
The consecration of a new churchyard at Milton was performed by the Bishop of Ely. The new burial ground, which is a portion of the glebe land, is situated some distance from the church on the Landbeach Road. The weather was rather inclement but notwithstanding a good-sized congregation assembled for the service. 06 06 14e

1906 06 15
Milton churchyard, p4 *

1906 06 16
Visiting the snug little village of Barton and inspecting the ruins of the Rectory fire, one finds that the interior has been thoroughly burnt out – scarcely a rafter or beam of the upper floor remaining and the roof entirely non-existent. But the outer walls stand straight and sound and outside, almost unscorched, clings the ivy and climbing roses with flowers still on them. I could not help wondering why people are fleeing from such congenial surroundings to the toil and strife of the town and factory. 06 06 16a #

1906 06 16
Mr W. Saunders of Histon has had a remarkable cricketing career over the last 52 years. He learned to play on Parker's Piece and formed a club at Impington until its field was sold. In the 1860s Cambridgeshire occupied the premier position in county cricket and he was numbered amongst some of the finest players in the country being chosen to play against the first All England eleven to visit Australia. 06 06 16b # c.38 : cricket

1906 06 16
H.R. Pope beats C.S. Rolls' motor car record for trip from Monte Carlo to London – 06 06 16c # c.26.48

1906 06 19
At the Senate House two Wooden Spoonists received their degrees. H.R. Bell and W.Crouch, both of Selwyn, were bracketed last in the Mathematical Tripos and each was presented with a wooden spoon. Years ago this was a shovel with the college arms hastily painted on the bowl. Now it has become a thing of beauty, a trophy handsomely decorated which would not be out of place in the most artistic study. They were lowered on strings from the gallery and each recipient was handed a pair of garden shears with which he cut the string, bravely shouldered the spoon and marched out accompanied by a perfect tornado of cheers 06 06 19a & b # c.36.9 # c.39

1906 06 19
Thomas Askham, proprietor of the Hippodrome, Auckland Road applied for a licence for the performance of stage plays. The University had protested that a theatre near the common was detrimental to undergraduates but it would not be used as a low type of music hall, rather as a proper theatre for the poor classes at a time when students were not in residence. However the neighbourhood would not attract a first-class company and a lower type of entertainment would be detrimental to the morals of the people. 06 06 19a & b # c.76

1906 06 19
Burwell Poor's Fen charity details of history – 06 06 19c # c.32.9

1906 06 20
Photographic club, p3

1906 06 21
One of the most worthy objects of the Rev T.W. Woods of St Barnabas Parish is for a drill hall, gymnasium and rooms for young men and boys to be erected on a piece of ground at the bottom of Covent Garden. Tenders have been opened from local builders and that of Messrs Willmott and Sons, for £1,045 was agreed. Mr Reginald Tollitt is the architect 06 06 21 # c.37.9 # ROMSEY

1906 06 22
On Thursday Messrs Bullen, boatbuilders of Magdalene Street started their first trip of the season with their steam launch and tender His Majesty and Queen Alexandra It was a free outing and 84 people availed themselves of the voyage to Ditton Plough when an enjoyable time was spent. 06 06 22b # c.26.3

1906 06 22
Sir -. May we use your paper to thank many friends who since May 23rd 1901 have so generously aided us in the supporting Toft British School. As it has served the purpose for which it was called into being and its continuance is no longer needed, it will be finally closed on Friday 29th June 1906 – Joseph Worboys. 06 06 22a

1906 06 23
An alarm of fire was raised at one of the cinematogaph shows at Midsummer Fair. A film and various odds and ends near the operating box became ignited and flames shot up above the front staging. Some alarm was shown by the audience who were assured there was not the slightest danger but all the exits were opened and those who wished were enabled to leave without difficulty. The flames were quickly extinguished and the entertainment proceeded as usual. 06 06 23a & b # c.76.9 # c.27.3

1906 09 23
Newmarket fire, p3 *

1906 06 23
Sir – I remember the winter of 1860 when Midsummer Common was covered with water. A severe frost set in and for two months there were torchlight processions and skaters appearing and disappearing like phantoms along the course. There was horseracing in the summer and two large wooden stands erected. Some things have not changed: the miserable, horrid, slow old 'grinds' or ferries. When will Cantabs wake up and have free bridges for foot passengers? – An Ely Old Boy 06 06 23c & d # c.32.3 # c.38 : skating

1906 06 27
German newspaper editors visit Cambridge – 06 06 27 # c.04

1906 06 28

Mrs Moyes of the Lion Hotel claimed payment from an undergraduate for the hire of horses. He had entered Trinity College and associated with men of means and even of wealth. He stated his allowance was £300 a year (this was denied by his father who said it was £15 per term plus tailor's bills – about £150). The bill was for the hire of three horses on the same day – he had tossed up with two friends and lost. But this was not a 'necessary' and, being under 21 years of age, he was not liable to pay it. 06 06 28 # c.36.9 # c.27.4

1906 06 29
Charles Mynott told the court he had gone on the shooting gallery at Castle Camps fair and paid for four shots, one did not go off and he accused the stallholder of trying to 'dish' him out of it. The man struck him in the mouth, knocked him down between two stalls then took a rifle in each hand and fired into the crowd of about 70 people. The stalls then fell over and the whole show wrecked. He did not see if the man took aim as he was on the floor. 06 06 29 # FEAST

1906 06 29
Sturgeon weighing 200lb and eight feet long reported to have been caught in the river at Oxlode – 31 06 26 ES

1906 06 30
Horningsea churchyard consecrated – 06 06 30c

1906 06 30
Isaac Wilderspin, implement maker of Elsworth won first prize in an international competition for the best non-skid tyre for bicycles. The trial lasted five days with machines tested on a slanting asphalt track, besmeared with Thames mud and soft soap before being sent on a 300 mile run on the high road. It was ridden by W. Tolliday of the firm of Parker and Son, cycle makers of St Ives. Now he has invented a similar tyre for motor cars. 06 06 30a # c.26.485

1906 06 30
Cambridge received a full share of the extraordinary deluge that washed the country like a cataract. Eaden Lilley's basement was flooded, the goods soaked and needed quick disposal. A CDN representative visited market gardeners expecting to find them bewailing extensive damage, but they delivered ecstatic paeans of joy: "We were smothered with fly and red spider on the gooseberries, but the rain has entirely washed them away", said Robert Franks of Histon. 06 06 30b

1906 06 30
Fourteen public houses have been closed under the Licensing Act of 1904. They include a beer house at Heath Road Litlington, which sold one barrel a week, including stout, and a gallon of ginger wine. All their beer was made from pure malt and hops and it was a better house than the two nearest to it. There were four fully-licensed houses, four beer houses and one off-licence in the village. The Dolphin at Stapleford had been shut up for six weeks as the former landlord had run away and the village appeared to do well without it. The present tenant was a cycle agent and taxidermist as well, 'So you stuff people first and put them on wheels afterwards?' also Cambridge: Jolly Butchers, Star, Sun; Bassingbourn: Crown; Bottisham: Plough; Comberton: Plough; Fordham: Six Bells, Landbeach: Red Cow; Lt Shelford: Carrier's Cart; Stapleford: Dolphin; Steeple Morden: beer house; Waterbeach: Haunch of Mutton, Plough and Horses; Willingham: William IV, Rose and Crown 06 06 30d,e, f # c.27.4

July 1906 CDN

1906 07 02
An extensive fire resulted in the complete destruction of Fyfe's forage factory at Littleport. The three-storey building of wood and corrugated iron was situated between the river and the railway line, and filled with inflammable material. Once well alight total destruction was inevitable. Two cylinders used for steaming chaff remain amidst a great mass of charred beams and sheets of iron twisted by intense heat into all manner of fantastic shapes. 06 07 02 # c.34.75

1906 07 03
The King concluded his visit to the Earl of Sandwich at Hinchingbrooke Park and drove in his motor car to Newmarket. On his way through Cambridge the royal car was purposely driven more slowly than usual which enabled many people to catch a glimpse of His Majesty. He proceeded to Sir Ernest Cassel's house, Moulton Paddocks, where a Japanese garden with rustic bridges and dwarf trees has been recently added. 06 07 03a # c.02

1906 07 03
The three-day Histon feast was the largest on record, consisting of Messrs Thurston's ever-popular racing motor cars and their new Royal electric cinematograph exhibition, Mander's menagerie and an unusual number of bottle and egg shooting saloons, strength testers, 'Aunt Sallies', cocoanut bowling alleys and other amusements. In the village Post Office the operator has been kept busy writing letters and sending off telegrams for the fair folk, many of whom cannot write. 06 07 03b # FEAST

1906 07 04
Sir – many of the wells in Great Chesterford have been closed by the Medical Officer of Health by pasting a printed notice that the well was contaminated and all water should be boiled. These notices were washed off by rain within a few days. The wells should be properly filled up. Now the parish council proposes to construct two bored wells, but this will result in people having to walk a quarter of a mile to draw water. They also vetoed a sewage scheme on cost grounds. This is ridiculous. – G.W. Law 06 07 04 # c.24.2

1906 07 05
Girls County School should be erected to be convenient for girls coming by train – Mill Road 06 07 05 - a # c.36.5

Grantchester house, p1
Canadian emigration, p4

1906 07 06
A labourer at Burwell cement factory was feeding clunch into the crusher; this consists of two large iron rollers studded with teeth and covered with a steel plate with a hole into which the lumps of clunch are shovelled. His foot went into the hole and was caught by the cogs which drew his leg between the rollers and reduced it to pulp up to the knee. It could not be extricated until the plate had been smashed. He never lost consciousness all the while. 06 07 06

Ness stone, p3

1906 07 07
The Queen's Arms beerhouse at Soham sold 30 barrels of beer a year. It was an old house, very low and in bad repair. There was little trade – during one afternoon the landlord drew one pint of beer and drank two himself. Soham was an increasing town, 200 new houses having been built during the last ten years but there were 34 licensed houses, one to every 124 persons. One was The Old Brewery whose trade was done among the low class labourers in the evenings – Sunday especially. Also: Cambridge - The Beehive, Golden Cross, Sawston – Flower Pot – all closed 06 07 07a & b # c.27.4

1906 07 07
Tom Hayward, cricketer, may retire 06 07 07c # c.38 : cricket

1906 07 09

The Chief Constable reported the death of Inspector Sampson who had been in the force for 40 years. He was returning on his bicycle from duty at Newmarket when he collided with a traction engine and died in hospital. He hoped the committee would grant a pension to the man's widow. However it was doubtful whether he was still in the execution of his duty – he was returning home for his personal convenience. The auditor might question the payment and they should take counsel's opinion. But they granted a gratuity of £300. 06 07 09 & a

Burwell inquest, p3

1906 07 10
Newmarket parody, p34

1906 07 11
Sergt Mobbs told magistrates he saw Ben Scrivener, an engine driver from Wood Ditton, driving a locomotive with two trucks attached in High Street, Newmarket. The funnel was emitting a great deal of smoke, filling the street. He followed it to the cemetery. The driver said he had a good load and was going uphill. He made no more smoke that he was obliged. He was fined one shilling. 06 07 11

Factory act, p3

1906 07 12
Any clerk or artisan with £25 can become the owner of a well-built convenient house just outside the borough boundary in Grantchester within ten minutes' walk of Market Hill. The houses contain eight good rooms with bathroom, two w.c.'s and nice garden. Gas and water laid on. The price is £250 and the balance can be spread over any number of years to suit the purchaser's convenience – E. Parcell & co., Builders, Newnham – advert. 06 07 12a # c.23

1906 07 12
It was alleged that the matron of the Cambridge Infectious Diseases Hospital had given a private supper party to friends and corporation officials. A councillor had stood in the pouring rain for two hours and watched through the window! The patients were in isolation and there was no objection to having a friend occasionally, but a large-scale party was not suitable. It had been the custom to have tea and bread and butter when the committee met there – that too should be stopped. 06 07 12 b & c # c.21.4

1906 07 12
Site of proposed Higher Grade School near Parkside 06 07 12d – e # c.36.5

Perse school finance, p4

1906 07 13
The court was crowded when a servant girl said he'd gone to a village shop and asked for a copy of the Cambridgeshire Weekly News and some 'funny' postcards. Accused took her up in his arms and carried her into the next room, pulled her clothes about and took her photograph. She did not know there was no film in the camera. Magistrates found it was a trumped-up charge by a mischievously-disposed young girl. 06 07 13 a b c # c.65.5

1906 07 14
Sir – I landed in Regina, Canada, in April 1903 with just eighteen shillings in my pocket and in the first year earned £36 16s including my board and lodgings. Last year by being my own master and doing garden work I earned £93 11s 8d. I would like to say to all the young men of Cambridgeshire that Western Canada is the place to improve their position. I am coming home next winter and will be glad to explain the conditions and advantages – E. Peachey 06 07 14a & b # EMIGRATION

1906 07 14
The Bishop of Ely consecrated two new churchyards in the parishes of Knapwell and Conington where the need for additional burial ground has been felt for some time. The Rector gave a piece of glebe land adjoining the old churchyard of Knapwell and 21 perches of land at Conington was purchased from the Charity Commissioners. 06 07 14c

Sanatorium scandal, p2 & p3 *

1906 07 16
Members of two religious sects came into collision on Parker's Piece. For the past six weeks representatives of the Mormons have been holding Sunday evening meetings and have attracted some opposition. A member of the Romsey Town Mission began to argue on the subject of polygamy; a hostile demonstration ensued and the Mormons were hustled off along Mill Road followed by a booing crowd. 06 07 16 # c.83

1906 07 17
The President of the Baptist Union toured Cambridgeshire in a fleet of motor cars. At Chittering the little congregation have a leader in Mr Mark Wyatt. Their obscurity has not been accompanied by the stagnation or retrogression that might be expected and they have erected a new Sunday school building. The opening coincided with the President's visit and a large tent erected, crowded with people. Afterwards the motor cars were assembled on the road and photographed before the travellers drove off. 06 07 17a & b # c.82.05

1906 07 19
Cambridge Women's Suffrage Association held a well-attended meeting in the grounds of The Lodge, Mill Road when addresses were given by Miss Isabella Ford, a prominent suffragist, Mrs Rackham and other local ladies. Women could be guardians or medical officers but could not vote for a representative in Parliament. The grounds, which present a beautiful appearance, proved an ideal venue. 06 07 19 # c.33 # SUFFRAGETTE

Mormon letter, p3

1906 07 20
Architect visit, p3

1906 07 21
At Whittlesey the funeral took place of an octogenarian resident named William Henry Plowman. Ten old men of upwards of 80 years of age followed him to the grave and received five shillings each. Twelve young chapel ladies also received five shillings each for singing 'Rock of Ages' at the graveside. Plowman worked as a labourer on the railway and later went to South Australia where he amassed a fortune. He leaves various charitable bequests, including £1,000 to Peterborough Infirmary. 06 07 21

1906 07 23
Strange story, p3 *

1906 07 24
Hippodrome, p3

1906 07 25
Action v Hurrwell, p3 *
Water scare, p3 *
Landbeach organ, p4 *
Merry presentation, p4 *

1906 07 26
Thomas Askham applied for a licence to stage plays at the Hippodrome, Auckland Road. It was built for the poorer classes of Cambridge for whom there was no such accommodation. Plays would be presented of a high moral flavour such as 'East Lynne' & 'The Harbour Lights' which would have a good effect on the public. He would provide healthy amusement in a proper building. But local ministers felt it would not tend for the highest welfare of the people. The application was refused. 06 07 26 # c.76

Pembroke St celebrations, p4

1906 07 28
Robert Reed told the court he'd hired a piano organ from Antonio Dermaco of Gas Lane, Cambridge, piano organ proprietor, and went out in company of a man named Fuller. They visited the Plough, Comberton leaving it outside. He returned after five minutes to find the organ had disappeared – it had been thrown into the village pond. He got it out and tried to play it, but it did not work and had to be repaired in London. A Comberton carpenter and butcher were seen moving it, but claimed they had left it at the White Horse. 06 07 28 # c.69

1906 07 28
A Cambridgeshire Automobile Club was formed at a meeting of motor car owners at the University Arms Hotel. It would discourage reckless and inconsiderate driving, which bought motoring into disrepute, organise social and sporting events such as hill climbs and gymkhanas and see that roads were properly looked after. It was decided to admit ladies as members. 06 07 28a # c.26.48

1906 07 30
Mormon creed, p3
Burglar, p3

1906 07 31
Burglar hunting as a popular amusement had 'caught on' in Cambridge. Large crowds gathered in the neighbourhood of Park Terrace expecting to see the police emerge with two or more stalwart ruffians who had the impudence to enter Mr Sturton's house and rifle his pockets. They are thought to be playing a skilful game of hide-and-seek with police in and out of the six houses which comprise part of the Terrace; eager eyes are directed to the parapet and expectations entertained of seeing a desperate chase along the roof. But no one was seen. 06 07 31a # c.34.6

Abington rifle range, p4 *

August 1906 CDN

1906 08 01
Burglars, p3
Haverhill hockey club, p4 *

1906 08 03
Burwell is included in a Government scheme for colonising England by offering vacant Crown land to smallholders. A start has been made with a farm of 916 acres which is being cut up into parcels of between two and twenty acres and let to the Cambs Small Holders Association. There are some excellent cottages, two farmhouses and farm buildings and these are being allotted to the new tenants who will enter upon their holdings at Michaelmas. 06 08 03 # c.22

1906 08 04

Gardeners beware: your neat little flower patches are in danger from apparently innocent young children. They will make flattering comments upon your show of roses, geraniums and other blooms but when no one is about they will quickly open the garden gate and before you realise it, the best of your blooms are torn off. Sometimes the flowers are within reach of a small hand thrust through the railings and they will mysteriously disappear. 06 08 04 # c.18

1906 08 06
Mammoth show, p3 *

1906 08 07
Cambridge fire brigade undoubtedly saved a portion of King's Parade, St Edward's Passage and Peas Hill from destruction by fire. There are numerous old houses, warehouses, sheds and outhouses of all descriptions, many constructed chiefly of wood. The blaze broke out at the rear of Mons Buol's bakery, 17 King's Parade. A pastry-cook made a fire in the furnace in preparation for cooking operations and then went into the kitchen. Upon his return he found the building on fire and raised the alarm. P.C. Sharman was on duty on Market Hill and communicated with the Central Fire Station by means of the St Andrew's Street fire alarm. While the Brigade appliances were being run out the Constable procured the fire reel from Butter Row and played upon the flames with water obtained from the hydrant opposite King's College. The situation was serious when the permanent staff of the Brigade arrive with the horse tender and tried to prevent the flames spreading to other buildings. One stream of water was directed on the burning bakehouse from King's Parade, another from St Edward's Passage, and a third from Peas Hill, through the premises of Messrs Brimbley Whibley, and the combined attack was triumphant. The seat of the flames, the bakehouse, was gutted and the remaining back buildings of Mr Buol were considerably damaged with several hundreds of pounds of chocolate, almonds, cocoa and sugar lost. Other properties escaped the flames almost entirely but Messrs Whibley's warehouse and its contents were damaged by fire and water. 06 08 07 # c.44.6 # c.34.75

1906 08 08
Hippodrome, p3
Royston show, p4

1906 08 09
Cambridge station platform will be lengthened by 270 feet and widened with new awnings. The booking hall will be enlarged nearly three times, the waiting room, lavatories and parcels office doubled. A subway connecting the eastern side of the line with the town would be a convenience but only a small proportion of those people using it would be railway passengers. However the railway would allow a wayleave under their line to anybody who wishes to construct one. 06 08 09 # c.26.2

1906 08 09
A demonstration of the capabilities of the new steam fire engine attracted hundreds of townspeople. It is a double cylinder variable expansion type made by Shand, Mason & Co., generating steam by oil fuel resulting in the complete absence of thick smoke and sparks. Water drawn from the stream in front of Addenbrooke's Hospital was thrown high above the roof of the building. It was then moved to King's Parade and threw water 20ft above the flagpole of Gt St Mary's church. 06 08 09a # c.34.75

1906 08 10
Burwell land, p3 *
Meldreth Methodists, p3 *
Swaffham Bulbeck Poors Fen charity, p3

1906 08 11
Frontiersmen, p3 *
St Ives & Wadsworth, p4 *

1906 08 14
Mormons, p4
Royston cross, p4 *

1906 08 15
Mems & Gems, p3 *
Burwell lode, p3 *
Haverhill organ blower, p4 *

1906 08 17
Thurston confectioner, p3
Isleham charity, p4

1906 08 17 ES
Owing to the scarcity of labourers, the laying of the water main at Chatteris has been stopped, the workers preferring the harvest field where they can earn more money 31 08 14(3)ES

1906 08 18
Swaffham Prior church, p3*

1906 08 20
Those who did not experience the terrific storm which crossed the county could hardly realise the extent of the damage. It almost totally destroyed the crops as it passed. At Whittlesey later wheat was absolutely ruined and the beans were cut to atoms. Near Huntingdon some of the crops had not only no corn left but the straw was gone too. Nearer Cambridge the hail was not quite so heavy but in several places there was not a single piece of corn left. It simply meant ruin for the farmers. 06 08 20 & a # c.12

1906 08 21
Two Cambridge organ-grinders appeared in court. Joseph Fuller claimed Antonio Demarco had pulled his organ out of the shed in which it was kept in order to get at his own. They argued about it at the Bird Bolt public house, one struck the other with his fist and knocked him down, then aimed another blow but missed and fell over. The other tried to throw a glass at him. Demarco made a long rambling statement in broken English and was fined five shillings. 06 08 21 # c.69

1906 08 23
A woman of about 30 years of age journeyed to Cambridge to meet the man who was the author of her ‘trouble’. While she was in the train alone the child was born but on arrival at the station she behaved with such extraordinary circumspection that none of the railway officials suspected anything unusual had occurred. Carrying a bundle wrapped in underlinen under her arm, this extraordinary woman walked the length of the platform, hailed a cab and asked to the driven to the Workhouse. There her strength gave way and she swooned on the floor with the new-born babe beside her. They are both doing well. 06 08 23 # c.32.9 # c.21.4 # WOMEN

1906 08 24
The landlady of the Horse and Gate, Wentworth served two customers and went into the garden; on return she saw them running down the road. She found that two sixpences and a shilling's worth of copper which was kept in a little bowl on a table just inside the cellar, had been taken. PC Turner found one man in a drove at Coveney with tenpence in his pocket: he had thrown the bowl into a ditch. He was a deserted from Sunderland and was sentenced to 14 days hard labour. 06 08 24a

1906 08 24
A disastrous fire broke out at Place Farm, Balsham; flames spread to Mr Price’s farm opposite and the premises adjoining were quickly demolished. There was panic, as it seemed flames would spread to neighbouring cottages and the road to Balsham was strewn with household furniture. The Queens

Head, a thatched public house, caught fire six or seven times and was only saved from destruction with great difficulty. Linton fire fighters worked like Trojans but were hampered by the inadequacy of the water supply 06 08 24

Police athletics, p4

1906 08 24 ES
The rectory of Stretham has been offered to the Reverend Samuel Stuart Stitt, vicar of St Michael's Cambridge. Was for some as a chaplain in the army and served in the South African Field Force 1901 to 1902 when he gained a medal and five clasps 31 08 21ES

1906 08 25
The disastrous fire at Balsham has claimed another victim. During the blaze the thatched roof of the Queen's Head caught fire several times but was extinguished. However it seems that some sparks found a resting place as without any warning the roof burst into flames and defied all efforts at extinction. The thatch blazed furiously and soon it was burnt to the ground. An attempt was made to save some of the spirits and beer but a good deal was consumed by the flames; a good deal more was consumed by the spectators! 06 08 25 # c.27.4 # c.34.75

1906 08 25
Newmarket Road was the scene of a demonstration which proves that whatever the morality of a district individually, collectively it is on the side of strict morality. The people who incurred the displeasure of the neighbourhood were the objects of a considerable amount of hustling in the streets and a crowd gathered in front of their house beating tin kettles and similar utensils. 06 08 25a # c.39

1906 08 25
Burwell letter, p4 *
Loafers, p4

1906 08 27
Balsham fire, p3 *

1906 08 28
Chesterton fire, p3 *

1906 08 30
Adelaide water, p4 *
Fordham dispute, p4 *

1906 08 31
Lolworth fire, p3

1906 08 31 ES
Serious fire McKay and company's factory at Chatteris, fire engine could find no water 31 08 28(3)ES

Moth catching in Wicken fen is not without its danger. We have seen persons severely bitten by vicious gnats. People are cautioned not to smoke on the fenland as we do not want another big blaze like that of April 1901 32 08 28(3)ES

September 1906 CDN

1906 09 03
For four days Cambridge has vainly been endeavouring to live in a temperature rising above 90 degrees in the shade, 125 in the sun. The first day of September was as hot as the last day of August and even now the heat shows little diminution. Nobody remembers such a succession of tropical heats so late in the season. The weather is in a curiously topsy-turvy condition 06 09 03 & a # c.12

1906 09 04
Serious farm fire, Hanchett End near Haverhill – 06 09 04

1906 09 05
PC Wright said he was in Regent Street when he saw the Cambridge Motor Omnibus Company's bus discharging a great quantity of black smoke, it was filling the street as it went along and was the worst he had ever seen. The driver said they had just had a refill of oil and agreed to take it back to the garage, smoking all the way along Park Terrace. The company said there was nothing wrong but was fined £2. 06 09 05 & a # c.26.46

1906 09 07
Mr A.P. McAlister of Cambridge and Shelford has been granted a patent for a fire grate of an improved type which abolishes the possibility of discomfort. The fire rests on a grating with an ashpan underneath which can be easily lifted out to empty the contents. Laurie & McConnal have been appointed local agents for the grate which has been fitted in many of the larger houses of the town. 06 09 07

1906 09 07 ES
Fires at Isleham due to spark from a goods train 31 09 04(2)ES

1906 09 08
Building trade in Cambridge is comparatively slack just now as suburban expansion on any large scale has ceased. Six months ago there was considerable activity in the Newnham district and on the Central Estate where a large number of houses sprang up suddenly. Then there was an extension of New Cherryhinton through the erection of many houses on the Hills Road. It is now planned to open up a building estate by cutting an avenue from Hills Road to the Trumpington Road 06 09 08c # c.23

1906 09 08
Many residents have been plagued by the clouds of dust raised by motor cars and other traffic. Dust-destroying measures have usually involved evil-smelling solutions but now Cambridge is to experiment by pouring boiling tar over the surface of Hills Road and sprinkling it with granite chips. The section chosen where the wood paving ends near Brooklands Avenue, but it carries heavy traffic and is constantly watered so the new surface may peel off. 06 09 08c # c.44.6 # c.26.48

1906 09 08
The Boat Race – special report – 06 09 08a & b # c.38 : rowing
Cowboys, p3
Shop goods in heat *

1906 09 10
Harvard visit, p3
Paraffin lamp, p3

1906 09 11
The vicar of Over, Rev Thomas Normandale, has accepted the living of Grahamstown, Cape Colony, South Africa and leaves in about six weeks. It comes as a surprise to his congregation as he has only been there two years and previous vicars have stayed much longer: the Rev Galloway stayed 12 years, Rev Dixon 18 and Mr Warren carried out the duties for 30 years. 06 09 11a

1906 09 11
Hundon fires – incendiarism – 06 09 11
Military tournament, p3

1906 09 12
The recent hot weather and absence of rain has resulted in a scarcity of milk through the scorching of the pasture and some dealers have been compelled to buy from rival tradesmen and sell at the price at which they bought, merely to retain their customers. One has already increased his price from twopence to threepence a pint but larger dairymen have retained their customary charge of fourpence a quart 06 09 12a # c.28 # MILK

Fulbourn fever, p3*
Decoyed girls, p3 *
King's lane, p3

1906 09 13
A number of cases of sacrilege have been reported and with so many vagrants on the road churchwardens should keep a sharp eye on those who enter. Two brass vases have been stolen from Arrington and another from Hatley St George. At Wilburton thieves carried off two brass candlesticks and smashed the contributions box, stealing five shillings. Next day the alms box at Haddenham was tampered with but the contents, which consisted of twopence, was not touched.06 09 13

1906 09 13
Ely Coroner held an inquest at the resident of Mr Hanslip Long, Shippea Hill into the death of a widow who was knocked down and killed at Shippea Crossing. She had been to the Fish and Duck where she paid for her husband's harvest beer. On returning she saw the train but started to go over the crossing at a tidy stroke and was hit. It was getting dark and they had to strike three matches before they could recognise the body. She was a strong-minded woman and it was difficult to persuade that class of people to do what other people wanted. 06 09 13a

1906 09 14
The Westminster Diocesan Missionaries of Our Lady of Compassion made their headquarters at The Close, High Street, Saffron Walden six months ago. It dates back to 1554 and is very rich with old oak but the only place which would serve as a chapel for the few Catholics in the town was the old Baronial Hall which would accommodate 80 people. Now a new temporary church has opened in the stable block with great solemnity. 06 09 14 & a

Military tournament, p3
Driver swim testimonials, p3

1906 09 15
Mill Road has never known anything quite so strange as eighteen cassowaries which have been translated from the Pacific Islands to a piece of ground reached by a short lane down Gwydir Street. They have been collected by the Hon Walter Rothschild who is writing an monograph and placed in the charge of Mr F Doggett as they flourish better here than anywhere else in England. 06 09 15a # c.19

1906 09 15
River trips, motor launch 'Victory' to Clayhithe – Pocock – 06 09 15b # c.26.3
Drought, p4
Meteor, p4

1906 09 17
County Girls School site, p4

1906 09 19

Fire broke out in a Witchford thatched cottage, flames spread rapidly and the outbuildings which consisted of a barn, stabling and pig sties constructed of tarred boards were destroyed. Flames and smoke meant it was impossible to use the well in the yard, which contained three feet of water, but a passing water cart was commandeered and its contents used to best effect. Neighbours rescued furniture but a chest of drawers containing a considerable sum of money was burnt. 06 09 19

1906 09 19
The world-famed travelling Educator of Natural History will pay Cambridge a visit after an absence of 15 years. Bostock and Wombwell's circus was instituted in February 1805 and novel additions are being made to keep pace with the times including specimens of Tasmanian Devil and the gigantic blue and red faced mandrill. In olden days shopkeepers used to close and the public declare a holiday in order to explore the menagerie. The conditions of the animals speaks volumes for the kindness and attention with which they are treated. 06 09 19a # c.76 # c.19 # CIRCUS

Newmarket fire machine, p4

1906 09 20
Dr Lucas death, Burwell, p3
Trams v buses, p3

1906 09 22
The family of Rowell has long been identified with sport in Cambridge. Now Edward Rowell, a cousin of one time Go-as-you-please Champion, 'Charlie', is making a name for himself as an all-round athlete in Australia where he has won enough money to secure a fine business: one match over hurdles brought him £300. He added to his reputation as a footballer and when that season ended he took up cricket, being voted the best batsman in West Australia.06 09 22 # c.38

Bostock's menagerie, p3

1906 09 24
Wilburton death John Norfolk, p3
Hills Road Methodist organ, p4

1906 09 26
Stourbridge Fair has, with the exception of the horse fair, become the shrine of gaiety. Its centre is a lonely house whose gable windows are decorated with fairy lights. Inside the stairs are carved and wide like those of a prosperous mansion and lead to an extensive room with bare floor and white-washed walls. A harpist can be dimly seen through the haze of tobacco smoke and a concertina joins in the melody, dancers swirl around: girls with girls and youths with youths with no conventions of the ball-room. 06 09 26a b & c # c.27.3 # OYSTER HOUSE

1906 09 26
Police said a club-room had been erected at the Queen's Head, Kirtling without approval. A dinner was held and a pint of beer served to each person, later seven more gallons were served. It was an ordinary farm building and plans ought to have been submitted. This was a serious offence and magistrates had power to order the building pulled down. 06 09 26b

1906 09 28
The Vicar of Lode sued the parish council for the expense of cleaning the schoolroom after their meeting. During the day it was a public school with a grant from the Government, but afterwards it was the private property of the vicar. When the council was first instituted the Vicar was a member but the present one wanted nothing to do with them and said they must find their own heating and lighting. But the cleaner said she was paid by the County Council. It was a quarrel between Church and Dissent, if the truth was told.06 09 28 # c.35.6

Cathedral shrine, p3
Photo club, p4

1906 09 29
Sid Lack, the famous Histon cyclist, has found that the American climate did not suit him and returned to Histon. But since losing his status as an amateur he has an inclination to go abroad. Now the whole of his household effects have been put under the hammer including his two racing machines, and he has set sail for Australia. If he takes up racing 'down under' his career will be watched with interest. 06 09 29 # c.38 : cycling # c.26.485

October 1906 CDN

1906 10 02
Bendysh Hall fire, p3
Balloon race, p3

1906 10 03
The 'Nunc Dimittis' window to the memory of Mrs Wilkinson has been removed from St Cyriac's church, Swaffham Prior and is now in London, being adapted for the two-light west window of the south aisle of St Mary's church in that parish. The 12 small pieces of stained glass, some representing angels, and some with sacred monograms, have also been taken down for eventual use in one of the other windows. 06 10 03

1906 10 04
An extraordinary sight, which ought never to occur again, is to be witnessed at Baitsbite Lock. For a hundred yards the surface of the water is literally covered with dead and dying fish – pike, roach, bream, dace and a host of smaller fry. Fishermen would never have dreamed there were as many fish in the waters. They have been slaughtered by the introduction of some noxious substance into the river 06 10 04 & a # c.38 : fishing # c.46.5

1906 10 06
Joseph Moule was a veteran of the Crimea but rarely talked of his hardships in the trenches outside Sebastopol or of the stirring relief of Lucknow. Then as one of the gallant 90th Foot he was one of the hardened campaigners who went direct from the perils of the Crimea to the horrors of the Indian Mutiny. He expired suddenly at his home in Mill Road aged 72, thus the ranks of veterans get thinner and thinner 06 10 06 # c.45.4

1906 10 06
A Haverhill labourer told the Board of Guardians that he had seven children, one of whom had died, and asked them to bury his little one. He was not in regular work, only getting odd days now and again. The Chairman said there were a good many standing off in the town and the applicant was a hard and honest working man who must have been driven to extremities or he would not have come to them. They granted his request. 06 10 06a

Poisoned fish, p3
Carlton horse, p3
Cars & boys, p4
YMCA smoking, p4

1906 10 08

Much interested was excited by a strange feathered visitor alighting on a pinnacle of King's College chapel. On Sunday afternoon it was attacked by crows but it thrust out its long neck and gave a vicious snap of its large beak. The bird possessed grey plumage on the breast and darker feathers on the back. In flight it presented a remarkable appearance, having enormous wings and legs, similar to those of a stork or heron.06 10 08 # c.19

Errand boy, p3

1906 10 10
A Cambridge bus driver appeared in court for dangerous driving in Hills Road. He said he was going 15 mph because he was obliged to pass another bus. It was not illegal as Parliament had fixed the maximum as 20 mph. The road was wide and there were no pedestrians about. The policeman admitted he had little experience of motors but had never seen one go faster. The driver had now been dismissed because of the complaint. 06 10 10 # c.26.46

1906 10 10
Fire broke out in the engine house of Charles Piggott, corn merchant of Landbeach. The engine had just been filled from a huge tank containing 200 gallons of oil, some of which spilled on the floor and became ignited. Flames at once rose in a great volume to the roof. Waterbeach fire brigade arrived with their manual pump and obtained a good supply of water from a trough which was filled by steam, and a hand pump, but the building was gutted. 06 10 10a

1906 10 11
Small holdings in Cambridgeshire are at last an accomplished fact as half a hundred agricultural labourers, small farmers, farmers' sons and village tradesmen enter into possession of nearly a thousand acres of Crown land at Burwell, parcelled out in lots to suit the capacity of this little army. But the scheme had attracted a great deal of criticism and will be watched with keen interest. 06 10 11a & b # c.22

Chesterton rifle club, p3

1906 10 12
The lease of Pampisford Council School expires at Christmas and the new rent would be £30. Substantial economy would be effected by closing it and sending the children to Sawston instead. It was precious hard lines in a small village that the children should have to go one-and-a-half miles to school. The parents were very much opposed but it was another of those unpopular things they had to do. 06 10 12b

1906 10 12
'Sherlock Holmes' at New Theatre – 06 10 12a # c.76
Kleno liquid cleanser – advertisement – 06 10 12 # c.27

1906 10 13
King's cormorant, p2 & p5
Railway fraud, p4

1906 10 15
The King had an excellent day's sport on the famous partridge grounds at Chippenham Park, which Sir Ernest Cassel has leased. Birds were numerous and strong on the wing. His Majesty road on his pony from point to point and displayed his usual precision of aim. The bag included 669 partridges, 88 pheasants and 82 hares.

1906 10 16
Newmarket town is now overbuilt: in 1879 Sir Richard Wallace began to sell his Queensbury estate in leasehold plots and the rage for building started. The real cause of empty houses in the town is that Newmarket is suffering from the deaths of Colonel McCalmont, Sir Blundell Maple, Prince Soltykoff and Sir James Miller, who all had large racing establishment. More horses and consequently more employment is wanted. Others say the capacity of the Heath has been reached by the number of horses at present in training. 06 10 16a & b

Newmarket boxing, p4

1906 10 17
Bartolozzi sale, p4

1906 10 18
The octo-centenary of Ely Cathedral is over, the great service of commemoration of benefactors a thing of the past, but nothing short of death itself will ever obliterate the memory of that service from the minds of those who were privileged to be present. The vast building was filled with representatives for every strata in the social scale 06 10 18

1906 10 19
A Cambridge Ratepayer Association was formed: there was deplorable apathy over local government and many councillors resumed their seats without a contest. Members of councils were nominated and their actions controlled by a party. Contracts were given out, not to the lowest tender, but because one man belonged to one party and one to the other. They might run candidates for the town council and board of guardians irrespective of party politics. 6 10 19b # c.33 # c.35.7

1906 10 19
The Conservators of the River Cam say steam and motor boats travelling at considerable speed draw after them a large quantity of water which render the shallower parts of the river bare with the result that boats were grounded. The swell could also capsize small craft or throw them up high and dry. A new byelaw was needed.06 10 19a

Eltisley Ave & Cowper Road dedicated, p3

1906 10 20
A remarkable event happened in Cambridge the other day. Put on its mettle, no doubt, by the performance of the motor 'buses, a tram horse, determined to show that it could go, and ran away at quite a terrifying pace along King's Parade. The petrol 'buses will have to look to their laurels when acetylene horses begin to show their true powers like this. 06 10 20

Virginia creeper, p4 *
Duxford child tramps, p4 *

1906 10 23
An inquest into the death of an inmate of Ely workhouse who died during the night, was rendered rather unique by the fact that a juror, undismayed by the burden of responsibility and untroubled by the cares which had devolved upon him, had the temerity to go to sleep. He could not be permitted to turn the court into a temporary bedroom and was roused by the constable and rebuked by the Coroner. 06 10 23

Ranji's fight for throne, p3

1906 10 24
A Clare farmer was summoned for neglecting to send his children to school: one had been absent 19 times in 14 weeks, the other 21 times in 14 weeks, but had taken the highest prize for the best educated boy in the school. They had to walk just under two miles to school, so they travelled 1,080 miles in a year and it was unhealthy for a boy to travel so far. The case had given trouble for over two years and an attendance order was granted with costs of twelve shillings. 06 10 24

Maths tripos vote, p3
Kirtling Queen's Head, p4

1906 10 25
Cambridge councillors adopted new bye-laws for driving cattle through the streets. Now no bull may be led unless it is properly secured by a ring through its nose, no cattle may be driven unless sufficiently attended and no person shall permit a cow with a calf to be driven in any street unless the calf is conveyed in a cart or other suitable vehicle. 06 10 25a # c.22.5

1906 10 25
Cambridge Library committee recommended that a branch reading room be opened in a room in St Paul's Institute, Coronation Street. But Prof Sorley said a reading room supplied people with ephemeral newspapers and magazines, it did not supply literary, technical, scientific or reference works and the central library did not have the works it should have. However it would prevent a great deal of loafing about in the streets which was productive of crime. 06 10 25b # c.77.4

1906 10 25
A Harston farmer said that some time ago a young fellow who was working for the Rector was given only the bits of bread that came from the Rectory table, so the villagers called him 'Lazarus'. Later this individual came to work for him and he was verminous. Later the rector had a little boy from an institution in Cambridge and while he was at the Rectory the inhabitants 'tin-kettled' the rector. The rector blamed him for this and wouldn't speak to him in the street, all he does is beg.06 10 25c

Albion Row, p3
Trios, p4 *

1906 10 25
Morley Memorial Schools have been extended by a couple of wings. One contains three classrooms and the other has rooms fitted up for cooking and carpentry. Around the infants' classroom have been placed drawing slates – or rather ground glass backed with a dark preparation – at a suitable height for children and the corners of walls are rounded off to allowing no dirt to collect. The whole block is eminently convenient and suitable to the necessities of the infant life – a point too often lost sight of in the construction of schools.
06 10 25d # c.36.5

1906 10 26
The new Wesleyan Chapel in Romsey Town opened for public worship. It will accommodated over 400 people and is lighted by incandescent gas and heated by radiators. Though a plain building internally it is comfortable and has a pleasant appearance. The architect was W. Wren of Cambridge and the builders Coulson and Lofts.06 10 26a # c.83

1906 10 26
The vicar of Lode sued the Parish Council for breakage and trespass. The Chairman had got over the school wall and tried the door. He could not open it so burst it open with his shoulder. Then the members of the council went in and for their quarterly meeting. The Vicar claimed it was his private property after school hours but the judge said the council had a statutory right to use it, given reasonable notice – and even the policeman knew a meeting was to be held. 06 10 26 # c.35.6

1906 10 27
English people face a great crisis: the gradual monopolisation by huge Trusts of the supply of the necessaries of life. Now it is soap. Cambridge has its own manufactory – the Castle Soap Company – which opposes the Trust - has seen its sales rise. But if customers continue to ask for Sunlight brand then the monopoly will refuse to supply the retailer who stocks the 'free' soaps. 06 10 27 abc # c.27

Gt Bradley serious farm fire – 06 10 27d
Library usage – buy sixpenny editions of novels – 06 10 27e - # c.77.4

1906 10 29
Leys Moulton chapel, p3

1906 10 29
At Saffron Walden it has been the custom on market days for hotel keepers, when their yards become overcrowded, to put up customers' traps at the side of the road opposite their premises. Their right to do this is now being questioned and the landlord of the Greyhound was formally charged with obstructing the highway. There were eleven carts on the road at one time while some fowl dealing was going on in the inn yard. There was space for 360 carts and 473 horses elsewhere in the town. Edward Brown he could remember that carts had stood in the street for the last 60 years but the landlord was convicted. 06 10 29 & a

1906 10 30
We have received a letter from a lady in Bridge Street complaining of her loss of no fewer than nine cats and that it seems to be the general opinion they are taken to the Anatomical Laboratory for dissection. This is a false as it is odious. The Professor of Biology says he knows of two people who possess air guns and shoot cats but anybody who came there with them would be kicked out of the door. 06 10 30a # c.19

1906 10 30
The question of the Ramsey allotments was raised in the House of Commons. Lord de Ramsey had let over 1,000 acres of his land to 800 men but after his brother was defeated in the election he gave them notice to quit, saying the men were discontented. They formed a Land Club and negotiated with his Lordship. He agreed to let the land, but at increased rent. This has been rejected by the men. 06 10 30c

1906 10 30
Unemployment – 250 carpenters and joiners etc – 06 10 30b # c.32.1
Boxing at Newmarket town hall – 06 10 30d
Cats & dogs, p3 *
De Ramsey allotments, p4 *

1906 10 31
The foundation stone of the new church hall at Haddenham was laid. The need for such a hall has long been felt and the Rev Morgan has thrown himself into the work with such energy. A site was obtained on a piece of glebe land in Church Lane, plans obtained and now work has begun. In addition to being a Sunday School, entertainments and meetings of all descriptions will be held there. The old small building will be used as an ante-room 06 10 31d & e

Photographic exhibition – details – 06 10 31a-c # c.65.5
Hillrow accident Fairchild, p3 *

November 1906 CDN

1906 11 01
All about teeth, p1
Photo exhibition, p3

1906 11 02
At an inquest on an old lady who died of ptomaine poisoning at Bassingbourn it was suggested death was caused by some jam which had been used as a pudding. Fortunately the grocer still had some left in the pot from which he had served the family and submitted it to the county analyst who was unable to find any traces of any poisonous substance. Whatever caused the death, it was not the jam. 06 11 02a

1906 11 02
Eugen Sandow has opened consulting rooms in Sidney Street where advice regarding health matters may be obtained. Provided your ailment is not an incurable one he guarantees to bring you to a pitch of physical perfection. The Cambridge Manager will take particulars of your case and forward them to him in London where Mr Sandon will plan your course and the Cambridge Manager will show you how to correctly carry out instructions 06 11 02b # c.21.1

1906 11 02 ES
March Burrowmoor Road Schools opened 31 10 30 ES

1906 11 02 ES
Manea three young children suffocated whilst locked in the kitchen of a house while parents labouring outside 31 10 30 ES

1906 11 03
Vivisection, p4 *

1906 11 06
Cyclists are petitioning Cambridge town council against the use of flints in the streets during wet or frosty weather. Something must be done to stop the spreading of these puncture traps. Surely some other material can be found. The flints are also driven into the wooden paving blocks by heavy traffic and must damage them. Cambridge is not such a hilly town as to present unusual difficulties in this respect. We trust everybody will sign the memorial of protest 06 11 06a # c.26.485

1906 11 06
The vicar of Lode was charged with assaulting one of his parishioners, a cripple who was caretaker of the reading room. The man had asked what had caused the vicar to turn his son out of the church and tear his clothes. The vicar replied it was because he did not sing properly in the choir and he'd serve him the same if he didn't get out quick. He then knocked the man down, sat on top of him and punched him with his fist. Convicting him, the magistrates said it was an unfortunate case and hoped there would be no more such unpleasantness in future 06 11 06b & c # c.80

1906 11 06
A large number of supporters of Women's Suffrage met at the Victoria Assembly Rooms, Cambridge, to hear an address by Mrs Henry Fawcett. Dr A. North Whitehead presided and was supported by Miss Kennedy, Mrs Heitland, Mrs James Ward, Mrs Rackham and Dr Westlake, Professor of International Law. Mrs Fawcett said ladies had lobbied the Prime Minister then jumped on the forms, made speeches and waved their flags. They were carried outside by police and as they came out a young factory worker who said 'Votes for Women' was immediately arrested and sent to prison. 06 11 06d & e & g # c.33

1906 11 07
The Rector of Bluntisham told the court he found a window in the church had been broken and a contribution box taken from the wall. He knew there was a half-crown in it. The landlord of the Dog and Gun, Earith, said the defendant, a fine specimen of the Basuto race, had asked for a packet of Woodbines but could not afford a pint, and said he was going to St Ives. Fred Berridge, butcher of Chatteris, said he came to his shop and asked for threepennyworth of pieces and laid down a two-shilling piece. The man was arrested at the Old Hoops lodging house in Slade End but there was insufficient evidence to convict. 06 11 07a

1906 11 07

St Barnabas church opened a drill room in Covent Garden for gymnastic exercises with recesses in the walls for the firearms of the Boys Brigade. Other rooms will be erected for bible classes, reading, refreshments and also for the practice of carpentering, making it a centre for social work among young men and boys. 06 11 07b # c.83

1906 11 08
Bus changes, p3

1906 11 09
Waterbeach School and James Toller – 06 11 09a # c.36.6
St Barnabas institute opened – 06 11 09b & c # c.83
Littleport fishing rights – 06 11 09b

1906 11 09 ES
Chatteris Volunteers have had to journey to Somersham to put in their drills. Now a drill station has been established in Chatteris while a miniature range is also to be provided for shooting practice 31 11 06ES

1906 11 10
J.W. Cooper death, p2-3
Dogs, p4

1906 11 12
Cambridgeshire has lost one of its claims to distinction, that of possessing the only Lord Lieutenant who is a Commoner and Nonconformist. Owing to ill-health Mr Alexander Peckover, the philanthropic member of the Society of Friends, of Bank House, Wisbech, has resigned the post he has held for 13 years. He took over on the death of Charles Townley of Fulbourn Manor in 1893 after Prime Minister W.E. Gladstone submitted his name to Queen Victoria 06 11 12a & b & c

1906 11 12
With the death of John William Cooper Cambridge loses one of its most pronounced personalities. As a barrister in the Daisy Hopkins case he ruthlessly exposed the evils of the Spinning House and few can understand the amount of good work he did behind the scenes. Latterly folk have agreed that he was breaking up, but though he may have suffered physically he never showed signs that his mental vigour had diminished. 06 11 12a & b & c # c.34.6

1906 11 12
On Sunday evening fire broke out at the Lamb beerhouse, West Wratting, through the overturning of a paraffin lamp in one of the bedrooms. The place was quickly in a blaze and owing to the roof being of thatch, rapidly spread and soon there was a blank were the house once stood. Both the owner and occupier (Mr Long) are insured in the Norwich Union through the local agent, Mr Wm S. Halford. 06 11 12d

1906 11 12
Lode vicar's sermon – 06 11 12c

1906 11 13
There was a crowd attendance at Stretham parish church when the Rev S. Stewart Stitt who has been appointed to the living in the place of the reverend Canon Cockshott was instituted and inducted to the cure of souls. The first part of the service was taken by the reverend Mr Bell, curate at Stretham and an address was given by the Bishop of Ely. He said it was a new opportunity for some who had stayed away from the house of prayer: the coming of the new vicar was the opportunity when they could turn over a new and a happier leaf in their life. Their new pastor would help them and encourage them, but it would also be his duty to warn some of them and some of them it would be his duty sometimes rebuke when he saw them falling into evil ways. Stitt had worked in many different spheres in Cambridge and would work well and diligently amongst them in his new sphere. 06 11 13

Arts & Crafts exhibition, p3

1906 11 15
Ely Lamb case, p4

1906 11 15 ES
Rev Stiitt installed at Stretham 31 11 13ES

1906 11 16
The Compensation Authority considered claims for premises closed under the Licensing Act. They included a beerhouse at North Brook End, Steeple Morden, The Plough at Comberton, the Red Cow, Landbeach and Carrier's Cart at Lt Shelford. Potton Brewery said they would lose £275 if the licence of a beerhouse at Heath Road, Litlington was taken away but accepted £240 as compensation. However Benskin's Watford Brewery refused £251 for the Sun in Newmarket Road, Cambridge. also Stapleford Dolphin, Waterbeach Haunch of Mutton & Plough & Horses, Sawston – Flower Pot, Willingham – King William IV, Bottisham Plough, Soham Queen's Arms and Old Brewery 06 11 16a & b # c.27.4

1906 11 16
Mr & Mrs Mattinson of Bourn have learned of the death of their son, Thomas in Saskatoon, Canada. He left two-and-a-half years ago and worked in a lumber camp. A big, healthy fellow, he went to a dentist and was under the influence of ethyl-chloride to permit of an operation, but the drug was too much for him and he succumbed. 06 11 16c

1906 11 17
Licensing compensation – Sawston Flower Pot, Cambridge: Newmarket Road Sun, Honey Hill Beehive; Willingham King William IV – 06 11 17 a & b & c # c.27.4
Money lending allegations – Cambridge tradesmen and students – 06 11 17d # c.32.8 # c.36.9 # c.27.2

Undergraduate clothing, p4 *

1906 11 19
For many years it has been the custom for men employed in the various bakery businesses in Cambridge to hold an annual supper known as the Bakers' Clem, provided through the generosity of the master bakers and millers. This year 70 men and boys sat down to a substantial meal at the Star Tap, Newmarket Road after which songs were sung 06 11 19 # c.39

1906 11 20
Ald Deck, p3
Senior wrangler, p3

1906 11 22
Mr Sandow – quack doctor – life's work – 06 11 22a # c.21.1

1906 11 22
The corporation steam roller was employed in Bradmore Street when there was a slight subsidence owing to the bursting of a water main near an old brick sewer. The heavy weight of the engine caused a further drop and one wheel became firmly embedded, the roller lying at a dangerous angle on its side. Means are being taken by council employees to remove it and their efforts are being watched with interest by a crowd of people 06 11 22b # c.26.48

1906 11 23

Sir - The Parish Medical Officer claimed that the subsoil under Waterbeach School was saturated with liquid sewage and ordered the children to stay away. But no-one seemed alarmed and most continued to attend. Managers took up the floorboards and dug down for the 40-year-old cesspool. Samples of soil were sent to be chemically analysed, all without result: there is not the slightest evidence for his statements. Yet this is the man to whose diagnosis we entrust our poor aged sick folk – Correspondent 06 11 23

Princess of Wales, p3

1906 11 24
An inquest was held at the Knife and Steel, Pymoor, on the body of a 78-year-old woman who was found dead in a well in Suttle Fen. Her daughter found the lid off the water cistern and saw the deceased inside. The doctor said she died from shock, caused by the sudden immersion in the water. There was no sign of force 06 11 24a

1906 11 24
The Motor Van, Wagon and Omnibus Users Association is to test the legality of the Great Eastern Railway Company in putting up notices on a number of bridges over the Cambridge and Mildenhall line prohibiting heavy motor vehicles from passing over them. This would close a large tract of country to such traffic. Engineers say the bridges are strong enough but have been allowed to get into a state of disrepair. 06 11 24b # c.26.2

1906 11 24
Bigamy – Downing undergraduate – 06 11 24c # WOMEN

1906 11 26
It is with regret we announce the death of Mr John Pink, the Cambridge Borough Librarian. He started life as a bookseller's assistant but the adoption of the Public Libraries Act in 1853 opened up the walk in life which he has conscientiously and with dignity trodden for over half a century. Around him and his personality the Cambridge library has grown from small beginnings to its present state as one of the finest in the provinces, a permanent memorial to its first librarian. 06 11 26c & d funeral 06 11 28 06 12 01b # c.77.4

Soap Trust collapse – impact locally on Soap Company – 06 11 26a & b # c.27

1906 11 27
Philip Jude licensed horse slaughterer, Barrington – illustrated advert – 06 11 27 # c.19

1906 11 28
Pink funeral, p3 *

1906 11 29
Wrangler debate, p3

1906 11 30
Waterbeach School for infants – 06 11 30a # c.36.6
Traffic on the Cam – motor boats, byelaw – 06 11 30b & c # c.26.3
Ditton diphtheria, p4

1906 11 30 ES
Motor van, Wagon and Omnibus Users Association challenge Eastern Railway Company over notices on bridges over the railway prohibiting heavy motor vehicles of 2 tonnes and upwards 31 11 27ES

1906 11 30 ES
13 cases of typhoid at Littleport due to contamination of the water supply 31 11 27ES

December 1906 CDN

1906 12 01
The fact that St Matthews's Infant School in Sturton Street was offered for sale by auction may be misconstrued, especially as some say it would be suitable for a club or warehouse. But the question of discontinuing instruction there has never been mooted. It was erected as a speculation by the late Mr B. Clifton and let to the Vicar. Now the executor wishes to realise the property. It is purely a business transaction and devoid of any relation to the education question and its local consequences. 06 12 01a # c.36.5

John Pink, p4 *
Greek plan, p4

1906 12 03
A terrible calamity has overtaken the St Ives Catholic community, the interior of whose beautiful Mission Church of the Sacred Heart was wrecked in one of the most astonishing cases of sacrilege ever recorded. A madman broke into the church by battering the door with a sledgehammer and then swept round the building like an avenging fury, raining blows on every object until there was nothing left to break. 06 12 03a & b # c.83.02

Cats & dogs, p3
Romsey Christmas dinner, p3
Sandow, p4

1906 12 05
Sir – each scarlet fever patient leaving the Cambridge Sanatorium has to have a final disinfecting bath, after which he is put into clean clothes sent from home. But the patient is bathed and dressed in the bathroom in which all the patients have been peeling for an indefinite period. The room is therefore more infectious than the wards themselves. Discharged patients risk carrying home the infection they have been isolated to obviate – J.H. Dalton 06 12 05 # c.21.4 # c.21.1

Burwell misery, p3
Freezing library, p3

1906 12 07
The inhabitants of Stretham have become convinced that there is more water in the village than they had ever imagined. Mr J. Wesley has no supply on his engineering works and persuaded Mr B. Tompkins, the expert water finder, to make a survey. Holding a 'divining rod', consisting of an ordinary hazel twig, he traced the courses of various streams and eventually found that four of them converge on the lawn of Mr Wesley's own house. 06 12 07a & b & c # c.24.2

1906 12 07 ES
Chatteris water main now laid 31 12 04(2)ES

1906 12 08
Sir – on Cambridgeshire roads with little traffic level crossings gates are apt to be kept closed permanently and only opened on request. For the sake of bicycles there are generally little wicket-gates designed by some ingenious person with the object of making it as difficult as possible to get a bicycle through. The custodians of the crossing will generally open the main gates, with some grumbling, if one insists but this is a gross infringement of the rights of the public by a private corporation – A.C. Benson, Magdalene College 06 12 08 # c.26.485 # c.26.2

St Ives church, p4
Railway crossing, p4 *

1906 12 10
Though blind from birth, Miss Mary Start was never one to sit down hopelessly under the infirmity and as a masseuse found a means of supporting herself and conferring service upon many sufferers gaining a distinguished clientele. Her skill was not reserved for the rich; many poor people had reason to be grateful to her. She played chess, studied Esperanto and read practically every book published in Braille. 06 12 10 # BLIND # c.21.1

Free library salary, p3

1906 12 12
The condition of Eden Street Higher Grade School gave cause for concern. The small infants room was encumbered with a huge gallery and another received practically no light. It had no playground and there could be few places in which so many children were crowded together on such a small site. Only because the staff was very efficient and the children very teachable did instruction meet with the success to which reports testified. 06 12 12 & a # c.36.5

Library, p3

1906 12 13
'The Sleepless Watchman' – the Leslie-Walker Fire Detector – was demonstrated at the Victoria Assembly Room. It ensures that no fire may occur without warning being speedily given both to the occupiers and the fire brigade. The detector is a sealed glass partially filled with mercury which is fixed to the ceiling. Should the temperature rise this expands and completes an electric circuit which causes a bell to ring. It resets itself automatically and is ready to report another outbreak. 06 12 13 # c.34.75

1906 12 15
Jebb book, p4
Tyre lever, p4

1906 12 19
The handsome new Norwich Union building with its ornamental white stone façade finally stands out in bold relief. Downing Street and St Andrew's Street corner is freed from inconvenient hoardings at last. The builder was summonsed for delay in removing them: there were periods when no work was being carried on at all. Throughout construction a policeman had needed to be on point duty at a cost of £250. But he had made genuine attempts to get the work through in a reasonable time. He was fined a nominal one pound. 06 12 19a & b # c.44.6

Isleham Spion Kop, p3

1906 12 20
Ely coroner held an inquest on the death of an 79-year-old Sutton woman. For several years she was in the habit of taking laudanum; she fetched twopennyworth at a time, twice a week. That was enough to destroy life, but her daughter never saw her take it. She took beer at her meal times and rum when she was ill. The doctor refused to issue a death certificate as the body had been laid out before he saw it and certain signs had been wiped away. 06 12 20 # OPIUM

1906 12 21
Bourn sacrilege, p3

1906 12 22

The question of Christmas holidays for shop assistants has been settled. At first tradesmen were rather slow to sign the petition of the Early Closing Association but at last it bore the signatures of all the principal traders. The public holiday in Cambridge will therefore extend from Monday night to Friday morning. On Boxing Day there are football matches and a cross-country run and performances of the pantomime 'Aladdin' at the Guildhall. 06 12 22

1906 12 22
We regret to have to record the death of Mr Frederic Wm Maitland, Professor of English Law. He was at the Grand Canary whither he had gone for the winter. He was a prolific writer on the subject of law but his final writing was a memoir of Miss Mary Bateson, with whom he did literary work. One of his last acts was to attend her funeral. By his death Cambridge has lost not only a distinguished scholar but a man of charming and courteous personality who despite his great learning was one of the most unassuming of men. 06 12 22

1906 12 27
Such a Christmas as has just been experienced in Cambridge occurs but few times within a lifetime. A good old-fashioned Christmas when the brightly-blazing Yule log, or its modern equivalent, is necessary to counteract the efforts of King Frost is as a rule so old-fashioned that it seems to have existed only in the picturesque imaginations of the novelist and pictorial artist. So also is the Christmas-card Christmas with the country covered with the white mantle of snow. Yet the festival of 1906 has been remarkable for both 06 12 27 # c.12

1906 12 28
George Harradine, cabman of Hilton was summoned for not carrying a lamp attached to his cart. Sergeant Gilbey said he was in Sawston High Street and saw a large furniture van with three horses and no light. The driver said he had been burning one earlier, but the lamp was quite cold and there was no candle in it. He was fined 10s. 06 12 28

1906 12 28
The landlord of the Eagle and Lamb, Cambridge Road, Ely was summoned for permitting drunkenness. George Lemon said he had been asked to have a game at 'push penny'. Two pints were bought in and shared by five people. Two more quarts were lost at the game. When he went to the house he had 2s 6d and when the police fetched him out he had only fourpence left. He had spent the rest in drink. He did not remember striking the landlord's daughter or falling down, but did remember being locked up at the police station. 06 12 28

1906 12 29
Christmas bathing in the river needs a Spartan spirit and a robust constitution. But in Cambridge sufficient men enjoy a jovial gathering at the Town Bathing Sheds every Christmas morning. With the mercury hovering above freezing point, water in dykes coated with ice and a keen wind blowing across the Fen, about 30 bold spirits plunged in and one swam to the Leys School. When he emerged from the water his skin had a bright red hue, but he was perfectly happy. 06 12 29b # c.38 : swimming # c.39

1906 12 29
Hudson's brewery applied for the transfer of the licence of the Golden Fleece, Ram Yard, an old beer-house attached to Brown's billiard rooms, which years ago was a celebrated resort of University billiard players. The house had been closed for eight months but now there was a new tenant. Some days ago it was refused, but now it was granted. 06 12 29a # c.27.4

1906 12 29
Cambridge byelaws compel a householder to remove the snow from the path in front of his habitation, which provides an opportunity for out-of-works to earn an honest copper. One rang the bell of a corner house and informed the occupier that he had swept the snow from his path. Obviously the only thing to be done was to pay the man for his labour. But when he rang the bell of the adjoining house with many feet of frontage there was no answer: the occupants had gone away for Christmas but not drawn their blinds. Love's labour lost indeed! 06 12 29c # c.34.5 # c.12

1906 12 29
A London newspaper describes Barnwell as a slum area of Cambridge chiefly inhabited by brickmakers; it claims there is little traffic along the road but within four minutes walking one passes 14 alehouses, some positively next door to each other. However in recent years the area has undergone a great improvement with the building of the Abbey Estate, and the amount of traffic has increased. But no one will gainsay the comments on the number of superfluous public houses. 06 12 29d # c.27.4 # c.44.6

1906 12 29 ES
The ancient custom of soliciting alms on St. Thomas's Day is still observed in Isleham where, in groups, the widows patrol the village and solicit from the upper and middle classes anything in the shape of money or seasonable presents 31 12 25ES

1906 12 31
New Town reading room, p3
1906 local retrospect, p4

1907 Cambridge Daily News]

There are scans of these stories

January 1907 CDN

1907 01 01
The Cambridge custom of ushering in the New Year by the discharge of rockets from King's Parade has rarely been observed under more favourable conditions and a good crowd congregated near King's gate where a wooden stand had been erected. The Chief of the Fire Brigade and the Chief Constable stood by with a number of 'blue lights' spluttering in their hands ready to fire the symbols of farewell and welcome. 07 01 01 # c.39

Newmarket New Year, p3
Local retrospect, p4

1907 01 02
A warm well-lighted room in St Paul's Institute New Town was opened as a reading room. There was a collection of current literature ready for the first arrivals who drew chairs to the tables and took advantage of the comfort and facilities provided. The Free Library was one of the most popular institutions in Cambridge, ten years ago a branch was established at Mill Road with other reading rooms at Castle End and East Road. 07 01 02 & 2a # c

Ely workhouse, p3
Local retrospect, p3

1907 01 03
One of the most flourishing of Cambridge's small industries is the confectionery factory of Pollard and Co. in Garden Walk, Victoria Road. From this delightfully-situated establishment some tons of pure boiled sweets are exported to various parts of the country. Not even with the recent extensions to the factory can they cope with the demand. One of their specialities are honey and butter balls and the marzipan for the centre of their satin pralines is made of the finest almonds. 07 01 03 & 03a # c.27

1907 01 03
A signalman at Cherry Hinton signal box experienced the agony of seeing his son killed before his eyes. While he was on duty his three-year-old lad toddled across the line to visit his father, just as a passenger train was approaching. Unable to leave his post and unable to prevent the accident, the father saw his son knocked down by the train. He was picked up, shockingly injured, and conveyed by the train to Cambridge station and from thence to Hospital but was dead before he arrived 07 01 03b # c.26.2

1907 01 03
Cambridge Library – W.A. Fenton appointed librarian – 07 01 03b, 07 01 25 # c.77.4

Retrospect, p4

1904 01 04
Local retrospect, p4

1907 01 05
There is a popular delusion among residents that Chesterton is neglected by the police. But last Friday in the small hours I noticed the glare of a fire from a burning shed in Springfield Road and saw a policeman sprinting round the corner of Ferry Path. He was followed within three minutes by four others, including a sergeant. This should convince residents that the police are alert for the safety of their lives and property. But superstitions die hard. 07 01 05

1907 01 07
Public library salaries – details – 07 01 07 # c.77.4

1907 01 08
For many years a weird figure, clad in a red chintz dress, has haunted a farmhouse on the Thorney estate in the fens. During the creepy hours of the night it appeared in one particular bedroom and pointed a long, lean finger to a roof. Sometimes it made a rattling noise. Then it vanished. The house was long occupied by the Caves, a noted fen family. Now a new tenant investigating the beams above the room has found secreted there the will of John Caves, made in 1797, relating to an estate worth about £10,000. Probably the mystic lady's perambulations will now cease 07 01 08 # GHOST # c.39

1907 01 09
A new development of gas lighting in St Andrew's Street renders the exterior of the New Theatre almost as light as day. By the use of an automatic compressor the power of ordinary incandescent light is increased fourfold but cost of the gas consumed is halved. There are two other installations in Cambridge, one in the locomotive department at the railway station and the other at Messrs Crossman's knitting factory in Norfolk Street. 07 01 09 # c.24.8 # c.24.4

1907 01 09
Mr Harold Archer, Ely solicitor, told the court he'd had taken a shooting party to Decoy Farm which was owned by his wife, where they shot 20 hares, 18 pheasants and one partridge. He gave the tenant four hares and nine hares to the men. The tenant said that he had previously raised no objections to such shooting as he liked to keep on good terms with the landlord but difficulties had arisen over the rent and he was indignant at the treatment meted out by Mr Archer, so he'd refused permission. He'd bred the pheasants that had been shot. 07 01 09 & 09a

1907 01 11
Castle Soap Company – detailed article – 07 01 11 & 11a # c.27

1907 01 12
Mrs Verrall, wife of a Fellow of Trinity, first attempted to obtain automatic phenomena by means of the planchette but without success. She then tried automatic writing. Seating herself before a sheet of paper she began writing rapidly although it was dark and could not see what she wrote. The writings have been in Latin and sometimes Greek but the phraseology is medieval. A good many other Cambridge people are interesting themselves in such phenomena and there was previously a branch of the Psychical Research Society in the town. 07 01 12 & 12a # c.39

1907 01 14
Cambridge Daily News appeal for new trial over alleged libel from Liverpool manure merchant – 07 01 14 # c.04

Railway fatality, p3 *

1907 01 15
The vicarage of St Michael's church Cambridge has become vacant and Trinity College has offered the living to the Vicar of St Mary's, to work the parishes in conjunction. People have moved away from central Cambridge where there is a larger number of churches than now needed and since 1870 colleges have ceased to be exclusively Church of England institutions. The Church is inadequately supplied both with men and money and it is extravagant to maintain so many small parishes as separate cures 07 01 15 # c.83

1907 01 15

An inquest into the death of a male child of a single woman in a village near Linton heard she'd been attended by her mother, a midwife, who said that after the child was born it had moaned but did not cry, she did not slap it nor wash it. It was the fifth illegitimate child her daughter had had. Three of them were still alive, one was an idiot who'd fell on the fire a month ago. Another had been born dead. Dr W.M. Palmer said he'd found the child in a dirty cloth or flannel petticoat. If properly attended at birth it would have stood a good chance of living. 07 01 15a # CHILDREN

1907 01 15
When Parliament re-assembles there will be a stupendous effort on behalf of the enfranchisement of women. A canvass is being organised in Cambridge which already includes the heads and staffs of Newnham and Girton Colleges and the Secondary Training Colleges for Women. Small informal drawing-room meetings are being held and addresses on suffrage given to meetings of the Women's Liberal Association and the Co-operative Women's Guild. 07 01 15b # c.33 # WOMEN

1907 01 16
A Fenstanton woman said an Over farmer had gone into the Dolphin, St Ives and alleged an improper connection between herself and a man who was a friend of the family who been in the habit of visiting her home. What made it worse was that she was within a week of her confinement and had not previously had a child for ten years. Now people she met in the street would not look at her. Defendant claimed it was a joke but the words had been uttered angrily with his face thrust into the face of her husband. Five of the jury were in favour of £6 damages and five in favour of one farthing. 07 01 16 a & b

1907 01 17
A driver charged with dangerous driving was fined £10 by St Neots magistrates which he paid but was then told by the Police that he would be detained until he could produce his licence. He was escorted by a constable to the telephone office to get it sent on from London. As there was a delay he got the operator to send out for two bottles of beer, one of which was consumed by the policeman. On return to the station he left his coat as security when he went to a hotel to get something to eat. Another constable came and took tea at the same table. Eventually the licence arrived and he was allowed to go. But this was false imprisonment and he was awarded damages 01 01 17 & 17a

1907 01 17
The County Road Committee decided that roads to Meldreth and Soham railway stations carry a considerable amount of traffic. They should be accepted as main roads when brought up to a proper standard by the District Councils. But the Bourn to St Neots, Over to Willingham and Newmarket to Moulton roads only carried light traffic and should not be taken over. A bend at Kirtling is dangerous for motors but Lord North is willing to give up a strip for widening the road provided the county erect a fence. 07 01 17c # c.44.65

1907 01 17
Women's suffrage – meeting at Royston – 07 01 17b # c.33 # WOMEN

1907 01 18
When Dew Smith and Horace Darwin commenced the manufacture of certain scientific instruments for physiological work at the University Laboratory it was more as a hobby and not financially profitable. But it grew and in 1895 was turned into a limited liability company which is now flourishing at its pleasantly situated works off Chesterton Road. Among its important products is a kite used in meteorological observations and a machine for standardising small screws which has been supplied to the Japanese government. 07 01 18 & a # c.27.1

1907 01 18
Residents of Newnham Croft complained that the parish road leading to the University Bathing Shed meadows was narrower than the 20ft specified on the Enclosure Award. The meadows and garden alongside were now being turned into a large building estate and it was important the road be defined to stop houses being erected on parish land. 07 01 18b

Scientific Instruments , p3 *

1907 01 22
Nz road signs, p4
Gypsies Stradishall, p4 *

1907 01 23
The Cambridge Union Society debated 'That the Channel Tunnel would be a failure and a danger to the country'. It was not the duty of the State to risk taxpayers' money but it would not be wise to allow such a dangerous scheme to be in the hands of anybody with less power. Military and naval opinion was against it. But it might mean the opening of a new era for Europe and any risk would be worthwhile in the interests of international peace. The proposition was agreed. 07 01 23

1907 01 24
The famous Pitt Club was damaged in a disastrous fire which commenced in the dining room at the top of the building destroying the roof above. Fortunately the club records together with some of the valuable engravings of William Pitt were saved but many interesting portraits of former members were destroyed. The Fire Brigade used their new steamer for the first time and but for their efforts the club would have been a thing of the past 07 01 24 # c.36.9

1907 01 24
Mr G.A. Mackenzie of Ross Street has organised services for deaf and dumb children at Tracey Memorial Hall. They have been attended by nearly 30 people, many of whom have received excellent training in institutions and some have already been confirmed He was formerly Diocesan Missioner at Oxford and secretary of the Liverpool Deaf and Dumb Association. 07 01 24a # c.21.1

1907 01 25
Skating – British Championships arranged – 07 01 25a
Public librarian, p3*

1907 01 26
In glorious weather a large number of professional skaters competed for the Fifty-Guinea Cup at Littleport. On the outward journey on the mile-and-a-half course the competitors reached a quite extraordinary speed but the return leg was quite a different tale; great stamina was essential to push against the powerful wind. W. Housden beat E. Moxon in the final. 07 01 26 # c.38 : skating

1907 01 26
In such a cold spell undergraduate etiquette is apt to go by the board. It is an unwritten law that no junior member of the University should, on pain of merciless chaffing, appear in academical dress plus an overcoat. The idea of cap and gown and gloves was simply horrifying. Yet both these laws have been broken with impunity. One young man appeared in public with cap, gown, overcoat and a pair of very aggressive yellow-brown gloves. 07 01 26a # c.36.9 # c.12

1907 01 26
It would show a little more consideration for the feelings of other people if the dog-fancying undergraduate would go a little farther afield than Midsummer Common for their rat-worrying exhibitions. I have no objection to the extermination of the rodents nor to the training of dogs for the purpose, but to many people the sight of the 'sport' in full view of Victoria Avenue is repulsive and disgusting. Such displays should not be permitted in places which force the sight of them willy-nilly upon every passer-by 07 01 26a # c.36.9 # c.19

1907 01 28

Frederick Dewsberry learned the organ at Trinity College, later playing at Caius College, St Michael's and St Andrew the Great churches. When the Guildhall organ was opened in 1882 he was offered the post of Borough Organist on condition that he gave a number of public recitals during the year. 07 01 28 # c.69

Skating, Littleport, p4

1907 01 30
Last week one of His Majesty's motors passing through Ely ran over and killed a dog owned by Mr A. Feast. Mr G.M. Hall brought the matter before the King who, with his customary generosity, has forwarded Mr Feast £5. This is characteristic of his Majesty and is only one of many incidents which have done so much to endear him to his people. 07 01 30 # c.02

Fulbourn sewage, p3 *
Fordham thefts, p3

1907 01 31
Election on Senior Wranglership – 07 01 31*, 07 02 01, 07 02 01a, 07 02 04a # c.36.9
Fulbourn sewage, p31

February 1907 CDN

1907 02 01
Only members of the University in academic dress are admitted to the Senate House to vote on the abolition of the Senior Wranglership. But one voter managed to elide the vigilance of the janitors and outraged the proprieties by stalking up to the barrier in a light 'dust' coat, swinging his cloth cap in hand. The situation was explained to him and after a hasty retreat he reappeared in the required decorous black garment. 07 02 01a # c.36.9 # c.39

1907 02 01
Within three miles of Witcham Gravel is another unique parish, that of Grunty Fen. It contains a population of 74, boasts of two railway stations, but has neither church, school, post office nor shop. The clergy of Stretham and Wilburton voluntarily minister to the spiritual needs as it is not within the limits of any ecclesiastical parish. 07 02 01b

Janet Cross, Littleport baker, p4

1907 02 02
All over the country old Pittites offer sighs of relief at the comparatively small amount of damage caused to the Pitt Club, whose dining room was burnt out. The committee is to be congratulated on the speed with which it made new arrangements for dining, and the fortitude of the cook, who sent out breakfast on Saturday morning from a kitchen several inches deep in freezing water, deserves to be recorded in letters of gold and hung up in every kitchen. 07 02 02 # c.27.4 # c.36.9

1907 02 04
The doom of the Senior Wrangler has been sealed, and after 1909 that world renowned and historic personage will be as extinct as the Dodo. It is impossible not to feel regret for his passing. He has been so intimately associated with Cambridge as to have become a sort of trademark by which the University is known. But the tendency of modern education is towards specialisation and a University that failed to keep abreast of the times would soon be in decline. 07 02 04 # c.36.9 # c.39

Bill-posting co., p3 *
Church services, p3

1907 02 05

Littleport Skating Club's amateur race attracted 30 competitors. The ice was in good condition but a fairly heavy fall of snow necessitated the use of the snow plough to remove a coating that probably helped increase the times of some of the heats. It was won by F.W. Dix of Raunds. But a thaw means that the ice at Lingay Fen has been considerably weakened and the British Championships have had to be postponed. 07 02 05

1907 02 08
All Saints Church Longstanton is now possessed of an organ placed at the west end of the church. The instrument will be of immense support to the singing of both choir and congregation, brightening worship and stimulating their devotions. It was solemnly dedicated by the vicar who said they owed a deep debt to Mr E. Liveing of Brookfield House for his generosity 07 02 08

St Andrew the Less exhibition, p3

1907 02 09
Sir – when the National Telephone Company started its 'Local Message Rate' in Cambridge the charge was 20 shillings paid in advance for 240 calls with any balance carried forward to next year. After a short time the rate was raised to 30 shillings for 360 calls, now it is to be 50 shillings for 600 calls, but there is no rebate for unused calls. The company says that the use made by some subscribers is too small, but they are seeking to enlarge their profits before being taken over by the Post Office – J.C. Simpson 07 02 09 # c.27.7

1907 02 09
Natives of Cambridge appear to penetrate to every corner of the globe. Hardly a disaster happens but the C.D.N. receives a description from a local man on the spot. Several Cambridge soldiers were in Jamaica at the time of the Kingston earthquake and we have now received a letter from Frank Thompson Freestone of Trumpington who was there when buildings began to fall all around him. He reports that bodies, burned and mutilated beyond recognition were carried to the sea where hundreds of sharks awaited them. 07 02 09a

1907 02 11
Newmarket councillors considered advertising the town's advantages as a residential resort. Their drainage system was one of the best, they never had any complaint about the water supply and the refuge destructor had already destroyed hundreds of tons of garbage. No other town was quieter, had less prostitution, drunkenness or rioting. Here they might see the most notable personages in the world to whom Newmarket was especially agreeable because they could go to and fro with the absence of all pomp and state. But they wanted more seats for invalids along the roads and there was very little amusement 07 02 11 & 11a

1907 02 12
A Chinese undergraduate of St Catharine's college was summoned for driving a motor car in Jesus Lane at a furious rate. Frederick Siggers, a college porter, said he was wheeling a plate basket when the car passed within two feet of the wall on the wrong side of the road at 18 miles an hour. The student said it would be a wonderful car that could get up to that speed after a sharp corner. But he was convicted and his licence endorsed. 07 02 12 # c.36.9 # c.26.48

1907 02 12
Licencing sessions – Bottisham, Pike & Eel Fen Ditton, Swaffham Prior – Anchor & Red Lion, Guilden Morden – Six Bells – 07 02 12a & b

1907 02 13
While a loaded coal wagon was passing along Mawson Road the surface suddenly sank about two feet and it became firmly fixed in the trench. When a Great Eastern wagon, also loaded, attempted to pass another portion of the road subsided. Its wheels sank to such a depth that jacks had to be employed to remove them. It was due to a broken water main. 07 02 13

1907 02 14
Royston Industrial Co-operative Society is to be wound up. When it started a few years ago, business was exceedingly brisk but recently several large firms have established branches in the town which have handicapped the Co-operative Stores considerably. To continue would be to sink into greater financial difficulty. 07 02 14

1907 02 14
St Quintin bride in Africa – 07 02 14b
Longstanton baker, p3 *

1907 02 15
Suffrage meeting, Cambridge – 07 02 15 # c.33 # WOMEN

1907 02 16
Unusual scenes were witnessed at a meeting called at Burwell to discuss the Poor Fens Charity. The schoolroom was crowded with about 400 people, many others stood outside. But Mr R. Stephenson said that as it was a parish meeting non-electors and women must leave the room. They refused. After nearly two hours the meeting was abandoned in disorder and the altercation continued in the street. 07 02 16 & a

1907 02 16
When the hook attaching a horse to one of the Cambridge tram cars broke the animal dashed down the street at a furious pace, leaving the tram in the road. The horse, frightened by the clanking iron it was dragging, escaped a collision with a cart coming in the opposite direction, Near Sidney College it fell and before it could resume its career a scavenger had it in his grip and its period of liberty was at an end. No damage was done to anything except the prestige of the Tram Company. 07 02 16b # c.26.44

Motor car win, p4
Tadlow, p4*

1907 02 18
Keir Hardy demonstration – 07 02 18 # c.33

1907 02 19
Street organ, p4

1907 02 20
Burwell poors fen, p3

1907 02 21
The University Vice Chancellor has condemned the undergraduates who wrecked Kier Hardy's meeting at the Guildhall. It is one of the University traditions that honest opinions, however unpopular, should receive a fair hearing. Cambridge is not unsympathetic towards the Labour Party and its leader should have been given a chance of expressing his views. 07 02 21 # c.33 # c.36.9

St Giles – Kensit, p3
Berlinn disaster, p3*

1907 02 22
Lifeboats made a fifth attempt during the night to reach the Berlin; they got so near that they could see four men in the deck smoking room, where they were sheltering from the waves which were continually breaking over the doomed wreck. Amongst the drowned we regret to record the names of Mr Lomax and Mr Jack Berry of Newmarket who were taking racehorses to the continent. J.F. Rollaston, the well-known jockey, is also supposed to be among the lost. 07 02 22

1907 02 23
Cambridge Fire Brigade received news that a fire had broken out at Rhadegund Brewery, James Street, occupied by F.J. Swann. Fortunately the services of the steam engine were not required. The fall of live coal on a rug left the room full of smoke but Mr Swann threw buckets of water towards the grate while furniture was removed from the room below. 07 02 23 # c.27.4

1907 02 23
Until recently a letter box was situated at the top of Abbey Road within a yard of a fire alarm. Both were painted red. Now its removal has led to curious incidents, to say nothing of vigorous language on those who have weathered the storms by night to utilise the post, only to find it removed. One young woman was seen minutely examining the alarm, saying she'd "never seed a letter box without a hole before". When it was explained she expressed language which approximated to that of Billingsgate. 07 02 23a # c.27.7

1907 02 28
Extraordinary scenes were witnessed at Cambridge Guildhall when Mischa Elman made his second appearance. At the conclusion of his marvellous performance enthusiasm was unbounded with vociferous cheering for several minutes. The audience consisted largely of undergraduates and maidens still well in their teens. He was afterwards besieged in the retiring room by a crowd of admiring autograph-hunters. 07 02 28 # c.69

1907 02 28
Zanzigs – thought readers – 07 02 28a
Electric Supply Co, p3

March 1907 CDN

1907 03 01
A stag chased by the Cambridge Drag Hounds jumped into the garden of a house in Gower Road, Royston, then plunged through the window into the parlour. Two young ladies were terribly frightened as the animal dashed round, breaking chairs, pictures and mirrors until huntsmen secured it. Meanwhile the hounds entered the kitchen and devoured the whole of the family's dinner. The huntsmen continue their sport after leaving an address to which the owner should write for compensation. 07 03 01 # c.38 : hunting

1907 03 05
Fen Ditton charity, p3

1907 03 06
A house amid a clump of trees near Fulbourn station has been the residence for 50 years of the celebrated animal painter, J.F. Herring who has just died. He was the elder son of an earlier J.F. Herring, the leading painter of racehorses and coaching scenes, while a second son, Charles, became famous as a painter of Landeer subjects. He had just one pupil, Mr W.B. Redfern who visited his old master only yesterday. The funeral will take place at Great Wilbraham where there is a family vault. 07 03 06 # c.63

1907 03 07
In the recent County Council elections for Castle Ward, Cambridge both A.B. Whibley and James Wootten received equal votes. Both candidates are elected but neither can vote until one or other petitions the High Court, which is an expensive process. In a similar incident in Huntingdonshire candidates drew lots but after the 1857 parliamentary election in Huntingdon both Mr Fellowes and

Mr Heathcote sat in the House of Commons but were unable to vote until Heathcote gave way. 07 03 07 # c.35.1

1907 03 07
The White Swan in Castle Street, Cambridge, was in a dilapidated condition. There were large rat holes in the bar floor, the parlour floor seemed shaky and the whole place was permeated by a very unwholesome smell. It was impossible to open the windows, the plaster work of the ceilings was poor and occupants of bedrooms on the second floor had no proper means of exit. The licence was renewed provided an outside iron staircase was constructed and structural deficiencies rectified. Also the Spotted Cow, Thatched House, Red House, Claremont, Woodman's Arms, Golden Fleece, Marquis of Granby 07 03 07a & b # c.27.4

1907 03 08
Castle ward, p3

1907 03 09
Officers who preside at country polling districts are required to bring the boxes containing votes to Shire Hall ready for counting next morning. Usually they do so comfortably seated in a carriage. But one cycled a considerable distance laden with all the papers and paraphernalia. The feat required some courage as the journey through the mud, wind and rain must have been an unpleasant experience even to an active cyclist in a very fair state of training 07 03 09 # c.35.1

Women, p4*

1907 03 12
The Green Man at Harston consisted of a tap room, bar, parlour, three bedrooms and small kitchen. It sold half a barrel of draught beer, a dozen bottles of beer and one gallon of spirits a week. There was a club-room in the back yard but few members attended. The stables and outbuildings were in bad repair. There were five licenced houses within 615 paces, including the Coach and Horses, Swan and Pemberton Arms Also Three Horse Shoes, Lt Shelford, Duke of Cumberland Over and Milkmaid Willingham 07 03 12a & b

1907 03 12
Stretham suicide, William Wallis – 07 03 12

1907 03 13
The Bell Inn, Isleham owned by Messrs Treadway and Percy, Soham brewers, was built of reed and plaster and was in a good state of repair. It included a taproom, cellar and three bedrooms with a clubroom and stabling for four horses. The tenant had a van and went out to feasts, which helped him make a living. There was also a weighbridge which weighed 100 loads a year; the charge was eightpence and the carter allowed one pint of beer out of the money. There were 16 licenced premises in the parish with four within 200 yards – the Cock White Horse and Griffin alehouses and the Crown beerhouse. 07 03 13a & b

1907 03 13
Earl of Durham landlady bankruptcy – 07 03 13 # c.27.4

1907 03 14
Newmarket brigade received the alarm of a fire at Stetchworth Hall Farm at 11.45; within twenty minutes the engine was away. Captain Cooper was in charge with Firemen Glyde and Kemp. The other firemen followed in a trap. They arrived at 12.40 to find a range of stabling was on fire; within an hour they had it under control. 07 03 14

1907 03 14

Mr A. Thompson of St Matthew's Street, Cambridge is a bootmaker, work that needs a strong back because of the constant leaning over. "Severe pains took me across the small of the back, like lumbago. My urinary system was disordered as well, the secretions being thick and unnatural. I started with Dean's backache kidney pills which soon put me right; a few doses of them gave me relief. I would recommend them", he says. (Advert) 07 03 14a

Reading room, p3

1907 03 15
William Maltby of Devonshire Road joined the police force in 1849, rising to the rank of inspector. In those days constables wore top hats instead of helmets with cut-away coats around which they wore a belt of piratical proportions. There were only 30 constables, two inspectors and a superintendent whose headquarters were in Emmanuel Road. 07 03 15 # c.34.7

1907 03 16
Castle End Reading Room – 07 03 16 # c.77.4

1907 03 18
A movement is on foot amongst English Roman Catholics to establish a college for women, on the lines of Girton or Newnham, at the University. The leader is Miss Eleanor Warner who recently visited the Catholic Convent in Bateman Street. She is now in Rome for a meeting with the Pope. Opinion is strongly favourable and that Cambridge may soon see an addition to her institutions. 07 03 18a # c.83 # c.36.9 # WOMEN

Debden fire, p3*
Hooliganism p3

1907 03 18
Cambridge pressmen assembled at the Sidar Hotel to bid farewell to Mr D.T. Nisbet who is severing his connection with the C.D.N. having secured an important appointment on the 'Midland Evening News'. He was handed a silver cigarette case, a fountain pen and a writer's wallet. In reply he spoke of the good feeling existing between local journalists who, though professional rivals, were personal friends. 07 03 18 # c.04

1907 03 19
Twelve cottages were destroyed by a fire at Debden, leaving many people homeless. The cottages were in five groups on each side of the street. They were all thatched and each outbreak was due to sparks from another cottage. The high wind quickly spread the conflagration. The Saffron Walden and Bishops Stortford Brigades were summoned and prevented the fire spreading further. 07 03 19

1907 03 19
Some years ago Cambridge Free Library opened a public reading room at the Castle End Mission and Working Men's Institute. It has proved a boon to those who have used it. However the Institute's work is growing and their newly-formed men's club now has a comfortable room well equipped with daily, weekly and monthly papers, a cosy parlour for games, conversation & smoking and a first-class billiard room with full-sized table. Membership is open to all men over 18. 07 03 19 # c.77.4

1907 03 20
The Stetchworth Dairy Company delivered milk in cans stamped with their name and round number. Percy Atkins, one of their roundsmen noticed the Babraham Dairy Company using a can which had the words 'St' and 'Dairy' on it; the rest of the name had been soldered over. But they said it was old and rusty, so they thought it had been abandoned. The diary could have it back if they wanted. Magistrates said that obliterating the name was ill advised, but the charge of theft was dismissed. 07 03 20 & a # c.27

1907 03 22
Exciting scenes were witnessed at Shelford where two cottages close by the railway line were gutted. The discovery synchronised with the passing of the G.E.R. express and it is thought a spark from the engine alighted upon the thatched roof. In the absence of any fire appliance helpers concentrated on removing the furniture and every article, with the exception of the iron bedsteads, was carried to a place of safety. 07 03 22

1907 03 22
Madingley vicarage narrowly escaped destruction by a fire of mysterious origin that broke out while the vicar and his household were at evening service and the house locked up. It is believed a cat may have knocked over a lamp. PC Jaggard was alerted but not being able to effect an entrance he proceeded to the church were the service was just concluding. The vicar and congregation hurried to the scene to find flames were bursting through the drawing-room windows. Twenty villagers set to work to extinguish the fire with water from an artesian well in the stable yard. Inside, the cat was found suffocated. 07 03 22a

1907 03 22
Moat Farm tragedy recalled – sale – 07 03 22b

19907 03 23
University stamps, p3
Canada latter
Salmon photographer, p3* # c.65.5

1907 03 26
During recent elections for St Matthew's Ward one of the Liberal candidates complained about the vicar pulling down Liberal election bills on the walls of York Street School, one of the polling stations. He replied that nobody had the right to fix notices to the property of the Old Schools. Patches of paper remain on the walls for months afterwards leaving a stain it was impossible to remove. Anyway most people had made up their mind before the election how to vote. 07 03 26 # c.33

1907 03 26
The advent of the motor car has produced a new swindler replying on the average motor owner's lack of technical knowledge. One visited Dr Grove of St Ives with what he claimed was a patent sparking plug produced by a French firm which they wished prominent motorists to try. It cost 8s.9d (44p) but it had no name on it. Dr Grove called the police who discovered a bag containing twelve cheap plugs and a list of the names of all car owners in the neighbourhood. The man was convicted of obtaining money by false pretences and sentenced to three months' hard labour. 07 03 26a # c.26.48

1907 03 26
Lord de Ramsey's allotment tenants – 07 03 26

1907 03 27
Cambridge photographic club – P.R. Salmon lecture – 07 03 27 # c.65.5

1907 03 28
Saffron Walden man in Canada – 07 03 28 # EMIGRATION

1907 03 30
Alexandra Gardens, Chesterton, was formally opened. Five years ago Chesterton Urban Council purchased disused brickpits with a frontage to Alpha Road. That portion was sold which enabled the council to acquire the remainder at a very moderate price. The upper part of Carlyle Road was widened, the land turfed, laid out with flower beds and planted with shrubs. It is proposed to have games of tennis and bowls as in vogue in seaside towns 07 03 30 # c.18

1907 03 30
About ten years ago some undergraduates of St John's College removed one of the stone balls from Clare College Bridge. They transferred it to a Rob Roy canoe but this capsized and the purloined ball sank to the bottom of the Cam. There it has remained ever since. One of the other balls was put in its place and a new one made, now partly obscured by ivy. (Item from the 'Table Talk' column on 1st April) 07 03 30b # c.36.9

April 1907 CDN

1907 04 01
James Catling joined the Town Council in 1900, bringing 30 years' experience as an auctioneer and estate agent with an intimate knowledge of local properties. Only last week he was re-elected to the Board of Guardians upon which he had sat since 1876. His hobbies included horticulture, freemasonry and the Rifle Volunteer Corps. Since his marriage to a Bedford lady he has resided there, returning to Cambridge when public duty required. By his death the town loses a talented and conscientious public servant. 07 04 01 # c.06

1907 04 02
The name of Fred Karno is synonymous with mirth and hilarity, his pantomimic sketches are popular everywhere. Two are being staged nightly at the Hippodrome, Newmarket Road which he has specially transformed into a comfortable music hall. Last night the place was crowded 07 04 02 # c.76

Easter, p3

1907 04 03
Mr Nichols' butchers delivery cart was proceeding along Hills Road when the horse shied at a piece of paper blown in the wind and charged full tilt into the window of Mr E. Field, chemist. The glass was shivered into fragments, cameras, bottles containing chemicals and perfumes came hurtling down from shelves upon the maddened animal whose head was pierced by a stout iron bracket. It snapped off and remained embedded in the skull until the horse was liberated and death mercifully assisted. 07 04 03

1907 04 04
Cambridge Horse Club had many ups and downs during the last ten years. Gentlemen who lost their horse were compensated to the full market value. When the animal was ill it was taken to Mr S. Bennett, the veterinary surgeon where it got skilful attention until it recovered. There had been a small epidemic amongst horses but fortunately it did not extend or it would have been serious for their finances. 07 04 04 # c.19

1907 04 04
Ashwell Rural Council received a letter from the Home Secretary with regard to the proposed abolition of the fair held annually at Barley fair. After careful inquiry he does not feel justified in closing it, as requested. Mr Wilkerson thought the County Council was to blame for allowing the fair people to go into the road as they did, action should have been taken years ago. 07 04 04a

Vandals, p2

1907 04 05
During a football match on Midsummer Common one of the backs, being hard pressed, kicked the ball out of play. It crashed with great force against the pipe of a spectator, knocking two teeth out and driving the stem into the roof of his mouth. Blood gushed in great quantity and an operation may be necessary. The injured man has a wife and two children dependent on him and has been out of employment for a considerable period. The Chesterton Thursday League is to appeal for money to defray his medical charges. 07 04 05 # c.38 : football

1907 04 05
The curate of St Mary's church, Ely, reported that young people attending services on Sunday evenings were reading novelettes and 'making eyes at each other'. Three ladies had complained that their maids were offended by young men whispering beastliness into their ears. Officials should sit at the back of the church and find the offenders, who would be prosecuted. 07 04 05a

1907 04 06
The Alexandra Gardens, Chesterton, is an excellent example of what can be done by local administrators who keep their eyes open. A few years ago what is now a delightful recreation ground for young and old was simply a collection of vile refuse, a danger and a nuisance. As the council cannot speculate in land Mr H.G. Whibley bought it for £1,350. He disposed of the Alpha Road frontage for £1,000 and made the rest over to the corporation for £350, providing residents a beautiful pleasure garden for a cost so small it is hardly worth considering. 07 04 06 # c.18

Mammoth show financies, p3
Canon Cockshott, p4*

1907 04 09
Children destist, p3

1907 04 10
The University bought all kinds of foreign meat as cheap as they could, never mind the quality – from Argentina where they bought mutton at three ha'pence a pound - butchers were told. Then there was the poultry. Years ago they bought poultry from the farmers, nowadays they got it from Russia, frozen, as they got their eggs. The public should know what they were buying and foreign and English meat should be marked as such. (Applause) 07 04 10 # c.28 # c.27

Engine driver death, p3*

1907 04 11
A Littleport baker appeared in court. The case has aroused a great deal of interest for he was a well-known public man, a member of various administrative bodies and while awaiting trial was returned equal at the head of the poll in the Rural Council elections. He was found not guilty. 07 04 11

1907 04 13
Cambridge is much interested in reports of the initiation of the Amir of Afghanistan into Freemasonry. In 1897 an Afghan Minister, Sultan Mahommed Khan, entered Christ's' College and became very interested in Freemasonry, never missing a meeting of the Cambridge Lodges. He disappeared very suddenly, having been ordered to return home, but there is little doubt he has been responsible for the present Amir's interest for he continually expressed the hope he might establish the Order there 07 04 13 # c.37.2

River mystery, p3

1907 04 15
Undergraduate debt, p3

1907 04 16
Market Hill tragedy, p3

1904 07 17

A retired Indian Civil servant was found dead with a revolver by his side. The deceased, who graduated at Caius College and was a teacher of Bengali, had been in ill-health for some time. His absence from home at Stapleford aroused comment so his son cycled over to the Indian Civil Service Rooms on Market Hill Cambridge where he found his father sitting in an armchair, shot through the heart. 07 04 17

1907 04 17
A Cambridge miller told the bankruptcy court his sisters had built a mill on the Cherryhnton Road which he rented. He traded until May 1906 doing good business, but had insufficient capital so he borrowed from the bank. He had dismissed a man at the mill and did without a servant, living on the barest necessities, only giving his wife £3 a week for house-keeping for their family of eleven.
07 04 17a# WINDMILL

1907 04 20
Small boats are affected by the wash from craft propelled by steam or motor power. But too much restriction would hamper commercial craft so seriously as to drive them from the river altogether, considerably reducing the revenue of the Cam Conservancy. Now that the carriage of goods has transferred more to the railway the river is increasingly used by recreative boaters who should pay more 07 04 20a

St Johns and Trinity more senior wranglers – 07 04 20 # c.36.9

1907 04 23
Saxon Cement fined, p3

1907 04 24
The Lord Chief Justice heard an appeal relating to fishing in the Great Ouse between Littleport High Bridge and Brandon Creek. The Lord of the Manor had granted exclusive angling rights to the Cambridge and Ely Angling Society. It was argued that ancient books showed the river had been cut after the original grant of the Manor had been made so he had no control over it. This was dismissed and the rights upheld 07 04 24 & a

1907 04 25
George Stace, draper and milliner of Petty Cury claimed payment from Charles Sugden, the well-known actor, for goods supplied to his wife in July 1903. It was custom to make out bills to the lady who had paid some money on account. Mr Sugden said he had been in America and not given her any authority to pledge his credit, she had her own income. But Elizabeth Thorpe, manageress in the mantle and gown department, remembered him coming into the shop with her. 07 04 25

1907 04 25
Henry Quelch of New Street, Cambridge, has lived at his present address a quarter of a century, and hails from London. He is a dairyman, a calling which exposed him to all kinds of weather. This renders him subject to colds which, settling in the back, upset the action of the kidneys. He has no hesitation in recommending Doan's backache kidney pills, they have cleared up his urinary disorder and he feels quite well. – advert 07 04 25a

1907 04 26
The laying of the foundation stone of a new Sunday School in connection with Burwell Congregational Church attracted a large gathering. It will consist of an assembly hall seating 180 children, with class rooms and kitchen, built of Burwell bricks and heated with hot water throughout. T.L. Grimson acted as honorary architect and W.P. Fuller will carry out the work at a cost of £650.
07 04 26

Locomotives & horses, p3

1907 04 27
It is alleged that Hobson's Stream is being 'tapped' by some unauthorised body and the supply of water for public purposes is fast diminishing. Not so. To restore its former volume it simply needs flushing. Water comes from Shelford to the conduit in as plentiful a supply as ever but it is many years since the pipe which feeds the Market Hill fountain was adequately flushed and an accumulation of rubbish prevents it receiving the amount of water it should. There is some difficulty in deciding whether the town council or the Hobson's Charity are responsible, but the cost would not exceed £5. 07 04 27 # c.24.2

1907 04 30
The Moody Manners Opera Company from Covent Garden are paying a return visit to Cambridge with 70 performers. On Monday 'Faust' was presented to a full house who enjoyed the complete and artistic manner in which it was performed. The orchestra is well-balanced and gave unbounded satisfaction to the audience 07 04 30 # c.69

1907 04 30
In the records of sport there is no instance of one family attaining greater re-eminence in any particular branch of sport that of the Gray family of Cambridge, in raquets. From 1863 onwards there have been five professional champions. Henry James Gray who was the first, is a town councillor and head of the well-known firm of athletic outfitters of Sidney Street. 07 04 30a & b # c.38

Balls auctioneer, p4*

May 1907 CDN

1907 05 03
Trinity Hall undergraduates have subscribed £6 3s. towards the fund for repairing the damage done to Mr Glasscock's cab on the night of the visit of Kier Hardy to Cambridge. It was smashed beyond repair but as vehicle was not covered by the Riot Damages Act he had no compensation for the loss sustained. At the commencement of term the News published the facts, calling the attention of undergraduates to the heavy loss they had caused and inviting them to put the matter right.
07 05 03 # c.26.4 # c.36.9

1907 05 04
A somewhat unusual accident occurred to a piano belonging to Mr H. Leavis of Regent Street. Two men were conveying it in a handcart near the Guildhall, when a horse attached to a L.N.W.R. parcels van collided with the cart. The man in the shafts narrowly escaped injury by jumping aside, but the piano was pitched out of the cart on to the road. Both the cart and the piano were damaged. 07 05 04

1907 05 04
At one time there was a prospect of the May Week festivities surpassing those of all previous years in their brilliance. The King and Queen of Denmark along with other Royals were mentioned as amongst those who would visit Cambridge and the University would bestow honorary degrees on the Colonial Premiers. Now it is known this was the product of a lively imagination. So of all the distinguished personages we were promised, the English Premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, is the only certainty. He will distribute prizes at the Leys School Speed Day, 07 05 04a

1907 05 06
A.G. Markham is amongst the front rank of road cyclists. At the North London Fifty Miles Invitation Road Race he was the only competitor riding a tricycle, covering the course in three hours, the fastest time every accomplished on one. This is remarkable as 25 of the 50 miles were covered against a strong wind. Even after such a punishing race, his stamina was such that he rode another 30 miles to his Cambrige home. 07 05 06 # c.38 : cycling

Post office thefts –

07 05 06aa & b # c.27.7

1907 05 07
A terrible burning accident took place in a fairground behind the Cock Inn, Clare, the young employee of a steam roundabout proprietor being literally roasted to death. There was one accommodation wagon where five men were supposed to sleep in two beds. But he had gone to a van used for the 'horses' on the roundabouts; not long afterwards it was seen to be in flames. Deceased was a great smoker of cigarettes. 07 05 07 # c.27.3

1907 05 09
New photographic process – T.J. Sowden on Ozobrome – 07 05 09b # c.65.5

1907 05 09
The original water-colour paintings of Mr W. Matthison commissioned to illustrate the new book on Cambridge by Mildred Tuker include subjects seldom depicted by artists. He has selected the daintiest spots: King's College gateway in twilight is a clever study while his view of the Bridge of Sighs was sold before the exhibition was opened 07 05 09 # c.64

1907 05 09
There has been a great increase in the number of people leaving Cambridgeshire for Canada. One agent, Alfred Suttle, tobacconist of Fitzroy Street, has booked 67 passengers since February. The ocean passage is from £5 10s (third class). The majority are skilled mechanics of the working class, railway labourers or domestic servants trying for their fortune in a land where wages are double what they are here. 07 05 09a # EMIGRATION

1907 05 11
Cambridge Daily News sued for libel – 07 05 11 # c.04

1907 05 11
A policeman described how he secreted himself in a larder and kept observation on the Eagle Inn, Bene't Street. He could see who entered the yard and overhear conversation in the smoke-room on the other side of a lath and plaster wall. He heard talk relating to horse racing and telephonic messages being passed to certain address giving the names of horses and mentioning sums of money. Police raided the inn and the landlord was committed for trial 07 05 11a

1907 05 14
There is a close educational bond between Cambridge and Japan. A number of Japanese boys come to the Leys School to receive a modern Western education. More young men come to the University to fit themselves for taking high places in the nation which has cast off the swaddling clothes of Oriental lethargy and become one of the great Powers of the world. It is therefore appropriate that when his Imperial Highness Prince Sandanru Fushimi, the special envoy of the Emperor of Japan, visited Cambridge he should return with the degree of Doctor of Law, honoris causa. 07 05 14 # c.36.9

1907 05 14
In 1874 part of the Holy Sepulchre churchyard was taken for widening the street on condition that the boundary was marked by a band of stone. Now the Electric Supply Company plans to build a sub-station in Round Church Street and want the Corporation to arrange for the removal and re-interring of any human remains. But they are not willing to incur any expense. 07 05 14a

1907 05 14
The body of a journeyman butcher was found floating face down in a pond close to the Woolpack public house at Reed. It is one of those wayside sheets of water with neither hedges nor fences, about two feet deep with the green substance that congregates on a pond. His hat, mackintosh and boots were found on the grass bank and it seemed as if he had swam from one side to the other. 07 05 14b

1907 05 14
A Women's Suffrage meeting heard that even in Cambridge there were many signs of women's desire for the vote; once they only had one meeting a year, now they were continually having them. Bertrand Russell was contesting Wimbleton in the interests of the movement. They might be proud that the first man to do this was a Cambridge man, and a man of such intellectual distinction. 07 05 14c # WOMEN # c.33

1907 05 15
An alarming explosion occurred at the Portland Saxon Cement Company's works, Coldham's Lane. At half-past-three the works were running as usual when there was a terrific report, followed by the sinister hiss of escaping steam. Boiler tenders, engine drivers and all engaged near the boiler room ran in all directions and considering the force of the explosion, which hurled masses of iron and brickwork at least 50 yards, the men had marvellous escapes. 07 05 15 # c.27 # CEMENT

1907 05 15
A meeting called to consider the disastrous consequences to agricultural labourers when farms were made into small holdings heard from men formerly employed on the Crown Lands farms, Burwell who had been turned out of house and home. But another meeting at West Row heard of the serious depopulation of rural districts and supported the Government's plans to bring the land within the reach of the people. 07 05 15 a & b # c.22

1907 05 16
Not one Cambridge boy in 30 learns a trade; parents grasp at a few shillings as early as possible. Some were taken up by printers and the University offices but the most promising work was in the motor and cycle industry. One eleven-year old worked 28 hours a week outside school hours cleaning stables during the dinner hour, all Saturday and three hours on Sunday. Another, aged 14, put in 32 hours a week selling papers. They spent the money on food and cigarettes.
07 05 16 & a # c.32.1 # CHILDREN

1907 05 16
Littleport fishing – ring theft, p3

1907 05 18
Natural History Society 50th anniversary – Entomological Society – 07 05 18a

1907 05 18
Dinner for the ordinary, healthy undergraduate is an event of importance. But students at one of the largest colleges trooped into the dining hall, bowed their heads while grace was said, and then to the utter astonishment of the senior members, rose and without a word solemnly walked out. The action was a protest against the kitchen management: there has been dissatisfaction not so much with the quality of the food, but with the quantity and the manner in which it has been served. The protest has caused an improvement in the cuisine. 07 05 18 # c.36.9 # c.27.4

1907 05 20
The old-time bakery was a low-roofed, gloomy compartment, reeking with a variety of odours, lighted by the flat flame gas burners, inhabited by perspiring men and lads working in temperatures suggestive of an inferno. Compare that with the conditions of Mr G.P. Hawkins' Model Bakery in Parsonage Street where unlimited supplies of pure air and natural light are obtainable and the most modern electrical appliances are installed with three ovens baking 160 loaves every hour. 07 05 20 & a # c.27

1907 05 21
Excitement was occasioned by the sight of police dragging the river near Victoria Bridge. They were searching for an embossed brass inkstand which had been abstracted from Quy church by sacrilegious hands after a stained-glass window had been forced open. One man has been assisting the police in the search, even to the extent of diving for the missing article; eventually the inkpot was fished up and will be produced in evidence. 07 05 21

Quy sacrilidge, p3*

1907 05 22
Claims have been made about the impact of smallholdings on Burwell. But our reporter found no outward sign of unemployment, no discontented farm labourers on village corners, no despondent tradesmen lounging outside empty shops. Quite the contrary: Burwell wore its customary air of quiet prosperity. It is said the 'discontented' men received 'a good feed, all the beer they could drink and half-a-dollar' from the MP for East Cambridgeshire for attending a meeting. 07 05 22 & a # c.22

1907 05 22
Cambridge Union Society discussed the regulation of motor traffic. Motorists rushed about the country and to remedy the dust nuisance they should be taxed, the money being spent to improve the condition of the roads. There should also be a 'smell limit'. But village boys ran out, cap in hand after a car to get the sweet, sweet smell. Noise was the only guarantee of safety, yet some would like a car to steal along like a robber in the night. In France there were no speed limits and the percentage of accidents was smaller. 07 05 22b # c.26.48

1907 05 22
A man of prepossessing appearance walked into the principal hotel at St Ives mentioned in an American accent that he was Mr Jay Gould junior, the tennis champion, and challenged the best local player. He was lionised by all. But later he was interviewed by Inspector Storey about a bicycle stolen from Huntingdon. Instead of the comfortable bed at the Golden Lion hotel he had to be content with a cell at the police station where he was charge under the name of George Pettitt of London. 07 05 22b

1907 05 23
Mr A. Hope, watchmaker of Sun Lane, Newmarket was awaked by heat. Dressed in his nightgown and slippers he endeavoured to collect watches left by his customers until being overpowered with smoke he smashed the glass front door of his shop. Messrs Faires and Rolph's outfitters premises alongside his was entirely destroyed together with the tailor's shop above. They are insured, but Mr Hope is not and his stock was damaged by water pouring through the ceiling. 07 05 23

Horse bolts, p3
Children fire, p3*

June 1907 CDN

1907 06 08
St Ives 'millionaire' – 07 06 08
Leys buildings, p4
Stretham goods, p4

1907 06 08
The boat procession used to be the most popular of the May Week gaieties. The brilliant blazers of the collegians, the varied colours of the ladies' charming costumes, the prettily adorned boats together with the enlivening strains of an excellent band all combined to make a scene of colour and animation. The gathering fell through owing to the apathy of the boating men who objected to dressing up to be looked at. But it is a great pity 07 06 08a # c.36.9 # c.39 # c.38 : rowing

1907 06 11
Some disappointment has been occasioned by the moderate success of women mathematicians this year. Only ten sat for the Tripos and Miss Eva Smith of Newnham is the only wrangler. The highest position ever attained by a woman was in 1890 when Miss Fawcett, daughter of the former blind

Postmaster-General, was placed above the Senior Wrangler – G.T. Bennett, Fellow of Emmanuel College. 07 06 11 # c.36.9 # WOMEN

1907 06 11
Cambridge Central Library Reading Room opened in 1884 but has now fallen behind many towns of similar size. The Lending Department is already inconveniently crowded with bookcases and provision has to be made each year for about 84 additional feet of shelf-room. The Reference Library contains a Shakespeare library and an important Cambridge Collection which are accommodated in galleries in the lending department while the rest of the Reference Library is placed in the Reading Room along with the newspapers and magazines. They also have many old books, prints and artistic works they are unable to exhibit and cannot give the community the full enjoyment of their own possessions. At the meeting of the Library Association held in Cambridge in 1905 resolutions were past 'That special libraries for children should be established in all public libraries' and 'That every library should contain some room in which discussions and lectures could be held' but the Central Library is without such facilities. There is a pressing need for an extension of its premises. 07 06 11a & 14

1907 06 12
Northampton Street was very narrow and the corner was one of the most dangerous in Cambridge. A policeman was always on point duty there. The improvement was a most desirable one and nobody objected to it, an inquiry was told. Nine cottages would be demolished and the people rehoused in others nearby. 07 06 12a

1907 06 12
There was great glee at the award of Honorary Degrees at the Senate House when a toy paper balloon floated down from the gallery and settled on a lady's head. With characteristic imprudence the juniors wanted their balloon returned but the lady was released from her embarrassment by a diversion elsewhere. Cheering greeted the arrival of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the first Liberal Prime Minister the University has educated since Palmerston. 07 06 12a # c.36.9

1907 06 14
Peas Hill property, p3
Free library, p3*
Dr Williams' pills, p4

1907 06 15
Mr Hobbs of High Street Soham has found a gigantic mushroom measuring 50 inches round the head. All but the stalk was cooked and eaten and was of excellent flavour. Mr Hobbs preserved the stalk and a good many people called to see it. 07 06 15

Automobilism – Mr Edge to drive car for 24 hours – 07 06 15

1907 06 17
Cyclists have continued to ride on the footpath leading from Dant's Ferry to Cam Road, Chesterton, despite the notice prohibiting it. On 5th June PC Evans was on duty in the path and as a result a number of offenders were fined one shilling (05p). They included Powell Chandler, a clerk, James Huddlestone, a civil servant, William Heffer, a farmer and two auctioneers, Joseph Winship and Herbert T. Hockey. 07 06 17 # c.26.485

1907 06 18
The scene in the Senate House was very tame and it was not until the presentation of the wooden spoons to the last Wrangler that there was any fun at all. This year three men were bracketed for last place. The original wooden spoon, about 30 years ago, grew into a malt shovel with the man's college arms upon it, but this year they were more elaborately decorated than ever and are quite works of art, beautifully adorned from bowl to handle. 07 06 18 & a # c.36.9 # c.39

1907 06 19
Isleham passive resistance, p3

1907 06 19
The 'Unity Brotherhood' had conducted some sort of mission for some months, circulating pamphlets couched in violent language attacking a Cambridge minister. The two men took up position on the Market Hill reading from a bundle of papers until there were about 1,000 people there. The crowd became hostile, hooting, shouting and trying hustle them until police intervened. They were remanded in gaol so their mental condition might be inquired into. 07 06 19 & a # c.83

1907 06 20
An extraordinary University report recommends the Director of the Fitzwilliam Museum should be present at least three hours a day when it was open, keeping a diary recording his hours to be placed before the Syndicate. It was an indignity - but all other professors had to make similar returns. His salary should be decreased from £300 to £250 and the money used to pay for another member of staff. This valued his time at seven-and-sixpence an hour compared to ten shillings for an Assistant 07 06 20

1907 06 20
Burwell labourers claim they were thrown out of work when the Government converted farms into smallholdings. But they were all paid compensation and most quickly found work at practically the same wages as before. Each received fifty shillings for 'costs of removal' but the farmers removed their belongings for them free. Demand for labour has been greater than before and the Highway Surveyors had difficulty getting granite carted as the men were so busy on the smallholdings. 07 06 20a & b

1907 06 21
The discussions over the Poor's Fen Charity, which has excited the inhabitants of Burwell for many months and given rise to animated meetings, entered a new stage when the Charity Commissioners opened an inquiry. A large proportion of the male population, and several ladies followed the details closely for four hours as its history was traced 07 06 21

1907 06 22
Burwell charities inquiry concluded – 07 06 22a

1907 06 22
Charles Lawrence's kennels at Chesterton have bred many famous animals in the dog world, winning prizes in Antwerp, Brussels and Rotterdam. Purchasers come from all over the country; Alderman Pratt of Bradford recently bought two pups for £100 while one sold for £300. During term time a familiar sight on Market Hill is a man surrounded by dogs which he sells to undergraduates at fancy prices. Mr Lawrence bought one for £2 cash, then exhibited it at a show and sold it for £150. To see a collection of valuable clumber, field and cocker spaniels gambolling in the paddock is a sight which must appeal even to those who have but the barest acquaintance with a good dog. 07 06 22b # c.19

1907 06 22
The chimes of St Giles church clock in Cambridge have been restored after a silence of six years. Notice was given in the Parish Magazine but all do not read that excellent periodical and there was much astonishment when the bells entered anew upon their purpose of telling out the hours. The tone of the large bell is much improved now it has been re-hung so that it no longer rests against the wall 07 06 22c # c.83

1907 06 22
Wrestlers' Arms reminiscence – boxing – 07 06 22d # c.27.4 # c.38 : boxing

1907 06 22
This year's Midsummer Fair is the biggest for many years with large shows, roundabouts and switchbacks. A special feature is Charles Thurston's "Helter Skelter" and Canadian sport of Mat – toboganning – should prove popular. Another attractive feature is Baker and Thurston's motor cars which race over a specially-prepared track at s speed of 50 miles an hour 07 06 22 # c.27.3

Football Association council p3

1907 06 24
Fire broke out at the Crown Hotel, Linton after the landlord went for an afternoon walk. The village fire brigade set to work but as soon as the windows were broken open the flames burst out in all directions. Three rooms were completely gutted with a large quantity of spirits, cigars and cigarettes destroyed in addition to books, furniture and pictures. The origin is shrouded in mystery. The commercial room, where the blaze started, has not had a fire in the grate for three weeks. 07 06 24

1907 06 24
Time was when the visitor to Midsummer Fair had to risk a miniature shower bath in the form of 'squirts' wielded by girls and youths. These were officially banned and this year also the throwing of confetti has been put a stop to. While this no doubt curtails the enjoyment of the young and frivolous, it is a boon to more sedate visitors and the harmless 'ticklers' which the law allows did not appear to be in very great request 07 06 24a # c.27.3

Burwell fire, p3*

1907 06 25
Ripe with age and active up to the last in the pursuance of his business and religious duties, Mr Stephen Chivers, of Histon, the founder of the great jam-making firm, passed away suddenly in his 84th year. On Sunday evening he preached in Landbeach Baptist Church where he delivered an earnest discourse on the subject of prayer. Afterwards he complained of something being amiss with his throat. On Monday morning he "went home to God" 07 06 25 & 25a

Sunday photography, p4* # c.65.5
Sturmer fire, p4

1907 06 26
Photographic Club, p4

1907 06 27
Mr E.E. Marshall, electrician of Castle Street said he was formerly employed at the University Laboratory and afterwards had sole charge of an electric plant at Holt. In 1905 he installed the electric light at Leonard Mortimer's hairdressers saloon in All Saint's Passage. Messrs Bailey, Grundy & Barrett said the work did not test high but not low enough to condemn it. The claim was settled 07 06 27a # c.24.6

Charles Wright Stretham & willow trees – 07 06 27a

1907 06 29
On Midsummer night the thermometer in a Cambridge hotel yard registered one degree less than on Christmas night! The weather has lately been enough to move one to despair – snow and hail fell in Scotland for nearly an hour until the mountains were mantled in white. Truly the gods must be offended. But while the hatters and tailors are lamenting over the lack of orders for straw hats and summer suits, the mackintosh merchant waxes fat on the proceeds of his sales. 07 06 29b # c.12

1907 06 29

The Milkmaid was one of 13 licenced houses in Willingham and they could do away with half of them, magistrates were told. But there were 100 acres of market gardens all round where a great many men and girls were constantly employed and some came to the house for lunch. The trade had increased since the King William was closed and now did over a barrel a week
Also: Marquis of Granby, Woodman's Arms, Claremont, Golden Fleece; Swaffham Prior Anchor, Harston Green Man, Lt Shelford Three Horseshoes, Over Duke of Cumberland, Willingham Milkmaid - details, Isleham Bell, Fen Ditton Pike & Eel. Bassingbourn Tally Ho, 07 06 29 & a # c.27.4

July 1907 CDN

1907 07 02
In inquest heard that Charles Preston had been employed at Christmas and Co., brewers of Haverhill. He had taken the back plate off the boiler and opened the manhole when there was a rush of steam. He'd crawled outside the building, remarked "I'm a doner" then walked home and said he'd been nearly scalded to death. 07 07 02 & 02a

County children Cambridge schools, p3
Newmarket speed, p3*

1907 07 03
An inquest was held at the Anchor Inn, Prickwillow on the body of an eight-year old girl knocked down and killed by a train at the Mile-End crossing on her way home from school. Thirty schoolchildren used the crossing every day and to secure their safety automatic locking of the gates should be resorted to. But this would create a greater danger than at present. 07 07 03

1907 07 03
The bankruptcy court heard that a Littleport baker had previously given up his High Street shop but been able to pay his creditors. He had no oven and could only carry on by getting others to bake for him. He'd also been accused of stealing flour. He was a member of the Parish Council and while some men can fulfil public office without affecting their business, others cannot. You never know how much time they occupy and their business suffers 07 07 03a

1907 07 04
Burwell small holdings – critics – 07 07 04 # c.22

1907 07 08
Sir – I should much like to live in Cambridge but am unable to do so because of its trains. If I could get to London before nine in the morning and return after 10.30 at night I could do so. There are numbers of commercial travellers and tradesmen who have to go to market who would live here and patronise whichever railway company gives this facility first. A route via Bedford would only take some 20 minutes longer and would be a great benefit. – Effigy. Two years ago the railway asked for the names of 10 people would be regular passengers – but no names were forthcoming - Editor
07 07 08 # c.26.2

1907 07 09
Cambridge Association for Women's Suffrage organised a meeting at Cambridge Guildhall with a series of admirably-delivered speeches by Mrs Fawcett, the Hon Bertrand Russell and others, supported by 80 delegates from across the country. It was said that men had all the logic and women sweetness and morality. But men could not be expected to know everything that women required. Young women should throw themselves with all the ardour and power they could command on this, one of the very great questions of the world. 07 07 09 # c.33 # WOMEN

1907 07 10

A daring theft was committed at Mr Haylock's boot shop on the corner of Fore Hill, Ely. The thief simply smashed a pane glass and coolly annexed several pairs of men's boots. The window had previously been slightly damaged by a spike in a cricket boot so the breakage would not make very much noise. The alarm was raised by some children bound for a school treat at Hunstanton who noticed the ransacked window and alerted the manager, Mr A. Saunders. Two men, presumably tramps, were arrested at King's Lynn 07 07 10

1907 07 10
Sir – I have been guilty of a gross and sinful mistake which has lead me open to attacks from subtle satanic spiritual influences. During the past months the Unity Brotherhood has solicited financial assistance from many people. Some of this money has been spent for charitable purposes but some has been given to a private account. Now I publicly ask forgiveness and wish to settle down quietly and earn an honest livelihood. A.C.G. 07 07 10a # c.83

No clothes, p3

1907 07 13
A newspaper claims that one Cambridgeshire over-lord of four villages will not allow his cottagers to keep a cow, donkey or pony. His tenants are subject to instant eviction if they exhibit notices of any kind in their windows, are forbidden to take lodgers and cannot receive a visit from their married children without informing the estate office. But this applies to the estate of a titled personage in Suffolk. 07 07 13

1907 06 16
Messrs King and Co are displaying a number of cycles and motor cycles at Cambridge Corn Exchange. There is with a 'Rex' motor cycle which can be bought for 24 guineas, one of the cheapest on the market, and the 'King' bicycle with Crabbe brakes, Warwick tyres, Hyde free-wheel, Perry chain and Brooke's saddle, costs six guineas. Standardisation of parts has indeed wrought a revolution in the cycle industry. 07 07 16 # c.26.485

1907 07 16
The King motored to Newmarket wearing a white motor cap and blue goggles. Several other cars arrived about the same time. Mrs Leopold de Rothschild, in voile, came just ahead of Mr Sassoon's car and only a few yards behind was Lady Noreen Bass who is staying at Godolphin House. Sir Daniel and Lady Cooper are entertaining at Warren Towers, the Earl of Ellesmere has his family at Stetchworth Park and most of the other big houses have their quota of visitors. 07 07 16

1907 07 17
General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, was welcomed to Cambridge by thousands of spectators who lined the road from Trumpington to the Guildhall. Three red motor cars with a Salvation Army flag in each were given quite an oration en route to Market Square where the Band struck up a popular Army tune. But the General entered the building from Peas Hill and ignored the cries of 'Speech' as he disappeared from view. 07 07 17 # c.83

Statpleford flower show, p4

1907 07 18
Tie-pins set with diamonds were stolen from the residence of Lord Wolverton at Queensbury House, Newmarket. The police believe it was the work of a couple of expert thieves. There were many servants preparing for the visit of the King and the Prince of Wales and it is practically impossible for the thief to have walked coolly through the house without being noticed. The real object of their theft Lady Wolverton's valuable jewels but she had only just arrived and none had been removed from the jewel cases. 07 07 18

1907 07 19

Wicken suicide George Howlett – 07 07 19
Waterbeach schools, p3

1907 07 19
The newly-ennobled Lord Peckover received a very cordial reception on his return to Wisbech. The engine of the train was decorated with flags and he was received at the station by the Mayor and Corporation, Fire Brigade and Salvation Army Band. His route to the North Brink was gaily decorated with two large arches bearing the words 'Welcome'. 07 07 19a

1907 07 20
A matrimonial epidemic is raging among the lady school teachers and shop assistants of Cambridge. No fewer than three are leaving New Street School to assume marital responsibilities. Mr Sturton said that marriage was the crowing point of a woman's life and also her duty. He hoped other teachers would follow their example, but do it one at a time in future. 07 07 20 # WOMEN

1907 07 20
The Amalgamated Radio-Telegraphy Company, who own the experimental wireless telegraph stations at Cambridge and Oxford, are converting their appliances to the wireless telephone system of Mr Poulsen, the Danish inventor. It is believed that when the arrangements are completed the voice of a person in Cambridge will be audible at Oxford sixty miles away 07 07 20a # c.27.7

CDN libel, p3

1907 07 22
Stretham Shepherds Friendly Society re old age pensions – 07 07 22

1907 07 23
Newmarket Council's surveyor asked them to pay for repairs to the bicycle he rode on council business. He had a twenty-two mile area to look after. But they had previously bought him a new bike on the condition he repaired it himself. They were not obliged to find him a bicycle at all – he should have his own. 07 07 23

Money lending, p3

1907 07 25
Dr Edward John Routh, was the most famous mathematical coach of his day. He coached 27 Senior Wranglers, 41 Smith's Prizemen, and over 500 Wranglers and was the author of numerous works on statics and dynamics. He died at Newnham Cottage, Queen's Road leaving an estate valued at more than £80,620. 07 07 25 # c.36.9

1907 07 27
Sir – Sunday is being desecrated with often a score of persons playing golf on the Gog Magog course during church hours. Even females are now to be seen there amongst the Sabbath-breakers. Not content with golf, on Sunday evening a target was stuck up and rifle practice was being carried on. Under the terms on which the links are held no golfing is to be allowed on Sunday and the gates must be kept locked. – 'Observer' 07 07 27 # c.38 : golf

1907 07 27
Sir - On Thursday afternoon 89 motor cars passed over the Newmarket Road to London and the average speed was 40 mph! It is not at all uncommon to see them travelling between 60 and 85 miles per hour, exceeding the fastest train. Motorists fly past knowing that often the dust is so great that the number plate is obscured – 'Farmer' 07 07 27

Burwell small holdings report – 07 07 27

1907 07 27
The origin of the Cambridge Town Bumping Races is surrounded by some obscurity. It is said there were eight-oared races as far back as 1820. In 1868 the Amateur Eight-Oar Town Races were commenced but lapsed owing to the rival attractions of lawn tennis and cycling. In 1888 a silver plate was presented to the Rowing Association and since then the names of the head of the river crew have been inscribed on it, with one exception – 1894. 07 07 27 # c.38 : rowing

1907 07 29
Pheasant eggs theft, p3

August 1907 CDN

1907 08 01
The sunny side of the Burwell Small Holdings experiment is very attractive. Viewing a snug cottage pleasantly set among several acres of pasture land, shaded by a collection of ancient trees, with a spacious kitchen and flower garden near at hand, a town dweller is envious of the men who have set up on the Crown Lands. The scheme has met exceptionally fierce criticism but after one season's results it can be pronounced a success. 07 08 01 & a # c.22

Prickwillow show, p4

1907 08 03
Four new motor buses (three single and one double-decker) will commence their careers of usefulness by running to the Mammoth Show. Regular routes will be arranged as soon as possible. They are as noiseless as it is possible for motor buses to be, free from obnoxious odours, do not drop oil over the streets and are very easily handled. They are the property of a private speculator who took over the late Cambridge Motor Omnibus Company and will be managed by Mr J. Berry Walford. 07 08 03 # c.26.46

1907 08 06
An important sale of pedigree hackneys and harness horses, the property of Mr Cole Ambrose, was held at Stuntney Hall. It included 24 piebalds and skewbalds and it is doubtful if so many horses of this old-fashioned strain have ever before been offered. Good prices were realised, the average being £32 with one stallion bought by A.B. Hulbert of Greenley, U.S.A. for 66 guineas 07 08 06 # c.19

1907 08 07
For 21 years the Haverhill Gala has weathered the stress of storms and still carries its flag triumphantly. This year they dispensed with the cycling events, replacing them with pony racing. The crowds poured into the Hamlet Croft where the Town Band played selections and the special attraction, Caicedo 'the king of the wire' elicited great admiration. 07 08 07

1907 08 08
Cambridge councillors recommended that a site in Albion Row occupied by the weigh-bridge and the Nag's Head should be offered on a building lease for 75 years and in case no satisfactory offer was received they should prepare a scheme for the erection of cottages. But first they must adopt the Housing of the Working Classes Act. 07 08 08 # c.23

1907 08 09
An Ely labourer was charged with being in the house of the Chief Constable, Captain Mander, for an unlawful purpose. PC Kempton said he'd found a window open and a pair of boots in the kitchen. When questioned the man had said: "I don't know where I did leave them. I found myself in the house and then could not find my boots. I have been on the drink for two months". The magistrates said he was so beastly drunk he didn't know what he was doing and dismissed the case. 07 08 09

1907 08 10

Messrs Macmillan and Bowes, the well-known booksellers, have recently acquired the house over their premises at the corner of Trinity Street. On the new staircase, designed by Mr T.D. Atkinson, hangs a portrait of 'Maps' (John Nicholson) and old views of Cambridge. In the new reading room are exhibited manuscripts and autograph letters from Wordsworth, Tennyson and Thackeray. One room is devoted entirely to Cambridge material of which Mr Bowes published a catalogue in 1894. 07 08 10 & a # c.25

Esperanto Congress, p4

1907 08 12
The Rev Walker was exploring the railway station at Lord's Bridge where he opened a small tumulus in which he found a stone coffin containing a human skeleton and the bones of a dog. There was no lid to the coffin and the bones had been forced in by the aid of big stones. Most were broken with the head in the middle. One theory is that he might have been killed by a chariot. At Barrington hundreds of skeletons have been discovered with spears and swords, but none in a coffin. 07 08 12 # c.41

1907 08 12
Esperanto has seized Cambridge like a raging fever. Genuine and spurious Esperanto fills the air as the autolycus of the gutter shouts unintelligent jargon to a street comrade and calls it Esperanto. But when a picturesque figure from the Swiss Canton appeared in the street the impudence of the street Arab was silenced. He was impressed by the tight green breeches and head capped by genuine Alpine hat. A Turk and Indians in national costume add considerably to the effect of this new kind of circus. 07 08 12a # c.27.9 # c.02

1907 08 13
Esperanto, p7

1907 08 14
Esperanto, p3

1907 08 15
Members of the Esperanto Congress visited the New Theatre to watch a performance of 'Bardell kontrau Pickwick'. Dickens wrote for his own people, little dreaming it would be performed through a tongue understandable to all. 'Pickwick' was played by 'O.B' – Oscar Browning of King's College – who, attired in a green swallow-tailed coat, might have come direct from a Cruickshank illustration. 08 08 15 # c.76

1907 08 15
A terrible accident occurred at Prickwillow when a governess car, containing seven people, overturned and all the occupants were injured. Three were natives of the village and had hired a trap at Soham for an outing. On the return they mistakenly drove on to the old bank, at one time the main road to Ely, but now seldom used. As they attempted to turn round the horse, car and occupants went down the bank and into the dyke, a fall of quite 14 feet, being engulfed in the thick black mud. One lady is not expected to recover. 07 08 15a

1907 08 16
The Cambridge Police Athletic Society festival was attended by a large crowd, including many Esperantists. Dr Zamenhof presented an Esperanto Cup for the policeman who has performed the most efficient ambulance work to Sergt Gates for his action in saving the life of a man who had taken poison. 07 08 16

1907 08 17
Another interesting discovery of Roman remains has recently been made in Isleham fen. Some workmen engaged in digging came upon the bed of an old river where they found the impress of a boat, surrounded by the heads of cattle and some pottery. 07 08 17 # c.41

1907 08 17
All other events in Cambridge have been dwarfed in comparison with the third International Esperanto Congress which has brought money into the town when trade was at its lowest ebb. It was hoped the University might have bestowed an honorary degree upon Dr Zamenhof, the Warsaw genius, but apart from a formal reception at the Fitzwilliam Museum it has generally stood aloof from the movement. 07 08 17a # c.02 # c.27.9

1907 08 20
An inquest was held at Littleport on the body of an ex-soldier living at Three Holes, Upwell. He had been found lying in the corner of a wheat field at Burnt Chimney Drove with a revolver in his hand and a terrible wound in the head. In one pocket was found an ounce bottle nearly full of laudanum. He had served in India and at times he was queer.
07 08 20

1907 08 20
There was unusual excitement among the juvenile fraternity and considerable bustle in arranging fishing rods and other paraphernalia. The occasion was unique, for there was to be a juvenile fishing competition. Nowadays children are admitted to pleasures and privileges hitherto enjoyed only by the adult portion of the community and this is the very latest form of amusement arranged for them by the Albion Angling Society 07 08 20a # c.38 : fishing

1907 08 21
Pamplin Bros, of Cherry Hinton were summonsed after Pc Gray saw a steam roller pulling a stack elevator, water cart and a house van. Albert Anderson, the driver, said he had been at work at Chrishall and ordered to call at Audley End and pick up the house van, then call at the Fighting Cocks, Wenden and take on the stack elevator. It was a steamroller with a smooth wheel, not a locomotive. But the magistrates decided the roller was hauling and thus became a locomotive under the meaning of the Act under which they were charged. 07 08 21

1907 08 22
Ely Council heard that Burnt Fen Commissioners were about to repair the bridge on Mile-End drove and suggested it should be widened. The County Council had decided to adopt Egremont Street and Silver Street in Ely as main roads, but not Prickwillow Road because of the rolls at Prickwillow Bridge. While they remained it would never be a main road. The time had come to approach the Burnt Fen and Middle Level Commissioners to get them removed. 07 08 22

Kings Ditch drowning, p3
Prickwillow accident, p4

1907 08 23
On a summer evening the little whitewashed, thatched cottages by the roadside at Hauxton, radiant with climbing roses, seem a little paradise. No thought of sanitation or overcrowding which are rife in these old-fashioned structures is allowed. At Whittlesford Bridge is the Red Lion Inn with its carved oak ceiling, maze of bedrooms and winding, precipitous staircase. Alongside is the thatched chapel with a paddock at the end which was an ancient burial places where bones have been unearthed.
07 08 23

1907 08 24
Otter and Otter hound advert –07 08 24 # c.26.3

1907 08 26
On various roads in Cambridge the experiment has been tried of placing preparations of tar with the object of minimising the dust nuisance which the large numbers of motor cars has rendered so acute.

So successful has this been that the Roads Improvement Association will advocate it for all the main roads in England and Wales. The damage done by the steel-studded bands on the driving wheels of cars must be repaired and tar protects the road and at the same time solve the dust problem. 07 08 26

1907 08 27
The telephone system has become such an important factor in daily life that the numbers of new subscribers are matters of moment to every telephone user. In order to keep our readers up to date we will publish monthly lists of alterations and additions which include Cambridge Automobile Co, Illsley and Son, Bull Hotel Stables & Sirdah Hotel 07 08 27 # c.27.7

Rock Hotel suicide, p3

1907 08 28
An RSPCA Inspector saw a box of wild birds in the booking office at Isleham railway station addressed to a man in Islington. He found it contained a number of goldfinches together with some linnets, their wings fluttered through the side of the box. A birdcatcher of The Pits, Isleham claimed they were chaffinches. A linnet or chaffinch was worth fourpence while a goldfinch, newly caught, was worth about a shilling. Goldfinches had been sold for up to 30 shillings, but that was only after they'd been taught. 07 08 28 a & b # c.19

September 1907 CDN

1907 09 02
Corn trade, p3
Mill Road fruierer, p3

1907 09 03
The Royal Italian Circus visited the Hippodrome, Auckland Road, Cambridge. Signor Volpi put his ponies, monkeys and dogs through their entertaining performance and the baby elephant played several instruments. An amusing scene was the carriage ride of 'Madame Batavia', a bear, dressed as a woman. It was grotesque to see the affectionate way she took the arm of her trainer and walked round the ring 07 09 03 # c.76 # CIRCUS

1907 09 04
A mutual interest in Esperanto terminated in an interesting wedding at Bexhill-on-Sea when Miss Gertrude Stewart, the first secretary of the Cambridge Esperanto Society was married to Mr Everard Lamplough, a Fellow of Trinity. The wedding was very quiet and the only indication that it was unusual was the presence of white heather and 'verdaj steloj' – the green star of Esperantists. One of the telegrams read 'Koraj gratuloj de Doktoro Cunningham 'staffo', King's-parade. 07 09 04 # c.27.9

1907 09 04
A large shed caught fire in Mr Jarvis' timber yard in Cavendish Lane at Clare. He is captain of the Old Clare Fire Brigade and the engine, which is kept near, was run down to the stream in the cricket meadow. The Town Brigade was also summonsed and together the fire was got under control and an old railway carriage, used as a store, was saved. 07 09 04

1907 09 04
'The Cambridge and District Property Register' published by Hockey, estate agents, comprises a list of 200 houses to be let or for sale. They vary in price from £75 to £2,500 with rents from £14 to £100. There is also a list of shops and business premises including seven lodging-houses. With several excellent coloured views this register is a very creditable production 07 09 04a # c.06

1907 09 05

A family has fled a two room, one up and one down, cottage in the parish of St Andrew-the-Less because of a supernatural visitation. Mysterious knockings come from beneath a truckle bed in which an eight-year old, named Rose, sleeps with another girl. People have tried to reproduce the noise by shaking the bed, stamping on the floor and striking the wall. The floorboards have also been taken up without result. Hard-headed men who pooh-poohed the story waited outside and distinctly heard the noises which only happen when Rose is in the bed, asleep. 07 09 05 & a # c.39 # GHOST

1907 09 06
Mountaineering tragedy, p3

1907 09 07
The Cambridge 'ghost' has declined further manifestations for the delectation of hundreds of curious persons who, having discovered its situation, throng the narrow thoroughfare at all hours up to midnight. Neighbours discuss little else: Rose the girl at the centre of the disturbance, is the offspring of a former marriage, her mother having been married a second time. The theory is that the spirit of her deceased father is endeavouring to communicate with her, for monetary advantage 07 09 07 & a

1907 09 07
Two CDN reporters waited for hours at the 'haunted cottage' with all the paraphernalia for bogus-spook-laying. News of the investigation had leaked out and the street was filled with men, women and children whose remarks were overheard by those behind the drawn blinds. Some agreed they were foolhardy and a bottle of brandy was a necessary item – but a spook-hunter is a teetotaller if he is wise. As the hours progressed the crowds melted away before the persuasions of the police. 07 09 07a

1907 09 07
News reporters in the Cambridge 'haunted house' heard a 'thump-thump-thump' repeated twice. Had the spook obliged? Not a bit of it – the sound came from next door. Either the neighbour found a spot which required hammering or he thought he would reward the investigators with something to investigate. No noises have ever occurred after eleven o'clock so the pair packed up their paraphernalia and left without having heard anything more ghostly than the scratching of rats and mice. But outside the excitement remains as real as ever 07 09 07 & a

1907 09 07
Arthur Deck, senior, is Cambridge's oldest balloonist. In 1877, when he made an ascent from York, he initiated the custom of throwing cards from a balloon with a request that they should be posted by the finder in 1877. At that time considerable nerve was needed to brave the almost unknown dangers of high altitude. His adventures have not been confined to this side of the channel: many years ago he made an ascent from Paris 07 09 07b

1907 09 07
One hundred years ago all kinds of goods from furniture to cheese were sold at Stourbridge Fair. But it is now only a shadow of what it used to be. When the Mayor proclaimed it on 4th September the only sign of anything unusual was one solitary gipsy brush van. It continues until October 16th but only about the 26th does anything in the nature of a fair take place. The railway has probably had more than anything to do with the dying out of these ancient marts 07 09 07c # c.27.3

1907 09 07
The University has extended the area within which lodging-house licences will be granted as the number of Freshmen expected to take up residence is so large. That might seem good news for lodging-house keepers and traders generally but the real reason is the steady growth of the suburban areas. A comparison between lodging houses in some of our closely-packed central streets and those in the roomy, healthy suburbs is in favour of the latter. 07 09 07 # c.27.4

1907 09 07

Suffolk County Council says Haverhill Council School boys' department has four certified and three uncertified teachers for 271 pupils – according to the code this is sufficient for an attendance of 365. The girls and infants departments are also over-staffed and the Managers should take steps to reduce expenditure. But the Managers say they did not appoint the staff – the County had and they kept contradicting themselves. 07 09 07

1907 09 09
General Sir John French and 80 army officers arrived in Cambridge by special train with 27 cars containing Army Motor Reserve officers joining them at Trinity College from all parts of the country. They are part of the 'Blue' army, a Continental power capable of mobilising three million troops, which has landed on the East coast after 'Redland' – the UK – lost command of the sea. The exercise is designed to give the higher commanders an opportunity of considering the strategical problems and working out tactics. 07 09 09 # c.45.4

Newmarket cinema fire, p3*

1907 09 10
Post Office telegraph messenger boys are subject to a short drill every morning; they learn discipline, obedience and punctuality and can become members of the Albert Institute with its facilities for further education and sport. They must leave the job when aged 16 and have previously become postmen. But now half the vacancies have to be reserved for ex-servicemen and the Cambridge Postmaster has a list of boys ready for jobs in the outside world. 07 09 10 # c.27.7 # c.32.1

Newmarket fire, p4*
General French, p3*

1907 09 12
Newmarket deaths, p3

1907 09 14
Cambridge is taking very placidly the invasion of East Anglia by a foreign foe under the command of that redoubtable warrior, Sir John French. The brilliant cavalry leader is comfortably ensconced in rooms at Trinity College and in the quietude of the Great Court can carry out his plans for the annihilation of the British troops. 07 09 14 # c.45.4

Arnold freezing room, p4*
Fen Dtton allotments p4*

1907 09 16
Newmarket fire, p3

1907 09 18
Newmarket fire, p3*

1907 09 18
Cambridge Chronicle – new company set up to acquire it – A.T. Naylor secretary – 07 09 18 # c.04

1907 09 19
Newmarket inquest, p4

1907 09 20
Now that the price of coal is abnormally high and most articles in the household bill have become dearer, it is a matter of moment to the thrifty housewife that bread has risen to sixpence for a four-pound loaf. It is said that a portion of the Canadian wheat crop is frosted, the US crop is threshing out badly and the Russian crops may have failed. But fierce competition between soap manufacturers has brought down the price by a half-penny a tablet 07 09 20

1907 09 23
Fen Ditton parish council's efforts to acquire the land occupied as allotments have proved futile. They had valued the land at £30 per acre and been prepared to bid up to £34, which would enable the allotments to be let at £2 per acre. But they were outbid by Mr T. Musgrave Francis who bought it for £1,370. 07 09 23

1907 09 24
Cambridge has been favoured with a visit from Mr Smyth-Piggott, the self-styled 'Messiah' and leader of the Agapemonites. He has a marked distaste for publicity but, unfortunately for the Prophet of Free Love's retiring disposition, he adopts a mode of travel which is not conductive to secrecy. Motor cars are not quite so common that a powerful machine, equipped with a comfortable tonneau, can pull up before a modest house in a quiet street where the sect is wont to meet without attracting attention. 07 09 24 # c.83

1907 09 24
Cambridge Councillors considered the question of the old corn merchant's buildings on Peas Hill which were damaged by fire in 1904. The whole of the site, including the houses in Wheeler Street, should be used for municipal buildings with the basement and ground floor as an extension to the Central Library 07 09 24a

1907 09 24
Cambridge Automobile Company applied for a licence to store 1,000 gallons of petroleum and 200 lbs of carbide of calcium on their premises in Hobson Street. The petrol would be stored in an underground chamber, brick-built and lined with concrete. The Inspector of Explosives is satisfied so the council will recommend approval. 07 09 24a # c.26.48

Three Tuns removal, p4

1907 09 25
A clergyman of the Church of England, formerly curate of Hauxton, with two small children dependent on him, told the court that his income was £150 a year and he was very much in debt. Recently he changed his curacy, but that had put him further in debt. He was unable to get a suitable house except at a price he really could not afford to pay. Now he'd arranged with his Vicar that £25 of his salary should be set aside every half-year to pay his creditors. 07 09 25

Rail strike threat, p3

1907 09 26
A College Fellow sued an undergraduate for nearly £100. He had paid the lad's loans, lodgings and tobacconist's bill and given him a horse as a present, together with a quantity of saddlery, which he'd kept in his stables for nothing. But then they'd quarrelled. The judge said it was the most disgraceful case he'd ever tried 07 09 26 # c.36.9

1907 09 27
The Board of Trade report on the explosion at the Saxon Portland Cement works in Coldham's Lane found that the economiser had been in a very defective condition for some time. The explosion resulted in its complete demolition with portions of pipes being projected a considerable distance and the brickwork of the economiser chamber being completely demolished. A fireman was leaning out one of the flues when the explosion lifted up the footplate on which he was standing and threw him against the wall. 07 09 27

1907 09 27

Sir – the cartage of the sewage filth into Milton is again in full swing. Considering the outbreak of fever at the Hospital and at Cherry Hinton everyone must agree this is a terrible risk to run and it should be stopped. Crude sewage was run as usual on Sunday down a ditch to Baitsbite Lock which should supply the lower fen with pure water. This is within a few feet from where the University boats start, and would hardly commend itself to rowing clubs – 'Ratepayer' 07 09 27 # c.21.1

1907 09 28
Photo club dinner, p4

1907 09 30
Magdalene welcomes member English Royal Family as undergraduate for first time – Prince Leopold of Battenberg – 07 09 30b # c.02 # c.36.9

1907 09 30
The links of the newly-formed Haverhill Golf Club are situated in a pretty bit of country to the front of Sturmer Hall and though but little time has elapsed since the idea of forming a club was mooted, they have been put into fair trim. The greens were somewhat rough and hard with dry weather, so played badly. But with rain and a good bit of rolling it could become a good course in time. 07 09 30

1907 09 30
Many recall the 'Knocking Ghost of Barton' when a succession of thumps were heard in a farmhouse and many a skilled ghost-layer were at their wits' end for an explanation. The real reason was hit upon by accident. Near at hand was a stable and beneath the floor was a disused iron pipe. When the horse kicked the sound was communicated to the house but so muffled and mysterious that no other cause than the supernatural was supposed. The Barton ghost had a good run before being run to earth. - 07 09 30a # c.39 # GHOST

1907 09 30
Four young fellows were summonsed for gaming with cards in a public place on a Sunday afternoon. Two policemen swore they were playing at 'brag'; one had watched them through a field glass and the defendants thought that his evidence was not admissible. He claimed they'd sat in a circle reading a newspaper and that he had not touched a pack of cards for four months. But on being searched before taken to the cells he was found to have a well-thumbed pack of cards in his pocket! - 07 09 30a

1907 09 30
What extraordinary weather we are experiencing! It reached its climax on September 25th when the hottest day of the year was reported and those on holidays are getting interest for delaying the spending of their annual vacation. The appearance of gardens is not synonymous with autumn, Strawberries are now providing a good crop, whilst roses are doing very well. - 07 09 30b # c.12

October 1907 CDN

1907 10 01
The photographic world is agog just now in regard to the new colour photography. Two methods for producing plates in natural colours have been recently discovered. Now Fred Stoakley, who made the first 'three-colour' photograph seen in Cambridge, has produced an autochrome plate using the Lumiere or starch grain process. It is a flower study of geraniums, asters and petunias. - 07 10 01 # c.65.5

1907 10 01
The value of the modern method of identifying prisoners by their fingerprints received startling testimony at Clare Petty Sessions when a labourer was convicted of stealing an umbrella from the Rector of Stradishall. A gardener saw the man carrying a coat partly covering an umbrella and took it from him. Police later detained him, took his fingerprints and sent them to Scotland Yard who identified him as a habitual offender. - 07 10 01a

1907 10 03
A tiny bedroom in a cottage occupied by an agricultural labourer was turned into a courtroom when magistrates investigated a fracas between two old Impington men resulting in one, aged over 90, being severely injured. The room is pleasantly situated looking out upon garden grounds and while the wheels of justice were grinding slowly inside, the noisier machinery incidental to threshing operations was in motion outside. Grey-bearded, bald-headed, round-shouldered and tremulous with age, the 73-year-old accused seemed quite incapable of committing a savage assault. - 07 10 03

1907 10 05
A falling horse-chestnut from one of the Emmanuel College trees contributed to the gaiety of passers-by. Stepping smartly along the street was an elderly gentleman and perched upon his head was a beautifully-brushed silk hat. As he passed under the tree there was a resounding thud as a conker struck the side of the hat and bounced upon his shoulders. He thought a boy had aimed the chestnut at his dignity, cursed his bones, derided his ancestors and threatened his life with his stick. An amiable citizen explained the real cause and the gentleman strode away more than half convinced that he was in league with the rascal in playing him a scurvy trick. - 07 10 05a

1907 10 05
There is no public house at Haddon in Huntingdonshire and it has long been the custom for a small committee to order barrels of beer which was served to the villagers and visitors in feast week in a tent where dancing and merrymaking took place. The brewer's account was made out to 'Haddon & Co" and collections were made to pay for the beer. But now the Inland Revenue has fined the two labourers who stored the beer and took around the hat for selling it without a licence. Two men, aged 75 and 64, said the custom had existed all their lives, those who ordered the beer being recompensed by all the villagers. - 07 10 05b

Sangers circus, p3*
Shelford residents, p4*

1907 10 07
A Royston man describes his experiences in America: my health gave way and I found myself utterly destitute. Desirous of getting home again I went round the wharves until I secured the position of a "cattleman's stiff". We had 460 head on board – very dangerous work as these wild-cattle get very nasty on the long journey. During a storm the whole deck cargo of live stock was washed away. After 17 days of severe hardship we finally docked at Liverpool. I was back in the old country – a poorer, sadder, but I trust wiser man. - 07 10 07 & a # EMIGRATION

1907 10 08
Charles Henry Swornsbourne was as well-known as any man in Cambridge. He was an albino, possessing unnaturally white skin, hair and eyebrows and pink eyes. 'Whiteheaded Bob' was a talented violinist who, years ago, attended undergraduate 'wine parties' accompanied by a harpist named Calcott. He led the band at the A.D.C. from its foundation, was musical director for the Bijou Amateurs and provided music for the Beefsteak Club when they met at the Lion Hotel. - 07 10 08 # c.31 # c.69

1907 10 09
Christopher Taylor, agricultural labourer of Wisbech Road, Littleport claimed eight shillings a week under the Workmen's Compensation Acts. He had been working for Charles Jones of First Willow Row Farm when there had been a storm of sleet and rain, stopping work. He'd left his tools, taken off his long boots and put on his shoes to walk home but had slipped on a plank crossing a drain and injured his knee. The court agreed that his employment did cover his journey to and from work and the claim was upheld. - 07 10 09 & a

1907 10 09

Grantchester churchyard would become full within a year. They could purchase additional space - one acre would serve for the next 50 years - and there was land available on three sides of the churchyard. However no burial ground could be opened within 100 yards of a house if the occupier objected. Alternatively they could adopt the Burials Act which meant the Parish Council had to take responsibility and pay for it out of the rates.- 07 10 09b

1907 10 10
Ever since the Cambridge University Rugby Football ground was acquired in Grange Road ten years ago, the absence of dressing rooms has been a problem. When famous clubs like the 'Springboks' and 'All Blacks' visited they had to change in the cottage at the corner of the ground. Now the new pavilion contains showers, lavatories and kitchens with a stand for 200 people. The old roofless wooden stand, long regarded as an eyesore, has been moved to the opposite side of the ground - 07 10 10 # c.38 : rugby

1907 10 11
St Mark's church, Newnham Croft, presented a scene of unwonted beauty and impressiveness when a large congregation assembled to witness the dedication of the new organ. It will meet a need which has been long felt, the harmonium being quite inadequate to lead the singing. The organ was built by Messrs Norman and Beard, is a two manual with 11 stops and cost £276. - 07 10 11

1907 10 12
Firemen fought a blaze in the roof of house in Rose Crescent. Underneath was the Modes and Ladies' Outfitting Establishment, carried on by Miss Hutchings and a large quantity of her stock was spoilt by the streams of water. After the fire was out the assistants were kept busy in removing hats and other goods from the shop. 07 10 12

1907 10 12
It is always interesting to see the young freshmen come up in October with their fathers, mothers, sisters, cousins or aunts. As you gaze upon their fresh faces, full of hope and expectation, you think of how their devoted parents will deny themselves many luxuries in order that their sons may receive the best possible education. But the freedom from restraint often proves too much for those not possessed of strong wills. The University is not the place for them – as they learn to their sorrow. 07 10 12a

1907 10 12
When Sanger's Circus marched into Cambridge from Newmarket, a roadman was sitting by the side of the road near the 'Paper Mills' devouring his breakfast. The observant eye of one of the elephants was quick to perceive this, and stretching out his trunk he 'commandeered' the poor man's basket, which contained his dinner as well.
07 10 12b

Poole's Myriorama, p3

1907 10 14
Railway crisis, p4

1907 10 15
Temperance Societies have every reason to rejoice: the Cambridge of today is far more sober than 50 years ago and far less money is now spent on intoxicants. The first society was the Independent Order of Rechabites in 1841 but this closed after the 'Illegal Assemblies' Act. It was revived in 1905. Now 3,300 adults and children pledged to total abstinence paraded on Parker's Piece. 07 10 15

1907 10 15
A fire occurred at the Fitzroy Street premises of Messrs Sturton. The possibilities of a similar conflagration to that which occurred at Laurie and McConnal's establishment a few years ago seemed probable for close by were a large number of paraffin barrels and tanks containing oil. Capt Greef and 20 firemen were soon on the scene with the horsed fire escape and the steam fire engine was got out in readiness. But their services were not required as P.C. Gee, assisted by several civilians, extinguished the flames. 07 10 15a

1907 10 17
Cottages in Cave's Yard, Union Road, Chesterton are as about as bad as any in the district, an inquest into an infant was told. Vermin found on the child's body were not the fault of the mother: it would be impossible to keep such a house in that district free from vermin; the district ought to be burnt down. The slums in Old Chesterton are as bad as any you will find in London, a doctor testified. But people had to live somewhere. 07 10 17

King Newmarket accident, p3*
Ely Blakeman embezzlement, p4

1907 10 19
Last year there was hardly a punt available, and before that such a thing was not known in Cambridge. Yet this summer every boatyard possessed quite a flotilla of these comfortable craft, which were in great demand. Like golf, punting seems to have contributed in great measure to the humour of the nation and funny spectacles have not been entirely absent from our local ditch. Every dog has his day, and it is pretty evident the 'Canader' canoe has almost had his 07 10 19

1907 10 19
Extra fair on Midsummer Common – too many – 07 10 19

1907 10 19
The public telephone, placed at a railway station, in a shop or hotel is one of the cheapest and most useful of modern conveniences. The telephoned message is far quicker than the telegram and there are over 500,000 telephones in the country. The National Telephone Company has already established over 7,800 'call offices' so one is seldom out of sight of one of the familiar public telephone signs. 07 10 19

1907 10 21
An interesting wedding took place at St Luke's Church when the Master of St John's College, Rev Charles Taylor, (67), was married to Miss Margaret Dillon. Dr Taylor is a noted Hebrew scholar, theologian and mathematician who was Vice Chancellor of the University in 1887. Miss Dillon supports the Factory Girls' Holiday Fund and is a prominent member of the Women's Total Abstinence Union. 07 10 21

1907 10 23
Discoveries in King's Lane – archaeology – 07 10 23

1907 10 15
Scene at Linton church – vicar denounced during service – 07 10 25

1907 10 30
Serious affray – Lord Glerawly injured, Cherry Hinton baby choked – 07 10 30

1907 10 31
Fire mineral water works, Hobson Street – 07 10 31

1907 10 31
Mr Payne Garnett, the art master of the Leys School, is a versatile artist who has discovered many beauty spots in Swaffham. He shows the neighbourhood of Reach and the fens during the four seasons. There is a night scene, the moonlight gently illuminating a typical piece of Fen scenery and another of a deserted village road covered with hardened snow, so full of atmosphere that you need an overcoat. 07 10 31a

November 1907 CDN

1907 11 01
Photo frauds, p4

1907 11 02
The old Volunteer force has ceased to exist after a splendid record of 50 years' service. Now territorial battalions will be under county organisations and in touch with the county line battalions on the one hand and the civilian population on the other. In Cambridgeshire the Lord Lieutenant, Viscount Clifden, has already invited a number of county gentlemen, military and civilian, to confer with him. Unless it has the hearty support of all classes there would be no alternative to compulsory military service.07 11 02 & a, c, d

1907 11 02
Ely accidents, p3*
Army, p4

1907 11 04
New Theatre rowdyism, p3*# c.76
Ely station fatality – 07 11 04 & a

1907 11 04
An alarming fire occurred in a bedroom at Homerton College after one of the students placed a candle near an open window and left the room. On her return she found the curtains enveloped in a mass of flame. A tutor, hearing her scream, rushed into the room and managed to extinguish the flames with a patent fire extinguisher, The college fire alarm did not act efficiently, being heard in some parts and not in others. Thus while girls rushed out of the building in their night attire a dance in another part of the college continued. 07 11 04b

1907 11 05
Holy Trinity church redecoration – 07 11 05b

1907 11 05
A brewer's drayman was fined for hawking beer. An Inland Revenue officer said he saw a boy stop a cart belonging to William Pegg, brewer of Newmarket Road, and say "They want you over there", pointing to some men engaged in harvesting. The man had taken them a gallon jar off the cart for which he received one shilling. It was extremely unfair to sell beer that way as it took away from the custom of those who were legally entitled to sell it. The brewer said he had told the drayman not to sell beer without an order; the brewing business was a hobby of his and he would not be intentionally guilty of an illegal practice. 07 11 05 & a

1907 11 06
Gooseberry mildew – 07 11 06
Bonfire night, p3

1907 11 07
Chesterton 'slums' – 07 11 07 & a # c.23
Female Refuge chapel, p3

1907 11 08
Beaconsfield Club miniature rifle range opens – 07 11 08, 08a

1907 11 09
Suffragist meeting, p4

1907 11 11
King & Queen of Spain in Cambridge – 07 11 11 # c.02
Chamberlain visit. P4

1907 11 12
Rag foiled; Christ's Pieces bandstand guard by police, bonfire extinguished, Victoria Bridge defended – 07 11 12

1907 11 13
Cambridge Photographic Club exhibition shows colour transparencies by Fred Stoakley – autochrome – also Squires, Farren - 07 11 13, 13a, 07 11 23a # c.65.5

1907 11 14
Ely High Bridge, p3

1907 11 15
McLeod funeral, p3

1907 11 16
Rags – police decline to make martyrs of students; Problem of domestic servants – 07 11 16 & a Servants, p4*
Lensfield Rifle Club, p4

1907 11 20
Buiders bankruptcy, p3

1907 11 21
Royston 'Old Palace' to be sold – 07 11 21
Allin banker, p4

1907 11 23
Burwell smallholdings, p3
Colour photography, p4*

1907 11 23
Bogus death notice of Mr Branch inserted in CDN as practical joke; causes distress – 07 11 23

1907 11 26
Record mock funeral – lengthy procession of cabs for Caius undergraduate out too late after motor car broke down – 07 11 26 # c.36.96

1907 11 27
Stetchworth Dairy supplies 400 gallons to 18 colleges and 1,800 families daily from King Street depot – feature – 07 11 27, 27a # c.27

1907 11 28
Burwell Cement Works gutted by fire – 07 11 28

1907 11 29
Norman Cement Work fatality – man drawn into machinery – 07 11 29, 29a Licenses, p3*

1907 11 30
Ashley water, p3

December 1907 CDN

1907 12 02
Real old Cambridge – memories of Pepys & Dick Turpin – 07 12 02, 02a

1907 12 04
"The Fighting Fullers" were three brothers who served in the Indian Mutiny and the Crimean War. John Fuller who lives at Newton fought at the Alma, Balaclava and Sebastopol. His brother James was invalidated out of the army with a pension of 8d a day – which a grateful country halved. But Lord Wolseley sent him £5 and got the pension raised to 9d. Nathan Fuller was wounded by a piece of shell but in those days the British soldier had to endure suffering bravely and he could not be spared from the fighting to go to hospital. Later he lost all his toe nails from frost bite. 07 12 04 & a # c.45.4

1907 12 05
Indian mutiny, p3*

1907 12 07
When the Cambridge station Night Inspector heard of a fire at Bishops Stortford he despatched telegrams summoning workers from their homes. A truck specially designed for the conveyance of the fire engine is always kept ready but the engine itself is kept unmounted, ready for local fires. Within an hour a special train comprising a locomotive, the fire-emergency truck and a brake van was thundering down the line as, on board, a little band of half-a-dozen men busied themselves with preparations for the grim contest that lay before them. - 07 12 07 # c.26.2 # c.34.75

1907 12 07
Swaffham Bulbeck windmill has passed into the hands of the destroyers. For some time past the top portion of the building, which is over a century old, has been unsafe and as it has only been used occasionally for grinding 'grist' to have spent £100 on its repair would have meant financial loss to the owner. The brickwork foundation, about ten feet in height, will be left and roofed over. - 07 12 07 # WINDMILL

Cement inquest, p3

1907 12 10
Thirty years ago there was far more drinking and drunkenness amongst undergraduates than now. There are still occasions when too much wine is drunk, such as when the college boat goes out of training and the end of the Lent and May Races. But what else could be expected with 3,000 young fellows drawn from every kind of home and rank of society? - 07 12 10 # c.36.9

1907 12 10
"For an isolated policeman to be attacked and beaten to death by eight or ten students is an occurrence which happens almost once a week at Cambridge or Oxford", writes a correspondent in the 'Messagero', (Rome). He adds that it is common for a group of about 50 undergraduates to wreck a shop as if a dynamite bomb had exploded in it when "the honest tradesman had refused them credit". In the theatre undergraduates do what they like, interrupt the actresses, start discussions with the actors on the stage, beat the orchestra and upset the stalls, he alleges. - 07 12 10 # c.36.9

1907 12 10
Gurteen, Haverhill, theft of cloth – 07 12 10a

1907 12 11

Cambridge undergraduates joined the 'Brown Dog' agitation in sympathy with members of University College London who feel they have been libelled by anti-vivisectors. They object to an inscription on the statue of a dog in Battersea Recreation Ground which reads: "In memory of the brown terrier dog done to death in the laboratories of University College. Also in memory of the 252 dogs vivisected during the year 1902." Students planned to remove the statue and throw it into the river. But the 'secret' arrangements were too well known to the police. - 07 12 11 # c.36.9

Theatre scenes, p3

1907 12 14
Suffragettes, unable to gain admission to the Guildhall, held a meeting outside in the rain. Two ladies from the Women's Social and Political Union picketed the entrance, distributing leaflets. Then they climbed on a market stall and addressed the crowd. To the credit of Cambridge the ladies were accorded a very fair hearing, but when Mr Keeling of Trinity mounted the platform there was such an uproar that, though his mouth was seen to be moving, not a word could be heard. Later they were surrounded by such a crowd that the police escorted them to a four-wheeler which drove off. - 07 12 14 & a # c.33 # SUFFRAGETTE # WOMEN

1907 12 14
Whatever the detractors say about the 'unsexed suffragette", the little band of "pesterers" who visited Cambridge last night amply vindicated their femininity. Mr Haldane, the War Minister's last memories of our town will not be the ringing cheers of his supporters but the shaken fists of the suffragettes as they shouted 'Votes for Women". As his car glided out of Downing Street there was a flutter of petticoats and a liberal display of shapely ankles and the suffragettes were at the windows, shouting their battle cries. - 07 12 14d # c.33 # WOMEN

1907 12 14
Cambridge Gas Light Company told a meeting in St Mark's parish room that they would erect street columns, lanterns and piping, ready for lighting in any street in Newnham where the mains were laid and also lay mains in King's Road and Selwyn Road. They would keep lights burning all night for £2 12s 3d per lamp, including gas, lighting and extinguishing them, maintaining mantles and keeping the lamps clean and in repair. This was agreed unanimously. - 07 12 14c # c.24.4

1907 12 14
There is considerable perturbation in regard to the application of the Prevention of Corruption Act to the time-honoured custom of giving and receiving Christmas boxes. The house-wife may still give her maid a half-crown upon Christmas morning, the master may have the satisfaction of a grin from his man upon receipt of a similar sum, the postman may still be rewarded with his Yuletide trifle. But beyond Christmas boxes of this character is it not safe to go. - 07 12 14b # c.39 # CHRISTMAS

Ely gale, p3*
Chesterton nurses, p4*

1907 12 16
Bailey and Tebbutt have been tenants of the Nags Head public house since September 1898; they have carried out every requirement of the agreement and expended a considerable sum on inside repairs. They are prepared to continue hire it at £28 18 6 a year, councillors were told. It was council policy not to disturb old tenants who have proved satisfactory so the Town Council was instructed to prepare the agreement. - 07 12 16

1907 12 16
Musgrave, card sharp, arrested – stole from undergraduates at Bull Hotel – 07 12 16a, 07 12 28d

1907 12 17

Hauxton School should be closed to children who have passed the third standard and they must attend Shelford or Harston schools, the Education authority decided in the interests of economy. But parents objected and eight were summoned for not sending their children to school. It meant a walk of a mile-and-a-half, they would get wet and sit in wet things all day as there was no chance of drying them. But the entire school population of Wood Ditton, Croxton and Eltisley had to walk that distance. - 07 12 17 & a

Gurteen thefts, p3

1907 11 19
Nags Head, p3
Mutiny funeral, p3
1907 12 20
According to artists Santa Claus no longer drives his Russian sleigh; he is now more generally depicted in a magnificent motor car such as those from the Cambridge Automobile Company. Their works and garage in Hobson Street are open day and night, Sundays included, and all repairs effected by a staff of skilled mechanics. - 07 12 20

1907 12 20
Although most people like to associate this season with snow-covered ground we must look instead for rain and wind. A visit to the Central Rubber Company's shop will fortify one against all the elements. Stout galoshes and rubber-boots, well-made waterproofs and overcoats are all supplied at reasonable prices. A gift that would be specially appreciated is a rubber water bottle, of which there is a large selection. - 07 12 20

1907 12 20
Everyone's digestion is impaired at Christmas by the quantity of unsuitable food which our tyrannous English customs force us to consume. When your gastric juices are quite dried up, a length or two of toothsome tripe (fresh boiled daily) purchased at Edwards' Tripe Shop, 36 Fitzroy Street, will soon put you right. - 07 12 20

1907 12 21
The Histon P.S.A. string band has been in existence 12 years. It is composed of Histonians only, and amateurs at that, but under the baton of Mr F. Frohock they have gained much success. Concert giving is however only a secondary object, the primary one being that of helping the Rev R. Smith with his men's meetings, when they give selections such as the 'Hallelujah Chorus in a masterly style - 07 12 21

1907 12 24
The annual suppers in connection with the Share-Out clubs have been taking place. The Midland Tavern club had been of much assistance during the rather heavy sickness but each member received 16s 1d. (80p). The Bentinck Arms, Castle Street provided a capital supper for 30 members while each member at the Rose and Tulip was entitled to £1 7s 4d (£1.36) - 07 12 24

1907 12 24
Mrs Mary Boon who kept a lodging house at Soham told an inquest that she could put up eleven men at her place. The deceased lodged occasionally with her and had been coming backwards and forwards several years. He was a steady man but had a glass of beer when he could afford it. His trade was to sharpen saws. Nobody knew his name but he answered to 'Bill'. He had paid 4d for his night's shelter and left for Ely but was found beside the road and died at Newmarket workhouse - 07 12 24

1907 12 27
Those unfortunate persons who are forced to accept the Workhouse as their home have little in the course of a year to look forward to, at any rate with pleasure. But at Chesterton Workhouse work is suspended on Christmas Day and they are allowed to spend as happy a time as possible. Gifts of tobacco, oranges and toys were distributed which helped to while away what would otherwise have been somewhat monotonous hours. - 07 12 27

1907 12 27
Boxing Day coursing, Quanta – 07 12 27b

1907 12 27
Upon Christmas Eve an inquiry was held into the sad circumstances of the death of an engine driver in the employ of the Midland Railway Company. A family man who lived at Kettering, he was instantaneously killed by a passing train at Histon Station as he was about to be relieved from duty. About half the train passed over the body and his scalp was cut clean off - 07 12 27a

1907 12 28
Hauxton school – interview with vicar – 07 12 28b
Christmas customs – decoration – no yew with holly, must remove every berry by Candlemas or misfortune; 'A green Christmas, a fat churchyard' – 07 12 28d

1907 12 28
The Somerset Winter Employment Fund has found work for 30 men at the University Botanic Garden. Some have been leaf raking, others clipping hedges, cutting trees or digging plantain out of grass. They were labourers, painters, carpenters and bricklayers, many of them with families dependent on them. Subscriptions have been received chiefly from members of the University but there is good reason more should come from townspeople – the garden is freely open to the public. 07 12 28a

1907 12 28
About 100 were present at the Misses Storey's Christmas dance at the Victoria Assembly Ball Rooms, prettily decorated with ferns, mistletoe and festoons. Two new dances, the Empire barn dance and the Esperanto figured in the programme. There being a dearth of Valeta music Mr Oliver Clifton has produced a pretty composition named 'The Storey' which he played on the piano with Mr G. Jackson on violin. Dancing continued until 2.15 am. 07 12 28

1907 12 28
A pretty wedding took place at Swaffham Bulbeck when James Fordham married Emily Nash, both of whom are deaf. The bride was dressed in cashmere silk with a hat trimmed with chiffon. The service was interpreted to the numerous deaf friends in the deaf and dumb manual language by Mr G. Mackenzie, Cambridge missioner to the deaf. 07 12 28c

1907 12 28
Witchcraft – cure for horses who bewitched – horse had power of seeing ghosts – to cure it gather water from pools nearest the door of the stable, poured into an earthenware bottle with five nails from the shoes of the horse and a few other ingredients and cast upon the fire, muttering an incantation. When bottle burst farmer was affrightened at his own witchcraft and fled – 07 12 28 d & e

1907 12 31
The Cambridge Railway Building Works, better known as the firm of William Saint and Sons, entertained 170 employees to dinner at the Lion Hotel. It started in 1880 and the first job was two villas on Mill Road, later came the Cattle Market contract but Westminster College, in 1900 was the largest project they had ever tackled. They were known for the quality and execution of their work which was due to men such as Vigers, Hodson, Coe, Willmott, Taylor, Lobb and Haynes. 07 12 31 & a

1908 Cambridge Weekly News

There are scans of these stories

January 1908 CWN

1908 01 03
Trinity College has received the stupendous sum of £400,000 under the will of Sir William Pearce. If invested it would bring in £16,000 annually. What will it do with the money? The question has been asked over and over again. The college might extend towards the Backs where there is ample space for more than one court or it might hand over a portion to the University which is badly in need of funds. 08 01 03

1908 01 03
John Tolliday has resigned his letter-carrying duties after 50 years as chief postman at Histon and no-one will begrudge him his well-earned rest after so many years of faithful service. When he first took over he had 40 letters to deliver on an ordinary day. Now the daily delivery averages close upon 500. But he is not resigning from the office of sub postmaster and villagers hope he will be spared many years to discharge his duties. 08 01 03a

1908 01 03
On Saturday morning a badger was noticed sitting in a hole near a haystack at High Town Drove, Burwell. The animal appeared to be very fierce and attacked a dog whose owner promptly killed it. It was shown to the Vicar who pronounced it a very fine specimen of the English badger. The owner took it to Newmarket for sale, where he was offered five shillings for it. He refused and took it back to Burwell where he eventually accepted one-and-six. It is many years since a badger has been seen here. 08 01 03b

Review of year, p3
Rockets, p5
Hauxton school, p5

1908 01 10
A public inquiry was held following allegations as to the administration of the Allotments Charity at Great Wilbraham. A cottager with a right of common should not let it to anyone but an occupier of less than 20 acres who must be a resident. This rule has frequently been broken but the villagers were content with affairs and would suffer if the provisions were strictly adhered to. Quite who complained was not disclosed. 08 01 10 & a

1908 01 10
On dark winter mornings milking operations are conducted by lamplight at Newton Hall Farm. This part of the day's duties done, master and men left the cowsheds but one labourer noticed smoke curling from the barn. With this perturbing news he disturbed the well-earned breakfast of the farmer and his family and from that time the peaceful farm was the centre of a commotion and bustle, the like of which was previously unknown in Newton. Before the disastrous fire was finally checked some remarkable scenes occurred. 08 01 10c

1908 01 10
Josiah Chater came to Cambridge in 1843 as a clerk to Mr W. Eaden Lilley and commenced business as an accountant in 1850. He was a Director of the Cambridge Permanent Building Society and General Cemetery Company and secretary of the YMCA and Cambridge Street Tramways Company. He was one of the best-known and most-respected men in town. 08 01 10d

1908 01 10

Miss Sarah Hurst says she cashed a £10 cheque at Dalzell's grocers shop, Exning but as she approached Burwell station she was stopped by two men who threatened her with a knife and stole the change from her purse. She went home but did not tell her father until after supper as she did not want to disturb him. Police can find nothing to corroborate her story and a man who was shooting sparrows nearby says he heard nothing. But Sarah says she dared not call out and just wanted to get home with her gloves – she had a five pound note and three sovereigns tucked inside them. 08 01 10e

1908 01 10
Hundreds of London skating enthusiasts availed themselves of train excursions to the fens which presented a practically unlimited area of ice in good conditions. Miles and miles were available. Not since 1895 have Cambridge people had such a large extent of frozen river with a splendid run from the Railway Bridge to Baitsbite Locks. Even man's modern eyesores were transformed: telegraph and telephone poles were linked with strands of silken beauty and wire-netting was outlined in crystals with the fragile delicacy of old lace. 08 01 10 f & g

1908 01 10
Fire broke out at Bateman House, Bateman Street, the residence of Dr Rouse, Headmaster of the Perse School. A fire had been lighted in one of the bedrooms and mattresses placed round it for airing purposes. A maid informed PC Nelson who fetched the reel from the 'Globe'. The police force were enjoying their annual dinner, but a number were soon on the scene. A large crowd collected on the street and watched with interest the efforts of the firemen who used a hand-pump and buckets of water. 08 01 10g

1908 01 10
Everybody in Cambridgeshire is concerned in the attempt to induce the War Office to retain the 4th Battalion Suffolk Regiment, better known as the Cambs Militia. It now only trains once a year and inculcates habits of discipline to the men who join. During the Napoleonic wars it had an exciting time and went to Ireland in 1799. In 1816 they assisted the Royal Dragoons to overpower the Littleport rioters but by 1852 there was only an old sergeant major and some antiquated sergeants at Ely. 08 01 10 h i

Wilbraham common, p2*
Hallack chimney, p3*
King visits, p4
Holy Sepulchre roof, p5
Blighted hopes, p6*

1908 01 17
Ancient inhabitants rack their brains in vain for a parallel to the extraordinary weather of the past fortnight, bringing in its train a record crop of influenza. The changes from 20 degrees of frost to a damp muggy air and then back again have caused the National Skating Association to rearrange the Championships which took place at Lingay Fen in almost perfect conditions. The ice was hard and entries above average. 08 01 17b

1908 01 17
Mrs Holdich was born in Somersham 100 year ago. She remembers when each parish has its own Workhouse and her father, a farmer, ensured the poor had their Sunday dinner before he sat down to his. In the pre-vaccination days the village was half-decimated by attacks of small-pox, families dying as no one dared to enter the house to nurse them. Many suffered from fen ague and strangers who took up their abode in the village were certain to contract the complaint. 08 01 17

Bottisham, Lode and Hauxton have Church Schools where the clergy have the right of entry and control of religious education of Church of England children each morning. Hitherto the children of Nonconformists have been allowed to run about the village until the hour for religious instruction has concluded. Now they are to receive simple Bible teaching from the Council teachers. 08 01 17a

1908 01 17
Canada has many miles of fertile land only awaiting the plough and the harrow, the farmer and the fruit grower to yield an abundance of food to the world and increase the wealth of those who can and will work. For labourers of the 'right stuff' there is plenty of work, good homes and good wages. There is no room for fellows who won't work but unlimited opportunities for men who will, meetings at Cambridge Guildhall and Willingham were told. Emigrants should contact Mr A. Suttle, 109 Fitzroy Street, the agent for Canada. 08 01 17d & e

1908 01 17
Charles Thornhill, started as a baker at Littleport nine years ago. His father bought a horse and cart and things in the bakehouse and he got flour on credit. He continued for seven years, then was sold up for failing to pay the rent. Since then he had been working for his wife who allowed him two shillings a week for clothes, the bankruptcy court heard. 08 01 17f

1908 01 17
Hauxton school controversy – 08 01 17c

Militia meat, p5
Isleham wells, p8*

1908 01 24
A remarkable case occupied the attention of Ely magistrates when an assistant schoolmistress summonsed a Cottenham farmer in respect to the paternity of her child. Last year she'd obtained an order against the brother of the present defendant but now it appeared that she must have been mistaken. The two had met at Stretham feast but witnesses were unable to say which brother they'd seen her with as there was a great likeness between them. 08 01 24c

1908 01 24
A West Norfolk gamekeeper has shot and killed one of the luminous owls which have appeared in East Anglia of late. Whilst out one very dark night he saw a bright blue light pass close by his face. He fired at it and found a poor, old, half-starved barn owl dead on the ground. He thought it must have been gathering glow-worms as it was getting late in the winter. He has never seen another giving out any light. 08 01 24d

1908 01 24
The owner of the Cow and Calf public house in Shelley Row has told councillors that if they will surrender the licences for the Nag's Head and Baker's Arms pubs – which they own – then he will give up land to allow for the widening of Albion Row. If they agreed to extend his lease he'd also give land for the construction of more cottages and a backway to the Pound in St Peter's Street. 08 01 24a & b

1908 01 24
Landbeach Black Bull licensee – 08 01 24

1908 01 24
Gt Wilbraham and inclosure history – 08 01 24d & dd

1908 01 31
A strip of land near St Ives old bridge was the subject of an inquiry. Boys used to fish from it and bargees shortened their ropes there to go over the bridge. It had been considered as a site for public conveniences but instead they'd used the old toll house. Nobody had been stopped from using it. But now it would be needed to widen the bridge and Mr Horatio Wadsworth claimed a right to the surface of the land. 08 01 31

1908 01 31
Fire broke out in the warehouses of Messrs Robsons and sons, provision merchants of King Street, Saffron Walden and so rapid was the conflagration that the outlook was most serious. They are situated in the heart of the town, surrounded by old business premises constructed of material that would readily lend itself to the ravages of the flames and containing merchandise of a most inflammable nature. The warehouses were gutted, the whole of the stock destroyed. 08 01 31a

1908 01 31
For years bachelor Harris Norman lived the life of a miser in Romsey Town. He was endowed with a positive genius for accumulating money but never spent more than would suffice to keep soul and body together. He laid the foundations of his fortune as a hawker of cheap jewellery, then speculated in stocks and shares. In his will he bequeathed the whole of his property to be divided between Addenbrooke's Hospital and the London Jewish Synagogue. 08 01 31b – details 08 02 07 & a University beagle brakes accident, Over – 08 01 31a

February 1908 CWN/CDN

1908 02 07
Alterations and additions to the Telephone Directory during the past month. Will telephone users made a particular note of the first three items, as they are printed in error in the official directory. 494 – W.H. Bansall, surgeon. 316 – Barker and Son, mineral water manufacturer. 408 – Bowes and Bowes, booksellers. 682 – Thomas Frohock, fruit and potation merchant. 159 G.N. Railway Co, passenger station. 660 - J.V. Pryor, fish merchant. 684 – Sidney college. 08 02 07d

A meeting was held at Isleham to explain the new Small Holdings Act. The soil is right, means of communication are all that can be desired and the class of people, if properly selected, are second to none. It would keep people on the land. The Rev Newling, Baptist pastor, said he helped at his brother's farm at Wisbech during the fruit season and often paid £50 a week for labour to the pickers on Saturday morning. 08 02 07 e

Linton magistrates heard of a disorder at Chequers, Shudy Camps where some furniture had been removed from the pub and carted away next day. The landlord, who was a single man, had introduced as his housekeeper an unsuitable young single women. This gave rise to some family difference. There had been frequent quarrels between the landlord and landlady at the Cross Keys, Sawston and the landlord of the Bell at Balsham had not prevented excessive drinking. 08 02 07g

The Ram beerhouse, Balsham, had existed previous to 1869, justices heard. There was a taproom, bar, kitchen, living-room and grocer's shop as well as four bedrooms. The back staircase and the stable roof was in bad repair. The tenant did a trade of about a dozen barrels of beer and six dozen bottled ale and stout a week. The population was 780 and there were five other fully-licensed pubs and three beer houses including the Five Ales. The licence was temporarily renewed. also Cherry Tree, Sawston Chequers, Shudy Camps, Bell at Balsham, George & Dragon, Castle Camps, White Hart, Linton. 08 02 07

The Hauxton school controversy was the subject of a public inquiry: it has been closed to older children who have to attend Harston or Shelford schools. Parents have refused to do this and a number of prosecutions have been instituted. Now they have employed a lawyer. The school was built for all standards but now it was likely the average attendance would fall and the council would close it completely. One mother said it was desirable a child should be allowed to go to school when it was four years old. 08 02 07 i & j.

St Ives bridge dispute, Wadsworth – 08 02 07b

CDN libel dispute with manure merchant – 08 02 07c

1908 02 15
Swaffham Prior had nine licenced houses, six full and three beer 'on' for a population of 950. The John Bull was in a dilapidated condition, it was next door to the Red Lion which had stables for four horses and had been put into a thorough state of repair. Bottisham have seven pubs; the Rose and Crown was in bad repair but the Swan had six bedrooms and a bakehouse. Cow and Hare, Rock Hotel, Fen Ditton|: Blue Lion, Fulbourn: Royal Oak, Bottisham: Rose and Crown, Swaffham Prior: John Bull, Reach: Uncle Tom's Cabin, Lt Wilbraham: Hole in the Wall. 08 02 15 & a & b

Colonel Barnet William Beales of Sidney Street, was a splendid type of local patriot. He was a pioneer in the Cambridge Volunteers, treasurer of the Church Defence Association and churchwarden of St Michael's. To mention all the associations of his long and honourable career would involve re-telling many pages of Cambridge history but he found time for the duties of an Income Tax Commissioner and the Panton Brewery. Nine years ago he was knocked down by a retriever dog and never completely recovered. 08 02 15f

Homeleigh, Mr Loman's new residence in Barton Mills, was the scene of disastrous fire. The stable contained three valuable mares, the coach house adjoining housed a carriage, dogcart, a Ralli car, light tumbrel, perambulator and new bicycle. At one end was an acetylene gas plant for lighting the whole establishment. Efforts were made to save the horses but it was impossible to rescue them and all three were literally roasted, nothing being left but a few charred remains. 08 02 15g

Some excitement was caused in Fulbourn by the descent of a large balloon with two aeronauts on board. Coming from the direction of Shelford it passed over the golf course and dropped into a field. The aerial travellers – one an old Trinity Hall man – said they left London at noon with Cambridge as their objective. The balloon was deflated and packed on a cart ready for the return journey per Great Eastern Railway. 08 02 15d

'Honest John' Burford embarked in the business of manufacturing perambulators and hard cash rolled into keep him in comfort. After he retired from the profitable premises in Trumpington Street his energy demanded an outlet which it found in public work. He was a Guardian of the Poor, Town Councillor, a keen supporter of Temperance, Sturton Town Liberals and the Salvation Army. But his chief hobby was the Cambridge Tramways Company; no company ever had a more devoted Director who worked hard for the dividends of the shareholder. Cambridge is the poorer because of his death but richer because of his life, said the Mayor. 08 02 15 & a & b

Little Hadham Rectory was practically destroyed by fire on Sunday. Bishop Stortford Fire Brigade were summoned and played on the flames with water from a pond in the grounds. Captain Lee and two men had a narrow escape, the roof and a dormer window causing a ceiling to fall in atop them. Fortunately they were unhurt, although their helmets were dented. 08 02 15c

1908 02 17
Bottisham traction engine without lights – 08 02 17a
Hillrow, Haddenham, child suffocated – 08 02 17b
Gt Wratting hair weaver death, West Wratting – 08 02 17bb & 08 02 22c

1908 02 18
Frank Andreae, known as 'The Fat Boy' to his friends, was stopped on Market Hill for not having the identification mark affixed to the back of his motor bicycle. He said he had travelled to Cambridge by train and it had been broken off during the journey. He had left his licence in his tool bag in London. He was very forgetful, magistrates were told, and had even forgotten to have breakfast before he attended the court. In that case it was doubtful whether he ought to be allowed to ride a motor bicycle, the Major commented. 08 02 18d

John Burford, p3*
Lt Hadham rectory fire, p3*
Fenland harvests, p4*

1908 02 19
An inquiry into Cambridge water supplies heard that the bulk of the sewage from the female side of Fulbourn Asylum was disposed of in the Rectory Field and that from the male to the west. This was found to be faulty, very faulty. In 1905 there was a serious outbreak of typhoid fever at Asylum with some 70 cases and 16 deaths after which Dr Copeman investigated. He did not want to be alarmist but an inquiry into possible sewage contamination would reassure the public. 08 02 19 & 20

1908 02 20
Water inquiry, p4*

1908 02 21
Linton licensing, p4*

1908 02 22
Castle Camps had an unnecessary number of licensed houses, Magistrates were told. The population of the village was 713 and there were eight licensed houses, being one to each 89 persons. There was only 85 yards between the George and the Cock Inns at Castle Camps and the latter, which was fully licensed, did much more trade. The George should be closed, even the tenant said there was not a living at the house. The magistrates renewed the licence and referred it to the Compensation Committee. 08 02 22

Lieut.-General R.S. Baden-Powell, the famous defender of Mafeking, propounded his 'fad' – peace scouting for boys as a means of instruction in good citizenship – before a large audience at the Perse School Hall. The Vice Chancellor gave apologies from the Bishop of Ely and various college Masters, all of whom were most heartily in sympathy with the objects of the meeting. 08 02 22

The body of a young woman was found in the river which runs alongside the road from Haverhill to Withersfield. The news of the discovery caused a painful sensation in the neighbourhood, for it is not a week since the suicide of a young man of Great Wratting. Both were hair weavers. 08 02 22a

Cambridge Guardians discussed the case of an old soldier who had served in the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny for whom they pad 2s 6d a week for a nurse. The old man had saved £20 out of his pension to pay for his funeral expenses, so that he should not be buried in a pauper's grave. But this had been seized by the relieving officer. They did not want the old man to have the money back so that his children should have the pleasure of spending it for their own comfort and then send him to the Union. 08 02 22a

Deep regret will be felt at the news of the death of Mr William Rayner, the well-known grocer and postmaster of Barrington. He was highly respected and the village will mourn the loss of one who was ever ready to help anybody or any cause whenever his assistance was asked. 08 02 22b

1908 02 24
Mrs Burford death – 08 02 24a
Gales, Wisbech church damaged – 08 02 24g

In tall scarlet lettering the name of 'Miss Florence Atkin' has been a poster that has appeared on every hoarding in Cambridge. The name is as familiar to concert-goers as Sarah Berhardt and Marie Hall. She was born in Cambridge and won a scholarship to the Perse School. But the discovery of her superb voice took place when she went to Miss Evans, the head-mistress of the Girls' County School.

Miss Evans has spent her life in an atmosphere of music, her one desire to find out and develop all that is best in a girl. She knew at once the importance of her find. 08 02 24a & b

1908 02 25
Cambridge suffragist meeting – 08 02 25c & d

The sale of the estate of Mr R.R. Rowe, late Borough Surveyor, includes a block of property mid-way between the station and the Post Office which would be suitable for the erection of a college, church, hotel or other business purposes. The residence known as Park House on Parkside, together with houses in Fitzroy Street, King Street and French's Road are also offered in the largest sale held in Cambridge for some long time. 08 02 25 & a & 29

Miss Sophia Smith told the court she had started a gymnasium for boys in Swaffham Bulbeck. But since it had been dissolved she had been constantly annoyed. Boys shouted 'How is the lady in tights'. She did not wear tights at the gymnasium: she wore a short skirt below her knees and knickerbockers. Her father said he'd had the granary cleared and fixed up as a gymnasium to keep the lads off the street. That was the way they abused him for his trouble. 08 02 25b

1908 02 26
Rings under eaves of houses – for fire? – 08 02 26 & a

1908 02 27
Canon Glazebrook's description of Ely as a "drunken, vicious, place" was a gross libel: last year only four Ely people were brought before the courts for drunkenness, councillors were told. If the Canon believed this he ought to leave off playing golf and give his time to suppressing drunkenness and vice. If not he should clear out of the place for fear the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah should come upon him. (Loud applause). 08 02 27

1908 02 29
Rowe sale, p3

March 1908 CDN

1908 03 04
A fire involving the total destruction of three business premises broke out in a narrow part of King Street, Saffron Walden. Following the serious fire at Messrs J.J. Robson's only a few weeks ago, it is curious to note this outbreak is next door. The street is very narrow and as flames shot across the road fear was entertained as to the safety of Mr Wabon's confectioners and Mr F. Furlong, gunsmith, which narrowly escaped destruction. 08 03 04

The price of butter has recently been exceptionally high and for many poorer families it is regarded as a luxury. Hallack and Bond say they had to increase their butter by 3d in the lb and even then were selling at almost cost price. The 'Butter Famine' has been caused by the formation of a 'ring' and wholesale merchants were very chary of buying in at the enhanced rate. Now almost all Cambridge establishments are selling at the old prices. 08 03 04a

1908 03 05
Sir – old houses in Bene't Street have rings under their eaves which are said to enable the roof to be pulled off in event of fire. But a few years ago I saw a bulky piece of furniture being drawn up to the second floor of one such property and taken in through the window. I noticed the ropes were passing through these rings under the eaves. It is obvious that to take a piano or large chest of drawers up the narrow winding staircases would be an impossibility so they were a wise provision - R. Cleaver, Chesterton. 08 03 05

A Horsley Hinton, photographer, appreciation – 08 03 05c

The Waggon and Horses on the corner of Burleigh Street and East Road already held a music licence. They had a commodious room capable of holding 50 people which they wished to use for public dancing once a week. But the Chief Constable said it was in an awkward part of Cambridge. A lot of people visited the house and it would not be well to offer further facilities. The licensee had his hands full in looking after the pub as it was at present. also Nags Head, Albion Row; Spotted Cow, Northampton St; Carpenter's Arms, King Street. 08 03 05 a & b

1908 03 06
A serious fire broke out at Mr S.H. Whitechurch's farm at Harlton, a village just beyond Lord's Bridge. Dr Wingate, who had been attending a patient in the district, alerted Cambridge Fire Brigade who at once set out for the scene with the steamer and six men. On arrival it was found that the buildings containing chaff and corn were well alight. Several horses were got out but some pigs were roasted alive in their sties. 08 03 06, & 07 & 7a

Henry Irving appreciation – 08 03 06a & b

1908 03 07
Harlton fire – 08 03 07 & a

1908 03 09
The Long Reach public house stands on the river bank a quarter of a mile from Old Chesterton. The landlord paid no rent and was allowed five shillings a week to keep the house open. The trade was about 21 barrels of beer and 12 gallons of spirit a year. It should be closed together with the Jolly Waterman in Waterbeach Fen. It had no road leading to it and the nearby Jolly Anglers was more convenient and had a ferry attached. 08 03 09

1908 03 10
Stapleford child run over by Pamplin traction engine – 08 03 10a

1908 03 11

1908 03 12
Cottenham was the scene of a regrettable exhibition of rowdyism when a gang of youths tried to break up a Tariff Reform meeting addressed by Mr Newton, of Croxton Park. The disturbers were lads of from 16 to 20 years of age who cat-called, booed and stamped their feet. Choruses of various songs were lustily rendered and it was feared the meeting would have to be abandoned. 08 03 12 & a

In the St Matthew's area of Cambridge are many public houses and the poverty of small homes threw the young people into the streets in search of amusement. There were thirteen different buildings in which social evenings and gymnastic clubs were continually held throughout the week. But some young men find infinitely more pleasure in racing through the streets and hooliganism. A boys' club at the Barnwell Theatre Mission or the Coffee Tavern on Newmarket Road would be worth trying. 08 03 12b & c

Cambridgeshire Motor-Cycle Club has been formed to organise club runs, hill climbs, speed judging and petrol consumption trials. It will also provide legal information and touring facilities. Officers include W. King, H.H. Harper, A.R. Marshall and Col. Harding of Madingley Hall. It is intended for motor-cycles – cycles and tri-cars, not car owners. 08 03 12d

Dunkirk, Downham farmer sues auctioneer – 08 03 12e

1908 03 13

E. Wareham Harry was Cambridge Borough Surveyor for the past 20 years. In the repair of 50 miles of sewer trenches and the laying of miles of concrete paving he did work which deserves well of the town. When he came the roads were in an indifferent condition, many without any foundation while others were merely coated with gravel. Now all the Macadam roads have been coated with granite. His efficiency was impaired by an attack of influenza and he died at his residence in Selwyn Gardens. 08 03 13

The King William IV beerhouse at Barley has a good taproom, kitchen and sitting room together with a small unoccupied shop formerly used by a boot maker. The water is obtained from the premises of Mr J.C. Wilkinson, next door. There are four cottages at the back. The wife of the tenant, Nathan Chapman, asked magistrates to renew the licence: they had lived there 16 years without complaint. But the village population is 505 and there are a total of eight licenced houses. Also Barkway Bell and Bull. 08 03 13a

1908 03 14
Undergraduates climb Backs trees, roped together in Alpine fashion - 08 03 14

1908 03 16
Fly nuisance – 08 03 16
St Ives accident, William Dellar – 08 03 16a

1908 03 17
Last September a cinematograph entertainment was given by the Gaumont Company at Newmarket. The operator jarred the machine and a piece of hot lime ignited one of the films. In trying to extinguish the flames he knocked over the lantern, the cylinder of gas ignited and there was a rush for the door. One lady was thrown into the flames and so terribly injured that she died in hospital. The company had paid her funeral expenses. Now her husband demanded damages: she had earned 10s a week at the laundry and his prospects of work were much reduced since a married man had a better chance of a respectable position than an unmarried one. 08 03 17

1908 03 18
Babraham church wall paintings restored – 08 03 18a & b & c

1908 03 19
Military manoeuvres attracted considerable attention. One force, including Perse School cadets, was ordered to hold the line of the Cam from Trumpington to the Mill Inn, Hauxton. Timber and cordage was seized from some scaffolding and the engineering section constructed a bridge sufficient to have carried Cavalry. The whole of the Cambridge University mounted infantry was captured, which would have had disastrous results in a real war. 08 03 19a

At Cambridge Dental Institute school children are treated free of cost. It is the only such clinic in the country and more important than Cambridge people realise. Now Dr George Cunningham has been honoured by the Odontological Society of France. 08 03 19b & 19

1908 03 20
Robbery from lodging house, New Street – 08 03 20
Undergraduate misbehaviour, New Theatre – 08 03 20a

1908 03 23
An inquest heard that an old man, who was deaf, lived in a two-roomed house in Smart's Row, Cambridge, with his sister who was similarly afflicted. They slept on separate mattresses on the floor of the same bedroom, which was in a filthy condition. His death probably took place on Tuesday, but it was not until Friday that the old lady called in a neighbour. She had slept in the same room as the corpse for two nights, apparently without being aware that death had taken place. 08 03 23

Telephone cables being laid, National Telephone Company - 08 03 23a

1908 03 24
Julian Julian appointed Borough Surveyor – 08 03 24
Coveney farmer accident Drake of Sutton traction engine – 08 03 24a & b

1908 03 25
Fenners – memories of Walter Watts – 08 03 25 & a

1908 03 26
Cambridge butchers at dinner – 08 03 26

1908 03 27
Ouse in flood, sheep drowned Fenstanton – 08 03 27

1908 03 28
Licensing bill debated Royston & Cambridge – 08 03 28 & b
Volunteer colours to GSM, history – 08 03 28c 08 03 31 & a & b

1908 03 30
Motor taxis inspected – 08 03 30

Cambridge Watch Committee inspected a motorcab, one of twenty which a London firm wish to place for hire upon the Cambridge streets. It was a luxurious vehicle of the brougham class built to accommodate four passengers. It is proposed to put the cars on hire on the taximeter principal, the fares being threepence per quarter mile. We understand the cabmen will present a petition against the granting of the application. 08 03 30

April 1908 CDN

1908 04 01
More than 1000 people gathered on Cambridge Market Hill at midnight to witness the official extinction of the Third (Cambs) Volunteer Battalion of the Suffolk Regiment. As the clock chimed the buglers played 'The Last Post' and the Volunteers were no more. But after a few seconds 'Reveille' was sounded, melancholy vanished and cheers greeted the new Cambridgeshire Battalion of the Territorial Force. The bugle band played the officers back to the mess room where they sang 'Auld Lang Syne'. 08 04 01 a & b
Licensing bill protest at St Ives – 08 04 01

Gt Chesterford stack fire – 08 04 01c

1908 04 02
Chesterton MOH report – 08 04 02

1908 04 03
A Witcham labourer had been employed to look after the sluice doors of the Mepal Catchwater drain. After he was dismissed the gates had frequently been obstructed. He was seen deliberately dropping pieces of brick into the sluice, preventing the doors closing automatically. In the event of a high tide it might have resulted in the flooding of the Fen lands, involving very heavy damage. He was fined the enormous sum of £100 plus costs. 08 04 03a

On leaving Stretham P.C. Pearce was presented with a handsome solid oak liqueur stand with three decanters, a cigar cabinet and a cribbage card with board. During his stay he had earned their respect – he was a policeman of the right sort and a good member of the cricket club. Having been stationed there for four years, he was leaving to take up new duties as sergeant at Chatteris. 08 04 03b

Suicide wife of oil and colourman – 08 04 03

1908 04 04
Exceptionally heavy thunderstorms with vivid lightning and large hailstones raged around Haverhill. At Ruse's Farm, Kedington, 49 sheep were struck by lightning and killed. At the Perse School, Cambridge, one of the new rugby goal posts was struck with a channel cut from top to bottom and splinters scattered around for about 20 yards. 08 04 04

Sir – the idea of electricity generated by peat gas appeals to residents in the Fen country where peat is so plentiful. The black swamp possesses theoretical heat values not far below coal when thoroughly dried. When economically farmed, stored, dried and made fit for burning by steam boilers or 'producer gas plants' it becomes a formidable rival to coal with its ever-fluctuating price – James Smith. 08 04 04a

St Luke's school memorial to Berridge – 08 04 04b

1908 04 06
Cambridge cabmen opposed plans for 20 motor cabs to be licenced: "Our living is a very precarious one. Most of us are married men with large families and it is as much as we can do to make ends meet as it is. It would mean semi-starvation for some families and ruination for the rest. Some have put all our savings into buying a horse and cab of our own. Motor cabs are unnecessary and would be a constant source of street accidents", they told magistrates. 08 04 06a

Trades and inventions exhibition – 08 04 06

1908 04 09

West Wratting labourer's suicide – 08 04 09

Cottenham rowdyism – 08 04 09a

1908 04 10
Bottisham and Lode schools unsanitary – 08 04 10a
Linton congregational church new Sunday school- 08 04 10
New school for Childerley Gate – 08 04 10b

1908 04 11
Her Majesty the Queen, accompanied by the Dowager Empress of Russia, passed through Cambridge station, where a small group of spectators had gathered. Elaborate arrangements had been taken and Inspector Baker and several constables were in attendance, in addition to the Station Master and other officials. There was no demonstration but a kindly act on the part of the Queen was noticed: she waved her hand once or twice to the persons on the platform as the train proceeded without stopping to Six Mile Bottom. 08 04 11

Stokys almshouses history – 08 04 11a

1908 04 13
Much anxiety was occasioned at Newmarket owing to the non-appearance of the Royal motor car in which Queen Alexandra and the Emperor of Russian were travelling. One absurd report was that Anarchists were to blame. Cyclists went out as search parties and Supt Winters set off in a private car in search of the Royals. The chauffeur had taken a wrong turning and the Queens were lost for the better part of an hour as the car threaded the maze of country lanes around Fordham. A burst tyre caused further delay and they were nearly an hour late. 08 04 13

1908 04 14
Three women were summoned for hanging clothes on a line stretched across the street at Blackmoorhead Yard, Bridge Street. Edward Hopkins, livery stables proprietor, said the Yard was not a thoroughfare, having no outlet, but it led to stables. The lines were hung right across so anybody driving could not get down. Elizabeth Burton and Ellen Clark pleaded guilty, but Sarah Collingwood said she did not obstruct the yard. If they did it again they would be arrested. 08 04 14

Cambridge MOH report- 08 04 15 & a

1908 04 16
Newmarket Road cemetery was too expensive, ratepayers claimed. The land had cost four times what adjacent ground had fetched, the walls were crumbling and the cottage built of the poorest bricks so the papers hung in strips inside. There were four greenhouses and a kind of chapel where part of the service was held – all of which had to be heated. A number of beds had been planted with bulbs and expensive flowers whereas herbaceous plants would do quite well. A number of people visited on a Sunday bringing children who played in the open space, but it should not be a recreation ground. 08 04 16

A cottage at The Grip, Linton, was damp and unfit for human habitation. It was very old and dangerous, the front room was only four feet nine inches high and the floor had sunk several inches since August. But where were the occupants to go? There are no empty cottages to be had and people could not be turned out into the road. The owner said the rooms were large and well ventilated and he was willing to repair it. 08 04 16a

Newmarket Road cemetery costs – 08 04 16

1908 04 17
A well being sunk at the kennels of the Cambs Hunt at Caxton had reached a depth of 40 feet. A workman was lowered by rope and pulley in the usual way when he gave a shout and fell to the bottom. For some reason the precaution of lowering a naked light as a test of the purity of the air was omitted. Attempts to rescue him failed and at the time of writing the body (which was plainly discernible from the surface) had not been removed. He leaves a widow and two children. 08 04 17a

When the jury retired to consider their verdict at the Assize Court, Castle Hill, they were taken down a flight of cold stone steps into a narrow chamber of sordid aspect, dimly lit by three barred windows and furnished with two bare wooden forms. The Court does not want the retiring room made too comfortable, but there must have been times when they have made up their minds hastily to escape from that dungeon. Now a new room has been built, with a lavatory. But the court is still illuminated by gas and flooded with fumes. Silver-tongued barristers halt while the custodian, armed with his long pole, leans from the dock to light it. 08 04 17c

Herbert Robinson bicycle showrooms expansion – 08 04 17b

Good Friday celebrations – 08 04 17

1908 04 20
The confidence trickster has been active in Cambridge. Three jewellers received telephone messages purporting to come from well-known residents, asking for a selection of gold chains to be sent to their houses on approval. Messrs Reed sent an employee for confirmation, who found no order had been given. But Otto Wehrle sent a messenger with several chains to Mr Verrinder of the Avenue. He met a gentleman on the steps of the house who promised to select one and return the remainder. Nothing has been heard from him since. 08 04 20

1908 04 21
Cottenham well sinking – inquest – 08 04 21

Wehrle swindler not found – 08 04 21a

Bartlow fire – 08 04 21b

1908 04 22
Henry Campbell-Bannerman death and local connections – 08 04 22 & a

1908 04 24
Thriplow church was well restored in 1877 but has hitherto depended on a harmonium to supply its music. An organ fund was started in 1886 and now a fine new instrument enclosed in a handsome decorated case of gold and green has been built by Miller and Son of Cambridge at a cost of £250. Its capabilities were demonstrated at a concert of sacred music. 08 04 24a & b

Governess cart accident, Regent Street – 08 04 24

1908 04 25
A large crowd assembled outside the offices of the CDN for news of the Manchester bye election, in which Winston Churchill was defeated. When the result was announced there was much jubilation at the Central Conservative Club. Churchill had promised anything to anybody without the slightest sincerity; let them hope he would never seek re-election again. He had been a brilliant man in the Conservative party at one time and now he was a disgrace to the Liberals. 08 04 25

In all probability we have seen the last athletic flat race meeting in Cambridge. After struggling for several years the Liberal Athletic Union received one last blow in with the poorest attendance on record. For a large gate at least cycle races, and perhaps motor races, are required but the University will not permit these at Fenner's although similar cinder tracks are used for both. The weather did not help with three inches of snow on the ground in the morning. But the sun shone with great power and the track dried. 08 04 25a & b

May 1908 CDN

1908 05 01
Bottisham shooting rights dispute – 08 05 01

1908 05 02
The Hon Thomas Price, the Labour Premier of South Australia, is visiting Cambridge and will be entertained by the University Welsh Society. He is an example of the growing power of Labour politics in the world. He arrived in Australia at the age of 31 and worked as a stonecutter in the erection of the Parliament Building at Adelaide, where he now sits as Premier. He is staying with Mr Wilkinson of The Avenue and visited the Union Society. 08 05 02 & a

Our readers will remember Margery F whose short career included the sensational court action against Colonel Hurrell, her alleged attempted murder in the Cam, her supposed 'heroic' rescue from drowning of a child she had pushed into the water and her sentence of twelve months imprisonment for theft. This remarkable girl on her release from gaol obtained a situation as cook in a family where her record was unknown. But her mania for publicity was too strong and she is now in Buckingham workhouse infirmary recovering from a dose of self-administered poison. When she is well enough she will be charged with attempted suicide. 08 05 02

Sir – I have traced the history of Blackmoor Head Yard, Bridge Street, for nearly 100 years, and find it has been the custom for occupants to hang their washing across the yard. Laundresses have lived there and dried everything in the same way. Dr Dennis Adams had the stables at the bottom of the yard and when our King was up at Cambridge he often used to come there and hold the linen up with his stick to pass under it without making any fuss at all. Where must we dry them now? In the bedrooms? – S. Collingwood. 08 05 02b

One of the most successful public entertainments ever held in Newmarket was brought off at the Victoria Theatre to raise money to renovate the organ of St Mary's church. It featured a concert with living pictures, a form of tableaux vivants, and was under exalted patronage with most of the racing gentry lending their names. At the close the High Street was lined with motors and horse carriages waiting for the audience to pour out. 08 05 02c

Three terms ago the undergraduates of Caius College indulged in a strike against the kitchen arrangements. They refused to eat what was provided – but still had to pay for what they would not eat. Their example was infectious and spread to Trinity. But there they meals have now returned to their old price and standard – they are as exorbitant as they are disgusting. The present arrangements present all the worse features of the less cultured American municipalities. But whoever met an undergraduate who didn't grumble about 'Hall'. 08 05 02d

1908 05 04
Mrs Briggs' First-class registry office, Regent Street, Cambridge, has all classes of superior, reliable town and country servants. Ladies requiring to be quickly and well suited should apply now. Includes: Cook-General, tall, superior country girl, good worker, 2½ years reference; £16. House-parlourmaid, tall, superior country servant, carve, valet, good waitress and needlewoman, £21. Twenty young country servants, requiring first situations as nurses, housemaids, generals, between maids and kitchen maids, small wages, to be trained. – advert. 08 05 04

1908 05 06
The King motored from Bucking Palace to St Pancras and left by the 5.7 train for Newmarket. A special saloon had been attached for his use and tea was already laid. At Cambridge the Royal saloon was detached and was run as a special to Newmarket which was reached shortly before seven. His Majesty subsequently motored to Moulton Paddocks and dined with Sir Edward Cassell. He will motor back on Friday. 08 05 06a

Cambridge was badly hoaxed last night about the result of the Wolverhampton election. Inside the CDN the editor was waiting the news when the noise of cheering penetrated the office, but that was no unusual for the crowds waiting outside frequently engage in shouts. When the official message came through Mr Taylor proceeded outside to find nobody there. Practical jokers had already caused a card to be printed with fictitious figures and left outside the News office. If they aimed at creating a sensation, they have succeeded, causing fits of depression among members of the Liberal party. 08 05 06

1908 05 07
Chesterton Council is to write to the Motor Bus Company complaining of the vibration caused by the buses to houses on the route as they speed past at 12 mph. We feel that such vibration is the fault of Chesterton Road which is in a shocking condition. It is the constant bumping of the bus over the volcanic-like ruts that shakes the buildings so. The buses are a boon and blessing and we should be sorry to see anything which interferes with the swiftness and regularity of the admirable service. 08 05 07 & 07a & 09a
Death John Saggers, manager GER Goods station – 08 05 07b

1908 05 09
Quinsee, cycle dealer and repairer, factory case – 08 05 09
Corporation commissioners' report, 1833 – 08 05 09b & c

1908 05 11
The personality of Mr Winston Churchill looms so large in the minds of Cambridge politicians that a crowd of about 3,000 waited patiently outside the offices of the CDN to await the result of the Dundee election, where he was returned as a Liberal MP. When one section of the crowd raised a cheer, the opposing section retaliated. It was a great delight to hear an undergraduate, perched on the shoulder of his friends, declaim against Churchill as a turncoat and hear him answered by one of the Liberal turn of mind. Dundee election night will not soon be forgotten. 08 05 11

Two men were summonsed for catching wild birds. P.S. Merry said he found them on ground adjoining Coldham's Common with a number of nets fixed to the ground and some calls birds in cages near at hand. They caught six linnets and at home had 25 others together with three greenfinches, all of which were released. They claimed they had permission from the landowner and so were exempt from prosecution. 08 05 11a

1908 05 12
Cambridge Ladies' Social Cycling Club held 30 runs last year which were not so well attended as before, owing to the unsettled weather. Three invitation runs were arranged to get other cycle clubs to join, and they were well patronised. Successful picnics were given at the Swan House Tea Gardens, Harston and at Whittlesford. A prize will be awarded to the lady who attended the most runs during the season. 08 05 12

1908 05 13
Prior to 1906 Newmarket police executed distress warrants for rates but afterwards the overseers employed a Cambridge man to collect them. He was paid on commission but gained only a scanty livelihood as a collector of debts and had taken £1.18.0 ((£1.90) to pay for his food and lodgings. There was no defence. The prisoner asked for ink and paper to take notes but soon desisted and without attempting to cross-examine, pleaded guilty. 08 05 13a

Fitzwilliam Museum statue of Duke of Devonshire unveiled – 08 05 13

1908 05 14
Melbourn Place new schools plans – 08 05 14 & a & b

Chesterford gardener bankruptcy – 08 05 14c

1908 05 15
Burwell Rifle Range was opened in disused maltings and is one of the best miniature ranges in the country. The approaches were decked with flags while a carpeted space inside was lighted by colour-screened lamps to serve when the windows were shuttered for firing practice. The club was formed in March and already has 87 members. They were all very patriotic and knew it was necessary they should all be able to shoot in case they were called upon. 08 05 15 & a

1908 05 16
An appeal to the patriotism of members of the University is never made in vain. Scenes of the greatest enthusiasm reigned in the Senate House when the Secretary of State for War appealed to the University to do its part is supplying the deficiency of about 8,000 officers in the Army. The science of war had progressed and they fought not with a rabble but with organised bodies of men on a great scale who went through the opposing forces without resistance. An Officer's Training Corps gave a man a second opportunity: if he went to the bar and did not like it, then he could become an Army officer. 08 05 16 & a

A wardress at the County Gaol, Castle Hill, told the inquest that a single mother and her baby had been put in the reception cell and slept on a plank bed with a mattress. In the morning the baby was dead and she concluded the prisoner had overlaid it. There was no room for cradles in reception cells, which were very small, and when they were provided in the main cells the mothers never thought of laying babies there at night. The Coroner did not attach any blame to anyone. The narrow bed was altogether insufficient for the child and mother and now they knew that would not happen again. The jury said a cot should be provided. 08 05 16b

1908 05 18
Sir - The last Senior Wrangler will be chosen in 1909 and Trinity and St John's are fighting to ensure success in that examination. Trinity secured a lad from the most famous scientific family in England. St John's retaliated by obtaining a boy of extraordinary merit from an East-end slum. Then Trinity secured an Australian and St John's put another man on their mathematical staff specially to coach their candidate: they brought back Professor Bromwich from Galway. Normally lecturers go away to become professors, professors do not get brought here as lecturers to foster unfair College competitions – Pro Bono Publico. 08 05 18

1908 05 19
Griggs exhibition, p4*

1898 05 22
Tragedy surrounds the death of a Trinity College undergraduate who took rooms in Park Parade and acquired a reputation for studiousness. A revolver shot was heard and a fellow undergraduate bursting the door open, found the young man reclining in an easy chair. His right hand still clutched a revolver and in the centre of his forehead was a bullet wound. A doctor was called, but the lad was beyond human aid. Only one chamber of the revolver, which was practically new, had been charged. CWN 08 05 22 p5

A case of great importance for lodging house keepers and traders came to court when Messrs Murdoch, Murdoch and Co, of Regent Street, claimed the return of an organ which had been hired by a Downing undergraduate. He had rented a room in a University lodging house but left without paying for his board and lodgings. So the landlord had kept it together with pictures and other goods, until he got his money. CWN 08 05 22 p5

A Lt Abington farmer told the court that the County Council had been repairing Trumpington Road, which was worn down to the granite, but had left a sharp edge four inches high which in the dark was really a trap. His horse's foot had caught against it, was thrown down and badly injured. Both shafts of the trap were broken. Lamps which should have been there were not working as there was no oil in them. He claimed damages for neglect. But the judge said he'd exaggerated the problem and dismissed the case. CWN 08 05 22 p8

1908 05 23
Prince Henry at Magdalene, p6
Wild bird traffic, p7
County council sued, p8*

1908 05 29
A pitched battle was fought at Hauxton feast upon the platform of a steam roundabout going round at full speed. While the villagers confined themselves to nature's weapons, the showmen resorted to sticks and heated irons taken from the boiler of the engine. Women children in their arms who were taking rides upon the whirligig tumbled haphazard from their mounts to escape the turmoil, terrified out of their wits at the sight of the two factions fighting like wild animals. CWN 08 05 29 p3

The little village of Meldreth was the scene of a disastrous fire; five cottages and two bakehouses were absolutely destroyed, and several poor inhabitants have been rendered destitute as well as homeless, for their belongings were devoured by the flames. The havoc was complete and the site, about 700 yards from Meldreth station, is now marked by heaps of debris. Remains of carts, whole sides of pork and a load of flour are amongst the ashes. CWN 08 05 29 p6

A remarkable case of wholesale poisoning has occurred at Murrow where 17 people belonging to four families have been affected. Two of them have succumbed. Mrs Boston, a bricklayer's wife, bought a quantity of pig's bones and pig's head to make brawn or pork cheese. She gave some to the other families. Medical men attribute the illness to ptomaine poisoning. CWN 08 05 29 p3

Alfred Wright, a driver for Crampton's mineral water manufacturers of Sawston was harnessing two horses in the Crown yard, Cambridge, when one took fright. It dashed into Hills Road and galloped towards the town. As it neared Hyde Park Corner it ran full tilt into a lamp-post and sustained injuries of such a shocking character that death was almost instantaneous. The lamp standard was completely broken off at the base and the gas piping bent right across the path. CWN 08 05 29 p3

June 1908 CWN

1908 06 05
The licensee of the White Horse, Cottenham, claimed it did a good trade. They might have two commercial travellers during the fruit-growing season at 3s.6d. (18p), bed and breakfast. The Trinity Beagles sometimes had tea there; they paid one shilling each but ate all the bread, jam and tea they could get and he would rather not have them. Otherwise they only had two people to tea and not more than one to lunch in a week. CWN 08 06 05 p3

Considerable annoyance has been caused to the dons of Trinity and St John's by gramophone concerts given by undergraduate punting parties. As the Cam is technically a highway the police were asked to put a stop to the nuisance and a constable patrolled the river in a 'tub'. As he was rowing quietly along an undergraduate propelled his craft with such force that its gunwale was smashed in and the policeman narrowly escaped a ducking. The lad has now received a summons for 'obstructing the highway'. CWN 08 06 05 p3

Sawston Co-operative Society opened its new model bakery with the latest machinery for the making of bread and confectionery. The new plant is needed to meet the increased demand, which has doubled in 20 years. It supplies nine villages and sends out 3,000 quartern loaves a week. Sawston Brass Bands played selections before the new premises were thrown open to inspection. CWN 08 06 05 p3

There has been an Alpine fever amongst undergraduates, finding a vent in climbing trees along the Backs. The wireless telegraphy station on the Huntingdon Road has been the site of the latest exploit. This is a pole over 200 feet in height which receives messages from Cumnor Hill near Oxford. Two undergraduates merrily commenced the ascent by means of the metal spikes driven in at convenient intervals and managed to reach the top. But the return voyage was not so easily accomplished and they reached terra firma with a distinct sigh of relief. It is a matter for common wonder what object will next receive the attention of this strange species. CWN 08 06 05 p5

A house in Castle Street was struck by lightning during a heavy thunderstorm which caused tremendous damaged and rendered it uninhabitable. A brick chimney stack fell with an appalling crash into the bedrooms beneath, which have been completely wrecked. It is a semi-detached residence of three storeys and reputed to be the highest inhabited point in Cambridge. CWN 08 06 05 p5

A number of prominent rowing men, objecting to the known Socialistic proclivities of Messrs Gomme and Bull, and believing they had dared to hold a Fabian meeting within the precincts of Trinity Hall, fetched them forcibly from the rooms of a friend and ducked them in a bath which had been prepared in the middle of the Court. A circular was issued that was sent to every Member of Parliament, setting out the facts. The 'raggers' have been punished. 08 06 05 p5

Quite recently, the Burlington Press, which for a number of years carried on business in East Road, has removed to larger premises at Foxton. Dr Briggs, the founder of the business as an adjunct of the University Correspondence College entertained the entire staff to dinner inside the works and proposed a toast of 'Success to the University Tutorial Press'. CWN 08 06 05 p6

To the casual observer there seems a minimum of child labour in Cambridge so it is something of a shock to learn that 266 are engaged in some occupation out of school hours. Now no child may be employed as a lather boy in any barber's shop, nor in connection with the sale of intoxicating liquor on licensed premises, nor in billiard or bagatelle marking, nor in the kitchen of any hotel or refreshment room. Badges must be worn by those engaged in street trading for which a deposit of threepence will be charged, councillors decided. CWN 08 06 05 p7

1908 06 12
At the bottom of Mill Lane there was a kind of wharf with steps to allow people to get down to the river. Recently Mr Scudamore had fastened a sort of wooden punt as a mooring for pleasure boats, now nobody in a boat could get to the steps without trespassing on it. But no loading of boats had been carried on for nine years, the water was only a foot deep and there had been no complaints. Anybody in a punt could use it, Scudamore claimed. However as the river was a navigable highway, this was an obstruction magistrates decided and fined him five shillings. CWN 08 06 12 p2

Caterpillars are wreaking havoc to fruit growers; Mr John Chivers says his orchards are being literally eaten up by them devouring the foliage and leaving the trees in a garb of mid-winter nakedness. The insects also drop to the gooseberry bushes planted beneath the fruit trees and there wage a similar war. From 30 acres he does not expect to obtain 30 bushels of gooseberries. At Cottenham caterpillar shooting parties have been organised each evening to attack the enemy when they cluster for the night; 20-30 guns, charged with caps, have been employed for three weeks. CWN 08 06 12 p5

Stetchworth waterworks are costing too much money and are not satisfactory, the parish council claimed. Percy Pamphilon should be appointed to run it: he is a practical engineer with ten years' experience in all sorts of pumps and is now running Bluten's light plant for the Earl of Ellesmere. But when the works were first established they had great difficulty in getting anybody to manage them and the existing engineer, Mr Hobbs, should have the opportunity of answering the charges. CWN 08 06 12 p6

Abington school managers had agreed to shorten the dinner hour by half an hour and allow children to leave earlier. The old hours were a hardship on those who lived a long way off. One little mite living at Pampisford did not get home till after dark in the winter months. But half-an hour did not give the children sufficient rest. Most did not get dinner until 1.10 and had to be back at school by 1.30. Parents also raised a petition to go back to the old time. CWN 08 06 12 p8

The Sanitary Committee recommended that a well should be sunk at the end of Bar Lane, Stapleford at a cost of £50, but residents petitioned against it. The well was not required and would impose a rate, the complained. The matter arose out of an old report; there had been no trouble with the water recently and if a well was sunk it would not be used. But the water had been analysed and found to be bad. It was referred to the Parish Council to decide what to do. 08 06 12 p8

1908 06 19
The greatest demonstration that woman has yet made of her desire for the suffrage was the gigantic procession through the streets of London to the Albert Hall. Ten thousand strong, it comprised almost every class: lady doctors marched with factory girls, famous lady novelists and domestic servants. Cambridge played an active part: about 130 ladies joined in, including Mrs Heitland, Mrs Ward and Mrs Rackham bearing a splendid blue silk banner with in gold lettering 'Cambridge Women's Suffrage Association, founded 1883'. At the Albert Hall both Newnham and Girton colleges took a box, many ladies attired in academic dress. 08 06 19 p2 08 06 19 p2

Senior wranglership, p2*
Upware No Hurry, p7
Charley's Aunt, p5
Chancellor installed, p7*
Meldreth cement co, p7
Stretham accident Walter Langford, p7

1908 06 26
Isleham pond where the water in East Road drains from off the highway has hitherto been cleaned out by men who have sold the mud as reimbursement. Now however they cannot find anyone to purchase it. A number have offered to do it for £3 and the mud will belong to the council or for £1.10 and the mud will belong to the men. I prefer the latter course as I have to dispose of the stuff and cannot find a buyer. – F. Fyson, clerk, Isleham Parish Council to Newmarket RDC. 08 06 26 p3

Proud papas and mammas in great number congregated in the gallery and upon the floor of the Senate House to watch their sons in clothes of sombre hue wearing upon their shoulders the hood of a Bachelor of Arts kneel before the Vice-Chancellor to receive their degrees. According to ancient custom the Senior Wrangler was first presented and at the tail of the list came the wooden spoonist, Mr R. Pask, a master at the Cambridge and County Boys' School. Strung upon strong twine stretching from either gallery was the trophy, a handsome wooden spoon, which danced over the heads of those seated on the floor in obedience to the string-pulling of undergraduates. 08 06 26 p3 # c.36.9

Dealers spoke very pessimistically of trade at the Horse Fair on Midsummer Common. There are periodic shows of horses at Cambridge and St Ives and that is where most of the good local horses go. Added to the scarcity of horses in the country, the trade on the Common is decreasing year by year and in a few years this old-established sale will be no more. CWN 08 06 26 p7

At one village school near Ely a child had been excessively punished: there were wheals on his back caused by a stick. But where families of 14 had to be clothed and fed on 14 shillings a week, the children's clothes were not very thick and when the master lost his temper he struck much harder than he imagined. The father was going to take out a summons but stopped as it was undesirable to haul a child before the Bench. If this kind of thing continued children would not go to school and the percentage would decrease which was not good for the education figures. CWN 08 06 26

Newmarket workhouse was a fashionable hotel for tramps. At some workhouses they got hot tea, at others half a pound of bread and water. On Sundays when people came out of chapel the tramps sang sacred songs, and coppers were thrown to them. One took six shillings in a night. Tramps hid their money, if anyone could find their hidden savings, they would get a good deal of cash, Guardians were told. CWN 08 06 26 p7

July 1908 CWN

1908 07 03
The Lensfield club's new miniature rifle range off Newmarket Road was opened by Colonel Harding. Membership had risen from six to 100 in a year, it was a step towards handling the service rifle and ammunition and taking an interest in the Territorial Army. Now they wanted a new pavilion. CWN 08 07 03 p5

A groom had just had a thoroughbred horse shod at Mr Norting's forge on the Balsham Road, Linton and was leaving the shop when his cap was blown off by the strong wind. The horse bolted at full gallop and the rider was thrown, falling on his head. He was picked up unconscious and conveyed on a horsed trolley to Dr Palmer's. The horse was caught by John Mansfield, postman of West Wratting. CWN 08 07 03 p8

King Edward VII, accompanied by Colonel Fortescue and Sir Ernest Cassel, inspected Grafton House, a large mansion nearly opposite the Jockey Club in Newmarket High Street, next to the Duke of Devonshire's residence. Sir Ernest Cassel purchased the property after the death of its owner, Baron de Hirsch, who lived there for many years. 08 07 03 p8

1908 07 10
The Guildhall organ is choked with dirt, the accumulation of years. It should be cleaned and brought up to the modern standard, lowering the pitch to French normal by transposing all the pipes, removing the tuba bass and adding a pedal stop. The cost would be £562 but no charge would be made for generally softening certain flue stops if the main work was carried out. CWN 08 07 10

The Castle Inn, a roadside beerhouse at Castle Camps together with a bakehouse and some cottages was sold by auction for £390. 'Apple Tree Cottage' in the centre of the village made £120 but 'Moat Farm House' pleasantly situated by the roadside at Ridgewell comprising a red brick and plastered dwelling with an acre of ground was withdrawn at £495. CWN 08 07 10 p2

Fire damaged the Christadelphian Hall in Coronation Street, Cambridge, but fortunately the harmonium was not injured to any great extent. Another fire which broke out at Hale's Farm, Haverhill is believed to have been caused by the heat of the sun. During the afternoon the sun's rays had been extremely hot, the roof of the shed, under the slates was boarded and during the last winter had been stocked with stover. CWN 08 07 10 p2

Snailwell Rectory was struck by lightning which hit the corner of the roof, carrying away about twelve feet of masonry. It fused a window and brass bedstead and ran through the floor to the dressing room below before passing on through the telephone wire, which prevented further damage. The Rector found the cook in a state of collapse: she was taking a plate from the rack when the electrical discharge passed near her. He then went across to the stud farm and found the famous stallion, Zinfandel, was safe. CWN 08 07 10 p6

Histon's three days' Feast included Thurston's new Royal show of animated pictures and their steam racing motor cars. Two other roundabouts of a less pretentious order claimed full attention from the youngsters as did an unusual number of bottle and egg and rifle shooting saloons, strength-testers, 'Aunt Sallies' and cocoa-nut shies. Then there were ice-cream, confetti, rock (Histon all through) and fish stalls by the score as well as a Temperance tent where light refreshment was obtained at reduced prices. CWN 08 07 10

The ravages wrought among our wild birds by the professional bird-catcher is revealed by a report by the RSPB. Starlings and sparrows are sold to East End markets at twopence apiece for public house 'Sundays shoots'. In one Cambridgeshire village, inhabited by a notoriously rough class of people, four brothers have lived for twenty years by bird-catching and employ other men to augment the catches. CWN 08 07 10

This is the most prolific strawberry year known. The fruit has been picked and marketed under the most propitious conditions, not one wet spell having interfered with the business. Selling at twopence a pound, the strawberry harvest is of greater value than that of currants and gooseberries combined. CWN 08 07 10

1908 07 17
The solid form of type representing the news page of the CDN was removed from the printing machine to allow for additions to be made to the late edition when the iron band which holds it together snapped and what had been nicely-arranged columns of print was a shapeless heap upon the floor. That is "printer's pie", the worst catastrophe that can befall a newspaper. Not a moment was wasted: it was quickly gathered up, every available man being set to the task. There was no flurry and exactly 40 minutes later it was on the machine. CWN 08 07 17 p5

A shocking railway accident, resulting fatally, occurred at the Cherry Hinton level crossing. Two light engines were approaching and the gatekeeper, Mr West, being absent at the back of his house, his daughter was closing the gates. One easily shut but before she had time to close the second the engines were upon her and she was thrown to the ground. The unclosed gate was badly damaged. The gatekeeper was 71 years of age and on duty all hours. For the last four weeks he had been called at four o'clock in the morning and was on duty till 10.30 pm. CWN 08 07 17 p5

This year's Cottenham Flower show will long be remembered because of the terrible weather that blighted the efforts of the promoters. The constant downpour kept away visitors and turned the whole affair into a fiasco. The 'Cambridge Nibs', however, gave a comic entertainment in the luncheon marquee. CWN 08 07 17 p5

An old stile leading from Steeple Morden church had rotted away and been replaced by a different one, a court was told. William Wilson had cut through the upper rail, saying it was an obstruction to the footpath: it became slippery with mud, children who went to school spoiled their clothes getting through and women had to go round another way. Farmer Charles Frohock said he now had to move 20 valuable horses out of the meadow and claimed damages. But the magistrates dismissed the case. CWN 08 07 17 P7

Lt Abington rate assessment – 08 07 17

Robert Jugg, Orwell Pitts farm, Ely, died after being kicked by a horse which spooked by car driven by Littleport doctor – CWN 08 07 17 p3

1908 07 24
A certain married man, who was particularly fond of cycling and equally partial to a little clandestine love-making, left home one Thursday, ostensibly to meet a male friend. But his wife, who had been a cyclist in her pre-marriage days, hired a machine and followed him. When she saw him meet a young lady she rode up to them and invited her lord and master in a friendly way, to continue the journey. Not a word of discord passed between them but she now accompanies him on all his runs. CWN 08 07 24 p5

A great deal of excitement was caused by a fire at Christ's College. Bert Holder, a butcher, noticed smoke issuing from the scullery and engine room window in Christ's Lane where the ceiling, which is of matchboarding, was well alight. Pc Fred Savidge and the head porter, Mr Chapman, fitted the college fire appliance to a hydrant and commenced to play on the flames, which were soon extinguished owing to the prompt action of the fire brigade and police force. CWN 08 07 24

Coton Horticultural Show, held in the Rectory grounds, attracted a good deal of attention. Villagers exhibited quite a remarkable collection of vegetables and a succession of cricket matches were played including Girls versus Men and Coton boys v Dry Drayton boys. A string band from St Catharine's and the King's College quartette provided acceptable music and dancing concluded the evening programme. CWN 08 07 24

An inquest into the death of Stubbing Cornwell, beerhouse keeper of the Cuckoo, Lode Fen, heard he had hurt his ankle in trying to stop a cow from going out of the yard. He had been admitted to hospital and received attention but said he wanted to go home and died in bed. An inquest revealed the heart was practically worn out and he might have 'gone off' at any time. CWN 08 07 24 p3

1908 07 31
Addenbrooke's Hospital is now secure in the possession of half the estate of the deceased Polish Jew of Romsey Town, Harris Norman. The other portion has been left to the London Jewish Synagogue for the poor and needy Jews. A bachelor, he had amassed a fortune of £12,000 by the sale of cheap jewellery and by investments. At his death an envelope thought to contain the will was fetched from the safe but found to contain only a blank piece of paper. Subsequently the will was found in the lining of an old silk hat he had given away. 08 07 31

The Junior Bursar of Trinity College was driving a lady in a tricar towards Hemingford Abbotts when the brakes failed and he crashed into the back of a farm cart with considerable violence, the lady being hit on the chest. A passing motor cyclist raced off to St Ives for assistance and Dr Percy Rose arrived on the scene by motor cycle quickly followed by Inspector Gale and Pc Deighton in Mr Parker's motor car. 08 07 31

Cambridgeshire County Council have purchased a farm at Milton by auction and arranged to hire land at Guilden Morden and Isleham for use as smallholdings. They have also been offered 166 acres at Herod's Farm Foxton for £3,500. Petitions have been received from applicants urging the early acquisition of land in Over and Wicken. CWN 08 07 31

The Old Age Pensions Bill promises relief to many old people. But those who anticipate that old age pensions will mean a great saving to the poor rate are making a big mistake. It is more than ever necessary that every possible encouragement should be given to the teaching of thrift at school, it is quite as important as gardening, amateur carpentering and things of that kind. Friendly Societies should see there are qualified teachers. CWN 08 07 31

Buckmaster – MP's father – career 08 07 31

Ebenezer Bird Foster of Anstey Hall, Trumpington together with his late brother, George, were directors of the Capital and Counties Bank. Their personal estates were nearly equal to the whole of the deposits for which the bank was liable. It must be remembered that the capital of a partner in a private bank may be withdrawn in consequence of his death. Ebenezer left £50,000 to each of his nephews, £500 each to his butler Thomas Harrington, and gardener Charles Forbes, as well as annuities to his housekeeper, coachman and housemaid. CWN 08 07 31

Twenty-six licensed houses are to close, magistrates decided. They include the Robin Hood at Litlington, Chesterton Long Reach, Swaffham Prior's Uncle Tom's Cabin and the Three Jolly Watermen in Waterbeach Fen. But the Fox in the Wood at Soham and the Cock at Isleham were spared after Police Superintendent Winter failed to appear to give evidence. The licence of the Black Horse at Over was renewed after the Star Brewery appealed. also Barrington Boot & Shoe, Bassingbourn Yew Tree, Steeple Morden Lion, Swaffham Prior John Bull, Bottisham Rose & Crown, Cottenham Six Bells, Oakington Lion and Lamb, Stapleford Hammer & Anvil, Swavesey Chequers, Willingham Little Rose, Castle Camps George, Balsham Ram, Linton White Hart, Cambridge Yorkshire Grey, Old Red Lion, Nine Pines, Thatched House, Baker's Arms, Red Lion, Brewery Tap & Carpenters' Arms. CWN 08 07 31

Cottenham's new church clock has been placed in position on the tower about ten feet higher than the former one. The work of Messrs Smith and Sons of Derby, it has two dials and brass hands. The quarter chimes are sweet in tone. The previous clock was thought to be more than 200 years old and had long since failed as a time keeper. CWN 08 07 31

August 1908 CWN

1908 08 07

Cambridge Free Library never gave details of their expenditure and it was wrong that a large spending committee should keep its operations in the dark. Members of the committee supplied goods to the library, it might be lawful but it was not expedient, a councillor claimed. But Mr Bowes had been a benefactor to the library whose advice had been invaluable and supplied books on the same terms as to other people. CWN 08 08 07

Mammoth Show weather will soon be a synonym for a cloudless sky and a balmy atmosphere. There have been five of these huge exhibitions on successive August Bank Holidays attracting thousands of visitors to Midsummer Common and discouraging Cambridge residents from scampering off to other places. There were competitions for dogs, poultry, cage birds and fancy rats together with athletics and motor cycle races. CEN 08 08 07

Early on Saturday morning a motorist ran his car into a pillar-box in Jesus Lane, it then crossed the pavement damaging the wall around Jesus College grounds. The offside front wheel was knocked off and the front of the car badly damaged but the occupants escaped unhurt. The driver gave the curious explanation that he had been travelling all night and had 'dozed off' and thus lost control of the steering wheel. CWN 08 08 07 p3

A stableman lodging at the Bushel Inn, Newmarket, was accused of selling indecent postcards. Mrs Emily Marshall said he offered to sell her three picture postcards which he showed her and which he eventually sold to a man in the Duke of Cambridge pub. Defendant denied that the cards were indecent and said they were exhibited in a shop window at Newmarket. He was fined twelve-and-six. 08 08 07

Fire gutted Mr Huggins sweet and confectionary premises at 51 Castle Street, just beyond the County Shirehall, Cambridge. Neighbouring shopkeeper, Mr Clayden, broke down the door and tried to extinguish the flames with mats while others threw buckets of water on it before the fire brigade arrived. The shop stood in the midst of some old properties which were in great risk of being destroyed, but they escaped with scorched walls. 08 08 07

Earith headmaster, Mr Wilson, who is leaving, was astonished to find all the teachers and children assembled in the large room of the school. Miss Jackson, headmistress of the infants' department, presented him with an aneroid barometer while Miss Daisy Williams was given a silver serviette ring as a memento. When the school reopens in September Mr Thomas will take up the duties as headmaster. 08 08 07

Addenbrooke's Hospital financial situation – CWN 08 08 07p7

Bank holiday tragedy – drowning at Upware – CWN 08 08 07 p7

1908 08 14
Newmarket trainers discussed the dangers and annoyance caused by inconsiderate motorists. A 10 mph speed limit had been imposed in 1906 and since then 20 motorists had been summonsed. But it was not being observed and police were hampered by the action of the Automobile Association's motor scouts; they wore their badge with the white side shown if the road was clear but turned it to the red side if the police were on motor patrol duty. 08 08 14 p2

The speed of motor cars is of concern to everybody. Apart from the danger, walking and cycling are being made disagreeable by the stink and dust that motor cars driven at high speed produce. Crops on either side of the road are damaged and property deteriorated. Something must be done. Speeding and covering other road-users with dust should be an offence and motorists should be liable for all accidents in which they cannot prove the entire culpability of the injured party. CWN 08 08 14 p3

Charles Henry Driver was appointed custodian of the Town Bathing Place on Sheep's Green five years ago. Since then he has saved 31 lives, mainly residents but a few visitors. Small wonder that recognition should be shown of his promptitude in saving life as well as of his skill in restoring animation in half-drowned persons. He was presented with a substantial silver cigarette case and a handsome illuminated address. CWN 08 08 14 p5

John Deeks joined the Cambridge Police Force in 1887 when it had strength of 34 – half of what it is today. In those days policemen were paid two shillings and sixpence to attend fires so they were strongly represented at each outbreak, with officers attracted from their usual beats. Men were not often 'run in' because of drunkenness but now they are summonsed if they attempted to fight. He became a Police Court Missionary working with habitual drunks who often signed the pledge but broke it within an hour. CWN 08 08 14

Burwell mineral water manufacturer, Fred Lapia, was bottling at the premises known as Droford's when one of the bottles broke and a fragment of glass severed two of the arteries in his arm. Doctors Ennion and Lucas applied a tourniquet. On Sunday the band accompanying the Hospital Parade ceased playing while passing his house in consideration of the patient. CWN 08 08 14 p5

An inquiry into the death of William Ephraim Giddings, a Chittering farm labourer, heard that he had been going to catch a mare when it kicked out, knocking him down. He was unconscious about fifteen minutes and then said his stomach hurt. That night he was sick. The doctor was called at ten o'clock but did not come till next morning. Herbert Wyatt, farmer, said he had never known the horse kick anyone before. CWN 08 08 14 p8

Newmarket roads, speed of motors – CWN 08 08 14

Wireless telegraphy discovered in Cambridge – CWN 08 08 14

Oakington new church organ – CWN 08 08 14

Chittering labourer's death – Giddings – CWN 08 08 14

1908 08 21
The funeral of Mr Fordham, head porter of Queens' College was marked by many signs of the respect in which he was held. A Cambridge man, he had been connected with the college for 35 years, having also served as the master's butler. As a last compliment to a trusted and respected servant the first part of the funeral service was conducted in Queens' College chapel. There were a large number of beautiful floral tributes, including one from the President and Fellows. CWN 08 08 21 p2

An Isleham bird catcher caught 12 goldfinches which he kept in his kitchen. Most died but he sent three to the railway station in a box labelled 'Birds with care'. These were seized by an RSPCA inspector and released. Now he claimed damages for the loss of income. The judge said the goldfinches were like bees and belonged to their captor. He was awarded £1.10s. CWN 08 08 21 p3

Members of the Cambridge Women's Suffrage Association, including Mrs Rackham, Mrs Dutt and Mrs Ramsey, visited Whittlesford and Fulbourn canvassing women during the afternoon and arranging an open-air meeting on the green at which the wives bring their husbands. There had been a certain amount of difference of opinion but people have been most friendly and willing to listen. CWN 08 08 21 p3

The magnificent new schools at Milton Road, Chesterton have been equipped with every facility for instruction. Instead of sitting in cramped positions at unsuitable desks the tiny tots will be accommodated with seats to suit their various sizes and their lessons based on the Froebel principle, combining amusement with instruction. They mark a distinct advancement on elementary educational methods and the County Council is to be congratulated. CWN 08 08 21 p4

A wise woman living in a village near Newmarket does a good business in spells and charms, from wart curing to love philtres. She has cured thousands of warts by rubbing the root of a dandelion on the hard skin to the accompaniment of some incantation gibberish. On stormy nights she is still fondly believed by many people to go for midnight rides on a broomstick – or so claims a London paper hard up for copy during the silly season. CWN 08 08 21 p5

Witches stories – CWN 08 08 21 # c.39

Children's fishing match at Bottisham – photo – CWN 08 08 21

Presentation of the Driver testimonial – photo – CWN 08 08 21

The Ortona Motorbus Company, inaugurated a year ago, now possesses five double-deckers, a char-a-banc and a big 'bus'. They have two services from the railway station, one to De Freville and the other to Huntingdon Road. At the well-equipped garage on Hills Road there is always one car that can be despatched the instant a breakdown is reported and even replacing a broken axle can be carried out by their own mechanics. Now country people who used to disfavour these 'machinations of the evil one' patronise them with perfect confidence. CWN 08 08 21 p5

A bricklayer from Hobart Road, Cambridge, was charged with deserting his wife. There were 13 children of the marriage alive, seven being under 16. His home had been ruined by drink: he had to walk the streets to keep out of the way of his wife's tongue and her drunkenness. He asked for custody of the children: he was willing to support them but would rather go to gaol than allow his wife to handle the money he had to work hard for and spend it in drink. CWN 08 08 21 p5

1908 08 28

Old age pensions to start - CWN 08 08 28

Smallholdings scheme – CEN 08 08 28

Cambridge man in Japan – CWN 08 08 28

Great blocks of glittering, iridescent ice are manufactured on the site of the Falcon Inn, Petty Cury, every hot midsummer morning. Mr J.V. Pryor, the fish-monger has installed plant for this modern miracle and the shrill insistent note of the dynamo is joined by the plunk-plunk of the gas engine exhaust. Like the flying machine, the ice factory is at present only in its infancy and the plant is expensive but the method of manufacture is simplicity itself, taking 50 hours to produce slabs weighing two cwt apiece and makes more than Mr Pryor needs for his ordinary fish business. CEN 08 08 28 p3

An object of great curiosity has been returned to St Bene't's Church. The Black Letter Bible presented by Hobson the carrier has been missing for the last 30 years. It was discovered in the University Library where it had been sent for safe keeping when the church was restored. It has marginal notes in the writing of the donor and was at one time in a house in the parish when a charge of sixpence was made for its inspection. CWN 08 08 28 p5

George Hutt has been the respected headmaster of Trumpington National School for the last 44 years. It was not for want of energy that he is leaving but the wisdom of the Government in compelling him to give up his post at the age of 65. He would not advise teaching as a vocation for men but felt sure there was a future for women as educational instructors. CWN 08 08 28 p5

September 1908 CWN

1908 09 04
Arthur Deck was one of the best-known inhabitants of Cambridge. Hundreds annually gathered on King's Parade to witness his quaint tradition of firing rockets at midnight every New Year's Eve. As a young man he made balloon ascents including one from Fenner's when the balloon tore a slice off the pavilion roof. Even when a white-haired old man he could be seen on sunny mornings taking his dip upon Sheep's Green, distaining shallow water and swimming slowly between the ladders. CWN 08 09 04 p5

Sir – now the widening of Northampton Street is fast nearing completion the improvement of one of our many narrow and dangerous streets will be accomplished. But one effect will be that the traffic is greatly accelerated to the danger of those approaching the corner from other directions. The high wall around St Giles' church should be reduced: this would enable motorists to see more clearly, make the church more conspicuous and dry the road which in winter is often in a muddy condition, being hemmed in on both sides by high walls – Chestertonian. CWN 08 09 04 p7

See the children assemble in the great hall at the new Milton Road School. From the classrooms come files of boys and girls, not in perfect military style but in very fair order awaiting an instruction that playtime has arrived. The word given, the boys swing out of one door, the girls out at another and the paved playgrounds, separated by an iron partition, resound with merriment. Boys learn woodwork under Mr Holt and the girls commence cookery instruction under Mrs Walker of Cheveley. CWN 08 09 04 p5

During the past few days several well-known people have passed away at Soham. Ebenezer Taylor, cab proprietor, died at the advanced age of 78. He was in business for over 40 years & before the opening of the Ely and Newmarket railway line, 28 years ago, the supply of vehicles and horses was much more important than at the present time. Fyson Johnson, blacksmith, was in his 67th year, Martin Bradshaw, bricklayer was 73, and both were trustees of the Wesleyan Chapel. This succession of deaths has cast quite a gloom over the town. CWN 08 09 04 p8

Robert Sams, (94), tenant farmer at Castle Hedingham, is the most remarkable old man in Essex. His farm is not a large one – the entire estate, including his vine-covered cottage home, does not exceed an acre, but out of it, by the sweat of his brow, the old man gets his daily bread. He sows, he reaps, he threshes, he goes to market, and he defies Time the Reaper. He was a farm labourer for one master for 50 years and on an income of seven shillings a week brought up a family of seven children. CWN 08 09 04 p7

1908 09 11

In Cambridge the University vacations continually throw many boys and men out of work and create a class of idle and useless men who live on their wives' earnings when they can, and at other times are destitute. Many women work as bedmakers but others can neither cook nor keep their houses tidy. Improvident early marriages between young men and women who have no savings to furnish a house, no experience to teach them economy and no solid mutual affection to help them bear hardship are the source of great and prolonged misery. CWN 08 09 11 p2

Petty Cury has been closed to vehicular traffic during the operation of replacing the Val de Travers cement that was removed to admit the underground telephone wires. This work by Italian workmen has been watched with much interest. The material in the form of steaming hot powder is placed on its concrete bed and rammed and levelled with hot irons. The rapidity with which the stuff hardens and becomes fit for use is quite remarkable. CWN 08 09 11 p5

During the harvest considerable depredations have been made in Cherry Hinton fields by parties of boys and girls who, under the guise of 'gleaners', have stolen a large quantity of beans. People should not buy beans from them. Gleaning was confined to the villagers who were allowed into the fields after a certain time but the children of Cambridge had no such rights; 22 were known to have been involved in the thefts. CWN 08 09 11 p3

Thriplow inquest Rev Sandberg – 08 09 11 p7

Stonea station railway accident – 08 09 11 p8

1908 09 18
Last year Cambridge magistrates granted eleven occasional licences for the period of Stourbridge Fair. But this year they have been reduced to just six, three for the horse fair and three for the pleasure fair. They are to the landlords of the Dog and Pheasant, Birdbolt and Burleigh Arms on Newmarket Road, The Ship in Princess Street, Empress on Thoday Street and City Arms, Sturton Street. CWN 08 09 18 p3

The antics of 'The Castle End Musicians', a band of boys and girls, have caused endless entertainments to the inhabitants of that part of Cambridge. A lad who has had some experienced of the Boy's Brigade is the commander of the band, who form up in martial order, large and small, girl and boy, and parade up and down the streets with colours flying, playing the most extraordinary collection of musical instruments ever seen including toy drums and mouth organs. Now a local photographer has elevated them to picture postcard celebrities. CWN 08 09 18 p5

A miniature rifle range and air rifle club has been formed in connection with the Church of England Young Men's Society at their large room in St Edward's Passage. The two targets can be placed in two positions – for shooting standing up or lying down – and two good air rifles have been provided. Englishmen should learn to shoot in order to defend their own hearths and homes and the Corporation should establish a range open almost all hours of the day. CWN 08 09 11 p8

Butchers had no means of knowing whether meat was from an animal infected with tuberculosis. Now they would insist on a warranty from the farmer who is in a queer fix. If farmers who sell in Cambridge market refuse to give the warranty then local butchers will buy London-killed meat. If they give a warranty they risk having to pay compensation for any meat found to be tuberculous. CWN 08 09 18

There will be considerable reorganisation at Cambridge station following the agreement between the London and North Western and the Midland Railways. There will now be a combined staff for goods, cartage and passenger traffic and one town office will do the business of the two. But passengers taking ordinary tickets to London by the Great Eastern Railway still have the privilege of returning by the Great Northern, or vice versa. CWN 08 09 18

One of the Cambridge Street Tramways Company's horses was injured in an accident. Walter Morley was driving towards the station when his horse fell down and swerved across the road. At the same time Robert Surtees was approaching in his motor car (no.Y826). He was unable to pull his car up successfully and inflicted a cut on the near side eye of the animal. CWN 08 09 18

The Cambridge Church of England Mission to the Deaf and Dumb was started two years ago to meet their spiritual needs. It meets at St Philip's church and attracts people from Swaffham Bulbeck, Milton and Trumpington. Several special services of Holy Communion have been held with Mr G.A. Mackenzie interpreting in the sign language. CWN 08 09 18 p5

Three financial failures connected with agriculture came before Cambridge bankruptcy court. A Swaffham Prior farmer had borrowed from moneylenders who he hoped to pay off with a good harvest. But even after the best harvest for years he was still in debt. He lived in a large house so his wife had to have a maid because she could not do all the work herself. He'd also spent a great deal on whisky and a fur collar for his wife. CWN 08 09 18 p7

1908 09 25
Cambridge Street Tramways' income from fares was down because of the competition from motor buses. If they had more passing places they could increase the number of trams. But the Corporation refused on the ground of excessive traffic and then granted four more licences to run great, unwieldy motor buses up and down the streets. But unlike their competitors the trams had to pay £325 a year towards the upkeep of the roads. CWN 08 09 25 p3

If the safety of England can be gauged by her miniature rifle clubs, then England must be safe indeed. Everywhere these little societies of keen shots have been springing up like mushrooms and nowhere has been more prolific than Cambridge. The latest club meets at the Bell Inn, Newmarket Road and already has a membership of 50. They would learn not only to hit the bull's eye at practice, but in times of dire necessity to shoot straight at other targets and so keep their land intact in case of invasion. CWN 09 09 25 p3

A new economic era in the life of England has begun with the introduction of old age pensions. Every man or woman of 70 who has less than twelve shillings a week is entitled to walk into a Post Office and fill up a form to claim a supplementary income from public funds. In Cambridgeshire there are about 1,500 who are eligible and in Cambridge about 1,300. There are those who forecast an age of thriftlessness, improvidence and national bankruptcy. But we do not think there is any need to be alarmed. CWN 08 09 25 p5

Newmarket widow's plea re pensions – 08 09 25 02

Hobson's stream footpath sought – 08 09 25 p6

Tenancy of Nag's Head – to close, Albion Row houses – 08 09 25 p6

Isleham theft, Cock Inn, Isleham Bank – 08 09 25 p6

Old age pensions – committee constituted – 08 09 25 p8

Newmarket councillors discussed problems over servants. One reported that his daughter, who kept a registry office, could get situations for 50 girls but could find none to fill the places. However another said his wife had six girls in her Sunday school class who were anxious to get into service. Many girls who are willing to enter domestic service are totally unfitted for the work whilst the more capable ones are now being educated and seeking other employment. CWN 08 09 25 p5

New regulations will make it easier for the police to convict the road hog who drives pell mell through villagers. Action should be taken to diminish the risks of accidents due to sharp corners, narrow lanes and high hedges. Hollow country lanes should be widened and the question of dust clouds from the mud roads addressed. But where is the money coming from? CWN 08 09 25 p6

October 1908 CWN

1908 10 02
A nurse at Fulbourn Asylum had died from typhoid fever: she was in the habit of drinking the water unboiled and a specimen had been sent to be bacteriologically examined. A scheme for the improvement of the disposal of sewage had been suggested but not yet carried out. The nurses were lunacy trained and not competent to nurse a case of enteric fever. Patients were treated in the Asylum infirmary but the attendants were moved as early as possible to Addenbrooke's Hospital. CWN 08 10 02 & 08 10 02 p5

Although we are far removed from the din of industrial strife, the wave of depression that is sweeping over the trade of the country is making itself felt even in Cambridgeshire. What local industries we possess appear to be flourishing, labour on the land is fairly constant and the labour required by the colleges varies but little. But the number of people making use of the casual ward of Cambridge workhouses has been increasing with 818 vagrants during the previous fortnight as compared to 184 last year. CEN 08 10 02 p5

Oakington Rovers Football Club has had a very hard struggle to exist as players could seldom get off work on Saturday afternoons when a match was arranged. It will be discontinued, the goal posts sold and any money given to Addenbrooke's Hospital. The chairman, Mr H. Orman had been involved in the club from its birth and was sorry to see it come to such an untimely end but there was no other way out of the difficulties they were in. A supper and smoking concert would be held to mark the death of a promising football club. CWN 08 10 02 p8

Following a coroner's inquest two hundred residents of the Waterbeach signed a petition claiming their doctor was not a fit and proper person to be the Medical Officer for the Relief District. At least 20 are paying for medical attendance into another local practitioner's club rather than avail themselves of his advice. CWN 08 10 02

Three hundred Cambridge men journeyed to London to protest against the Government's Licensing Bill. They joined a procession of 2,000 men from King's Cross station in front of a band from Hull which did much to enliven the long and tedious walk. But the main London arteries were so choked with traffic that they were late in arriving at Hyde Park. It was a sober and serious protest with not one drunken man in sight. CWN 08 10 02

As soon as dusk fell, the heavy gates of the Cambridge Workhouse opened upon the first of a tattered regiment of out-of-works, willing-to-works and never-will-works who demanded hospitality. Reports from all local unions show an abnormal leap in the number of vagrants who are seeking the shelter of the casual wards due to unemployment consequent on trade depression. The first were a pair of women, one pale and gaunt, one rotund and healthful. They are a washerwoman and a charwoman from Lancashire; neither has yet found work and they are returning to the North. CWN 08 10 09 p2

Holy Sepulchre roof restored – CWN 08 10 02

1908 10 09 CWN

The police and the Cambridge corps of the Salvation Army came into conflict on Sunday evening. With full band, officers and followers, the customary demonstration commenced at the top of Kingston Street, a pitch which the Salvationists have occupied without interruption for twenty years. A song, followed by a prayer opened the service before a police officer asked them to 'move on'. The S.A. Officer refused but did say that when a sick person complains of the band it is silenced at once. CWN 08 10 09 p2

After many years of waiting, Thaxted is at last assured of its railway. The history of the Elsenham, Thaxted and Bardfield light railway scheme is a very long one but in 1907 an Act of Parliament was obtained and now the Great Eastern Railway has agreed to construct the line. A platform will probably be erected at Henham and a siding for goods at Sibley. Thaxted is a delightfully sleepy old English town; many of its inhabitants are said to have never seen a train and some disbelieve in the existence of such means of locomotion. But soon this peaceful spot will receive the rough jolt of advancing commercialisation. CWN 08 10 09 p3

Cambridge Prison is satisfactory and discipline well-maintained. The number of male prisoners last year was 818 and their conduct generally good. They are employed at oakum picking, sawing, chopping and bundling wood, gardening and building work while the female prisoners do needlework, knitting, laundry work and cleaning. One female prisoner, aged 66, was baptised at her own request. The schoolmaster has carried out his duties with zeal in his new schoolroom where 45 prisoners have been under instruction. There has been no escape, no attempt at escape and no case for corporal punishment. CWN 08 10 09 p3

Poole's Myriorama is a unique entertainment comprising views of the lands beyond the seas. A special feature is 'A contest in the clouds' in which the aerial warfare of the future is strikingly forecasted by a remarkably clever series of pictures and effects and some splendid pictures were shown on the Bioscope. A capable company of entertainers include a troupe of Japanese performers whose feat of walking a rope from one end of Cambridge Guildhall almost to the ceiling is really marvellous. CWN 08 10 09 p6

Smart taxi-cabs will soon be plying for hire in the streets of Cambridge. The Watch Committee have decided to licence ten vehicles of the Provincial Motor Cab Company and as soon as staff, garage and other matters have been arranged the local cabmen will have to face this formidable form of competition, although ten taxies cannot monopolise all the trade. CWN 08 10 09

The court heard that under his will dated 1870 Richard Lenton had left his windmill at Littleport to his wife and daughters. In 1891 it had been let to Henry Canham who paid the rent until 1898 but as he was in very poor circumstances the executor had not pressed him for it until 1906 when he went to Littleport and found that Canham was dead. William Walker had possession of the mill but refused to return the keys until he'd been repaid for the rates and taxes he'd spent on it. CWN 08 10 03 p7

A sensation was created at Sutton by the descent of a monster balloon near the Chain Causeway. It was the renowned 'Valkyrie' carrying the champion lady balloonist, the Hon Mrs Assheton Harbord which had been inflated at Battersea Park Gas Work hoping to sail as far as Peterborough. It landed without the slightest difficulty and was packed in a cart for conveyance to Sutton station. Mrs Harbord's motor car had followed the balloon for some distance but the chauffeur had lost sight of it so, after being entertained by Walter Haddock of the Brooklands, she took the train from Ely. CWN 08 10 09 p8

Provision of smallholdings Hauxton, Cottenham, Steeple Morden & Haslingfield – CWN 08 10 09

Arbury Road houses proposed – CWN 08 10 09

1908 10 16 CWN
A serious collision occurred at St Ives. Mr F. Clarke, furniture dealer, was driving his horse in a trap when it became unmanageable and bolted. In taking the Olive Road corner the runaway collided with Mr Denton's trap of which the shaft was broken off. It then turned completely over and Mr Clarke was thrown through the window of the White Lion Hotel. He was badly cut but no bones were broken and he was removed to his residence. CWN 08 10 16

Cambridge cabmen protested against the decision to licence ten motor taxi-cabs. Ellis Merry said that for weeks the cabmen had not averaged two fares a day and many were on duty 18 hours a day to get a living. If they ousted the hansoms from the streets what would they do during the busy times: when the undergraduates came up it took at least 100 men and cabs to accommodate the railway company but at ordinary times six taxi-cabs could do the work required. CWN 08 10 16 p3

Ely cathedral's new organ incorporates the best part of the old. The electricity for the mechanism is generated by a small dynamo driven by a gas engine. The congregation filled every available space from the chancel gates to the great west doors. Octagon, transepts, nave and treforium were full of people enjoying the great occasion to the full. After the service Sit Walter Parratt held the great assembly enthralled by his wonderful playing. CWN 08 10 16 p7

Lt Gransden publican at Chequers fined – CWN 08 10 16

Stretham harvest horkey – CWN 08 10 16

1908 10 23 CWN

Thomas Askham, manager of the Hippodrome, Auckland Road, was convicted of staging a play, 'Sally in Our Alley' which had not been approved by the Lord Chamberlain in a building which had three times been refused a licence. Afterwards he announced that it would be turned into a picture palace and a first-class, up-to-date set of animated pictures would be presented. The old artistes would not get the sack but would sing to them every night and have their 'funniosities' all the same. He would also apply for a dramatic licence. The Hippodrome was required in Cambridge by the working classes – as a working-class theatre. CWN 08 10 23 p3, CWN 08 10 30 p3

Councillors were told that they had no power to prevent anyone coming to Cambridge and running motor taxi-cabs, though they could refuse to licence them plying for hire or using the cab ranks. They could have a garage, be on the telephone and receive orders to drive people in their taxis, just as the hansom cab proprietors did. If they were to come it was better that they be licensed. They would create a new, long-distance trade as ordinary street traffic would not pay them. CWN 08 10 23

It would be wrong to license motor taxis in Cambridge, councillor Wootten said. There were 120 hansom cabmen, probably married and with families who owned the cabs they drove and had spent money on renovating them. There were 500 people who were getting a livelihood out of the cabs including those supplying harness and fodder for the horses. It is just like other things in England, inviting foreigners to come in and make as much unemployment as they can. CWN 08 10 23

Fenstanton anti-speed crusade – CWN 08 10 23

Ranjitsinhji, now Jam of Nawanagar honoured – CWN 08 10 23

Trumpington village hall opened – CWN 08 10 23

1908 10 30 CWN

Newmarket's new railway station is the smartest and most up-to-date in the kingdom, the pride of the inhabitants and the envy of all visitors. It was opened in 1902 replete with every convenience, electric light and commodious refreshment rooms. On Cesarewitch day 1,032 first and 1,656 third-class passengers left by the return specials alone. In striking contrast Cambridge station is dismal and dirty. CWN 08 10 30 p5

Women on town councils discussion – CWN 08 10 30 # WOMEN

The very first girl student to attend University lectures in Cambridge, Miss Dove, is going to be the first lady mayor in English history. She must not be confused with the common or garden suffragette. All her life she has been something of a pioneer. She was one of the little group of twelve ladies who enrolled at Miss Emily Davies' college, then carried on at Hitchin, and the very first to enter the new building at Girton where the students re-assembled in October 1873. CWN 08 10 30 p5

Newmarket RDC considered the question of repairs to Landwade bridge. It might not be their responsibility: the overseers had never repaired it, the county was not responsible, the highway surveyors of Fordham and Landwade had never spent money on it, though the Exning surveyors had. It was only a matter of 24 shillings now but might leave them open for more expense in the future. CWN 08 10 30

November 1908 CWN

1908 11 06
The women candidates for Cambridge borough councillors have quickened interest in the recent elections. All though the day rumours of the arrival of the Pankhurst brigade were flying about with speculation that 50 militant females had arrived from London, but nobody saw any suffragettes. The crowd expressed their pleasure in cheers when it was announced that both the lady candidates, Miss Kennedy who stood in New Town and Miss Philpott who stood in Petersfield, had been defeated. CWN08 11 06 p3

Many pathetic incidents have surrounded the applications for old age pensions; one bedridden old Cambridge lady of 84 was asked how she was going to prove her age. She said she didn't know, as both her mother and father were dead. She was an orphan, she tearfully explained. CWN 08 11 06 p5

The council had been trying for some years to bring about the widening of Carlyle Road and have now been able to make arrangements with Miss Bell, Miss Pye and Mr Darwin who all owned land adjoining. The price agreed was a fair one and Mr Darwin had given his portion to the council. It was one of the greatest improvements in Chesterton for a very great time. Now tenders would be sought to construct a new wall using local labour. CWN 08 11 06 p5

The Cambridge District Nurses moved into their new home standing in its own grounds on Newmarket Road. Designed by W.M. Fawcett and built by Coulson and Lofts, it has a smart exterior appearance. Facing the road is the entrance to the surgery with the dining room, and kitchen with sitting rooms for the Superintendent and nurses on the first floor together with four bedrooms and another three on the second floor. The building is lighted by incandescent gas and fitted with electric bells. CWN 08 11 06 p5

The Hippodrome, Auckland Road, applied for a full dramatic licence. It had formerly been conducted as a circus but since Easter had been to Mr Leslie who had been giving variety sketches. It had 2,080 seats priced from one penny to fourpence and was not competing with the New Theatre, where the lowest charge was sixpence. It was already licenced for music and dancing. Some councillors felt the building was quite unfit and feared the consequence of a fire; it would have a bad influence on the neighbourhood. But a theatre was a much better institution than a music hall and the application was approved. 08 11 06 p8

1908 11 13

Perhaps it will be some comfort to the party of revellers near Selwyn College the other night to know that the balloon they saw was a real one and the occupants living men and not huge white rats. It was the 'Daily Graphic' balloon on its unsuccessful attempt to reach Siberia and contained an old Trinity man, Capt E.M. Maitland. He says he distinctly recognised the Roman Catholic Church and burnt some red flares as they passed over the town. CWN 08 11 13 p5

A band of militant ladies disrupted a meeting attended by a Cabinet Minister in Cambridge Guildhall when they informed him and an unsympathetic audience that they wanted votes. It was known that members of the warlike organisation of women had arrived, but which of the many well-dressed women present were they? It soon became clear when a slight form crowned by a 'Merry Widow' hat rose from her seat and vomited words like a Gatling gun. They caused a disturbance and a few had the pleasure of being ejected with more or less violence. CWN 08 11 13

Caxton Guardians were told of a case of diphtheria in a cottage at Orwell. They heard that the cost of purifying Hardwick water would be £40: it was worse than before, and something must be done. There had also been another burglary at the Isolation Hospital. The knives had been taken away and the intruder had slept in the nurses' bed. (Laughter). CWN 08 11 13 p3

A singular accident in which a taximeter cab played a singular part occurred in Peas Hill. The lamp of taxi cab number 214, driven by a man named Darby, caught the awning connecting a couple of stalls and there was a general upset. The stall of Mr Reynolds was practically demolished and the sweets strewn about with the result that a number of boys had a scramble and pocketed as much as they could. The adjoining drapery stall of Mr Nicholls fared better. The affair caused a great deal of commotion. 08 11 13

William Cooking, Manager of the Taxi-meter Cab Company of Cambridge was summonsed for driving a taxi-cab at the dangerous speed of 23 miles an hour in Trumpington. He was liable to a penalty of £20 and to have his licence suspended but magistrates only fined him £3. They were determined to put down fast driving through the villages. CWN 08 11 13 p3

For several hours the district between Lord's Bridge and Haslingfield was the scene of warfare which, had it been real, would have strewn the countryside with dead and dying. The C.U. Officers' Training Corps was joined by the Leys, Perse, Cambridge County and other schools as several hundreds of troops, cavalry, infantry and engineers were engaged. The idea was that a hostile army was retiring towards Royston and being harried by the home army. Their retreat was attended with difficulty since all the bridges over the Cam were destroyed and fords existed for mounted troops only. CWN 08 11 13 p5

Mr & Mrs John Barnard of Green Farm, Haslingfield, celebrated their 'diamond wedding'. Such an occurrence has been known in the village within living memory. Time has dealt kindly with each: he has attained the ripe old age of 84 whilst his wife is 82. Both were born in the village and married in the church in 1848. He rises about 4.30 to attend to the farm and retires about eight at night. He has never smoked and maintains that tobacco shortens one's days. On only one occasion have they travelled any distance when they journeyed by rail to Kent. Neither has ever seen the sea. 08 11 13

Serious gunpowder accident, bonfire night at Quy – 08 11 13

Bonfire night begging – 08 11 13

1908 11 20
The Ousden District Nurses Fund has a fully qualified nurse who is also a midwife working in the parishes of Denham, Ousden and Lidgate. Under the Midwives Act from 1910 a certified midwife will be an absolute necessity in country parishes as what are known as 'Mother Gamps' will be prohibited from practicing their calling. The nurse's fee for maternity cases is five shillings for subscribers, as compared with the doctor's fees of one guinea. 08 11 20

Following a complaint that water could not be got from the pump between the Red Lion and the allotments at Cheveley, Mr Graystone went to investigate. The source of supply was a field fifty yards away where he found an offensive-looking pond. The water was an inky colour and covered with green duckweed. It looked altogether horrible. There were lots of rats living in the pond. But the water was not meant for drinking; it was just for slopping purposes and there should be a notice to that effect. There had never been a case of typhoid arising from it. CWN 08 11 20

An inquest heard that the landlord of the Chequers, Wilburton, had served in the army and retired with the rank of Quarter-Master Sergeant. He had a substantial pension but had worried about his brewer's bill for £27 which seemed to pray on his mind. He kept taking it from his pocket and reading it over and over again. David Wadlow, labourer, said he had opened the yard gates so the publican could enter with his horse and cart. He did not say the man was sober. William Haylock later found him lying in the yard and sent for Dr Howe. 08 11 20 p2

A young married woman lies in Cambridge gaol accused of wilful murder. In the tiny parlour of a typical country cottage is the dead body of her year-and-four-month old baby, a bonny dark-eyed plumped-cheek babe, drowned in the filth of a cesspool. Upon a little bed in another room lies another little girl slowly recovering from the effects of immersion in the same cesspool. Too young to realise the terrible experience she has been through she murmurs "Mummy did it; she said it was best". CWN 08 11 20 p8

During their residence at Brandon Park Mr & Mrs Almeric Paget have supported many philanthropic movements, including the installation of an acetylene gas system in the parish church. For years there has been an old concert hall, not a thing of beauty and falling into decay. Now Mr Paget has replaced it with a magnificent public hall for the social life of Brandon and a home for the local Conservative Association. CWN 08 11 20

Frederick Myers was well known in Cambridge during his lifetime and, being interested in spiritualism, promised that if communication between the dead and the mind of the earthly were at all possible he would get in touch with his friends on earth. Now Mrs Henry Sidgwick, president of the Psychical Research Society, claims to have established communication through a system of automatic cross-correspondence. CWN 08 11 20

December 1908 CWN

1908 12 04 CWN
Cambridge is not too well supplied with private nursing homes for the treatment of medical and surgical cases so the Priory Nursing Home almost opposite Christ Church, Newmarket Road, is welcome. It stands in grounds of nearly an acre with a garden sloping down to the river, isolated from the throb and vibration of traffic in one of the healthiest spots in Cambridge. A sense of comfort pervades the rooms and lurks in the corners and it seems hard to realise one is in a place associated with sickness and physical discomfort. 08 12 04

There is a rule at the New Theatre which degrees that undergraduates may not charter a box unless they are accompanied by a lady. So four fertile brains sought to overcome it. No relative of the softer sex being available it was determined that one of the four should undergo sufficient outward transformation to satisfy the authorities. The charming gown was of white satin bespangled with sequins designed by Kate Reilly of Dover Street, the beautiful head of hair was done by Clarkson who came down himself to direct the final 'touching up'. The group dined at Buol's and taxied to the theatre. But what happened afterwards and how the 'lady' was smuggled into college we are not at liberty to divulge. CDN 08 12 04

Newmarket allotments meeting – 08 12 03

Cambridge railway station article from Railway Magazine – 08 12 03 # c.26.2

1908 12 11 CWN
It is many decades since the south face of the church clock at Histon was painted or even washed. Some say the dial has not been washed since the flood of 1879 but others think it has been gilded more recently. But at present the figures are practically erased whereas they used to be discernible from Park Lane. Some face paints easily wash off but hopefully the next renovator will use a better paint and gilt. CWN 08 12 11

Government Inspectors say a large source of Cambridge water should be abandoned as it is dangerous to the lives and health of the inhabitants. It had been suggested that contamination came from Fulbourn Asylum sewage but the experts say the danger comes from the villages of Cherry Hinton and Fulbourn where the method of sewage disposal are at the very least primitive. Even if sewage was excluded from the present leaky sewers it would still be disposed of in cesspools and there is no certainty that these would not leak. CWN 08 12 11

Chesterton Guardians - Waterbeach district medical officer resigns following complaints – 08 12 11

Royston drapers, Whitaker, failure – 08 12 11

1908 12 18 CWN

At this period of the winter Cambridge generally experiences a slump in the building trade but there is one extensive building in progress, the extension of Magdalene College on the river side of the main block. Owing to the endowment of Mr Mynors Bright twelve new sets of rooms and a large lecture theatre will be added. The architects have been careful to keep the style of the new buildings in conformity with the old with a large bay window running from the ground to the roof. Undergraduates who keep there will have a pleasant outlook as their sitting rooms overlook the river. CWN 08 12 18

Last week two persons were summoned for riding cycles on the footpaths in Brooklands Avenue, one being discharged and the other fined half-a-crown. It is contended by some that the Avenue is a private road, as evidence of which they point to the gate which stands at one end. If it is so what powers have the magistrates to convict? One explanation is that the footpath on the north side of the Avenue is a public footpath and it was on this that the defendants were riding. If so why does the path remain a perfect quagmire throughout the winter? CWN 08 12 18

Fire broke out in Madame Holt's milliners shop in Mill Road. A large number of hats, bonnets ribbons and ladies underwear in the window were smouldering but police extinguished them with pails of water. It is thought a defective incandescent mantle flamed up and caught some ribbons surrounding the gas pip. But Miss Holt's assistant, Miss Key, who was in charge of the business is emphatic that she'd turned the gas off. CWN 08 12 18

Westrope's Year Book contains a host of useful information concerning the villages around Cottenham. It teems with every possible kind of useful hint with regard to health, wealth and happiness. There are photographs of local interest, notes housekeeping and a large number of anecdotes as well as plenty of space to keep a diary and a £200 free insurance coupon. All this for twopence. CWN 08 12 18

Willingham grocer's failure – Frederick Watson – 08 12 18

1908 12 25 CWN

There were stirring times in the neighbourhood of Honey Hill with police whistles blowing and gentlemen in blue uniforms running down alleys in hot pursuit while crowds looked on. The lynx-eyed PC Evans saw two men carrying something suspicious who ran off when challenged. A vigorous chase ensued before they got away, but they flung their booty over a wall. Four dead turkeys have been recovered. CWN 08 12 25

Allegations that a feud exists between the boys attending Milton Road and St Luke's schools is not entirely borne out by investigation. When the Milton Road School was opened a number of boys attending St Luke's migrated. Installed in the new school they 'put on side' which was too much for their late friends and some small battles ensued. This reached the ears of the authorities and they were punished. Since then rival feelings exist only in the breasts of two or three lads and possibly a snow storm will enable both sides to wipe out all accounts. CWN 08 12 25

A change of moon has brought a change of weather, a welcome variation from the mud, mist and moist atmosphere of the last week or two. But weather prophets cannot promise us a typical old-fashioned Christmas with frost or snow, and for that the poorer-folk will be grateful. However it is a poor heart that will allow the old time spirit of jollity and goodwill to be suffocated by mist or washed-out by rain. CWN 08 12 25

By this time the greater part of the Christmas shopping has been carried through. Shops have a blasé appearance but hundreds of households are the better stocked because of the depletion of the trading establishments. The holly and the ivy are over the pictures, the mistletoe is in ambush, Santa Claus is upon his philanthropic mission and all is in readiness for the celebration of 'The First Nowell" for those happy family reunions which Christmas brings in its train. CWN 08 12 25

The Boxing Day Costermonger's Marathon Race started from Abbey Street with each competitor pushing a barrow to the Bottisham Swan (a distance of six miles) and back. Performances of the romantic drama ‘From Shop Girl to Duchess’ at the New Theatre appealed to many, while there were cinematograph exhibitions at the Guildhall and at Sturton Town Hall. CWN 08 12 25

A curious situation developed after the chaplain of Caxton workhouse resigned and the Guardians decided to ask the vicar and the Baptist minister of Caxton to share the duties and divide the salary. There were Nonconformists in every district and it was only fair they should receive equal rights. They got a large number of inmates from Gamlingay where there were two Nonconformists to every Church of England person. CWN 08 12 25

Chesterton school feud – Milton Road v St Luke’s – case 08 12 25

1909 Cambridge Weekly News

There are scans of these articles [but where are they]

January 1909 CWN

1909 01 01
The Christmas holidays passed off very quietly in Gamlingay and there were but few attractions to entertain the visitors to the village, who were not so numerous as in former years. With the exception of the gaily-dressed shop windows there was little to show that the festive season was near and tradesmen generally were complaining about the slackness of the trade. The only outdoor attractions were two football matches at which there were large crowds and the Christmas of 1908 may be termed an indoor one. CWN 09 01 01

The Old Age Pensions Act comes into force and the post office is busy making the first payments to some half-million old people. In this part of the country many old folk are incredulous about the act, which they believe is too good to be true. But some pensioners in the East End of London have been borrowing money against their pension order. But if a moneylender has taken a pensioner's book as a security for debt, the book can be recovered. CWN 09 01 01

Our readers may have been alarmed by reports in the London press that the price of coal is being raised, but this does not apply to Cambridge. The extra coat of carting coal entailed by the severe fall of snow and consequent state of the road justifies a small rise but so far merchants who deal in small quantities sold from carts in bags have not increased their prices at all. CWN 09 01 01

A slight outbreak of fire occurred at 17 Market Hill, Cambridge, the ground floor of which is used as a shop by Messrs Bacon Bros tobacconist and the upper part by Mr Mason as a lodging house. Smoke was issuing from the floor of an upstairs sitting room. The flooring was pulled up and near the fireplace an old beam was found to be smouldering. Fireman Parsley, with the aid of a hand-pump, disposed of all danger. CWN 09 01 01

F.W. Fawcett was the architect of many Cambridge buildings including the Cavendish Laboratory & various departments in the New Museums site. He undertook the restoration of a large part of Queens' College, designed additions to Addenbrooke's Hospital, remodelled the County Gaol & built the Training College for Women, the County Police Station, several college boathouses and cricket pavilions as well as several large mansions including Longstowe and Six Mile Bottom. CWN 09 01 01

"Where is the snow plough" was the question asked by several people in Histon when about half-a-foot of snow was allowed to lie in the main streets, greatly to the discomfort of pedestrian and vehicular traffic. Some say that the snow plough has not yet returned from its Christmas holidays, others say that it still lies where it was left on Eastern Monday, when it was last used. CWN 09 01 01

Now the Old Age Pensions Act has come into force the post office is busy making the first payments to some half-million old people. In this part of the country many old folk are incredulous about the act, which they believe is too good to be true. But some pensioners in the East End of London have been borrowing money against their pension order. But if a moneylender has taken a pensioner's book as a security for debt, the book can be recovered. CWN 09 01 01

1901 01 08 CWN
Cambridgeshire took the advent of Old Age Pensions with very little fuss. For the first time in history veterans of toil claimed from the country the wherewithal to end their days in comparative comfort, free form the haunting dread of having to enter the 'House'. The pension varies from one to five shillings a week through the issue of what is known as the poor man's cheque book which is presented at the post office. 09 01 08

The annual staff dinner of the Saxon and Norman Portland Cement Companies and the Atlas Stone Company was held at the Lion Hotel, Petty Cury. The results of the past years trading had been exceptional, a message that would be conveyed to colleagues who were at that moment striving hard at the factories. Wailing Jeremiahs thought it fashionable to complain of trade depression but they could point to increasing trade and increased profits. CWN 09 01 08

Cambridge Free Library is to introduce a system of 'card charging' in place of the present system of 'ledger charging' for the issue of books. This is the most up-to-date and efficient method of issue known and will be a boon to borrowers and staff alike. In another reform that will meet with general approval any burgess may now borrow on signing a "burgess's voucher" rather than get the signature of a guarantor for the safe return of the books. CWN 09 01 08

Fire broke out at Mr Ward's grocer's shop in Leader's Row, Staffordshire Street. The back room contained a copper where bacon was being boiled when a red-hot cinder dropped and set fire to a piece of paper. A short distance away was a paraffin tank which was in leaky condition and had saturated the floor with paraffin. This ignited causing an alarming blaze which was extinguished by smothering the flames with sacks and rugs. CWN 09 01 08

A remarkable accident occurred at Ely station when the tar in the tender of a liquid fuel engine exploded with disastrous results. The top of the tender was blown clean over the locomotive and fell ten yards away. The driver was thrown off the engine but escaped with a few bruises but the fireman was seriously injured: he was hurled on to the roof of Coote and Warren's coal building, then rolled on to a truck of coal and was found some time later unconscious. CWN 09 01 08

Pension day in villages – Cottenham, Swaffham Bulbeck, Histon, Over, Stretham, Isleham, Haddenham, Longstanton – 09 01 08

1909 01 15 CWN
On Friday night a man died in an East Road Lodging House and the landlady was naturally anxious to relieve her house of the body at the earliest moment. She had no knowledge of the man's relatives and a 'parish burial' was ordered. The undertaker said she had wanted to put the body in the yard covered up with clothes but he had removed it at his own expense. But relatives complained that the coffin was too small and the body laid on bare wood with the feet sticking to the pitch. All there was to cover him was a piece of thin stuff which did not meet in the middle. CWN 09 01 15

Newmarket licensees were warned that under the new Children Act no children were permitted in any place were drink was paid for and consumed. But the regulations affected only the working classes and did not apply to a man who could afford to go into a hotel or to railway refreshment rooms. It was ridiculous that people on holiday who went into a public house for refreshment must leave their children outside. Children would hear no worse language inside than that in the street. CWN 09 01 15

The large and finely-equipped roller flour mills of Messrs Paine & Co, of Bedford Street, St Neots were totally destroyed by fire. The blaze was tremendous, the flames leaping 30 feet higher than the top of the tall chimney, which escaped destruction. The manufactory of the 'John Bull' Malt Extract was partly burnt but some of the machinery was preserved. The town gas works adjoin these mills but luckily the wind blew the flames away. The damage is estimated as many thousands of pounds; only recently a large sum had been spent in installing new machinery to bring it up-to-date. 09 01 15

Albert Watts came to Cambridge as a shoeblack at Downing College where part of his duty was to clean undergraduates' bicycles. One possessed a motor cycle and he became smitten with the motor fever, mastered the mechanism and was allowed to take a ride upon it. When the first motor bus company was formed in Cambridge he forsook the college and ultimately became a driver. He subsequently secured a position in a London garage and then became a private chauffeur. Now his picture has appeared in an illustrated paper as the chauffeur who has attained notoriety in the Missing Lady Mystery. 09 01 15

1909 01 22 CWN
The dread reaper has been unusually busy with his sickle lately in Cambridge, though most of the grain he has gathered was white unto the harvest. Mrs Toller, whose death took place at Waterbeach, was 80 years of age, Mr Arthur Rutter was 92, Mr Spilsworth 79 and Joseph Reynolds was 81. Other deaths were recorded this week at the age of 73, 75, 81 and 82. Truly Cambridgeshire would seem to be a healthy county

The Saxon Cement Works' Miniature Rifle Range was opened by Major Bourke, of Rorke's Drift fame. It has a range of up to fifty yards where rifle shooting may be practiced in fair weather and foul, in daytime or at night, electricity affording the requisite illumination. In rain the bull's eyes are accessible to the bullet fired from the verandah of a comfortable club house. Every member possesses his own rifle. 09 01 22

The new Abbey miniature rifle range opened in the grounds of the coffee tavern at 158, Newmarket Road. The eight targets, which can be set and returned for inspection by a winding mechanism, are illuminated by incandescent gas burners and the building is absolutely fireproof. It is hoped to build a pavilion and to have an open-air range in the summer. The district can now boast of two clubs, the other being at the 'Bell'. 09 01 22

Cambridge New Theatre was built on the site of an arcade of small shops from St Andrew's Street to Parkside. The arcade became a roller-skating rink but this proved a bad speculation. It was taken by the Conservative Club who christened it St Andrew's Hall, where amateur theatrical performances were sometimes held. Mr Redfern leased the building which he reconstructed and in 1882 the first performance was given in 'The Theatre Royal'. Then in 1895 the foundation stone of the New Theatre was laid. 09 01 22

The line near Cambridge station was blocked by a collision between two goods trains. One engine and four trucks were derailed and the goods thrown in all directions. One was completely overturned and its contents scattered over the line while others loaded with granite had the sides ripped open. The accident happened under Mill Road Bridge where a crowd of spectators watched the arduous task of clearing the line. 09 01 22

Harriet Evans was a well-known figure around Mill Road. She usually wore a white veil and carried a portmanteau or bag in each hand and would walk along in a methodical manner until a certain shop was reached where she would have sixpennyworth of firewood carefully placed in one of her leather bags. She was so confirmed a man hater that she would not use money that bore the king's head. If she was given any she would throw it in the fire. She had never had a sweetheart and never wanted one, her inquest was told. 09 01 22

1909 01 29 CWN

Children's teeth – Cunningham, dentist – 09 01 29

An old tramp known by the sobriquet 'Scissor Sharpener' was discovered lying by the side of the road in Swavesey. He was apparently dead, for all efforts to revive him were unavailing. A search of his pockets revealed a twist, two pieces of whetstone, a pipe, a halfpenny and a matchbox. David Garner of the Red Lion said he had known the deceased for four or five years. He went by the name of 'Scissor Sharpener' which he believed was his trade. He said nothing about himself but had been getting very feeble during the last two years. CWN 09 01 29

Mr Rose, MP, toured his constituency by motor car and had an enthusiastic welcome from old age pensioners many of whom had their pension books in their hands. At Balsham one old fellow, trembling with gratitude, had just drawn his ten shilling pension. "I remember working all day long for eight shillings a week for my wife and I to live on. Why we be gentlefolk now, picking up ten shillings every week and nothing to do for it", he said. At West Wickham the children stormed the car and would be satisfied with nothing but a ride. CWN 09 01 29

A well-known East Anglian newspaper reported that the headless trunk of a sturdily-built woman had been found at Kirtling. But as was explained by the CDN the carcass was part of a sheep, partly eaten by dogs and covered in mud. Several of the inhabitants had a bad attack of nerves and spread the story of a headless body. The police thought it best to take a medical opinion of the remains and Dr Wilkin pronounced they were not human. CWN 09 01 29

Col. Caldwell, Master of Corpus Christ College, was being driven in a taxi cab back from Milton when owing to the density of the fog, the driver, Charles Glasscock, made a miscalculation where the railway divides from the main road and ran his cab into a stout post. The Master was thrown violently forward and sustained cuts on his face, the driver was taken to hospital. The taxi, the forepart of which was damaged, was towed back during the night. CWN 09 01 29

February 1909 CWN

1909 02 05 CWN
The George and Dragon beerhouse at Linton should close, justices decided. It was one of 11 licensed houses in the parish which had a population of 1,580. The accommodation consisted of a tap room, bar parlour, sitting room, small shop, cellar, kitchen, wash-house and five bedrooms. The roofing was out of repair and the flooring of the bedrooms and the staircase weak. The trade was about a barrel of beer and stout a week. The Three Horseshoes, Duxford was one of six in the village and there were more licenced houses in Balsham than were required, so the Five Bells should also close. CWN 09 02 05

In military exercises around Grantchester the University Officer Training Corps attacked Dumpling Hall, near Haggis Gap Farm. Engineers rapidly and noiselessly constructed a bridge of boats across the river and the force advanced over the fields. The night promised to be foggy but turned out bright and starlight with a strong moon so the troops were unusually conspicuous. By the time they arrived the enemy general who had been based there had managed to escape. 09 02 05

Miss Martha Eyres told the court she managed a shop in Bridge Street. The prisoner called and asked for curtains to be sent on approval to him at the Bus Yard House, Chesterton Road. He promised to pay cash for those his wife kept. But no payment was received. George Clark, a retired butcher, said he had hired the Bus House Yard to the prisoner who'd left somewhat suddenly. 09 05 05

Elliott Robert Odams was a patriot who revered the memory of the late beloved Queen and because St Ives did not erect a memorial to her memory he gave the Victoria Jubilee Fountain in the Broadway. He had continued John Coote's business as a brewer and maltster in Cambridge until 1885 when he sold it to Mr R. Flick and moved to St Ives where he took an active part in public life. He was a staunch Conservative and a reader and supporter of the Cambridgeshire Weekly News from its commencement. 09 02 05

An alarming accident occurred at Barrington when the gable end of a house in the Orwell Road collapsed. Fortunately Mr H. Coningsby and his family were at tea in the other end of the house at the time so that no one was injured. The building, which was erected 40 years ago, is of clay bats, which have become damp through the plaster covering coming off, and gave way in the rough wind, leaving the roof suspended. Mr Fred Patman removed the suspended portion of the roof which threatened to pull down the remainder. 09 02 05

Old Age pensions – details from villages – 09 02 05

1909 02 12
Ladies who study their figures will do well to inspect the new designs in corsets exhibited at the show rooms of Messrs W.K. Vawser and Son, Petty Cury. Specially designed corsets are prepared for the Empire and Directoire style of gowns. Ladies will be delighted to find just what they need among the lovely models of the French I.C. a la Persephone corsets which are suitable for the slender willowy figures. The Adjustment for stouter figures, needing greater support, is an ideal corset, price 17s.6d. (85p). 09 02 12

When John Binns, the wireless operator on the ill-fated liner 'Republic' arrived at Liverpool he was met by his sweetheart, Miss Wright of Stetchworth. On his return to Peterborough the Mayor praised his pluck and courage at sticking to his post for ten hours, flashing messages till relief arrived. But Binns said there were greater heroes, including one who although up to his neck in water remained to open the steam valve, saving the ship and those on board. CWN 09 02 12

Wickliffe Preachers paid a visit to St Clement's church while the vicar was hearing confessions and asked him to produce his authority for hearing confessions in the Church of England. An argument ensued and the vicar locked the Preacher in the church whilst he sent for the police. They then visited St Giles and sat down near the curate and an undergraduate who was confessing, refusing to move. Thereupon the curate whispered to the student to go to the vestry where they locked themselves in. In the evening there was a banner procession through the streets but a Protestant meeting was broken up by undergraduates. CWN 09 02 12

Cambridge Police has a special staff of men employed in looking after unoccupied houses. The intending burglar who usually watches the policeman on his beat pass the empty property he intends to break into cannot now know when he may be dropped upon. Last year 802 residents used the service and except for one house in Madingley Road, where the gates were locked and police unable to obtain access, there has been no robbery from an unoccupied house of which they have been given notice. CWN 09 02 12

A well-planned raid took place at the isolated works of the Cambridge Steam Laundry in Cherryhinton Road. The manager Mr Pratt found the office door wide open and the Perry Fireproof Safe lying on the floor. The bottom had been cut open, two steel drawers prised out and about £60 in cash abstracted. Unfortunately for Mr Pratt, the greater part was his own personal property, the company money having been banked. CWN 09 02 12

Licensing objections to Bottisham Rose and Crown, Swaffham Prior John Bull and Uncle Tom's Cabin at Reach – 09 02 12

1909 02 19 CWN
Considerable excitement was occasioned in Chesterton on Sunday by an outbreak of fire at 74 Montagu Road, occupied by Thomas Carter. Crowds congregated in the road and at the rear of the house, but happily did not witness the extensive conflagration expected. At noon Mrs Carter placed a bed to air before the fire in a back bedroom and soon found it on fire. The burning bed was pitched out of the window and buckets of water poured upon other burning material in the room by neighbours. For fire insurance on profit-sharing principles contact Rayment and Dickson, 104 Regent Street. 09 02 19

Hallack and Bond can trace their association with Cambridge back over 100 years: it was there that Elizabeth Woodcock purchased her groceries before being lost in the snow in 1799. Tea was a luxury then, now it is a necessity and their delicate Katharata blend produces pleasing results. A visit to their tea room is a revelation: upon a tea-tasting day fragrant bouquets from the Far East assail the nostrils and the palate including one with a beautiful peach-like perfume. 09 02 12

The Protestant Demonstration called by Mr Kensitt at the Alexandra Hall resulted in the wildest uproar. The small hall was crowded with ladies, undergraduate and townspeople, while outside a band of disappointed 'Varsity demonstrators increased. Inside shouting and whistling commenced before the opening hymn but the earnest portion of the assembly did not give in and by singing as loudly as possible almost drowned the discordant shouting of the opposition. Mr Kensitt's speech was constantly interrupted. Missiles struck the windows and the hall was filled with the smell of sulphuretted hydrogen. 09 02 19

The gallant band of old soldiers who fought in the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny gets smaller every year. Cambridge man James Gray died in the workhouse, where the poor are so well looked after and was buried at Mill Road cemetery. There was no time to arrange for a military funeral but Captain Heal sent a large Union Jack to be placed on the coffin. Four members of the Territorial Force volunteered to act as pall bearers but assembled at Newmarket Road cemetery. On realising their mistake they drove to Mill Road which they reached just after the sorrowful ceremony had concluded and the mourners had left. 09 02 19

The meeting organised by the Anti Female Suffrage League in the Guildhall was crowded with many undergraduates who regarded the whole question as a humorous diversion. Speakers were constantly disrupted except from the one lady who was not subjected to a single interruption. Whilst conceding the importance of Women's work in national life it would be dangerous to allow a vote to people lacking the average political knowledge and experience open to men. 09 02 19

Caxton Guardians dispute over chaplain – 09 02 19

Darwin centenary celebrations – 09 02 19

Albert Howe of Fordham, miller, told the bankruptcy court that he began business in 1893, having been apprenticed at the mill he took over. He had no money. A friend bought him and horse and cart and the harness-maker made a set of harness on credit. About seven years ago he bought a second mill for £290, paying £15 deposit and the remainder he had borrowed. His brother had been living at the mill, for which he paid £20 a year. People owed him money but he allowed their accounts to run as he did not want to lose trade. 09 02 19

Airships were the real menace, Burwell Rifle Club was told. Foreign nations had an immense number of them capable of living up in the air for 48 hours away from their base. They could carry half a ton of dynamite. They could not dodge over floating ironclads and attack them but they could drop dynamite into our naval dockyards and a navy without a base was not a navy at all. The authorities in the United States were very worried about them. 09 02 19

Complaints had been made about cyclists and horses being ridden on the footpath from Burrell's Walk to Coton. Part of the footpath known as Love Lane was now merged in Adams Road where it had been converted into a carriage way. But if cyclists were allowed to use it why not a carriage and pair? A tricycle would completely impede a pedestrian, magistrates were told at the first prosecution of a cyclist for riding on the footpath. 09 02 19

1909 02 26 CWN
Paper missing

March 1909 CWN

1909 03 05 CWN
An inquest was held into the death of a domestic servant at a private residence in Grantchester Meadows. She had been standing in front of the fire in a newly-starched dress when it burst into flames. Her employer, a private tutor, wrapped her in a rug and telephoned for the doctor but she was extensively burnt and despite the services of two trained nurses the woman died. 09 03 05

During military night operations around Cambridge residents were discomforted by the activity of an eight-inch howitzer entrenched in a capitally-constructed earth fort on the high ground of Madingley Hill. It was attacked by the Cambridge University officer Training Corps who found the rush uphill on the double was too long and exhausting. There was the danger of troops arriving out of breath and in scattered formation being charged with the bayonet. So they marched across country, crossing fences and ditches in silence. After the roar of an explosion, symbolising the destruction of the howitzer they retired to Coton. 09 03 05

A terrible case came before magistrates when a man was charged with sleeping in a chaff-house at Stretham and being without visible means of subsistence. He was carried into court in a frightfully emaciated condition, being mere skin and bones. His arms and legs were no thicker than those of a child, his clothes hung about him in folds and he presented a ghastly picture. He is an Army pensioner who had spent all his money before crawling into the chaff house where he was found by police. He was taken to the workhouse. CWN 09 03 05

The funeral of the Rev R.M. Williams took place in Lt Thetford churchyard and in the evening a muffled peal was rung on the Stretham church bells. He had been curate there during the time of his terrible tragedy: in September 1896 he had cycled with his wife from Stretham to Cambridge, it being the first anniversary of their wedding. They had just crossed Victoria Bridge when she collided with a butcher's cart and was instantly killed. CWN 09 03 05

A fortnight ago the Cambridge Board of Guardians received a letter from a widow asking for assistance in obtaining her a husband. It was published in the News. Now she had received 78 replies. Several came from inmates of workhouses, some were musical and some expert in poultry keeping. One had a house, business and £700, another a pension. Two had the misfortune to have lost their legs, one from the knee down. CWN 09 03 05

The Rose and Crown, Pound Hill, was damp with paper peeling from the wall. There were seven other licenced premises nearby which all did better trade. But the landlord said he exercised great discretion in the customers he encouraged. Other pubs were frequented by the lower class. If it were closed it would be an inducement to the others not to cater for the better and quieter class but to draw a larger number just so they could boost their sales of beer, Magistrates renewed the licence. Also Traveller's Rest Huntingdon Road, White Horse in Coronation Street, Prince of Wales in Church St, Fox & Duck South Street, Oxford in Crispin Street, Johnny Gilpin in Gold Street & Prince Albert Castle Street. CWN 09 03 05

The White Wyandotte Club Year Book is a combined guide and reference book to this popular breed of chickens and includes a series of excellent illustrations. It is beautifully printed and daintily bound and may be obtained from the secretary, Mr J. Stephen Hicks of Bottisham, for three-pence in stamps. CWN 09 03 05

1909 03 12 CWN
Thomas Adkins of Musgrave Farm, Fen Ditton carried on a butcher's business in Norwich Street for 30 years. He was well-known at the Cattle Market and was one of the judges at the Christmas Fat Stock sales. His death at the age of 61 came as a surprise, as he usually enjoyed excellent health. About a month ago, however, he broke a blood vessel and in spite of constant and skilful medical attention he died. 09 03 12

The Duke of Bedford's offer of the Thorney estate to the Crown has been declined and he will now put the estate up for auction. The Duke says he is prepared to assist existing tenants to buy their holdings by allowing a portion of the purchase money to remain on mortgage, but the tenants feel they should at least have the option of private treaty before their farms are put up to public competition. Some holdings have been in the occupation of the same families since 1772 and they claim they have done as much in developing the estate as the Bedford family. Should the sale take place it will spell ruin to many, they fear. 09 03 12

The Fox in the Wood beerhouse at Town's End, Soham, was an old house built of brick, lathe and plaster. The only room used by the public was a taproom but there were four bedrooms and stabling for two horses. Nearby were The Holmes and the King's Head alehouses and the Travellers' Rest beerhouse, all of which did better trade. There were 32 licences in Soham for a population of 4,230, magistrates were told. 09 03 12

Fulbourn had 11 licenced houses. The Townley Arms was 270 paces from the Bakers' Arms, 120 from the Mangle beer house and 440 paces from the Asylum Inn. But it was the only free house in the village and had increased its trade. As well as selling beer on the premises the landlord sold ordered beer and stout in the village which he took round with a horse and cart. He was the only licence-holder who supplied beer in gallon jars for a shilling – it cost fourpence more elsewhere. There was a quoits club with about 30 members. The licence was renewed. 09 02 12

1909 03 19 CWN
Mr W.B. Redfern's unique collection of watercolour drawings of old Cambridge excited great interest. In 1875 he started to record places of bygone and antiquarian interest which but for his timely intervention would have been lost for ever. A good many had now entirely disappeared including two houses in Shelley Row which were the residence of Oliver Cromwell during the Civil War. They were panelled with two handsome fireplaces which he had moved to his own house. Old houses in Petty Cury were the most striking and perfect places which should never have been pulled down while parts of the Falcon Yard had remained until the last few years. 09 03 19

Several families were burnt out of their homes by a disastrous fire which occurred at West Wratting. It started in Mr Marfleet's grocer's shop and the extended until a heap of ruins covered an area fully a quarter of an acre in extent. A saddler's shop was only saved when the wind veered round. The only water supply was a pond on the opposite side of the road and this was drained quite dry by the time the flames were extinguished. One of the Newmarket Brigade was struck on the face and injured by a stone while engaged with the manual engine. 09 03 19

A Newmarket telegraphist was accused of betting on certainties. From the office he could hear the results of races and telegraphed bets down to a London firm using a code name 'Cuckoo'. Bets would only be recognised if they were timed fifteen minutes before the race was run but he devised a method of beating the system. Post Office officials were alerted when they received an anonymous letter signed 'Trainer' saying the clerk had been doing a great deal of betting and that it was time to stop it. Any servant of the Post Office would be liable to be dismissed for betting. 09 03 19

The proprietors of the University Arms Hotel, Robert Sayle and the Cambridge Automobile and Engineering Company all claimed that they had only agreed to advertise in the 'Corporation Guide to Cambridge' as they had been told this would be an official guide, distributed through the Town Clerk's department. The firm said they had written to the Town Clerk suggesting he might become a journalist for the guide in a private capacity, but he had declined. They had distributed 1,000 copies to the Railway companies, 250 to Galloway and Porter and 950 to advertisers. 09 03 19

1909 03 26 CWN

Carrie Nation hoax – 09 02 26 # c.36.9

The Cambridgeshire Weekly News has acquired that valuable and old-established journal 'The Cambridge Express' and will henceforth be known as the 'Cambridgeshire Weekly News and Express'. It will be enlarged to 12 pages making it one of the largest and best weekly papers in the United Kingdom. We shall continue to give full reports of all local events, uninfluenced by political or sectarian bias. Our advertisers will receive the benefit of the Weekly News regular sale of 11,000 as well as the circulation hitherto enjoyed by the 'Cambridge Express'. CWN 09 03 26

Fordham cyclists – Col Ivatt fined – 09 03 26

The proposed extension of Grantchester churchyard provoked debate. There was unoccupied ground in the old churchyard which could be used. But this might be the graves of poor people who had been unable to provide a stone. Newnham Croft was expanding more and more and it was undesirable that the burial ground of this increasing population should be in the centre of the village. It would become one of the great cemeteries of the University town. CWN 09 03 26

A lecture on farming in Canada, illustrated by a magic lantern, was given in Great Shelford by Mr Swain from Manitoba. Everything was done by machinery and labour was not so laborious as in England. It was only 4 ½ days from England – just like taking a walk. The accommodation in crossing the Atlantic was immense, even the third-class passengers enjoyed all manner of games. They should not confuse Canada with America. They belonged to England and they were loyal (applause) CWN 09 03 26

April 1909 CWN

1909 04 02
Cambridge British Beekeepers Association was wound up as they had members who only wanted to get what they could out of it. Cambridge honey was superior to any in the UK and they did not wish to see bee culture go down. So a new 'Cambridge and District Beekeepers Association" was formed to provide mutual help. 09 04 02

A domestic servant of Renfig, Hills Road, was sued for 50 shillings instalments on a Bible. A representative of the Bible Union Society had called at the house and after a great deal of persuasion she had agreed to join. He then produced a special bible with explanatory notes and pictures, saying it was only lent to her. But then they wrote demanding payment. She'd returned it but they had taken her to court. These men roved around the town back doors and got girls to sign; it was a misrepresentation. She was awarded cost. 09 04 02

Prince Alexander, the Crown Prince of Servia, is the younger brother of the notorious Prince George whose resignation of all claims to the throne of the disturbed state are consequent upon his mad actions. Belgrade people are urging King Peter to prevent Alexander from following in his brother's footsteps and reports say he is likely to be sent to complete his education at Cambridge. But the University and college authorities know nothing of his coming into residence. 09 04 02

Improvement work has started at Cambridge railway station to provide better facilities for branch trains. But other work to enlarge the booking, parcel and lavatory accommodation, to widen the main platform by twelve feet, provide another exit for parcel traffic and erect another colonnade in the yard is a task of considerable magnitude and will not be undertaken at once. 09 04 02

A 14-year old lad was fined by Linton magistrates for stealing rabbit skins. If the father did not pay, the lad would go to prison. The boy said that was what he wanted. The Chairman told him: "If you were my boy I'd give you the biggest threshing you ever had. You would have it hot" "Unless he gets it now I don't know when he'll get it. He is a difficult customer to get hold of", the police advised. The magistrate decided to let the father off the fine if he would thresh the boy and he accordingly took the lad outside and administered severe castigation. 09 04 02

Newmarket Guardians discussed the case of an elderly lady at Snailwell, a hardy old woman who was one of the few people who could still make a smock frock. She had supported her husband who'd been seized with senile dementia and became a great trouble. His illness had 'knocked the old woman sideways'. But after he'd died she had received no pension: it was claimed she had received relief when looking after him and so was not liable. There were similar cases elsewhere that should be investigated. 09 04 02

Ald William Potter Spalding – profile – 09 04 02, p6

Ashley pond – 09 04 02 p10

1909 04 09 CWN
The only complaint we have received at the combined issue of the Cambridgeshire Weekly News and Cambridge Express is that it is now too large. We have the largest staff of reporters within 50 miles of Cambridge and shall report all Conservative gatherings with a completeness that cannot be approached by any other journal. However we will devote equal space to the doings of the opposite party. We shall not hesitate to speak out where local government is concerned and the fact that we are not tied to the strings of any sect or party will enable us to do this with greater fearlessness and independence. 09 04 09

Many who passed Alderman Stace's millinery establishment have wondered what cracked the large plate glass window from side to side. It was the carelessness of some fruitarian who after consuming his mid-day meal of bananas threw the skin of a fine Jamaican product on to the pavement. An unfortunate man stepped on this and sat down heavily, forcing his elbow through the window which will cost the insurance company £20 to replace. 09 04 09

The Rev Charles Joseph, minister of St Andrew's Street Baptist Church, has had a varied career, having been a commercial traveller and journalist with a weekly column in the 'Baptist Times'. He came to Cambridge in 1898 and oversaw the erection of the new chapel in 1903. His forcible preaching is so much appreciated that he is in constant request as a special preacher and his engagement book is full many months ahead. 09 04 09

The stationmaster of Barnwell Junction found the ticket office had been entered, the till broken open and cash and stamps stolen. The burglar entered the waiting room where he obtained a poker and forced the booking office window. After smashing the till he visited the stationmaster's office and made a meal of bread and cheese. 09 04 09

Fire broke out at the Ladies Training College in Wollaston Road. Very fortunately the vacation had denuded the college of students and only Miss Ellis, the Bursar, and six domestic servants were in residence. Hastily snatching up dressing gowns they scurried out of the burning building by the servants' staircase at the back. Firemen tied handkerchiefs over their mouths and nostrils and the smoke helmet was used for the first time. Considerable damage was done but the college may find consolation in having a building remaining at all. 09 04 09

The River Cam is so badly silted that sailing races are seriously impeded. Now the section from Bottisham Locks to Waterbeach Lode will be dredged by the South Level Commissioners and the bit from Clayhithe to Jesus Green by the Conservators of the Cam with funding from the Town Council and University Boat Club. This is of satisfaction to all sailing and rowing men especially F. H. Sanderson, president of the Cam Sailing Club, who regards the river as one of the most valuable assets Cambridge possesses. 09 04 09

Sir George Fordham profile – 09 04 09 p6

Ald George Peck obit – 09 04 09 p9

1909 04 16 CWN
In a shoeing forge at Northampton Street, Cambridge, is to be seen a massive silver cup, the trophy of the Middle Weight Amateur Boxing Championships for 1909. In the same forge is a young smith, a splendid specimen of manhood with arms and legs of remarkable development. He is Mr William Child who for two years has carried off the Middle Weight Championship of England. 09 04 16

Parker's Piece is the pride of Cambridge people and the admiration of strangers. But it has felt the past winter as much as any of us and been knocked and kicked about unmercifully. Mr Nunn the custodian experiences difficulties in getting turf to replenish the bare patches around seats. Turf from other commons does not assimilate. This year grass seed has been sown but this will take some years protected by railings before the roots take hold and be a danger to cricketers. 09 04 16

Mr Hickson of Foxton has received a letter from his four sons in Alberta, Canada. They are all well and happy and often go six miles across the snow on sledges. "Will went to the lake and caught as much pike and trout as he could carry home in his saddle bag. This makes a nice change from beef and pork and we also shot two prairie chickens. No boozing – the nearest pub is 25 miles away. When we came out here two years ago we did not see anyone from one end of the week to the other. Now we are getting surrounded by neighbours", they write. 09 04 16

The north wing of Exning House was almost completely burnt out. There was a strange Sunday afternoon scene on the lawns as the 20 servants rushed about saving such things as seemed more valuable. Their bedrooms and belongings were destroyed and they were sent down in motor cars to Newmarket where lodgings were taken. During the blaze a fireman was badly injured when molten lead fell on his neck and back. 09 04 16

A bedmaker told an inquest she had gone to a student's rooms at Trinity College, saw the lad sitting in his chair in an upright position and thought he was asleep. She got some things to light the fire and on returning noticed blood issuing from his mouth. She ran for the porter who spotted a pistol in his hand. There was no doubt he had shot himself. He had posted a letter to his father showing he had worked himself almost to a standstill, studying 12½ hours a day. A verdict of suicide was returned. 09 04 16

A mother from New Barnes Road, Ely, said she went out to get some eggs, leaving her baby daughter in the care of her five-year-old brother. She was gone eight minutes. During that time the boy had climbed on a chair to reach a match from the mantelpiece which he struck on the cupboard door, then dropped on the floor where it ignited a piece of paper. The flames set fire to the baby's flannelette nightdress and when she returned the boy was sitting calmly on the hearthrug watching his sister burn to death. 09 04 16

Cambridge actress, Hilda Evelyn, Bijou ADC – 09 04 16 p5

1909 04 23 CWN
Police alleged that the Traveller's Rest beerhouse on Huntingdon Road was frequented by people of bad character and a married woman lived there in the guise of a single person. It was very remote from police supervision and used a great deal by persons from Girton where public houses had to close at ten o'clock. But the brewery said they had put in a new tenant who said would be no raffles and no improper characters, whether men or women, would be allowed there. The licence was renewed. 09 04 23

Two pedlars were convicted for damaging the door of a householder who refused to pay an extortionate charge for riveting a plate. Mrs Auchterlonie of Glisson Road said one had called asking whether she wanted anything mending. She gave him a little dish which required two rivets for which he quoted twopence per rivet. But when he brought it back he demanded two shillings and threepence. A clergyman also complained that they had charged nine shillings and fivepence for grinding a razor, carving knife and pair of scissors. It would be as well if householders refused to give work to such perambulating people. 09 04 23

Grantchester Town Lands Charity inquiry – 09 04 23

Sawston carter bankruptcy – 09 04 23

Rev W.H. Stevens, Swavesey Baptist church – profile – 09 04 23

Dr Edward Evatt, Waterbeach doctor bankruptcy – 09 04 23

Swavesey parish council should see that the gate by the bridge on Church Green, now off its hinges, is repaired immediately. One villager was thrown by the cord which until recently blocked the entrance to the bridge. A stick nailed about four feet above the ground has since been substituted but stout and elderly persons, and there are more than one in the village, experience difficulties in stooping under the obstruction which is a danger to persons using the path across the green in the dark. 09 04 23

The funeral of Thomas Watson Carter took place at Swavesey amidst universal manifestations of sympathy and respect. Every shop was closed, the blinds of nearly every house in the village were lowered and all classes attended to render their last tribute to the memory of their old familiar friend and fellow parishioner. The body, enclosed in a plain, unpolished oak coffin was borne into Bethel Baptist Church by six workmen formerly employed on his farm and placed in front of the rostrum which was covered with black drapery edged with white. By special request there were no wreaths or flowers. The building was crowded. 09 04 23

Two rival greengrocers from Russell Street appeared in court, one charged with assaulting the other. The complainant said he was walking down the street when the other ran out from his shop and struck him. The defendant stated the man came to his shop windows three times on Saturday night and said "That's funny ---- grub to sell". He'd hired a shop on each side of him and also stood in the road and stopped customers coming in. The magistrate said that did not justify the assault. He was fined ten shillings. 09 04 23

1909 04 30 CWN
Paper missing from file

May 1909 CWN

1909 05 07 CWN
A Melbourn man was the first person to be charged for making a false declaration for the purposes of obtaining an old age pension. He had but a very hazy notion as to whether he was guilty or not. He had stated that his income was four shillings a week and that he had no other means of subsistence whereas he got a weekly payment from a Benefit Society and a gratuity from a relative abroad. He also drew rent from three cottages which took him well over the limit. 09 05 07

Prince Henry of Battenberg opened a sale of work in aid of the funds for providing a properly-equipped Children's Ward at Addenbrooke's Hospital. There has been one in the past but some years ago it was done away with as the Hospital' income was not sufficient. Children have not been entirely neglected: urgent cases have been taken in but the staff felt handicapped without a bright, sunny ward where the injured and diseased little ones might be given a fair chance of recovery. 09 05 07 p5

A number of undergraduates played havoc with the meeting of the Cambridge Association for Women's Suffrage. The Corn Exchange has a seating capacity of about 1,500 but by utilising the farmers' desks and standing in every available space, an audience of 2,000 listened to – or interrupted – the arguments. Quite 80 per cent of the meeting was composed of women, of whom Newnham and Girton contributed a considerable quota. But it was the minority whose increasingly violent disruptions caused the meeting to break up in a disorderly manner, though not before the resolutions had been carried by a large majority. 09 05 07

Harris Norman of Romsey Town, a Jewish hawker, lived to all appearances in extremely poor circumstances. But when he died was found to be worth £12,000. He'd divided his assets between Addenbrooke's Hospital and the 'London Jewish Synagogue for the Poor and Needy Jews'. However four groups disputed to whom this second bequest should go and it came before a Judge in the Chancery Division to decide. 09 05 07

Trooper Truscott killed in riding accident – 09 05 07 p8
Erratic county finance – 09 05 07

1909 05 14
A cavalcade of six horses, with postilions, attached to a brake containing a party of gaily-clad undergraduates, created a good deal of amusement and surprise. Trinity Street was drowsing in the hot sunshine and steeped in its usual placidity, when with a clatter of horses' hoofs the turn-out dashed in among the shoppers and bicycles and drew up opposite Trinity College. It was the latest undergraduate attempt to achieve the bizarre. 09 05 14

Another of the veterans who took part in the Indian Mutiny more than 50 years ago, died in the Cambridge workhouse. George Redmond, who was born in Castle End, had a great desire to become a soldier of the Queen and ran away to join the army. Several other local boys were with him preparing for service in the Crimea when arrangements were altered and he was despatched to India. He remained a private until he left the army when he returned to Cambridge. 09 05 14

Miss Florence Gower was well-known as an amateur actress and musician who played leading lady in productions of the Rodney Amateur Dramatic Society. She received her education at Miss Bowen's school, Islip House, and studied music under Mrs Hague Ingram of Lyndwode Road. She frequently played at private receptions and 'at homes' and occasionally sang in public. Some mystery surrounds her death. 09 05 14

A fire does not occur every day in Linton and when it does it received a pretty cool reception. Monday is washing day and a number of women with arms bared to the elbow rushed from washing tubs, snatched up a pail and joined in the work of quenching the ardour of the leaping flames. With only a handkerchief over their heads they rushed through the smoke, defying flying fragments of fire and threw water at any fresh point where flame appeared. The majority of men were away at work but a crowd of the type generally to be found propping up the walls of a public house collected and gazed on the fire with the glazed eyes of the habitual loafer. 09 05 14

Two spinsters, aged 50 and 30, appeared in court charged with stealing carnations value sixpence from a grave in Mill Road cemetery. The custodian said he saw them take the flowers from the side of the grave of Trooper Truscott; he took the ladies to his house, locked the door and sent for a policeman. They were respectable Sunday school teachers who had known the deceased well and picked up flowers that had dropped from a wreath to take home and press in remembrance of him. The custodian was legally correct but for him to lock them up, send for a policeman and cart them through the streets to the police station was very regrettable. 09 05 14

The Duke of Bedford's Thorney Estate has been sold for £500,000 after a deputation of tenants had urged that it be bought by the Crown to allow them to acquire their holdings. In a letter to tenants the Duke said "It is with great regret that I feel myself obliged to sell as estate that my ancestors reclaimed and created". 09 05 14

1909 05 21 CWN
The unknown airship whose nocturnal wanderings in East Anglia have caused such a sensation is said to have been seen in Downham Fen eight days ago. Mr James Wilkin thought he heard the noise of a motor car but could not see one. His son said "Didn't you see it! It was an airship!" Other people in the locality observed the mysterious stranger, which is said to have gone in the direction of Littleport. 09 05 21

A rosy-cheeked old man, wearing a soft white hat, stood peering unto a pink and white mass of apple blossom. "Bad", he said, removing a blackened clay pipe from between grim lips. "Badly nipped as ever I seed 'un". Fruit-growers are experiencing a decided set-back through the severe frosts of the last few nights. On Sunday morning there were some 10 to 12 degrees of frost. 09 05 21

The last senior wrangler – list of competitors – 09 05 21
Health of Cambridge report – 09 05 21
Cock Inn, Isleham fen case – 09 05 21

1909 05 28 CWN
The Surveyor called attention to the bad state of Croydon Hill caused by motor cycling. Mr Tongue said they got these fellows from Cambridge who came by their farms at the rate of 40 miles an hour. They did not stand for cattle or man. They came and took possession of the hill for two or three hours and had a policeman there to sweep the stones off and make the road clear. They had pulled the crown of the road into splinters. On other days they come in the morning to test their bicycles and see what they can do and in the evening we are smothered up with them, he complained. 09 05 28

Empire Day celebrations – 09 05 28

A shocking accident occurred at Cambridge Railway Station when George Meade of Shepreth fell in front of an engine and received such injuries as necessitated the amputation of both his legs. It was fully twenty minutes before he could be extricated and removed to Addenbrooke's Hospital. 09 05 28

Mrs J. Wilson was born nearly 100 years ago at Hildersham where her father was schoolmaster. Books were very dear and it was a great event in a scholar's life to have one to write in. There were no steel pens, quills costing a penny each being used. She remembers church services at Babraham where there was a barrel organ worked by a village blacksmith, men and women sat on different sides and while singing turned round and faced the west gallery. 09 05 28

Martin Caine left Swavesey for Canada, in March 1898. He writes home to say that Seattle streets swarm with gaily-dressed people, loaded street cars and autos flying hither and thither. Streets and stores all blaze with electric and gas light and dance halls, theatres, fruit stands, ice-cream parlours, hotels and saloons were crowded. Everywhere seemed alive and everybody gay and sporty. 09 05 28

June 1909 CWN

1909 06 04 CWN
Cambridge Free Library has acquired at auction a somewhat badly bound volume of Cambridge newspapers which are unique. They start as 'The Huntingdon, Bedford, Cambridge and Peterborough Gazette' of 15 April 1818 but change title to 'The Cambridge Independent Press'. The purchase shows the happy understanding between the University and Town Libraries both of which were anxious it should not pass into private hands. They agreed the Borough Library should have the first chance but that if the price were too high then the University would bid. 09 06 04

Mr William Lack states that when he was in Taylor's Lane, Swavesey, at 2.30 am, he saw a large object in the sky which had every appearance of being an airship. The object had a strong light at its head and another at its tail. It appeared to be passing towards Huntingdon along the line of the old road from Cambridge. A police constable however, who was patrolling at the same time, saw nothing of the apparition. 09 06 04

An elderly inhabitant of Swavesey remembers seeing sign boards on houses in the village many years ago. One in the High Street read "James Hepher, tailor, barber, bleeder and tooth drawer'. Another near the Swan Pond proclaimed: "J. Wicks lives here. He sweeps chimneys far and near. All they who choose on him to call, He's willing to oblige them all. N.B. Fire Defender and Smoke Jack Cleaner". It was removed about 50 years ago. 09 06 04

The banks of the River Lark at Isleham ferry were crowded with nearly 4,000 people, for the news had spread that the number of baptisms would be rather larger than usual this year. Actually there were 29, of whom nine were females, who were baptised by the Rev Samuel Boyce-Newling of the High Street Chapel. Such a scene as this has been seen on Whit-Sunday for generations. Many a trooper who rode with Cromwell's Ironsides gave proof of his conversion by public baptism at this Ferry. 09 06 04

Ald George Stace profile – 09 06 04

1909 06 11 CWN
It is a surprise that Cambridge has long been immune from the raids of the 'scareship'. There are splendid places such as the roof of King's College chapel where a Zeppelin might find a lovely anchorage. Now a flag flaunting an eagle rampant has been picked up in the dead of night. This gaudy tinselled thing lies stowed away in the police station bearing the inscription 'This flag, believed to have been dropped from an airship, was found on Midsummer Common'. Nervous readers should be assured that it is a flimsy trifle, two inches square, and it is thought improbable that the owners will return in search of their missing property. 09 06 11

Gypsy Smith described his visit to America. In St Louis half-a-dozen men rushed into a crowded hall shouting 'Fire. Fire' Instantly every member of the huge assembly was on their feet. He sprung up to and turning to the choir commenced to sing; they responded and in a few moments the alarm was quelled. It was a hoax organised by the saloon keepers in the hope of damaging his mission. But his presence of mind turned the tables and gave him the sympathy of the whole city. 09 06 11

Swavesey ratepayers were told that the present water supply had been condemned at its source and was unhealthy. The alternatives were to pump water from the river Ouse, filter it and store it in a reservoir or obtain a piped supply from the East Hunts Waterworks. The cost had been exaggerated and when the new system was working everybody would be pleased. But, if the water was impure, why had there been no illness and why did people live to such a great age in the parish? Mr Thomas Prior said he had come to the meeting to oppose it but found he could not do so. 09 06 11

Romsey House, Mill Road with its large gardens and shrubberies was the residence of the late Mr W.E. Curry and was built for the late J.W. Prior from the designs of Mr G.H. Shackle, architect of Marlborough. It is in red brick in the Tudor style and contains several exceptionally large rooms. It was bought with fixtures, by the Romsey Town Institute Committee for £1,435. 09 06 11

Record number of May Week visitors – 09 06 11
Abel Coole, Chesterton grocer – 09 06 11
Coveney – Leach farmer claims motor vehicle frightened horse to death – 09 06 11
Chesterton grocer 09 06 11 02 p2
Property market – 09 06 11 p2
Coveney death of Matthew Leach by car case – 09 06 11 p5
Rev A.J. C. Allen St Mary the Less- 09 06 11 07
Morley School additions – 09 06 11 p6
Child employment – 09 06 11 p7
Longstanton church – 09 06 11 p10

1909 06 18 CWN
At Christ's College a dainty lady in a fragile summer dress turned from a disgusted survey of the sullen grey clouds to stare at a big white poster advertising a Darwin Exhibition in the old library.

"Darwin" she queried with her forehead creased and wrinkled with the strain of the mighty mental effort, "He was somebody big, wasn't he, Billy?" Her escort agreed. "Well" said the lady with the absolute serenity of profound ignorance, "It's raining again, let's go in for half an hour" And they went. This is perfectly true. 09 06 18

The biggest incident of the May Week races was the appearance of 'Dreadnought8', a most ferocious affair made out of a fen barge with a chimney pot for a funnel commanded by an admiral who wielded a sixpenny sword. It managed to fire a salute though its drain pipe guns but in doing so nearly shattered its armament and all but blew its crew – in children's sailors' hats – into the water. 09 06 18

A company of cyclists from Swavesey and Over proceeding home on a Sabbath evening encountered two motor cars. There was a wholesale smash in which many pound's work of damage was done to one of the cars and several cycles were seriously knocked about. The driver said the cyclists had been drinking: they seemed to be all over the road. One said he'd been courting and had had twopence-worth of ginger wine; he wasn't drunk, he was in love which is much the same thing. 09 06 18

Canada. Britain's nearest overseas dominion. Britain's breadbasket. 160 acres Government land free for farming. Two years rent of an English farm will purchase an improved farm near prosperous settlements. Happy home and contentment. Profitable dairying. For full particulars apply to Superintendent of Canadian Emigration, Charing Cross, London: Advert. 09 06 18

A fire in a storeroom of the Cambridge Automobile Company threatened the offices of the Cambridge Independent Press beneath. The floor boards burned away and the hot embers dropped on a quantity of paper in the printing machine room which ignited a desk. The outbreak was discovered by Thomas Impey, a motor cleaner and R.C. Casley, an undergraduate of Sidney College motored for assistance. The Brigade with the engine, horse-escape and three reels extinguished the blaze. 09 06 18

PC Charles said he was concealed near the Greyhound public house at Little Wilbraham keeping watch on a group of men when one went to the pub, unlocked the door and returned with two bottles of beer. He heard the rattle of coins and somebody said 'Have you got any clods', meaning copper coins. The landlord said he lived at Prickwillow and had put in a manager, but was convicted of selling beer during prohibited hours. 09 06 18

Last senior wrangler – historic sketch – 09 06 18

1909 06 25 CWN
At the anniversary of Swaffham Prior Zion Union Chapel a handsome brass tablet was unveiled in memory of T.T. Ball, S. Chivers, G. Apthorpe and William Benstead. It was through the labours of the first three that the chapel was erected in 1862. Prior to that services were held in a barn. Mr Benstead was Sunday School superintendent for 45 years. A long programme of recitations was given by the children. 09 06 25

There was an exciting scene in Cambridge Market Street when a lady screamed "I am on fire". Her dress was blazing furiously and the combined effect of the screams and the flames on the crowded street can easily be imagined. Fortunately Mr A. Kester tore off the burning skirt with his hands and staff from Eaden Lilley rushed out of the shop with mats and rugs in which she was rolled until the flames were extinguished. It is presumed the dress, which was of flimsy material, was ignited by a match carelessly dropped by a passer-by. 09 06 25

Elsworth farmer's barley – Papworth – 09 06 25

Something strange was seen in the air over Knapwell. The policeman hurried to the scene on his bicycle where a crowd had collected, confident they had caught an airship. It proved to be a balloon which contained one passenger. The aeronaut's name was not known but 'C.S. Rolls' was marked on the canvas and it is thought it came from London. The balloon was packed up and conveyed by horse and cart to Old North Road Station. 09 06 25

The pump in Middle Watch, Swavesey is in a worse condition than ever. It used to be necessary to put down water (obtained from a pond or water butt) once a day to induce the bucket to act; now water has to be poured down each time it is used. This disregard of the health and convenience of residents seems inexplicable and the council should act. 09 06 25

July 1909 Cambridge Weekly News

1909 07 02
A number of village public houses are no longer economic and should close, magistrates were told. They included the Bell at Meldreth, Melbourn's Old Elm Tree, The Royal Oak Fulbourn, The Lamb and Lord Nelson at Cottenham, British Queen Chesterton, Queen's Head Dry Drayton, Over's Hare and Hounds, Balsham Five Awls and Soham's Fox-in-Wood. But the licensee of the Green Man at Swavesey said he did not want to leave it. CWN 09 07 02

The Rev J.C. Rust has been vicar of Soham for 35 years. It is a straggling town, for its population the longest in England. He was a bachelor when he came to the vicarage and did the first of the many wise things he has done as an example to his parishioners – he married his cousin and had five children. He has been very active: when the Parish Council was formed in 1895 he became the first chairman. He also took up Esperanto and preached the first sermon ever in that new language at Geneva in 1896. CWN 09 07 02

When Charles Darwin came to receive his Honorary Degree in the Senate House, years ago, undergraduates rose to the occasion. A thin chord had been quietly run across from one gallery to the other and just as the Orator began his choicest Latin praise, there suddenly slid down and swung, exactly over Darwin's head, the huge airy imitation of an ape dangling a rusty chain labelled 'Missing Link'. The laughter baffled all the efforts of the proctors to maintain order, even the grave and reverend dons could not help joining in. CWN 09 07 02

Harry Johnson, senior partner of the St Andrew's Street firm of newsagents, was endued with gentle courtesy and had not the personality which enters upon public contests with joy. He was a member of the Free Library Committee from 1875 and supported the Liberal Club, Young Men's Christian Association and the Peace and Arbitration Society. He was one of the earliest directors of the General (Histon Road) Cemetery Committee and treasurer of the Cambridge Esperanto Society. A large number of townspeople attended his funeral, anxious to pay their respects. CWN 09 07 02

Heavy rains have set back the strawberry crop around Wisbech, growers have suffered severely and some of the army of casual fruit pickers who annual swarm the district have had a bad time. But newspapers reports of the countryside in a state approaching riots, with hundreds of starving and destitute pickers camping in muddy fen roads and raiding villages in order to obtain food, or of hundreds of miserable families bring turned from the casual wards of the workhouses clamouring for shelter and being accommodated in the town hall are sheer nonsense. 09 07 02

Licencing – includes Meldreth Bell, Melbourn Old Elm Tree, Orwell Red Lion, Fulbourn Royal Oak, Cottenham Lamb & Lord Nelson, Chesterton British Queen, Prince of Wales, Dry Drayton Queen's head, Swavesey Green Man, Over Hare & Hounds, Balsham Five Awls, Soham Fox-in-wood,

Cambridge Prince of Wales & White Horse – CWN 09 07 02
Cherry Hinton dairyman fined – 09 07 02
Wood Ditton Pig & Whistle publican drowned – 09 07 02
Swavesey pump – 09 07 02

1909 07 09 CWN

Reach church was built on the site of the old one in 1860 and for 40 years schooling has been held there. But the Board of Education had signified its intention of withdrawing recognition so a new school is being built on the site of the old Ship Inn to accommodate 80 children. The architect is Hubert Hunt of Burwell and the builder J.G. Cowell of Soham. CWN 09 07 09

The wife of a Cambridge umbrella maker went to the police station in a distressed condition saying she had poisoned him by putting mercury in his beer. But police found he had not drunk the mixture and told her to go home. She said she could not: he had beaten her with an umbrella and she was black and blue. She was charged with attempted murder. CWN 09 07 09

There had been an outcry after Cambridge Corporation destroyed eight tenements when improving Northampton Street. Now they wanted to erect houses for persons of the working class on land in Albion Row, Lady Margaret Road and the Haymarket. Some would be on the site of the old cattle market. This had previously been moved to St Andrew's Hill, then in 1842 to Pound Hill and in 1887 to its present site near the railway station, an Inspector was told. CWN 09 07 09

The news of the death of Charles Cole Ambrose of Barway was received at Ely with the deepest feelings of regret and quite a gloom was cast over Soham where he was particularly well-known. He was a son of Cole Ambrose of Stuntney the best-known agriculturalist in the Eastern Counties and reputed to be the largest wheat-grower in England. He will be greatly missed in the neighbourhood of Fordy Farm where he was regarded as a good master and a kind and genial gentleman. CWN 09 07 09

One of the most vital needs of St Ives is an adequate sewage scheme. But the Council has decided not to go ahead with a scheme after the Ministry of Housing has refused to make a grant and it would have involved an additional rate of 14/- (70p) in the pound. They are now considering other ways of dealing with the river pollution. 09 07 09

Since 1904 a great deal of restoration work has been carried out at Over church. The organ was restored, a new buying ground enclosed and now they needed to repair the church bells. It is 90 years since they were rehung and Mr Charles Robinson, the oldest inhabitant and churchwarden for 40 years, had been laid inside the big tenor bell by his nurse when it was being done. Now the clappers had worn the insides very flat and they would have to be quarter toned. CWN 09 07 09

Hills Road mystery – baby – CWN 09 07 09
Trinity student killed at Brooklands motor racing track – CWN 09 07 09

1909 07 16 CWN
Sir Charles Rose, MP for East Cambs, has purchased the ancient estate of Hardwick on the banks of the Thames of which he has been tenant for 20 years. During this period he has enlarged the house, built large hothouses and a very large covered tennis court (which cost £2,000), besides half-a-dozen cottages for his employees. On the estate is an inn run on temperance lines by the Refreshment House Association, of which he is a member. He has also just purchased Hill Lodge, Pangbourne for his daughter. CWN 09 07 16

Cricket matches were the chief attraction at Conington feast. The Tuesday match against Knapwell was sadly interfered with by a heavy downpour of rain during which the teams were entertained to tea at the White Swan. On Wednesday the opposition was Fen Drayton whose veteran, T. Johnson, is a bowler of the 'googly' order. Although the pitch was too wet and soft to suit him, he was practically unplayable. CWN 09 07 16

The Plough, a lonely two-storied brick house on the road from Swavesey to Fen Drayton, is in course of demolition. Built in the earlier part of last century for a wayside public house it became a private dwelling about 20 years ago but of late has been tenantless. Between the ceiling of the downstairs room and the floor above a few copper coins, five or six clay pipes, two ancient thimbles, a reel of white cotton and the skeleton of a rat have been found. CWN 09 07 16

The news of the death of Charles Cole Ambrose of Barway was received at Ely with the deepest feelings of regret and quite a gloom was cast over Soham where he was particularly well-known. He was a son of Cole Ambrose of Stuntney the best-known agriculturalist in the Eastern Counties and reputed to be the largest wheat-grower in England. He will be greatly missed in the neighbourhood of Fordy Farm where he was regarded as a good master and a kind and genial gentleman. CWN 09 07 16

Fen Drayton vicarage robbed – CWN 09 07 16
Col Thomas William Harding, High Steward – profile – CWN 09 07 16

1909 07 23 CWN
The first visit of the Cambridge Police Force band to Coton some years ago will not soon be forgotten. A resident had arranged for a wagonettte for their conveyance but when turning a corner by Gt St Mary's they were surprised to see a wheel careering along beside them and the wagon gracefully toppled over, depositing the bandsmen in the roadway. They continued by charabanc but their former driver was accosted by a policeman and ordered to 'clear that wreckage away' or he would be run in. Considering he had brought it over for the conveyance of the police band his indignation can be imagined. CWN 09 07 23

On the banks of the river at Mildenhall, with its barges and locks and cheerful suggestions of commerce, stands an imposing stone building quite new, evidently a corn warehouse. However it has an inscription engraved in the stone: 'Established 1066. Rebuilt 1908'. If it really was started when Duke William fought the Battle of Hastings it must be quite the most ancient thing in East Anglia. It stands on the banks of the historic Lark – but I am not going to suggest that the inscription is also an historic lark. CWN 09 07 23

A.G. Markham cycling record – CWN 09 07 23
Collier Young councillor and bible teacher at Zion Baptist church – CWN 09 07 23
Police band visit to Coton show – thrown off cart at Madingley hill – CWN 09 07 23

1909 07 30 CWN
Mr S.G. Wilkinson of Brooklands Avenue said that when he called in tradesmen the builder had a Scotch foreman, the electric light foremen were Scotch, the electric bells were muddled by two Englishmen and finally put right by a Scotsman! Cambridge men would be quite content to live on the dole and would exist in discomfort rather than exert themselves over much. Most lived for the enjoyment of the next pleasure. The fair, the excursion, the treat, the Hippodrome, the sweet shop or the public house was the matter of chief moment to them. CWN 09 07 30

Before last June newspapers were received in Swavesey through the railway or by post. They had to be fetched from the station or came by the midday delivery and few people indulged in the luxury of a daily paper. Then W.F. Gleaves of High Street became agent for the 'Daily Mail' and later supplied all newspapers. Daily papers are now delivered immediately after receipt by the 8.25 train and certain London dailies arrive earlier. Under the old arrangement postal or railway charges had to be added to the cost of the paper. Now even in Elsworth, six miles distant, papers are delivered for face value. CWN 09 07 30

It is a pity that the new Isle of Ely County Hall at March should be placed in such an obscure part of the town, but it is very convenient for members arriving by train. The building is in the Georgian style of architecture and is a very substantial structure. Electric bells and speaking tubes are provided for the use of officials between the various rooms while the council chamber has seating on the horseshoe plan with a table for reporters, which will be much appreciated by the Press. A gallery affords accommodation for 100 persons, the meetings being open to the public. CWN 09 07 30

Fisher Webster of Willingham was connected with Robert Sayle and Co for nearly 40 years. He took charge of the shipping business of their London branch in Aldersgate Street and became their agent after they gave up their London house. He was well-known locally and used to ride out regularly on an old-fashioned tricycle. He had much to do with the china trade and his supply of anecdotes was inexhaustible. 09 07 30
Speed of motors in Abington – CWN 09 07 30

August 1909 CWN

1909 08 06 CWN
The Eastern Counties boast the cleanest bill of cattle health in the world, despite the many restrictions. So farmers are interested in the latest Chinese importations: 2,000 tons of frozen pigs together with 1,345 carcases of deer, 8,418 cases of poultry and 20,002 cases of eggs. If this continues it will prejudice the British farmer. True the price of home-cured bacon is increasing but at Haverhill recently there was such a glut of young porkers that a wholesale merchant was able to buy the lot at twopence-halfpenny per lb. 09 08 06

A correspondent calls attention to certain dilapidated cottages on the high road from Swavesey station to Over. These ancient buildings of stud and clay are windowless and door-less, making them the happy hunting ground of schoolchildren and a nightly refuge for tramps. They are being pulled to pieces bit by bit and before long will collapse, he fears. 09 08 06

Commenting on plans for the Melbourn Place Schools the Board of Education thought whole building appeared to be designed on too lavish a scale. On one hand they kept an infants' department, though cutting it down to absurdly small dimensions, and built no laboratories. On the other hand they greatly exceeded the normal for the central hall. The size might be reduced and the external ornament omitted. But this was more than an ordinary elementary school and to get the facilities required money must be spent. CWN 09 08 06

The most serious fire known in Royston for the last 30 years completely gutted Phillip's brewery in Baldock Street. Only recently the most modern plant was installed, today the ruins present a doleful spectacle. The brewery offices face the road and adjoining them is Brewery House occupied by Mr W.J. Abbott, upholsterer. He had died on Tuesday and his body lay in the house all the time. Nearby are premises of Warren Bros, printers and stationers which was also threatened. CWN 09 08 06

Sir - Why cannot better arrangements be made for the early closure of village shops in Swavesey? During summer months it would be a great boon to younger assistants if an earlier hour than four o'clock were adopted. In Willingham business on Wednesdays is suspended at one o'clock and the public do not complain of inconvenience and in Cambridge on Thursdays business ceases at the same hour. – Correspondent. CWN 09 08 06

1909 08 13 CWN
A petrol-driven motor boat owned by Mr John Scudamore, boat-builder of Mill Lane, and occupied by a party of five undergraduates caught fire when at the back of King's College and was burnt down to the water's edge. They had experienced difficulties with the 3½ horse-power engine and Mr Scudamore went to their assistance. He was examining it when it burst into flame. The cause is a mystery: nobody was smoking, the engine-bearings were not overheated and there was no escape of petrol. CWN 09 08 13

The former County Surveyor had two sub-surveyors to assist him. Of these Mr Papworth, had given every satisfaction for 20 years. He had practically lived on the road and spared no time or trouble contending against many difficulties. Now they were to be got rid of – cast aside like old shoes – and their places filled by clerk – after giving the best years of their lives to the service of the County Council. It seems a rather shabby way of encouraging the others, says 'The Surveyor' journal. CWN 09 08 13

The Directors of the Ouse Navigation Ltd have been unable to raise the necessary funds and deposits have been returned to those who subscribed for shares. They had offered £5,000 for the toll-rights and property belonging to the Navigation, which was declined. They expressed surprise at the indifference shown by people in Cambridgeshire. But few people knew about it. Looking through the Files of the C.D.N. and Cambridgeshire Weekly News we are unable to trace any reference to the enterprise. If the Directors did not take the trouble to explain their proposals to the public they can hardly blame the public for not being interested in them. CWN 09 08 13

Edwin Banks, captain of the Belmont Cycling Club created a record at the Mammoth sports by winning four championships in one afternoon. He became infatuated with the sport at the tender age of 13 and later became a member of the famous Manchester Wheelers, the wealthiest club in the world. He came to Cambridge in 1908 and last year won 17 prizes. He has had spills innumerable, suffering dislocated shoulders, a broken collar bone and a broken wrist. CWN 09 08 13

Harry Beaumont who went to Canada from Swavesey in 1907, has written to tell of a sad disaster. He acquired a piece of land near Nelson, British Columbia, and built a wooden hut. But while lighting a smoking fire in a tin to drive out mosquitoes a spark set some brushwood alight and the cabin was burnt down. He rescued a box containing his papers but everything else, including his carpentering tools, violin, camera and much-prized books have been destroyed. CWN 09 08 13

1909 08 20 CWN
Charles Robinson is regarded as the father of the parish of Over and for the whole of his 90 years he has taken an interest in his native parish. He went to see Queen Victoria on her first visit to Cambridge, remembers the hustings on Parker's Piece and vividly recalls travel by the old stage coach. In those days only three newspapers were taken in the parish, now 20 times that number are delivered daily. In 1839 he became landlord of the Admiral Vernon Inn, then an old clay and stud thatched building. It burnt down in 1889 when the present excellent premises were erected. 09 08 20

Since the opening of the Willingham Baptist Tabernacle, 35 years ago, the congregation has had to be content to sing their hymns to the accompaniment of an American organ. Now they have a new organ built by Porritt & Sons of Leicester which is blown by a petrol engine. At the opening shopkeepers closed their establishments at midday and people crowded in from near and far. CWN 09 08 20

Villagers at Little Abington have made a speciality of nicknames. They include Porky, Plucky, Dumpling, Bowsher, Dash It, Grimmy, Brusher, Cad, Snaggy, Squinky and Doddybird. So popular have some become that few know the proper Christian names until marriage or death. It has been stated that nicknames are more popular in Cambridgeshire than any other county. 09 08 20

The three well-known tumuli at the top of Alms Hill, Bourn, are being opened. A deep cutting has been made across the first one, but nothing of great value found. The chief discoveries include bones and teeth of domestic animals, oyster shells and bits of bronze. This may be due to it having been opened by Earl Delawan 50 years ago. It is hoped that the second tumuli will be more interesting. 09 08 20

About noon on Friday a mysterious object was observed in the sky hovering over Church End, Swavesey. People stopped and stared and wondered. Housewives rushed from their kitchen recklessly leaving pots and pans to boil over and their dinners at the mercy of the predatory cat, and men in the fields dropped their tools and gazed. The much talked-of airship had come at last. No it was too small: it must be an aeroplane with M. Bleriot aboard. At length a keen-eyed gazer detected a line connecting the flying object to the earth. It was a kite resembling an aeroplane sent up by some London visitors who were sitting quietly in Mr Twist's stack yard oblivious of the excitement they had caused. CWN 09 08 20

Boxworth boys thought drowned in pond, village pump out of order – CWN 09 08 20

1909 08 27 CWN
We deeply regret to record the death of John Austin Catchpole. Few men have struggled more bravely under physical infirmity. Born in Cambridge 65 years ago he showed promise of developing into a healthy boy when the carelessness of a servant girl crippled him for life. Left in her charge, he was seated upon wet grass, illness ensued and his lower limbs became permanently paralysed. Unable to go to school he was tutored at home and decided to become a schoolteacher. He started the Auckland School private school which at one time had 60 boys upon the register. CWN 09 08 27

A small-holder, horny-handed, weather beaten and obviously a hard worker, led the way to his oat field where the shocks of golden grain were awaiting carting. He was one of the pioneering Burwell Small Holdings scheme, a sturdy, independent and cheerful race springing up from the labouring and small tradesmen class thankful for the reform which has given them a share in the soil. Hall Farm, a white-washed homestead ringed by a fruitful orchard typifies country life at its best while eight cottages are now being built each with an acre of ground attached. CWN 09 08 27

Fatigued by an evening spent in picking fruit a Swavesey young lady sat down to supper when she felt a bite or sting. She searched for the intrusive insect, but it was something more terrifying. A mouse ran from her clothing and a mouse has terrors for the female mind. Even the boldest suffragette who has smacked the face of a gentleman clad in official blue or spent long hours on the roof of a public building is understood to quail before a mouse. So the Swavesey young lady's fright can well be imagined. CWN 09 08 27

Isleham Hospital Sunday parade a success – CWN 09 08 27
Swavesey tap-room clock, water baby – swims in pond – CWN 09 08 27
Willingham Tabernacle organ opened – CWN 09 08 27
Elsworth - Alfred Wilderspin emigrate to Texas, USA – CWN 09 08 27
Bourn vicar's return from honeymoon – carriage pulled through street – CWN 09 08 27

September 1909 CWN

1909 09 03
Dr George Cunningham told an International Congress in Berlin of the work of the Cambridge School Dental Clinic, the only one of its kind in England. Mr Sedley Taylor of Trinity College had been shocked at the state of children's teeth and funded a dentist to investigate. He found the condition of their temporary teeth was so bad that proper treatment was impossible. The best thing was to concentrate exclusively on permanent teeth which appear after the sixth year. The results were so convincing that the Town Council decided to fund the clinic. CEN 09 09 03

The advent of the motor has thrown upon the highway authority the burden of maintaining roads at a much higher pitch of efficiency with the result that county rates have increased by leaps and bounds. It is manifestly unfair that the average ratepayer should pay through the nose for the benefit of the wealthy motor car owner or that the motorist should defray the entire cost of improvements which benefit the whole community. Something must be done. Cycling for pleasure has become quite impossible for people of nervous temperament and even the pedestrian is attended by danger. Now the Government proposes new roads for the exclusive use of motorists to scorch along and the imposition of a ten mile an hour speed limit on the others. CWN 09 09 03

The unanimous opposition to the scheme to drive a road across Parker's Piece should have disposed of it for ever. Should some rash member of the Council wish to make his name by re-introducing it he should first study the indenture made on March 23rd 1612 between the Master and Fellows of Trinity College and the Mayor and Burgesses of Cambridge by which the Piece became the property of the people. One clause stipulates that either body 'consenting to any act to impeach this agreement' should forfeit £300 to the other. It seems to me that the recent proposals would come under this head. CWN 09 09 03

'Charlie' Rowell, one of the greatest long-distance runners the world has ever seen, died at his residence in King Street. In the days when six-day races were popular Rowell was a name to conjure in two continents. He won races innumerable, won a cart-load of trophies and cash prizes to an enormous value. He paid several visits to America where on one occasions his opponents drugged his food. But he still finished second! CWN 09 09 03

The Boxworth policeman, whose proportions border on the gigantic, was proceeding home when he heard a mysterious knocking noise near some cottages. He discovered a wild-looking man carrying a knob stick. He wore no trousers or no coat and was clothed only in a shirt and a pair of heavy boots. Fortunately the constable knew the man: he is a horsekeeper and was calling up the other horsekeepers, who at this time of year have to get up early. Also other interesting notes on harvesting. CWN 09 09 03

A sad procession was seen wending its way towards Swavesey from the river. Surrounded by a company of young men was a four-wheeled trolley on which was borne the ancient boat which Mr Henry Beaumont, the far-famed Swavesey angler, has for many years used on his fishing expeditions. The old craft has been patched again and again but it now beyond repair. It may become a beehive or be set on end to form a garden seat. Or it may be broken up and add heat and cheerfulness to the room where trophies of its owner's rod and line are displayed. CWN 09 09 03

There was a serious fire in Back Lane, Balsham, when two cottages belonging to Mr Cornell were burnt down. Someone was trying to burn out a wasps' nest in the house-thatch which caught fire. There are some 20 cottages close together in Back Lane but P.C. Lovett and others directed their efforts to prevent the fire spreading. At Barley a young man was arrested for setting light to a hay stack near Broadmore Pond. CWN 09 09 03

1909 09 10 CWN
A shepherd from Oxlode, Little Downham, told the official receiver he had been in the habit of hiring grass land on the washes for the hay and also went half-shares with persons for growing potatoes. "Then in 1903 heavy floods carried a portion of my hay away and completely spoilt the remainder. The same year I lost considerably by the potato blight and my occupation as a shepherd I also lost". When he started he had about £15 in cash but several creditors obtained judgements again him. Now his effects will be sold, though his wife claims certain items of furniture. CWN 09 09 10

'Thornlea', a large house in Chaucer Road, was the scene of a daring burglary. Entry was gained by cutting away the wood of the kitchen window, outside which were blurred footprints, showing the burglar wore socks over his boots. He crawled through a small opening in the wall to get into the dining room and broke open a lady's work box with a poker. He then took food from the larder and smoked a cigar but ignored the silver candlesticks and other valuable ornaments. The owners were asleep upstairs at the time. CWN 09 09 10

A gramophone meeting was held at Fen Ditton in support of the Government's budget. Some delay was caused by the gramophone having gone wrong but Mr S. Mallyon lent his machine. First a musical selection was rendered and then recordings of speeches by the Prime Minister (H.H. Asquith), Chancellor of the Exchequer (Lloyd George) and President of the Board of Trade (Mr Winston Churchill) were heard. There was a good attendance of men and youth but the room was not full. CWN 09 09 10

Mr Barker, a well-known farmer of Clayway Drove, was driving down Ely High Street when he became ill and crashed into Mr Benson's baker's cart. His horse then went on, increasing his pace, collided with the lamp-post against Barclay's Bank and then ran into the cart of Mr R.W. King, butcher. The animal fell on its haunches, then freed itself from the cart before falling and skidding on its side down Fore Hill. Mr Barker suffered concussion and cuts and did not recover consciousness for seven hours. CWN 09 09 10

Conington church nave and vestry have been thoroughly restored with a new nave roof, ceiling, and organ. The east wall has been underpinned but the walls of the tower are badly cracked, the spire needs strengthening and the bells rehung. The thatched church of St Michael, Longstanton, which has fallen into a bad state of disrepair, is now in the hands of the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings who were responsible for the restoration of the Hatton Chapel at Longstanton All Saint's and Lolworth Church. CWN 09 09 10

1909 09 17
All Cambridge will soon be taking a deep personal interest in aviation. In a large barn at Oakington is the slim wooden skeleton of one of the first all-British monoplanes. The plane, which will soon be completed and ready for trial spins, is the joint work of Messrs A.M. Grose and N.A. Feary, two expert London engineers. It will be fitted with a 20 horse-power engine and has already been entered for the 'Daily Mail' £1,000 prize for the first circular flight by an all-British aeroplane. They selected Oakington for the express purpose of dodging inquisitive Press but gave a courteous interview to the News representative. CWN 09 09 17 & CWN 09 09 24

The staff and scholars of the Cambridge and County School for Girls have left the unpretentious and ninconvenient building in East Road and are safely ensconced in a brand new school built on the most scientific lines and equipped with everything the modern educational establishment requires. It is approached by a drive from Collier Road and surrounded by ample grounds. CWN 09 09 17

After leading an irregular life for years and having no settled place of abode, an agricultural labourer known as 'Lurcher' came to an untimely end. There were no relatives to identify the body but Aaron Hobbs from Lt Downham, who was an agricultural labourer until he had both feet cut off on the railway, said the deceased was about 32 and 'pretty good for drink at any time' who only worked when he liked. He'd been rather a 'rum' character all his life. CWN 09 09 17

A new religious house has been founded at Cambridge. It will have no official connection with the University and be used for serious study. Its head is Father Waggett who gave a series of lectures which attracted considerable attention. The house in Malting Lane is a beautiful structure whose deeds date back to the time of Charles I. Its delightful old-world garden of nearly two acres would permit of ample additions in future years. CWN 09 09 17

Ely cathedral lightning conductors fitted – CWN 09 09 17

The danger of fire at cinematographic exhibitions, such as that at Newmarket a couple of years ago which caused fatal panic, has now been eliminated. A demonstration of the new Mansell cinematographic machines was given at Cambridge Guildhall. The lantern is guaranteed fireproof and enclosed in an iron operating house. Even under circumstances of the grossest carelessness, which no operator would ever risk, all that would happen is that just two inches of film would be fired. 09 09 17

1909 09 24 CWN
An explosion occurred at the Cambridge Gasworks on Newmarket Road. Two men working on the top of the beds of the retorts were badly cut but managed safely to descend a ladder to the ground. Covered with tar and bleeding profusely they were conveyed in a cab to Addenbrooke's Hospital. One refused to be put under chloroform whilst his injuries were dressed as that would necessitate his detention in the Hospital. CWN 09 09 24

October 1909 CWN

1909 10 01
No paper at CUL

1909 10 08
Abington Pigotts parish church dedicated a new organ. It is a handsome instrument, built by Cousans of Lincoln, and will be a welcome addition to the interior of this pretty little church. It is enclosed in a case of fumed oak designed not to obscure the monument to the late William Foster-Pigott in whose memory it has been erected by his relatives and friends. CWN 09 10 08

The pretty little churchyard which surrounds the ancient parish church at Hinxton, dotted with weather-soiled tombstones marking the resting-places of many generations of villagers is no longer sufficient to meet the needs of the parish. Fortunately a piece of land was secured on the opposite side of the vicarage. There was a large congregation for its consecration by the Bishop. CWN 09 10 08

St Botolph's Church reopened after restoration. The old ceiling in the nave, which was in a very dilapidated condition, has been replastered and re-decorated. A new hot-water pipe heating apparatus has been installed by Messrs Headley and Edwards together with a hydraulic appliance for blowing the organ by Messrs Miller of Sidney Street. CWN 09 10 08

The smaller of two weights of the clock in the tower of Swavesey church fell with a crash on Sunday when the wire broke. There was nobody in the church at the time but Mr J. Bridgford, who was in the yard of the Manor opposite, heard the crash. It was repaired by Mr E. Trench Smith, clockmaker of Huntingdon, and set going again to the satisfaction of the dwellers in Church End and of persons hurrying to catch trains. CWN 09 10 08

Whitehead solicitor's clerk's fraud – 09 10 08
Oakington aircraft news – 09 10 08

1909 10 15 CWN
No paper at CUL

1909 10 22 CWN
In 1860 a 'school-church' was built on the site of the ancient chapel-of-ease dedicated to St Etheldreda at Reach. It was served for 49 years before in 1909 the Board of Education refused to allow it to continue. However villagers had meanwhile bought an inn from the Cambridge Brewery Company and decided to use the site to build a new school to accommodate 80 children. At the opening villagers were praised for their good work: it was an example to many other places. CWN 09 10 22

There were exciting scenes at the Pickerel Yard, Magdalene Street after a loud explosion was heard in the harness-room. Fred Silk had been cleaning his motor bicycle and in filling the tank had spilt petrol. He then lit the acetylene lamp and threw the match down. Immediately flames sprang from the floor and the petrol tank exploded. His arm was rather badly burned and bicycle left in a fearful state, though not damaged beyond repair: about half the back tyre was burned completely away. The fire was put out by Thomas Frohock, a porter at Magdalene College, using a Minimax patent extinguisher. CWN 09 10 22

Shoppers had the unusual opportunity of seeing an aeroplane in the streets of Cambridge. It was an all-British monoplane invented and designed by Jack Humphreys, founder of the British Aeroplane Syndicate and one-time Cambridge resident. He had worked day and night at Wivenhoe to get the machine ready for the Blackpool meeting and had hoped to put it on the train there. Instead he had it towed it to Cambridge but missed the turning at Station Road and had to drive through the narrow central streets until he could get back. A crowd of railway officials, crossing-sweepers and daintily-dressed ladies quickly clustered around it. CWN 09 10 22

The magnificent new home of the Cambridge and County School for Girls is compact and central, calm and commodious and includes laboratories for chemistry and domestic science together with a hothouse for the study of botany. Its object is to provide a sound practical middle class education at a moderate fee. The adjacent School of Arts and Crafts has rooms for life-painting, modelling and geometrical drawing. They were opened by the American ambassador. CWN 09 10 22

A number of cyclists appeared in court for various offences. Undergraduates from Caius, Trinity and St John's Colleges were fined for causing obstructions with their bicycles. Geoffrey Clayton of Pembroke College was summonsed for wheeling his bike across Christ's Pieces; he said he was a Freshman and had not seen the warning notices. Harold Grace of Queens' was fined for a similar offence in Portugal Place as was Edgar Proctor, a tobacconist of Mill Road. Carey Palmer, a printer of Warkworth Street, was fined five shillings for riding a cycle with no lights on New Square. CWN 09 10 22

Wicken smallholdings inquiry, Upware Road – 09 10 22

An inquiry into County Council plans to acquire land for smallholdings at Thornhall Farm on the Upware Road, Wicken was told they needed 300 acres of land and this was suitable. They had opened negotiations but the trustees were not willing to let it for more than eight years so they'd decided on compulsory purchase. Since then the land had been leased by Robert Fuller and Henry Bailey for a period of ten years. It was so mixed up with the Spinney Estates that it would be hard to separate it. CDN 09 10 22

1909 10 29 CWN
George 'Fish' Smart, the prettiest and fastest skater Britain has ever produced, has died from injuries sustained in an accident at the new dock which is being constructed at Hull. He was the most famous of the three famous 'Welney Division' of fen skaters founded by the renowned 'Turkey' Smart. He started skating as a boy and beat his all-conquering cousin, George See in 1878. But he retired when beaten by his younger brother James. 'Fish', who was 51, had been completely lost sight of in sporting circles in recent years. CDN 09 10 29

A girl boarded-out at Brinkley had a peculiar disease described as a band of music within her. It sounded so loud that it could be heard throughout the school and when she was upstairs the sounds could be heard all through the house. She had been sent to the Workhouse Infirmary and after some months the band was silent. But then it had started again. It was no matter for joking, it was a very serious matter indeed, Newmarket Guardians were told. CDN 09 10 29

The Cambridge Gas Company's Employee's Institute includes hot and cold baths, a reading-room and a large hall heated by hot water pipes making it a place where they may find healthy recreation out of working hours. The Company hope to introduce a system of co-partnership, making every employee a shareholder and giving a bonus in shares every profit-making year. CDN 09 10 29

A terrible story of the most revolting cruelties imaginable was told by the secretary of the Congo Reform Association to a large audience at St Andrew's Street Chapel. He had seen natives with their little baskets of rubber being whipped by white men. The rules state they may be given 28 strokes in one day but this must stop if they bleed or faint away. Christian men and women should to use their influences to secure better conditions. CDN 09 10 29

A few playful little sparks from a passing traction engine ignited thatched roofs and caused a big fire at Hauxton. The Leather Gaiters public house together with two large barns and various stacks were destroyed and animals roasted alive. The engine was drawing several waggon loads of the University Officers Training Corps who were engaged in a sham fight in the neighbourhood. CDN 09 10 29

Cambridge Town Council – bathing places, water supply, fire brigade, library – 09 10 29

November 1909 CWN

1909 11 05 CWN
Some 18 years ago there was an outbreak of typhoid in Fen Ditton and most of the private wells were condemned. Two new wells were sunk at Green End and on the site of the old village Pound. For a while all went well but then the water grew dirty and began to fail until villagers had to eke out supplies by courtesy of those with private wells. They must sink another well or arrange a supply of piped water, a meeting was told. CWN 09 11 05

An old Fenlander walked to Cambridge seeking a good square meal. He searched a goodish few streets and wandered into colleges seeking a good juicy steak. Getting desperate he noticed a shop in Sidney Street where spread out on a gleaming white tablecloth was an amplitude of appetising cold viands. He entered only to emerge swearing: "That be a gas shop, and I am starving". He was right. It has been opened to demonstrate the popularity of gas for lighting, heating and cooking. CWN 09 11 05

Cottenham previously obtained its water from three surface wells and distributed it through earthenware pipes. But a soldier on furlough, who was a convalescent from typhoid fever but still a 'carrier' of the disease germs, came to visit his relatives in a cottages near one of the sources of supply and soon contaminated it. The infection was carried to 35 householders, six of whom died. Now many of the larger houses have water laid on, the Medical Officer reported. CWN 09 11 05

A school should be established at Childerley Gate in the centre of a thinly-populated district that was remote from all the surrounding villages. At present children were being conveyed to Bourn. If a school for 80 was built some children from Scotland Farm would go there, as it was nearer than Dry Drayton. But Ald Frohock maintained such a large school was not needed and it would be better to staff existing schools better. 09 11 05

Miss Constance Cochrane has designed and built a couple of 'Rest Houses' at Croxton as a gift to the parish. The first tenants will include an old agricultural labourer whose health has broken down and his wife who is 69 years of age and supports herself by needlework. They will have no rents to pay, merely the rates. Sixty schoolchildren sang special verses after which a hundred adults and the men who have worked on the buildings partook of tea at The Downs to mark the opening. CWN 09 11 05

Kettles Yard houses unfit for human habitation – CWN 09 11 05

Small Holdings experiments start – CWN 09 11 05

1909 11 12 CWN
Fire broke out close to the chimney of an old thatched house in Church Street, Willingham occupied by Joseph Housden. It quickly spread to the adjoining house, also thatched, tenanted by Mrs B. Wilson, who keepers a drapery and grocery shop. The two houses were doomed but the amateur firemen with the parish engine devoted their best efforts to preventing the flames spreading & fire hooks were found very useful. All that now remains is a heap of ruins. This is the second case within a few weeks of old thatched property in the village being destroyed by fire. CEN 09 11 12

An old lady over 80 years of age who lived alone in a house in Vicar's terrace leading from St Tibb's Row was found nearly asphyxiated from gas and never regained consciousness. Her son-in-law noticed that the blinds were drawn and broke a window to get in. He noticed a peculiar smell as if somebody had been using methylated spirit. The lady never regained consciousness. It seems that a main became broken from heavy traffic and the escaping gas got under the flooring of the house in the night. CWN 09 11 12

It was time the river Cam was dredged, Mr Whibley told the Cam Sailing Club Dinner. He did not mind telling them a secret: the Conservators always had their annual river outing and last year got stuck on the mud at the Horse Grind, Chesterton. He could not help thinking what a lovely postcard that would have made! As soon as the Mayor, Ald Spalding, had been appointed he had looked into the matter. Of course they could not please everybody: a gentleman he knew who lived not far from Clayhithe had been complaining that there was a draught in his garden because the dredger had been taken away. (Laughter and applause). CWN 09 11 12

Damage was caused to the house of Mr A. Carter, cab proprietor and common lodging-house keeper on Honey Hill, formerly known as the Beehive beerhouse. Fire broke out in the former tap room, now used as a bedroom. It appears his wife went into the room for some wearing apparel and the flame from her candle ignited some fancy mats hanging on the chest of drawers. A quantity of shawls, dresses and bonnets which were hanging on the wall, some brushes and the ceiling were damaged. Another fire in the basement of a lodging house at 17 Market Hill was noticed by undergraduates and extinguished by buckets of water. CWN 09 11 12

An exciting incident occurred at the Mill Drove Railway Crossing near Soham. Charles Aspland was coming from his farm bringing a portable horse-drawn hen house filled with young fowls which had been turned out some days on a corn field. One of its wheels got jammed between the railway line and the wooden floor of the crossing and try as he would he could not get it free. Suddenly the Newmarket special train with racehorses for Liverpool dashed into the henhouse splintering it across the line and killing 35 of the fowls. The engine sustained no damage whatsoever. CWN 09 11 12

Stretham Harvest Home, Bailey & Tebbutt – CWN 09 11 12

Kirtling water supply – CWN 09 11 12

Bonfire night scenes – CWN 09 11 12

1909 11 19 CWN
One of the most successful undergraduate hoaxes ever perpetrated was carried out in the hall of Emmanuel College. Mr W.M. Malleson, a prominent member of the University Amateur Dramatic Club, disguised by a florid countenance with a grizzled grey moustache and beard impersonated Mr G. B. Haddock, the Liberal MP for North Lonsdale. He delivered a pithy address on Women's Suffrage. From first to last, despite the name of 'Haddock' there was no suspicion of 'cod' on the part of the audience who took the debate in real earnest. CWN 09 11 19

Frederic William Hodgson carried on the business as plumber and decorator for nearly 30 years. He was a life-long abstainer and the oldest Deputy Grand Worthy Patriarch of the Cambridge Sons of Temperance, having cycled some thousands of miles whilst engaged in propaganda work. The sad cortege proceeded from his house in Peas Hill to Mill Road cemetery where the first part of the funeral service was conducted in the chapel. The coffin was borne by fellow members of friendly societies. CEN 09 11 19

The position of Ale Conner at Over is still current. The present occupier of this ancient officer was told by the Lord of the Manor's representative when appointed that he should visit the public-houses in the village and taste the beer – though he need not visit all the houses on one night. Both the Ale Connor and Pindar received a shilling on appointment, just as Army recruits used to be given the 'Queen's Shilling' on enlistment in days gone by. CWN 09 11 19

On Friday night a man who has recently taken up his abode in Fen Drayton missed the bridge across the brook opposite the blacksmith's shop and walked into the water. The night was very dark and there are no street lamps. The brook, which runs the whole length of the main street, is unprotected and the banks are steep. Four years ago a man lost his life in consequence of a similar fall and last December an aged inhabitant also came to grief in the darkness. One or two generous inhabitants have offered to present lamps but the cost of up-keep proved an obstacle. CWN 09 11 19

Debt collector's bankruptcy - CEN 09 11 19

The latest addition to the numerous miniature rifle clubs has been formed in connection with the Loyal Suffolk Hussars at Ye Olde Castel Hotel, St Andrew's Street. - CWN 09 11 19

1909 11 26 CWN
Councillors considered a police report on the auctioneers or cheap-jacks who visit Cambridge Market Hill on Saturday evenings and the Peas Hill in daytime with 'mock' jewellery. It was agreed such persons be not allowed and that in future 'Hoop-la' stalls be not allowed on Market Hill. A suggestion from the Cambridge University Automobile Club as to the placing of mirrors at the Bridge Street end of Jesus Lane was rejected. Drains in City Road and Eden Street were a nuisance and injurious to health, owners should do the necessary work or it will be done by the Surveyor and charged to them. CWN 09 11 26

Harry William Wallis, auctioneer, said he taken over the business from his father in 1907 and paid off his debts. As well as the ordinary business of auctioneer he also bought furniture which he sold at his weekly auction sales. He got into difficulties after a man offered him very cheap bicycles for sale for auction but then had not supplied them. Amongst those to which he owed money was a bedstead make in Dudley, a furniture dealer from Bethnal Green, a cabinet-maker from Hackney and P.A. Stevenson a Cambridge outfitter. CWN 09 11 26

Mr Dennis, a man of the utmost credence in Isleham, states quite seriously that on Tuesday night he saw a floating light in the sky. Struck by the unusual spectacle he watched it proceed in a straight light across the railroad and on to Fordham. Mr Dilley, the Newmarket and Isleham carrier was on the road near Fordham at the same time but saw nothing. CWN 09 11 26

A clergyman who had ministered temporarily at Barrington in 1908 was cited as co-respondent in a divorce case. Mr K.W., not thinking there was anything between his wife and the cleric, had consented to his family staying with him but afterwards came to the conclusion there had been misconduct. He had thrashed the curate three times for visiting his wife during his absence but the man refused to cease his visits to her. The wife petitioned for a judicial separation on the grounds of cruelty. CWN 09 11 26

There had been a serious outbreak of diphtheria at Stapleford resulting in two deaths. The Sanitary Inspector has secured permission to use an old school for an Isolation Hospital and to move the nurses and the children there. Bedding had been secured from the Oakington Isolation Hospital but there were still one or two items of furniture needed. He could not use the Histon Isolation Hospital because there were so many cases of scarlet fever there and it would be impossible to allot separate wards for each disease. Also complaint about the Oakington hospital. CWN 09 11 26

December 1909 CWN

1909 12 03
Lacon's brewery should receive £143 in compensation for the closure of the Red Lion public house at Orwell, the tenant, George Everitt, £16 and the Lord of the Manor £5, councillors decided. They awarded £200 compensation for the Fox and Duck in South Street Cambridge and £325 for the White Horse in Coronation Street. Agreement was also reached on The Bell at Meldreth, The Old Elm Tree Melbourn and the British Queen and Prince of Wales in Chesterton. CWN 09 12 03

The Ortona Motor Bus Company, whose enterprise has proved such a boon in Cambridge and Chesterton, intend to commence a service to Sawston via Trumpington, Shelford and Stapleford. A fine new Maudsley bus has been obtained which will do the full journey in 50 minutes. Parcels as well as passengers will be carried. CWN 09 12 03

Senior Proctor & RSPCA CWN 09 12 03 p3

1909 12 10
Sir – At one time there were 50 basket makers at work in Ely, today there are not more than 20. The sight of trolley loads of baskets being taken to the railway station for transit away has become a rarity. Many makers are now employed at butchering, cow keeping, chimney sweeping or on the railway. Recently an Ely basket maker went to London for orders and could have had an order for 300 baskets but for the fact that he could not compete with the foreign price – Walter Kirton, Ely. CWN 09 12 10

The new skating rink at the back of Hertford Street was constructed to avoid any noise nuisance. Rinking was a fashionable amusement and there would be a charge so it would not be overrun with the rough element. They wanted to have a string band, with no drums, to play at intervals. There was not the slightest intention of making it a dancing saloon but they would like a licence so it could be used for subscription dances during May Week. CWN 09 12 10

Farmers backed Huntingdonshire County Council's refusal to declare the county an infested swine fever area. It would deal very harshly with the small pig breeder whereas it was the large dealers who were the offenders. The recent disease was different from the old swine fever. But the Board of Agriculture may put the order in force themselves and charge the county with the cost. CWN 09 12 10

Following a prosecution of an undergraduate for alleged cruelty to a deer when hunted by the University Draghounds the Vice Chancellor has ordered that the stags kept by the hunt are to be sent away from Cambridge. In future the hunting of deer or other animals kept in confinement renders members of the University amenable to the Court of Discipline. The practice, therefore, so far as the University is concerned, is at an end. CWN 09 12 03

While a young woman was busily engaged at the back of her house in High Street, Willingham, she heard an ominous sound as if the roof was giving way. She rushed into the open, just managing to get out of the door when the roof and walls collapsed. Fortunately, though frightened, she sustained no injury, but had she been a moment later she must have been seriously hurt. CWN 09 12 10

The popularity of football is on the increase and the young men of Over have formed a football club. On Saturday they played their first match, manfully defying a snow storm. It was the first game of football in the village for many a long year at any rate. The visiting team came from Needingworth and a keenly-fought game resulted in a tie of one goal each, greatly pleasing and surprising their supporters. CWN 09 12 10

1909 12 17 CWN
It is highly desirable that the footways should be kept clean and it may come as news to many that there is a bye-law which requires occupiers of any premises fronting or adjoining any street to cleanse the adjoining footways and pavements at least once every day, when necessary, excepting Sunday. The Chief Constable has been informed so Cambridge householders had better look out in future. CWN 09 12 17

In the early hours when all Ely was sound asleep, a fire broke out in the stores of Messrs Sturton and Howard, oil and colour merchants and chemists, Fore Hill. On the ground floor were stored oils and brushes, on the first floor a large quantity of matches, mops and baskets and on the second drugs, stationery etc. There was fortunately little oil in the cisterns and a large quantity of Christmas goods had been recently removed. The whole store was gutted and the walls knocked down. One theory is that vermin might have ignited a box of matches. CWN 09 12 17

1909 12 24 CWN
People out shopping in Cambridge witness the curious site of 'six foot two' policeman walking toward the Police Station with a diminutive child toddling along by his side. Of course the child was lost, but he seemed utterly unconcerned. This was not the first time this little mite had landed safe in the hands of a policeman. He had been often brought into the town by older boys who ultimately left him to his own devices. Boys will be boys but this is a dangerous game to play. 09 12 24

1909 12 31 CWN
As polling dates are fixed both political parties have redoubled their vigour. In Cambridge Mr S.O. Buckmaster spoke at the Gladstone Centenary Dinner at the Cherry Hinton Liberal Club while Almeric Paget has meetings arranged at St Barnabas Institute. The fight in East and West Cambs bids fair to be especially keen with meetings some distance apart. The motor car is a wonderful ally and enables the candidates to set distance and bad roads at naught but it is not conducive to the best of health to be exposed to the vagaries of the climate while travelling at high speed from one hot and crowded meeting room to the next. CWN 09 12 31

Captain W.E. Morrison-Bell addressed one of the most remarkable meetings during the whole of his political campaign when he spoke at Cottenham. The audience was palpably out of all sympathy with the Conservative candidate but there was none of the disorder for which Cottenham is associated. Interruptions were confined to impromptu comments and occasionally the audience set up a discussion on their own account, but he received a fair hearing. CWN 09 12 31

A labourer and a French polisher of no fixed abode, were charged with travelling on the train from Newmarket to Cambridge without having previously paid their fare. The facts were stated by Ticket Collector G.E. Sanders and P.C. Evans of the G.E.R. police. They pleaded guilty and were fined five shillings, in default seven days in prison. They went to prison. CWN 09 12 31

The 250-year-old Tithe Barn in Shelley-Row, Castle End is to be pulled down to make way for new houses. It is still in good repair with patches of new straw used to mend the high and thickly-thatched roof. It was used as a resting-place by the French prisoners taken in the Peninsular War during their journey to the prison camp at Norman Cross. Many people bought objects such as dice and dominoes they made from the bones of the meat supplied to them. The 'True Blue' in Hobson Street was also one of the billets. CWN 09 12 31

The Misses Storey gave their annual ball in the Masonic Hall which was attended by about 90 of their pupils and friends. An excellent programme of dances was arranged. The music was in the capable hands of Messrs Oliver Clifton and J. Parkinson and with the floor in good condition dancing was kept up from nine until nearly three o'clock. Previously a children's ball had attracted 60 and the whole of the party had their photo taken by flashlight. CWN 09 12 31

On Tuesday evening a wall of the stables and granary owned by Mr Abraham Fordham at Swaffham Bulbeck fell to the ground. Owing to the collapse of the wall about 200 combs of barley and oats were precipitated into the yard. To add to his misfortune a heavy rain was falling at the time. Some horses stabled below had a very narrow escape from injury. A heavy portion of the flooring above crashed down on the manger, fortunately without causing any injury to the animals. CWN 09 12 31

The festivities of Christmas Day passed off in a most enjoyable manner at Caxton Workhouse. The chapel, dining hall and sick wards were tastefully decorated one dinner consisted of roast beef, mutton, pork, plum pudding, beer and mineral waters. In the evening a few friends and the officers amused the inmates with a gramophone, singing and dancing. On Boxing Day Mrs Briscoe of Longstowe Hall invited the children to tea and gave each a present. CWN 09 12 31

The people at Linton Union spent a happy Christmas. As usual they were given a good old-fashioned Christmas dinner of roast beef, pork and vegetables, plum-pudding and half-a-pint of ale or mineral water. The plum puddings disappeared with great rapidity and were evidently relished. During the day oranges, sweets, tobacco and pipes sent by Messrs Holttum were distributed. On Boxing Day the Master invited the officers to a whist drive as a solace for the hard work of Christmas Day. CWN 09 12 31

At Swaffham Bulbeck on Christmas Day a portion of a wall of a cottage the property of Edward Fordham, tenanted by Mr Sidney Butler and family and Mrs Thompson, widow, crashed down into the adjoining garden. The contents of a bedroom and several other rooms were exposed to view. Owing to the mishap the families were compelled to pass the night as best they might on the ground floor, the bedrooms being considered too public and unsafe to make the night in the open a comfortable experience. CWN 09 12 31

The Costermongers Boxing Day Marathon race was run between East Road and Bottisham and back. It is open to men who earn their living by hawking and the fact that 17 came forward with their barrows in such unfavourable conditions says a good deal for their hardiness. Soon mud began to bespatter the runners. Tom Nunn took the lead in the outward journey but was finally beaten by Sam George. CWN 09 12 31

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1910 Cambridge Weekly News
I have copies of the full articles which originally appeared in the Cambridge Weekly News on date shown at the end of each snippet in YY-MM-DD order

January 1910 CWN

1910 01 07
The old-fashioned and, on hygienic grounds, objectionable practice of 'kissing the Book' in taking the oath in courts of law, was relegated to the limbo of obsolete custom on New Years' Day by the coming into force of the new Oaths Acts. Now a person being sworn has to take the Testament in his right hand and swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. The new oath was used in Cambridge courts on Saturday, the first witness to be sworn being Miss Florence Butler of Sturton Street. CWN 10 01 07g

An amusing story of how a Cambridge don achieved sartorial immortality has been forwarded to me by Mr G. White of Regent Street. Dr Lowther-Yates, master of St Catharine's College at the close of the 1700s, enjoyed the distinction of being the first Cambridge Don who dared to wear trousers in public. When he walked as Vice Chancellor to the University wearing trousers instead of the conventional knee-breeches, somebody shouted out of a window on King's Parade: "Gadzoons! Gadzoons! Lowther Yates in pantaloons". The mysterious word 'Gadzoons' was a favourite ejaculation of surprise that he used. CWN 10 01 07f

The Cambridge branch of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies works on constitutional lines, using only lawful and orderly methods. Its meeting in the Romsey Council School was a decided success: the speeches were listed to by a crowded audience most attentively, although there were some interruptions and cat-calling from the back of the building. Mrs C.D. Rackham urged the candidates at the forthcoming General Election to support votes for women on the same terms as men. CWN 10 01 07c # c.33

The Hon E.S. Montagu, Liberal MP for the Chesterton division, must be added to the few living persons who have read a report of their own death. The 'Buenos Ayres Standard' reports that he died during the King's birthday celebration at Sandringham. Such a tragedy did happen but the gentleman who died was Mr Montagu Guest. Cablegrams are very expensive luxuries and are sent in abbreviated form to be expanded for publication by the sub-editor. On consulting his reference books he evidently came to the conclusion that this was the member for West Cambs. CWN 10 01 07c

A novel and very popular experiment has just been tried in a Cambridge elementary school. The infants have been receiving direction in the gentle art of plum pudding making and just before Christmas were invited to bring their small coins towards buying the ingredients for the manufacture of some real puddings 'all on their own'. Six were made and a grand feast was held. The children arrived with clean faces and hands and provided with spoons and plates or pieces of clean paper. Then amid tremendous excitement the steaming hot puddings were dished up, decorated and served round the impatient youngsters who speedily put every scrap out of sight. CWN 10 01 07h

Votes for women – suffrage meeting – 10 01 07b & c
Review of 1909 – 10 01 07e

1910 01 14

Captain Morrison-Bell addressed election meetings at Rampton and Longstanton. At Rampton the gathering was a somewhat noisy one, with a good many interruptions, but at Longstanton a number of youths indulged in actual rowdyism; they refused to give the speakers a fair chance to air their views and blows were struck amongst some of the more noisy members of the audience. At both meetings a heavy missile struck one of the cars as the candidate and his helpers drove away 10 01 14

Mr Paget's supporters held a torchlight procession through Regent Street, Emmanuel Road, Fitzroy Street, King Street and St Andrew's Street. Torches of many kinds, some of an evidently hastily prepared character, were held aloft and Mr Paget rode in a carriage in the centre of the procession, which included about 30 horsemen who formed an imposing guard of honour. The Conservative candidate was accompanied by crowds of men, lads and even women and girls, bearing aloft torches, pink lights and Union Jacks, and blowing tin trumpets and whistles. CWN 10 01 14a # c.33

Scenes without parallel in the recent political history of Cambridge were witnessed in connection with the great Liberal demonstration in support of Mr Buckmaster's candidature. The Guildhall could contain but a fraction of the crowds and an overflow meeting had to be held in the Corn Exchange which itself was packed to capacity. At both Mr Buckmaster had a tremendous reception, the audiences rising en masse and waving hats, handkerchiefs and leaflets and cheering in deafening choruses for several minutes CWN 10 01 14b # c.33

To have filled the large hall at the Guildhall to the very doors and held the attention of a crowded audience for nearly two hours would have been a great score for the Cambridge Union of Women's Suffrage Societies at any time. But to have done so when both political parties are working at high pressure and three big political meetings were being held the same night, was a veritable triumph. Nobody who listed to the clear, forcible, eloquent speeches of the ladies could fail to have been impressed, the few interruptions from the back of the hall being of a very mild and harmless character. But few of those present backed a call for women to have the same right to vote as men. CWN 10 01 14e # c.33

The annual dinner of the Saxon Cement Works, the Norman Cement Works and the Atlas Stone Company took place at the Lion Hotel, Petty Cury. The cement industry was important for Cambridge. They had started with 128 men, today they employ over 300 with a permanent staff of 70 clerks and supervisors. They'd spent over £150,000 in coal and coke, another £150,000 in materials from machinery to stationery. Close on £200,000 had paid in wages, most in Cambridge, and the railway companies had received more than £300,000 over the last seven years. CWN 10 01 14i & j # c.23 # c.27

An inquest was held after the body of a Witchford shepherd was discovered on the Barway railway sidings with both legs cut off. It would appear that two trains must have passed over the unfortunate man, the driver of the second one having seen the body when it was too late to stop. He was still alive when picked up but died shortly afterwards. A verdict of accidental death was returned. The swearing of the jury by the new form of oath, each man being sworn separately, was a somewhat lengthy process, occupying nearly ten minutes. CWN 10 01 14l

Boarding out of pauper children, workhouse – 10 01 14f & g # c.32.9
King in Cambridge – brief stop station - 10 01 14h # c.02
Dullingham centenarian – 10 01 14k
Motorists and police trap – obtain maximum convictions – 10 01 14o
Votes for women 10 01 14b & c, campaign in Cambridge – 10 01 14d # c.33

1910 01 21
Crowds waited on Cambridge market hill for the results of the election. As the hands of the clock dragged with exasperating slowness, the excitement grew even keener. But by half-past ten even the cheering began to subside. "Wish I'd brought my breakfast" said one ruby-faced gentleman whose appearance suggested that he had dined exclusively on beer. "Blooming long time countin' up nine thawsan' votes" said a Barnwellian. Suddenly the Mayor appeared on the Guildhall balcony with the successful candidate. "Buckie's beaten" was the sentence spoken half unconsciously by scores of Buckmaster's supporters as if the brain refused to grasp the significance of what the eye could see. CWN 10 01 21 & a # c.33

Exciting occurrences at Kingston on Boxing Day had their sequel in the police court. A village labourer was summonsed for refusing to quit the Rose and Crown public house and for assaulting the landlady's daughter by punching her nose. The landlord was summonsed for assaulting the labourer's mother who had held the door of the public house to prevent her son from returning. Defendant said "I was drunk and everybody else in the house was drunk except the landlady's daughters. The landlord was drunk, and his wife was drunk, and I was drunk, and we all got together". Both were fined CEN 10 01 21b

An old Bottisham man recalled: "I remember the time, 68 years ago, when I used to go bird scaring. I used to go past the church at four o'clock in the morning, and used to come home at sundown. I have ploughed scores of acres on a bit of bread and onions, and I have seen my poor old father crying while he's been thrashing wheat because he hadn't a bit of bread to eat. We don't want those times to come back again". He concluded: "God bless the Liberals, who gave us old age pensions. Look how I used to live, and how I've lived this year" CWN 10 01 21c & d

When Captain Morrison-Bell (Conservative candidate for West Cambs) arrived at Graveley the meeting at which he was to speak had already been broken up in consequence of constant interruptions and disorderly behaviour by a section of the audience. As his car drove up it was pelted with mud and a chorus of hooting and booing, so he drove away. Later he addressed orderly meetings at Great Eversden, Croydon and East Hatley. CWN 10 01 21e

During the last week there has been a widespread and fatal sickness among the cats in Cottenham. Only one case as been explained as being due to pneumonia, in others the cause remains obscure. But it is suggested that the excitement of the General Election may have been a contributory factor. At any rate several households are lamenting the loss of their domestic pets and pressing for an inquiry into the nature of the malady, as the prospect of a catless community is too serious to contemplate 10 01 21f

An attack was made on the Newmarket Liberal Club premises. Showers of stones smashed the windows and poured into the billiard room, where the members took refuge as best they could in the cupboards or under the table. The fusillade of stones continued for quite half-an-hour until scarcely a window was left unbroken. Earlier thirty school lads had been round the club beating cans with sticks and singing the chorus: 'Vote for Tariff Reforms, my boys, Vote for Tariff Reform', after which members of the Liberal Club had thrown water and ginger-beer bottles at them. 10 01 21g.

Counting the votes – Cambridge – 10 01 21h # c.33

1910 01 28
A meeting was held to encourage British breeders to supply the British Army with British horses. They were woefully short of them: the number required in case of mobilisation was 129,000. The bus horse had been the most valuable immediate supply but these were now almost entirely extinct so the army hired horses during the 14 days annual training. An Imperial Horse Society should be established, the Master of the Cambridgeshire Hounds told farmers. 10 01 28 & a # c.45.4

The General Election has been one of the keenest on record and it is with a feeling of relief that one realises the struggle is over. A number of election hoaxes have been perpetrated: rumours were circulated that a conflict had taken place between police and crowds at Cambridge and that the Riot Act had been read at St Ives. At Great Shelford a false result was announced before the counting was even finished. The whole village was taken in and rejoicings on quite an extensive scale were started. 10 01 28 b & c

Leon Rothschild, a Russian tailor's cutter and Israel Schnitzer a tailor of Prospect Row appeared in court. Leon said he worked from 8am to 8pm and earned two guineas a week, but had then been given the sack. Israel however said he gave Leon work when there was any for him to do and he was paid at the rate of seven pence an hour. He had lent Rothschild money for his wedding expenses, paying for a ring and a pair of ear-rings. An IOU was produced but there was dispute as to whether a Russian word on the document meant 'received' or not so an interpreter was called in. 10 01 28f # c.27

A large party of youths, women, girls and boys from Willingham and Over visited Swavesey on Saturday night and greatly disturbed people. They carried flags and a loaf of bread on a fork. They shouted, knocked and rang at the doors of Conservatives, but in two instances visited wrong houses. They tried to pull down flags. At Boxworth End they took a farmyard gate from its hinges and threw it into a garden. The arrival of the aged farmer on the scene prevented further damage 10 01 28g

On Tuesday morning whilst Mr Edward Warboys was delivering milk from a cart in High Street, Swavesey, his horse bolted. It collided with a cart belonging to Mrs John Mitham of Lolworth. The wheels of the two carts were locked and both horses raced through the village. At the corner of Market Street the milk cart struck Mr Scard's house, doing some slight damage to the wall. Both shafts of Mr Warboys' cart were broken off, a wheel spoke fractured, the axle bent and all the milk spilled. 10 01 28g

A shocking fatality occurred near Sturmer railway station when a hawker from Haverhill was decapitated on the line. His head had been completely severed from the body and a scarf was picked up some fifty yards from the place where the fatality occurred. It seems he was knocked down by the 5.28 train from Haverhill, portions of the head and hair being found on that train. 10 01 28h

February 1910 CWN

1910 02 04 CWN
Two brothers have established a record in plural voting during the General Election. Mr W.W. Walker voted seventeen times and Mr J.W. Walker thirteen. The former gave nine votes in three days – including Saffron Walden - and then moved to Ely, Cirencester and Farnham amongst others. He covered 1,315 miles by train and 110 miles in different motor cars. The two are proprietors of Walker's Stores and were entitled to fifty votes between them – 25 each. But they claim they lost three votes through the laxity of political agents at Windsor, Stroud and Warminster. CWN 10 02 04

The polling of the four Cambridgeshire constituencies shows how remarkably evenly balanced are the two great parties: 19,232 being given to the Liberals and 19,233 to the Conservatives – a majority of one! As the county returned members of each colour Cambridgeshire can fairly claim to have secured proportional representation. This curious fact was pointed out by a young schoolgirl who discovered it quite by herself. I have never been an advocate of women's suffrage but think she is much more deserving of a vote than many men I know. Probably by the time she is of age, votes for women will be an accomplished fact. CWN 10 02 04c # c.33

Luke Hosegood, the Master, told Guardians there were 26 children in Cambridge workhouse. A large number of men had brought in their wives and families simply because they had been evicted from their houses as the result of slum clearance. There were several cases from Cambridge Place and a number from Castle End and if they went in at this rate all Castle End would be pauperised soon. It was getting a very serious matter. 10 02 04g # c.23

An old Cambridgeshire custom says that an inhabitant who transgresses the conventions shall be accorded a 'tin-kettling'. One took place at Fen Ditton where 200 people assembled outside the house of a couple, many provided with tin-kettles, tin-pans and whistles. What noise could not be made by thumping these with pieces of wood was contributed by the yelling of many voices. Popular songs were also bawled out and a special chorus composed for the occasion was sung to the accompaniment of much booing. This continued for an hour. Then effigies of the offending parties were carried high above the heads of the jeering crowd and set on fire in the middle of the roadway while the crowd danced round, jeering and shouting the names of the couple. 10 02 04h # c.39

The Chequers public house, Shudy Camps stood on a side road at the Horseheath end of the village. There was a house on the main road within about half-a-mile and only 18 private houses near. The pub was in good order, having been rebuilt 10 years ago. It sold a barrel of beer a week and had no spirit licence. It was not required, police told magistrates. They also objected to the George and Dragon at Linton, a beerhouse off the main thoroughfare. There was no trade done there, they were simply selling off stock. The Crown was about 130 yards away. also: Pampisford brewery and problems with pubs at West Wickham, West Wratting, Ickleton with note on number of pubs in each village. 10 02 04 I & j & k

Shepreth's new village hall near the railway station was used for the first time when 'The Masqueraders' under the direction of Mr H. Bedwell gave one of their excellent entertainments. An elaborate programme had been arranged but owing to the indisposition of one of the artistes a great number of alterations had to be made. Fred Grace, a Scotch comedian, kept the audience continually laughing, Mr R.R. Morris (King's College choir) gave 'Go to sea' and Miss D. Branch was heard to great advantage in 'The Motherland'. Several other events have been planned. CWN 10 02 04l

Since the Ortona Bus Company was established in Cambridge they have done much towards linking up the station and the town with outlying suburbs. A few weeks ago they commenced a service of motor 'buses to Trumpington, Shelford and Sawston and have now inaugurated another to Histon and Cottenham which has been well patronised by passengers 10 02 04m # c.26.46

Hillrow Haddenham Newman v Leach re worrying cow – 10 02 04a & b

Fordham voting incident – 10 02 04d

Licencing – Fox & Duck South St, White Horse Coronation St, Prince of Wales Church St, George IV East Road, Cardinal's Cap Guildhall Place, Borough Boys Northampton St, & others – 10 02 04e & f # c.27.4

Pampisford Brewery off licence. Chequers Shudy Camps, George & Dragon Linton – 10 02 04j

1910 02 11
Justices were told of problems at a riverside public house in Fen Ditton which had not been conducted satisfactorily. There were weekly gatherings of non-resident young people for dancing, the questionable behaviour of some rendering a continuation of it undesirable. Men have left the house in a drunken condition and it has been visited many times by young men, presumably undergraduates, in cabs, accompanied by females of doubtful reputation. The tenant has been warned previously, today they were given a second warning. Probably there would not be a third warning and some action would be taken. The Justices renewed the licence this time CWN 10 02 11

Cambridgeshire roads need improvement. It was not an altogether unheard of experience for a car to get stuck in the mud in some parts of this moist county during the last few weeks and I have a lively recollection of one or two motor rides over roads that would have paid for a little steam-rolling. I recall ruts which seemed filled with loose metal which flew up from under the wheels and rattled against the underside of the car like a miniature bombardment and bumps suggestive of a ride in a small boat on a choppy sea. I don't think I should care to ride a motor cycle over a road like that 10 02 11a

Harry Cox of King Street was an old pugilist who learnt in a hard school where gloves were regarded as unnecessary. He started in a travelling fairground booth but when he visited Midsummer Fair decided to settle in Cambridge. He took part in many open-air fights without the sanction of the law which were witnessed by large numbers. Pupils from the University attended his rooms at the Green Lion in Short Street and later at the Royston Arms, Jesus Lane. "Professor Cox" also gave lessons at St John's and other colleges and several University champions passed through his hands including T. Milvain of Trinity Hall who was heavyweight champion of All England in 1868-69 and is now Judge Advocate General. 10 02 11c# c.38 : boxing

If the death rate for consumption continues to fall at the present rate it should be extinct in Cambridge in the next 20 years, said Dr Laird at the Tuberculosis Exhibition in the Corn Exchange. Last year there were about 200 cases and 65 deaths. If a patient stays at home a Health Visitor provides spittoons, proper handkerchiefs and disinfectant; if they go to the Sanatorium the house is disinfected, cleansed throughout, re-papered and limewashed. A new pavilion will be built for those who live in overcrowded rooms or who cannot have a bed to themselves. 10 02 11d & e # c.21.1

1910 02 18
The small piece of land next to the Grantchester churchyard, which has been acquired so that local people can be buried in their own parish, was consecrated by the Bishop of Ely. The proceedings began with a choral service in the church then the Bishop, followed by the choir, clergy and congregation walked round the ground. The Bishop offered up a prayer, the sentence of consecration was read and the Bishop signed it. The procession returned, singing a hymn on the way to the church where the Bishop delivered an address. 10 02 18d

Dr R. Vaughan Williams lectured on 'The Folk Songs of East Anglia" and the enjoyment was enhanced by Mr J. Steuart Wilson of King's College who gave expressive renderings of a number of Old English ballads. Vaughan Williams had discovered the early folk ballad 'Geordie' at Fen Ditton but whether there was a great deal more to be found he did not know. At Fowlmere the Rev Campbell Yorke had got the 'May Day Song' from an old gentleman who rejoiced in the name of 'Hoppy' who preferred to do odd jobs and sleep in sheds and outhouses. He often started the first verse of a song with an entirely different tune and only got into the right swing at the end. 10 02 18 & a # c.39 # c.69

A distressing scene was witnessed at the funeral of a young woman who died at Elm after giving birth to a child. A portion of the service was omitted at the graveside and the mourners hooted the clergyman. When the grave had been filled up he ordered the removal of certain artificial wreaths in glass cases and took them into his own house. If the parents will give a guarantee that no attempts will be made to place them on the grave he will hand them over. 10 02 18b

Grantchester churchyard consecrated – 10 02 18d

Willingham novel use for snow plough – 10 02 18e

Castle Camps election row sequel – 10 02 18g & h

Stapleford diphtheria outbreak – 10 02 18i

1910 02 25
Mr F.C. Pruden has been experimenting with a new cycloplane which he has invented and which he kept in a shed at Needham Hall, Elm. The machine embodied some very novel ideas and great care was observed in keeping the thing secret. It was all but completed and a trial trip had been arranged but about midnight flames were seen bursting from the shed where the machine was stored along with a motor car. Both were completely destroyed. It is believed the fire was the work of an incendiary as villagers saw a man riding quickly on an unlighted bicycle. CWN 10 02 25 # c.26.1

A hurricane with winds of 80 mph cased considerable damage. Hoardings in Belmont Place, King Street, belonging to the Billposting Company were unable to withstand the onslaught of the wind and fell while a large elm tree opposite Trinity Fellows' Garden was bespoiled of its top. At Ely Cathedral a window depicting St John the Baptist was damaged; the apostle's head was blown out but falling upon the lawn, the glass was not broken. At St Ives the wind blew down the home signal on the railway line and caught the gable end of Mr Holloway's music shop in Bridge Street, blowing off four yards of tiles. CWN 10 02 25a & b # c.12

The heroine of the recent male impersonation escapade at Fen Ditton sat quietly in the stuffy little court room packed with pressmen and spectators. No one would imagine from her appearance that she was the sort of girl to wander about churchyards in the brother's clothes in the middle of the night or smash church windows. In her white blouse and her wealth of black hair tied back with a bow she presented a far different appearance from the dishevelled but picturesque boy seen at the police office the morning after her adventure. CWN 10 02 25 c & d # WOMEN

The high ground near Cherry Hinton was the scene of some interesting military operations. For several hours the Gogs resounded with the crackle of rifle fire and the thunder of artillery as the tide of battle rolled slowly from Reservoir Hill past the Golf Links until arrested at Limepit Hill. The operations supposed that the Great Eastern Railway line was the frontier between two states which had mobilised their troops. A cavalry brigade at Newmarket was reinforced by some infantry and guns and Fulbourn was fortified. 10 02 25m & n # c.45.4

On arriving by rail at Linton station the traveller has a pleasant drive of six miles to Balsham, a secluded old-world village where Time seems to pass with slow and reverent step, as if it is half-fearful of disturbing the sweet repose of that quaint archaic place. The square Norman tower of the old church rises grim and grey from amidst luxuriant foliage while the stately granite-built rectory stands in spacious grounds and the well-kept lawn slopes gradually down through a fairyland of flowers to a sylvan scene of much beauty. 10 02 25i

A fine aviation ground is to be established Huntingdon on the site of the old racecourse due to the enterprise of a syndicate to be known as 'Aviation Courses Limited' who hope to have flying in progress during the Whitsuntide holidays. It will be started under the aegis of the Royal Aero Club supported by Lord Sandwich and a Huntingdon and Midland Counties Aviation Club will be formed. A grandstand is being erected, the Humber Company are erecting workshops and they anticipate the co-operation of the Bleriot School of Aviation. There will be periodical race-meetings and international gatherings of aviators 10 02 25o # c.26.1

Nearly 1,000 people assembled in a field adjacent to Elm churchyard where the incumbent refused to allow the parents of a young girl to place artificial wreaths. Since then a feeling of indignation has been growing throughout the area. Numerous speeches were made advocating the establishment of a free burial ground for the people of the district. A resolution was passed protesting against the compulsory removal of wreaths and the vicar's statement that the district was shockingly immoral. 10 02 25p

Mammoth Show out of debt – 10 02 25e

Elm burial scandal – another scene – 10 02 25f

Cambridge University Waterworks Company important prosecution of dairyman – 10 02 25g & h

University and trade – chair of business wanted – 10 02 25j # c.36.9

Cottenham communal farming records – 10 02 25k

Agriculture lecture on ten years work on potatoes – 10 02 25l # c.22

March 1910 CWN

1910 03 04
The alarming outbreak of fires which occasioned such consternation in Alconbury was added to when a second farm belonging to George Bromhead was set alight. They started on 11th April last year at the farm of William Mitchell; six days later came the most serious when a range of buildings belonging to Mr Bromhead were destroyed. Fears were increased when Mr W.P. Theakston, the agent for a number of farms, received letters threatening further fires. In July there were two at Hartford, in August one at Alconbury and earlier this month one on the farm of Ernest Francis. A man has been arrested 10 03 04d

Since the inauguration of County Councils 21 years ago they have grown enormously in importance and in power. Their responsibilities over public health, sanitation, water supply and the administration of the Poor Law will probably be increased in the new future. This throws the administration more and more into the hands of the officials. Ratepayers should take care to select their representatives but unfortunately the absurd practice still prevails locally of voting for councillors according to their political predilections and the best man is frequently defeated. 10 03 04e # c.35.1

It was incredible to hear of the conditions that existed in Barnwell, said the Rev Gwinn. There was one road which in winter was almost knee-deep in mud. The children could not step from their doors without going ankle-deep and always went to school wet-footed. Five children in that street had been taken away with scarlet fever recently, partly owing to the sanitary arrangements and partly due to the stuff that was thrown out into the road. There was another street of 11 houses – or rather hovels – containing only two rooms apiece. In one of these lived seven people CWN 10 03 04f & g & h # c.23

Cherry Hinton was the most rapidly-increasing district in the neighbourhood. It was popularly believed that the dwellers in St John's parish were all well-to-do and able to supply their needs themselves, but that was quite a fallacy, said the Rector. There were a very large proportion of artisans and some who were very poor. One woman, whose husband was in the Asylum, had to work at a laundry to keep herself and three children on nine shillings a week. CWN 10 03 04g

Few have any clear idea of the variety and extent of the services which the police render. They see the policeman about the streets, patrolling his beat or standing on point duty and have no hesitation in appealing to him in almost any little dilemma. But their annual report shows they keep a watchful eye upon temporarily unoccupied houses, visit common lodging houses, attend fires, take charge of lost property, inspect stage and hackney carriages and attend to dangerous dogs. There are 54 constables, average age 36 years. CWN 10 03 04h & I # c.34.6

By the death of Charles Stearn of Brookfields Cambridge loses one of its few Crimean veterans. He was born at Barrington and joined the Cambridgeshire Regiment in 1846 with whom he fought at the Alma where at least 1,400 men lost their lives. At Inkerman the Russians came right up to the bayonets and the Russian dead numbered six to each Englishman. After a couple of years in the Crimea the Regiment was sent off to Canada where their boat struck a rock off Newfoundland and went down in half an hour. He had his wife and youngest son on board and got them into the lifeboats with difficulty. Later he was landlord of the Seven Stars on Newmarket Road CWN 10 03 04j & k # c.45.4

Mammoth Show out of debt 10 03 04 & a c.38
Public house trust 10 03 04b & c
OTC successful night attack 10 03 04j & k c.45.4

1910 03 11
Friday Bridge churchyard was not fit to bury a dog in. Mr Green said that at one funeral a man had to stand on one end of the coffin and another at the other to hold the coffin down until it was covered with earth, or it would have floated in the water. Another parishioner said one coffin was buried only 15 inches deep and many had been buried swimming in 18 inches. Mr Forster said he had seen some of the most disgraceful proceedings in connection with the churchyard that it has ever been the lot of human beings to witness. It was decided to apply for power to have a separate cemetery free from ecclesiastical control 10 03 11 # c.21.2

A stable in Water Street, Old Chesterton, was the scene of a shocking tragedy. A 50-year-old labourer had been living with a 58 year-old woman who earned her living by travelling about the county with a caravan in the summer, visiting fairs, and in the winter time she hawked coal and coke about local villages. When he appeared in court his complexion stamped him at once as a man used to working in the open air. His face and neck were alike brick red in colour and seamed with thousands of wrinkles, the black hair was cut fairly short, but the grizzled moustache was rather ragged. He was dressed in corduroys and heavy boots. He had no collar or neck wrap and his vivid red shirt showed at the top of the sleeved waistcoat he was wearing. 10 03 11a & b # c.34.6

The Coach and Horses pub at Fulbourn contained a bar, a parlour, smoke room, living room and five bedrooms upstairs. The yard had stabling for seven horses, a disused brewery, pigsties and a chaff-cutting house. The cellar in the basement was unfit for use and the premises generally in a bad state of repair. Next door was the Six Bells, a large house with extensive premises which could supply all the requirements of the neighbourhood. There are five fully-licensed houses and five beer 'on' licences to cater for 124 inhabitants as well as the 526 inmates of the asylum. 10 03 11b also Soham Black Horse – 10 03 11c

The inaugural meeting in support of a scheme for establishing a University in China attracted a great deal of interest. The Vice-Chancellor reflected on the stores of energy lying undeveloped in that great land and its great progress in sciences, art and manufactures. It would be advantageous to select graduates who should pass a few years in an English-speaking University in China to provide unbroken interchange of intellectual thought and scientific discovery between the two countries. The scheme would not be carried out cheaply but there were a great many who had made large fortunes in China who would contribute. 10 03 11e

A party of five undergraduates attempted to repeat the 'Merry Widow' hoax at the New Theatre but were sadly unsuccessful. It is a well-known rule that undergraduates may not purchase boxes unless accompanied by ladies or some elderly chaperone. A box was ordered in the name of the Hon Miss Neville of Magdalene College, which aroused suspicion. The party comprised three undergraduates and two 'ladies' who were very tall, walked with mannish strides and spoke in a quaint high-pitched falsetto. Mr Redfarn did not take many seconds to spot the disguise. 10 03 11f # c.36.9

St Ives was shocked by the news of the sudden death of Horatio Wadsworth of the Mineral Water and Beer Bottling Works in Bridge Street. He was very much respected both as a citizen and an employer of labour. He attended the monthly meeting of the Masonic Lodge and walked home where he was immediately seized with an attack of faintness which ended 20 minutes later in death from heart failure. He was 45 years of age and leaves a widow, four girls and three boys. 10 03 11g

Magnificent poplars which have stood opposite the Swan at Linton for many years have been felled. The execution of these noble trees, which were regarded with much affection, was ordered by the parish council as they have long been considered a danger in high winds and storms. The stumps stand as mournful relics. Whether in a revengeful spirit it is impossible to say, but one tree, in crashing to the ground, fell on Mrs Ficklin's wall and did some damage 10 03 11j

On Tuesday evening a motor cycle with trailer came to a standstill on the Huntingdon Road near Oakington because of a puncture. It was dark but three cottages were close by, so the cyclist and his passenger took the machine into the room of one of them to repair the damage. While searching for the puncture with the aid of a light, the petrol became ignited and the carpet and other contents of the room were damaged. Some of the occupants who had retired to rest hastily left their beds in alarm.

The cyclist and his friend then proceeded to the Five Bells and the landlord drove them, cycle and trailer in a pig float back to St Ives. 10 03 11i

Norman Cement works timekeeper threatened 10 03 11d c.27
Logan's boatyard 10 03 11h

1910 03 18
The County Council considered a highly-important report for bringing the main roads up-to-date to meet the demands of motor and other traffic. A journey on the Cambridge to Huntingdon Road involves jolting over innumerable and unavoidable patches of loose sharp stones and lingers in the memory of the wayfarer long after. This road should not cause phenomenal expense to bring it into a greatly improved state of repair. There is a busy, heavily-trafficked length of road at Sawston much used by motor buses and although the Cambridge to Haverhill Road does not carry heavy through traffic it needs to be made free from dust in summer and mud in winter. 10 03 18 & a Newham Croft Institute has had its headquarters in Hardwick Street for some eight years, but the old premises were of a somewhat rough and ready character. The Club first purchased a building which had stood in Grantchester Meadow and had been used as a golf shed. It was built of wood and had a low roof of corrugated iron. In 1906 an appeal was raised and materials of a temporary building which had been used as the Combination Room of Selwyn College purchased. It was removed and re-erected on the present site. 10 03 18c

A grand fancy dress carnival at the University and Town Skating Rink attracted a large crowd and many ingenious costumes were seen. When a number of undergraduates were on the rink some wonderfully complete and extensive costumes were displayed. The rink presented a very pretty appearance when the ever-changing stream of skaters was illuminated with kaleidoscopic tints from the lime lights. Roller skating is not a sudden whim and the 'craze' has not died out. Young and old are trying to skate in thousands of rinks all over the country and the splendid floor of the Cambridge rink has been crowded almost every day since it was opened. 10 03 18g, photo 18d # c.38 : roller skating

Licensing meeting – Over Sow & Pig, Willingham Black Horse, Chesterton White Horse, Comberton Red Lion, Cottenham Boot, Longstanton Red Cow, Milton Three Tuns, Shelford Three Tuns 10 03 18b
C.P. Tebbutt tribute 10 03 18e & f
Canada talk 10 03 18e
Cambridgeshire roads survey 10 03 18h c.44.65

1910 03 25
PC Arnold told Saffron Walden court that he had been employed by Mr Cheffins to keep order at an auction sale in a private house. Afterwards he went to a pub where a number of dealers had gathered in a back room. He heard a voice saying 'How much this lot!' and a series of half-crown bids. When it got to thirty shillings he heard a tap on the table. He found nine men around a table with catalogues. One said 'We are doing business with a knock-out on our own'. They had been to the auction and were then disposing of purchased articles amongst themselves. 10 03 25a & b

Two London youths were charged with stealing and receiving cycles. A clerk in the booking office at Shelford station said one lad had come in with a cycle which he had sent to London by the 2.14 train. It had been collected from St Pancras station next morning and taken to a pawnbroker who was suspicious and informed a detective. The lad confessed: "Me and Wilson went to Cambridge on Saturday and stole two. We rode over to Shelford and booked them to London then walked back to Cambridge and I got another one" 10 03 25c # c.26.485

A meeting was held in a barn at Caldecote to consider establishing an egg depot under the National Poultry Organisation Society. Producers were at the mercy of 'middlemen' who cut up the profits and local co-operation would alter this. Eggs would be collected three times a week, stamped to guarantee they are new laid and delivered to the markets at the earliest possible date. At present the eggs are collected once a week and are often over eight days old before being put on the market. This is not as good as French eggs which are sold within four or five days. 10 03 25d & e
C. Douglas Newton profile 10 03 25

April 1910 CWN

1910 04 01
There was an accident at Dullingham Station when some wagons jumped the rails. Three timber trucks were thrown over and three cattle trucks overturned. Breakdown gangs were summoned and the up line was cleared in three-and-a-half hours. A number of sleepers, and chairs were smashed but these could be quickly replaced. The difficulty was to get rid of the overturned waggons before the down line could open. The Newmarket stationmaster sent passenger trains to Fordham and thence by the Quy and Swaffham line to Cambridge.10 04 01

Easter 1910 will be long remembered for its delightful holiday weather. The religious services both on Friday and Sunday were remarkably well attended and on Friday evening a large audience attended a performance of the 'Messiah' at the Guildhall. Many Cambridge people went out of town by train. Yarmouth, Lowestoft and Cromer were the most popular watering places, Hunstanton attracting fewer people than usual. There were scores of cyclists and motorists on the roads, all very cheerful in spite of the dust nuisance. The Territorials held a parade for 250 men and the 1st Eastern General Hospital were busy training at Haslingfield. A miniature rifle range was opened at the Working Men's Institute in Fitzroy Street. 10 04 01a

Boys attending Longstanton School accepted a challenge from Swavesey School for a football match. But on arrival they found a strong combination of larger boys from Swavesey, St Ives, Over and Houghton opposing them. An offer by Swavesey for them to discard their smaller boys for some of the spectators to make the teams more equal was dismissed by the little lads who determined to 'stick to their own men'. As expected Longstanton were beaten by nine goals to nil. Eight of the goals were scored by lads from Houghton and one by a lad from Over. The Longstanton juveniles have only been playing football for a month, a ball having been presented by the schoolmistress. 10 04 01b

On Easter Monday morning a tall and burly Swavesey resident was conveying manure to his allotment in a handcart when in Taylor's Lane one of the wheels collapsed. A young lady very kindly assisted in lifting the laden vehicle to the side of the road where it remained for some hours. Later the manure was tipped on the roadside and the cart ignominiously trundled home on one wheel. It is a striking example of inventive genius, the body being an old washing trough while the wheels once belonged to a perambulator. Another massive man was seen leading a small donkey which was dragging a harrow in one of the allotments. Its master stood by to see it was not overworked. 10 04 01c

1910 04 08
Mr C.P. Tebbutt of Bluntisham was a public speaker of exceptional gifts. He used few notes but never hesitated for a word or bungled a sentence. He spoke on the Gulf Stream, on earth worms and the drainage of the fens about which he was particularly conversant. He gave evidence to Royal Commissioners on topics including licensing saying that in Bluntisham there was one public house for every 50 persons and it was rare to see a man worse for drink. He carried out the widening of the Needingworth Road in St Ives, previously too narrow for the droves of cattle which came in from the fens ready for market. 10 04 08

The first real flying machine ever delivered in Cambridge arrived at the Hobson Street garage of Cambridge Automobile and Engineering Company. It is an exact counterpart of the monoplane with which M. Bleriot flew across the channel. On Friday the engine, tractor and ignition were tested. It worked splendidly and developed great power, the screw creating a tremendous draught and exerting such a force that, although the machine had not its wings and tail fitted, it took half-a-dozen men to hold it down. 10 04 08a # c.26.1

Free Library given Hattersley Bros ledger 1765-5 – 10 04 08a # c.77.4

Bargemen objected to proposed bylaws regarding lighting on barges saying they can travel more safely without them. Mr Charles Dyson of North Street Burwell said "My barges are required to carry oil, sedge, turf etc and the use of lights might prove dangerous. I have travelled on the river for 40 years and never seen any accident caused by not using lights". E.H. Godby of Littleport says he does a lot of hay and chaff work and cannot afford to have his cargo burnt while Colchester and Ball of Burwell says their boats do not travel at night and see no reason why they should show a light when stationery. Ferry boat owners also say it would be a serious expense to have to keep lights burning all night. 10 04 08 b & c # c.26.3

In September 1908 the Griffin beerhouse at Wixoe was destroyed by fire but the business was continued in a stable and the continuity of the licence thus ensured. It was the only one in the parish and there had never been any complaint. It was owned by Messrs Adams and Son of Halstead who had drawn up plans for its rebuilding. Magistrates wanted to close it but did not have funds to pay compensation. However when the tenant failed to apply for renewal at the proper time they decided closure should go ahead. 10 04 08d

Mark Wyatt of Waterbeach passive resister 10 04 08e

J. Carter applied to renew a hackney carriage licence for his brake to allow it to ply for hire in Newmarket as he had for 36 years. He was the father of 13 children, 11 of whom lived with him in Burwell, but they are fed and clothed with goods purchased in Newmarket. He purchased all his provisions, clothes and boots in the town and spent considerably more there than he earned from his trade. He'd had the brake made especially for the races and it was as good as any other. Police said brakes were useful but they were used by a certain class (pickpockets etc) who could not operate so well in landaus. The application was granted. 10 04 08e

1910 04 15
Two young men returning to Willingham from Haddenham on Saturday evening by the nearest route across the fens had an anxious and exciting walk. The night was intensely dark and they had difficulty keeping the proper path. With the aid of matches they managed for some time but soon the last match was struck. Then they reached a bridge over a drain. First one and then the other stepped over the side and dropped into the water. At length they struck the right track and reached home weary and wet. 10 04 15e

Cambridge Waterworks Company's Bill passed by select committee of the House of Lords. It would allow for the sinking of a new well outside the polluted area. But if the prehistoric methods of sewage disposal in villages been corrected the whole problem could have been ended. 10 04 15 # c.24.2

A verdict of suicide was returned on a Horningsea man who had cut his own throat. The inquest had been held in the Crown and Punchbowl inn although it was illegal for an inquest to be held in licensed premised. This was because the clergyman had previously refused permission for the use of the schoolroom and the school managers said they could not give permission without his approval. This was the only village in the district where the coroner had any difficulty getting use of the schoolroom. Many witnesses objected to going to a pub to give evidence 10 04 15a

Fen Ditton baby's death – 10 04 15b

Cambridge University & Town Waterworks Company Bill examined by House of Lords – 10 04 15c & d # c.24.2

1910 04 22
Saturday night's shopping was in full swing at Cambridge when the storm broke and scores of people were drenched before they could get to shelter. Many more who were fortunate enough to gain good cover were held up for hours, it being quite impossible to go many yards without getting wet through. The thunderstorm was followed by hail and a downpour of rain of quite unusual intensity lasting practically the greater part of the night. Happily the amount of damage done seems to have been small 10 04 22

Bottisham magistrates displayed considerable courage by ordering the birching of four youngsters who had been proved guilty of egg-stealing. If they inflicted a fine the punishment would fall not on the boys, but upon their parents who were respectable people who worked hard to keep their children neat and clean. The object of punishment is to act as a warning to others and serve as a deterrent for the future. There will be very little egg-stealing amongst Bottisham juveniles for some time 10 04 22a

A motorist told the court he was driving near Therfield when he saw a traction engine ahead of him going in the same direction. When he came up he sounded his hooter but it was no use as the trucks which the engine was drawing made such a noise. There was no one on the lookout so he had to stay behind the engine until he came to the Thrift where the engine stopped. The publican of the Horse and Groom and Sarah Ann Andrews both stated the motor could not pass as the engine was in the middle of the road. There were only two men with it and they were both riding. They were convicted of a breach of the Locomotives on Highway Act. 10 04 22c

1910 04 29
A decently-dressed woman called at a Willingham baker's shop and inquired about some respectable lodgings. She was recommended to apply at Mrs W. Ellwood's in Newtown. Thither she went and was provided with supper of bread and cheese before retiring to bed. Next morning Mrs Ellwood set out breakfast and then left to draw her old-age pension. On return she found the woman had had breakfast, washed up and put away the cups and saucers and then disappeared. Nothing was disturbed in the house. The police have been informed but can find no trace of the guest. 10 04 29

Frederick Hawkins, proprietor of the Picture Palace, Workman's Hall, Fitzroy Street appeared in court under the Gaming Act. He had distributed numbered handbills and given half-a-crown to the person whose number he showed on screen. On Saturday night there were other prizes of a silver-plated teapot, silver-plated cruet and six teaspoons in a case. Hawkins said he'd done it to test if advertising by handbills was any good. But it was a breach of the law and he was given a nominal fine. 10 04 29a # c.76.9

A professional singer from Old Chesterton told magistrates he was married at 18 but suffered a serious accident when working as a butcher's carman. His right arm was paralysed and he could do no manual labour. He earned a precarious living by singing at cinematograph shows and entertainments and was often 'one week in and two weeks out'. His wife said they had last lived together four years ago. She had gone out to service while he was trying to earn his living roaming about seeking engagements. He had contributed nothing to her support except in November when he gave her five shillings. But her application for a separation order on grounds of desertion was rejected. 10 04 29b # c.69

A Willingham labourer was charged with stealing £40 in gold from his mother. His parents had gone to work leaving him alone in the house and the money under the mattress of the bed. The neighbour saw the lad with a handful of gold and a search revealed it had gone. Police discovered he had been showing a lot of gold in a public house at Longstanton before leaving for Cambridge by train. When arrested at the Compasses lodging house in East Road he said "They should not leave the money lying about in the house. I told her I should do her one. She always scrapped the last penny out of me and is always cadging money of me" 10 04 29c

Congregationalists assembled in large numbers to celebrate the centenary of the church at Fulbourn. Its origins can be traced to 1776 when worship was carried out in a barn. In 1810 they took possession of a small meeting house erected by Thomas Harlock. The Rev. S. Smoothy had been appointed in 1878 making him the longest-serving minister and no church had ever had a more faithful servant 10 04 29d & e # c.83

The University's new School of Agriculture in Downing Street was opened by the Duke of Devonshire. Designed by Arnold Mitchell it is built of dull red Dutch brick. The floors and staircase are of fireproof construction and the building is heated by hot water and lighted by electricity. It will accommodate 100 students with a lecture room, botanical laboratory, greenhouse and photographic darkroom. 10 04 29 f & g # c.36.9

Death of Alfred Marshall Robinson, Milton; Guardian & Chairman Chesterton RDC 10 04 29F

Death of George Metcalfe of Swavesey and Jonas Webb, farmer at Freckenham – 10 04 29h

May 1910 CWN

1910 05 06 CWN
Primitive Methodist Centenary assembly at Ely – 10 05 06 & a County finances, big jump in rates – 10 05 06b

Under the new Midwives Act no woman can habitually attend women in childbirth unless she is certified. There were 54 midwives on the register of whom 30 were trained. Ten of the untrained women were between the ages of 65-75 and might need replacing before long by reason of death or infirmity. There was only one trained midwife at Willingham and an untrained woman at Landbeach. There were none at Isleham, Burwell, Wicken, Upware, Milton, Cottenham, Swavesey or Histon. Some mothers can afford the fee of a medical practitioner but are unable also to pay the full fee of a skilled nurse and so may turn to unregistered women 10 05 06b & c # c.21.1

Hilgay boy scorched by gunpowder – 10 05 06d

T.E. Foster rescues drowning child – 10 05 06d

Aviation meeting Portholme meadow Huntingdon – 10 05 06d

Inhabitants of Knapwell enjoyed the annual May Day Revels held at The Grange through the kindness of Mr Maurice Hawkes who entertained them to a tea, followed by a concert and winding up with a dance. A cricket match against Conington had been arranged but owing to the wet weather the visiting team did not put in an appearance. The players took tea in the barn which was decorated with primroses, cowslips and garden flowers 10 05 06e

Gt Eversden Polling District Conservative Association meeting 10 05 06f

Police children's boot fund – 10 05 06g

1910 05 13 CWN
Many in Cambridge had left home before the news of the Death of King Edward VII was known but in an hour or two there were signs of mourning everywhere. Many of the tradespeople draped their shutters, blinds were drawn at private residences, church bells were tolled and flags hoisted half-mast on the public buildings. During the morning when the streets were filled with crowds of country people from the surrounding villages it was almost the exception to find anyone without some note of black in their attire 10 05 13c & d # c.02

On a certain day 49 years ago several undergraduates while walking along the Madingley Road were overtaken by a heavy rainstorm. They were not provided with any protection against such weather and there was every likelihood they would be thoroughly drenched. An old lady living in one of the brick-built cottages noticed their plight and they gladly took the opportunity to wait in her dwelling until the violence of the storm had abated. Before they left the kindly old dame insisted upon one of the young men accepting the loan of her umbrella. It was returned the next day with a substantial gift in recognition of her kindness. That undergraduate afterwards became King Edward VII 10 05 13h # c.02

With fitting ceremonial Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert was proclaimed to the University, the Borough and County of Cambridge, King of Great Britain and Ireland and Dominions beyond the Seas and Emperor of India, in succession to Edward VII. In the Guildhall the Mayor and Corporation assembled in the Large Room with the benign countenance of Queen Victoria looking down on them from the wall to acclaim her grandson as King George V 10 05 13e-g i j # c.02

Snugly housed in a shed in the rear of a house in St Barnabas' Road reposes a brand new flying machine of the monoplane variety which has been designed and built by the Bros Wallis. The CDN had an opportunity of inspecting the machine and seeing the engine and elevating and steering apparatus tested. We came away greatly impressed with the graceful and workmanlike lines on which it is built. The machine embodies a number of novel ideas and is one of the lightest and strongest yet made. If not exactly the first flying machine that has been seen in Cambridge it is certainly the first one built in the town 10 05 13 a & b # c.26.1

William Hockey was the founder of the well-known auctioneering firm based in Bene't Street. As the agent for the De Freville Estate he had much to do with the development and planning of that part of New Chesterton which has rapidly become of so much importance. He also held an important and confidential position at Trinity College, where he was highly regarded, and was Secretary of the Excelsior Building Society. For the past 20 years he was a very well-known and popular figure in the business life of Cambridge. 10 05 13k

There was great excitement in Willingham on Sunday at the report that the Rectory had been broken into and a large crowd collected outside the gates. It appears that a rough-looking man of the tramp class had made his way there as soon as the rector and household had gone to church, one maid only being left in charge of the house. When she discovered that food was missing from the larder Police Constable Breed was promptly informed. He found a man in a shed in a grass field in Long Lane. 10 05 13l

1910 05 20 CWN

Vagrants at Chesterton workhouse were kept for two nights, being given work according to their ability during the day and liberated at seven o'clock on the second morning. They had eight ounces of bread and water for breakfast and supper and eight ounces of bread and 1½ ounces of cheese for dinner. But is it fair to starve their poor wretches to this extent; not everyone is a rogue: many are just the failures of life and cannot help themselves, one Guardian said. 10 05 20

Sixty-eight cases of scarlet fever (none fatal) were recorded in Chesterton Rural District last year of which 50 were removed to the Isolation Hospital at Oakington together with 44 cases of diphtheria (6 fatal) some of which were removed to a temporary hospital in connection with the outbreak at Stapleford. There were ten cases of typhoid (3 fatal) and three of puerperal fever. During the year 156 new houses were erected and eight cases of overcrowding were dealt with, the Medical Officer reported – 10 05 20

The foundation stone of the first block of the new Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology at the corner of Downing Street and Tennis Court Road was laid by the Baroness Von Hugel whose husband is the curator. The ceremony was a very quiet one and the proceedings were very brief because of the death of the King. In a cavity under the stone was placed a bottle containing a couple of newspapers and a number of current coins of the realm. 10 05 20

The Leather Gaiters public house at Hauxton caught fire in October last year shortly after a steam wagon passed. It was supposed that some flying sparks had ignited the thatch and the flames spread with great rapidity until the house was gutted. The business has been carried on in a barn while the pub has been rebuilt to the satisfaction of the Parish Council. But rumours that there will be free beer on the reopening night are unfounded 10 05 20c

Residents from Cherryhinton Road complained that if linen were hung out to dry in the garden 'smuts' caused by smoke from the chimney of the Swiss Laundry made it so dirty that it had to be taken in and washed again. The air ought not to be polluted by this offensive smell and dirt and they suggested the chimney be carried up another 50 feet and the manager of the laundry be requested to use different fuel. 10 05 20a # c.27 Also Cottenham water supply

It would be desirable if a scheme of scavenging could be devised for Cottenham, Willingham and Fulbourn where some of the houses are situate in confined areas. There being no proper sewer, the pail system of closet is largely in use and the contents of the pails are frequently emptied with the house refuse in one corn of the small yards adjoining the houses and frequently cause a nuisance injurious to health 10 05 20a

Harston grocer Herbert Wm Burrows bankruptcy – had come from London 10 05 20

1910 05 27 CWN
The inaugural meeting of the Cambridge Town Fabian Society heard that members of the University group were scarcely in touch with practical politics being young people whose minds were in a state of flux. The townsfolk had maturer views, were more business-like and in a better position to explain how instalments of Socialism could be brought about immediately. 10 05 27 # c.33

An old woman named Mrs Dunn who had been living in a very dilapidated cottage at the Grip, Linton died aged 94. After the funeral the will was read which contained bequests to the value of £400! The house was in a filthy condition and to avoid jealousy the various bundles of rags were sold by Dutch auction. Coal, firewood, dresses and all sorts of odds and ends were disposed of including two pairs of corsets which were bought for twopence by Jenny Fordham of Hadstock. When she got home she found ten sovereigns wrapped up in them. 10 05 27a

Col Theodore Roosevelt, ex-President of the United States of America, was awarded an Honorary Degree in the Senate House. He arrived by train from London and was driven to Pembroke Lodge where he lunched with the Vice-Chancellor and 100 friends. Afterwards he was made an Honorary Member of the Union Society. Only Oliver Wendell Holmes, Lord Kitchener and Mr Waterhouse, the architect of the Union building had received this honour before him. The whole visit was very quietly carried out owing to the death of King Edward VII 10 05 27a # c.02

A Trinity College undergraduate was summoned for riding a motor cycle on the footway in Garret Hostel Lane. P.S. Merry said there were about 100 people on the bridge watching the boats when defendant rode down the lane and, without sounding his horn, went through the posts on to the bridge at a speed of five miles an hour. It was a public footpath and even if police had not prosecuted cyclists before, there was no reason why they should not if necessary. The lad said police had seen him do it before and he'd since asked at the Police Station and been told it was all right. The case was dismissed. 10 05 27b # c.44.7

Friday was kept as a day of mourning at Swavesey for the funeral of the King. All shops were closed with the exception of the butchers and pubs. During the morning a strange and solemn stillness held the village. Few carts passed along the streets. Even the children seemed to catch the spirit of the day and refrained from noisy play. Blinds were drawn in private houses and from the church tower the Union Jack floated in the breeze at half-mast 10 05 27c

The other morning I had occasion to go to Overcote Ferry. But in Middle Fen I found my way blocked by some 30 feet of sludge whilst on the footpath my progress was blocked by water and mud at the stile. I went through gaps in the hedges and got to the river only to find the footbridge had disappeared. I finally reached Overcote an hour behind time. Cannot our new District Councillor interest himself in the matter? 10 05 27d

Ingle Thoday florist and fruit grower of Willingham sues seed company – 10 05 27e

Massacre of Rats - During threshing operations at Samson's Barn, Boxworth, there was a great killing of rats, many of which were stated to have been as large as rabbits. Several pitch pole sticks were broken in butchering the gigantic rodents 10 05 27f

June 1910 CWN

1910 06 03 CWN
An Elm man told the court that two years ago he commenced to build a cycloplane. It ran on the lines of a bicycle or tricycle and if one pedalled hard enough it made it fly. It had planes and various things attached to it and was of considerable interest. But it was absolutely worthless as a flying machine. It was destroyed when its shed had been set on fire and now he was charged with defrauding his Insurance Company. 10 06 03 & a # c.26.1

The courtroom was packed for the trial of a man accused of murder at a stable in Water Street, Chesterton. A nearby house was lived in by a 58-year-old woman who earned her living by travelling about the country with a caravan in summer, visiting fairs, and in winter time she hawked coal and coke about local villages. A squabble with a 50-year-old labourer with whom she was living resulted in him cutting her brother's throat with a carving knife. He was sentenced to hang. 10 06 03 b & c # c.34.6

Many people around Cambridge have been collecting empty Wild Woodbine cigarette packets in the belief that W.D. & H.O. Wills of the Imperial Tobacco Company would offer annuities to cripples in return for them. Now Mr F. Frampton of the Alexandra Arms, Gwydir Street has received a letter from the firm saying they have never offered such rewards. The individual who started the collection has evidently more ingenuity than sense. But the idea is more plausible than the one of collecting disused penny stamps in order to benefit charity. 10 06 03d

Outwell bigamist trial – 10 06 03e

Mrs Pankhurst made her first acquaintance with the undergraduate at a meeting organised by the Cambridge University Men's League for Women's Suffrage at the Guildhall. She is used to lively meetings but usually there is some point to the interruptions to which she is subjected. This time the undergraduate section of the audience had come fully determined to turn the meeting into a sort of variety entertainment for their own delectation, and in this they succeeded. She stuck to her guns during her address which lasted, counting the interruptions, for about 70 minutes and then invited questions. About 9.30 a Proctor arrived and one man was led out of the hall, amidst much groaning. 10 06 03f & g # c.33

Willingham church tower is not haunted, although some people thought it was the other night. They heard some mysterious noises as though chains were being dragged along. They stood and wondered and shivered with fear. The noises ceased; then came a sound as of a door opening and closing, and the frightened group prepared to run away. Whilst the were hesitating the sexton came towards them and told them he had been winding the clock 10 06 03h

Daniel Hayward senior was brother of Tom Hayward, the famous All England cricketer of the 1850s and 60s and father of the present Tom Hayward, the well-known Surrey batsman. His other sons include Dan, the present University custodian of Fenner's and Frank who frequently appears in local cricket. In his early youth he was a cricketer of more than ordinary ability as a wicket-keeper whose form gained him a place in some of the great matches. He was landlord of the Prince Regent for 42 years having entered into occupation on 24th June 1868. 10 06 03i # c.38 : cricket

1910 06 10
Owing to the rapid increase of the Boy Scout movement in Cambridge a meeting was held at the Perse School to inaugurate a Boy Scouts Association. It will nominate suitable persons to act as scoutmasters, register troops and patrols, encourage the movement and work in co-operation with other boys' organisations. The Chief Scout, Sir Robert Baden-Powell will be invited to inspect the Cambridge scouts in the autumn. 10 06 10 # c.37.9

Monday marked an important epoch in the history of Addenbrooke's Hospital when the electrical department, containing the new X-Rays and other appliances, was formally opened. The installation of the X-Rays is yet another evidence of the determined effort made by the Hospital Authorities to keep place with modern scientific discovery and have all the latest appliances. A 16-inch coil is used, with a motor generator and Wehnell brakes, and currents can be obtained up to 35 amps. By means of the Rays cases of bone disorder, injuries, cancer, rodent ulcer and ringworm can be dealt with. 10 06 10a & b # c.21.4

A.P. Thackeray had lived in Graveley for five years and done his best to brighten up the life of the village. He took some part in the last election and before then been subject to no annoyance. He was standing outside his house when some labourers used abusive language towards him. He wished to make an example of them in order to show the boys in the village that they could not do just what they liked. They boys were a terror to the village. The parish constable said he saw Mr Thackeray surrounded by a number of boys shouting. He fetched one of them a blow with a stick and they all disappeared. 10 06 10c

"Pretty Poll", the pet of the village post office, the autocrat of the counter and the terror of several generations of Bottisham children, passed away suddenly at the ripe age of 60 odd years. Few resident have secured by sheer force of personality such an abiding reputation for imperiousness combined with a haughty good temper. For the past 30 years the famous cockatoo had held undisputed sway, subject to occasional supervision by the Misses King. Anyone who entered was immediately made aware that it is not the essence of politeness to put one elbow on the counter and lounge as though in a public bar 10 06 10d

Amongst the wreaths of laurel leaves and evergreens sent to London to be hung up on the route of the funeral procession of the late King from Westminster Hall to Paddington Railway Station, was one contributed by the village of Conington. The idea originated with Mr P.T.L Gardner of Conington Hall and Mrs M.S. Kemmis, of The Rectory, who superintended the arrangements. The people were greatly gratified to read in the daily papers that the Queen Mother appreciated the sending of the wreaths 10 06 10e

1910 06 17
Saturday's bump suppers proved exceptionally popular. It is customary for bonfires to be held in college courts and the frequent discharge of fireworks kept the fun flowing until the early hours. Jesus, who retained their position as head of the river, held a magnificent bonfire on the Close. A large crowd attracted by an enormous pile of old boxes dumped near the tennis courts, assembled in anticipation of fun before the pile was set ablaze by firing Roman candles into the heart of the inflammable mass.10 06 17 # c.39 # c.38 : rowing # c.36.9

One of the biggest mock funerals for many years resulted as a difference of opinion between the authorities of Emmanuel and several junior members of the college as to the proper conduct of a 'bump supper' after which they had lit a bonfire on the lawn in the front court. Some ten undergraduates in their third year were rusticated for a week. A string of hansom cabs appeared at the gates, the 'corpses' clambered on to the roofs and mourners in evening dress and wearing old silk hats swathed with crape accompanied them to the station. 10 06 17a # c.39 # c.36.9

At the last stroke of eight o'clock in the morning James Henry Hancock paid the extreme penalty of the law for the murder of Alfred Doggett at Chesterton. The execution took place at the County Gaol, Castle Hill. Pierpoint was the executioner, assisted by his brother, and they accomplished their deadly work with marvellous celerity, death having been absolutely instantaneous. Only the Deputy Sheriff, the Governor of the Prison, the Prison Chaplain and Doctor were present but a crowd of several hundred assembled on the pavement opposite the Shire Hall. They kept their gaze fixed on the flag-staff, unaware that the practice of hoisting the black flag has been discontinued. Nor was the bell tolled. 10 06 17b # c.34.6

It is 12 years since the extreme penalty of the law was last paid within the walls of the County Gaol. The last culprit was Walter Horsford, the notorious St Neots poisoner, who was hanged on 28th June 1898 for the murder of his cousin. Prior to that there was a long period during which the hangman was not called upon for it was as far back as December 1876 that Robert Browning was executed for the murder of a woman on Midsummer Common. The last public execution in the county was in March 1864 when a man was hanged for the murder of a girl at Whittlesey. Shortly after this the law was passed putting a stop to executions in public and the tendency now is for complete privacy 10 06 17c # c.34.6

A serious accident happened to John Holley, farmer of Fenstanton who was driving from his home when the axle of his trap broke. The wheel came off and frightened the horse, causing it to bolt. Mr Holley was thrown to the ground though his fall was somewhat broken by his coming down on the cushion of the trap which was cut into two parts. The gig was practically demolished. The horse continued its wild course along the road until stopped by Mr Burgess's yardman, a man named Jefferies, at considerable risk to his own life 10 06 17h

Hangings – William Grimshaw 1801, Littleport rioters 1816, John Scare Whittlesford burglary 1817, Joshua Slade 1827 etc - 10 06 17d & e # c.34.6

Fire at Hall's fried fish shop, Kingston Street – 10 06 17f

1910 06 24
There are again no drinking booths at Midsummer Fair after magistrates refused permission. Up to 1874 certain people had the right to sell intoxicating liquor without an occasional licence and before 1908 the lowest number of licences had been 15. A large number of people – sometimes 10,000 – came from a distance and wanted a glass of beer and a sandwich in the evening. It was impossible for the nearest pubs to cater for them. Then there were the proprietors of shows & stallholders. Messrs Thurston and Barker employed no less than 100 hands with the roundabouts and they should be able to get food on the fairground. 10 06 24 & a # c.27.3

Archaeology: animal and human bones near Trinity Street – 10 06 24b

A good deal of interest has been aroused by the discovery of a large fossil animal at Barrington. It has turned out to be portions of a hippopotamus. Nearly the whole of the vertebrae and some of the ribs and other bones have been removed to the Sidgwick Geological Museum. Remains of rhinoceros, elephant, bison, lion and hyena have also been found in the area which has the oldest fossil-bearing gravel in the district. 10 06 24c

Some interesting relics were discovered while digging material for the new bridge over the River Ouse near the railway station at Ely. Twelve feet down a number of trees were found lying in a horizontal position, as if they had drifted down in time of flood. Remains of a horse and shells of fresh-water crustaceans were also found. Nearby Babylon, or 'Babblin' as local people call it, is covered with the debris of ancient potteries dating from the 15th to 18th centuries. The family of Merry have lived on this island for centuries and the present members are full of interesting information. 10 06 24d

The New Theatre being closed, the rowdy section of undergraduates have turned their attention to the Hippodrome, despite the fact that the house is 'out of bounds'. Last week some 40 or 50 attended nightly – of course without cap and gown – which made things generally uncomfortable. On Friday some beat time to the music on the backs of the musicians while others, spying some young ladies began, in full view of the audience, to make protestations of undying affection to them. Later they pelted artistes with bars of chocolate and lighted cigarette ends before the orchestra played 'God save the King' and the curtain was lowered to shrieks, whistling and shouting from the disappointed audience. 10 06 24e # c.76 # c.36.9

A sad accident occurred at Clay Way farm near Ely when a farmer's son was carting farm produce. He was standing on the shaft of a tumbrel proceeding down a drove which was very uneven when he slipped and fell. The wheel of the cart passed over his chest and as the vehicle contained a load of mangolds – a tremendous weight – he was terribly injured. A pathetic feature of the fatality is that the young man was soon to have been married and great sympathy is felt for his fiancée. 10 06 24f

Amongst those who took their degrees in Theology at the Senate House was G.A. Mackenzie the Missioner of the Church of England Deaf and Dumb Mission for Cambridge. He has attained his degree in spite of the fact that he was born deaf. He started the present mission in the Tracy Hall, Cockburn Street in 1906 where services and Bible-classes are held every Sunday in the finger and sign language. About 30 deaf persons attend regularly 10 06 24g # c.21.1

Swavesey accident with tricycle on railway, death of nurse Mary Edwards – 10 06 24h

A weird-looking object passed through Oakington the other day and people hurried into the streets thinking that at last they might see an aeroplane in action. On closer inspection, to their great disappointment, they discovered that the strange object was merely an ordinary farm water cart being towed by another cart, its unusual appearance being due to the stern end being foremost. The punders were fastened to the cart while the shafts stuck out behind. 10 06 24h

Suffrage rejection proposed by University MP – 10 06 24i

July 1910 CWN

1910 07 01 CWN
Licences for: Bassingbourn Beerhouse in the fen, Meldreth Green Man, Fulbourn Coach & Horses, Chesterton White Horse, Cottenham Boot, Fen Drayton Horse & Gate, Longstanton Red Cow, Milton Three Tuns, Shelford King William IV, Shudy Camps Chequers, Linton George & Dragon. Cambridge Star & Garter Petty Cury, Cardinal's Cap, Crown & Anchor, Borough Boys, Ship, Merry Boys, Prince Albert, Oxford – all refused. Melbourn White Lion & Swavesey Little Rose renewed 10 07 01 & a # c.27.4

There were 17 licensed houses in Melbourn, one to every 80 inhabitants, magistrates heard. The White Lion in Melbourn was near the Tailors' Arms and Anchor with another seven houses within a quarter of a mile. There was a barber's shop attached and this opened into the lobby leading to the bar. But the landlord said he allowed no beer to be sold there because children came to have their hair cut. It was in good structural repair and perfectly water tight. Eight beerhouses were doing a worse trade.

John Bullen, a wheelwright, said he visited occasionally and it was a very good house. Its licence was renewed #

Boy birched for stealing boots – 10 07 01b

A little boy named Clifford Dawson, aged 7, who lives with his grandfather in Mill Road, set out to see the Fair on Saturday and did not turn up again. At first people did not worry but on Sunday morning inquiries were made of the police. Nothing was heard until Sunday night when he was brought home by train from Foxton, where he had been to see his mother. The little boy, who was only wearing light clothes and must have been out in the pouring rain, had apparently started out to walk to the village and had got a lift on the way 10 07 01c

A roundabout proprietor was fined for damaging the grass at Burrough Green. The Parish council clerk produced minutes directing him to prevent persons from turning horses onto the village green. On morning he was called to 19 horses grazing there. He told the man to take them off, but he only laughed. It had always been a place of public recreation. The showman said the horses had been taken to the blacksmiths and went across the green, they had not grazed and he'd offered £4 for the horses' feed. The council did not wish to be vindictive and withdrew a second charge of doing damage to the green by driving in a stake 10 07 01d

1910 07 08 CWN
Bankruptcy W.J. Pink, ladies and gentlemen's hosier, St Andrews St - 10 07 08 & a

Merton College, Oxford, who are the owners of the well-known Pythagoras Gardens, have objected to the use of the gardens for public entertainments, and the lessee has therefore had to announce that the gardens are closed for the present, except for private parties. – 10 07 08aa # c.18

The new 'Wallbro' aeroplane built by P.V. & H.S. Wallis of 12, St Barnabas Road, met with a very remarkable mishap during the course of a trial run in a field near Abington. They intended to test the pulling powers of the engine and not attempt a flight but the machine suddenly rose completely off the ground and sailed along at a height of three or four feet. She continued to fly like this for several yards and then the back part was seen to rise in the air and the front to sink towards the ground. Finding himself unable to right the machine Mr Wallis stopped the engine and sprang out. The monoplane slowly turned a complete somersault, eventually landing upside down and there lay with its wheels in the air like some giant insect on its back. 10 07 08b # c.26.1

A foreigner, accompanied by a performing bear, stopped to refresh himself and his animal at the Bird Bolt public house, Newmarket Road. Sitting down on some straw next to another man the alien proceeded to break up a loaf of bread he had bought. The bear, who was held by a chain round his foot, evidently thinking the other chap was going to receive its share of the food, clawed hold of the man's leg and then sprang at and clawed his shoulder. The owner showing remarkable promptitude in pulling the animal off but. A performing bear badly mauled the landlady of a public house in Hertfordshire on Saturday. 10 07 08bb # c.19

Ferry boats to be lighted – 10 07 08c # c.44.7

Histon Feast, the largest in the county, began on Monday for three days. Thurston's Royal Show and steam motors did the lion's share of the business although the various hoop-la stalls, rifle-shooting saloons and a couple of small roundabouts came in for much attention as did the 'Live Teddy Bear' cave. Plenty of patrons congregated round a cheap jewellery auctioneer who was kept busy knocking down bargains to villagers. The scene was an animated one until close upon midnight – 10 07 08cc

The wife of the landlord of the Red Lion Inn, Boxworth End, Swavesey, recently had a surprise. Whilst engaged n household work at the back of the house she thought she heard the entrance of a crowd of customers into the taproom. On hurrying thither she found the room full of sheep which had found their way in through the open door 10 07 08f

Court case over larks sent to London from Barnwell junction station – 10 07 08d & e # c.19

On Saturday an Oakington farmer lost a flock of 83 sheep but, like Little Bo-Peep, he left them alone and hoped they would come home. Then on Sunday he hired a motor car and scoured the country visiting Bottisham, Newmarket, Shelford and other places too numerous to mention. At length discouraged and with the petrol tank running how, he turned towards home and when nearing the Five Bells on the Huntingdon Road espied them in front of him. Had the farmer only had the faith of Miss Bo Peep he would have saved himself a long motor ride. 10 07 08g

There has been an exceptionally large attendance of show people at Boxworth feast, no less than 17 vans putting in an appearance. A roundabout, shooting gallery, cocoanut shies, stalls etc have all been well patronised. One inhabitant residing near the feast grounds cut his hedge so neatly and level that the proprietor of the roundabout asked permission to use it as a table on which to place cockshy bottles. The villagers and their friends have had a happy time, notwithstanding the unsettled weather. 10 07 08g

1910 07 15 CWN
The Master of the University Draghounds was accused by the RSPCA of abusing a hind. The keeper's house at Shelford Crossing is surrounded by a wooden palisade and the animal made its way into the yard. The men used poles and brooms to drive it out and flicked it with whips. Eventually it was dislodged, only to go back again. It finally left in so exhausted a condition that it fell down and died. 10 07 15 # c.38 : hunting

The proprietor of the Swiss Laundry, Cherry Hinton was summonsed for allowing the chimney to send forth black smoke, causing a nuisance to residents. Complaints went back to 1903 but had stopped when they put in a new boiler in 1908 and started burning Welsh coal. Since then it had started again. It was impossible to hang clothes out to dry. Mrs Robjent said she'd washed a tablecloth three times and eventually had to send it to the laundry. The fruit in the garden got covered with black smuts and those who worked there looked like sweeps. 10 07 15a # c.27

Henry James, a watercress seller from River Lane, was accused of searching for spent bullets in the soil at the Rifle Butts without having permission of the Commanding Officer of the Cambridgeshire Regiment. He'd got some girls to help to pick up about 6lbs of bullets that he'd sold to Mr Charles Carless, a marine store dealer of Broad Street. Two boys were also cautioned for picking up bullets. The Territorial Army said a good deal of damage had been done to the Rifle Butts by people picking up the bullets and they wanted to stop people buying them 10 07 15b

Swavesey Parish Council told an Inquiry into the village water supply they had never known a shortage and had one of the best springs for miles around. It might be impure just after flood but that was just once in 20 years and there had not been an instance of water causing an illness in the parish. But the RDC said there were four wells, all fed from the Black Horse well, which supplied the lower end of the village. It was highly polluted with sewage and quite unfit for drinking purposes. The rest had no public supply and in dry summers they had to cart water. 10 07 15d & 15f

Swavesey nonconformity cemetery flowers – 10 07 15e

1910 07 22 CWN
Ely High Bridge having recently been reconstructed by the Isle of Ely County Council they offered the whole of the ironwork of the old bridge to Cambridgeshire County Council, suggesting it could be re-erected at Twenty Pence Ferry. Cottenham parish council urged acceptance. The county considered the costs of extinguishing any ferry rights and the new road required but declined the offer 10 07 22

Fire broke out at Great Dumpling's Farm, Barton. A cyclist gave the alarm at the Ridley Hall post and a section of the Cambridge brigade under the command of Capt Greef soon had the flames under control. Farming implements including a self-binder, chaff-cutter and elevator were damaged. PC Evans saw two boys running away; he caught one who admitted they'd been playing with matches near some straw on the farm 10 07 22a

A double tenement thatched cottage near the King's Head, Kedington, was discovered to be on fire and Haverhill Volunteer Fire Brigade promptly set out. Little could be done to save the building because of the scarcity of water, which had to be brought by pail from three or four shallow wells and a ditch, put in a tank and pumped out. Two other thatched cottages within six yards were saved. The outbreak is believed to be caused by a boy going into an outbuilding with a lighted candle 10 07 22a

A Huntingdon hotel received a telephone message from Thrapston to say that the steward of the Earl and Countess of Dudley was anxious to arrange for them to stay in the district. A motor car was despatched to fetch him and he inspected the accommodation, asking for a spring mattress to be added to one of the beds. He also interviewed a hairdresser and arranged for a man to dress her ladyship's hair. As his luggage had not arrived he was compelled to go to an outfitter to purchase a nightshirt. But suspicions were aroused, the police were contacted and the 'steward' left suddenly, much more unostentatiously than he had arrived. 10 07 22e

Swavesey landlady of Black Horse pub burned dress - 10 07 22b

1910 07 29 CWN
Fen Ditton neighbours quarrel – 10 07 29

A cab man blamed his failure on the change from horse cabs to taxi cabs. He had started as a cab proprietor in January 1905, paying £118 for the cab, horse and harness. He paid his way until after the taxi-cabs came to Cambridge and then became a taxi driver. But he lost that position when his employer gave up the business. He had sold his horse, harness and cab at a considerable loss and now had nothing but a small quantity of furniture which was not enough to meet the landlord's claim. 10 07 29a # c.26.487

Cambridge Bank Holiday Mammoth Show in aid of Addenbrooke's Hospital. 620 dog entries. The Horticultural Section is tremendous. Splendid array of cats. Fine bee and honey show. Wonderful sports entry. 17 motor riders including Martin the world's record holder and Dayrell the flying kilometre and mile champion at Brooklands. Exhibition of the 'Wallbro' Aeroplane fitted with engine complete but owning to lack of space and possible danger t the public a flight cannot be permitted. Thurston's electric bioscope. Firework Display – advert 10 07 29b & 29d # c.26.1 # c.27.3

The Cambridge Cooperative Bakery in James Street is now the best-equipped and most up-to-date in the country. The yard used for loading vans has been built upon and the old bread-room demolished and replaced with a spacious new model bakery. A large rotary mixer can covert four sacks of flour into perfectly mixed dough in ten minutes and an ingenious piece of machinery turns out 2,000 loaves an hour. After the opening a procession of the Society's 30 vans and carts preceded by a brass band paraded the principal streets 10 07 29d # c.27

Mammoth show – 10 07 29e 10 08 05a 10 08 05b

August 1910 CWN

1910 08 05 CWN
An assistant master at Gamlingay school was fined a sovereign for hitting an 11-year-old lad across the ear three times with a book. The hits were hard ones which drew blood and caused a headache. The mother had not the slightest objection to proper punishment being administered with a proper instrument but no master was entitled to strike a boy on the head with the kind of book used in this case. The teacher said the lad had refused to give his number and made grimaces. 10 08 05

The attendance at the Mammoth Show on Bank Holiday was a record one. The triple ring of seats around the sports ground was occupied by a close-packed mass of humanity and behind them spectators stood six or seven deep. The grand stands by the river, capable of accommodating 2,000 persons, were filled to capacity while the sloping bank near the Victoria Bridge was also black with people. And outside the ring the exhibition tents, refreshment booths, band enclosure and the fair ground, where the great roundabouts whirled and spun, were crowded with sightseers. 10 08 05 & a # c.27.3

Caxton school, p2
Albion cycling, p5
Edward VII memorie, p5
Fulbourn horse, p5
Icleton rifle club, p8

1910 08 12 CWN
A tragedy was narrowly averted at Wentworth by the prompt action of a villager. Jonas Whetstone heard a noise in a well by the roadside and on looking in was surprised to find a young woman clinging desperately to the brick sides of the well and in imminent peril of drowning. It was no easy matter from him to effect her escape but he succeeded in doing so. She had come over to the village from Haddenham to see her lover but he had refused to speak to her. This rebuff proved too much for the girl who, losing all control, jumped into the well. When rescued she was handed over to police and appeared in court changed with attempting to commit suicide. 10 08 12a

Queen Alexandra, the Queen Mother accompanied by her sister, the Dowager Empress of Russia, passed through Cambridge en route for Sandringham. The train drew up at the far end of the station, which had been barriered off to ensure the privacy of the Royal travellers. As it slowed those waiting had a good view of the Royals, both of whom were attired in deep mourning. Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria will remain at Sandringham for some time before proceeding to Scotland, so that her Majesty's departure from Buckingham Palace was a farewell to her home as Queen Consort for eight years. 10 08 12j

Mr Bentick, shoemaker of Palace Street, Newmarket, was cycling near Fordham when his attention was attracted by the cries of a woman in a ditch. He questioned a man who said he had only known her a couple of days and they had tramped from Ely that morning. He added that she was ill and did not know what was the matter. Mr Bentick, who is the father of a family, grasped the situation immediately and rendered such assistance as he could until a couple of nurses arrived from the Infectious Hospital close by. Then the woman and her new-born child were conveyed to Newmarket Infirmary. 10 08 12k

A party of excursionists left a Cambridgeshire village last Thursday morning for a day at Yarmouth. The sun shone brightly and everyone had a very happy day by the sea. At last the time came to start for home. On arriving at the railway station it was found that four of the party were missing. Just as the train was starting two appeared and were pushed by the guard into a carriage but the other two – elderly ladies – were left behind. They came on by a later train and arrived at their destination on Friday morning, having spent the night in Cambridge station. They were none the worse for their adventure. 10 08 12b

A new road between Rock Estate and Romsey Town would greatly improve communication between these largely populated and widely-separated districts, Mr W.P. Fison suggests. Rustat Road, which is a private road belonging to Jesus College could be continued until it cuts into Marmora Road. It would have to cross some allotments and a farm with a bridge over the railway line. There should also be a new road from East Road through Beche Road over a bridge into Old Chesterton. Both would provide work for the numbers of unemployed men in Cambridge 10 08 12e # c.49.62

The landlord of the Horse and Groom beer house Soham was summonsed for serving beer to six men on the afternoon of Hospital Sunday. Alfred Jefferies said they knocked at the gate at about 3.17 o'clock. He opened it and asked where they came from. One said 'Burwell', which was over the three mile limit, and others said 'the same'. But in fact they came from Fordham. The court dropped the charge against the landlord but police prosecuted the drinkers who had wrongly represented themselves to be travellers. 10 08 12f

For nearly half a century the Rev Henry Stone lived and laboured in the parish of Croydon, near Royston, and when he died about two years ago he was mourned by all classes. As a memorial a parish room is being erected by parishioners which can be used as a reading-room. Downing College has given the land together with the bricks and sand and the foundation stone was laid by the Master. There were a good many people living isolated lives and wanting company who thus got into bad habits. When they had a room everybody could meet together for amusement, he said 10 08 12c

A well-known travelling fishmonger from Cambridge, when watering his horse in a pond near Conington church, got stuck in the mud – at least his horse and cart did – and the services of men with ropes and a tumbrel cart were needed before they could be extricated. A quoits handicap played between members of Barton village club during the last few weeks was won by F. Pratt with C. Trundle and T. Disbrey runners up. At Girton the Rector presented watches to schoolchildren Gladys Nightingale and Victor Watson for nine years' perfect attendance 10 08 12

A poor widow woman at Boxworth End Swavesey lost her weekly little bit of meat in a mysterious way. Some distance from her cottage she met the butcher's lad and told him to put it in an empty milk pan outside her back door and to cover it with an inverted plate so no four-legged marauder could get it. But on her return she found no meat and the ticket had also disappeared. Pieces of bacon and other items of food have previously been missed from the same receptacle. 10 08 12h

Christ's Pieces affords a welcome glimpse of colour to hundreds of workers as they pass from one side of Cambridge to the other and numerous people in their spare time spend many a pleasant half-hour there. To tired mothers it is a boon unspeakable for there children can be allowed to run about at will, free from the imminent deadly peril of the recklessly-ridden bicycle and the death-dealing motor. The grass is as smooth as a tennis lawn, the trees and shrubs beautifully green and the garden plots a delight to the eye thanks to Mr Nunn who has been keeper of the Pieces for nearly 30 years. 10 08 19 # c.32.3

Trumpington amalgamation scheme discussed 10 08 12i 10 08 19b # c.35.7

1910 08 19 CWN
Henry and William Thurston, roundabout proprietors, were summoned for not having a supply of proper appliances at a cinematograph exhibition. Supt Lander said there were between 3,000 and 4,000 people at Histon Show. Messrs Thurston had a show there, which he visited. The machine was enclosed but the fire buckets were outside the tent, telescoped. Thurston's manager said they had hardly had time to put the fire appliances in the tent before the first show. It was a serious case and the public must be protected. They were fined £10 10 08 19a # c.76.9

The Crippen capture has caused Cambridge citizens to pay far more respect to the wireless telegraphy pole standing near the Huntingdon Road. More interest has been aroused by the fact that Crippen and Le Neve's whereabouts were note by wireless than has been manifested since the invention was first made. 10 08 19c & d # c.27.75

Mr W. Hutchinson, who was for seven years in the employ of the Cambridge Scientific Instrument Company, is now working as an electrical engineer in Brisbane. He has written a long and exceedingly-interesting letter which gives an unbiased opinion of the possibilities the emigrant may expect. At Googee bathing in the surf was indulged in by old and young The flies were the biggest nuisance; they spot new 'chums' and they won't be shoved off. 10 08 19f

The Sturton Town Hall Company applied for cinematograph, music and dancing licences. At present the premises were used by the Salvation Army on Sundays and occasional week days but in future it would be used for entertainment, the chief part of which would be moving pictures. The cinematograph apparatus might be placed outside the hall by erecting a platform and making a hole in the wall, though the club billiard room made this impracticable, or the vestibule might be taken away and a platform erected there. 10 08 19f # c.76.9

Two fires have occurred at Linton this week. Monday's was the most serious with two cottages next to the Green Hill being burned down. The engine was brought up smartly from its home under the rooms of the Constitutional Club and a host of helpers lined up from the well and passed filled buckets from hand to hand to keep the ever-thirsty engine supplied. Unfortunately over-zealous individuals took their buckets straight to the cottage and tackled the flames themselves, thus the engine was allowed to get dry. A patrol of ten Boy Scouts was brought to the scene and seated on the roof of an adjoining house the Scoutmaster directed a stream of water on to the flames. 10 08 19g

George Fawcett Winter, the well-known boatbuilder, became the proprietor of the boatyard near Victoria Bridge in 1876, succeeding the late Edward Searle. Ten years later he was connected with the boat-building industry at Eton: he used to spend the summer there and the winter at Cambridge. In 1900 he decided to relinquish his Cambridge business which came into the hands of Mr F. Pocock who is now carrying it on. He was well-known amongst University and Town rowing men and took an interest in the affairs of Old Chesterton. 10 08 19h # c.26.2

Vicar charged with immorality and adultery on remarrying after wife deserted him – 10 08 19e

1910 08 26
The interior of Cambridge Roman Catholic Church has been enriched by several works of artistic and antiquarian interest. The decoration of the Chapel of the Sacred Heart has been beautifully carried out by Messrs F.R. Leach & Sons. The soft tones of the colour scheme have replaced the cold monotony of white walls and the roof features a choir of 20 angels with outspread wings of red, gleaming with gold. A pre-Reformation oak statue of the Virgin Mary, which originally belonged to an order of Dominicans, has also been displayed 10 08 26

The recent serious fires at Linton draw attention to the lack of efficient fire-fighting appliances in the villages. Many are of a pre-historic pattern and are useless from decay. In case of a large fire Cambridge brigade would turn out but what would then happen should a blaze break out here? A small up-to-date engine on the spot is worth half-a-dozen steamers and a corps of firemen two hours later. Parish Councils are empowered to buy an engine but this is expensive. Villages within some reasonable distance should share the cost. 10 08 26a & b

Ely has opened the first women's Conservative Club in the provinces. The building off Silver Street was previously used as a hospital by the Ely Militia with a reading room and excellent bathroom. A large room will be utilised for balls and general meetings. A fete in the grounds of Egremont House featured a display of trophies including a black bear shot in the Himalayas by Mrs Luddington. In the evening Ely City Band played music for dancing on the lawn 10 08 26c

Longstanton cottagers living in the vicinity of the public pump known locally as "Chapman's" have a grievance. There is another a pump on private property close by, fed from the same public supply and when there is a heavy call on this (it is used to fill a tank about three times a week) the yield from "Chapman's" is very scanty indeed. Both parties claim priority of usage and neither is inclined to give way. If the council want to avoid unpleasantness they should step in now 10 08 26d

Linton fire engine is a remarkable veteran in its vermilion coat but old age overcomes most things. Some years ago it was smartened up and new buckets obtained but since then outbreaks have been frequent and now many feel a new engine must be provided. Meanwhile the enterprising photographer who produced a series of picture postcards of the recent blaze has been hard at work keeping pace with orders. Several Boy Scouts who gave distinguished assistance have ridden over from Cambridge to purchase cards, one of which depicts the Scoutmaster seated on the roof of an adjoining building and directing a jet of water onto the flames. 10 08 26e

September 1910 CWN

1910 09 02 CEN
The Directory dodge is one of the oldest swindles to which the businessman is liable. A well-dressed man called on Miss Margaret Hurry and asked her to subscribe to "Spalding's Directory" which had done her a lot of good the previous year. But the firm said he had nothing to do with them. He had also called on two others claiming to represent the "Post Office Directory" and taken a shilling from each. It was a common trick and many preferred to lose the money rather than take the time to give evidence in court 10 09 02 # c.47.4

Two Englishmen, Brandon and Trench, accused of espionage in Germany might be Cambridge Varsity men. There are several of that name on the University books but they have refused to divulge their initials it is impossible to confirm. The notoriety that Cambridge undergraduates have gained as inventors of hoaxes causes people to attribute any daring exploit, either at home or abroad, to them 10 09 02a

An inquest was held at Longstowe on the body of a 16-year-old domestic servant at Dene Farm. Her employer went to the pond opposite the house where he saw the body There was four feet of water but also a good deal of mud and she could not have expected to be able to walk into the middle without getting stuck. His wife had given the girl her notice: she had been troublesome, sometimes running about and making such a noise; she had also had boys in the house when they were away. 10 09 02b

Fen Ditton overseers of poor appeal against auditor's criticism – 10 09 02b

Mr R.J. Tollit, architect of Primrose Croft, Cambridge took his sister-in-law for a spin in his fore-car, a De Dion. They went as far as St Ives and had just got past the statue in the High Street when Mr C. Giddens of Hemingford Abbots came down the road from the opposite side driving a trap at a fair pace. There was plenty of room for both to pass. But they collided and Mr Tollit was sent flying under the horse's feet. Before losing consciousness he managed to turn off the petrol and cut off the engine, thus averting a fire. This is the second similar accident which has befallen Mr Giddens recently. Last time his trap collided with the motor belonging to the Junior Bursar of Trinity College. 10 09 02c

The polecat, a wild animal that was supposed to be almost extinct in England, has reappeared, after many years, in the fens. It is the habit of people to cry out against vermin, but they have their part in the scheme of things. In some parts of the country keepers were paid for every polecat destroyed. There was a favourite haunt in a small wood, almost a spinney, on the borders of Huntingdonshire and Northamptonshire. It would be interesting to know if other observers have had sight of the polecat, or indeed of other animals though to be altogether vanished from old haunts 10 09 02d

Longstanton water pump problems – 10 09 02e

We regret to record the death of Mr Alfred Williams who had been in business at Swavesey for half-a-century, first as a tailor and subsequently as a grocer. Twenty-eight years ago he took over the premises of Mr Thomas Payne, and here he passed away. For the past two years he had been in failing health but was able to attend to his business until the last few days of his life. He attended his usual place of worship on Sunday morning but was then struck down with paralysis. The funeral took place in Swavesey cemetery 10 09 02f

1910 09 09 CWN
Eighty-year-old Henry Palmer of Bradmore Street had lively recollection of some of the old election fights between the Whigs and Tories. "I have seen the shop windows broken and the blood running in the streets and the paths all slippy and sloppy with it. They used to have barrels of beer on Parker's Piece and knock the head in and dip the beer out in pails and hand it round. The political parties used to be hot in those days" He also recalled how a man who lived in the end house of a row in Petersfield used to make cricket bats. He built a brick wall right across the path and the matter ended up in court. Every year afterward they commemorated the event by dancing in the streets 10 09 09 & a # c.33

Stourbridge Fair was proclaimed by the Mayor. Remembering that it was for many years one of the biggest fairs in England, the present function is one of the sorriest of sights. The carriages conveying the robed officials was but a gloomy procession and little knots of woman and children stood along the route out of curiosity. Though there are generally a few stalls for the sale of dubious delicacies on the Common, there was no sign of enterprise of any kind. The fair does not open for another three weeks. 10 09 09b # c.27.3

A painful sensation was caused in the village of Fulbourn when it became known that Mr James Edmund Freeman had passed away. He employed a large number of hands on several farms he owned in Huntingdonshire including one at Hemingford Grey where he resided 18 years. On his retirement was presented with a framed portrait by Dendy Sadler. He then devoted his time to the business of R.B. Webster Ltd, fruit, pea and potato salesmen of Spitalsfield Market. He had started as a porter and later purchased the firm. 10 09 09c

He was a dashing Boy Scout, she was a demure country lass. They met in a country lane and it was a case of 'love at first sight'. Their first walk together was one of unalloyed bliss and they arranged to meet again. But the girl's dream was rudely shattered for the secret leaked out that 'he' was not a Boy Scout at all, but one of her girl cousins masquerading in a scout uniform. Such is the story of a mischievous young miss living in a village not far from Cambridge, which has set the whole of the inhabitants laughing. 10 09 09d & e

Disgraceful scenes occurred during an open air meeting held by the Royston Independent Labour Party. Two of the speakers were listened to quietly but the third was interrupted by some youths who, finding that yelling failed to stop him, resorted to egg throwing. The missile however failed to reach the intended mark, hitting instead a spectator full in the ear, covering both him and his brother with the contents. At the conclusion of the meeting the promoters gathered up all the literature to stop it falling into the hands of the opposition 10 09 09f

1910 09 16 CWN
Licences for Oyster House during Stourbridge Fair – 10 09 16

Littleport girl killed in accident in Wood Fen – 10 09 16a & b

The past week has been marked by an unusual number of fatalities. At Huntingdon a poor woman in a fit of insanity cut the throat of her infant child and then committed suicide. At Littleport a little girl of six years of age was run over by a farm cart and killed. A Stansted carpenter was knocked down by an express train and the body of a St Ives man was found in the river at Huntingdon. The Over mail cart driver blew his nose and immediately fell to the ground dead, probably caused by the rupturing of a blood vessel in the brain 10 09 16c

Thetford object to vote for Stretham Rector Stitt – 10 09 16d

A customer who ordered half a ton of coal from an Over coal merchant was much surprised when he arrived at his premises dragging a cart containing the fuel. He sympathetically remarked "I'd only have had a couple of hundred had I known you'd no horse". But the merchant replied he did not trouble to put his horse in for such a trifle as half a ton and that were it not for Over hill he could drawn all of his coal himself from Swavesey railway station. 10 09 16e

A stack fire occurred between Kneesworth and Meldreth. The alarm was given by rockets and soon a crowd gathered outside the fire station. The brigade turned out smartly but on arrival found the only water was from a small stream two inches deep and it was absolutely impossible to save them. The outbreak is supposed to have been caused by a boy who had been sent to burn some rubbish. Some other stacks caught fire at Barley but the brigade could not leave the Kneesworth blaze. It is supposed somebody had deliberately set them on fire. The police captured one man and are seeking another; he has a dark moustache and walks with a limp. 10 09 16f

1910 09 23 CWN
With the development of light motor traction the demands on highways is increasing. But they leave much to be desired. Many roads have only a small width in the middle that is pleasant for motorists to drive on, with the sides used for passing. But this is obstructed by covered carts and vans, the heavy two-horsed brewer's dray and especially traction engines with two or three wagons attached. The Highways Act states that if the driver of any wagon, cart or carriage shall not keep on the left side of the road he shall be guilty of obstruction and may be fined £5. The authorities should enforce this provision which at present is more honoured in the breach than the observance 10 09 23

Very quietly and unostentatiously the self-styled 'Messiah', Mr Smyth-Pigott of 'Abode of Love' fame revisited Cambridge and spend the day with what remains of the 'faithful few' of the sect who still go by the name of the Agapemonites. Some time ago there was quite a number but most of the younger members have fallen away and now they can be counted on the fingers of one hand. His arrival was a great contrast to his last visit when, clad in clerical garb, he dashed into town in a swagger motor car. There was no one to meet him at the station and he walked slowly into Devonshire Road where he entered a house. Later four ladies visited but no noise was heard except the clatter of knives and forks and the rattle of cups. 10 09 23a # c.83

An application was made for the transfer of the licence of the Quy Green, Swaffham. The outgoing tenant said he worked hard all the week but all the money had to go to the brewers. Police objected to the new applicant who had been landlord of the Waggon and Horses in Haslingfield. Whilst there inhabitants objected to the conduct of a member of his family so strongly that there was a 'tin-kettling' and they did not want a repetition of that kind of thing here. The Star Brewery said they knew nothing of the matter and would find a new applicant. 10 09 23b

A college guide assaulted – 10 09 23b # c.46.45

Walter Neman told the court that he earned £1 a week playing a street organ. It had cost him £18 10s.6d, he'd spent £5 for new tunes, twelve shillings on a new wheel and three-and-six on tuning. A motor car had run into the back of it, knocking it over and causing considerable damage. A four-year old boy who had been in the shafts was knocked over and his hands were cut. There was nobody in Cambridge who understood the instrument and it would have to go to London to be repaired. Repairs would cost at least £3. He had another organ which his son took out. He was awarded £5 for damage to the machine and £3 for loss of earnings. 10 09 23 c & d # c.69 # c.39

W.J. Pink, hosier, bankruptcy – 10 09 23e

J.W. Clark of Trinity College has resigned as University Registrary after being ill with heart trouble. He was for many years Superintendent of the Museums of Geology and Comparative Anatomy and is the author of many works including a Concise Guide to Cambridge which is the one generally used by visitors. He is a great authority on archaeology and one of the best known Dons to generations of undergraduates. He has taken a great interest in theatrical matters being chairman of the Directors of the New Theatre and the backbone of the ADC for a great many years – 10 09 23e # c.36.9

Swavesey people have reason to complain of the carelessness displayed by the men in charge of the traction engine and three huge trucks used to convey granite from the station for use on the County Council roads. On several occasions the main road has been strewn with granite dropped from the trucks. The engine with its heavy train shakes the houses in an alarming way. When they come through after nine in the evening babies and early bed-goers have been roused from their sleep and the domestic peace disturbed. Horse and carts did not damage the roads like the engine does and gave employment to local men. 10 09 23f

A vicar near Cambridge has been compelled to lock the church door. When it was opened people indulged in wanton mischief and sacrilege. Bell-ropes were cut, prayer-books torn and flowers stolen from the altar itself. The chief culprits are young people who walk or cycle out from Cambridge and do it without thinking, through lack of reverence but not through viciousness of nature. This reveals a most lamentable state of things which one can only trust is not general throughout the county 10 09 23g

Painful scenes were witnessed at Little Downham during an open-air baptism in the Pit Pond in Cannon Street. This is a shallow pond chiefly used for watering horses and washing carts. The Minister, who had a pair of waders reaching over the knees, was immersing a woman when her husband suddenly arrived and endeavoured to prevent the ceremony being performed. He walked into the water and great consternation prevailed among the members of the Baptist community present until he was restrained by the village policeman. Afterwards there was an angry scene as he upbraided his wife for acting so, against his wishes. The affair was witnessed by a large crowd and still remains almost the sole topic of conversation. 10 09 23h

1910 09 30 CWN
Signal success has attended the Cambridge Jubilee Church Congress. Fifty years ago when a few ardent Churchmen met together in the Hall of King's College, public interest in their proceedings was practically non-existent. Since then great changes of thought have taken place and this week three thousand members of Congress together with an Archbishop and 28 Bishops have attended. 10 09 30 & a # c.83

October 1910 CWN

1910 10 07 CWN
The venerable head of the Salvation Army, General Booth, revisited Cambridge. He has aged since his last visit. The burdens of years now rests heavily upon his venerable shoulders. His long hair and beard are white, his sight is dim, his shoulders are bowed, his voice has lost its volume and penetrating quality and he had to be assisted on and off the platform. But he is as eloquent and earnest as ever. For nearly an hour and a quarter he stood, his spare form closely buttoned up in his long military frock coat, upright and soldierly, a truly wonderful old man. 10 10 07 # c.83

The housing situation in Willingham is truly deplorable. In several cases a man with his wife and two or more children are living in a two-roomed cottage. One man complained the rooms were so small he could scarcely get into them and another was unable to get married as he could not get a house to which he could take his bride. In one house a father, mother, wife's father, two grown-up sons, a grown-up daughter and four children were herded together in three rooms. How any sort of decency can be maintained under such conditions it is difficult to imagine. No wonder dozens of young men are emigrating to the colonies 10 10 07b

An interesting personality passed away. Mrs Sarah Faircloth (98) was born at Royston three years before the Battle of Waterloo. She was the granddaughter of Henry Andrews, Astronomical Calculator to the Board of Longitude and the originator of the celebrated Old Moore's Almanack. In 1903 she sent his portrait to the Queen and Cambridge Free Library and received a gratifying acknowledgment from each. She was fond of reading and recently played a game of cribbage with her only surviving son. 10 10 07b

The scheme for extending the Borough boundaries so as to include Chesterton, Cherry Hinton and the urban portions of Grantchester, Trumpington and Fen Ditton was formally launched. The boundary with Chesterton is an imaginary line running down the centre of the river which presents legal difficulties over dredging. The river is used by member of the University for rowing but most of the boathouses are on the Chesterton side. The Corporation own a cemetery the parish of Fen Ditton. They have constructed a sewer and laid water mains along Newmarket Road and the land will no doubt be used for building. 10 10 07e & i & j

An extensive stack fire broke out on the premises of Messrs Pearson Bros, the well-known horse breeders at Mepal. Most of the men were working on the land but the women, greatly to their credit, proved equal to the occasion. Leaving their homes, they hurried to the fire equipped with pails and anything else that might answer the purpose. So hard did the women work that the wells were soon dried up and the river at Mepal Bridge was resorted to, several neighbours lending their water carts to fetch supplies. Stock including three valuable stud horses and 23 calves were rescue from the blazing stables. 10 10 07g

Although the Cambridge Workers' Hospital Fund has only been in operation for 13 weeks it has already collected £166. Great difficulty has been experienced with some employers: hundreds of firms have been written to but few had replied. More accommodation was needed at Addenbrooke's Hospital but this could not be undertaken unless the workers would raise an extra £1,000 a year to maintain the extensions. The hospital charges for bandages and medicine were very reasonable but although subscribing workers should have them, this could not apply to their family or relatives 10 10 07e

1910 10 14 CWN
There is only one topic in Linton this week – TAR. There is tar in the streets, tar in the houses and tar everywhere. The trouble commenced when the paths were 'made up'. Down went the tar in a thick, glossy coat, sticky and black and then a meagre overcoat of fine granite was thrown on in. But there was not enough to make the job entirely successful. Some say their houses are in such a condition that they don't know where the door mat begins and the road ends and everybody is unhappy over the manner in which the work was carried out 10 10 14d

Henry Palmer reminiscences of Cambridge in the 1850s, Burwell riots and public right-of-way from Petersfield into South Street - 10 09 09aaa

Ely shepherd's suicide – Daniel Clark – 10 10 14 & a

Death of J.W. Clark – 10 10 14b

Oddfellows centenary celebrations 10 10 14c

Isleham bird-catcher released from gaol – 10 10 14c

Relations and friends arrived in Willingham for the annual and much-looked-forward-to Feast. During the afternoon the yearly parade of the Friendly Societies marched round the village with the band of the People's Mission bringing up the rear. Young men collected on behalf of Addenbrooke's Hospital. The week has been given over to gaiety. Thurston's motor roundabouts and shows, swings, stalls etc were greatly in evidence but the weather was unfavourable and many visitors from surrounding villages were kept away - 10 10 14d

On Sunday evening people coming out of Over church were treated to an amusing incident. A cyclist with a trailer containing two passengers was proceedings along High Street when the trailer broke away and the two occupants were landed on the road with their feet in the air. No one was hurt. 10 10 14e

1910 10 21 CWN
A fire involving the loss of seven stacks occurred at River Farm, Haslingfield which has just been taken over by Messrs Chivers. It was noticed by Mr Hays of Harston who jumped from his trap and tried to tread out the flames before rushing into the village to give the alarm. While some men worked hard to save the stacks, two horse keepers got ten valuable horses from the stables while others removed valuable farm implements. The glow could be seen for many miles round and attracted crowds of people from neighbouring villages. Firemen cycled over from Cambridge and the steamer, which arrived after a fast run, was soon got to work. But for the splendid efforts of the villagers the whole farm would have been destroyed. 10 10 21

PC Keep, stationed at Newnham Croft, was on duty near the Hat and Feathers when he saw a pony attached to a governess cart lying in the road in a very exhausted state. It was very poor, nothing but a bag of bones and totally unfit to walk along the road alone. He put it in a meadow where it staggered about and the owner went away leaving the trap in the middle of the road. The man said he'd intended to work it until he was stopped. Now he would have it killed. 10 10 21

Thomas Hall, a motor bus driver, told the court he was driving to Cottenham at night when he heard a knocking beside the vehicle and saw two young ladies who told him to look out for a rope across the road. When he came to it he pulled up and put it on the side of the road so that no one else should run into it. It was a dangerous thing to do and might have caused serious injury to a cyclist. One teenage lad said they'd got a string and tied it to the railings. It would not reach across the road so they tied a can to it. They did not mean to do any harm and promised not to do it again. 10 10 21a

The court heard that an Elm man had bought a Swift motor car together with a number of spare parts for £202. He'd insured it for £250 with the London Guarantee Company. The shed in which it was stored later caught fire and the car was practically destroyed. He then went to a Wisbech cycle agent with a list of accessories which he had claimed had been with the vehicle, including non-skidding tyres. The insurance company alleged there had been fraud but the driver had been found not guilty of arson and the judge said it was not a criminal offence for a man to have charged rather too much. The case was dismissed. 10 10 21d

A public meeting agreed that the best Cambridge memorial to King Edward VII would be an extension to Addenbrooke's Hospital. At present there was a small ward where only eight infants could be accommodated and the outpatients department did more harm than good as people suffering from infectious diseases had to wait in company with others, increasing infection. The boiler needed replacement and there was need for a new room for X-ray apparatus as well as a new lift. There should also be a bust of the late King to be displayed in the Guildhall alongside that of his mother, Queen Victoria. 10 10 21e & f # c.02 # c.21.4

A serious outbreak of fire took place on the premises of John Jarvis, horticultural builder of Hills Road, Cambridge and a large carpenter's workshop which backed on to the stables of the Warwick Hotel was burnt to the ground. It had been filled with wood and a fire was always kept burning to boil down glue. The brigade was soon on the steam but the engine had such a short run it did not have a chance to get up steam. When the water did come the flames had abated. A group of those ever-invaluable little mortals, the Boy Scouts, rendered valuable assistance in keeping back the crowd and helping with the hoses 10 10 21 # c.34.75

1910 10 28 CWN
Three labourers were charged with stealing nine golf balls and an overcoat from Charles Willmott, a groundsman at the University Golf Links at Coton. The men went to the fields adjoining the course and picked up golf balls knocked some distance by players which they sold to an athletic outfitter of Downing Street. Willmott said he had left his overcoat in a shed on the links and it had gone missing. Later he found it in a ditch. Nine golf balls that had been in the pocket had gone. He went to the shop and identified them because of peculiar marks, one of them was quite unique. If men could not sell the balls they would not trouble to pick them up. 10 10 28 # c.38 : golf

A Clare College undergraduate, Mr R. Chadwick Leach, had an exciting experience early on Saturday morning, his sitting room burning fiercely while he was fast asleep in the bedroom adjoining. The fire was discovered by a bedmaker who called some undergraduates and they at some risk to themselves roused Mr Leach from his sleep. The rooms on 'C' staircase comprise a bedroom and sitting room which are made secure by a door on the landing. He went to bed about midnight, leaving a small fire in the grate. The contents of the sitting room were completely destroyed and the damage must be considerable 10 10 28a # c.34.75 # c.44.5

Startling allegations against the Corporation were made by a Cambridge vicar. No man, least of all a minister of religion, would make such charges without being in possession of undeniable evidence which should be laid before the public. He said people laboured under great social difficulties in Barnwell. While the town authorities were busy with their scheme of enlargement and aggrandisement, it was always their paramount duty to purge the corruption in the heart of the town. There was squalor and overcrowding, insanitary dwellings and unhealthy courts and alleys which were a disgrace. 10 10 28b

The new motor fire tender is the very latest and embodies a number of new features. As well as a 45-foor fire escape it can carry seven firemen and a complement of life-saving equipment including smoke helmet, jumping sheets and 1,200 feet of hose. The acetylene headlights can be lit from the driver's seat while the vehicle is travelling by simply turning on the gas and moving an electric switch. Its extreme handiness, the rapidity with which it can be started and the speed at which it can travel – up to 30 mph - will render it of the utmost value.10 10 28c # c.34.75

Cambridge station railway worker decapitated by train – 10 10 28d # c.26.2

The National Telephone Company sought to recover rent for a telephone installed at the premises of Herbert Quinsee cycle and motor engineer, East Road. Quinsee said he'd wanted to be cut off immediately it was installed in 1909. It had been fixed in his workshop, whereas he'd asked for it in the showroom. The company said they would put on extra bells, which he would have to pay for. He could not take the apparatus down because it was not his property but as it was not removed people rang him up. 10 10 28e # c.27.75

November 1910 CWN

1910 11 04 CWN
Cottenham Parish Council discussed the condition of the fire engine. It should be mounted on wheels as a more convenient method of travelling than the van now in use, and two 40-feet length of canvas hose should be ordered. Heaps of street sweepings deposited in various parts of the village were unsightly and unsanitary and should be disposed of and the police should prohibit the discharge of fireworks on the public highway 10 11 04

Advocates of votes for women made their first platform appearance at Gamlingay, a crowded meeting being held in the Boys' Council Schoolroom. Mrs Rackham from Cambridge said she did not believe in the actions of the militant suffragettes. They were not asking for women to go to Parliament but women were taxed like the men and ought to vote like them. However Mrs Stanley of Merton Grange thought it would be terrible thing if in future England were governed by women. (Applause). It would mean 'petticoat government' and they did not want that. (Applause). The majority of ladies did not want the franchise and 400,000 of them had petitioned against 'votes for women'. The meeting rejected the idea. 10 11 04b # c.33

The County Council needed extra offices for its staff. At present departments were housed in different buildings and councillors often went to the wrong one. They could take space in the Guildhall but would be paying rent that would assist the Borough to erect a very fine building in which they had no permanent share. It would be more economical to build on the Shirehall site, removing the Chief Constable's house and other police buildings, but most convenient to purchase a building on a more central site. However they must bear in mind the great difference in cost 10 11 04a & b # c.35.1

William Whitehead, solicitor v Arthur Radford over embezzlement 10 11 04d & e

A Salvation Army wedding was solemnized at the Wesleyan Chapel, Littleport. The parties wore Salvation Army costumes relieved in the case of the bride by a large cream sash. After the singing of 'What a Friend we have in Jesus' the bridal party took their place on the platform behind the pulpit. Two babies started crying but did not disturb the proceedings. The Army flag was held over the couple as the ceremony continued and a collection was taken as a marriage dowry. Afterwards the couple left by carriage for a wedding banquet. In the evening a 'bridal march' processed through the streets followed by a public gathering in the Salvation Army Hall. 10 11 04f

Manor Farm, Haslingfield, is an old family property. As it was convenient for military purposes the house was originally well fortified and a wide full moat still encompasses it on three sides. It was most useful when a stack fire broke out. Huge cloths were flung over the old barn roof and pail after pail emptied over it. The sky was glowing ruddily and hundreds of people were soon on the spot, most of them spectators. But a helpful few assisted to prevent the spread of the flames. It is supposed the stacks were fired intentionally by the same persons responsible for the River Farm fire two weeks ago. 10 11 04g

The County Council voted to spend £1,000 to oppose plans to enlarge the Cambridge boundaries and create a county borough. It was not in any sense a manufacturing town, though it was important as a railway centre and had important markets. The County Coroner's district would be reduced with his salary cut in consequence – the Borough would pay compensation for loss of remuneration – and the County police force would be reduced by one sergeant and four constables. In addition seven elementary schools and 2,700 children would be transferred to the Borough. But Cherry Hinton residents favoured amalgamation. 10 11 04h # c.35.1

A man selling boaters and a butcher's boy on a bicycle came into collision in High Street, Swavesey. Man, boy and cycle fell sprawling on the road, the bloaters went flying and the fishmonger's trousers were torn. There is also a hole near the public lamp in the middle of Market Street which is dangerous. The lamplighter might have an awkward fall one of these dark nights. It should have been filled with some of the surplus soil from the new drain which has recently been removed from the street.10 11 04j Charles Wood appointed headmaster

Cherry Hinton parish meeting supports Cambridge Borough boundary extension proposals 10 11 04i

1910 11 11 CWN
An undergraduate was fined for assaulting a policeman on Guy Fawkes night. A considerable amount of damage had been done, hoarding demolished, gas lamps broken, the railway station raided and milk churns overturned. The most serious incident occurred at Jesus Sluice footbridge where a battle royal took place between members of the County Constabulary and a large party of undergraduates and town roughs. They stoned the police, all of whom were hit, and PC Johnson was struck on the forehead by a piece of board and rendered unconscious. Only the arrival of police reinforcements had averted further trouble. 10 11 11 & a # c.39 # c.34.6

The importance of Mr Oscar Browning's literary and artistic treasures was exemplified when they were sold at auction. For upwards of 30 years his rooms at King's College have been the Mecca of University men with leanings towards literature, music and art and no visitor of note deemed his visit to Cambridge complete unless he paid his respects to the genial 'Don'. So it is not surprising that high prices ruled throughout and several record figures were obtained. The sale concluded with the contents of the wine cellar which contained a nice selection of vintages. 10 11 11b

A convoy, broken-down and captured by the enemy near Cantelupe Farm Haslingfield formed the objective of some interesting operations by the University Officer Training Corps and a small force of public school boys from the Leys School. The Cambridge garrison were very short of fuses and a convoy of wagons, disguised as manure carts had tried to reach them. But the horses became exhausted and they'd been obliged to halt for the night. The commander sent out column 500 strong to bring them in but encountered the opposing cavalry. The Maxim gun detachment did good service, firing from near the inn at Barton 10 11 11c & d # c.45.4

An elderly man told Cambridge magistrates that he wished to give himself up to be hanged instead of Dr Crippen. He thought doctors did a great deal of good in the world and should not be allowed to suffer the extreme penalty. He was told that Dr Crippen would probably have no objection whatsoever to the exchange but that the application must be made in London, not in Cambridge. The applicant, an old soldier fairly well known as of rather eccentric habits, thanked the Bench and withdrew from the court. 10 11 11e

'The People' bioscope car arrived at the Three Horse Shoes Inn, Harston, on Monday evening and gave an excellent exhibition of pictures with gramophone selections. There was a large attendance & the military scenes especially aroused the enthusiasm of the local Territorials and Harston Boy Scouts. Those who cared to do so were, by the courtesy of the manager of the car, enabled to listen to further gramophone selections until closing hour when hearty cheers were given for 'The People' car. 10 11 11f # c.76.9

1910 11 18 CWN
The rising ground near Histon Station was the scene of operations by the C.U.O.T.C. It included an advance across country by the infantry battalion on a position near the windmill where a very strong gun emplacement had been constructed complete with communications trenches. The attackers crept cautiously to within 50 yards of the position without a sound being heard, then swarmed over the breastworks. A dummy gun was blown up with a thunderous boom which rolled away over the countryside. 10 11 18 & a. # c.45.4

Madingley Hall was the scene of a very picturesque function when 220 guests dressed in costumes of the Tudor and Stuart period took part in a fancy dress ball to mark the completion of the restoration of the north front of this charming old Tudor mansion. It was here that his late Majesty King Edward VII resided when at Trinity. In his bedroom is a portrait of the young prince in his undergraduate's cap and gown which the King signed only two years ago. 10 11 18b

The annual tea of the Swavesey Liberal Association was brought to an abrupt conclusion by the alarming intelligence that a fire had broken out in the village. At first the chairman, Mr Ebenezer Parish, thought it was a hoax and begged the audience to keep their seats but another messenger broke into the room with the news that the fire was on Mr Parish's own premises in Middle Watch. The village fire engine arrived and notwithstanding its great age – it is nearly 100 years old – it threw water with telling effect. Fire hooks hauled down the thatch while men scaled the roof and with forks and hands tore off the heated reed and straw 10 11 18c

On Saturday evening a traction engine belonging to Messrs Pamplin of Cherry Hinton was passing through Boxworth with two trucks of coal. When near the Brickyard Gate the plug was blown out, causing a stoppage of several hours near Soldier's Drove. Horses and a water cart had to be fetched from Elsworth to re-fill the engine and it was not until 11pm that a fresh start could be made. It returned at three in the morning. 10 11 18d

1910 11 25 CWN

A somewhat alarming accident took place at St Ives station. An engine was shunting a number of cattle trucks from the loading-up siding and received the signal from the shunter to proceed on to the down main road. The signalman, however, had his points open to receive another engine and although he could see what would happen was unable to attract the driver's attention. The trucks ran into the stop blocks at the end of the platform. The empty trucks were telescoped and raised on end causing considerable damage to the rolling stock. Fortunately there was little damage to the livestock, one cow being injured on the hip and a leg of a sheep broken. It was some hours before the side line could be cleared and the animals re-loaded into other trucks. 10 11 25

A postman named Hall noticed smoke issuing from the front door of a house at 7 Hobart Road. The kitchen window was open and in company with George Hills, a rag and bone dealer, he entered the house and found the chimney-place in the living room on fire. Another blaze broke out in Mr George Wesson's residence situated close to the brewery in Fitzroy Street. His wife had placed a portable gas stove in the bath-room which set light to the curtains and furniture. The amount of damage has been estimated at £20 and is covered by insurance. A number of constables and 13 firemen under Captain Greef were in attendance. 10 11 25a

The whole of the Barrington Cement Works was sold by public auction in August 1909 at which Arthur Titchmarsh, grocer of Saffron Walden purchased Mill House and various pieces of machinery. Then in October the freehold of the site was also sold before he'd had time to clear the extensive foundations. Now it was alleged he had removed fire-bricks, iron piping and other materials, digging deep trenches in the process and had made a roadway across the land. A large number of witnesses were summoned but both parties came to agreement to avoid heavy expenses. 10 11 25b

The RSPCA entertained 75 Cambridge cattle drovers to a tea and concert in St Paul's Institute. The Master of Trinity College said grace. The Mayor hoped he would not see any of them in the police court for cruelty to animals. Cattle driving was not an easy job; it needs patience, gentleness, skill and endurance. Sometimes they were greatly tried and tempted to be cruel to their animals but they should use forbearance. As the men were leaving each was given a packet of tobacco. 10 11 25c # c.19

A cook at Clare College claimed compensation for an injury sustained through a fall in the college kitchen. The man, who was a 'roast cook', had been carrying a double-handed boiler when he trod on a piece of stick and fell. The boiler struck him in the pit of the stomach exacerbating a rupture he'd sustained three years earlier. Since the accident he'd been paid sixteen shillings weekly, half his usual earnings. His claim was dismissed. 10 11 25d & e # c.28

The late Mr Alfred Simper was a well-known rope-maker who formerly carried on business at Great Shelford. For the past 21 years he lived at Rope Walk, New Street and visited all the markets around Cambridge. He had a stall in the Corn Exchange for 20 years and was highly respected by all with whom he came in contact. Mr Simper was a prominent Cambridge Christadelphian and the funeral service was conducted according to the custom of the Christadelphian community by Dr W.J. Young of Harston. 10 11 25f # c.27

December 1910 CWN

1910 12 02 CWN
General election adoption meetings, West Cambs – E.S. Montagu & Douglas Newton 10 12 02d

Rat plague – meeting – 10 02 02f

John Willis Clark, formerly Registrary has bequeathed to the University Library his books, pamphlets, manuscripts and views and photographs relating to Cambridge together with the manuscript of the Architectural History by Professor Willis and extracts from college account books and other documents. Any duplicates can be sold or exchanged. 10 12 02

Roller skating rink music licence objections – 10 12 02g

In spite of the discomfort and dangers of motoring in dense fog, Sir Charles Rose succeeded in addressing five meeting in his East Cambs constituency on Tuesday evening, finally arriving at Great Wilbraham with the assistance of a guide. But G.H. Verrall decided not to proceed with his motor to hustings at Stetchworth, Dullingham and Burrough Green, sending a telegram to say the fog made driving with motor impossible 10 12 02h – West Cambs 10 12 02i

The work of re-hanging the Over church bells has been in progress during the past month. Because of the work the chimes were stopped, there was no striking of the clock and the bells were not used for Sunday service. These things were much missed by the parishioners as no one seemed to know the time. The re-opening was marked by a public tea in the schools when nearly 200 of the parish were present and a peal of 720 changes was rung. 10 12 02j

The wife of the Master of the Cambridgeshire Foxhounds was killed in the hunting field at a meet in Croxton Park. A hard and dashing rider, she put her horse at a whitethorn fence but it failed to rise and fell heavily, breaking her neck. Death was instantaneous. The field was well together and the sad accident was witnessed by practically everyone. The body was laid reverently in a cart and taken back to Gransden Hall, the bereaved Master following in a motor car thoughtfully despatched from Croxton Hall by Mr Douglas Newton. The sad news has caused a most painful sensation in county society. She was a woman of great charm and beauty. 10 12 02k

